Every day increases the visible activity at the St. Paul G. A. R. encampment headquarters. The work is being pushed merrily along, and every one is working with might and main to make the 30th national encampment a grand success. It is believed that Wisconsin alone will send 20,000 visitors. Maps of the city will be printed for the convenience of the visitors. The maps measure 30x26 inches. On one side appear the streets and avenues and a special indication of the street car lines and the line of the grand parade. On the other side in larger scale are shown the center of the city with the line of parade and the location of all the hotels, manufacturing plants and prominent buildings. Smaller maps, embodying the above features, will also be on hand. The names of the different departments will be printed on silk banners to indicate their different locations in the encampment hall.

A military camp with 500 tents will be established during that week. The tents and the water will be free to the veterans and their families. The camp will be at the west end of the Selby avenue cable line, between Victoria and Chadsworth streets. The camp will be named "Camp Mason." The occupants will be expected to supply all furniture for their canvas houses.

An Abduction.

A few days ago the officers at Sherburne were informed that a girl was held prisoner in a covered wagon near the lake north of the railroad, and men in the neighborhood, becoming suspicious that all was not right, shadowed the outfit and finally managed to find out that she was held prisoner by a miserable brute named Dell Jones, who owned the rig, and formerly worked about Sherburne, and that for days she had been vainly trying to get away.

The police went after the girl and brought her into town, but were too simple and slow to catch the man. She was kept here till the next day and then was sent to her home near Britt, Iowa. She is the daughter of a well-to-farmer, is but 16 years old, with a very pretty face and shapely figure.

The unfortunate creature was heart broken, and her story excited deep sympathy and indignation, and attempts were made to find Jones with the intention of giving him a coat of tar and feathers. This is the most awful case of abduction that has ever shocked the people of this county, and if the guilty parties can be found they will disgrace a state's prison with their presence for several years.

Dangerous Pets.

Early last week some gypsies pitched their camp near the eastern end of the Franklin avenue bridge, in Minneapolis. Included in their assortment of curiosities were two mountain lions. The animals were kept in a large cage, but not properly guarded. Among the visitors to the camp Sunday was a young girl named Amelia Larson. The lions excited her curiosity and she approached close to the cage. As she was peering through the bars one of the lions reached through and caught her head with one of his paws. The large claws pierced the flesh and the girl feared to move. Seeing her danger, John King seized her and pulled her quickly from the lion's hold. The animal tore a piece of skin from her head, but she was otherwise uninjured. The police were notified of the occurrence and a warrant was secured, but the gypsies had taken their departure during the darkness.

Quail Increasing.

The effect of the protection afforded quail in this state by the game and fish commission and by legislative enactment has been to increase the number of this game bird in a very remarkable degree. Three seasons ago the call of the quail was seldom heard in adjacent brush or timber, and although there has been little respect for the law in some localities, the combined action of the commission with that of sportsmen's club throughout the state has resulted in the increase of the quail beyond the most sanguine hopes of its protectors. There is evidence in this country all about Lake Minnetonka, were in the best days of quail shooting in this state, the birds were most plentiful, that all immediate danger of extinction for Bob White has become a thing of the past.

News in Brief.

Thos. Hall, an old resident of Minneapolis, died from the effects of a sunstroke.

C. M. Robbins, a traveling man for a Minneapolis Milling Company was found dead in a hotel at Madison, Wis.

If Minneapolis can get advantageous railroad rates the next meeting of the National Educational society will be held there.

The Farmers' Elevator company, incorporated May last at Pine Island, have begun operations in their new building.

The Mankato base ball club has been purchased by a Winona company.

Ole Truesdale was killed on the docks of the Pennsylvania and Ohio Coal company at Duluth, where he was employed. He was struck on the head by a heavy iron bolt which dropped from the superstructure. He was 26 years of age.

The body of a headless infant was found floating in the river at New Ulm.

Burglars stole the entire outfit of W. M. Swaggart, the barber, at Wayzata.

A meeting of the state commission on county boundaries was held recently, and as a result of its labors Governor Clough decided that the applications of the citizens of the northwestern part of the state for the formation of four new counties were in proper form and to issue a proclamation for the submission of the question to the people at the next election.

Edward Whalen was drowned while bathing in Marsh river, a stream near Ada, but 25 feet wide and a mere mud hole.

During a recent circus parade in Minneapolis, a dray horse was frightened to death by the herd of elephants.

Eli S. Warner, chairman; E. M. Johnson, secretary; Tams Bixby, treasurer and chairman of the executive committee, Such was the organization of the republican state central committee.

Four cooks at a Lake Minnetonka hotel, who had been discharged, tried to drive out the men who took their places. The latter met them with knives and repulsed them.

The new directory of St. Paul shows an increase of 481 names as shown by the canvass for the 1896 directory over the volume for 1895. In 1895 the increase was 760, which shows a slight falling off in the rate of increase.

A MINISTER'S WIFE.

The Frank Statement of the Pastor of Bethel Church.

From the Advertiser, Elmira, N. Y.

DR. WILLIAMS.—Dear Sir:—My wife has been a sufferer from rheumatism for more than three years, suffering at times with terrible pains in her limbs, and other times with a severe "crick" in her back which causes great agony. She spent much for physicians and medicine, but secured only temporary relief; finally she concluded to try Pink Pills. She has taken eight boxes and I can say from the first one she has improved until now she is almost entirely free from pain, and has grown much stronger and feels confident that, by the blessing of God, they will effect a permanent cure. We take great pleasure in recommending them to our friends.

(Signed.) REV. J. H. BUCKNER,
Pastor Bethel A. M. E. Church, Elmira, New York.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an infallible specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

DOGS NOT WELCOME.

Just at Present They Are Unpopular at Leicester.

It will be remembered that the poor Indian, upon whose untutored mind the poet condescendingly comments, is exhibited to us as being under the erroneous impression that, when he shall be promoted to an equal sky, his faithful dog will bear him company, says the Pall Mall Gazette. The most sophisticated mind of the average Briton does not, perhaps, carry the conception so far; still, that Briton's idea undoubtedly is that where he goes his dog, at his charges, may go too. It would be well, therefore, to point out at any rate just at present he and his dog would not go to Leicester, because, though the Leicester hotel keepers would be quite ready and willing to receive him, they would in all probability absolutely decline to receive—or, in legal phrase, to harbor—his canine companion.

The reason for their declining to do so lies in the fact that a Leicester hotel keeper has recently, in the opinion of the lord chief justice and Mr. Justice Wright, harbored a visitor's dog once too often. This particular dog belonged to A.; B., another visitor, at the same hotel, must needs take the dog for a drive in a cab. The dog may have been dissatisfied with the turnout, or he might have had private ends of his own to gain; but, anyhow, he bit the cab horse. The driver proceeded for compensation—not against B., through whose instrumentality the dog had been put in the way of biting the horse, nor against A., who, as owner, might have been considered responsible for the dog's actions. The driver knew his dog owner's act (1865), section 2, better than that. He proceeded against the occupier of the house or premises where the dog was permitted to live—the hotel keeper, to wit, and he triumphed. That is why Leicester hotel keepers decline to harbor dogs just now.

MONEY USED IN WAR TIMES.

Rare Collection of Currency Employed in Trade During the Rebellion.

There is a collection in this city, says the New York World, which is warranted to make the eye of the relic-seeker glisten with delight. It is a coin collection, not of antiques which have the history of ages stamped on their faces, but of coins none more than 35 years old, but each one of which tells not only the story of the nation, but also a personal history.

The coins are of 628 varieties, and represent the various metal moneys issued by private individuals during three years of the rebellion. Each bit of brass or copper has a different design stamped on it, and others a name and address. Occasionally a wag has announced in brass tones "I owe you one cent." Delmonico, the gatherer in of silver and gold, found it necessary to send forth bits of metal stamped with his name. Of shoemaker, grocer and candlestick makers there are any number. One man announces to the world that 5,000 people are annually cured by his pills while another inculcates the moral of "little by little," presumably pennies, to insure wealth. The interest of the collection is not confined entirely to the comic, but to the manner in which they have been set up.

Dr. George R. Bond, of New York city, collected the coins with great care not later than 1863, and arranged them in a design representing the front elevation of the capitol at Washington. Brass pieces are so arranged as to suggest the windows and porticos. Around the coin design are arranged pieces of paper money used during the war. Including duplicates, just 1,282 articles have been employed. It is probably the only collection of its kind in the country. The whole is inclosed in a frame five feet eight inches by four feet, and is the property of Mrs. Kirschmann, of No. 140 Fifth avenue, Brooklyn.

REMARKABLE LONGEVITY.

A Family of Eight Whose United Ages Foot Up to 669 Years.

The most remarkable instance of longevity in the history of the Nutmeg state, perhaps, is noted in the Kimball family of the town of Preston, one member of it, Mrs. Abby S. Cook, who is passing the closing years of her life in the home of her daughter, Mrs. William H. Cook, of Franklin street, this city, having celebrated the other day the 90th anniversary of her birthday. Mrs. Cook is the widow of the late Isaac H. Cook of Preston. A large number of her relatives, friends and neighbors called at her home on her anniversary day and congratulated her, and the venerable lady, who is still hale and active and of a cheerful spirit, entertained them.

Mrs. Cook is a member of a family of eight children, sons and daughters of Elisha and Lucy Lathrop Kimball, all of whom are alive and in vigorous health, with the exception of Mrs. Sybil A. Branch, the eldest, who died two years ago at Roxbury, Mass., aged 90 years 4½ months.

Here are the names and ages of the surviving members of the band: Abby S. Cook, 90 years old; Sarah Green, Iowa, 88; Sarah L. Brown, Chicago, 85; Nelson L. Kimball, Iowa, 82; Frances De Wolf, Chicago, 80; Lucius T. Kimball, Iowa, 78, and Rev. Nathaniel Kimball, Iowa, 76. The united ages of the brothers and sisters are 669 years, including that of Mrs. Branch.

A New African Map.

There must be a new map of Africa, and several of the European powers are anxious to show how it should be done. England has made several attempts to change the lines, and Germany is not averse to doing something of the same sort, while France would feel very much insulted were she left out of it. However, as long as Minnesota and the Northwest remain as attractive as they are people don't care much what happens to Africa. Africa is not a summer resort, while summer resorts innumerable dot the St. Paul & Duluth Railroad, which is the people's popular route between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, West Superior, Stillwater, Taylor's Falls and other Northwestern points of importance. Its fast trains are always fitted with the latest and most approved equipment and run at convenient hours through a most picturesque and fruitful region, making close connections at handsome terminals with trains and boats running in all directions. Its facilities and its admirable service have for years made it the popular route between the points named, so that the people always use the Duluth Short Line. Information, maps, circulars, etc., may always be had of ticket agents upon application, or may be obtained by writing direct to W. A. Russell, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

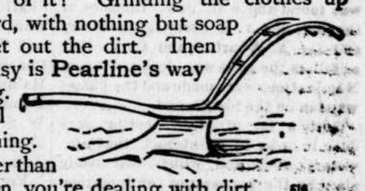
With a sharp stick

you can turn up the dirt and get ground ready for planting—but what a clumsy, slow, laborious, ineffective way of going to work! Not much more so, though, than the old-fashioned way of washing. Think of it! Grinding the clothes up and down on a wash-board, with nothing but soap and main strength to get out the dirt. Then think how simple and easy is Pearline's way—soaking, boiling, rinsing.



You need Pearline for all your washing and cleaning. You need something better than soap or a sharp stick when you're dealing with dirt. 618

CUT PRICES ON PUMPS.

Everything the farmer sells is low. Who sells low to him? We have repeatedly refused to join, and, therefore, defeated windmill combinations, and have, since '89, reduced the cost of wind power to one-sixth what it was. We believe in low prices, high grades and large sales. No one knows the best pump or prices until he knows ours. We make short hand and long power stroke pumps, with best seamless brass tube cylinder, lower than Iron ones—a 2½ x 16 inch at $2.12. Pedl. your dealer. Buy none other. BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 24, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. Niven, at Rockford, Aug. 31.

—A fine shower Sunday night laid the dust and cooled the air, much to the pleasure of the citizens, of Delano.

—Nels Johnson while learning to ride a bicycle ran into a team and broke his nose by striking it against a horse.

—The Crickets beat the Buffalo boys nine last Saturday, 19 to 3. The Crickets have never been beaten and are getting a trifle conceited.

—The ladies of the M. E. Church will give a "Coming man" sociable in the City Hall, Wednesday evening, July 29. Ice cream and cake will be served.

—Riding bicycles on the sidewalks has not yet been interdictep by the Delano Council, though nearly all the other towns in the country have put a stop to such impropiety.

—We gave Wash Rader, a typical McKinley man, that new shirt front we mentioned last week, with the proviso that he wear it. It gives considerable dignity to the Alderman from the 2nd ward.

—Attend the Democratic primary election at the City Hall Saturday Aug. 25, between 7 and 9 P. M. to vote for three delegates, to the County Convention at Buffalo which will send delegates to St. Paul to nominate a State ticket and Presidential electors.

—Read the Political Platforms and compare them, you can find them in your newspaper. Save them up and dont let anybody stuff you with the idea that Democrats are for monometalljsm. They are for just what they always were for; the money of the constitution, gold and silver both as standard money.

—Mrs. Helen Bain has concluded to stop carrying water from the spring since Charley Brandes put that new well at her door. The well is 113 feet deep with 75 feet of water, and Mrs. B. is quite proud of it, whenever she wants a fresh drink of water.

—A son of Mr. Fogarty, of Buffalo, one of the nine that came over Saturday to play ball with the Crickets ran into John Shatter of the same nine and was so badly injured in the face and head as to lay him up so that a substitute, Mr. Parmeter, of Rockford took his place. We hear that Fogarty is improving.

—Albert Eppel has discovered that a bicycle is the boss thing to dive from. The discovery was purely accidental, as Johnny Eppel and he were coming along the road from Winsted his wheel struck a snag near a ditch and Al says he found bottom in two feet of water before he knew it. He may be invited to join Dr. Carvers divers.

—Last week Dr. Fasset reported a death and several cases of Diphtheria in the family of Peter Kayser in Greenwood. This week we hear that Dr. Powell, of Hanover, is having a number of cases; one George Burngasser, age 17 years died last Friday, and a case is reported at Sam Kent's and three at Charley Wagner's; and C. J. Crandall's boy went home, to Pipestone, with it.

—Messrs S. A. Merriman, of Minnetrista, John McGary, of Indepeudence, and Dr. R. Farnham, of Rockford, were a trio of "Free Silyer" men which happened to meet at the GAZETTE Office Wednesday. Mr. Merriman says it is all free silver in hss part of the country. McGeary says there are a good many adout him. While Farnham says out of 200 votes in Rockford he thinks there would not be over fifty for gold standard.

—Presiding Elder Chaffee preached, Sunday evening at the M. E. church From the text, "He hath shewed that, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" The Elders health is better than it was some time ago and he preached a very forcible sermon, with some of the old time fire in it. As he grows older however he seems to accumulate a still larger stock of new ideas.

—The school meeting held at the School House, Saturday evening was more largely attended than usual, several ladies being among the voters. Considerable delay in opening the polls was occasioned by the tactics of the old boss who insisted on electing one member of the board at a time "law or no law" but after a time the ballot box was found and with Pres. Lindsley in the chair and A. L. Corey for Secretary and Jas. A. Wharton and C. L. Belt as tellers the polls was declared open. Nominations were made and the names written on the blackboard.

Quite a lot of electioneering was done in order to counteract that previously done and which was made plain by the appearance of numerous voters not usually in evidence at school meetings. The votes resulted as follows.

L. M. Maxfield,	26
W. H. Frazee,	25
Geo. P. Shaffer,	20
C. G. Roosen,	18
Jas. A. Wharton,	7
Wash Rader,	2
Tabor Davies,	2
Joe Traunt,	1

Fifty two votes were cast and as, under the new law, a plurality elects the two haying the highest number of votes, L. M. Maxfield and W. H Frazee were declared elected.

Teeth

Dr. Niven will be in Rockford, Friday, Aug. 31.

—Neighbor W. M. Mowatt and wife celebrated their fifteenth wedding anniversary last Sunday. Their ice cream and cake was just as palatable as that of a decade and a half ago. May thev have many more as pleasant occasions.

Perhaps the reason Charles A. Towne did not challenge Judge Morris to an immediate debate was that he wished to allow his whiskers time to grow.—Duluth News-Tribune.

Personal.

William Gent, of Rockford, drove over Wednesday.

George Crandall, of Rockford, was in town Monday.

Mrs. John O'Mara and son Del, were Delano visitors Monday.

Fred coffin, of Independence, was a GAZETTE caller on Saturday.

Earnest Otto and John Coolen took the early train Tuesday, east.

O. c. Roberts took the train for Kirkhoven Saturday night.

Mr. Lawrence, of Minneapolis, visited with Dr. Soper this week.

Mrs. Staples, Forest and Fannie, of Howard Lake, are in town today.

Alfred Mohlander came down from Waverly and visited Delano friends yesterday.

Rev. B. E. Sherwin, of Dassel, was a passenger for Minneapolis Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. James Danforth, of Minneapolis, were Delano visitors last week.

Miss Addie Wittmam came home from a protracted visit at Wayzata, Saturday.

Frank Stranberg, of Minneapolis, has been spending a few weeks with Delano friends.

Miss Sadie Van Eman, of Watertown, passed through town Saturday, on her way to Buffalo

Geo. Rogers, of St. Paul, talked free silver and free gold to Delano friends this week.

John Cady, of Buffalo, attended the M. E. Church and heard Elder Chaffee Sunday evening.

C. J. Cradall, wife and boy returned via. Delano to Pipestone Monday, after a visit at Rockford.

Leo. Chilton and Jack Derl field, of Howard passed through town on bicycles yesterday bound for the races at Como.

Prof. Charles S. Hawker returned Tuesday from a protracted visit to Minneapolis. He says things look decidedly silverish down there.

A. C. Heath and C. A. Pidgeon, of Buffalo, were Delano visitors, Wednesday. Mr. Heath was a GAZETTE caller. He is a pronounced gold standard man.

Johnson Mealey, Carl Luhman, and Mr. Battle, of Howard Lake were in town on business Wednesday. Mr. Mealey says he making lots of converts to the free silver cause.

County Cullings.

The Republican County Convention for sending twelve delegates to the judicial Convention to nominate two District Judges will be held on Aug. 17 at 1 o'clock P. M. Primaries must be held in all electional districts on Saturday Aug. 15 from 7 to 9 o'clock P. M.

Senator Eaton is said to be in the ring for County Attorney this fall.

Adam Wood and John Nugent may try to see who can run fastest for Sheriff.

Don't fail to hear Towne and Morris discuss the silver question when they come around.

Most of the present members seem to have cinch on the nomination for their old places at the court house.

Frank A. Briggs, a former resident of Howard Lake, this county, is the Repuqlican nominee for Govenor of N. Dak.

Charley Bugbee and Ossia Crawford, of Rockford, may measure strength for County Commissioner of the 3rd district.

H. S. Swanburg is a candidate for County Auditor. Reports say Ole Mattson will not run for re-election as Treasurer.

The Waverly Tribune praises Alfred Moland and others, highly for their acting in an entertainment recently given there.

J. W. Belden would make a good legislator; but the Howard Herald says he "is not afflicted with any silver cobwebs." We think he would run better if he was, this year.

County Commissioners.

The board met in regular session, at Buffalo, July 13. Full board present.

Hafften and Hudek were appointed to count the funds in the County Tresury.

The following named persons were selected to serve when drawn according to law as jurors:

GRAND JURORS.

T. R. Foley returned from the Chicago convention on Tuesday. Mr. Foley went to Chicago a suporter of the present gold standard, but now advocates the election of Bryan and Sewall.—Aitkin Republican.

Every trust in the contry is behind the McKinley breastworks, marshalled under Hanna's orders. This is what makes it hard for many real Democrats to think of voting for him in a choice of evils.—New York World.

The Journal Press of Tuesday states that the family of W. Z. Allen of Santiago, weere poisoned by drinking lemonade which had become poisoned in some way. Nine children are dead and the parents are in a critical condition.—Sherburne County Times.

Madeila Messenger: The capatalists threaten the people by saying "if you do not stop this silver agitation, we will create another panic." Which is preferable, eternal slavery to the money power or a brief turn with a "panic"—Waseca Herald.

If New York goes against McKinley the cause can be traced to the door of Whitelaw Reid. The New York Tribune seems to be producing more strife between the factions there than all the other agencies combined.—Duluth Nws-Tribune.

During the fiscal year closing with June 30 exports exceeded imports of merchanddise by $102,000,000. This is grrtifying to all who are interested in the welfare of the country, but it must be very depressing to orators who have been preparing to mourn over the calamity of "an adyerse trade balance."—World.

Did we have an international agreement to demonetize silver in 1873? Why call on the nations to help us undo what we did then without them? When the fathers determined to throw oyerboard the tea in Boston harbor, we suppose that they should have waited till there was an international agreement.—Penny Press.

About the first thing the State legislature wants to do the coming session is to repeal the primary election law. It is cumbersome and unwieldy, besides being an utter failure in remedying the eyils that existed under the old law. A caucus could be packed under the old law, but it sometimes required fine work and shrewd management to do it. Under the existing law, any one, especially if he has a little money can work his own sweet will. Let the law be repealed or amended.—Sherburne County Times.

It was noticeable in the campaign two years ago that Chas. A. Towne never descended to abuse or personal yillification and thereby he made friends. How different it was with many of those who addressed the Republican convention on Thursday. Two years ago, he was an ideal candidate, a gentleman par excellence. Yesterday he was scored and abused by nearly every Sixth district speaker, and why? Because an honest conyiction had taken him out of the Republican party. With these delegates, party is above country—that is the difference between them and Mr. Towne.—St. Cloud Times.

The statement of the "Pioneer Press" that John Lind represented the Second district in congress untill he became a silyerite and out of touch with his constituents is not true. The evident object of this was to convey the impression that Mr. Lind was compelled to retire from congress on account of his abandonment of the gold standard doctrine. The "Duluth Herald" characterizes this as a deliberate falsehood and a good example of the unfairness of the gold organs. It says:

Mr. Lind advocated the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silyer for years before he retired from congress and the platform upon which he ran declared for that principle. Mr. Lind retired of his own yolition from congress, because he could not afford to remain in public life, and he at once resumed the practice of law in order to accumulate something for his family.

There was much regret among the people of the Second district because he declined a renomination which he could have easily secured, and the "Pioneer Press" does not do the gold cause any good by indulging in such gross misrepresentations of facts.

Whoever will take the trouble to read the platform upon which Mr. Lind was elected, and the national declaration of his party on the silyer question, will discover that Mr. Lind did not desert his party; his party deserted the principles and the policy it had always maintained, and Mr. Lind remained steadfast to them.—Minneapolis Times.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 17, 1896.

Senator Jones, of Ark., who was chosen by Mr. Bryan to be chairman of the Democratic National Committee, returned to Washington this week. He brought with him an immense stock of confidence which he is freely distributing among democrats. He refuses to consider the election of Bryan and Sewall other than an absolute certainty, and he says he knows prominent republicans who take the same view of the situation, one of whom told him that he would not be surprised to see silver carry every state outside of New England. He was asked if he feared the nomination of a gold democratic ticket, and replied: "Not in the least. Why should we? It will not carry any state, and the only votes it will get will be of those democrats who whould otherwise vote for McKinley or else go fishing. It may be called an independent ticket. Its convention would not be representative of the democratic party, because the democratic party, called together in national convention by its national committee, has already acted. No one has any authority to call another democratic convention. No, the threat, if it may be called one, of certain gentlemen to hold another convention has no terror. I understand that several administration officials refuse to support the nominee of the democratic convention. They have never been with us. The fact that they are not, with us now is not astonishing." Secretary Herbert was probably one of the officials Senator Jones referred to, as he is credited with having said that he would not vote for Bryan and Sewall.

Senatar Faulkner, of W. Va., chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, believes that the democrats can capture the House this year and is determined that it shall not be the fault of the committee if they do not. He says: "The province of this committee will be to aid the election of any candidate for Congress upon the regular democratic ticket. We have nothing whatever to do with the nominations for Congress, and will take no part in the contests for them. After the candidates are selected, however, it will be our business, and we will see to it that all the aid possible is given for the election of those candidates. We will take it for granted that the democrats of each district know what they are about, and we will not question their selection. It will make no difference to us what the platform may be upon which the candidates are selected." Senator Faulkner has no doubts about the election of Bryan and Sewall, nor about their carrying his own state, of which he said: "I think West Virginia will be carried by free silver. I believe that the sentiment throughout the state is overwhelmingly in favor of it. In my own county I know personally of republican votes that we will get with our platform. I think the same condition exists in other counties in the State. We will hold our State convention August 12th, and will nominate a state ticket upon a silyer basis throughout. Every one of our Congressional candidates will also be for silver."

The Congressional committee has already placed large orders for Mr. Bryan's speeches in Congress, in order to be able to promptly fill the orders for them which have already begun to come in. Among the other documents selected by the committee for campaign use are speeches on finance by Senators Daniel, Jones, of Ark., and Cockrell; on the income tax by Representative McMillan and Ex-Representative Wike, and Representative Fitzgerald's speech on sectarianism and the Marquette statue.

According to present indications, the number of democratic clubs which will take part in this year's campaign will lrrgely exceed that of any previous campaign. In one day, this week, sixty applications for charters for new clubs were received at the headquarters of the National Association of Democratic Clubs.

There is reason to believe that a bold attempt is to be made to prevent the populist convention, which will be held at St. Louis next week, endorsing Bryan and Sewall. Agents of those interested in having the populists put up a ticket of their own for the purpose of dividing the silver vote are reported to have intimated to leading populists that any price they might name would be paid for a failure on the part of the convention to endorse Bryan and Sewall or will nominate them outright. It is certain that the silver convention, to be held at the same time and place, will be for Bryan and Sewall.

M. of said day; said primaries to be conducted under the Primary Election law, the town and village committees must fix the place for holding said Primary elections and give six days notice thereof as the Law requires.

By order of the County Committee.
JOHN C. NUGENT,
Chairman.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetallism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

Whether free silver is a good thing or not remains to be seen and one thing seems morally certain, we will not have a satisfied country until the experiment is tried, for the agitation is bound to continue. The principle of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of one-half its market value seems wrong. So does gold monometallism. The one has been tried and the enemies of it will not rest until the other has proved to be either bad or good.—St. Peter Herald.

Job printing at the GAZETTE office.

In several of the states it seems the people of all shades of belief are uniting to down ring rule, bossism, wherever found. A new set of men, nearer to the people is the object. When the people, as a unite, take the field they are bound to succeed.

The Minnesota weekly Crop Bulletin claims that rain is needed in all parts of the state except the southwestern. That small grain in some parts is suffering from insect ravages. Chinch bugs. army worms, and other pests are said to be abroad in the land.

The Dispatch recently came out with the picture of two snakes swallowing each other. The snakes were named Populism and Democracy. Wait till after election and both will want to be swallowed by something.—Cokato Enterprise.

It seems a trifle early in the campaign for our G. O. P. friends to see snakes.

In case the eastern bankers that are so kindly assisting the United States Treasury, at this time to keep up its supply of gold are doing it free, through patriotism, how sad that the average western man don't appriciate the kindness. Most people about here seem to think the money kings have contributed to a fund to pay the interest to those who appear to be doing it gratis for pure love of Country, in order keep the people from complaining on account of another bond sale. It is a wrong thing for people to be so distrustful of their countryman. It should not be so.

The well known and highly appreciated Scientific American has just publiened a 72 page, Fiftieth Anniversary Number. We have received one. It is a beauty. It contains a review of the Industrial Arts and Sciences for 50 years. The Articles are written by specialists, and are upon such subjects are these: The Trans-Atlantic Steam Ship, Railroads and Bridges, Physics and Chemistry, Progress of Printing, Iron and Steel, Phonography Telephone, Nayal and Coast Defence, The Sewing Machine, Electric Engineering, The Locomotive, Photography, Telegraphy, Telescopes, The Bicycle; also the $250 prize essay on "The Progress of Inventions during the Past Fifty years." The illustrations are fine. Get one for 10 cts. of Munn & Co. N. Y.

The Pioneer Press, of Wednesday, reprinted a speech made in New York, by Secretary of the Treasury William Windom, a short time before his death in 1891. Read it carefully and then form your own conclusion. After comparing an unstable currency to diseased blood, he goes on to tell of the perils to the country.

He says: "Let me speak very plainly on this most important subject. Believing that there is not enough of either gold or silver in the world to meet the necessities of business I am an earnest bimetallist, and concede to no one a stronger desire than I feel for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, as soon as conditions can be reached, through international agreement or otherwise, by which such coinage shall be safe."

But Mr. Windom could not at that time bring himself to believe that it was best for the United States to go at it alone. Things have changed, and the fact that there is not enough gold to supply all the great nations with sufficient standard money now sticks out plainly; especially to this, the greatest nation of them all. Our business is hampered on every hand by this crying evil. A majority of the people in this part of the country owe several times the amount of gold per capita that could be distributed to them now if an equal divide were made.

Would not the great Minnesota statesman, if now living, insist on the United States, the leading nation, making a start in the right direction?

Globe vs. Bryan.

The St. Paul Globe after having been called down by C. C. Dow, publishes a dispatch to the New York World going to prove that Mr. Bryan never has been the attorney of the Missouri Pacific Railroad. The Globe says: "The Globe has made no charges against Mr. Bryan. Noting the statement going the rounds of the press, it asked the question whether or not he had been the attorney of the Missouri Pacific Railroad." After settling this question, against its own insinuation, the Globe don't seem willing to let well enough alone, but slings out another unkind cut, by saying; "We have as yet seen no denial of the statement that Mr. Bryan has been for some time past the paid attorney of the silver producers of the west.

More than likely the Glode would get awfully mad if some of the readers would ask if, as is currently reported, the leading daily newspaper, regardless of paryt, belong to a combine working for the reteution of the gold standard in this country; and if so, if the Globe actually belongs to said combine; and if so, how much per line is its share for propounding such questions concerning the Democratic Candidate for President of the United States.

Democrats on Silver

Numerous mistakes about the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago seem to have been circulated throughout the country. Either purposely or ignorantly the story that Democrats favor free silver only, is abroad. This is wrong. All you have to do is to take down your copy of the GAZETTE of July 17, and turn to the inside of the paper and read for yourself. Below, for convenience we give the part bearing on money:

FINANCIAL PLANK.

"Recognizing that the money question is paramount to all others at this time. We invite attention to the fact that the federal constitution names silver and gold together as the money metals of the United States, and that the first coinage law passed by congress under the constitution made the silver dollar the unit of value and admitted gold to free coinage at the ratio measured by the silver dollar unit.

"We declare that the act of 1873 demonetizing silver without the knowledge or approval of the American people has resulted in the appreciation of gold and a corresponding fall in the commodities produced by the people; a heavy increase in the burden of taxation and of all debts, public and private, the enrichment of the money lending class at home and abroad; prostration of industry and impoverishment of the people.

"We are unalterably opposed to the single gold standard, which has locked fast the prosperity of an industrial people in the paralysis of hard times.

"Gold monometallism is a British policy, and its adoption has brought other nations into financial servitude to London. It is not only unamerican, but anti-American, and it can be fastened on the United States only by the stifling of that indomitable spirit and love of liberty which proclaimed our political independence in 1776 and won it in the war of the revolution.

"We demand the free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold at the present legal ratio of sixteen to one without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. We demand that the standard silver dollar shall be a full legal tender, equally with gold, for all debts, public and private, and we favor such legislation as will prevent the demonetization of any kind of legal tender money by private contract.

"We are opposed to the policy and practice of surrendering to the holders of the obligations of the United States the option reserved by law to the government of redeeming such obligations in either silver coin or gold coin.

The Globe's Gold Standard.

The St. Paul Globe makes a fearfully poor stagger at an argument for a gold standard. In answer to a correspondent, Edward N. Flint, Winthrop, the Globe says:

It is not true that the purchasing power of the silver dollar "is really depressed" to a little more than 50 cents. It will be if it ever comes to the silver standard. As long as the gold standard is maintained, the purchasing power of the silver dollar is exactly the same as that of the gold dollar."

How can that be? Don't the Globe know that there is not a dollar's worth of silver, at present prices, in a silver dollar? And yet the Globe says: "the purchasing power of the silver dollar is exactly the same as that of the gold dollar." Will England accept in payment for our depts our silver dollars for exactly what she will take our gold dollars? Why are our bankers and other money loaners making notes payable in GOLD where they loan money? It is of no use Mr. Globe man, to farther try to fool folks, they have passed the stage where you can fool all the people all the time. Further on the Globe in its desperation says:

Referring, finally, to our correspondent's talk about "primary money," if we take it that he means money that is a final tender and not redeemable in anything but itself, we must remind him once more that, since 1873, there have been added to our currency over 429,000,000 silver dollars, which are unlimited legal tender, and do not call for redemption in any other substance or medium whatever.

From this last bad break we would say the Globe eyedently takes no stock whatever in the Republican platform recently made at St. Louis and which says the Republican party favors an international agreement for a bimetallic standard, "and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved."

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold."

Now how can the money made of silver and of paper be maintained on a parity with gold without it is redeemable in gold? If the Globe will explain that point satisfactorly to its readers there will certainly be an addition to the ranks favoring the free coinage of both gold and silver as standard coin. That's the very point many are hanging on. What is it makes the 50 odd cents dollar worth a dollar? or why is it as the Globe says that "the purchasing power of the silver dollar is exactly the same as that of the gold dollar."?

If the Globe is going for a gold standard it ought to get in line better than that.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 24, 1896.

Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic Congressional committee, is being daily astonished at the extraordinary increase in silver sentiment in the middle and eastern states, as shown by letters written to the committee asking for information and literature on the subject. He is also surprised to see that a majority of these seekers after silver documents, instead of being farmers, are professional and business men residing in towns and cities. Speaking on the subject Senator Faulkner said "I am astounded at the tone of some of the letters I am receiving, and it appears to me that the silver wave is sweeping over the east with as much force as it has shown in the west and south. It may be permanent or it may be only temporary, but that it exists now is certain." Senator Faulkner is not the sort of a man to allow his enthusiasm to bias his judgement; hence his declaration of his belief, that unless some great reaction takes place, which will change existing public sentiment before election day, Bryan will be elected by a large majority, carries a great weight.

Representative Hart, of Pa., says his district (the eighth) will roll up a good majority for Bryan and Sewall. He says there are very few democrats in the district who have said they would not support the Chicago ticket and platform, but that a great many republicans have come out for Bryan and Sewall and free silver. He says that the tariff question cuts no figure at all among his people, but that they are all anxious to learn everything possible about the silver question. It was largely to satisfy their yearnings in that line that Mr. Hart came to Washington. He has arranged with the Congressional committe to send a lot of silver literature to his constituents. Among the documents to be sent is the Chicago speech of Mr. Bryan, which Senator Faulkner says "is about the best statement of the silver question, from our standpoint that has been made."

Hon. William J. Hendrick, ex-Attorney General of Kentucky, said in Washington this week: "In the fierce contest that has been waged in Kentucky between the gold and silver partisans my voice and influence have ever been on the side of sound money. I still adhere to the opinion that free silver coinage by this government, independently of the other great nations, would be a mistake. But I am a democrat, and democracy stands for so many other things besides free silver that it is impossible for me to renounce my party allegiance, and I shall cheerfully do all in my power to promote the success of the Chicago ticket. With all the faults of the platform it is infinitely better than McKinleyism. Bryan and Sewall will unquestionably carry Kentucky."

There is some talk about establishing a democratic daily newspapor in Washington which will support Bryan and Sewall and the Chicago platform. Perhaps such a paper might make some votes, but, in my opinion it would not make one per cent of the votes that could be made by spending the amount of money that it would cost to run a Washington daily during the campaign in circulating the democratic dailies and weeklies already established and enjoying more prestige in their localities than a Washington paper could possibly get.

Mr. S. D. Weaver, city attorney af Burlington, Kans., who is now visiting Washington says: "It is true that some democrats who believe in sound money will not support him, and yet more of these will vote for him than will support McKinley. There are also a great many silver republicans in the state who will vote for Bryan."

Theatrical men are as a rule good judges of the drift of public sentiment. Mr. J. W. Morrisey, widely known as a manager, says of a coming event: "Bryan's descent on New York will be a stupendous affair. He will pack Madison Square Garden to its limit—16,000 people—but 10,000 more will be in the streets to give him welcome. Only a fraction of that monster gathering will be able to hear a word he utters, but few will fail to read it afterwards. Already there is a big change of sentiment in New York favorable to silver, and Bryan's coming will make converts by the thousand."

While it cannot be said that the action of the populist convention was altogether satisfactory to democrats, none of them are disposed to worry about it, because their minds were made up before the convention met that Bryan would get the vote of every Populist who does not wish to throw his vote away, regardless of what the convention might do, and there was nothing about the work of the convention to cause them to change their opinion.

James G. Blaine.

From the Penny Press we clip the following from James G. Blaine in Congress:

"I believe gold and silver coin to be the money of the constitution indeed, the money of the American people anterior to the constitution, money which the organic law of the republic recognized as independent of its own exnistence. No power was conferred on congress to declare that either metal should not be money. Congress has, therefore, in my judgment, no more power to demonetize silver than to demonetize gold; no more power to demonetize either than to demonetize both. In this statement I am but repeating the weighty dictum of the first constitutional lawers. "I am certainly of opinion," said Mr. Webster, "that gold and silver, at rates fixed by congress, constitute the legal standard of value in this country, and that neither congress nor the state has authority to establish or to displace this standard." Few persons can be found, I apprehend, who will maintain that congress possesses the power to demonetize both gold and silver, or that congress could be justified in prohibiting the coinage of both; and yet in logic and construction it would be difficult to show where and why the power of congress over silver is greater than over gold—greater over either than over both. If, therefore, silver has been demonetized, I am in favor of remonetizing it. If its coinage has been prohibited, I am in favor of ordering it to be resumed. If it has been restricted, I am in favor of ordering it to be eularged."

Under free silver, says Robt. Porter, late census superintendent, Japan's trade has increased from $78,000,000 to $300,000,000 in ten years. And yet the world's trade is done "only in gold," you know.—Waseca Herald.

Mexican Conditions

Editor Penny Press:

There is great stress laid upon Mexican labor as compared with labor in the United States. Skilled mechanics in Mexico receive higher wages than in any gold standard country on earth, not excepting the United States, even after the silver (Mexican silver), is exchanged for gold. The difference would be enormous as compared with England or Germany, and considerable as compared with the United States.

The Mexican peons are suffering from circumstances ontside of the realm of the silver question, and the same race in the United States, commonly called "Greasers," are in no better condition, although living under the blessings of the gold standard. These American Mexicans live in rude mud houses (abode), or in a side hill (dugouts). The Mexican laborer in the United States, in New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona and Utah is no better off in a financial sense than his Mexican brother across the boundary line. The only difference is that the laws of the United States protect him from selling himself for debts, and prevent peonage.

The low labor of Mexico can no more enter as a factor in the financial question than the "Greaser" of the United States can enter into the problem, or the negro of North Carolina. Why did not the poorly paid laborers of Mexico come to the United States when we were constructing railroads. Simply because he could not compete with his American brother. This will undoubtedly put a different phase on the question. Somehow our bimetallic speakers lose sight of these facts. What else does labor receive in North Ctrolina and some of the Southern states as compared with Illinois and some other Northern states? I think if they would consider these facts, they would take the wind out of the gold sails. Conditions, environments and race cut more figure.

Even China, with $2 per capita, is no criterion, for the reason that our channels of enterprise are fifty-fold that of China. Supposing China was to adopt the gold basis, it would mean complete ruination to China, as its baneful effects are already telling on India.—Workingman, who has been in Mexico. St. Paul, Minn.

No Answer to Them.

Editor Constitution: Will you please ask the following questions through your valuable columns and e ts see if any of the goldbug organs will answer:

If the single gold standard is going to lighten the burden of the people please inform us when the movement will likely commence?

If the gold standard has any tendency to give the laboring man any more salary please inform us why our wages have been so butchered in the past four or five years, and why they are still being lowered?

If the tidal wave of good times, reported some time ago as having started, is anywhere near by? Will you please inform us in what way to look for it? So that we may be fully prepared to meet it.

We have been out several times expecting to "meet the bridegroom" of prosperity on notice that it was coming, but we only waited to find ourselves disappointed each time.

Of course we are at sea in this matter and don't know what to do, but somehow something keeps whispering to us that we can't safely march out in November "bearing a cross of gold."

Very truly,

PIONEER PRESS.—To the Editor: Some days ago in conversation with an employe of a Midway manufacturing company he said in Substance: They are building a drainage canal near Chicago and the canal company borrowed $20,000,000 at 4 per cent in England. What did they borrow it for? I replied to buy machinery, tools, and supplies and pay the men who are doing the work. To this he said: All the machinery used (with but few trifling exceptions), all the food the men consume, the clothing they wear, and the houses that shelter them were made from American products, by American labor, England furnishing no labor, no machinery, and no supplies of any kind. Why, then, pay to a foreign country $800,000 per year and $20,000,000, when we furnish everything and do all the work? This little thing has set me to thinking, and I confess I am not able to get the tangle out of it. Can you help an honest inquirer?

Free Silver and Insurance.

BOSTON, July 22.—President J. L. Greene, of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, has prepared a letter for policy holders, in which he says:

"Our contracts with you agree to pay to your families so many dollars. There has never been doubt what was intended thereby, but should we come upon a silver basis, your policies would for the present be paid in dollars worth to your families only 50 cents, and the great bulk of this would probably be paid in dollars worth not more than from 25 to 35 cents."—World.

The Hazards of Infant Life.

THE constant care which the overa fond mother gives her infant, ever handling and holding it, up in her arms as soon as it wakens, constantly talking and and singing to it, is calculated to excite the child and keep it in a continual state of nervous strain. The blessed quiet which brain-weary, nerve-exhausted grown people long for is baby's right, and the wise mother will never allow anything to rob her child of this health-giving privilege. Don't fuss nor play roughly with a baby. Babies should be handled and moved about as little as possible. The common practice of keeping them constantly in motion when awake is fruitful of trouble in many ways, and espicially is the evening romp, when baby is high glee is tossed to the ceiling by its fond papa, an iniquitous practice. It is small wonder if the little mite demand another romp at the inconvenient hour of midnight, and its parents have only their own indiscretion to blame for this inconvenient wakefulness.—From "Summer Care of Babies," in Demorest's Magazine for August.

Three ten-inch steel breech-loading guns are about to be mounted at Old Point, at the mouth of the James river. They are 31 feet long, weigh 67,000 pounds each and have a range of several miles. The idea that Uncle Sam is doing nothing for coast defense is a misapprehension.

A Chicago woman is said to have been arrested 700 times in the last 25 years, an average of about once every two weeks. Intemperance is her besetting weakness. If her mission in life is to be an object lesson, which certainly seems probable, it is a mission that is being pitifully well performed.

Miss Fanny Crosby, the hymn writer, is now more than 70 years of age. Though she has been blind almost from birth she is always happy and cheerful. For 32 years she has been in the employ of a firm in New York. Among the hymns which she has written are "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Rescue the Perishing."

A lecturer in New York said the other day: "Everybody knows that butter is composed of a mixture of fat, oline, margerine, stearine, palmitine, butyrene, and the fatty acids known as capric, caproic and butyric in various proportions." Everybody at least knows that bad butter contains a large number of chemical attributes on exceedingly bad terms with each other.

Braddock's rock on the Potomac, on which the English army under Gen. Braddock landed in 1775 on their way, though they did not know it, to Braddock's defeat, is to be preserved by the Sons of American Revolution in Washington. The Potomac once flowed close to its base, but now the river has changed its course to the southward, and the rock is in danger of being covered up by the dumping of refuse.

All patriotic Americans will rejoice to learn that the trust which for the past few years has controlled the great American nut has dissolved. Peanuts will therefore no longer be cornered, and already the price has declined one-half cent a pound. This certainly is gladsome news, for the friends of the peanut are legion. It may surprise the skeptical to learn that the annual supply of this toothsome article is 9,000,000 pounds.

It is said that a new soporific, to which the name pellotin has been given, has been discovered in a Mexican cactus called anhalonium. The native Mexicans eat slices of the plant, which they call "pellote." Its hypnotic alkaloid has been separated by Dr. Hefter, of Leipsic. One grain of pellotin is equal in its effects to 15½ grains of trional and 31 grains of hydrate of chloral. It is effective in quieting delirium tremens only in large doses.

The centenary of the death of Robert Burns and his genius and fame are being commemorated wherever the English language is spoken. Scotland, of course, leads the van, and a Burns exhibition has been opened at Glasgow which will be continued during the summer months—a sort of Scotch Mecca for travelers. His birthplace will have added attractions in the way of relics, pictures and manuscripts, so that for months to come the Burns worshipers will have full sway. Burns was 37 years old when he died.

Princess Maud, third daughter of the prince and princess of Wales, was married in London a few days ago to Prince Charles, the second son of Crown Prince Frederick of Denmark. The ceremony took place in the private chapel of Buckingham palace and Queen Victoria was present to congratulate her grandchild. Princess Maud has set a new gait for royalty. She insisted upon selecting a husband, not because of his wealth or titles, but because she loved him. This is reform and one likely to move forward. Princess Maud declares: "I am the happiest girl in my grandma's realm."

The United States department of agriculture has issued a circular strongly advocating the observance in the United States of one day in the year as "Bird day." It is proposed by this celebration "to diffuse knowledge concerning our native birds and to arouse a more general interest in bird protection." Attention is called to the alarming decrease in native birds, due to many causes, and that the laws of the various states designed to regulate these abuses become dead letters by lack of the support of public sentiment, and the chief purpose of this day will be to inspire and educate that sentiment.

The Cincinnati Tribune points out one place which prudent bicyclists would do well to avoid. Its advice is based on the fate of one reckless devotee of the wheel, who thought to evade the terrors of a country road by taking to a towpath. It chanced that the wheelman reached a certain point on the path at exactly the moment when a mule was leaving it, and the wheelman's next instant of consciousness occurred "at a spot equi-distant from each bank of the canal." If there are no laws prohibiting wheelmen from riding on towpaths there seems no necessity of passing any until the mule is extinct.

NATIONAL SILVER PARTY

Bryan and Sewall Nominated by St. Louis Convention.

Joint Conference Committee of Silveritos and Populists Recommend Uniting of Silver Forces — Platform Adopted.

St. Louis, July 23.—The national silver party convention, which opened its session in Music hall of the Exposition building Wednesday, did not proceed far enough with its business to admit of any accurate forecast of the outcome. It met, listened to an able address by Representative Newlands, of Nevada, its temporary chairman, and a still more taking speech by Mr. William P. St. John, the ex-national banker of New York, which fairly captured the convention. It appointed a committee to confer with the convention of the people's party and started in on the preparation of a platform and of the inevitable address to the American people. Thirty-two states were represented on the floor of the convention by about 250 delegates.

After naming the committee on credentials, the temporary chairman suggested that the state delegations get together and select their representatives on the several committees, and pending this Miss Lillie Pierce, of St. Louis, was escorted to the platform. She was dressed in an American flag, and recited the declaration of independence. She was greeted with tumultuous applause.

A recess until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon was finally agreed to, and at 2:22 o'clock the convention separated.

Business Resumed.

Most of the delegates were in their seats promptly at 4:30, and quite a sprinkling of visitors were in the galleries. At 4:50 o'clock Chairman Newlands dropped his gavel. Mr. Williams, a delegate from Nebraska, moved that a committee of three be appointed to invite the delegates to the populist convention to take seats in the galleries for the afternoon, the populists not being in session. It was unanimously adopted. The committee on rules made its report, recommending that the rules of the present congress be used in the conduct of the convention's business. The committee on credentials reported no contests and suggested that any portion of a state delegation present in the convention could cast the full vote of the delegation. The report was adopted.

The Permanent Officers.

The permanent organization committee through its chairman, Col. Bradshaw, reported in favor of William P. St. John, of New York, as permanent chairman. As his name was mentioned the convention cheered vociferously. Hon. Charles A. Towne, of Minnesota was named as vice president of the convention, and again the delegates manifested their pleasure. Robert E. Diffendorfer, of Pennsylvania, was named as secretary. The report was adopted with a cheer. Mr. Newlands then introduced Mr. St. John as permanent chairman. Mr. St. John addressed the convention briefly. Mr. St. John's assumption that the convention would prevail upon the "patriots calling themselves the people's party to indorse Bryan and Sewall" was received with great applause. He reviewed the chain of events by which he said "the sufferings of the farmers, who constitute nearly one-half of our population, are enforced upon the city merchant, the manufacturer and all forms of labor." "The banker, also," continued Mr. St. John, "is without prosperity unless prosperity is general throughout the country. He must learn to distinguish between cheap money and money commanding a low rate of interest." He concluded by predicting what would follow the reopening of our mints. He said a premium on gold would not occasion a contraction of the currency; that it would increase our exports by causing a higher rate of foreign exchange, and that it would tend to diminish our imports, by increasing the cost of bills of exchange. He said this increasing of our exports and decreasing of imports will set idle men to work, thus enlarging our home market for home products, with prosperity in general as the result assured.

At 6:25 p. m. the convention adjourned until ten o'clock this morning.

Waiting for the Proposed Conference.

St. Louis, July 24.—The national silver convention was called to order Thursday at 10:27 o'clock by Permanent Chairman St. John. He stated that Rev. Dr. Joseph Nicholls, who had been asked to open the proceedings with prayer, had been suddenly called from the city and therefore the convention would not have the pleasure of listening to him. "I trust we are all in the spirit of prayer," he added.

Towne Makes a Speech.

Chairman St. John then introduced into the convention its vice chairman, Hon. Charles A. Towne, of Minnesota. He was received with great applause. He said that the condition of the country was most grave. It had been brought about, he charged, in pursuance to a plan which had for its purpose to make it appear as the result of an orderly and lawful evolution.

Mr. Towne pleaded with the convention to make no mistake, but to ever hold the cause above all things else, and closed with an eloquent peroration.

The convention at 12:45 took a recess until 2:30 p. m.

Session of the Afternoon.

When the convention reassembled, the committee on resolutions not being ready to report, short speeches were made by several prominent delegates.

After the transaction of some business of minor importance a resolution offered by Mr. Duniphan, of Missouri, that no candidate for congress be voted for unless he is in favor of the free coinage of silver, was referred to the committee on resolutions.

At 5:15 the convention adjourned until ten o'clock Friday morning.

Bryan and Sewall Nominated.

St. Louis, July 25.—The national convention of the national silver party nominated for president and vice-president the democratic nominees for those offices—William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Arthur Sewall, of Maine.

A Lincoln (Neb.) dispatch says that when asked if he had anything to say in regard to the nomination of himself and Mr. Sewall by the silver convention at St. Louis, Mr. Bryan said he appreciated both the nomination and the unanimity with which it was given. He did not consider it as a personal compliment to Mr. Sewall and himself, but as an evidence that the delegates assembled were willing to make the restoration of bimetallism the paramount issue of this campaign and to support the Chicago ticket regardless of differences upon minor questions.

The joint conference committee reached an agreement at three p. m. It recommends uniting the silver forces and leaves the details to each political party—silver and populists.

Senator Jones read the platform and address to the people of the United States. The several declarations in favor of free coinage and denouncing bond issues were attentively listened to and provoked much applause.

The question on the adoption of the resolutions was ordered and they were agreed to by a rising vote which was unanimous, accompanied by much enthusiasm.

THE SILVER PLATFORM.

Text of the Resolutions as Adopted by the Convention.

The platform as reported by the committee, and as finally adopted by the convention, is as follows:

"The national silver party of America, in convention assembled, hereby adopts the following declaration of principles:

"First—The paramount issue at this time in the United States is indisputably the money question. It is between the British gold standard, gold bonds and bank currency on the one side, and the bimetallic standard, no bonds, government currency (and an American policy) on the other.

"On this issue we declare ourselves to be in favor of a distinctively American financial system. We are unalterably opposed to the single gold standard, and demand the immediate return to the constitutional standard of gold and silver, by the restoration by this government, independently of any foreign power, of the unrestricted coinage of both gold and silver, into standard money at the ratio of sixteen to one, and upon terms of exact equality as they existed prior to 1873; the silver coin to be of full legal tender, equally with gold, for all debts and dues, public and private, and we demand such legislation as will prevent for the future the destruction of the legal tender quality of any kind of money by private contract.

"We hold that the power to control and regulate a paper currency is inseparable from the power to coin money; and, hence, that all currency intended to circulate as money should be issued and its volume controlled by the general government only, and should be a legal tender.

"We are unalterably opposed to the issue by the United States of interest-bearing bonds in time of peace, and we denounce as a blunder, worse than a crime, the present treasury policy concurred in by a republican house, of plunging the country into debt by hundreds of millions in the vain attempt to maintain the gold standard by borrowing gold; and we demand the payment of all coin obligations of the United States, as provided by existing laws, in either gold or silver coin, at the option of the government, and not at the option of the creditor.

"Over and above all other questions of policy, we are in favor of restoring to the people of the United States the time-honored money of the constitution—gold and silver, not one but both—the money of Washington and Hamilton, and Jefferson and Monroe, and Jackson and Lincoln, to the end that the American people may receive honest pay for an honest product; that the American debtor may pay his just obligations in an honest standard and not in a dishonest and unsound standard appreciated 100 per cent. in purchasing power, and no appreciation in debt-paying power, and to the end, further, that silver standard countries may be deprived of the unjust advantage they now enjoy, in the difference in exchange between gold and silver—an advantage which tariff legislation cannot overcome.

JOHN M. DEVINE, OF NEBRASKA.
[Secretary of American Bimetallic League.]

"We therefore confidently appeal to the people of the United States to hold in abeyance all other questions, however important and even momentous they may appear, to sunder, if need be, all former party ties and affiliations, and to unite in one supreme effort to free themselves and their children from the domination of money power—a power more destructive than any which has ever been fastened upon the civilized men of any race or in any age. And upon the consummation of our desires and efforts, we evoke the aid of all patriotic American citizens, and the gracious favor of Divine providence.

A RACE RIOT.

Whites and Blacks at War in Hamilton County, Fla.

Jacksonville, Fla., July 27.—Dispatches to the Times-Union from Jasper, Hamilton county, Fla., state that a race riot occurred Saturday night, 15 miles northeast of here, in which six men were killed and eight wounded. Two of the latter were women. Those killed are said to be Henry Jackson, Albert Sullivan, Edward Johnson, white; Jim Solomon, Amos Campbell and Ike Mitchell, negroes. The names of the wounded have not been learned. The tragedy occurred at Haggard's turpentine still, where many negroes are employed. The negroes gave a "festival" Saturday night and while it was in progress a number of white men intruded and the shooting resulted. It is rumored that the negroes are generally arming and a posse of whites left Jasper Sunday night for the scene of the tragedy.

Goes Down with All on Board.

Philadelphia, July 27.—Information received from Stanley, Falkland Island, dated June 9, goes to show that the clipper ship City of Philadelphia foundered off that locality on May 14 and that Capt. Johnson, his wife and family, one passenger and a crew of 25 men perished.

William Henry Smith Dead.

Chicago, July 28.—William Henry Smith, newspaper man and historian of national reputation, died at 3:30 o'clock Monday morning at his suburban home in Lake Forest, aged 62.

TWENTY-EIGHT VICTIMS.

Cloudburst in Colorado Takes Life and Destroys Property.

Denver, Col., July 27.—So far as can be ascertained, 28 persons lost their lives in the great floods which swept down upon the towns of Morrison and Golden, in the foothills near this city, Friday night. All the Denver people who perished at Morrison were campers in Bear Creek canyon. There were many more campers in that vicinity, and it is feared that the loss of life will probably be much greater than is now known. Some reports say that when Bear Creek canyon is fully explored it will probably be found that no less than 50 people perished in the flood. Great anxiety is felt by many families in this city, members of which were camping in the mountains.

The victims of Friday night's flood were three in Golden, four in Mount Vernon canyon and 21 near Morrison—making the total 28.

Numerous parties from Denver camped out at Evergreen, Idlewild, Idledale and other places in the mountains near Morrison are safe. Many hairbreadth escapes and thrilling rescues are reported. Of the 26 persons drowned at Morrison only 16 bodies have been recovered. Some may never be found, having been carried away many miles down the stream and buried under debris.

Mrs. A. S. Proctor and her four children, Mrs. T. E. Casey and five children, Mrs. Anthony Herres and four children, Annie Hanson, servant, and Thomas McGough, a cousin of Mrs. Casey, 18 in all, were living in a large cottage on the banks of Bear creek. A great bank of water struck the house before the occupants realized their danger and carried it bodily away. All the inmates perished except Irene Proctor, aged 18, whose long hair caught in driftwood, holding her until aid came.

Horace M. Warren, of the firm of Acheson & Warren, investment bankers of this city, was driving in Mount Vernon canyon, midway between Morrison and Golden, last night, in company with his wife, Miss Josephine Holm, daughter of Richard Holm, superintendent of the Denver Union Water company, and Misses Della and Mary Horner, daughters of Judge J. W. Horner, when a cloudburst occurred. The stream quickly became a torrent. There was no way of escape and the carriage with its occupants was swept away by the flood. The four women were drowned. Mr. Warren, bruised and bleeding, lodged in a tree and was rescued several hours later. He is in a critical condition. The party had been camping at Judge Horner's ranch in Mount Vernon gulch.

RAILWAY PROGRESS.

Interesting Statistics Compiled by Interstate Commerce Commission.

Washington, July 28.—The eighth statistical report of the interstate commerce commission has been made public. It presents many facts of general interest, among which are the following:

The report shows that on June 30, 1895, 169 roads were reported in the hands of receivers, showing a net decrease of 23 during the year. The roads under receivers operated 37,855.80 miles of line, which shows a decrease of 2,963.01, as compared with 1894. The railway capital represented by these roads was nearly $2,500,000,000, or about 22.20 per cent. of the total railway capital in the United States.

The total railway mileage in the United States was 180,657.47 miles, an increase of 1,948.92 miles, or 1.09 per cent., being shown. The increase in 1894 was 2,247.48 miles, or 1.27 per cent. The number of railway corporations was 1,965. During the year 14 roads were abandoned, nine merged, 32 reorganized and 28 consolidated.

The number of men employed by railways shows an increase of 5,426, as compared with last year, the number of employes being 785,034 on June 30, 1895.

The amount of railway capital on June 30, 1895, is shown to be $10,985,203,125, or $63,330 per mile of line. The increase during the year was $188,729,312. Stock to the amount of $3,475,640,203, or 70.05 per cent. of the total outstanding, paid no dividend, and $904,436,200, or 16.90 per cent. of funded debt, exclusive of equipment trust obligations, paid no interest during the year covered by the report.

The number of passengers carried by the railways during the year ended June 30, 1895, was 507,421,362, which shows a decrease of 33,266,837.

The gross earnings of railways of the United States for the year ended June 30, 1895, were $1,075,371,462, an increase of $2,009,665 for the year being thus shown. Passenger revenue was $252,246,190, showing a decrease of $33,103,378, or 11.60 per cent. for the year. Freight revenue increased $30,502,549, or 4.36 per cent., being $729,993,462 for 1895. The expenses of operation for the same period were $725,720,415, which were $5,693,907 less than for 1894.

The number of railway employes killed during the year ended June 30, 1895, was 1,811, and the number injured was 25,696. These figures, compared with those of the previous year, show a decrease of 12 in number killed and an increase of 2,274 in the number injured. The number of passengers killed was 170, the number injured 2,375. These figures give for the year a decrease of 154 in the number killed and 659 in the number injured.

CLEVELAND STRIKE ENDED.

Brown Hoisting Company Concedes Employes' Demands.

Cleveland, O., July 28.—The long-drawn-out strike of the employes of the Brown hoisting and conveying works, which was inaugurated nine weeks ago, and has resulted in a series of bloody riots, is at an end, a satisfactory settlement having been reached Monday. The company concedes all the main points contested for. They agree to receive grievance committees from employes, grant a half holiday Saturday, and time and a half for all over time. All of the employes are to be reinstated regardless of any part they took in the strike. The men will return to work this morning.

FARMERS ALARMED.

Clouds of Grasshoppers Pass Over a Part of Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., July 27.—Myriads of grasshoppers, in clouds so dense as to almost obscure the sun, passed over this section of Nebraska Sunday about noon. Their appearance caused apprehension among farmers, but few alighted. Their course was from west to east. The last grasshopper scourge in Nebraska was in 1874, and as they usually make their appearance much earlier in the season, it is thought the present visitation does not presage any serious damage to crops in this locality.

On the Retired List.

Washington, July 28. — Having reached the age limit, Gen. Richard N. Batchelder, quartermaster general of the regular army, has been placed on the retired list. His army record is an enviable one, and few men can count more honors than have been showered upon him for bravery in the field and diligent duty to his post in and after war days. Among the medals of honor awarded him by congress is one given for "most distinguished gallantry in action." This gallantry was displayed in October, 1863, against a band of Mosby's guerrillas in Virginia.

GUNPOWDER IN EARLY DAYS.

Was Possibly Used in Warfare Before the Beginning of History.

People outside of military life who have no connection with the making of gunpowder know it only as a coarse, black powder like black sand, which will flash off with a loud report if shut up in a case of any kind, and set on fire.

It is a very queer mixture, made up of three simple and well-known substances, no one of which will explode, although two will burn, says Lieut. John M. Ellicott in St. Nicholas. Nobody knows when or how it was discovered, for as far back into the dark ages as records or tradition will carry us, we find that gunpowder, though not used for guns, was known. It was, no doubt, looked upon with awe and fear by the ancients on account of its flame, its noise, and its rending force; but their limited mechanical skill could suggest very little use for it.

Possibly it was used in warfare long before the beginning of history; but the first man in historical times to form an idea of the terrible destruction which this awful, bursting, fiery substance might produce was an English monk named Roger Bacon. Monks, in his day, were the chemists, scholars and writers of the world; and this Roger Bacon traveled and studied much, and made continual experiments in his laboratory to prove for himself and to develop what he learned from others. He probably saw gunpowder among the Moors in Spain, and tried for himself its explosive effect. Then he wrote of its composition in the year 1267, and in his writing suggested that it could be used in engines of war to deal death and destruction to armies of men.

Soon after Roger Bacon's time his suggestions were taken up and guns were constructed first by binding iron bars together with hoops to form a tube, then by casting a tube out of brass, with one end closed. Stones of suitable size were selected as shot, and the powder had to be carried around in chests or barrels and shoveled into the muzzles of the guns, the stones being rolled in after it. In spite of these drawbacks very large guns were built, for there was one used by Mahomet II. against the Greeks at the siege of Constantinople in 1453 which threw a stone weighing 600 pounds a distance of one mile.

His Brother Was Deaf.

A millionaire railway king has a brother who is hard of hearing, while he himself is remarkable as having a very prominent nose. Once the railway king dined at a friend's house, when he sat between two ladies, who talked to him very loudly, rather to his annoyance, but he said nothing. Finally one of them shouted a commonplace remark, and then said in an ordinary tone to the other: "Did you ever see such a nose in your life?" "Pardon me, ladies," said the millionaire, "it's my brother who is deaf." Imagine the horror of the ladies.

The Frances Shimer Academy of the University of Chicago

Which for more than forty years has been known as Mt. Carroll Seminary has, by the wish of its founder, become an affiliated school of The University of Chicago. The relation of the Frances Shimer Academy to The University of Chicago is a double one. It is an affiliated academy of the University, and as such the work of instruction is under the direct oversight of the University; eight of its fifteen trustees are trustees of the University.

The local and internal administration of the Academy will be in charge of the Dean, Miss Ida M. Gardner, who for fifteen years has been Principal of College Preparatory Schools both East and West. The course of study, with slight changes, will be identical with that of Morgan Park Academy, and will fit pupils for any College in the country.

That Terrible Scourge.

Malarial disease is invariably supplemented by disturbance of the liver, the bowels, the stomach and the nerves. To the removal of both the cause and its effects, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is fully adequate. It "fills the bill" as no other remedy does, performing its work thoroughly. Its ingredients are pure and wholesome, and it admirably serves to build up a system broken by ill health and shorn of strength. Constipation, liver and kidney complaint and nervousness are conquered by it.

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

Indorse Bryan for President, But Reject Sewall for Vice President.

Hon. Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, Will Be Bryan's Running Mate on the Populist Ticket — Declaration of Principles.

St. Louis, July 23.—The national convention of the people's party met in the same hall in which McKinley was nominated. It progressed no further than a temporary organization, the youthful senator from North Carolina, Marion Butler, being made temporary chairman. Threats uttered by the "middle of the road" men that they would force a test vote by antagonizing the selection of Senator Butler by the national committee, with the nomination of Judge O. D. Jones, of Missouri, a straightout anti-Bryan man, all evaporated into thin air before the convention met. Senator Butler's speech was for harmony, but unmistakably indicated a leaning toward a separate populist ticket and a separate platform.

Convention Called to Order.

At 38 minutes past 12 the convention was called to order by Mr. Taubeneck, chairman of the national committee, who announced that the proceedings would be opened by prayer by Rev. W. R. L. Smith, of the Third Baptist church of St. Louis.

THOMAS E. WATSON, OF GEORGIA, Populist Candidate for Vice President.

Gov. William J. Stone, of Missouri, was introduced by Chairman Taubeneck and delivered an address of welcome.

Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, of Minnesota, responded to Gov. Stone's address of welcome.

Butler Made Temporary Chairman.

Chairman Taubeneck introduced as temporary chairman of the convention Senator Marion Butler, of North Carolina, saying that he had been chosen by acclamation and without a dissenting voice, in a committee of 40 members, and expressing the belief that when the convention adjourned it would have accomplished its work just as unanimously.

After the appointment of committees, on motion of Mr. Donnelly, of Minnesota, the convention at 2:15 took a recess until eight p. m. to enable the committee on credentials to report.

Victory for Supporters of Bryan.

St. Louis, July 24.—It was not till late Thursday evening that any substantial progress was made by the people's convention. All the morning and afternoon were frittered away in disputes over contested seats and trivial matters. It was nearly eight o'clock when a decisive test of strength between the Bryan and anti-Bryan forces was brought about. It came upon the report of the committee on permanent organization. The Bryan men named Senator Allen, of Nebraska, for permanent chairman. The middle-of-the-road and anti-Bryan men united upon Mr. James E. Campion, of Maine, stated to be one of the ablest parliamentarians in the body. On a call of states the Bryan men carried the day by a decisive vote of 758 to 564. The middle-of-the-road men yielded gracefully, and "Cyclone" Davis, the most active opponent of Mr. Bryan, introduced Senator Allen to the convention. The permanent chairman made a characteristic speech of an hour or more in duration.

After some little opposition a committee of conference was named to meet a similar committee appointed by the silver party's convention, and at 10:05 p. m. the populists adjourned till Friday, when they may possibly succeed in adopting a platform, nominating a ticket and adjourning.

Sewall Rejected.

St. Louis, July 25.—The national convention of the people's party remained in session until after midnight. At the conclusion of many speeches naming candidates for the vice-presidential nomination the roll was called, and Thomas E. Watson, of Georgia, was nominated on the first ballot, the nomination being afterwards made unanimous. This was the result of a strong fight against the nomination of Arthur Sewall, of Maine, the democratic nominee for the same office. Contrary to all precedent, the report of the committee on rules, which was adopted, placed the nomination of vice-president before that of president.

THE PLATFORM.

Declaration of Principles Adopted by the People's Party Convention.

The full text of the platform as adopted is as follows:

"The people's party, assembled in national convention, reaffirms its allegiance to the principles declared by the founders of the republic and also to the fundamental principles of just government as enunciated in the platform of the party in 1892. We recognize that through the connivance of the present and preceding administrations the country has reached a crisis in its national life, as predicted in our declaration four years ago, and that prompt and patriotic action is the supreme duty of the hour. We realize that while we have political independence, our financial and industrial independence is yet to be attained by restoring to our country the constitutional control and exercise of functions necessary to a people's government, which functions have been basely surrendered by our public servants to corporate monopolies. The influence of European money-changers has been more potent in shaping legislation than the voice of the American people. Executive power and patronage have been used to corrupt our legislatures and defeat the will of the people, and plutocracy has thereby been enthroned upon the ruins of democracy. To restore the government intended by the fathers, and for the welfare and prosperity of this and future generations, we demand the establishment of an economic and financial system which shall make us masters of our own affairs and independent of European control, by the adoption of the following declaration of principles:

The Financial Planks.

"1. We demand a national money, safe and sound, issued by the general government only, without the intervention of banks of issue, to be a full legal tender for all debts, public and private, a just, equitable and efficient means of distribution direct to the people and through the lawful disbursements of the government.

"2. We demand the free and unrestricted coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of sixteen to one, without waiting for the consent of foreign nations.

"3. We demand the volume of circulating medium be speedily increased to an amount sufficient to meet the demands of the business and population and to restore the just level of prices of labor and production.

"4. We denounce the sale of bonds and the increase of the public interest-bearing debt made by the present administration as unnecessary and without authority of law and demand that no more bonds be issued except by specific act of congress.

"5. We demand such legislation as will prevent the demonetization of the lawful money of the United States by private contract.

"6. We demand that the government, in payment of its obligations shall use its option as to the kind of lawful money in which they are to be paid, and we denounce the present and preceding administrations for surrendering this option to the holders of government obligations.

"7. We demand a graduated income tax to the end that aggregated wealth shall bear its just proportion of taxation, and we regard the recent decision of the supreme court relative to the income tax law as a misinterpretation of the constitution and an invasion of the rightful powers of congress over the subject of taxation.

"8. We demand that postal savings banks be established by the government for the safe deposit of the savings of the people and to facilitate exchange.

Transportation.

"9. Transportation being a means of exchange and a public necessity, the government should own and operate the railroads in the interest of the people and on a nonpartisan basis; to the end that all may be accorded the same treatment in transportation, and that the tyranny and political power now exercised by the great railroad corporations which result in the impairment, if not the destruction, of the political rights and personal liberties of the citizen may be destroyed. Such ownership is to be accomplished gradually in a manner consistent with sound public policy.

"10. The interest of the United States in the public highways built with public moneys and the proceeds of extensive grants of land to the Pacific railroads, should never be alienated, mortgaged or sold, but guarded and protected for the general welfare as provided by the laws organizing such railroads. The foreclosure of existing liens of the United States on these roads should at once follow default in the payment thereof by the debtor companies; and at the foreclosure sales of said roads the government shall purchase the same if it becomes necessary to protect its interests therein, or if they can be purchased at a reasonable price; and the government shall operate said railroads as public highways for the benefit of the whole people and not in the interest of the few, under suitable provisions for protection of life and property, giving to all transportation interests equal privileges and equal rates for fares and freights.

"11. We denounce the present infamous schemes for refunding these debts and demand that the laws now applicable thereto be executed and administered according to their interest and spirit.

"12. The telegraph, like the post office system, being a necessity for the transmission of news, should be owned and operated by the government in the interest of the people.

Land.

"13. True policy demands that the national and state legislation shall be such as will ultimately enable every prudent and industrious citizen to secure a home, and therefore the land should not be monopolized for speculative purposes. All lands now held by railroads and other corporations in excess of their actual needs should by lawful means be reclaimed by the government and held for natural settlers only, and private land monopoly, as well as alien ownership, should be prohibited.

"14. We condemn the frauds by which the land-grant Pacific railroad companies have, through the connivance of the interior department, robbed multitudes of actual, bona fide settlers of their homes and miners of their claims, and we demand legislation by congress which will enforce the exception of mineral land grants after as well as before patent.

"15. We demand that bona fide settlers on all public lands be granted free homes, as provided in the national homestead law, and that no exception be made in the case of Indian reservations when opened for settlement, and that all lands not now patented come under this demand.

Direct Legislation.

"16. We favor a system of direct legislation through the initiative and referendum, under proper constitutional safeguards.

General Propositions.

"17. We demand the election of president, vice president and United States senators by a direct vote of the people.

"18. We tender to the patriotic people of Cuba our deepest sympathy in their heroic struggle for political freedom and independence, and we believe the time has come when the United States, the great republic of the world, should recognize that Cuba is and of right ought to be a free and independent state.

"19. We favor home rule in the territories and the District of Columbia, and the early admission of the territories as states.

"20. All public salaries should be made to correspond to the price of labor and its products.

"21. In times of great industrial depression idle labor should be employed on public works as far as practicable.

"22. The arbitrary course of the courts in assuming to imprison citizens for indirect contempt and ruling them by injunction should be prevented by proper legislation.

"23. We favor just pensions for our disabled union soldiers.

"24. Believing that the elective franchise and an untrammeled ballot are essential to government of, for and by the people, the people's party condemn the wholesale system of disfranchisement adopted in some of the states as unrepublican and undemocratic, and we declare it to be the duty of the several state legislatures to take such action as will secure a full, free and fair ballot and an honest count.

"25. While the foregoing propositions constitute the platform upon which our party stands, and for the vindication of which its organization will be maintained, we recognize that the great and pressing issue of the pending campaign upon which the present presidential election will turn is the financial question, and upon this great and specific issue between the parties we cordially invite the aid and cooperation of all organizations and citizens agreeing with us upon this vital question."

Minority Report.

There was very little applause given to any of the various declarations of the platform. The one in favor of recognizing Cuban independence was most appreciated, and after it, in point of popularity, came the one in favor of "initiative and referendum."

A minority report was presented which embodied all of the points relative to income tax, direct legislation, etc., with the addition of a plank against irredeemable money. It concluded as follows: "We invite the cooperation of all men in this nation who desire the accomplishment of pure government, economically administered, and we therefore believe it to be the supreme duty of this convention to adopt a platform of its own and nominate a ticket of its own."

Mr. J. S. Coxey, of Ohio, read other propositions to be added to the platform, among them being these: non-interest-bearing bonds; good roads; extension of suffrage to women, and the ownership and control by the government of every industry necessary to the welfare of the community.

Platform Adopted.

The question was then put and the platform reported by the majority of the committee was agreed to and all the amendments were laid on the table.

After the roll of states had been entered upon the convention reconsidered its determination not to take a recess and at 4:33 adjourned to meet again at six p. m.

Populists Indorse Bryan.

St. Louis, July 27.—The national convention of the people's party, after four days of heat, turmoil and unlimited oratory completed its labors at 4:40 Saturday afternoon and adjourned sine die. Notwithstanding the receipt of one or more telegrams from Mr. W. J. Bryan, declining to permit the use of his name on the populistic ticket unless Mr. Arthur Sewall, his associate on the Chicago ticket, were also endorsed, Mr. Bryan was put in formal nomination, as originally contemplated, by Gen. Weaver, of Iowa, and was seconded by one or more spokesmen from every state and territory with about ten exceptions, and on a ballot received 1,042 votes against 321 for Col. S. F. Norton, of Chicago, who, at the last moment, was selected as the candidate of the unreconstructed "middle-of-the-road element. It was the intention of this faction early in the morning to place Mr. Eugene Debs in nomination and thus to force the labor issue to the front, but Mr. Debs telegraphed declining to serve, and his telegram was respected.

In the hurry and excitement of Saturday's session plans of the "middle of the road" faction were not carried into effect. Congressman Howard, of Georgia, had a resolution to present providing that in case Mr. Bryan did not accept the nomination Col. S. F. Norton be declared the nominee of the party. Mr. Howard was listening to "Stump" Ashby denouncing the Bryan faction, and Ashby prolonged his speech until after the convention had adjourned. When Howard reached for his resolution he found out that the following had been presented by George H. Abbott, of Nebraska, which provided that plenary powers be given the national committee after the convention adjourned to do all things that the convention would do if in session.

KILLED BY A BUSINESS RIVAL.

President of Illinois State Board of Pharmacy Stabbed to Death.

Cairo, Ill., July 28.—Dr. Isaac N. Coffee was killed at an early hour Monday morning by Green B. Crabtree, a rival druggist of this city. Dr. Coffee, who was president of the state board of pharmacy, was on his way to the train, in company with Dr. Joseph J. Gordon, to attend a meeting of the state board at Springfield. He was passing the drug store of Crabtree at about 12:30 o'clock, when he noticed the store of the latter open, contrary to an agreement of the druggists to close at 9:30 o'clock during the heated term. Coffee remarked to Gordon, as he noticed the open store: "I wonder why that store is open at this hour," applying a vile epithet to Crabtree. Crabtree was sitting on the pavement in front of his store, unnoticed by either of the two men, and, as he sprung toward Coffee, he remarked: "I'll allow no man to call me that name." He struck at Coffee, but the latter was too quick for him, and grabbed him by the throat, at the same time striking his face with his fist.

In the scuffle the two fell to the pavement, Coffee being on top. About this time Dr. Gordon, who was powerless to part the two men, succeeded in getting assistance, and they were separated. Each combatant went into his store to wash away the signs of the conflict, Dr. Gordon accompanying Coffee. Just as Coffee reached the doorway of his own store he exclaimed: "I am stabbed." Dr. Gordon told him that it would not be very serious or it would have been noticed before, but hardly had he got the assurance out of his mouth when Coffee fell heavily to the pavement, a corpse.

An examination showed that Crabtree stabbed his victim with a dirk in five places, one wound reaching the heart. As soon as it was discovered that Coffee was dead officers went for Crabtree. The latter was very much overcome, and made several fierce attempts to take his own life. He is now in jail, closely guarded, to prevent his self-destruction.

GOLD SHIPMENTS CEASE.

None of the Yellow Metal to Be Exported to Europe for Two Months.

New York, July 28.—No gold will be exported to Europe for the next two months at least. This assurance was given Monday, when the committee appointed to perfect plans for the controlling of foreign exchange made its report at a general meeting of bankers, held in the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. The committee was discharged, and the bankers in the new syndicate entered formally into an agreement to carry out the plan they proposed. While the details of this plan are unknown, it has been anticipated in a general way. The bankers will sell bills of exchange at a figure which will preclude the possibility of gold exports. Bills will be sold up to $45,000,000 or $50,000,000.

THREE KILLED AT A PICNIC.

Pitched Battle, in Which 100 Shots Are Fired Promiscuously.

Birmingham, Ala., July 27.—During the progress of a negro church picnic near Letohatchie, Lowndes county, Saturday, a dispute over whose turn it was to ride on a flying jinney occurred between David Semter and Burnett Means. Both men drew pistols and began firing. Friends joined each combatant and a pitched battle ensued, in which 100 shots were fired. When it was over Semter, Means, and Jerry Gilmer lay dead on the ground. Six others, chiefly bystanders, were wounded, three fatally. Two of the wounded are women.

Storm Strikes Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 28.—A wind and rainstorm of unusual fierceness visited this city at 4:30 o'clock Monday, causing the loss of at least three lives, seriously injuring eight others, several of whom may die, and doing immense damage to property. Several dwellings were completely demolished and others partially wrecked. Eight or ten churches had their roofs blown off and otherwise damaged. Telegraph, telephone and electric light poles were snapped like pipestems, mixing the wires in an inextricable mass in the streets, making travel in many sections of the city impossible.

Lee Protests.

Havana, July 28.—Strenuous efforts are being made by Gen. Lee on behalf of the government against the order of Gen. Weyler prohibiting the export of fruit. This prohibition is causing an immense damage to American commerce and business. The principal reason for the prohibition of the export of fruit at certain seaport towns is that they are virtually under the control of the rebels.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Minnesota Clay.

A test of Minnesota clay was recently made by a number of architects and builders at the yards of C. J. Swanson & Co., in Northeast Minneapolis, and it was proved conclusively that the clay made better fire proofing and brick than in many other states of the union.

A 12 foot span was made, six inches in thickness and with a surface of 84 square feet. A load of 46,200 pounds was placed on the arch and no evidence of the weight was shown. The weight was increased to 69,300 pounds, and under this load the arch broke, the tensile strength of the fire proofing being 825 pounds to the square foot. The ordinary weight placed on fire proofing in warehouse and other buildings is about 200 pounds to the square foot, showing that Minnesota clay is eminently adapted to the purpose of manufacturing fire proofing and that it will sustain a very great weight. The architects were well pleased with the test.

Attractions for the Fair.

A strong effort is going to be made to be made to secure for the state fair the kings of the turf, Patchen, Robert J, Gentry and Badge. President Weaver will endeavor to arrange a match which will secure all of these four great flyers.

The committee also offers $1,000 as a purse for a 2:08 pacing match, which will also bring some of the fastest horses in the country. Besides this, they will offer $480 for either a pacing race for a 3-year-olds or a trotting race for 4-yar-olds.

It is decided also to secure a first-class Indian show at the fair, which will prove a genuine curiosity to many visitors from the east and the southern states, and will be of interest even to our northwestern folks. There are to be representatves of two tribes with bucks, squaws and papooses who will play games of lacrosse and engage in horse races, bow and arrow contests, war dances, etc.

Heavy Investments.

A half million dollars were paid into the United States land office in Crookston in two days for Red Lake pine. The preliminary auction sale closed recently, the entire list having been offered. The net result of this was $160,000. The private sale and entry was immediately taken up, and representatives of the leading lumber firms of the Northwest at once delivered lists of lands, in some cases covering from one to three townships, accompanied by checks to cover the appraised value. The matter was arranged and a pool formed which controlled the whole list and the parceling out was done in a manner satisfactory to the syndicate. The Weyerhausers, the Pine Tree Lumber company, Shelvin, Carpenter, and other heavy firms from La Crosse, Eau Claire, Chippewa Falls, and Saginaw, Mich., were in the deal.

Population of Minneapolis.

The Minneapolis directory for 1896 has made its appearance. The book contains 1,330 pages, an increase of 42 over last year. It has been carefully prepared, C. B. Stanley, the superintendent, having taken particular pains to see that the information contained in the volume was up to date and accurate.

The directory this year contains 93,735 names, an increase of 1,183 names, indicating a population of 210,902. The old stereotyed introdnction concerning manufacturing statistics, etc., has been done away with, and the directory publishers introduce their volume with a brief mention.

Good for Walker.

The Brainerd and Northern Minnesota railroad have completed arrangements to ship freight over their road to Walker and then by team and steamboat to Bemidji, a new town 35 miles north of Walker. This town has heretofore shipped all freight through Park Rapids. This move means for Walker a heavy increase in business, as Bemidji has a farming population of several thousand and all their produce must find an outlet through Walker by this arrangement.

Another Convention.

This time it is the Wholesale Saddlery association of the United States that decides to meet in Minneapolis in 1897. The association is one of the most substantial in the country, and is composed of solid men, as is evidenced by the fact that the convention asks no bonus, even in the way of gnaranteed entertainment.

To Withdraw.

Acting under the law of 1895, the Superior board of trade recently notified the Minnesota board of railroad and warehouse commissioners to withdraw their inspectors and weighers of grain from Wisconsin after Aug. 31, and answer has been received that it will be done.

News in Brief.

Owen Williams, of Lake Crystal, committed suicide by hanging.

O. Albertson's store at Battle Lake was entered by burglars and the safe blown open. Powder demolished the store front, doing great damage. The burglars secured no money.

The body of Edward R. Budd, 73 years of age was washed up on the shore of Lake Superior at Dnluth. He disappeared two weeks ago, and it had been supposed that he was in the woods working.

Charles L. Gustafson, 24 years old, and residing with his parents at St. Paul, attempted suicide by hanging, and was only saved from strangling to death by prompt aid rendered by his mother.

The old First Minnesota Volunteer association will maintain headquarters at the corner of Eighth and Wabasha streets in St. Paul during the encampment. A free reading room and other conveniences will be maintained for the use of the veterans.

A son of August Stalt, a Nicollet connty farmer, was drowned in the Minnesota river, near St. Peter, while bathing.

Alphonse Jasamin, age 17, of West St. Paul, died of lock jaw. The disease set in as the result of an injury to the hand, which the boy sustained on the Fourth of July while discharging a gun.

The St. Cloud Cycle company, composed of Steven Tenvoorde and E. P. White, made a voluntary assignment to R. B. Brower, for the benefit of the creditors; assets, $2,000; liabilities the same.

D. Quinby, of Kenyon, narrowly escaped losing an eye by being attacked by an insane daughter, who had concealed about her a sharp knife.

ENGLISH BISHOPS ARE SLEEK.

They Have the Best Things of Life and Seem to Enjoy Them.

The sleekest thing that I have ever seen is a bishop of the Anglican church. A temporal peer carries the world on his shoulders with wonderful grace and nonchalance, yet he is clumsy beside my lord the bishop. Bishops are appropriately selected for their general beauty. I am sure that a bow-legged clergyman, did he possess the intellect of Leo XIII., could never sit in the house of lords. Bow legs in black knickerbockers are too repellant. The bishops are almost invariably large men with little tufts of hair in front of their ears and beautiful white shaven chins. They wear a huge high hat with a little rosette in front. As it is becoming only to a man with a large head and large features, the bishops have large heads and large features. All have a profoundly vacant stare, set off, in some instances, by a monocle. They cannot be overworked or else they could not look so healthy and robust. Bishops of 70 years of age are without a line of care on their faces. It is as much a requirement for a bishop to be robust and handsome as for a curate to be lean and insignificant and cadaverous.

When the bishops in their white gowns sit on the red cushions of the house of lords they make a beautiful picture—the finest specimens of physical manhood in England, set in a suitable background. The temporal peers look quite insignificant beside them. They are as sly as learned, and when it comes to neat political maneuvers they put Lord Salisbury in the shade. It seldom happens that more than four or five are present at once, but the other day no less than 12 were ranged on the crimson cushions, more than were present at the reading of the queen's speech. Their smiles were innocent and benign. Lord Grimthorpe said that they had come purposely to oppose his amendment to prevent the churches and chapels of the Church of England from being used for the solemnization of the marriage of any person who had been divorced on the ground of adultery.

The archbishop of Canterbury arose and in dignified sweetness and surprise said that they had held a meeting in the afternoon and all had come to the lords afterward by accident, without the slightest premeditation. The bill as introduced revoked all marriages contracted in English churches by persons who had been divorced for adultery, thus making the children resulting from such marriages illegitimate. The amendment to invalidate this feature was carried in spite of the protests of the bishops. If the bishops could have had their way they would soon have England in a pretty mess. Lord Salibsury tells them just how far they may go, and as they can get nothing from the liberals they have to support Lord Salisbury. This position does not seem to disagree with their appetites, no matter how much it may provoke them. — London Cor. N. Y. Press.

Where It Rains Constantly.

There is a group of islands to the south of New Zealand called the Sisters, or Seven Sisters, which are reputed to be the subject of a practically constant rainfall. The same may be said of the islands and mainland of Terre del Fuego, saving for the difference that the rain often takes the form of sleet and snow. On a line running around the world from four to eight or nine degrees there are patches over which rain seldom ceases to flow. This is called the "zone of constant precipitation," but at the same time there are several localities along it with very little rainfall. Thus, for instance, while the town of Panama has a six months' dry season and a very fine wet one, Colon, on the other side of the isthmus, about 37 miles away, is deluged with rain during the wet season.—N. Y. Times.

Bird Calls.

There are many birds of which the male and female have the same call, such as the raven, the rook, the New Zealand parson's bird and the gull, and to the highly cultivated musical ear a difference in pitch may be perceived which would escape the ordinary observer. With the true songsters there is little difference in the vocal organs of the two sexes, although the males of most species sing better and more continuously than the females.—Chicago Chronicle.

Exodus of Artists.

This is the season of the year when the artist, amateur or otherwise, goes forth to see nature as she is and try to depict some of her many beauties. With folding easel, camp stool and sketch box complete, he seeks out nooks which appeal to his fancy and provides himself with sketches to work up during the winter. The most attractive field for the artist is along the line of the Saint Paul & Duluth railroad, which runs through the most beautiful portion of the Northwest, where infinite variety is presented. The Duluth Short Line, as this line is generally known, is noted not only for its picturesque region and its countless sapphire lakes, but also as the people's popular route between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, West Superior, Stillwater, Taylor's Falls and other prominent Northwestern points. Its facilities and characteristics are such as to appeal to the business man, the tourist and the homeseeker. Its finely equipped trains leave and arrive at convenient hours and run swiftly and smoothly between the handsomest of terminals, where close connections are made with trains and boats running in all directions. With these signal points in its favor, it is no wonder that the Duluth Short Line always enjoys heavy patronage and holds its patrons. Ticket agents will always be glad to furnish inquirers with maps, circulars, time tables, and general information, or they may be had by writing direct to W. A. Russell, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

"EVERYTHING is marked down these days," remarked Mrs. Bargain Hunter. "Yes," assented her husband. "Even plain ordinary goose feathers."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Pill Clothes.

The good pill has a good coat. The pill coat serves two purposes; it protects the pill, enabling it to retain all its remedial value, and it disguises the taste for the palate. Some pill coats are too heavy; they will not dissolve in the stomach, and the pills they cover pass through the system as harmless as a bread pellet. Other coats are too light, and permit the speedy deterioration of the pill. After 30 years exposure, Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills have been found as effective as if just fresh from the laboratory. A-T-Co's BATTLE AX

BIG AND GOOD.

BattleAx PLUG

Sometimes quality is sacrificed in the effort to give big quantity for little money.
No doubt about that.
But once in a while it isn't.
For instance, there's "BATTLE AX."
The piece is bigger than you ever saw before for 5 cents. And the quality is, as many a man has said, "mighty good."
There's no guess work in this statement.
It is just a plain fact.
You can prove it by investing 5 cents in "BATTLE AX."

DELANO, FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Enos Eppel did not take part in the bicycle race at Como.

—A fine shower Sunday afternoon was very acceptable to everybody.

—If you want plums or crabapples leave your order with C. M. Conzet.

—Dr. Soper reports six cases of Diphtheria in Corcoranown, Hennepin County.

—George P. Schaffer and his entire force have been uncommonly busy this week, invoicing.

—Martin Conzet of Greenwood was in town yesterday and allowed us to sample some nice plumbs.

—Harvesting in earnest began this week, the bulk of the grain being ripe. Rye and other early grain was cut last week.

—The Delano Eagle Co. have started men at work on the changes to be made in the Old Bird's nest.

—The ladies of the Swedish Mission church will give an icecream social in the City Hall next Wednesday evening.

—Watertown and Delano are now more nearly related than ever. They can talk with each other through a telephone.

—Read reports of the National Silver party, and of the Peoples Party, at St. Louis last week, on inside of this paper.

—If no more interest is manifested in election than has been developed at the primaries there will be a very light vote this fall.

—Delegates to the Democratic State Convention at Minneapolis Aug. 4, can procure round trip tickets for one fare at the depot.

—J. E. Brothers called this morning and left a sample of oats he raised on his farm, near town. The seed came from Washington and the grain is fine.

—University students are beginning to plan for their winter's residence in Minneapolis, and their course of studies. Quite a few from this vicinity will be there.

—The Democrats of the Town of Franklin elected William Sturman Jr: Clark Sturman, William Ziebarth, Joe Bauman and Conrad Marth delegates the county convention to morrow.

—Mr. and Mrs. Schaffer, Mrs. Sieloff and Mrs. Goetzman visited Wayerly Thursday. George drove his handsome new "chaise." He says he found silverites in a large majority at Waverly.

—At the primary election held at the City Hall Saturday evening Drs. C. B. Ames and T. J. Catlin and Prof. Pat Greear were elected delegates to attend the democratic convention at on Saturday Aug. 1.

—Messrs Campion and Wolfenden have a nice photograph outfit on River Street. They have taken a picture of most of the town already and are now ready to take the people, from far and near. They expect to be with us for a couple of weeks yet.

—The "Coming Man Sociable" by the ladies of the M. E. Church, at the City Hall, Wednesday evening was a great success. A large audience enjoyed the entertainment, and as the night was hot the ice cream went well.

—W. H. Frazee met with one of his periodical accidents one day this week, His spirited nag shied out of the road near Bev Yancy's residence and in bringing him back into the track too short a turn was made and the buggy turned over, Mr. F. escaped with a few scratches.

—The dry seasons of late years, making fine roads causeb many people, old and young, to purchase bicycles. Should there come a couple of wet seasons, with their accompanying muddy roads, doubtless it would be an easy matter to exchange the coming flying machine for bicycles.

—The captain of the Crickets is helping Grandpa harvest. He took with him a ball, that he could keep in practice evenings. The first day out we learn he thought he would go to bed instead of practice after work was done. Crickets are plucky though and he may get used to it.

—Read the call for a County Convention to elect delegates to the Judicial Convention, in another column. It is of great importance to every one that we have the best judicial timber in our district on the bench. Every voter should attend the primaries and elect delegates to attend the County Convention at Buffalo who will see to sending delegates to the Judicial Convention who will work for this end.

—A great many people defer writing to friends, or on business, until there is barely time to mail their letters on the train. Some do it thoughtlessy; others for other reasons. As the cancellation of stamps in an office gives the office its standing a letter a day by a few people would in the course of the year make quite a difference in the rating of the office. People caring to have our town show up well should patronize the Post Office.

—L. W. Everson, our band leader has been engaged to teach the Fossston band and will hereafter make that city his headquarters.—McIntosh Times.

—Yesterday shortly before noon pedestrians and others on R. R. Aye. were attracted by a moving object near the Wright County Bank. A group near the Post Office kept watch of it until it passed apparently, with wings extended and legs drawn up, as if about to fly, or expire; when one of the bystanders inquired "Whats that?" Another who had not before seen the object, on looking up, promptly responded," "A gold bug." It proved to be Banker Roosen breaking himself to ride a "bike."

Personal.

Miss Estella Davis visited Hamline friends last week.

Dr. Powell, of Hanover, was a Delano visitor Wednesday.

Dr. A. M. Ridgway, of Annandale, was in town Monday.

Dr. O. R. Fassett of Rockford made Delano a visit Wednesday.

Mrs. H. A. Ball, of Grafton, visited Delano friends this week.

Mrs. H. A. Ball, of Grafton, visited Delano friends this week.

Rev. Matthew Schaus, left on Wednesday for a short visit at Rochester.

Miss Erma Wilder visited home last week, returning to Minneapolis Friday.

Prof. Charles S. Hawker is attending the Summer school at the State University.

Miss Maud Craig, of Princeton, is visiting her friend Miss Flossie Davis this week.

Miss Delia Briley, of Independence, Was the guest of Miss Grace O'Hare Wednesday.

Dr. E. E. Shrader and C. G. Halgreen, of Watertown came over on business Wednesday.

Mr. Burton, formerly employed in the creamery here, was up from Long Lake visiting friends, this week.

Mr. Marks, (not the lawyer) who laid pipe in Delano, last summer, visited some of his old friends here thist week.

Frank A. Barth, Watertown's genial Merchant and President of the Father Mathew State Temperance Society was in town Wednesday.

Mrs. Geo. A. Goetzman was in town this week. She says if they could dispose of their Lester Prairie property they would move back to Delano.

Mrs. A. D. Smith, and Hattie, Jim, and Kittie left Tuesday evening for their home at Omaha. Mrs. John Cunningham accompanied them as far as Minneapolis.

Benjamin Franklin Herrick, on the road for the Minneapolis Tribune, was a GAZETTE caller, Tuesday. He says he finds lots of strong silver men, more than he expected.

Postmaster O'Hair visited Minneapolis Tuesday. We understand that he found a strong feeling for the free coinage of silver and gold, among the people regardless of party lines.

Mr B. A. Shuman, Ass't. State Secy. of the Young Men's Christian Association was in the city last week in the interest of state work. This movement is growing and is coming to be of special value in the smaller places of the state through the Christmas work of college students and other agencies.

County Cullings.

The Board of County Commissioners met July 25, at Buffalo and transacted the usual business.

Charles Hill, of Buffalo, was drowned while attempting to cross Buffalo Lake in a boat, on Sunday.

The County Commissionership in the Third District seems to be a plum on which several Democratic aspirants longingly look as within their own reach. So far we have heard the names of Charles Bugbee, Wm Ziebar.h and Valentine Epple mentioned for the place.

The Board of Equalization rearranged the property assessments in great fashion at their meeting on the 20th inst. It looks strange that so much difference as to cause the board to make a reduction of 15 per cent on some and raise other property 260 per cent should occur.

Questions For Gold Standard Men.

We would like answers to these questions from our neighboring editors favorable to a gold standard. Especially from the Eagle.

Is the United States now on a gold basis?

How much money per capita is there in the United States now?

How long can the country do business on a gold basis?

Among our Exchanges.

The insurance companies which reaped $625,000,000 of lapses under "the existeng gold standad" last year, are not aching for free coinage, But how about the people who were robbed of the $625,000,000?—Penny Press.

Freedom seems inclined to shriek once more in Poland, inspired probably, by the unexpected energy of Crete and Cuba. But the two latter have decaying forces to deal with, while a Polish revolutionary movement would mean defiance of one of the greatest and most invincible of European powers.—Pioneer Press.

Gen. R. W. Johnson, St. Paul: "'Politics make strange bed fellows.' I never supposed that I could get into the same political bed with John Lind but I am there with both feet.' Another strange thing is to see Joe Whelock and Herr Most working for the same candidate and the same gold standard."—Penny Press.

"Gold and silver is the money of the constitution. The constitutional standard of value is established and cannot be overturned. To overturn it would shake the whole system. Gold and silver at rates fixed by congress constitute the legal standard of value in this country and neither congress nor any state has authority to establish any other standard or dispose of this."—Daniel Webster in 1836.—Minneapolis Democrat.

Mexican Herald.

Through the kindness of one of our Minneapolis subscribers, Mr. R. H. Broat we are in receipt of the Mexican Herald, printed in the City of Mexico. From it we learn, contrary to the statements of some of our Gold Standard papers, that Mexico is flourishing.

From the Herald's advertisements we see that the various professions and trades are represented by people live enough to advertise in the newspaper. We also learn that in Mexico they have Railroads, Telephones, Saloons, Restaurants and modern appliances.

We give below a few clippings from the Mexican Herald just to show how it likes their present money system, about which so much has lately been found in some of our leading dailies.

POOR "miserable Mexico" has the biggest and strongest banks on this continent.

CHINA imported, last year, double the amount of machinery than in 1895. Put that down for a silver using land.

SILVER-basis China is shipping more black tea overland to Russia than in previous history of the tea trade.

THE pampa plumes, adopted by the Republicans as their campaign symbol, suggest, if worn on the lapel of the coat, a man in ambush!

WE really hope the gold standard papers in the United States will not attribute the short maize crop, this year, to our being on a silver basis.

IT looks as if the plain people of the Great Republic were seeing through the tissue of falsehoods woven in those workshops of falsities, the gold monometallic journals.

THE fact that the additional $5,000,000 capital of the Bank of London and Mexico has been subscribed three times over is a fresh demonstration that the investors of a silver country believe in their currency.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

THE WRIGHT COUNTY W. C. T. U.

MRS. ELIZABETH C. FRISBIE, CO. SUPT. PRESS WORK.

When Doctors Disagree Who Shall Decide?

To the casnal observer nothing could be more surprising than the turn matters took at the Pittsburg convention. But it was not the "unexpected that happened," to those who knew that in 1884 and thereabouts, a stout effort was made by a number of the leaders to throw the suffrage plank overboard which resulted in the adoption of the only weak expression that the party of twenty seven years of existence had ever made up to the "Pittsburg Landing" defeat, viz.; that part of the 1884 resolution which relegates the "practical outworking of this reform to the discretion of the Prohibition party in the several states." Neither was it unexpected to those who had carefully followed the discussion between the two wings just prior to the convention; one advocating a single or dominant issue, and the other a number of issues, including that of silver. This has been so fully set forth in these columns that but little remains to be said.

The differences of opinion as to how the single issue was adopted continue to be numerous. Only generals can survey the whole field, and some of them are shortsighted, so it is not strange that there is an honest difference of opinion in the rank and file, even among those belonging to the same wing.

One member of the platform committee says not a single narrow-gauger voted for the suffrage plank when it was presented in the committee. Another affirms that as many narrows as broads voted for it. The fact remains that it had a majority of only four in the committee.

It is said on the one hand that St. John stampeded the convention in favor of Mr. Pattson's substitute; and on the other hand that he simply stated the agreement between Mr. Dickie and himself, to the effects that the minority would cease to obstruct when the majority showed its hand, and that "speaking for himself alone" he was ready to let them have their way, or words to that effect.

It is said that the motion to reconsider the adoption of the substitute being tabled, it was impossible to reopen the platform; that the convention was "nailed to the table," "put in a hole," etc. But everybody knows that in parliamentary usage, as well as in everyday life, things are put on the table to be handy as often as to be out of the way; and that this motion could have been taken from the table at any time by a majority vote of the convention, or a new motion could be made to introduce planks, as was Mrs. Booles. To be sure, hers was introduced after the nominees had accepted, but it would have been no less unusual to have put in a plank then, had nominees and the necessary majority desired it, than it was unusual to put a majority and a minority platform report befor the convention on exactly the same footing.

Some persist in calling Mr. Patton a broad-gauger, when, according to his own words and his substitute, he is politically a strong narrow gauger. But he is also a free silver man, and if other planks were to be in, he wished a silver plank; that lost, he carried the convention for what he preferred.

Some asserted that the vote on the adoption of the substitute was not a count vote, and that it is an error to say it stood 650 to 150. It is due the secretary to say that in reply to a question from this office, Mr. Wilson writes: "A count was ordered made, assented to by the chairman, announced, and as it was unchallenged, it stands 650 to 150."

And so we might continue, but why waste time on straws? They are of interest only for the moment. The great facts are evident to all. A majority of the convention discarded the plank platform and adopted prohibiton alone. The convention could have reopened the question, but it did not. A part withdrew and formed a new party. The East and South now have what they want in the Prohibition party, and nothing more. The Middle and West have what they want in the National party. In the one prohibition is first and all; in the other prohibition is first and greatest. Perhaps none are disappointed except the equal suffragists, and even they have a grain of comfort which may be a mustard seed. A good seed from a thrifty, twenty-four year old plant ought to be able to "cover the whole earth" when put into new soil.

There yet remain many staunch equal suffragists in the old party and the new one is pledged to it. The brethern can now take prohibition straight or with a stick in it as they choose. As the sisters have at best only been allowed to smell of the mug, they will probably take a little time at his juncture to do up their knitting and to look after their own forty odds and ends including prohibition and political equality; but they will not keep so strictly to "de middle ob de road" that they can not, as heretofore, gather together an audience whenever the brethren wish to gain the public ear on either of these issues or any other pertaining to the welfare of the human race.

HURON county, O., recently held a model convention. They combined district and county conventions with a school of methods, under direction of Miss Burnett. The delegates got more than inspiration, for every hour was turned to helpful service. Too many conventions are little more than reports and papers that may be good but do not satisfy the hungry seeker after the knowledgo needed in our smaller unions.

Bishop Whipple As A Sprinter.

A good story is told on the venerable Bishop Whipple. The scene is laid in St. Paul, and the story runs as follows:

One evening in the fall, and after dark, as the bishop was walking along the street he noticed a little fellow trying to ring the door bell of a fine residence. He was too short to do any more than reach it, and, although he stood on his tiptoes and stretched vigorously, no sound came from the bell. The kind-haerted prelate felt called upon to assist him, and so ascending the steps, asked:

"Shall I help you, my little man?"

The boy intimated that such a course would be gratifying to him, and the bishop rang the bell. Thereupon the little fellow remarked:

"Now we'd better run like h—!" and decamped as rapidly as possible.

It took the bishop just a moment to remember that it was Halloween, and it is said that he made tracks and got around the corner about as rapidly as did the little boy.—Wabasha (Minn.) Herald.

The primary elections for the election of said delegates will be held in all the election districts of said county on Saturday, the 22nd day of August, 1896, the polls to be open from 7 o'clock P. M. to 8 o'clock P. M. of said day; said primaries to be conducted under the Primary Election law. The town and village committees must fix the place for holding said Primary elections and give six days notice thereof as the Law requires.

Dated August 3rd, 1896.

By order of the County Committee
F. W. GORMAN,
Chairman.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line;

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetallism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

WHILE Senator Knute Nelson was ranting about the Wilson bill, at Alexandria, the other day wonder if he thought that his constituency had forgotten the vote he cast for the Mills bill.

SENATOR NELSON is reported as having said he was "really not very well informed in regard to the force of the movement, (free silver movement) but thought it was losing rather than gaining strength. He ought to post up better before giving an opnn ion.

THE Minneapolis Tribune published the following perporting to be from William J. Bryan, who some one was charging with having traded off the appointment of a cabinet position to aid his own chances of nomination at Chicago:

"In order to answer once and all rumors in regard to places promised, I dare say that I have not directly or indirectly promised any kind to any person whomsoever and shall not during the campaign promise any office of any kind to any person whomsoever."

WHY don't our gold standard friends have a little bit of consistancy? They rave about the free silver voters going to "repudiate" the debts of this grand country by paying its bonds off in "cheap" silver dollars. When they themselves demonetized silver when it was the standard of our country and when a silver dollar was worth more than a gold dollar. If they were so terribly "honest" "sound" and afraid of repudiating debts, why didn't they pay their debts in silver while it was dear, instead of demonetizing it.

THE Hon Knute Nelson delivered an address on the financial condition of the country, at Alexandria, his home, last Saturday. He dealt with the question at length and rounded up the address as follows:

"Can any American citizen to whom his country is first in war, and first in peace and who fully understands this question in all its consequences, have the heart to throw our country into this seething and heartless vortex of silver speculation this malestrom of the silver mammon?

Now fron reports about the time the Hon Knute was elected Senator, one would suppose that he would be able to give as concise and intelligent advice on the subject of the "Malestrom of the silver Mammon" as anyone in this country.

Getting Ready for War.

The Pioneer Press must be getting considerably nervous when in a telegram from Lincoln, Neb. it announced that "among the callers at the Bryan home today was Lieut. Gen. Frank A. Day, of Minnesota." We presume it refers to our present Lieut. Govenor Day who travels about without a sword and anything but a military air.

Bossism Doomed.

The verdict of the people of Minnesota seems already made up and the voters are only awaiting the time when by casting their ballots they will eradicate from our State this giant evil that has been perpetrating wrongs untold upon the inhabitants of a fair land.

Bossism is doomed: from the State rings, in all parties to the tail end of the county ticket the old bosses are bound to have the hardest kind of work to keep from being distanced in the race. The very feeling invades the air that while we are at it we will do a good job; we will turn out all bosses and with a reformed rank try again to lead our people on to prosperity and happiness. Only men who have proven themselves fair and honestly for the interests of the people, among the old timer, stand a gost of a show of re-elections this fall. Let the reform be so complete that all rings are wiped out of existence.

Mr. Bryan's use for Cities.

MR. BRYAN said at Chicago: "Burn down your cities AND LEAVE US our farms, &c., &c." COULD THE WORST anarchist have said more? Why does Mr. Bryan choose the LARGEST city in which to be notified?

Only a few years ago such sentiments would have shut him ENTIRELY out of New York.

He is the cleverst socialist yet. He can openly wave the red flag, couched in such language as to be permissable, and is therefore more dangerous than a hundred Herr Most.—New York Dispatch.

The above clipping from the New York Dispatch we give our readers as a sample of the kind of reading they place before the people of the East. Now take a man who has never read Mr. Bryan's speech, and who did not know much about him, as is the case with many people living in New York and in other eastern states, Mr. Bryan being from Nebraska, and how would it sound? Would not the average laboring man in a big city on reading such stuff at once cry, down with its author? Ought not they to do so, if there was any truth in what the wicked Dispatch tries to have people think Mr. Bryan said?

Get out your copy of Mr. Bryan's Chicago speech and compare the above extract, the whole article, headline and all, and see if you think the New York Dispatch has done the fair thing in garbling these few words of one of the greatest speeches of recent times.

FOR the Globe and other gold standard papers to claim that Messrs Lawler, McCafferty and Cutcheon had no hearing before the Democratic convention seems to those present at that convention rather absurd as it also does to people throughout the state who read newspapers, especially those papers advocating a gold standard of money. Have not these men had their views on dress parade daily, since the Chicago convention? Haven't they aided in calling another convention to defeat Bryan and Sewall? And are not they by the new election laws debarred from attending more than one convention? And hadn't they ought to be ashamed to ask admittance to a convention whose delegates they had denounced in such bitter terms? Can't they be just as good Democrats now as they ever could?

It's Strange.

It's strange how the Gold Standard people can claim:

That if we have free silver dollars will be worth only 53 cents, and.

That the mine owners will all take their silver to the mints and have it coined into dollars, doubling their value.

Their must be something wrong with such arguments. How can both be true?

It's strange how people expect to do the business of this great country on a gold basis of $8 41 per capita. less than the wages of the average working man per week.

Another Ticket.

Already word has been passed out among the people, by Republican dailies that possibly another Democratic State ticket will be placed in the field to catch the votes of a few unwary Democrats who may not like to vote for a Republican for Govnor.

This game has been played on the people of Minnesota once. Geo. L. Becker was nominated and heartily suported by democrats, while the "bosses" of the party were said to have voted and procured all the votes of democrats they could handle to go for Knute Nelson electing him. The whole people will not be fooled all the time.

And we think none of them can be caught naping, that bad, this compaign. The lines have been drawn it is "Bosses" and "Bossism" against the people of the State of Minnesota. It is ring rule against the honest convictions of the people. It is Dave Clough and his backers against John Lind and the common people of the state. Party is not in question it is the truly patriotic of all parties clamoring and voting for good government against the rings, trusts and monoplies of all parties, or rather of men who usually care nothing for principles but all for pelf.

The representatives of those Democrats apposed to the election of Bryan have been publicly declared to favor, under the circumstances, the election of John Lind, who then unless it be sympathizers with the Merriam-Nelson-Clough combine can be found to put up a third ticket?

It is time that all rings, and bosses of all parties in Minnesota be relegated to the rear, and new men with princeples on which governments should be run, at heart, should be entrusted with the affairs of state.

Senator Gordon on the Situation.

Senator John B. Gordon, is reported as follows:

Regarding the pending financial issue, Senator Gordon said that he favored the gold standard, "though, after all," he concluded, "the free silver may not prove as disastrous as we gold dugs now believe it will be. I believe in having these great questions settled once and forever, just as the great slavery question was, and we might as well get the silver matter out of the way. If it be tried and does not plunge the country into a panic the gold standard men will see that they were not altogether right in their reasoning and if it be tried and proves a failure the silver men will see the error of their ways.

"I know Bryan intimately, and I consider him a well balanced, honest, upright man. In spite of his radical currency views I do not believe, if elected, he would allow the ultra silverites in his party to control his actions. He is a man who would feel profoundly impressed by the sense of his responsibility, and he would, I think, be much more conservative than he is widely considered,"

Gen. Gorden expressed surprise at the acquisition to the ranks of Bryan's followers since the Chicago convention, whether they result from conversions to the silver idea or not, and he said that he believed that "the boy orator of the Platte" will be elected."

"Two months ago no man of any standing would have risked his reputation as a prophet by hinting the slightest doubt of Republican success," said Speaker Reed in his opening speech last Wednesday. It may be remembered that two months ago the Republican party had not held its convention and nominated an Ohio instead of a Maine man.—World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 31, 1896.

The gold democrats are slowly but surel lining up for Bryan and Sewall. Already one member of the Cabinet (Secretary Hoke Smith) has declared for them, and three other members, whose names I am not at liberty to mention at this time, have intimated their intention to do the same. Secretary Smith has not only declared his intention to support the ticket, but he has said that if he can possibly arrange his time so as to be there he will accept the invitation which has been extended him to preside over a big Bryan and Sewall ratification meeting to be held at Augusta, Ga., August 12. Senators Gordon, of Ga., and Lindsey, of Ky., who are both gold men, were in Washington this week and they announced their intention not only to vote for Bryan and Sewall but to work for their election. Senator Gordon has already notified chairman Jones, of the National Committee, that he is ready to take the stump for the ticket at the pleasure of the committee. These things indicate a getting together of democrats that means victory.

The District of Columbia democrats are preparing to take an active part in the campaign; they can't vote, but they can help to convince those who do vote to vote the right way. A Bryan and Sewall club this week adopted resolutions repudiating the democracy of those Federal officials who are drawing salaries by the grace of the democratic party and who have publicly opposed the regular democratic ticket. It is expected that the big democratic ratification meeting which will be addressed by Mr. Bryan will be held in one of the large tents used by the late Christian Endeavor convention. The local democrats hope to make this meeting the biggest thing of the kind ever held in Washington.

If Mr. John W. Hayes, General Secretary of the Knights of Labor, knows what he is talking about, and he probably does, that organization is practically unanimous for Bryan and free silver. Speaking about this Mr. Hayes said: "The workingmen as a class are in favor of free coinage, and they will vote for it and elect Bryan. Labor organizations like the Knights of Labor will not, as organizations, participate in the campaign, but the members in their individual capacity will. They want free coinage, and in my opinion at least 98 per cent of the Knights of Labor will vote for it."

Senator Falkner, chairman of the Democratic Congressional committee, returned this week from a visit to West Virginia. In reply to a question as to the outlook in that state, he said: "Everything is all right. The silver sentiment at present sweeping over my state reminds me of a prairie fire; it is simply restless. Furthermore, it seems to be going straight on to the East; but in spite of its spread we must remember that when we are authorizing the great money power and corporate interests of the country we have a fight on our hands that calls for united efforts and determined work to the close of the campaign."

Representative Russel, of Ga., who has just returned from a trip to Boston, says: "I found the citizens of the 'Hub' talking more about the money question than the people of Washington are, if such a thing is possible. To my utter surprise I found that a goodly per cent of them were in favor of free silver. Men who were in a position to know assured me that the cause was making rapid strides in every New England state, and that if the gain maintained its present ratio Bryan would surely carry one or two of them. There wasn't a word to be heard about McKinley or the tariff; all the enthusiasm was on the side of Bryan and silver. Though personally an advocate of sound money, I am convinced that the people of this country have made up their minds to try the other system, and that Bryan is going to be elected President by a tidal wave majority."

There is considerable growling among the more prominent republicans at Mark Hanna's dictatory manner of running things, and among themselves they are recalling the last campaign in which a wealthy business man undertook the duties of chairman of the republican National Committee, to show the politicians how a campaign ought to be run and ended by seeing Blaine, the most popular republican ever nominated for President, defeated. The other millionare chairman was B. F. Jones, of Pittsburg. Hanna seems to remind some of the republicans of Jones, and the democrats are confident that his management of the campaign will have the same result—the defeat of the republicans.

Democratic State Convention

The Demoratic State Convention met at the Exposition building in Minneapolis, on Tuesday, Aug. 4, to nominate a State ticket and 9 presidential electors. Chairman McDermott called the meeting to order, made a neat little speech and told the convention they were at liberty to nominate their own temporary chairman. E. L. Champlin ex-speaker of the Hous of Represenatiye was chosen. He made a sound, plain speech, and several times received the applause of the delegates. Messrs Quist, of Hennepin and Stone of Pine counties were selected as temporary Secretaries. J. J. Ryder as reading clerk.

The usual committees were chosen and an adjournment for dinner had. at the afternoon session the temporary was made the permanent organization.

The committee on resolutions reported resolotions approving the Chicago platform and candidates; denouncing the republican party on the fiancial issue; and inviting all free silver and gold citizens to join with us; demanding that the policy that has so long controlled the state affairs be changed; denounce State republican party for subservience to corporations, rings, and trusts; the ballot is the weapon of the American freeman and the sacredness of the ballot can only be preserved by its secrecy. We unqualifiedly condemn all efforts of corporate or private employers to inquire into and investigate and uncover the true sentiment of voting employees; demand that iron mines and unused railroad lands be taxed as other property is taxed; oppose struck jury law, and demand its repeal.

Additional plank that we favor a direct vote of the people for President, vice President and United States Senator. Also favor legeslation in the interest of good roads,

When the committee on Credentials read their report as to who should be seated the names of Lawer, McCafferty and Cutcheon of Ramsey County were objected to as being among those seeking to prevent the election of W. J. Bryan and Arthur Sewall. A motion was made to declare them not members of the convention. Several warm speeches were made in favor of and against such action. Mr. Cutcheon was invined to explain the situation and talked along quite smoothly until he said that he thought that a free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 would ruin the country when he was promptly informed by a chorus of voices that "We are not here to listen to a gold speech."

Voting was proceeded with by roll call on the question of expelling the trio mentioned. When Ramsey was called John Ives arose to explain his vote. He did not propose to vote men out until they were heard. Voices were heard "We have heard these men for the last month." That seemed to be the sentiment of the meeting. The vote resulted in 546 votes for and 206 opposed to unseating the three dolegates. Messrs Lawler, McCafferty and Cutcheon followed by a few others left the hall.

A motion was read that the place o our national committeeman be declared vacant also that T. D. O'Brien be declared the choice of the convention to fill the place. Carried.

The ticket as given in another column was chosen without much trouble, leaving the balance of the places to be filled by the People's Party Convention.

Give Your Own Answer.

PIONEER PRESS.—To the Editor: Some days ago in conversation with an employe of a Midway manufacturing company he said in substance: They are building a drainage canal near Chicago and the canal company borrowed $20,000,000 at 4 per cent in England. What did they borrow it for? I replied to buy machinery, tools, and supplies and pay the men who are doing the work. To this he said: All the machinery used (with but few trifling exceptions), all the food the men consume, the clothing they wear, and the houses that shelter them were made from American products, by American labor, England furnishing no labor, no machinery, and no supplies of any kind. Why, then, pay to a foreign country $800,000 per year and $20,000,000, when we furnish everything and do all the work? This little thing has set me to thinking, and I confess I am not able to get the tangle out of it. Can you help an honest inquirer?

Free Silver and Insurance.

BOSTON, July 22.—President J. L. Greene, of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, has prepared a letter for policy holders, in which he says:

"Our contracts with you agree to pay to your families so many dollars. There has never been doubt what was intended thereby, but should we come upon a silver basis, your policies would for the present be paid in dollars worth to your families only 50 cents, and the great bulk of this would probably be paid in dollars worth not more than from 25 to 35 cents."—World.

The Hazards of Infant Life.

THE constant care which the over-fond mother gives her infant, ever handling and holding it, up in her arms as soon as it wakens, constantly talking and and singing to it, is calculated to excite the child and keep it in a continual state of nervous strain. The blessed quiet which brain-weary, nerve-exhausted grown people long for is baby's right, and the wise mother will never allow anything to rob her child of this health-giving privilege. Don't fuss nor play roughly with a baby. Babies should be handled and moved about as little as possible. The common practice of keeping them constantly in motion when awake is fruitful of trouble in many ways, and espicially is the evening romp, when baby is high glee is tossed to the ceiling by its fond papa, an iniquitous practice. It is small wonder if the little mite demand another romp at the inconvenient hour of midnight, and its parents have only their own indiscretion to blame for this inconvenient wakefulness.—From "Summer Care of Babies," in Demorest's Magazine for August.

Cycling is said to be a remedy for corns. The father of a family of girls can keep an edge on his razor by investing in wheels.

The prospects are good for a larger crop of apples in the United States this year than last, which reached the enormous total of 66,000,000 barrels.

A medical authority reminds people that ice water should be sipped; never taken in any other way. This is one of the little health adages which must be repeated daily.

A Maryland man has lived to be 85 years of age on frogs and oysters. A lot of other people would like to do that, but they can't find money enough to pay for the frogs and oysters.

The mikado of Japan is the 122d in his line. His family has been the ruler of Japan since the time 600 years before Christ. And still in this country there are men who are said to be hunting for grandfathers.

A St. Louis man named Anderson is trying to make a mile a minute on his bicycle and he is talking about running a race with an engine. But the bicycle is not to blame, there were fools in the world before it was invented.

An eastern manufacturer has equipped a bicycle with sails to be operated like those of a ship. This is evidently done in the interest of the doctors. What a beautiful header one could take from a sail bicycle.

In the chaos of miscellaneous ethics which has been dumped upon a weary world it is refreshing to read that Queen Emma caused the discontinuance of cannibalism in New Britain because it was "injurious to the public health."

Plans are well under way for the expending of $9,000,000 on the canals of New York state, for which the people voted at the last election by a majority of 243,505, and it is expected that the work will be done in the next two or three years.

A prehistoric city, which apparently had a population of over 200,000, was discovered recently in Mexico by J. R. Reiley, an American archaeologist. This ancient city is situated in a narrow valley between two high ranges of mountains. Nearly all the buildings are of brown stone, and are in a state of almost perfect preservation.

It appears that the west and northwest have finally emerged from the long period of semidrought that left most of the small streams and lakes wholly or partially dry. Close observers declare that the west and northwest will now enjoy a ten-year period of plenteous rains that will restore inland lakes and streams to their former levels and insure good crops for more than a decade to come.

Some careful experiments which have been made in England prove that the life of a locomotive is about 500,000 "train miles." In other words, that a locomotive of the latest approved pattern will run 500,000 miles before wearing out so as to be useless. In making this run of a half million miles the fire box will have to be renewed three times, the wheel tires five or six times, and the crank axels from three to five times.

The last days of July were filled with direful events, various sections of the country being visited with forms of elemental fury quite uncommon in midsummer. The loss of many lives by floods in Kentucky and the northwest, the deadly sweep of a torrent through a Colorado canyon, the wastage of half a hundred lives in a hurricane at Pittsburgh, these are among the harrowing incidents that have swelled the already startling list of victims of the year's fatalities.

Twenty years ago there were only between 15,000 and 20,000 Jews in Jerusalem. In those days no houses were to be found outside the walls, the gates of which were closed at night. Since then many changes have taken place, and the Hebrew population—mainly on account of the increase of the Jewish immigration from Russia—now stands at nearly 70,000.. Whole streets of houses have been built outside the walls, on the site of the ancient suburban districts, which for hundreds of years have remained deserted. It is not, however, only in Jerusalem itself that the Jews abound, but throughout Palestine.

The popularity of hazing at West Point has received a serious setback. The young man who obtained so much entertainment out of the torture of a fellow cadet will have a year of confinement within the limits of the barracks in which to think the matter over. This severe sentence will undoubtedly deter other cadets from indulging in similar cruelty, and should be an object lesson to parents of young men who practice hazing in colleges where the only punishment is expulsion. If a few fathers would administer a little retributive justice a college education would be robbed of much of its present terrors.

Did the significance of the different modes of salutation of the different nations ever strike you? The German says: "Wie geht's Ihnen?" How goes it with you? It goes slowly sometimes, my Teutonic friend. Says Johnny Crapaud: "Comment vous portez vous?" How do you carry yourself, how do you appear? The Italians inquire: "Come state?" How do you stand? While the Russians ask: "Kak pagiviyetyeh?" How do you live? Being among the high-livers of the world. But Anglo-Saxons say: "How do you do?" A not insignificant question; for while others and going and living, we are doing.

LATER NEWS.

Lind for Governor.

Minneapolis, Aug. 5.—The democratic state convention met at the Exposition hall and the following ticket was nominated: Governor, John Lind, Brown county; lieutenant governor, left open; secretary of state, J. J. Heinrich, Hennepin county; state treasurer, Alex McKinnon, Polk county; attorney general, left open. Presidential electors—John Day Smith, Hennepin; Harlam H. Bonniwell, McLeod; Charles d'Autremont, St. Louis; Wilson Borst, Cottonwood; John H. Ives, Ramsey. Four electors to be named by the populists.

At 11:15 Thomas J. McDermott of St. Paul, chairman of the state committee, rapped the convention to order. He spoke briefly and eloquently, saying that it gave him more pleasure than he could express to call to order the freest convention that ever assembled in the state of Minnesota.

On motion of T. D. O'Brien, of St. Paul, E. T. Champlin, of Blue Earth county, was elected chairman. C. A. Quist, of Hennepin, and John A. Stone, of Pine, were chosen secretaries of the convention. After the appointment of the usual committees, a recess was taken until 2:30 p. m.

During the recess the report had gone abroad that the committee on credentials had determined to report in favor of denying seats to all delegates or participants in D. W. Lawler's conference. The question of excluding the gold democrats came up as soon as the committee on credentials had reported. Motions were made fast and furious until the chair declared everything out of order except to vote on Mr. Bowdish's amendment, which threw Messrs. Lawler, Cutcheon and McCafferty out of the convention bodily. There was more riot. The secretary called the roll of counties. The three objectionable Ramsey county men were excluded from acting as delegates in the convention by a vote of 546 yeas to 200 nays.

The committee on permanent organization reported that the temporary officers be made permanent. Adopted.

The committee on resolutions through its chairman, A. T. Ankeny, reported a platform covering the indorsement of Bryan and Sewall, and declaring straight for the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1.

The platform was amended in minor particulars and adopted unanimously.

Daniel W. Lawler was discharged from the membership of the national committee and T. D. O'Brien appointed.

BIG DEAL COLLAPSES.

Speculators in Diamond Match Stocks Fail.

Moore Brothers, Operators Noted for Their Boldness, Forced to the Wall—New York Biscuit Stocks Involved—Story of the Failure.

Chicago, Aug. 4.—Moore Bros., promoters of the Diamond Match company and the New York Biscuit company, announced Monday night that they had failed. A meeting of prominent financiers and Chicago bankers was held about midnight at the residence of one of them on the South side and it was agreed by them to close the Chicago stock exchange indefinitely.

Means for Restoring Confidence.

There were present at the meeting the members of the stock exchange governing committee and a number of prominent capitalists. This meeting was assembled informally after the announcement which was made late in the afternoon by James H. Moore that margin calls no longer could be met. The announcement was made to a few of the most heavily interested, and it was thought best to call a meeting to discuss the situation. Those who assembled discussed the best means for restoring confidence after the shock which would be given to speculative circles by the announcement of the failure. It was the general opinion that it would be the wisest possible move to close the stock exchange for a period.

How the Failure Came About.

The deal of which the failure of the Moore Bros. is the culmination is by all odds the most important in the history of the Chicago stock exchange. It began early this year. The stock of the Diamond Match company has been selling at about 1.30 for quite a time. There had been no special activity in the market. Just prior to the Venezuelan incident the tip went out in inside circles that there were to be some important European developments in connection with Diamond Match affairs, and the buying of the stock by strong people commenced. The Venezuelan panic interfered with the speculation and the stock dropped during the general decline at that time to 1.15.

Contract with Foreign Governments.

From then the rise started which is the most remarkable in the history of the exchange. A strong group of speculators, headed by J. H. Moore and William H. Moore, began buying the stock. It moved up with scarcely a halt. In time the announcement was made that the Diamond Match company had closed a contract with the French government under which its patents and the machines controlled by the match company were to be sold to the French government for a royalty of $100,000 a year. Following the announcement of the closing of the French contract the stock advanced with great rapidity. In the early speculation the bulls had named 200 as an extreme figure, but as the prospect of further arrangements in Europe appeared, much higher prices were predicted.

Negotiations were opened for the formation of a new company in England which would unite with Bryant & May, the largest match producers in Great Britain, and would give to the English field the advantage of the labor-saving American machinery. A factory was equipped in Liverpool which was owned by the Diamond Match company and which served as an object lesson to European manufacturers, showing them the great advantage of the improved machinery over their methods of manufacture. Negotiations were opened also in Austria for the formation of a company which should combine all the manufacturing interests there. Other companies were to be organized in Belgium and Italy.

Calculation showin enormous profits to accrue made prices that had at first looked extravagant seem cheap. The shrewdest men in Chicago believed in the property and the stock sold up as high as 2.48. From that point there was a rapid decline, carrying it down to 2.00. The Moores went through the break without the slightest difficulty, and it was generally believed that they had been glad to see the decline that more stock might be accumulated.

A great part of the capital with which the deal had been carried on had been raised in New York and New England. Local banking institutions are only moderately interested in the affair. Difficulty was experienced, it is said, owing to the general loss of confidence, in renewing some of these eastern loans.

The Crash Comes.

Settlement day was successfully passed, and everyone believed that, in spite of the heavy turning charges, the bulls were still in control of the situation. The stock came out, however, in enormous quantities. The Moores were almost alone in supporting the market, but they did so with remarkable courage. Monday the stock was held with hardly a waver at 222, but there was an outpouring of long stock which led the keen observers of the market to fear that the loads might become too heavy, and the events later in the afternoon proved that those fears were correct.

The Deal in New York Biscuit.

The deal in Diamond Match was only part of this great speculative operation. Moore Bros. had organized the New York Biscuit company several years ago, after the first great success of the Diamond Match company. The panic of 1893 had hit the biscuit company severely, as it did all other industries, and the stock sold far below par. The success which was met with in a speculative manipulation of Diamond Match led to a desire to see what could be done with New York Biscuit, and that stock was taken several months ago and advanced from 70 to 108.

From that it dropped back to 92, and for weeks was held close about that figure in spite of the sharp declines in other securities. Enormous quantities of this stock were also poured on the market, but they were taken with the same steadiness which marked the buying of Match. The accumulations, however, represented in time a great sum, and the operations in that stock will add largely to the total of the amount involved.

It is not at the present time possible to make any estimate of how large the figure is or what its ramifications may be. The Moores have unquestionably purchased an enormous line of both New York Biscuit and Diamond Match stock. The high price at which Match has been selling makes the sum involved in handling it extremely large. The capital stock of the Diamond Match company is $11,000,000 and of the New York Biscuit $9,000,000.

TERRIBLE RAILWAY DISASTER.

Forty-Seven Killed and Forty-Four Injured in New Jersey.

Atlantic City, N. J., July 31.—A terrible railroad catastrophe took place on the meadows, about two miles out of this city, about 6:30 Thursday evening. A train left there, consisting of seven cars, over the West Jersey railroad, bearing a special excursion of red men and their friends of Bridgeton, N. J., and Salem, and had reached the crossing of the Reading railroad, when it was struck by the 5:40 down express from Philadelphia, demolishing two cars and telescoping the two following. The engine of the Reading train became a total wreck, killing the engineer and fatally injuring the fireman, and the car behind it also was thrown from the track and many of its occupants killed or injured.

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 1.—As a result of the terrible collision on the Meadows Thursday evening between the Reading railroad express from Philadelphia and the Brighton excursion train out of here, 47 people are dead and 44 are lying in the hospital here more or less seriously hurt. Of the injured in the hospital, several are expected to die. Besides those seriously enough hurt to be in the hospital, a score or more of people were bruised and shaken up and went to cottages. The fearful shock of the collision is illustrated in the fact that of the 47 dead, 42 were killed outright. Of the dead, 42 have been identified and the bodies of three women, one man and a boy are lying at the undertaking shops awaiting claimants.

The responsibility for the accident is hard to place at this time, but the burden of it seems to rest upon the dead engineer of the Reading train. Edward Farr, though an official investigation may clear his name. The list of dead, almost all of whom are from Bridgeton, follows:

Charles Mutta, John Greiner, Charles Eackler, Charles P. McGear, Richard Trenchard, Mrs. Richard Trenchard, S. P. Murphy, Millville; Joseph Peters, J. L. Johnson, Charles D. Burroughs, body supposed to be Charles Soy, H. F. Bell, W. C. Loper, Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Goldsmith, Samuel Thorn, baggagemaster; Franklin Dubois, Joshua Ernest, Mrs. Mary Wentzel, Mrs. Lydia Carl, Pearl Mutta, Mrs. Ellen May, Mrs. H. F. Bell, Mary Ann Frees, a child, Mrs. Mary Frees, Mrs. J. D. Bateman, Ed Farr, engineer Reading train; Charles Seibert, James M. Bateman, husband of Mrs. Bateman; A. Peters, a son of Joseph Peters; Reba M. Loper, Miss Tillie Leeds, Mrs. Hattie Loper, Nannie Chinney, Misal May, boy; William Spaulding, transfer agent Reading railroad, Philadelphia; Henry Hughes, William F. Rickett, E. E. Taylor, Joseph Cheney, Charles May, Mrs. Sallie Frees, three unknown women, one unknown man, one unknown boy.

Camden, N. J., Aug. 3.—Stationmaster John Bodine, of the West Jersey & beashore road, says that he learned that Engineer Farr, of the Reading train, passed three signals, all against him, before the train crashed into the West Jersey excursion train. The first signal was 2,000 feet away, and is known as the distance signal. Then he had to pass a home signal, and finally the block signal at the crossing. Engineer Griner, of the excursion train, told Bodine that he had stopped before reaching the crossing and blew his whistle to get the operator to give him the clear signal. He got a clear signal and started. He could not see the Reading train, but he saw a cloud of dust, indicating its approach. Farr had ample time to stop his train, but made no effort.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Total Amount Collected the Last Fiscal Year $146,830,615.

Washington, July 31.—The commissioner of internal revenue has just submitted to Secretary Carlisle a preliminary report of the operations of his bureau for the fiscal year ended June 30. It shows that the receipts from all sources of internal revenue for the year aggregated $146,830,615, an increase of $3,584,537 over the receipts of the preceding fiscal year. The expense approximated $4,044,351 and the percentage of cost of collection will be 2.70, a reduction of .18 as compared with the preceding fiscal year. The exact cost cannot be definitely stated until the accounts have been received. The following facts are taken from the report:

From spirits the receipts were $80,670,070, an increase of $807,443. From fermented liquors there was derived taxes aggregating 238,784,235, or $2,143,617 more than during the preceding year. Ale, beers and similar liquors brought in $33,139,141, an increase of $2,064,826.

There was a falling off of $189,778 in the taxes realized from oleomargarine, the revenue from which amounted to $1,219,432.

Tobacco brought in a revenue of $30,711,629, or $1,006,721 more than was derived from this source in the preceding year. There was a general increase in all the items under this head, the largest being in cigarettes under three pounds per 1,000, where the receipts were $2,021,196, or $357,493 more than in the preceding year. Chewing and smoking tobacco brought in $15,220,028, $323,849 more than in the preceding year. Cigars and cheroots over three pounds per 1,000 realized $12,713,267, an increase of $221,300, and snuff afforded a revenue of $752,915, an increase of $103,027.

Illinois returned more internal revenue taxes than any other state, the total collections being $31,973,133. New York came next in order with $21,620,470, Kentucky stood third with $14,903,110. Ohio and Pennsylvania were close together with $11,947,724 and $11,145,548 respectively. Indiana had $7,693,154; Missouri, $6,959,911; Maryland, $5,968,895, and Wisconsin, $5,012,077. None of the remaining states reached the $5,000,000 mark in the returns.

TO SUCCEED SATOLLI.

Pope Appoints Rev. Martinelli as American Abligate.

London, July 31.—A Rome dispatch says that although the report that Mgr. Diomede Falconio would succeed Mgr. Satolli as papal delegate to the United States had been hitherto entirely credited at the vatican, the pope has appointed as Mgr. Satolli's successor Rev. Sebastian Martinelli, prior-general of the Augustin's Chausses and a brother of the dead Cardinal Martinelli. The fact that the nomination had been made has been kept secret, even from the most intimate associates of his holiness, and upon its becoming known occasioned a general feeling of surprise. The pope's choice is regarded as an excellent one. Rev. Sebastien Martinelli is about 50 years of age. He is a learned theologian and is thoroughly versed in the foreign policy of the vatican.

High Water in Indiana.

Tipton Ind., July 31.—The damage in this section by water is appalling. Hundreds of poor families living in the flooded district will lose nearly all their furniture and in some instances clothing, bedding, etc., have been floated away. The waters are receding slowly, but it will be several days before those who lived near the river can enter their houses. The cemeteries are inundated and several persons who have died since the storm cannot be buried. The farmers throughout the country are heavy losers, as much oats, corn and potatoes are ruined. A great deal of live stock has also been drowned.

AT A STANDSTILL.

Business in a Torpid State, Although Conditions Have Improved.

New York, Aug. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade say:

"Business conditions have clearly improved, though business has not. It is the torpid season, and better prospects have little effect as yet. Gold exports have been stopped and foreign advices are more promising as respects an early and large demand for American products. The operations of foreigners in the stock market have reflected little beyond the troubles of speculators at the London settlements, and varying degrees of ignorance about American affairs. The prospect for large crops of cotton and corn is still excellent and neither movements of wheat nor markets give countenance to low estimates.

"Wheat is going out with more freedom than is usual for the season. Lower rail rates helped corn to make a new low record at 30.12 cents, and prospects are generally favorable. Cotton advanced one-quarter on reports of injury, but there are really few who expect less than a large yield. Several weeks of extremely slack demand for cotton goods have brought a further reduction in print cloths to 2.44 cents instead of the advance expected in consequence of the stoppage of 4,000,000 spindles, but prints are selling more freely, while brown and bleached goods are dull except for export kinds.

"The boot and shoe industry has secured slight further advances from the lowest point, in brogans and calf boots and shoes, but new orders are scanty, the more because the permanence of advance is questioned. Leather is stubbornly held without change in prices, and some grades are really scarce.

"The iron industry is helped but little by the settlement which gives puddlers of the Ohio region 50 cents advance in wages, because the demand is so light that few mills can run and the association's price is 1.2 cent, while steel bars are not being sold at less than 1.05 cent. A ray of encouragement comes to rail mills, two considerable sales having been made, 20,000 tons to a New England road, and 10,000 by the new Premier Steel company of Indianapolis, but otherwise sales are small.

"It is not surprising that failures have been considerable in magnitude and in 22 days of July defaulted liabilities were $12,069,481, against $5,392,727 in 25 days last year. Failures for the week have been 281 in the United States, against 261 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 28 last year."

Bradstreet's says:

"Political uncertainty continues an unfavorable factor in trade and industrial and mercantile lines are unusually dull. Mercantile credits are closely scanned and in many instances shortened. Merchants in Northern Louisiana and Southern Arkansas have canceled orders for fall delivery in some cases, owing to the effect on trade of the drought there. The industrial situation is less favorable. Among manufacturers of iron and steel it is regarded as serious in some lines, owing to the surplus and falling off in demand."

THOUSANDS DEAD.

Awful Effect of a Tidal Wave on the Chinese Coast.

Shanghai, Aug. 3.—The recent disastrous tidal wave along the coast of northern Japan has been paralleled by a similar phenomenon on the coast of Haichu, northeast of the province of Kiangsu, in which Shanghai is situated. The news of the disaster did not reach here before, owing to the lack of facilities for communication with the part of the country devastated.

On July 26 there suddenly appeared in the Yellow sea a huge bank of water that was rushing shoreward with terrific velocity. The water off the coast is shallow, and when the wave was some distance away it began to comb, and the roar could be heard for a distance. From the stories of eyewitnesses and the reports of people in the country back from the coast, the wave was five miles wide. Thousands of tons of water were thrown for miles inland, and everything in its path was swept away. Many villages were entirely destroyed, and it is estimated that fully 4,000 people perished. All the cattle were drowned and the rice fields were obliterated. It is expected that the survivors will meet with a worse fate than by drowning, for with the destruction of the rice field famine will stare them in the face in the autumn.

In many cases whole families were lost. There is already much suffering among the survivors, who, miserably poor before the disaster, are now absolutely homeless and foodless.

FATAL QUARREL IN OHIO.

Amos Decker Deliberately Murders George Miles at Findlay.

Findlay, O., Aug. 4.—George Miles, aged 19, was shot and killed by Amos Decker, aged 18, in this city Monday evening, and as a result a large posse of officers and excited citizens are pursuing the murderer, who escaped to the country on a horse. The crime was so deliberate that Decker will hardly escape the full penalty if captured by the pursuing officers. He stands no chance of getting away, though he may elude the officers for some time. Decker and Miles quarreled over a calf, and as they were rivals for the hand of a young lady the feeling between them was very bitter. They finally came to blows, and Decker, after going home and securing a revolver, returned and shot Miles in the side, inflicting a wound from which he died in a few hours.

A VANDERBILT WEDDING.

Cornelius (Jr.) Marries Grace Wilson—Disinheritance Threatened.

New York, Aug. 4.—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., and Miss Grace Wilson were married at noon Monday at the Wilson residence by Rev. William H. Pott, assistant rector of St. Thomas' church. The wedding was private.

Mr. Vanderbilt, Sr., warned the young man that if he contracted the marriage he would have to depend upon his own resources for a livelihood and he need expect no share of the Vanderbilt fortune. Thus the son, by disobeying his father's wishes, threw away his prospects of inheriting a large lump of the $100,000,000 which Mr. Vanderbilt, Sr., is estimated to be worth.

The Treasury Statement.

Washington, Aug. 1. — The official treasury statement issued Saturday shows that the receipts of the government for July were $29,069,697 and the expenditures were $42,088,468, a deficit for the month of $13,018,871. The receipts for July were almost exactly what they were in July, 1895, while the expenditures were $3,500,000 greater. The customs receipts for July were $12,157,330, or $2,000,000 less than for July, 1895; while the receipts from internal revenues were $14,302,532, or nearly $2,000,000 greater than those for July, 1895.

The Alabama Election.

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 4.—Elections in the state of Alabama are conducted on the Australian plan, and no definite figures as to the result of Monday's voting can be given until the official count is completed. Returns received by the State Herald up to two o'clock Tuesday morning indicate the election of Capt. Johnston, free-silver candidate for governor, by a majority of from 40,000 to 45,000. The legislature is largely democratic. A careful review of the returns now in indicates that Johnston has carried 48 counties, Goodwyn, populist, 14, and four in doubt.

HOW DUELS ARE STARTED.

"Moral Box on the Ear" Given in a Letter Is an Insult.

Arthur Thiele, a young student at the high school of technology in Charlottenburg, near Berlin, has been sent to a fortress for nine months because he provoked and fought with Dr. Brockelmann, says the New York Sun.

Brockelmann was Thiele's second in a sword duel, and in his comments on the meeting criticised severely one of Thiele's strokes. Thiele regarded the criticism as an insult. He challenged the doctor, but a court of honor decided the doctor was under no obligation to accept the challenge. This decision angered Thiele. He was determined to have a duel at any price. So he sat down and wrote what, to his German mind, was the most insulting letter he could think out. This letter reached its climax in the sentence:

"You may regard yourself as morally boxed on the ear by the undersigned."

To Brockelmann's German mind, too, this seemed an insult that only blood could wipe out. Thus it came that early one morning Thiele and Brockelmann found themselves ten paces apart in the Grunewald and shot at each other until Thiele fell with a dangerous wound in the abdomen. Thiele lingered for days between life and death, but after once taking a turn for the better, recovered rapidly. With nine months' rest in a Prussian fortress he will be fully restored to health.

CAPTURING ELEPHANTS.

Sport That the Maharajah Occasionally Indulges In.

The enterprise is organized for the amusement of the maharajah, and takes place only once in about four years, else the forest would be denuded of big game. A small army, consisting of about 5,000 men and perhaps three elephants and a few horses, take part in the hunt, says Chambers' Journal, and they carry tents and provisions, just as if a campaign against a powerful enemy were in progress. When the pad marks of the elephant are found he is steadily tracked down, and as soon as he is found a trained fighter of his own species is urged against him.

As a rule, he steadily retreats upon sight of his pursuers, and their object is to press him so as to tire him out. He then stands at bay, and the tug of war commences. The opposing animals butt at one another with their heads down, and should one show his flanks, he is quickly brought to earth. When finally conquered, the wild elephant is pressed by his pursuers toward water, of which he is so much in need after his exertions that his hind legs can be shackled as he drinks. He is then kept attached by ropes to other elephants until he gradually becomes accustomed to bondage, and in a few months he is completely under control. The sport is a bloodless one, and the elephants when captured are most kindly treated.

AN ILLUSION.

Do you know that the sight of your face,
Though I see you each of the seven,
Can transfigure the commonest place
Into something that seems to be Heaven?

Do you know that the sound of your voice,
When you utter a brief salutation,
Bids the stars of the morning rejoice
As they did at the dawn of creation?

Do you know that the clasp of your hand,
In a purely conventional greeting,
Makes this earth a mysterious land
Where the fairies are holding a meeting?

Do you know that the ways you pass by,
When the stream of the traffic is flowing,
Are like the ladders which lead to the sky,
Whereon angels are coming and going?

Do you know that your yea or your nay
Lays its clasp on my soul like a fetter?
Whilst regarding myself I can say
That I know that I ought to know better.

TESTING OF ANTHONY.

BY LEWIS W. SMITH.

HERE were three weeks yet before commencement and in that time much could be done by hard practice; but what would that avail when Leon March would be sure to practice harder? Leon might not get the prize; there were three other competitors besides Anthony himself; but the chances were all in Leon's favor. Anthony jumped up and strode about his room angrily, as he thought of the foolish persistence with which Leon kept to himself and to his violin, foregoing the pleasures of the other boys and living only in his music. Why could he not be interested in the other things that appeal to the right-minded boy in general? How could one have any chance at all with a boy who didn't care for football or baseball or any other outdoor sport? It was so unnatural in a lad in his 17th year that his fellow students at the academy had given up trying to understand him, and had for him only that feeling of irritation that all of us have when we come into close contact with a thing altogether anomalous and beyond our fathoming. When he first saw him at prayers Anthony had conceived a liking for him; but as all his attempts at friendliness with him were one by one met coldly or repulsed, that early feeling had grown into something that was not dislike, but had yet all its bitterness.

Anthony began again the oft-repeated process of looking over his music, not yet decided as to which among his solos he should play at the great concert. While again balancing in his mind the merits of two compositions between which his decision wavered, there was a knock at the door; and, in answer to his shouted invitation to come in, Roy Willett opened the door and poked his head in before entering.

"Perhaps I can stand it if you're only looking at the music and not playing," he said, as he pushed the door wider and came in. Anthony tossed the music over on the table with just a show of vexation in his manner. "I am tired enough of it to be glad you've come. What's the use in trying for that miserable prize when we all know that Leon will get it? I don't call it a fair show for the rest of us. We have something else to do, and can't be practicing all the time, as he is."

"You haven't heard about his violin, have you?"

"No; unless you mean that old story about his singing it to sleep."

Roy laughed, not at the story, but at the startled questioning on Anthony's face.

"I am afraid that he will cry it to sleep to-night, and himself, too. This afternoon he broke a hole in the back of it, and you can hardly call it a violin any longer. He wants to give up entering the contest, but Mandel won't hear of it. The rest of us have good violins, and it will be our fault if some one of us does not get the prize."

"After all, that's hardly fair," said Anthony, a sudden sympathy for his rival springing to life in his heart.

"It simply gives us an even chance with him," said Roy; "the disadvantages have all been ours so far, but now he's getting his share. That's all there is to it."

"And what have been our disadvantages?" said Anthony, with a guilty consciousness of having had the same feeling himself. Roy settled himself back lazily in his chair before answering.

"AFTER ALL, THAT'S HARDLY FAIR."

"Oh, we haven't been given the natural abilities that we ought to have, and, besides that, we weren't born to spend all our time bending over a violin, as he does."

"No," said Anthony; "I am sure we were not. Even Mandel himself would agree to so much."

"It strikes me that if one does not inherit a capacity for work he ought certainly to be given its equivalent in some sort of good luck; and lo and behold! the gods are as wise in the matter as I am. Here comes the good fortune that is our portion."

"But even with that lucky chance to help you, you will still have to work hard. If you do not, I am sure to beat you."

"You forget that you can't play any," said Roy, lightly; and the boys laughed before drawing out the chessboard, to forget their musical incapacities in exercising their brains over the intricate maneuvers of knights and queens and bishops.

That night Anthony could not escape the remembrance that he had another violin which he was not using, stored away in the little closet adjoining his sleeping-room. There was no reason at all why he should not let Leon have it until after the concert, save that by so doing he would be increasing his rival's chance for the prize. Leon could not afford to get a new violin, he knew that well enough; and of what use would the old one be with a hole punched in its back? Of course Leon deserved the prize, just as Roy of right had the honor of being captain of the ball club. Still it was none of his affair if he broke his violin. It was not a thing for which he should make reparation; and why should he trouble himself about one who had always repulsed his kindnesses, or at least had never invited them? He would be quite sure of the prize himself if—but Anthony could never bring himself to think of his being a party to Leon's failure. The old violin in his closet seemed to send out a lament because the music in its heart had been so long unvoiced. He could fancy that the spirits of those who in long-gone days had played upon it were waiting to whisper in its moving tones the joys and sorrows of a vanished time. And then—but Anthony would not think about it any more. He turned his thoughts resolutely to the next day's Virgil reading, a topic simulating his fancy so lightly that he soon forgot it all in sleep.

It was three days later when Anthony went into Prof. Mandel's room before the latter had finished the lesson he was giving Leon. Both teacher and pupil were aggravated by the dull tones of the cracked violin; and at last Mandel handed Leon his own instrument, upon which no pupil had ever before been permitted to play. Anthony sat down and listened for the remainder of the lesson hour. At first his heart sank within him; he could not so much as dream of being able to play like that. Then gradually the music came over him with all its power. He wondered how so slight a form, so thin and etherealized a face, should have for its soul so much strength and mastery. Directly he forgot to think about this, and by the time Leon had finished he knew what he should do. The shy boy hardly understood him when he told him that he had an old violin of good quality, to the use of which he was welcome for the rest of the term; but Anthony himself played better that afternoon than he had for weeks.

Anthony did not enter the contest for the prize. His father would be disappointed, he knew; but he had not the heart to bring his fumbling with the bow into comparison with Leon's mastery of his instrument. Roy laughed at him, and even upbraided him a little for lending his violin; but Roy's laughter and upbraiding were alike harmless.

But after the concert, when the prize had been awarded, Leon's mother came to him without an introduction.

"I do not know how to thank you," she said, and her voice was not so steady as it might have been, "Leon has written me about you. Your giving him the violin was more to him than the prize."

Afterward, when they had gone to his room together, Anthony told his father why he had not played and with whose instrument it was that Leon had won. His father seemed to be thinking of other things, only nodding his head slowly to show that he was listening. Then at the conclusion he spoke as from a distance, his eyes looking into a time of which Anthony knew not.

"Your uncle used to play that same fantasia on the old violin years ago, when we were boys together. I can see him dropping his head over the strings now. He used to linger over that Adagio until it seemed the melting tones were angel voices calling; and even the Andante's pain of human longing barely seemed to bring him back to earth. It is no wonder that your friend played well to-night."

Anthony was not thinking now of the possibility of having to meet his father's displeasure.—N. Y. Independent.

MEANING OF FLOWERS.

A Language That May Be Learned to Some Purpose.

Mint is symbolic of virtue.

The peach blossom indicates submission.

The bell flower is symbolic of gratitude.

The horse chestnut is indicative of luxury.

The American cowslip indicates devotion.

The honeysuckle symbolizes a bond of love.

The candytuft is an emblem of indifference.

The box is regarded as symbolic of constancy.

The calla lily is emblematic of feminine beauty.

The primrose is in England an emblem of inconstancy.

The arbor vitae is indicative of unchanging friendship.

The china aster is set down as indicative of remembrance.

The oat plant is in Italy regarded as emblematic of music.

The red carnation is regarded in Spain as an emblem of despair.

The myrtle plant has always been regarded as an emblem of love.

The pink is considered in the south of France symbolic of pure affection.

The lotus in India is emblematic of life; in ancient Egypt it was a death flower.

The white daisy is emblematic of innocence.

The purple columbine, in both England and Scotland, is symbolic of determination.

In the south of France the handling of a sweet pea by a young woman to a young man is a polite way of stating that she is tired of his company.—Detroit Free Press.

MUST NOT HELP CUBANS.

President Issues Another Proclamation Regarding Neutrality Laws.

Washington, July 31.—The following proclamation was issued from the state department Thursday afternoon:

"By the president of the United States of America—a Proclamation: Whereas, by a proclamation dated the 12th day of June A. D. 1895, attention was called to the serious civil disturbances, accompanied by armed resistance to the established government of Spain then prevailing in the island of Cuba, and citizens of the United States and all other persons were admonished to abstain from taking part in such disturbances in contravention of the neutrality laws of the United States, and,

"Whereas, said civil disturbances and armed resistance to the authority of Spain, a power with which the United States are on terms of peace and amity, continue to prevail in said island of Cuba, and,

"Whereas, Since the date of aforesaid proclamation said neutrality laws of the United States have been the subject of authoritative exposition by the judicial tribunal of last resort, and it has thus been declared that any combination of persons organized in the United States for the purpose of proceeding to and making war upon a foreign country with which the United States are at peace and provided with arms to be used for such purpose, constitutes a 'military expedition or enterprise' within the meaning of said neutrality laws, and that the providing for such 'military expedition or enterprise,' which is expressly prohibited by said laws, includes furnishing or aiding in transportation for such 'military expedition or enterprise,' and

"Whereas, by express enactment, if two or more persons conspire to commit an offense against the United States, any act of one conspirator to effect the object of such conspiracy renders all the conspirators liable to fine and imprisonment; and,

"Whereas, there is reason to believe that citizens of the United States and others within their jurisdiction fail to apprehend the meaning and operation of the neutrality laws of the United States as authoritatively interpreted as aforesaid, and may be misled into participation into transactions which are violations of said laws and will render them liable to the severe penalties provided for such violations.

"Now, therefore, that the laws above referred to as judicially construed may be duly executed, and that the international obligations of the United States may be fully satisfied, and that the citizens and all others within their jurisdiction, being reasonably apprised of their legal duty in the premises, may abstain from dicobedience to the laws of the United States, and thereby escape the forfeitures and penalties legally consequent thereon:

"I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby solemnly warn all citizens of the United States and all others within their jurisdiction against violations of the said laws interpreted as hereinbefore explained, and give notice that all such violations will be vigorously prosecuted. And I do hereby invoke the cooperation of all good citizens to the enforcement of said laws and in the detection and apprehension of any offenders against the same, and I do hereby enjoin upon all the executive officers of the United States the utmost diligence in preventing, prosecuting and punishing any infractions thereof."

STRIKE RENEWED.

More Rioting at Brown Hoisting Works in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 1.—All union men have been ordered out again from the Brown hoisting works. They claim that the settlement of the strike was a trick. The trouble will spread to all iron workers in the city.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 3.—Two companies of militia and 90 police were ordered to the Brown works by Mayor McKisson shortly befor noon Saturday in anticipation of trouble at the works when the men came out at noon. Fifteen minutes after the first order was issued another call for police was made, and every available policeman in the city was sent out. At 12 o'clock a crowd of 25 nonunion men left the works without police escort. They were intercepted by three or four men who followed them at a distance. The locked-out men threw rocks at the men they were following. This so excited the latter that just before reaching Clifton street several of them pulled revolvers and commenced shooting. John Prinz, of 1186 St. Clair street, a union molder, employer at City foundry No. 2, while walking up the Cleveland & Pittsburgh railroad tracks, was shot three times. One bullet passed under his heart and through an arm, below the elbow. Before reaching the hospital he became unconscious and it is feared that he will die.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 4.—When the whistle blew at the brown hoist works Monday morning 130 men walked into the shops. They were protected by four companies of militia, comprising companies F, L, A and B of the Fifth regiment, O. N. G., under command of Lieut. Col. Whitney. All day men of the police force were also on guard. A large crowd of union men gathered about the works when the nonunion men went to work, but no violence was offered.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 4.—Nearly 100 men, all of the employes of Van Wagoner & Williams hardware manufacturers, near the Brown hoisting works, inaugurated what promises to be a great sympathetic strike of all the union men in the city, by going out Monday morning. The men signified their intention of going to the city hall and demanding of Mayor McKisson that the non-union men be disarmed. "If the mayor refuses to do this we will arm ourselves and compel the non-unionists to give up their guns," said a leader.

ROWED ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

Small Boat from New York Sighted at the Scilly Islands.

London, Aug. 3.—A dispatch from the signal station on the Scilly islands states that the rowboat Fox passed there at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, after a passage of 55 days from New York.

The Fox started from New York for Havre on June 6. The boat is 18 feet 4 inches long and 5 feet wide, and carries provisions for 60 days. The distance from New York to Havre is 3,250 miles. The adventurous oarsmen who have almost sucessfully completed their task, are George Herbo and Frank Samuelson, of Bridgeport, N. J. They are the first men to cross the Atlantic in a rowboat.

Victoria May Abdicate.

London, Aug. 1. — The rumor that Queen Victoria intends to retire in favor of the prince of Wales was again current Friday, and it is added that court circles are greatly troubled regarding the condition of the queen's health. Such reports have frequently appeared in recent years, only to be semi-officially contradicted later. But it now seems that there may be some actual foundation for the statement made. It is added that her majesty had decided to spend her time in future at Balmoral or at Osborne, and that she will give the prince and princess of Wales the use of Buckingham palace and Windsor castle.

Death of Robert Garrett.

Baltimore, Md., July 30.—Robert Garrett, ex-president of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad company, and head of the widely known banking house of Robert Garrett & Sons, died Wednesday morning at Deer Park, Md.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

High School Boys.

The G. A. R. committee on arrangements has provided a guiding star for the 150'000 wayfarers who will end their journey at the thirtieth encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic.

This guilding star will be the High School cadets. This organization will in many respects be to the Grand Army encampment what the Columbia gards were to the world's fair.

During Monday and Tuesday of encampment week, when the crowd is pouring into the city, one of the cadets is to be posted at every corner in the business district of the city. This will make four cadets at each street intersection, so that inquirers may not be obliged to search long to find the young men with the white caps. Outside of the business center the cadets will be stationed only at the principal points and where the crowd is likely to assemble. A cadet will be known at once by his trim military cap of white duck trimmed with white silk cord and, bearing in gold letters the words "High Besides the cap an artistic badge of red, white and blue silk will be worn by the information corps.

No Great Danger.

Prof. Lugger, state entsmologist, writes as follows regarding the army worm: It is sometimes recommended to spray with Paris green all the plants in the way over which the army worm passes. It seems to me that is an excellent remedy in theory, but I have failed thus far to receive any good results from it.

Farmers need not fear a repitition of the army worm for some time to come, except the spring of '97 should again be exceptionally wet. The very great majority of these worms are doomed to die by their numerous enemies, nor is there any great danger that the army worm will ever eat flax, a fear expressed by some people in their letters. The food of the army worms is taken solely from the grass family.

It would be very important for all papers in the country to copy this article, as by so doing some damage and much worry will be saved to the hard working farmer who sees, in part, the results of his labors pass down the voracious mouths of these worms.

Big Rush Expected.

The coming winter will see a greater rush than last spring to the Red lake reservation. All harvest hands and railroaders intend to work through harvest threshing, then take up land. This is their only talk, and parties not dependent upon such work would avoid the rush by coming early. When snow flies most of the valuable pieces will have been taken up. The contest cases are not so numerous as first expected, on account of there being plenty of good land still vacant.

About a dozen saw mills will be running on the reservation the coming winter. Several townsites are already located, both inside and outside the reservation, and there is a grand opening for enterprises of all kinds.

The Augsburg Seminary.

Another phase of the long mooted ownership of the Augsburg Lutheran Theological seminary in Minneapolis was up in a hearing before Assistant Attorney General Childs. It was in the form of an application of the United Church faction to secure writ of quo warranto, directed against the trustees in whose name the title to the institution at present rests, to show cause why they should not be removed. The charges are the old ones, involving the validity of the Augsburg organization, the United church, so-called, claiming to have as good a right in the premises as the Augustana synod, to which the Augsburg churches remain true.

A Big Time.

A new form of public entertainment for the people of the northwest will be presented in the city of Minneapolis during the week commencing Aug. 31. The public spirited citizens are hard at work developing arrangements for what will undoubtedly prove the greatest street exposition ever exhibited in this country. The probable result will undoubtedly justify all the extravagant predictions. These arrangements are being made for the entertainment of the thousands of visitors from the surrounding country that will visit that city upon this occasion.

A Tramp Convention.

The first anti-tramp mass convention in this state was held at Beaver Falls. There were representatives from six of the nine villages in the county. It was a representative gathering and very much in earnest in its deliberations. The tramp question was thoroughly discussed from every standpoint, and a set of resolutions adopted that, if carried into effect by the village and town authorities, will soon rid the county of these men. An executive committee of two from each village was appointed.

News in Brief.

The returns of the assessor for the city of Winona show a total valuation of $7,010,055. The personal property amounts to $1,844,683. The gain in personal property over last year is $62,717.

Gray's sawmill at Duluth was burned, causing a loss of $50,000.

Mike Connell, a tramp, stabbed Chas. Richards, at Fulda, with a pocket knife, once in the left side and once in the left arm. Dr. McCrea says it may result seriously.

At a meeting of the Maine Veterans' association, held in Morgan Post hall, Minneapolis, it was decided that the Maine department officers and wives and the delegates and wives would be entertained during the encampment, and that the veterans individually would entertain their comrades who attend the encampment. Headquarters will be established at the office of L. O. Merriam, 512 Corn Exchange, Minneapolis.

Theodore Hays, the manager of the Bijou Theatre Minneapolis, will hereafter have a double task on his hands, having been made manager of the Grand Opera house of St. Paul.

Violators of the game law are beginning earlier this year than usual, and its is reported that a number of Minneapolis men went to Anoka and bagged a large number of prairie chickens. The matter was reported to the game warden, who is now looking up the case, and should he locate them it would go hard with them.

J. E. Fitzgerald, a brakeman, fell from the cars near Ellsworth and had his right leg broken twice above the knee.

Frank Meadows, an Eastern Minnesota freight train conductor, was run over and killed near Foxboro.

WHEN DESTITUTE OF HUMOR.

Said to Be a Sure Indication of Mental Poverty.

There appear to be whole races of men—the North American Indians and the Cingalese Veddas, for example,—that are destitute of the sense of the ludicrous. And in the higher races, says the Fortnightly Review, this sense is by no means universally found. The richest intellects possess it in amplest measure. The absence of it is a sure indication of mental poverty. "Here comes a fool, let's be grave," said Charles Lamb upon one occasion. And I remember a friend of my own observing of a somewhat taciturn person whom we had met: "He must be a man of sense, for, although he said little, he laughed in the right place." That laugh is a manifestation of intellectual abundance or exuberance; it is something over and above the actual work of life. And so we may adapt to our present purpose certain words of Schiller's in his Letters on Aesthetic Education: "Man sports (spielt) only when he is man in the full signification of the word, and then only is he a complete man (ganz Mensch) when he sports."

I need hardly observe how grossly this faculty of the ludicrous may be abused. There is nothing more diabolical—in the strictest sense of the word—than to turn into ridicule "whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report." There is no more detestable occupation than that of "sapping a solemn creed with solemn sneer." But it is a maxim of jurisprudence. "Abusus non tollit usum." And this holds universally.

SHE WAS SHY ONE TURK.

Protest of an Audience Against Bernhardt's Loss of a Servant.

Sarah Bernhardt was once playing at Marseilles in a spectacular play in which she made her entree accompanied by six Turkish slaves. A line on the programme announced that these six Turks would accompany Mme. Bernhardt, but when the time came for them to go on one of the youngsters had disappeared. Sarah mustered the five in order, says the New York Evening Sun, and made her entrance with a grand flourish. The house was crowded, but not a handclap greeted her as she appeared. Then a still, small voice in the gallery murmured something in an indignant tone. Fifty voices immediately took up the strain, and in ten seconds more the whole house was shouting the same phrase. Bernhardt strained every nerve to catch what they were complaining about. She knew the phrase began with "Manque," but the rest of it was lost in the general hubbub. For a full minute the tumult continued. Then Sarah, muttering things below her breath, rushed like a fury down to the footlights. In the front row the actress had spotted one man who was not taking part in the hullabaloo. Pointing at him, the actress exclaimed, sternly: "You seem to be the only sensible person in this house. Tell me what on earth they are kicking up this row for?" The man rose, bowed to the actress, and remarked, in very bad American-French: "Madam, you are shy one Turk."

A TIN MINE IN PERAK.

Primitive Methods That Seem Sufficient for the Purpose.

We came to the edge of the mine, or paddock, as it is called, which, after all is nothing but a broad open pit with sloping sides and perhaps some 40 or 50 feet in depth; a poor thing in the eyes of anyone expecting shafts and machinery and the elaboration of western methods, but sufficient for its purpose, as Chinese methods are apt to be, says Macmillan's Magazine.

Three hundred men clad in loose blue coats and drawers and plaited sun hats three feet across are digging up the pay dirt at the bottom of the pit with great hoes and putting it on flat wicker baskets; others catch up the baskets, sling one at each end of a yoke and, balancing the load across the shoulder, they carry them up to the level ground (vibrating in time with their steps) by narrow tree trunks, notched with footholes, which are placed at short intervals athwart the sloping sides of the pit.

Having gained the higher level, they throw down their burdens by the wash boxes and descend by other bridges at a steady trot in a silent, orderly and unbroken stream. The men at the wash boxes, which are long, sloping troughs of wood, throw in the dirt and by raking it back and back under a nicely regulated flow of water they separate the black tin sand from the spoil and shovel it into tubs ready for the smelting house, while the spoil is flung down the slope of the hither side of the paddock.

ALLIGATOR PEARS.

To Acquire a Taste for Them Is an Expensive Luxury.

Most interesting of all South Florida fruits, because little cultivated, almost unknown outside of the tropics, and most highly appreciated when once introduced, is the alligator or aracado pear—the aguacate of Cuba, says Harper's Round Table. A very few alligator pear trees are grown in sheltered spots of southern California; but South Florida, below latitude 26 degrees, is the only section of the United States where it can be cultivated on a large scale and as a profitable crop. Here it grows as luxuriantly and with as little care as the guava, though it requires a greater depth of soil. The tree is tall, slender, and covered with a dense foliage of dark glossy green, while the ripened fruit, also green in color, is smooth-skinned and as large as a man's two fists. Inside is a great round stone or seed surrounded by a soft, yellowish-green pulp, which, sprinkled with salt and eaten with a spoon, or made into a salad, is delicious beyond description. No one ever eats an alligator pear without wanting another, and the taste once acquired demands to be gratified, regardless of expense. I have known 50 and even 75 cents apiece to be paid for these pears, and when I once asked a Broadway dealer which was the most expensive fruit in his store, he promptly answered: "Alligator pears."

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

--Gollmar Bros. great shows are to be here the 17th inst. Tickets 25cts.

—Grain stacking has begun and is progressing finely, the weather being quite favorable.

—Next Sunday Rev. O. Styner, of Armstrong is to preach at the M. E. Church in the evening.

—Home talent under charge of Prof. Molander will give an entertainment, 'Jane" at the City Hall to night.

—Banker Roosen persistantly pedals the bicycle. He's a learn'en. It only takes one good strong man now to give him confidence for a start.

--On Sunday evening the Epworth League of Armstrong drove up and attended the Delano League meeting and also staid to church and heard Rev. Farber's sermon to young people.

—Chester, a young son of Harris Williams, in some way got his toes over the railroad and when Jim Hill's train came along something had to give and it was the toes. Dr. Shrader fixed him up.

—The gentle reminder we had Monday evening of what a cyclone might come up like was feeble, indeed, compared with that which broke over Minneapolis deluging the streets and doing quite a little damage.

—The Ladies of the Swedish Mission Church held a sociable at the City Hall, Wednesday evening. It was quite a success about $16 were the receipts. The Franklin band furnished music for the occasian.

Anyone doubting the sentiments of Wright County democrats on the free coinage of both gold and silver should have been at the Democratic convention last Saturday and heard the rush with which the resolutions went through.

Mr. Blaine said he did not believe that congress had power to demonetize either gold or silver. He was one of those "money of the constitution" cranks or anarchists or whatever is the down east name for them.—Minneapolis Times.

—A flowing well has been put in by Thomas Rader on the old Joseph Van-Eman place, south of Delano. A good sized stream flows constantly. The water is said to be of good quality. The well is ninty feet deep. This is the first one of tne kind in this vicinity.

—People in the woods invariably begin harvest later than their neighbors on the prairies would, consequently their grain is so ripe before they get through cutting that it often serves as an excuse to run the binder on the Lords Day. It would be better to begin in time.

—From the Argus, Caladonia, Minn. —Gollmar Bros,' Circus, which showed here last Tuesday, was the best ever exhibited here. To their credit it can be said that no gamblers or fakirs were allowed around the grounds and they were a well-behaved set of gentlemen.

—Prof. Terry, of Smith Lake and Roy Wilder were making fast time up River street yesterday on their bicycles when Terry failed to turn on to R. R. Ave. while Roy tried to turn running into Terry's wheel and demolishing it in great shape. Terry will have to foot it until the wheel is repaired, or get another vehicle.

—When the better read and abler talkers for free silver, get ahead of some of the local gold standard advocates in an argument the latter says "Rats." Now that is poor argument, impolite, and beneath the dignity of American citizens. If the gold men wish to make any converts they must find more convincing arguments.

Of course we were thoroughly convinced that the delegation of 3 silver men and 11 gold men to the state convention instructed to vote as a unite did not represent Wright County Democracy by a good deal. The 14 delegates instructed by the convention to favor free coinage of silver is more in accord with the sentiments of the people. But it does look a little strange to see many of the same men on both delegations.

—Most people enjoy music; like to hear the melodies wafted on gentle breezes. But they believe there is a time for music and a time for church. And just as the preacher announces his text and begins his sermon to have all the noise of a brass band a block away, mingled with the barking of dogs closer by, don't add much to the enjayment of the sermon and those at church can see no good reason why the music could hot have been appointed at some other time than the regular church time.

—Almost an accident, through foolishness, as usual, occured at the depot the other day as several young men were leaving town by train one thought to show his ability to get on while the train was in motion so waited for the last chance. A friend snatched a tooth brush or some article from his pocket and refused to return it, so kept the young man waiting even longer than he intended then when he did start two large yaheees were standing on the platform in his way; he had to be very lively and just succeeded in grabbing onto the rail of the car in time to go. Such foolishness should not be indulged in, it is too dangerous.

S. A. Merriman, of Minnetrista, passed through town on his way to Howard Lake to attend the funeral of Mrs Merriman.

Roy Wilder wheeled to Buffalo Tuesday evening to hear Judge Page Morris on the political outlook. He says the Judge has a good speech.

County Cullings.

Conventions seem to be more numerous than usual this season. The Judicial Convention is the next in order, on the 18th. Then comes the Congressional on the 26th inst.

O. M. Mabusth and E. W. Peterson, of Cokato, A. P. Ritchie, of Annandale, James Barret, of Waverly and Put Lahey, of Maple Lake were at the Democratic State Convention Tuesday, as yisitors.

The Soo Rord employees had a picnic at Buffalo on Saturday about 800 accompanied by Danz band arrived in the morning more coming on the regular train. Dancing, racing, boating and other sports helped enliven the occasion.

The County Convention for the election of delegates to the Congressional Convention appears in this paper. Govern yourself accordingly, If you are interested in the times you know, who is your candidate for Congress. Do what you can to send delegates that will give you that choice to vote for.

Judge Page Morris' speeches have been sent out as suppliments to most of the county papers. We presume other county papers throughout the district have been favored with an opportunity to send them to their readers. Republican gold standard papers we mean. The speech is quite long and printed in fine type making tedious reading.

The Wright County Delegates in attendance at the State Convention Tuesday were J. C. Nugent, H. Tanner, John O'Leary, Levi Cochran, T. G. Mealey, Charles Cullen, H. S. Hunnington, M. C. O'Donohoe, F. L. Gorman and T. J. Catlin. When it came to voting whether the three Ramsey County delegates, Lawler, McCafferty and Cutchon should be allowed seats in the convention the vote stood 5 to 5, the entire delegation being 14, this gave 7 to 7. This is something of an improvment but still is not beginning to be up with the sentiments of the voters. Doubtless the staunch gold bugs on the delegation will profit by the very expressive manner in which the state convention took the other view of "Bossism."

Among our Exchanges.

Mr. Bryan has given another blow to the "anarchist theory. He declines to travel on Suuday.—Minnesota Times.

If a revolution ever arrives here, says the New York Press, it will come through the actions of the vulgar and stupid rich, though apparently from the unrest of the half-educated masses. The half educated poor man is not half such a menace to society as the half-civilized plutocrat.–Minnesota Mascot.

Some of the city dailies are publishing an article which endeavors to prove that the farmers of the west have never been so well off as at the present time. The article may convince people who have nothing to do with farming, but it will only excite the wrathful derision of the farmers themselves. One of the statements made to prove the claim is that the farmers owe less now than they did a few years ago. This is probably true as people generally reduce their indebtedness in hard times, but this reduction often involves the disposal of property for much less than its true value. The difficulty about getting credit in hard times also tends to reduce and to discourage indebtedness to a good, —The Rural Northwest.

Under the supervision of Commissioner Shanno, grasshoppers have been kept in check in a number of orchards in Wasco county, Oregon, lately by feeding them on sweetened bran mash to which Paris green had been added. This is the favorite method of fighting grasshoppers in orchards in California. —The Rural Northwest.

The report was accepted.

The following Resolutions were adopted.

Be it resolved by the Democracy of Wright County in convention assembled:

1st. That we heartily endorse the platform of the Democratic National Convention at Chicago, and we pledge our enthusastic support to our peerless standard bearer nominated for president and vice-president of the United States, W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska and Arthur Sewall, of Maine whose triumphant election on the third day of next November we confidently predict.

2nd. We strongly recommend the nomination of that sterling patriot and free silver champion John Lind for Govenor of this State, and we request that our delegates to the Democratic Convention at Minneapolis next Tuesday. support his candidacy first, last and all the time.

3rd. We desire to express our warm approval of the course pursued by Congressman Towne in advocating the free and unlimited coinage of silver, the main plank in our Democratic platform.

4th. We cordially invite all the advocates of free silver at a ratio or 16 to 1 regardless of the action of all other nations to co-operate with us in the coming campaign and assist the laboring and producing classes in their supreme effort to restore silver to the position it occupied prior to its demonetization in 1873.

5th. We condemn the action of National Committeeman D. W. Dawler in his efforts to divide the Democracy of the state and insist upon his resignation from said committee.

J. C. McDonnell.
W. S. Hunnington.
M. C. O'Donohoe. } Committee.

On motion the Chairman was instructed to appoint a committee of three to confer in coujunction with the County Committee with the Peoples Party committee and Convention as to making a fusion ticket.

Democratic County Convention and Primary Election.

A Democratic County Convention for the County of Wright, will be held at the Court House in the Village of Buffalo in said County on the 26th day of August 1896 at 1 o'clock, P. M., for the purpose of electing fifteen delegates to represent said Wright County in the Democratic Congressional District Convention for the 6th Congressional District of Minnesota to be held in the city of St. Cloud on the 27th day of August 1896 to nominate one candidate for the office of Congressman of the said 6th District. The several election districts in said Wright County will be entitled to delegates to said county convention as follows:

Albion	3	Marysville	3
Buffalo	2	Middleville	2
Chatham	3	Monticello	2
Clearwater	2	Otsego	3
Cokato	1	Rockford	3
Corinna	2	SelverCreek	1
Frankfort	8	South Side	2
Franklin	5	Stockholm	1
French Lake	2	Victor	1
Maple Lake	4	Woodland	2
Annandale v.	2	Howard Lake v.	2
Buffalo v.	2	Maple Lake v.	2
Cokato v.	1	Monticello v.	2
Delano v.	3	Montrose v.	2
Waverly v.	3

The primary elections for the election of said delegates will be held in all the election districts of said county on Saturday, the 22nd day of August, 1896, the polls to be open from 7 o'clock P. M. to 8 o'clock P. M. of said day; said primaries to be conducted under the Primary Election law. The town and village committees must fix the place for holding said Primary elections and give six days notice thereof as the Law requires.

Dated August 3rd, 1896.

By order of the County Committee.
F. W. GORMAN, Chairman.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world, which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

BE CAREFUL WHAT YOU SAY.

In speaking of a person's faults
Pray don't forget your own;
Remember, those with homes of glass,
Should seldom throw a stone.
If we have nothing else to do
But talk of those who sin,
'Tis better we commence at home,
And from that point begin.

We have no right to judge a man,
Until he's fairly tried;
Should we not like his company,
We know the world is wide.
Some may have faults—and who have not
The old as well as young;
Perhaps we may for aught we know.
Have fifty to their one.

I'll tell you of a better plan—
You'll find it works full well;
To try your own defects to cure
Before you others' tell.
And though I sometimes hope to be
No worse than some I know,
My own shortcomings bid me let
The faults of others go.

Then let us all when we commence
To slander friend or foe,
Think of the harm one word may do,
To those we little know.
Remember curses, sometimes like
Our chickens, "Roost at home."
Don't speak of others' faults until
We have none of our own.

All at Sea.

The advocates of a single gold standard for the money of the United States are all at sea! And it is no common sea either! There is a terrible storm! A veritable cyclone! The winds are blowing in every direction! And the mariner negligent enough of the safety of his country to ship with them soon finds himself bewildered; completely dazed, and unable to tell towards what a dreadful malestrom of discontent he is drifting!

He reads in the hireling papers that all our money is redeemable in gold! He sees by the statistics of the U. S. Treasurer that on July, '96 we only had $8.41, apiece in gold, in the entire country! He reads in another paper that our silver dollars are not redeemable in anything; that, though actually worth 53 cents they will buy as much as any dollar!

Many of the passengers, some of the crew and a few of the highest officers have been made so seasick and see so little prospect of recovery under the present state of affairs as to determine to leave the wreck and seek a more noble craft, better adapted to weather the gale and which has some likelihood of soon getting into calmer seas.

In order to settle your minds on the subject of finance it is only necessary that you get a few facts; something you can depend upon and then read up both sides and compare notes.

It ought not to be a difficult thing for the man of average intelligence to figure out for himself where we are drifting to, when he has Secretary Carlisle's report that we now have $8.41 per capita of gold in this country, and the Republican platform to tell him that we are now on a gold basis, which if it means anything means all our other money is redeemable in gold. He can soon see for himself that with $8.41 a piece it is impossible for the U. S. to keep her notes for twice that much good, and pay out gold to foreign lands for interest and principle on war debts made more than thirty years ago. Now just do a little bit of figuring for yourself, once.

Minnesota Farmer's Rights.

Minnesota farmers have rights of their own. They are a large part of our people. They are industrious, energetic, frugal and intelligent. They not only raise what their farms will produce but they try to take care of their products and to sell them for the most they can get. This is honorable, honest, and right, and they deserve to receive the best possible remuneration for their year's toil. What money they get usually, now-a-days is soon paid out for taxes, insurance, groceries, and dry goods, machinery and a few other necessaries of a farmer's existance. Little remains for hoarding away for old age, or for their heirs to quarrel over. Most of them have families to support, children to educate, and what money passes through their hands is spent in perfecting the coming generation in our modern civilization. It is put to good use, and their recompense should be sufficient to enable them to pass their declining days in peace and plenty.

But for a few years past the dollars of our land have been growing so valuable as to make it harder than ever for the farmers to come out even, financially, at the end of the year. They put in the usual number of hours, their farms produce even more per acre; their grain is saved in better shape; it is threshed cheaper; but when marketed they find it takes two bushels and more of wheat to buy a dollar. It requires twice as many bushels of most kinds of grain, or even of potatoes, to get a dollar. It requires two horses instead of one to bring them a hundred dollars. Yet their taxes and other expenses keep up to the old mark. Instead of storing away a few dollars yearly for old age, they are, some of them, straining every nerve to pay interest on mortgages to hold their homes, hoping the hard times will end.

What is the matter? Where is the trouble? Why should we give twice as much of our products to get a dollar? Something must be wrong somewhere. We see hoards of men roaming over the country penniless. Some of whom would gladly work and help buy our farm stuff if they had work to do.

Is it not plain to all that by fine financering the money loaners have taken advantage of the people in every possible way; until having made some of them believe that our country should try to do business on $8.41 apiece of gold and most all of that in 20 dollar gold pieces, seldom seen by the average citizen, they have cornered the money, and can now compel our government to sell bonds to procure gold when they choose.

Give the people what they have always supposed they had, free coinage of gold and silver both, and our standard money can't be so easily cornered.

Culkin Partisanism.

I am a rather vigorous partisan and therefore am disposed in most matters of public concern to give very great weight to the decision of the republican party on public questions. That party has been invariably right on all great public questions since 1856. On the money question, however, I was amazed to learn that several prominent citizens of this state, formerly republicans, in whose integrity and ability I had great confidence, were opposing the party on account of its position on this question; and this fact impelled me to make as close and careful an investigation of this problem as I was capable of making. My inquiries led me to certain conclusions among which were these: The opponents of the republican money plank from Bryan down, misstate and misrepresent the history of finance here and abroad; nearly all of their allegations of fact are historically incorrect and misleading. As a consequence their theories erected on this false foundation are utterly fallacious. But I am in full accord with the republican plank because I am, by my investigation, led to believe that it embodies the only sound theory of finance before the people in this election; because free coinage as proposed would contract our available circulating medium almost two-thirds, by driving out gold and making depreciated silver the standard; because free coinage means repudiation, and repudiation is dishonor; because the success of any other than the republican doctrine on this question would involve the nation in almost universal bankruptcy and disorder and would lower the standard of wages and living to our people. Republican success herein means restored confidence, strengthened credit and widespread prosperity. I desire to add that before election day the silver question will be largely dropped out of the discussion. The Bryan position is too indefensible to be long maintained. But it will be succeeded by a most desperate attempt to array class against class, section against section, men without money against men charged with having it. This position won for the democracy in 1892, and must be guarded against in 1896.—Wm. E. Culkin.

Mr. Culkin evidently wrote these few lines to try to infuse some of the old time fire into the ranks of his party, and to, if possible, stem the tide of voters who have for years stood with the party of their choice until now, under the leadership of such men as Congressman C. A. Towne, they have discovered that the G. O. P. has left its beaten track and gone into by and forbidden paths after strange golden idols.

As the money question is the only one of consequence in this campaign, men of all parties having quietly shelved all others for the present we will not enter into a discussion now, with the Hon. gentleman, as to the correctness of that party's stand on all questions since 1856.

But we must say we think the Senator's head must have felt large to him when he wrote that "On the money question, however, I was amazed to learn that several prominent citizen of this state, formerly republicans, in whose integrity and ability I had great confidence, were opposing the party on account of its position on this question; and this fact impelled me to make as close and careful an investigation of this problem as I was capable of making." And then going on as seen in his article above to say that he had concluded that the opponents of the REPUBLICAN MONEY plank from Bryan down, MISSTATE, and MISREPRESENT the history of finance here and abroad! Why that is perfectly outrageous!

John Day Smith, Judge Vanderburg C. A. Towne, John Lind, Frank Nye, men eminent in the councils of the Republican party; some of whom helped make the history the astute Senator accuses them of distorting, not telling the truth to their old friends about the history of their country! Its awful Billy! Perfectly ridiculous!

Mr. Culkin goes on to say that he has by investigation, been led to believe that free coinage would contract our available circulating medium almost two-thirds, by drawing out gold, and making depreciated silver the standard. He should give some good reasons for this great discovery, in the face of such witnesses as are against him. He should not rely too much on W. R. Merriam's financial plank in the Republican platform. He should make known to the people of his district where to find these wonderful historical facts, and prophesis and not denounce the ablest of his recent friends as dishonorable, repudiating, unpatriotic or anything tending that way, without giving his proofs.

Ingalls Jollies Bryan

Holton, Kan., Aug. 16.—Ex-Senator John J. Ingalls, who is campaigning in Kansas, spoke here to an enthusiastic crowd of 4,000 people, expounding republican principles. After the meeting he aired his views on the political outlook, stopping to speak of Mr. Bryan's notification address. Mr. Ingalls said among other things; "It is not undue eulogy to say by his Madison Square Garden speech he (Bryan) has put himself on a higher plane than he has yet occupied intellectually."—Minneapolis Times.

Reversing Republicanism.

"Two years ago we sat on the same platform with John Day Smith and heard him denounce the democratic party most vehemently. He said at that time that no matter what that party promised it was never known to redeem a single pledge. He advocated protection and said that the country had come, to the verge of ruin by reversing the policy of the party. To day he is supporting free trade candidate."—Wright County Times.

Why can't Mr. French see that our country needs a larger amount of standard dollars on which to do business, worse than they need tinkering with the tariff at present. Isn't Mr. French as smart to see things as are John Day Smith, Frank M, Nye, Stephen B. Howard, Judge Vanderburg, Judge Rae, Frank Day, Congressman Towne, or John Lind and the hundreds of other prominent Republicans who are willing to let all their other political beliefs take their chances for a couple of years while they unite with the patriots of all parties in breaking up the ring, trust, monopoly rule, in our country and our state? Can't French see as well as the honorable gentlemen mentioned the necessity of doing something to stem the tide that has carried the Republican party from its moorings on the money question. That has captured its leaders and caused them to advocate a single gold standard of money, in the face of the dying warning of that most eminent Minnesotian, the late secetary of the Treasury Hon. William Windom, that there was not enough gold or siver either alone for standard money?

Can't French see that the Republican party, against the protest of its best men is reversing its views on a double standard for the money of our country? Or is it so that the $1,000 a year office for which Eaton says French draws pay pulls the woolly tariff completely over his eyes?

SOME of the G. O. P. papers keep up a howl about a Protective Tariff, so high that our laborers can make something more than a living, at the same time they say we must have a gold standard currency so we can do business with the nations of the earte. Do they expect the laborers to spend their gold dollars in foreign lands?

Mr. M'Kennon Confident.

Alex. McKennon of Crookston, candidate on the Democratic ticket for state treasurer, spent yesterday in the city looking over the political situation. Mr. McKennon has a number of friends in Duluth, among them, Monroe Nichols. He also met while here prominent men among the Democratic, Populist and silver factions. Mr. McKennon said that in the Red River valley country he believed John Lind would carry the election with a large margin, and he himself expected that inasmuch as it was his home region to run ahead of Mr. Lind. Mr. McKinnon believes firmly that he will be elected and of course that the entire democratic ticket will be victorious.—Duluth News Tribune.

Will the "Globe" Give Him a Chance to Win a Wheel.

The following spicy letter has been sent by a Fargo "newsie" to the St. Paul Globe:

Fargo, N. D., Aug. 15., 1896.

Editor Daily Globe:

I am a newsboy and want to get the bicycle you offer as a prize for the most subscribers to the Globe. I have been working all day but I cannot do any business here. They are all silver men up here. If you will help me I can get that Wheel. Won't you please say some nice things about Mr. Bryan and quit calling all my customers cranks and fools, and I know that I can get you 400 subscribers and win the wheel. Let me know right away if you will do it and I will start to work again.

Yours Truly,
HARRY JORDAN.

Gold Out of Circulation

The daily newspapers say that gold has gone out of circulation Undoubtedly it has. The terrible fifty-cent dollar and silver certificates now have the right of way. But perhaps somebody says that the silver dollar is not at present a fifty-cent dollar. Of course it is not. We did not expect it would be. But it is standing on its own basis and merits just the same. The government is not redeeming it in gold to keep up its value. Silver dollars cannot be exchanged for gold at the U. S. treasury department. The government is not redeeming them in anything. They are standing on their own monetary value today. The banks will not exchange gold for them. Yet they are not fifty-cent dollars. They are good dollars, and all we want now is the ogening of the mints to their free coinage, so that the people can have plenty of them to meet the business and industrial needs of the country. We are glad that gold has gone out of circulation, so that the people can see just what the silver dollars are worth when they cannot be exchanged for gold. We have been told all along by the gold standard men that as soon as silver dollars could not be exchanged for gold they would fall in value to fifty-three cents. We said they would not. Who was right?—Brainerd Journal.

EUROPEAN LETTER.

(From our Special Corresponcent.)
ROME, Italy, June 2 1896.

A French writer has said that an Englishman listens to music; a Frenchman hears it; a German analyses it, and an Italian feels it. However this may be, no one can be long in the land of the Verdi and Rosini without realizing that this is the country of music; this impresses every visitor with the force of an original observation. There is music every afternoon in the public parks; music as the soldiers march through the streets, music at almost any hour in the countless churches, and what is most striking, the loungers and beggars lift up their voices (and very good voices they are, as a rule) not in the hope of a few extra pennies, but just for the joy of singing. The boys that stroll along the streets sing instead of whistling, and their selections denote a more classical taste than is posessed by their brother gamins in America. One hears the Siciliana from Cavalleria or the solo from Mignon instead of "I want You, my Honey" or "Paradise Alley". One is liable to be awakened any time between midnight and daybreak by resounding choruses, as citizens roam from the cafe-chantants homeward; but instead of arresting them on the charge of "drunk and disorderly" the gendarmes listen with the air of connoisseurs, and show an inclination to interfere only when the singers happen to be off the key. As a matter of fact, they are not drunk; they merely wish to give expression to the music with which every Italian's soul is filled.

For a change one can hear almost any day the lugubrious chant of funeral processions. The mourners go on foot, and there is always a long line of monks, carrying lighted candles and singing. Sometimes they are accompanied by the Misericordia, and then it is a sight worth seeing. This is a charitable fraternity which assists in the last offices for the dead. They wear long white robes with a sort of pillow-slip over the head, holes being cut for the eyes, and they look more like guests at a phantom party than anything else. It is not soothing to the nerves to meet them for the first time when you are in a lonely street, or towards dusk. They glide silently past, their black eyes watching you from behind the whste masks. There are a number of noblemen who belong to the fraternity, but they can be distinguished from their companions only by the elegant footgear, of which one catches occasional glimpses. Some years ago at the funeral of Prince Barbarini, one of the members of the brotherhood, the entire Misericordia came barefoot, and a lady present told me that it was amusing to see how gingerly some of them walked.

The nomenclature of the streets in Rome is picturesque and varied. When one finds oneself unexpectedly in the streets of purification, the road of Perfection or the Lane of Penitence, one half believes they have stepped into the Pilgrim's Progress. The streets of the Silver Tower, the Little Cakes, the Five Moons, or the Iron Mountain have a more secular sound. It is startling, when you have lost your way in a forbidding part of the city, and are searching anxiously for the name of the street, to find that it is The Broken Head or The Lion's Mouth. But at the next corner you are ressured by finding yourself in Good Company, and your footsteps may presently lead you into the Lane of the Holy Ghost or the Street of the Twelve Apostles. The street of the Twentieth of September, a fine broad avenue, leads to the gate that was demolished on that eventful date in Italian history, when Garibaldi entered the Eternal City and the temporal power of the Pope was overthrown. The street of the Mouth of Truth is so called from a recess in the wall of a church, into which in olden days Romans put their hands when taking an oath—perhaps a more sanitary arrangement than our modern method of kissing the Bible. Then there is the street of the Two Slaughter Houses (now lined with elegant residences;) the street of the Crucified, the Alley of the White Cross: and many streets, avenues, arcades and promenades of the Queen Marguerita.

Among the most striking figures to be seen in this land of bright colors, are the nurses employed by wealthy families. Their costumes comprise blue or pink skirts (often stiffened satin) with a wide stripe of a contrasting color around the bottom. On the head is a large bow of ribbon, with streamers reaching to the feet. They carry their charges on pillows, covered with lace and veils until one would think the poor little babies would suffocate. As they march majestically along, they fairly out Solomon Solomon in glory of attire. The army officer, too, always attracts the eye; especially if it be the eye of a tourist. He wears blue grey pantaloons with a red stripe at the side, a black jacket embroidered in silver and gold, and on cool days he wraps himself in the graceful folds of a Spanish cape and goes forth in the proud consciousness that he wears the prettiest uniform in Europe.

THE Democratic State central committee elected L. A. Rosing, of Canon Falls, chairman, and E. M. Pope, of Mankato, Secretary.

MCKINLEYITES are complaining that Mrs. Bryan is running the Democratic campaign. They had better take in their "Hanna" before they say any more.

THE notorious Silver Tongued orator of the bluegrass region W. C. P. Breckinridge has come out against Bryan. Even McKinley does not suit him. He favors a third party 'tis said.

AMONG the recent additions to our exchange list is the Rural Northwest, published in Portland, Oregon, by H. M. Williamson. Mr. W was a member of the first graduating class of the Minnesota University and he runs a real, live, paper, mostly devoted to fruit and dairy business.

AFTER Roswell G. Horr, the eminent advocate of the gold standard had been sent from New York all the way to Minnesota to convert people. A lot of them about here refused to drive over to Buffalo to listen to him. Most of them have probably read his debate with "Coin" Harvey, in Chicago.

IT strikes the average thinking man as if there must be some wonderful influence brought to bear on the mind of the daily newspaper editors throughout the land to make them so unanimously in favor of a single gold standard while country editors, and men eminent as lawyers, teachers, etc. are for both gold and silver as money.

J. J. HILL don't favor free silver because it would cut the laboring man's wages in two in the middle, it is said. That's strange, when he sends out blank contracts to be signed by those he wishes to employ as surgeons, cutting their wages in two in the middle, and tried the same thing, nearly, on the Editors, and finally where they wouldn't come to his time dropped them altogether.

THE gold standard people have already admitttd that their standard in Minnesota is in great danger of being lowered, by sending into the state one of their big orators from New York, Roswell G. Horr. The silverites have taken the cue and propose, if possible, to have their Presidential candidate William J. Bryan speak at the State Fair, if possible. Minnesota is quite likely to go for free gold and free silver both as standard money.

Questions For Gold Standard Men.

We would like answers to these questions from our neighboring edetors favorable to a gold standard. Especially from the Eagle.

Is the United States now on a gold basis?

How much money per capita is there in the United States now?

How long can the country do business on a gold basis?

Grand Army Encampment.

The thirtieth G. A. R. Encampment will be held in St. Paul from Aug. 31, to Sept. 5. Circulars of information have been sent out. All railroads sell tickets within 250 miles of St. Paul for one fare round trip; outside that limit the rate one cent a mile. Boys with white caps will be posted on every street corner to give information on all subjects. 30,000 veterans are expected to join in the grand parade of less than two miles, on asphalt street, shaded most of the way. This is to be one of the chances to shake hands with old comrades once again.

THE New York World

Thrice-a-week Edition

18 PAGES A WEEK. 156 PAPERS A YEAR.

Is larger than any weekly or semi-weekly paper published and is the only important Democratic "weekly" published in New York City. Three times as large as the leading Republican weekly of New York City. It will be of especial advantage to you during the Presidential Campaign, as it is published every other day, except Sunday, and has all the freshness and timeliness of a daily. It combines all the news with a long list of interesting departments, unique features, cartoons and graphic illustrations, the latter being a specialty.

All these improvements have been made without any increase in the cost, which remain at one dollar per year.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and the BUFFALO GAZETTE together one year for $1.75

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

and BUFFALO GAZETTE 6 months for 90 cts; or three months for 50 cts.

Oscar Wilde is reported as deeply repentant and reconciled to his wife, and efforts will be made to release him from confinement.

Singing swains would best be careful. A young man in Illinois sang "O Promise Me" to his best girl and is being sued for breach of promise.

The north of Ireland is aroused in resistance to the project of fencing in the approaches to the Giant's Causeway with a view to levy toll on sightseers.

There is now what is known as "bicycle English," and it is so extensive that for ordinary persons a glossary is needed to enable them to understand the gibberish of those who ride wheels. The influence of the wheel is unlimited.

There is more that isn't in a name than there was in. Two men have been arrested in Oklahoma for the cold-blooded murder of a clergyman, his wife and their three daughters, and their patronymics are Loving and Christian.

In the unearthed city of Pompeii, the preservation of which has been the means of revealing many antique customs, there is to be seen a soap manufactory, with all the kettles and other paraphernalia pertaining to the business. Also a quantity of soap, evidently the product of this ancient "soapery."

In New York city they have just completed a schoolhouse with a roof playground. In time all schoolhouses will be provided with such equipments. But you may make a roof garden for children and still lack a great deal. The best men and women, the men and women who will rule the nation and rule the industries of New York city, will not be reared on roofs, but in the fields as God made them.

In Park row, New York city, they are now building what will be the highest building in the world designed for the habitation and use of man. From the curbstones to the cornice will be 386 feet, comprising 30 stories. The flagstaff will be on a level with the top of Cheops, the highest of the pyramids. Those tombs which the Egyptian kings built are now outdone for ordinary business purposes.

Telephone wires seem to have an important influence in preventing lightning from striking, according to the investigations of the German telegraph department. Three hundred and forty towns with telephone systems and 560 towns without them were under observation. In the former the lightning struck three times for every hour of storm; in the latter five times. Moreover, the violence of the lightning was much less in the former case.

Another tramp has made a good record. Joe Barkley wanted to sleep in a Cincinnati farmer's barn, but was driven away as a worthless tramp. As he went he said he hoped he might some day do the farmer a service and show that he could return good for evil. The next day, as he lay in the shade of a tree on the river bank, he saw a young woman fall into the water. He plunged in after her and when he had rescued her from drowning discovered that she was the farmer's daughter.

Very soon the last of the pioneers of the great west will be gone. Of Fremont's band, which, in 1845, followed the path of the old patriot, Dr. Marcus Whitman, only one is known to be alive. That is Thomas E. Breckenridge, who is now 71 years old. He was with Fremont from 1845 to 1849, and made three campaigns with him over the great plains. People yet hardly estimate the value of California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho to the union, because they do not realize how nearly they escaped being owned by foreign powers.

Miss Walworth, of Bensonville, N. Y., is the first person on record to use the wheel to overtake and capture a pair of runaway lovers. The eloping parties were her father, Joseph K. Walworth, a widower, 65 years of age, and the 19-year-old daughter of a neighboring farmer. The old man and his girlish sweetheart had obtained considerably the start in a buggy behind a fleet horse, but the plucky young lady on the boneshaker overtook them and filled the air so full of weep and lamentation that Mr. Walworth relented and now the other girl is suing for breach of promise.

The American Anti-Vivisection society requests the newspapers to exercise great care in reporting supposed cases of hydrophobia. Dr. Matthew Woods, of Philadelphia, who has been in quest of the disease for 20 years, asserts that he never saw hydrophobia either in man or animal. All of the deaths that have been reported from this disease, it is claimed, were the result of false hydrophobia, a nervous affliction caused by the dread of the real disease. The question, then, naturally arises, when M. Pasteur discovered the germ of rabies in the dog was he suffering from false hydrophobia?

A statistician has learned that the annual aggregate circulation of the papers of the world is calculated to be 12,000,000,000 copies. To grasp any idea of this magnitude we may state that it would cover no fewer than 10,450 square miles of surface; that it is printed on 781,250 tons of paper, and, further, that if the number (12,000,000,000) represented, instead of copies, seconds, it would take over 333 years for them to elapse. In lieu of this arrangement we might press and pile them vertically upward to gradually reach our highest mountains. Topping all these the pile would reach the altitude of 490 miles.

ADDRESS TO VOTERS.

Issued by Gold Democrats at a Meeting in Chicago.

They Declare the Action of the Chicago Convention Is Not Binding on Members of the Party Who Oppose Free Silver.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—A meeting of the national executive committee of the gold democratic party was held at the Palmer house Monday. Chairman Bynum, of Indiana, presided and all the members were present except Charles W. Tracey, of New York. The principal business which called the committee together was the preparation and adoption of an address to the democratic voters of the country. A subcommittee, Secretary John R. Wilson, of Indianapolis, and F. W. M. Cutcheon, of Minnesota, was chosen to draft the address.

The Address.

The committee appointed to draft the address reported as follows:

To the Democrats of the United States: The democratic party is the only existing political organization with a history extending back to the birth of the republic. Party after party has attempted its overthrow. Some have achieved temporary triumphs. With each triumph was heard the prophecy that the democratic party would surely die. It has survived all defeats. By virtue of its indestructible principles it has witnessed the birth and death of every rival save one, and this, its present great antagonist, with a history of no more than 40 years, had no part in laying the foundations of constitutional popular government. For more than a century men of high principles, noble ambitions, unselfish and patriotic aims have adhered to the democratic party with a constancy of devotion unparalleled in the history of politics. For more than a century, through good and evil report, in times of prosperity and days of adversity, it has kept its faith. "Without variableness or shadow of turning" it has held fast to the fundamental principles of free government formulated by its founders, and subsequently enforced by its great leaders from Jefferson to Cleveland.

A True Democrat Defined.

Every true democrat insisted upon a strict observance of the mandates of the federal constitution and of the limitations therein prescribed, as well as upon a loyal support of all the institutions thereby created to be guarantees of the liberty it sought to perpetuate. He profoundly disbelieved in the ability of government, through paternal legislation or supervision, to increase the happiness of the nation. He was opposed to all attempts to confure comfort into the homes of its citizens or wealth into their pockets. He believed that it is the function of government to provide the people with an honest and stable medium of exchange, thus enabling them to transact their business safely and conveniently in every mart and market of the world. He reprobated every attempt to supply to money by means of legislation that value which it can possess only by reason of those qualities that render it acceptable to the world when unsupported by legislative at. He believed in the greatest measure of freedom of trade and industry compatible with the necessity to obtain by constitutional means an adequate revenue for the support of the government. He believed in a simple, economical, honest and efficient administration of the affairs of the nation, to the end that the prime object of government, the liberty of the people, should be preserved with the least possible resulting burden and the greatest possible certainty.

The Chicago Convention.

With such a record and such a creed, the president, moreover, being a democrat elected on a platform reaffirming the sound principles of democracy, the democratic party was called upon to select delegates to a national convention.

The delegates to the convention held at Chicago were authorized and had the power to proclaim a platform embodying their views of the true solution of the particular problems of the government now agitating the nation, but upon the condition that such platform should be consistent with the cardinal principles held by the party throughout its existence. These principles constitute the essential element of the party's life. They distinguish it from all other political organizations. If they are abandoned, the party ceases to exist. It was, therefore, not within the power of the majority of the delegates assembled at Chicago to bind the democrats of the United States to a platform inconsistent with the party's principles, or to any action that should result in their surrender.

Violated a Trust.

In violation of the trust committed to them, a majority of the delegates assembled in that convention, ignoring the rights of the minority, unseated regularly-elected delegates to make places for others in sympathy with themselves. They proclaimed a sectional combination of the south and west against the north and east. They impeached the honesty and patriotism of President Cleveland, who, under exceptional embarrassments produced by past errors of legislation, has heroically maintained the honor and integrity of the republic. Against the protest of one-third of the delegates they promulgated a platform at variance with the essential principles of the democratic party.

Silver Monometallism.

While professing to advocate a policy of bimetallism, it censures the present democratic administration for maintaining the parity of gold and silver. It proposes to reduce this country to a condition of silver monometallism, with its vacillating and unreliable standard of values, and tends to bring the farmer, the wage-earner and the salaried man to the wretched condition of the same classes in countries in which the silver standard prevails, and where the rewards of agriculture and labor are lower than anywhere else in the world.

Almost a Panic.

Its declarations invite, and have almost produced, a financial panic, and many of its proponents announce that to accomplish their purposes they are prepared to involve their country in a disaster comparable to nothing in its history save the calamity of civil war.

It assails the independence of the judiciary by a covert threat to reorganize the courts whenever their decisions contravene the decrees of the party caucus.

It seeks to allure officeseekers and spoilsmen to its support by attacking the existing civil service laws, which good men of all parties have labored so long to establish and to extend to all departments of the public service.

Absolved from Obligation.

The Chicago convention, having thus departed from the recognized democratic faith and promulgated doctrines new and strange to the democracy, all democrats are absolved from obligation to support its programme. More than this, as the doctrines announced are destructive of national honor and private obligation and tend to create sectional and class distinctions and engender discord and strife among the people, all good citizens of the republic are bound to repudiate them and exert every lawful means to insure the defeat of the candidates that represent these false doctrines.

Honor at Stake.

The duty of the hour is to stand steadfast in defense of our ancient faith. In this crisis there is at stake more than the possibility of temporary victory. The honor and perpetuity of the democratic party are at stake. A political organization that is untrue to itself, its principles, its history and traditions, is disgraced and dishonored. The existence of our great historical party that has withstood the assaults of every foe is threatened by reason of the recreancy of many of its members. That this party, as we have known it, may not die, let the faithful of years rally around its historic banner, reform its broken lines, and with abiding faith in the final triumph of its principles unite to restore the name democrat to its former meaning and proud distinction.

Urged to Organize.

To this end we request all democrats who are opposed to the platform adopted and candidates nominated at Chicago to organize in their several states and to send representatives to the convention of the national democratic party to be held at Indianapolis on Wednesday, September 2, 1896, in accordance with the call heretofore issued by the national committee.

SPAIN WANTS CASH.

Demands Indemnity for Filibustering Expeditions.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Spain is preparing to present a heavy bill for damages against the United States on account of the operations of Cuban filibustering expeditions. Calderon Carlisle, the legal adviser of the Spanish legation, has submitted to Minister De Lome, by his direction, a voluminous report on "the legal aspect of hostilities committed by vessels specially equipped in whole or in part within the United States for warlike uses, and by military expeditions and enterprises carried on from the territory of the United States, against the Spanish dominion in Cuba during the present insurrection."

There can be no question, according to Mr. Carlisle, that the United States are and have been fully cognizant of the state of insurrection in Cuba. Moreover, the Spanish government, through its accredited minister and other representatives, has not failed repeatedly to warn the authorities—though generally in vain—of the impending purpose of filibustering expeditions about to leave various ports.

These facts, says the brief, are so notorious and the violations of neutrality so flagrant that the claims of the Spanish government arising thereunder are entitled to every consideration as well grounded and lawful.

In concluding the first section of his report Mr. Carlisle says the powers invested in the president of the United States have not been effectively used for preventing the carrying on of military expeditions forbidden by the statutes. Whatever pretext and attempts may be made to carry on these expeditions as peaceful and lawful voyages, the fact remains, says the attorney, that from the beginning of the insurrection the base of supplies for war material has been in the United States.

London, Aug. 18. — The evening newspapers comment at length on Spain's bill for damages against the United States, as a result of the fitting out in American ports of filibustering expeditions destined for Cuba, and call attention to the decision arrived at in the case of the Alabama. The Globe says:

The United States' acceptance of the Geneva award makes it absolutely impossible for it to repudiate its liability under the present circumstances with any show or reason or justice.

RIOTING AT CLEVELAND.

More Bloodshed by the Brown Plant Strikers—Four Men Shot.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 15.—One of the most dastardly attempts at premeditated murder ever laid at the door of organized labor took place here Friday night, it being the outcome of the great Brown strike that has been going on in this city for the past three months. As the result, four men are wounded and two will die almost any moment.

On June 25 the great Brown Hoisting and Conveying Machine company discharged its 800 employes because of a threatened strike. Since that time rioting has been the chief pastime of the strikers and their thousands of sympathizers. Two lives have been sacrificed through the trouble and for weeks the works have been run under military and police protection, and the 300 nonunion men escorted to their homes by armed officers to prevent murder. The striking workmen put up a big fight to beat the Brown company, but have signally failed. Ever since the trouble began the strikers and their sympathizers have carried on a guerilla warfare against the men who took their places. They have assaulted them, stoned their houses and boycotted them at the stores.

About a week ago the five companies of militia were withdrawn from the Brown works and the police protection taken away. The strikers applied for court injunction and were refused, and since then have become doubly revengeful. Friday night a party of ten strikers went to the corner of Wade park and East Madison street and laid in wait for a party of workmen who came by on their way home from the Brown works. There were nine men in the little group of workmen with their dinner pails. Without a moment's warning the strikers rushed from behind a saloon, where they were in hiding, and with a cry of "scab" began shooting into the crowd. A few of the workmen were armed and returned the fire. The battle lasted about three minutes, in which about 30 shots were fired, when the strikers fled.

THE GRAND ARMY.

Plans for the Thirtieth National Encampment at St. Paul.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 15.—The thirtieth national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held in St. Paul from August 31 to September 5. A rate of one cent per mile has been granted for encampment travel by all passenger associations, outside of a 250 mile radius for St. Paul. Within the 250 mile limit from St. Paul, and throughout the northwest generally, the rate will be one fare for the round trip. The tickets will be good for 15 days, but may be extended to September 30 by special arrangment. Hotel rates will vary from one to six dollars per day; boarding-house rates from one to three dollars. Free sleeping quarters will be given veterans coming with their departments.

The route or the G. A. R. parade, Wednesday, September 2, is less than two miles long, all down grade on asphalt streets, free from street car tracks and shaded for most of the distance. The column will move at ten a. m. It is expected that about 30,000 veterans will participate in this parade. The official programme promises many parades, receptions, reunions, campfires and the like. Members of the Boys' brigade, wearing white caps, will be stationed all over town to give information and act as guides, without charge.

Cloudburst in Indiana.

Rushville, Ind., Aug. 17.—The extraordinary spectacle of men, women and children being taken from second-story windows and of families being conveyed to places of safety on horseback through water that in places caused the animals to resort to swimming was witnessed here for the first time in the history of the county.

About midnight there was a cloudburst over the city and the rain continued to descend in torrents for an hour. A half hour after the storm burst the streets were like rivers, and many houses were partly submerged. The storm was confined to this county, it seems, and it took a course from the north to the south, with the storm center over Rushville.

TRADE IS DULL.

Heat, Labor Troubles and Political Uncertainty Aid in the Depression.

New York, Aug. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"An extraordinary spell of deadly hot weather has affected trade throughout the country, and in the east speculative feeling was somewhat affected until Thursday by apprehension of the possible influence of the Bryan meeting. With cooler weather there came also on Thursday perception that the meeting would not affect business unfavorably. But other conditions were not stimulating. According to government reports the crops have sustained serious injuries. Labor difficulties extend, and the closing of establishments for want of work and the refusal of commercial loans by banks checked operations in many branches of industry and trade. The week therefore closes as the last week did, with domestic business unusually dull for the season.

"There is evidence of greater confidence in the stock market, which began to appear on Monday. The average of 60 most active railroad stocks had fallen to $40.85 per share, a decline of over 7 per cent. for the week, so that prices were actually the lowest in 17½ years, since the first month after specie resumption. Trust stocks had also declined $2.78 for the week. There was some selling by foreign holders, but a far more important factor was the general feeling of capitalists and investors here that it might not yet be the best time to buy. Men of more confidence put up prices a little on Tuesday and still more on Thursday, so that the week closed with an advance averaging 95 cents per share for railroads and $1.32 for trusts. Railroad earnings for the first week in August were 3.1 per cent. smaller than last year, and Chicago east-bound tonnage was over 4 per cent. less than last year.

"The government crop report for August was so gloomy that a great rise in prices would have followed if it had been entirely credited. In fact, wheat rose about one-half cent, but again declined, closing only a fraction higher for the week. Corn declined throughout the week, closing over a cent lower. Cotton advanced a sixteenth because of continued reports of injury.

"Iron production was reduced 20,764 tons weekly in July and has been further reduced since August 1, while unsold stocks increased 26,192 tons in July. The stoppage of a large share of the Connellsville coke works and of many lake iron mines is fair indication that the two combinations do not believe anything could be gained by reducing the prices of materials, and the main difficulty is the obviously extreme narrowness of demand for finished products, which is so small that most transactions are at some concessions even from the current low prices.

"The boot and shoe industry is approaching the end of orders at hand, and gradual advances in the prices asked tend to the restriction of new orders. Leather is scarcely changed in price, many of the tanneries having ceased operations, but hides are 6 per cent. lower for the week and have declined 17.43 per cent. within the last five weeks.

"The woolen manufacture makes little change, with not more than a third of the machinery now running, and the demand for goods does not improve, although prices of some important grades have been further reduced. Nor has improvement appeared in cotton goods, although the curtailment of production for some weeks has been great.

"It is a step toward recovery, not quite pleasant, but sure, that merchandise imports since July 1 are 18 per cent. less, while exports are 16 per cent. more than last year. It means depression of trade, but also decrease of foreign indebtedness.

"Failures for the week have been 298 in the United States, against 196 last year, and 36 in Canada, against 38 last year."

NEAR THE POLE.

Nansen Goes Farther North Than Any Previous Explorer.

Vardo, Aug. 15.—Dr. Nansen, the returned Arctic explorer, says the Fram drifted with the ice, in a westerly direction, to 84 degrees, and he expects the vessel will eventually arrive at Spitzbergen. He adds that wherever they penetrated they found the ice broken. Large patches of water were also found, 3,800 meters deep. Below the depth of 900 meters the water was appreciably warmer, probably owing to the gulf stream. Rocky scars, of which the explorers had no previous knowledge, prevented entrance into the Olenek river for days.

In consequence of the scarcity of dogs with the expedition, Dr. Nansen was compelled to turn back at 86.15. He adds that if he had been provided with a sufficient number of dogs and canoes the pole would have been reached.

Dr. Nansen adds that during the winter when there was no bears' flesh to feed the dogs, he killed the weakest dogs and fed them to the others until the whole pack was killed. He and Lieut. Hansen started on May 19 to try to reach Spitzenbergen. After traveling for six weeks on snowshoes, dragging sledges partly over land and partly over sea ice, they reached the quarters occupied by F. G. Jackson, of the Windward expedition. The members of this expedition were found to be healthy and Dr. Nansen and his companion remained with them for six weeks until the steamer Windword arrived with supplies for Jackson. When the steamer started on her homeward voyage Dr. Nansen and Lieut. Hansen accompanied her to this place.

The land voyage was most arduous, but extremely valuable scientific results were obtained.

In 1895 Dr. Nansen reached the north coast of Franz Josef Land and built a stone house, in which he lived the whole winter.

The Jackson-Farnsworth expedition arrived at Franz Josef Land the following spring.

Stockholm, Aug. 15.—A dispatch from Christiania to the Unserland says that Prof. Mohn, who is now at Vardo, states that the scientific results of Dr. Nansen's observations are magnificent. Several unknown islands were discovered and their positions determined.

DEATH OF GAIL HAMILTON.

Stricken with Paralysis at Her Home in Massachusetts.

Hamilton, Mass., Aug. 18.—"Gail Hamilton," Miss Abigail Dodge, died at her home on Main street at nine o'clock Monday night. She arose apparently quite well Sunday morning, but while eating breakfast was stricken with paralysis, the shock being much more serious than the one experienced in Washington in May, 1895. Her physician was immediately summoned. He found her unconscious and she remained in that condition until death came.

Miss Dodge, since her illness in the spring, had appeared in good spirits and had passed considerable time in the open air. She had been quite talkative and took much pleasure in discussing politics and other matters.

Besides her servants her sister, Mrs. Mary F. Dodge, was the only person at the deathbed.

Democratic Headquarters.

Washington, Aug. 17.—Senator Jones, chairman of the national democratic committee, has issued an official statement locating the headquarters at Chicago, with a branch in Washington. A part of the campaign committee sufficient to conduct the business of the campaign for the present has also been appointed. The gentlemen selected so far are: John R. McLean, Ohio; D. G. Campau, Michigan; J. D. Johnson, Kansas; Clark Howell, Georgia; Bradley Smalley, Vermont; Thomas Gahan, Illinois.

NEW QUARRYING METHOD.

An Albany Man Now Cuts Stone with Wire Rope.

Those who have indulged in deep sea fishing know how the fish line cuts deeply into the hard wood of the gunwale as it is hauled in while taut. Even an iron protection, after a time, shows the wear of the rope, which is comparatively soft. This gives a clew to the invention of an Albany quarryman for cutting stone. Instead, however, says the Detroit Free Press, of hemp, he proposes to use wire rope, and with this he will carve the marble and stone right out of its native bed. The wire is wound in strands, and has a very rough surface, powerful machinery gives a strong and steady strain, and the stone, yielding to the constant wear, parts, with smooth edge. It would be easy enough to cut the blocks after they are removed from the quarry, but where the cleverness of the inventor comes in is devising mechanism that can be applied to the stone while in the quarry. This is effected by sinking two parallel channels in the quarry to a depth of little greater than that of the lowest level of the stone to be cut. The channels may be from 20 to 100 feet, or more, apart. At the bottom of each is made a small hole to receive the foot ends of the shafts of the machine. This is the only preparation of the quarry that is necessary. The ropes, which are coiled on huge drums, are then passed around the channels, and as the drums revolve the cutting proceeds. Suitable brakes are provided for the regulation of the speed and pressure. The ordinary speed of the strand is 800 feet a minute, so that a mile length of it passes in six minutes. While the strand is moving, crushed stone or chilled shot and water can be introduced to increase the attrition. Far better, however, than either of these is a composition obtained from the tailings of a magnetic iron separator, which costs about one-tenth as much as the chilled shot. It does not leave the lines caused by the shot, and it can be used over and over again.

BIG RACES.

Some of the World's Best Pacers Will Be Seen on the Ground.

W. W. P., the great pacer that was the sensation of the Detroit meeting of last month, has been booked by President Weaver for the state fair. He was authorized by the racing committee a month ago to secure the best star event possible to be added to the racing program already arranged, and this is the result. W. W. P. is regarded by many horsemen as likely to carry off the highest honors of the turf before the season is over. At Detroit, $2,500 was offered for the free-for-all pace; $1,000 of the amount was offered to the winner for the first heat, the beaten horses to race, best two in three, on a subsequent day for the balance of the money, $1,500. It is needless to say that the first heat was a warm one, the most exciting of the meeting. W. W. P. won cleverly in 2:05¼, defeating among others Frank Agan, who at Columbus, a week later, defeated Patchen and Gentry, making the fastest fourth heat on record.

W. W. P. is to be shown at the fair on two days. He is to be put against the world's wagon record, 2:08¾, and the record of the track, 2:07, made by Nancy Hanks. Frank B. Loomis, his owner, is confident he will accomplish both undertakings, for he is in fine fettle and is doing his best work.

Another star feature President Weaver has booked for three days the state fair is a decided novelty. It is Marion Milles, the phenomenal pacer, with a record of going a mile in 2:12 ¾ without a strap or prompter of any kind. The mare is harnessed to a sulky and without bridle, reins or driver goes around the track like wind without a break. It is likely that the entries for the 2:08 pace will also include several horses of national reputation. The entries close Friday. A purse for a three year old trot has also been added and there are to be several running races not yet announced.

TOLD OF AN HONOR.

Bryan and Sewall Formally Notified of Their Nomination.

An Enormous Crowd Attends—An Ovation to the Candidates—Extracts from Mr. Bryan's Address Accepting the Nomination.

New York, Aug. 13.—At Madison Square garden, Wednesday night, Hon. William J. Bryan, of Nebraska, and Hon. Arthur Sewall, of Maine, were formally notified of their nomination as candidates for president and vice president of the United States, respectively, by the democratic national convention at its recent session in Chicago.

The doors were opened at seven o'clock and the great crowd which blockaded the streets made a desperate rush to gain entrance. During the turmoil several women fainted. At last by a vigorous use of clubs the police were able to secure a semblance of order. From floor to roof the garden was soon crowded with human beings. The heat was intense. When Mrs. Bryan entered, a few minutes before her husband came, a scene of enthusiasm followed which was not ended until the lady arose from her seat and acknowledged the ovation extended her.

When Mr. Bryan stepped on the stand and was recognized by many in the audience, a great cheer went up. "Bryan, Bryan, Bryan" was the shout of those who knew him, and, as others in the crowd realized that the hero of the evening had come, the cheering became louder and louder and threatened not to stop. But it did stop at last, and those who timed it said that the ovation had lasted six minutes. It was the first tribute of the enthusiastic. The crowd was reserving itself for the event of the evening.

Notified by Gov. Stone.

Senator Jones introduced Elliott Danforth as chairman of the meeting, and he in turn presented Gov. Stone, of Missouri, who made the formal speeches of notification.

After Gov. Stone had spoken at considerable length he presented to Mr. Bryan an engrossed copy of the resolution of notification adopted by the notification committee. Referring to the circumstances attending the nomination, the resolution stated that the nominee was selected as the party leader because of his integrity, patriotism and ability, and that his election means the maintenance of an honest government administrated for the benefit of all, and controlled only by intelligence conscientiously directed.

Great Demonstration.

When Gov. Stone concluded with the notification of his nomination to Mr. Bryan, a man began to wave a big American flag over the latter's head. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm and rose as a man when Chairman Danforth stepped forward and introduced Mr. Bryan. Then came a demonstration that far exceeded those that had followed the mention of Mr. Bryan's name previously in the evening. The scene presented was strongly reminiscent of the tumult that raged in the Coliseum at Chicago when Bryan finished the effort preceding his nomination. Men and women rose to their feet and cheered. On the platform, in the boxes, up in the galleries people were shouting like mad. Men waved their coats and their hats, while women fluttered fans and handkerchiefs. This continued for many minutes. At last the crowd wearied and ceased.

Bryan Reads His Speech.

Mr. Bryan rose and stepped to the front and center of the speaker's platform. In his hand he had a manuscript copy of his speech. His face was pale, but he was cool and calm. His voice was firm, but showed signs of hoarseness. The strain of the speech-making journey from Chicago to Pittsburgh had been too much to allow quick recovery of the vocal organs, and Mr. Bryan could not make himself heard so distinctly as in the Coliseum.

Mr. Bryan's Speech.

Following are the most telling points in Mr. Bryan's speech:

Mr. Chairman, Gentlemen of the Committee and Fellow Citizens: I shall at a future day and in a formal letter accept the nomination which is now tendered by the notification committee, and I shall at that time touch upon the issues presented by the platform. It is fitting, however, that at this time, in the presence of those here assembled, I speak at some length in regard to the campaign upon which we are now entering. We do not underestimate the forces arrayed against us, nor are we unmindful of the importance of the struggle in which we are engaged; but, relying for success upon the righteousness of our cause, we shall defend with all possible vigor the positions taken by our party.

Character of the Opposition.

We are not surprised, said Mr. Bryan, to find arrayed against us those who are the beneficiaries of government favoritism—they have read our platform—nor to learn that we must in this campaign face the hostility of those who find a pecuniary advantage in advocating the doctrine of non-interference when great aggregations of wealth are trespassing upon the rights of individuals. Such opposition is the highest indorsement which could be bestowed upon us.

Not a Disloyal Pledge.

The Chicago platform has been condemned by some because it dissents from an opinion rendered by the supreme court declaring the income tax law unconstitutional. Our critics even go so far as to apply the name anarchist to those who stand upon that plank of the platform. It must be remembered that we expressly recognize the binding force of the decision so long as it stands as a part of the law of the land. There is in the platform no suggestion of an attempt to dispute the authority of the supreme court. The party is simply pledged to "use all the constitutional power which remains after that decision, or which may come from its reversal by the court, as it may hereafter be constituted." Is there any disloyalty in that pledge?

Has No Apology to Offer.

When courts allow rehearings, he said, they admit that error is possible; the late decision against the income tax was rendered by a majority of one after a rehearing. While the money question overshadows all other questions in importance, I desire it distinctly understood, continued Mr. Bryan, that I shall offer no apology for the income tax plank of the Chicago platform. The last income tax sought to apportion the burdens of government more equitably among those who enjoy the protection of the government. At present the expenses of the federal government, collected through internal revenue taxes and import duties, are especially burdensome upon the poorer classes of society. A law which collects from some citizens more than their share of the taxes and collects from other citizens less than their share is simply an indirect means of transferring one man's property to another man's pocket, and while the process my be quite satisfactory to the men who escape just taxation, it can never be satisfactory to those who are overburdened. Not only shall I refuse to apologize for the advocacy of an income tax law by the national convention, but I shall also refuse to apologize for the exercise by it of the right to dissent from a decision of the supreme court. In a government like ours, every public official is a public servant, and the people have a right to criticise his official acts. No public official who conscientiously discharges his duty will desire to deny to those he serves the right to discuss his official conduct.

All Favor Bimetallism.

Then, entering upon what he declared the paramount question of the campaign—the money question—Mr. Bryan said: It is scarcely necessary to defend the principle of bimetallism. No national party during the entire history of the United States has ever declared against it, and no party in this campaign has had the temerity to oppose it. Three parties—the democratic, populist and silver parties—have not only declared for bimetallism, but have outlined the specific legislation necessary to restore silver to its ancient position by the side of gold. The republican platform expressly declares that bimetallism is desirable when it pledges the republican party to aid in securing it as soon as the assistance of certain foreign nations can be obtained. Those who represented the minority sentiment in the Chicago convention opposed the free coinage of silver by the United States by independent action, on the ground that in their judgment it would retard or entirely prevent the establishment of international bimetallism, to which the efforts of the government should be steadily directed. When they asserted that the efforts should be steadily directed toward the establishment of international bimetallism, they condemned monometallism.

Are They Sincere?

Is this quadriennial agitation in favor of international bimetallism conducted in good faith, or do our opponents really desire to maintain the gold standard permanently? Are they willing to confess the superiority of a double standard when joined in by the leading nations of the world, or do they still insist that gold is the only metal suitable for standard money among civilized nations? If they are, in fact, desirous of securing bimetallism, we may expect them to point out the evils of a gold standard and defend bimetallism as a system. If, on the other hand, they are bending their energies toward the permanent establishment of a gold standard under cover of a declaration in favor of international bimetallism, I am justified in suggesting that honest money cannot be expected at the hands of those who deal dishonestly with the American people.

Test of Honesty in Money.

The test of honesty in money, he said, must be plainly found in the purchasing power of the dollar. An absolutely honest dollar would not vary in its general purchasing power; it would be absolutely stable when measured by average prices. A dollar which increases in purchasing power is just as dishonest as a dollar which decreases in purchasing power. It cannot be successfully claimed that monometallism or bimetallism, or any other system, gives an absolutely just standard of value.

Will No Longer Be Borrowers.

If it is asserted, as it constantly is asserted, that the gold standard will enable us to borrow more money from abroad, I reply that the restoration of bimetallism will restore the parity between money and property and thus permit an era of prosperity which will enable the American people to become loaners of money instead of perpetual borrowers.

What Free Coinage Mean

As against the maintenance of a gold standard, either permanently or until other nations can be united for its overthrow the Chicago platform presents a clear and emphatic demand for the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at the present legal ratio of sixteen to one, without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation. We are not asking that a new experiment be tried; we are insisting upon a return to a financial policy approved by the experience of history and supported by all the prominent statesmen of our nation from the days of the first president down to 1873.

When we ask that our mints be opened to the free and unlimited coinage of silver into full legal tender money we are simply asking that the same mint privileges be accorded to silver that are now accorded to gold. When we ask that this coinage be at the ratio of sixteen to one we simply ask that our gold coins and the standard silver dollar—which, be it remembered, contains the same amount of pure silver as the first silver dollar coined at our mints—retain their present weight and fineness.

Actual Necessity for Bimetallism.

There is an actual necessity for bimetallism, said Mr. Bryan, as well as a theoretical defense of it. During the last 23 years legislation has been creating an additional demand for gold, and this law-created demand has resulted in increasing the purchasing power of each ounce of gold. The restoration of bimetallism in the United States will take away from gold just so much of its purchasing power as was added to it by the demonetization of silver by the United States. The silver dollar is now held up to the gold dollar by legal-tender laws and not by redemption in gold, because the standard silver dollars are not now redeemable in gold either in law or by administrative policy. We contend that free and unlimited coinage by the United States alone will raise the bullion value of silver to its coinage value, and thus make silver bullion worth $1.29 per ounce in gold throughout the world.

Not Advocating Fifty-Cent Dollars.

Following in an earnest argument favoring the restoration of bimetallism, Mr. Bryan said: Perhaps the most persistent misrepresentation that we have to meet is the charge that we are advocating the payment of debts in 50-cent dollars. At the present time and under present laws a silver dollar, when melted, loses nearly half its value, but that will not be true when we again establish a mint price for silver and leave no surplus silver upon the market to drag down the price of bullion. Under bimetallism silver bullion will be worth as much as silver coin, just as gold bullion is now worth as much as gold coin, and we believe that a silver dollar will be worth as much as a gold dollar.

Debtor Should Have the Option.

If there are two kinds of money the option must rest either with the debtor or with the creditor. Assuming that their rights are equal, we must look at the interests of society in general in order to determine to which side the option should be given. Under the bimetallic system gold and silver are linked together by law at a fixed ratio, and any person or persons owning any quantity of either metal can have the same converted into full legal tender. If the creditor has the right to choose the metal in which payment shall be made, it is reasonable to suppose that he will require the debtor to pay in the dearer metal if there is any perceptible difference between the bullion values of the metals. This new demand created for the dearer metal will make that metal dearer still, while the decreased demand for the cheaper metal will make that metal cheaper still.

If, on the other hand, the debtor exercises the option, it is reasonable to suppose that he will pay in the cheaper metal if one may be perceptibly cheaper than the other, but the demand thus created for the cheaper metal will raise its price, while the lessened demand for the dearer metal will lower its price.

In other words, when the creditor has the option, the metals are drawn apart; whereas, when the debtor has the option, the metals are held together approximately at the ratio fixed by law; provided the demand created is sufficient to absorb all of both metals presented at the mint. Society is, therefore, interested in having the option exercised by the debtor.

The right of the debtor to choose the coin in which payment shall be made extends to obligations due from the government as well as to contracts between individuals. A government obligation is simply a debt due from all the people to one of the people, and it is impossible to justify a policy which makes the interests of the one person who holds the obligation superior to the rights of the many who must be taxed to pay it. When, prior to 1873, silver was at a premium, it was never contended that national honor required the payment of government obligations in silver, and the Matthews' resolution, adopted by congress in 1878, expressly asserted the right of the United States to redeem coin obligations in standard silver dollars as well as in gold coin. Upon this subject the Chicago platform reads: "We are opposed to the policy and practice of surrendering to the holders of the obligations of the United States the option reserved by law to the government of redeeming such obligations in either silver coin or gold coin."

A New and Vital Issue.

There is another argument to which I ask your attention. Some of the more zealous opponents of free coinage point to the fact that certain months must elapse between the election and the first regular session of congress, and assert that during that time, in case people declare themselves in favor of free coinage, all loans will be withdrawn and all mortgages foreclosed. If these are merely prophecies indulged in by those who have forgotten the provisions of the constitution, it will be sufficient to remind them that the president is empowered to convene congress in extraordinary session whenever the public good requires such action. If in November the people by their ballots declare themselves in favor of the immediate restoration of bimetallism the system can be inaugurated within a few months.

If, however, the assertion that loans will be withdrawn and mortgages foreclosed is made to prevent such political action as the people may believe to be necessary for the preservation of their rights, then a new and vital issue is raised. Whenever it is necessary for the people as a whole to obtain consent from the owners of money and the changers of money before they can legislate upon financial questions, we shall have passed from a democracy to a plutocracy. But that time has not yet arrived. Threats and intimidation will be of no avail. The people who, in 1776, rejected the doctrine that kings rule by right divine will not, in this generation, subscribe to a doctrine that money is omnipotent.

Appeal to Citizens.

Citizens of New York: I have traveled from the center of the continent to the seaboard that I might in the very beginning of the campaign bring you greeting from the people of the west and south and assure you that their desire is not to destroy, but to build up. They invite you to accept the principles of a living faith rather than listen to those who teach the gospel of despair and advise endurance of the ills you have. The advocates of free coinage believe that in striving to secure the immediate restoration of bimetallism they are laboring in your behalf as well as in their own behalf. A few of your people may prosper under present conditions, but the permanent welfare of New York rests upon the producers of wealth. This great city is built upon the commerce of the nation and must suffer if that commerce is impaired. You cannot sell unless the people have money with which to buy, and they cannot obtain the money with which to buy unless they are able to sell their products at remunerative prices. Production of wealth goes before the exchange of wealth; those who create must secure a profit before they have anything to share with others. You cannot afford to join the money changers in supporting a financial policy which, by destroying the purchasing power of the products of toil, must in the end discourage the creation of wealth.

I ask, I expect your cooperation. It is true that a few of your financiers would fashion a new figure—a figure representing Columbia, her hands bound fast with fetters of gold and her face turned toward the east, appealing for assistance to those who live beyond the sea—but this figure can never express your idea of this nation. You will rather turn for inspiration to the heroic statue which guards the entrance to your city—a statue as patriotic in conception as it is colossal in proportions; it was the gracious gift of a sister republic and stands upon a pedestal which was built by the American people. That figure—Liberty enlightening the world—is emblematic of the mission of our nation among other nations of the earth. With a government which derives its powers from the consent of the governed, secures to all the people freedom of conscience, freedom of thought and freedom of speech, guarantees equal rights to all, promises special privileges to none, the United States should be an example in all that is good and the leading spirit in every movement which has for its object the uplifting of the human race.

Generous Applause.

Mr. Bryan read from manuscript, but occasionally he dropped the sheets of paper and spoke earnestly and vehemently without looking at them.

During Mr. Bryan's speech he was frequently interrupted by cheers of applause.

Sewall Notified.

When he concluded, after speaking an hour and 40 minutes, there was another demonstration, but it was brief. The far galleries had perceptibly dwindled and the crowd had shouted itself into the same condition of voice that Mr. Bryan was.

Gov. Stone, at the conclusion of the cheering, turned to Mr. Arthur Sewall, the vice presidential candidate, and in a few words formally notified him of his nomination. Mr. Sewall responded briefly, accepting the honor. At the conclusion of his remarks the meeting adjourned.

Mr. Sewall's Address.

Mr. Sewall, in his address replying to the notification of his nomination, referred to the Chicago convention as the most earnest in the history of the party, and closer and more in touch with the people. The demand for reform in our existing monetary system, he said, was the overshadowing issue before the country, made dominant by the distressed condition prevailing throughout the land. The democratic party, and, he believed the great majority of the American people, are convinced that the demonetization of silver was a wrong which should and must be righted. The single gold standard has so narrowed the base of our monetary structure that it is unstable, unsafe and is dwarfed in its power to furnish the necessary financial blood to the nation that commercial and industrial paralysis has followed. What we must have is the broad and expanding foundation of both gold and silver to support a monetary system capable of meeting the demands of a growing country, and an industrious, energetic and enterprising people, a system that will not be weakened and panic-stricken at every foreign draft upon us, a system that will maintain a parity of just values and protect us from the frequent fluctuations so disastrous to every business and industry. In free and unlimited coinage of silver and in bimetallism he saw the only remedy for existing evils. Return to silver its money function and it will appreciate and its purchasing power will increase. Take from gold its monopoly, its value will be reduced, and in due course the parity of the two metals will again obtain under natural causes. We will then have a broad and unlimited foundation for a monetary system commensurate with our country's needs and future development. To this reform the democratic party has given its pledge. Our opponents admit the wisdom of the principle but ask us to await the permission and cooperation of other nations. Our people will not wait, nor will they ask permission of any nation on earth to relieve themselves of the cause of their distress. In conclusion Mr. Sewall accepted the nomination as vice president.

THE NEGROES.

National Democratic League Listens to Reports.

Chicago, Aug. 13.—The Negro National Democratic league convention reassembled Wednesday morning and effected permanent organization by the election of the following officers: President, A. E. Manning, Indiana; vice president, Con A. Rideout, Washington; secretary, W. H. Clarke, Illinois; treasurer, W. E. Johnson, New York; chairman national executive committee, W. T. Scott, Illinois.

In the afternoon the committee on resolutions presented its report, indorsing Bryan, Sewall and silver and every plank of the Chicago platform. President Cleveland's course was strongly denounced. An attempt was made to have this part of the resolutions stricken out, but it failed, and the minority report, which favored the gold standard, was voted down, and the majority report was adopted.

Fusion in North Dakota.

Grand Forks, N. D., Aug. 13.—The democratic state convention Wednesday afternoon completed the fusion state ticket, partly nominated last week at Fargo. All counties except six were represented by full delegations. M. A. Hildreth, of Fargo, was chairman. The resolutions, unanimously adopted, indorse Bryan and Sewall, free coinage of silver, condemn republican goldocracy and pledge united support to the fusion ticket. The democratic convention nominated congressman, lieutenant governor, supreme court judge, state treasurer, railroad commissioners and one elector. Officers of the populist convention held a meeting immediately after the democrats adjourned and indorsed the democratic nominees.

New Chinese Scheme.

City of Mexico, Aug. 13.—A large number of Chinese residents on the northern frontier have petitioned the department of foreign relations to be made Mexican citizens, as this will allow them to pass freely into the United States.

Nominated for Governor.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 13.—The republican convention has nominated Hon. George N. Tillman, of Nashville, for governor by acclamation. Mr. Tillman is a prominent and highly respected lawyer of this city.

THE CAMPAIGN OPENED.

Republicans of Ohio Hold a Big Rally—Sherman Speaks.

Columbus, O., Aug. 17.—The opening meeting of the republican state and national campaign was called to order Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock by Gov. Bushnell. Gov. Bushnell made a short speech of welcome and then introduced Senator Sherman.

Senator Sherman, in his speech, claims, in the first place that the fluctuation of the relative value of gold and silver is constantly changing, and that this fluctuation cannot be prevented by law. He says that both gold and silver are necessary as money, silver to supply the daily wants of life and gold to measure the larger transactions of business, especially in exchanges with foreign nations.

He then went on to review the coinage history of the United States. He said that in 1853 the silver dollar had disappeared from the current coins of the United States and was practically and purposely demonetized.

Then in explanation of the act of '73 Senator Sherman said that it had been framed for the purpose of carrying out the pledge to pay in coin or its equivalent all bonds of the United States and to redeem the United States notes at the earliest practicable moment in coin. To do this it become necessary to revise the various coinage laws. He continues:

"This was promptly and very carefully done by a bill framed in the treasury department while Mr. Boutwell was secretary. It was thoroughly considered by the experts of that department and was printed and submitted to all persons in the United States who were supposed to be familiar with the coinage laws. The bill, containing 67 sections, accompanied by a mass of information that fills a volume, was sent to congress April 25, 1870, by Secretary Boutwell and its passage was strongly recommended by him. This bill omitted from the coins of the United States the silver dollar, precisely as was done in 1853, but provided for the coinage of the fractional parts of the dollar in accordance with the act of that year. This bill was pending in congress for three years —was carefully considered in both houses, and special attention was called to the omission of the 412½ grains silver dollar, which was never in the bill at any stage, and the reasons for this omission given. It was finally determined at the urgent request of members from the Pacific coast to insert among the silver coins a trade dollar containing 420 grains of standard silver, but this dollar was made like the minor coins, a legal tender for five dollars only.

Discussing the results of free coinage, Mr. Sherman said that it would violate every contract for the payment of money made since January 1, 1879. All forms of money, he says, have been maintained at par since then, but if free coinage is authorized then the market value of silver bullion becomes the standard for payments on all contracts made in the past.

Then in reference to the creditor class he said that there were among money lenders some men who merit the epithet, "bloodthirsty Shylocks, aristocrats, bloodsuckers, extortionists," but the great body of the creditors of our country are among the thrifty. One great body of creditors, he said, were the 970,000 union soldiers, their widows and orphans. Another class were the depositors in saving institutions. Free coinage, said Mr. Sherman, would wipe out nearly one-half the value of life insurance which provident people have paid to secure in case of their death some support ana protection to wife and children.

Gov. Bushnell next introduced Senator-elect Foraker. Among other things he said:

"Our declaration in 1892 and our declaration in 1896 are both declarations in favor of bimetallism when you can have it, and we think we can have it by an international agreement, but declarations in favor of maintaining until then the existing gold standard, and not being allowed to be driven to a silver standard."

At the evening meeting Lieut. Gov. A. W. Jones presided, and made a brief speech, after which he introduced Gen. Woodford, of New York. He said in part:

Our mints are open to-day to the free and unlimited coinage of silver without charge and without restriction except as to weight and fineness. The democracy demands this free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one. In this demand they are supported by the populists. The republican party pledges itself to promote an international agreement for unlimited coinage of silver, but insists that until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved. The democracy demands that the legal tender paper shall be redeemable in coin. The people's party demands that the volume of circulating medium be speedily increased.

Honest fulfillment of populistic pledges would put us on a paper basis, redeemable in paper and paper alone and just where no civilized land in the world is to-day. It would be a currency of soap bubbles, redeemable in soap bubbles, affording no basis or foundation for any superstructure of business, farming or labor. Irredeemable paper money always begets and compels speedy and continuous increase. Such increase has always ended in repudiation. The world has had three experiences of populistic finances within the last 200 years.

THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

Victoria's Review of Affairs of the British Nation.

London, Aug. 15.—The queen's speech, prorouguing parliament, was delivered to the house of commons at 6:15 o'clock Friday afternoon. The speech says:

"My relations with the powers continue to be friendly. The hostile movements of the dervishes in the valley of the Nile against the positions occupied by Italy east of that river convinced me that it was necessary for Egypt to take steps toward arresting their advance. By my advice and sanction an expedition has undertaken to restore to the government of the khedive, as far as Dongola, the territory which was lost a decade ago. The operations of the expedition are proceeding, and by the brilliant action of Ferket a large portion of the territory has already been recovered.

"The condition of portions of Turkey continues to cause anxiety, and at present Crete is the principal center of the disturbances. I have observed strict neutrality, but in conjunction with the powers I endeavored to reconcile the contestants by proposing a system of government which should be equitable and equally acceptable to Christians and Mussulmans.

"I regret that a serious rebellion, signalized with cruel murders, has broken out in Matabele land, the rising having extended into Mashonaland. The work of defense and repression has been undertaken, the settlers displaying great courage. They have since been reinforced by imperial and other troops."

The speech refers to the Matabele country and expresses hope that the rebels will shortly accept the clemency which has been offered to them.

Referring to the matter of the delimitation of the Indian frontier, the speech says that the agreements between the shah of Persia and the ameer of Afghanistan, upon the subject, are friendly to the Chitrals. Relief garrisons sent to Chitral have received the cooperation of the tribesmen.

Her majesty expresses her thanks to the house of commons for their provisions and services for the year and concludes by saying that she has given her consent with pleasure to the measures for naval defenses, for lessening the agricultural taxes, for the protection of the cattle imports from disease and measures for various other purposes, including the Irish land bill.

In bidding farewell to the members of the house her majesty prays that they may receive the blessings of providence and rest from their labors.

Killed by a Negro.

Spartenburg, S. C., Aug. 17.—Capt. John H. Blassingame, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of this city and state, was shot and killed by Chris Cannon, a negro boy, for the purpose of robbery.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

A Collision to Order.

The Press, of Minneapolis, is responsible for the following announcement:

One of the most novel exhibitions ever presented to the people of the United States will be given the people of Minneapolis, St. Paul and the surrounding towns, Aug. 23.

A railroad collision in all its grandeur, minus only the horrible details usually contingent upon such an incident, will occur on that date. The exhibition will take place on one of the railroads a few miles out of Minneapolis. Two engines and two cars attached to each will constitute the material which will be totally destroyed in the consummation of such an undertaking. The engines will be from those employed in the service of the Northern Pacific Railway Company. They will be bought outright, as also will the cars from the same company, and on the date mentioned they will bid farewell to many miles of open prairie and high mountains over which they have been wont to travel. Two large locomotives, drawing behind them each a flat car and a caboose, loaded with iron or stone, each seemingly intent upon demolishing the other, running at full speed, and coming together with a crash that shakes the earth for miles around.

Important to Land Squatters.

A letter of instructions from the commissioner of the general land office has been sent out which directs the manner in which the law, aprroved June 3, 1896, shall be followed. This law amends the homestead law in relation to commutations of homestead entries, and is of vast importance to settlers. Under the old homestead law a settler could come in after 14 months' settlement and commute his entry to cash. The 14 months, however, had to date from the day of entry, no matter how long the settler had squatted in anticipation of entry. Under the new act all commutations are to be allowed after the expiration of 14 months from date of settlement. It also makes another change. Constructive residence from date of entry will be recognized where settlement is made and residence established within six months thereafter.

G. A. R. Rates.

From points within a radius of 250 miles from St. Paul all railroads will sell encampment tickets at one fare for the round trip, but there has been, until now, a rule that these cheap tickets would not be sold until Tuesday, Sept. 1, thus making it impossible for people within 250 miles of St. Paul, in all directions, to arrive until the first day of the encampment had passed.

A decision has just been made that half-fare tickets will be sold by all roads for trains arriving in St. Paul Monday, Aug. 31, and Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 1 and 2.

This rule will be greatly appreciated by everybody in Wisconsin, Minnesota, the Dakotas and Northern Iowa, from which states about 100,000 people may now be expected to attend the encampment.

A Novel Display

A unique display which will attract much attention at the State Fair will be made by the Minnesota penitentiary. The machines which the convicts operate in making twine will be placed on exhibition and there will be dummy convicts wearing the prision suits of the different grades. In the Minnesota penitentiary when a prisoner begins his confinement he enters a middle grade. After he had been there six months he either grades up or down. If his behavior has been good, he wears a cap and suit that indicates that fact to all who see him. If he has been refactory it is also shown by his striped suit. Certain privileges are accorded prisioners who do not break rules and and these privileges are taken away from those who misbehave.

News in Brief.

Superintendent J. N. Tate desires the address of any deaf mute who has not attended school.

The Minnesota Association of Naval Veterans of St. Paul will act during the encampment as a committee of the whole to look after the comfort of all visiting shipmates.

The Security bank of Duluth has closed its doors. Heavy withdrawals and poor collections were the causes.

George W. Brand and Louis Page were drowned at Duluth. Brand was trying to save Page.

Wm. Snure, of Lakefield, committed suicide by taking laudanum.

It is proposed to change the name of the town of Thief River Falls, in Polk county, to Beau Falls. An application for this change has already been filed.

The city hall at Alden was struck by lightning, and had it not been for the waterworks the building would have been destroyed. The new scenery was totally ruined. The damage is all covered by insurance. The mill was also struck but no damage was done.

As near as can be learned from information obtainable the partial remains of a human being found at Wells in the new stock yard, were those of a man who was probably murdered. It appears that last November a Polander farmer near here found on the ground a bloody quilt and a suit of clothes, which he took home and wore out, saying nothing about the affair.

At St. Cloud during a recent wind storm several buildings were wrecked, including the big warehouse of Grinois & Gregory. Trees were broken like pipe stems, signs and awnings scattered promiscuously, numerous small outbuildings demolished and many chimneys blown down. The storm lasted about six minutes and was followed by heavy rain. The damage to crops was great. The wind was so strong boards were driven through box cars in the Great Northern yard.

Near Deer river, one of the camps of Freeman & Gray, the extensive lumbermen of St. Cloud, was burned and one of the laborers killed.

A well arranged plan for the escape of the prisoners in the Stearns county jail was recently unearthed. All the prisoners were ordered into their cells and an investigation instituted. The result was the finding of a 38-caliber revolver in a plumbing pipe, every chamber loaded, and an abundant supply of cartridges in the bottom of a salt dish, covered with salt, two razors, two saws, two jack-knives and a sling shot. The revolver was in a case, and had a long string attached.

M. H. Smith was appointed postmaster at Big Stone, Big stone county, vice E. Bowman.

The Garden South.

The South is destined to be, and is rapidly becoming, the garden of the United States. Here life is easier to live, the rigorous winters do not eat up the fruits of the toil of summer, nor are the summers so trying as many northern people have supposed. "I used to live only half the year," said a northern farmer recently settled in the south, "and I used to work all the time then. Now I work half the time and live all the year through."

Home seekers' excursion tickets will be sold over the Monon Route to nearly all points in the south at the rate of one first class fare (one way); tickets good returning on any Tuesday or Friday within 31 days from date of sale. Liberal stop-overs are allowed. These excursions start (and tickets are sold) Aug. 17, 18 and 31; Sept. 1, 14, 15; Oct. 5, 6, 19 and 20. Call on any agent of the Monon Route for further information, or address FRANK J. REED, G. P. A., Chicago.

"JOHN," said Mrs. Wilbur, "why don't you brush that fly off the top of your head? He's been there three minutes." "Oh, let him stay," said John. "I'm not using the top of my head just now."—Harper's Bazar.

Summer Resorts on the Monon.

The Summer resorts on the Monon Route are having a "big season." West Baden and French Lick Springs are more popular than ever, and Paoli has started a new sanitarium to take the overflow. The waters of these springs have been recommended by prominent physicians as superior in their curative properties to those of Hot Springs, White Sulphur, or even the noted spas and 'bads" of Germany. West Baden indeed has been fitly called "the Carlsbad of America." Cedar Lake is prettier than ever and just as full of fish. The railroad company has a fine park there and is soon to build a new station.

THE LADY—"It runs right into something the minute you let go. Oh, I'm sure I can never learn to ride it." Instructor—"Stick to it, ma'am; you'll learn soon. Why, I taught an idiot to ride last week."

A Wonderful Phenomenon.

The man who should pass through life without experiencing a twinge of indigestion, might be fitly regarded as a wonderful phenomenon. We doubt if such a privileged mortal has ever existed. If so, we have never seen him. But thousands are known to be daily relieved of dyspepsia by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the popular remedy for that truly national complaint, as well as for fever and ague, debility, constipation, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

ALICE—"Oh, Edith, the honeymoon is beginning to wane. Percy called me plain Alice to-day." Edith—"And yet you are not so plain, dear."—Tit-Bits.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

DELANO, FRIDAY, AUG. 21, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

The State Fair opens up with Bicycle Day, Monday, Aug. 31.

—Several car loads of lumber have been unloaded here this week, for the new school house at Watertown.

—Teacher's examination is being held today, under the supervision of County Supt. Lee.

—Street Commissioner Belt is around repairing sidewalks today.

—C. W. Kerrick has had his residence nicely painted and now lives in his new home snug as a bug in a rug.

—Gollmar Bros. show was in town Monday, exhibiting both afternoon and evening. It was up to the average traveling show. They had crowded tents.

—The Waverly Picketts and Delano Cricketts played a game of base ball on the latters grounds, last Wednesday, resulting in a score of 29 to 3 in favor of the Cricketts.

—A young man called at our office and showed us a state map, also, King's Hand Book of the United States, both of which are very fine. He solicits your patronage. Give him a chance to show his works and it will cost you nothing.

—The village council intended to have a meeting Monday evening but some of them wanted to find Gutzwiller and have it postponed so they could go to the show. As at least three of them are reported to have attended the show we presume they found him.

—Prof. James A. Wharton has informed us that "We have a gold club" in town already organized. And if we will organize a silver club he will meet us in joint debate on the silver and the tariff question; or on the silver question alone. Not in the habit of being bluffed we at once said "Come on when ever you are ready." "We are great on Tariff is a Tax" "We have the people about here already learned that.' We further provided that "every man bring his club." So now as soon as the silver club is ready the disputants will endeavor to see which club has the best grounds for its existance. If you want to see the fun hustle about and prepare for the occasion. The Prof. is something of a stump speaker and will, doubtless, give us the gist of the faith that is in a gold standard man.

ARISE.

Arise! for the day is passing
While you lay dreaming on;
Your brothers are cased in armor,
And forth to fight are gone;
Your place in the ranks awaits you;
Each man has a part to play;
The past and the future are nothing
In the face of the stern to-day.
—Our Dumb Animals.

Among our Exchanges.

It is to bad that the gold press cannot agree with Washington, Hamilton, Jefferson, Jackson, Lincoln and Blaine--bad for the gold press.—Penny Press.

The Delano Eagle last week tried to reconcile its readers to the fact that the g. o. p. in this country stands a very slim show, which is growing slimmer. Don't look much like the silver "craze" was dying out, does it? —Maple Lake Messenger.

Senator Thurston has crawfished on his charge that Mr. Bryan has been in the pay of the silver mine owners. He says he only quoted what the Chicago Chronicle said, and he has no proof that the Chronicle told the truth. But he has not the manliness to apologize for circulating the lie.—Duluth Herald.

The Republican stump orators are debarred this year from using one stock argument which they worked for all it was worth in past campaigns. They cannot claim that the Democratic platform pleases England. It is their own gold standard platform, adopted at St. Louis, of which England is enamored. —Duluth Herald.

A dollar cannot be an honest dollar that takes the profits of the producer of the necessaries of life and enriches the speculator and money lender. Stand by protection, but insist upon the restoration of a double standard, the money of the constitution and our forefathers and you will make no mistake.—St. Peter Free Press

Miss Nellie Giblin one of the highest esteemed and most accomplished young ladies of Waverly, daughter of John Giblin, leading merchant of Wright Co., will be united in marriage with Dr. John V. O'Conner, Eden Valley's rising young physician, accomplished musician and splendid gentleman, at Waverly, on August 19t.—Eden Valley Journal.

And now it is Tom Lowry's Minneapolis Tribune that is shocked! horrified! at the "blasphemy" (?) of that part of Mr. Bryan's speech at Chicago, referring to the single gold standard, in which he said: "You shall not press down upon the brow of labor this crown of thorns: you shall not crucify mankind upon a cross of gold." So it is blasphemy, is it, to refer to the bondocracy as attempting to crucify labor on a cross of gold? Well, if so be, then make the most of it.—Waseca Herald.

Teachers' Fall Examinations

Teachers' fall examinations will be held as follows:
Buffalo and Howard Lake, Aug. 18, 19.
Delano and Monticello, Aug. 21 and 22.
Annandale, Sept. 25 and 26.

J. F. LEE,
43-2t. Co. Supt. of Schools.

Personal.

Mesdames Hawker and Ball drove to Minneapolis today.

Miss Merel Jones, visited Long Lake and Lake Minnetonka last week.

Alfred Holstrum, of Minneapolis, is making a few days visit with Fay Parslow.

Mrs. F. H. Lindsley and Laura, and Mrs. Mulford drove to Monticello yesterday.

Mrs. Harlow Ames and two daughters, of Dassel, visited with Mrs. Jones last week.

Mrs. John Czoek, of Minneapoli, returned home yesterday after visiting friends here.

Walter Palmerter and Harry McKinney, of Dassel, are making a couple of weeks visit with Mr. Jones and family.

Among Minneapolis people in town this week were Mr. James Patton, Mr. Peter McCormick and family and Mr. John Walker and family.

County Cullings.

The Republicans had a wild and Woolley time at their Judicial Convention. Them Hennepin Republicans simply wouldn't hear to anybody or anything, but nominated Steele and Simpson of Minneapolis. The country delegates walked out, and are apt to cast in their lot with the people's choice this time and help re-elect Judges Smith and Pond.

Some complaints are heard in various places concerning the length of time required for mail to get about the county. Uncle Sam is thought to be devoting too much time to polititcs just now, and neglecting business.

Fusion of Forces.

Tomorrow the Peoples Party will hold a County Convention to arrange for a County ticket. The idea seems to be to place in nomination part of a ticket and leave part open for the Democrats to nominate at their convention. Usually fusion is poor business but this year it looks as if properly done it would carry the day. It is to be hoped that both parties will find their very best men for nominees an make an honest effort at reform in politics all along the line. There is a great opportunity. Let the people embrace it. Adopt no foolish resolutions, and put up no men that will weaken the ticket and the people will do the rest.

INDEPENDENCE

All the farmers are through stacking, some of them have been threshing out of the shock, but hardly think the wheat is up to last year as to quantity or quality.

Miss Mable Adams, of Minneapolis, is visiting with George Taylor's family.

Some of the Indepence people attended church at Rockford last Sunday.

C. Johnson, of Rockford, was seen in Independence last Sunday, on his wheel.

Do not hear much of any thing now days only the money question and the 53 cent silver dollar talked about. Would some one please tell me when this government made the 53 cent silver dollar. There is no such thing as a 53 cent silver dollar in this country nor never was nor never will be.

We have a silver dollar containing 371¼ grains fine or 412½ standard which is current among the merchants and is worth just 100 cents and is a legal tender for all debts public and private unless otherwise stipulated in the contract.

On one side of it is the American Eagle and in plain letters it says, "In God we trust. United States of America. One Dollar. On the other side it says "E Pluribus Unum" which means one composed of many. Now if under this caption we have only a 53 cent silver dollar then Congress and the law that created it is responsible for putting this libelous thing upon us.

But, Mr. Editor, our silver dollar is the money of the constitution, and men may preach that it is not until they are black in the face and it will not change the value of the dollar. If the republican party believe what they preach why are they talking against the silver dollar and silver mining. When you talk tariff they say American industries must be protected, is not our silver mines one of our greatest industries? Yes. But some philosopher of the Republican variety has made a discovery and found out that silver is no good for money any more. Grover Cleveland and John G. Carlisle a second addition in this money question, have made unto themselves an ideal God, not of wood and stone, but a modern Egyptian calf made from the gold of Mammon.

John Sherman more than 20 years ago fathered the bill that demonetized silver and now he with all the sacredness of a priest gets up in Congress and tells the people we have got only a 53 cent silver dollar.

"If scarcely the righteous be saved, where shall the sinner and ungodly appear."

"They say a prophet is not without honor save in his own country", and I predict this prophesy. That if this country elects a President on a single gold standard platform, and the bankers, money loaners and bond holders have things go as they have mapped outbefore time, the laborers, the producer and man of all work may bid farewell to prosperity. While we are playing the fool in this country quarreling and fighting over politics, England and the money power are laying plans torob us. "What fools we mortals be." —Shakerpeare.

Why does not the Mc Kinley side of the house raise the question about tin plate industry as they did a few years ago.

If this country only wants one kind of money as a standard who will control and have the most of it.

Any man unless he has got his eves shut knows it willl not be the poor man nor the producer nor the common man.

If I was a betting man I would wager my whole farm against a 2nd class peanut stand that we will never have silver enough in this contry to hurt us. As our population, trade and commerce increases the more money we need, so I would say to you gold standard fellows do not get frightened and run wild, you better stay by the money that will do you most good and not run after false and idol Gods.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

THE WRIGHT COUNTY W. C. T. U.

MRS. ELIZABETH C. FRISBIE, Co. Supt.

PRESS WORK.

We are glad to pass on the good news that Miss Clara Parrish is to have a companion in her round-the-world mission. Miss Jennie Smith, daughter of a prominent physician of Paris, Ill., and sister of Dr. Orrin Smith, who occupies the chair of theory and practice in the Hahenmann College, Chicago, has decided to make the trip with her friend. She is a Y and devotedly attatched to Miss Parrish, who describes her as a "dainty little body in her early twenties." Miss Smith expects to pay her own expenses, but we feel sure that white-ribboners on the route will often be only too glad to provide for her entertainment in order that Miss Parrish may be strengthened by her help and companionship.

Our new Red Letter day is one which commends itself not alone because of the love we bear to the gracious lady whose birth it commemorates, but because of the idea its name conveys and the possibilities for our work which are wrapped up in that name. Lady Henry's generous sharing of her beautiful grounds with the poor of London has become proverbal. Indeed, she has been called "a whole fresh air mission in herself," and, therefore, it was a specially happy thought on the part of the World's union to set apart her birthday for this modern beneficence. The ways for its observance are numberless. An admirable one, it seems to us, would be for the overworked members of our country unions, who in the midst of fresh air are too busy to enjoy it, to spend a quiet day in the woods and fields. An old-fashened picnic, in which not to much is attempted, could not fail to be helpful. But, by all means, do not make it what Josiah Allen's wife calls "a pleasure exertion," for of all exertions that is the most trying. City unions, and Y's especially, could well utilize the day by taking a few of the children from the slums into God's country for a breath of His own fresh air. We are sure numberless plans will suggest themselves, and that this will speedily become one of our most popular gala days.

Mrs. Mary E. Metzgar, of Moline, Ill., represented the National W. C. T. U. before the platform committee of the Democratic convention. She carried the petition, which had already been presented to the committees of the Prohibition and Republican conventions, and which asks, among other things, for woman suffrage, a single standard of purity and equal pay for equal work. Mrs. Metzgar was most courteously received, and her introductory remarks elicited vigorous applause. She said, in substance: "Twelve years ago our leader, Miss Willard, took the pulse and temperature of the political parties through their National conventions. She feels this year that it is time for another diagnosis to be made. We find them so far in a very feverish condition. As Miss Willard is on the other side of the Atlantic, I am here to represent her and the largest body of women in the world—the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the outgrowth of the crusade which is fittingly called 'the whirlwind of the Lord.' I am glad to present to you this wonderful petition-a petition representing two hundred thousand of the best and truest women of America, signed by the state and territorial officers of every state and territory in our nation.' Mrs. Metzgar then exhibited the beautiful memorial, which elicited much praise from all who saw it, and several members of the committee begged for a copy of the unique document. Nothing could more clearly illustrate the change wrought by the past twelve years in the status of a woman and temperance than the reception accorded at the W. C. T. U. representative by this committee of Democratic leaders, prsided over by a Southern senator. A respectful hearing, however, will not altogether compensate the petitioners for more practical consideration of their claims-and prohibtion and woman suffrage planks in the Democratic platform are conspicuous by their absence.

The North Carolina W. C. T. U. No. 2 (colored) has been reorganized and renamed. It will hereafter be known as the Thurman W. C. T. U. of North Carolina, in recognition of the invaluable services of Mrs. Lucy Thurman, National superintendent of work among colored people. The union will affiliate directly with the National, Miss M. A. Lynch, president, having been elected delegate to St. Louis convention. Mrs. Cartland, president of North Carolina union No. 1, was present at the convention of the Thurman union, and other white women were there as fraternal delegates. "We believe," writes Miss Lynch, "the W. C. T. U. to be a powerful factor in the uplifting of our race as of all other races, and we want to push the work among our people of this state.

Republican County Convention and Primary Election.

A Republican County Convention for the County of Wright will be held at the Court House in the Village of Buffalo, in said County, on Wednesday the 16th day of September 1896, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following named county offices of said County, viz:

County Auditor, County Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, Judge of Probate, County Attorney, Clerk of the District Court, Superintendent of Schools, County Surveyor, Coroner, Court Commissioner and County Commissioners for the first, third, and fifth Commissioners Districts of said County. Also to elect forty one delegates to represent said Wright County in the Republican Legislative Convention for the 38th Legislative District of Minnesota, to be held in the Village of Buffalo, in said Wright County, on the 17th day of September 1896, to nominate four candidates for the Legislature in said District.

The several election districts in said Wright county are entitled to representation in said county convention as follows; One delegate at large from each election district and one delegate additional for every forty votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for Knute Nelson for Governor in 1894, to wit:

Albion	4	Rockford	5
Buffalo	4	Silver Creek	3
Chatham	2	Southside	3
Clearwater	4	Stockholm	6
Cokato	6	Victor	4
Corinna	2	Woodland	3
Frankfort	2	Annandale V	3
Franklin	4	Buffalo V	4
French Lake	5	Cokato V	3
Maple Lake	2	Delano V	3
Marysville	4	Howard Lake	3
Middleville	4	Maple Lake	1
Monticello	4	Monticello	4
Otsego	3	Montrose	2
		Waverly	1

The primary elections for the election of said delegates will be held in all of the said election districts of said Wright County, on Tuesday September the 15th 1896, the polls to be opened at 7:30 o'clock P. M. and remain open until 9 o'clock P. M., one hour and thirty minutes.

Said primaries to be conducted under the primary election law of this State; the town and Village committees must fix the place for holding the said primary elections, and give at least six days notice of the time and place of holding the same as the law requires.

Dated August 24th 1896.

By order of the county committee,
48-2t J. T. Alley, chairman.

BOURKE COCHRAN in his New York speech, for which it is supposed he received $1,000, tries hard to set the laboring men of the east against the farmers of the west and south. Shame on you Bourke! if it is true that you was hired to help down Bryan, the people's choice, for resorting to such means as that to do it.

THE St. Paul Globe says: "Mr. Cochran's address is a true speech, a manly speech, a Democratic speech, a great speech. "We hope that every voter in this country will read it and ponder it before next November."

We would like to know of the Globe, Who told you so? As it is quite evident you are not a capable judge on all these points. As for reading it we hope all the voters in the land will compare it sentence by sentence with Bryan's master piece at Madison Square, and with his Chicago speech, and then do their own thinking, as to whose speech is best; as to whose speech is true, manly, Democratic, great; and not rely on such praises as daily newspapers may give to anything smacking of favor to a gold standard, and be sure and vote as your own conscience tells you.

Breaking The Rings.

If you want to see for your self how the political rings that have so long run Minnesota politics are being smashed to pieces just attend a free gold and silver meeting and hear the veteran Republicans and gray haired Democrats and the well read young men of today cheering in concert whenever the name of John Lind for governor is mentioned. The opposition papers have begun denouncing John Lind as a repudiator of his debts, as an infidel, as a corporation attorney, and no telling what all else they will find to heap upon one of their own number, for Mr. Lind has been a Republican for years; the Republicans sent him to Congress three times; he ran ahead of his ticket, and they ought not now to try to make us believe they would thus honor such a man as they now would have us believe Mr. Lind to be. If that is the kind of mon they honer with office what assurance have we that their present candidates are any better? At any rate, so long as it will smash the ring rule of Minnesota politics let us have even what they tell us our candidate is. He can not well do worse than some of his predecessors.

New York Politics.

The Buffalo Gazette, of Minnesota, has convulsions which we quote elsewhere over our using Mr. Bryan's Chicago sentence, "Burn down your cities," without publishing the whole speech, or such parts as they think explained what Mr. Bryan meant.

There is no doubt that Mr. Bryan said "Burn down your cities." If he used it only as an illustration, we use it only as an illustration of him. We do not want to be unfair to Mr. Bryan or his speech, but if he don't mean what he says about what he said we must say in all candor to our Minnesota Buffalo friend, if he will kindly explain the rest of Bryan's Chicago speech and then explain Bryan's New York speech, and harmonize them both, we will try and print it also. In the meantime, however, "Burn down your cities" stands alone as an illustration of Mr. Bryan and his real intention.—New York Dispatch.

The New York Dispatch will probably think when it reads the election returns that Minnesota and the whole country has had convulsions. Such tactics as the Dispatch is pursueing is enough to convulse most anyvody; if only with laughter.

War Against Tie Trust.

After an absence of nearly two weeks, Commissioner Nesbitt appeared in his office bright and early Monday morning. His usually smiling face was clouded with a frown as he read letters telling of the short cotton crop.

During his absence the commissioner has by no means been idle, and has almost completed plans by which he will get ahead of the cotton tie trust. Yesterday he received samples of the new wire cotton tie and sent them to farmers in different parts of the state to be tried by them.

"I think the new tie will prove to be as good for all uses as the old one," said Colonel Nesbitt, "and if the farmers will use it we will be able to stop the extortions of the trust.

"They saw that there would be a great demand for ties and for that reason they raised the price. They knew that the farmer would be compelled to buy at any price they might name. It is said that the reasons for raising the price is because the price of steel has advanced. But I find, on investigation, that the price of steel had not advanced when the ties were made."

Commissioner Nesbitt feels certain that the new tie will be entirely successful and will do the work as satisfactorily as the tie used by the trust. He is waiting with impatience the result of the trial of the ties. If the tie proves successful all farmers will be notified of the fact and will be requested to buy this kind only. In this way it is hoped to bring the trust to terms. —Atlanta Constitution.

Fusion of Forces.

Fusion of forces between the Democrats, People's party and Free Silver Republicans in Wright County seems to have been effected at Buffalo, on Saturday, by the people's party nominating Free Silver Republicans and People's party men to fill the offices of Treasurer, Sheriff, County Attorney, Register of Deeds, and Clerk of Court, leaving the offices of Auditor, School Superintendent, Judge of Probate, Coroner and Court Commissioner for the Democrats.

It looks as if the People's Party had taken the best offices. But they had called their convention first and were ready to put up a full ticket and make a determined fight to show their strength, not hoping to elect anybody, alone. The Democrats sent a committee to confer with them. To make a fusion ticket if possible. They failed to agree with the committee of the People's Party. Then the Democrats in the People's Party Convention offered, through James McDonnell, spokesman, to let the People's party nominate five officers and to take the balance and be satisfied, No-body objected. The five above mentioned were selected. Then Tanner and Mealey kicked, awfully, but McDonnell refused to take back anything. Chairman Nugent refused to say anything, even though called on. So it does look as if the Democrats could not possibly do better now than to abide by the bargain, though a bad one, the best they could get.

If the Democrats should conclude to put up a ticket other than to fill out what is left for them by their bargain of course the People's Party would fill out theirs and the Republicans would have a walk away.

Even though the bargain seems hard and some of our old warriors have been outgeneraled it is better now to make the most of it and with solid phalanx of united forces press on to gain a victory over the gold standard Republicans. In union there is strength. This is to be the People's victory. Let the Democrats not hinder it.

French Trying to Even Up.

The Wright County Times and Clearwater News. French's two publications contain the following laughable article: Laughable to people in Delano. And if there is as much truth in the referance to other towns as there is in that concerning Delano it will be laughable to people of the other places mentioned.

"The outlook for the Republicrns in Wright county never looked brighter than now. Reports from Cokato, Howard Lake, Delano, Annandale and Buffalo show that the republican campfires are burning brightly. In the village of Delano there is a club composed of 100 all residents of village, among whom are such names as G. W. Kerrick, C. G. Roosen, Geo. Shafer, Louis Proost, John Coolen, Chas. Belt, H. Whitteman prominint democrats. In Buffalo 168 Republicans and sound money men have signed the roll pledging their votes to McKinley. This is three more than there were votes cast for Harrison four years ago, while there are yet 25 more republican votes who will act with the republican party and vote for sound money. The club list in Monticello has nearly reached the 200 mark, and it will pass it before many day. Reports from all over the country are more than encouraging, and the proposition made by our democratic and free silver friends to double the wealth of the silver bullion and stock owners will be repudiated by an overwhelming vote in November."

As for those mentioned in Delano, C. W. Kerrick says he never signed their gold paper. C. G. Roosen is the banker, and believes our country should issue more bonds on which to do business. He tore the head off his ticket when Cleveland and Blaine run against each other. Louis Probst is the bank cashier, says he favors gold but fails to give any good reason why. John Coolen says he is a silver man and never signed, it is the boy "J. H." and the boy says he signed "J. H." and it should have been published so instead of trying to ring the old gent into it. Charles Belt is a People's Party man, and never saw their list and is for free silver. A. W. Whittman, druggist, when told of the article in the times said if they mean me. It's a d— lie, I never signed their paper. George P. Schaffer one of our leading merchants says: "I never saw this list."

If Brother French can't give better work than that, which must react, in great shape, he had better quit. If that's the kind of clubs they are organizing for McKinley all over the country he has poor backing for election day. They may do to draw campaign funds on but cannot hope to elect their candidate.

From A German Editor.

The assumption of some of our gold standard friends that they own the German vote, does not seem to be supported by the following sentiment of the Chicago Freie Presse, as translated by the Literary Digest:

"The United States have demonetized silver without waiting for the cooperation of other nations, and we deem it more unnecessary to wait for the assistance of Europe in our efforts in behalf of free coinage of both metals, since such cooperation can not be had. Let this great nation manage her own affairs. Under free-coinage laws the mint value of the two metals has always regulated their market value. So it will be again. Under a new free-coinage law the metal in an eagle will be worth ten silver dollars and the metal in ten silver dollars will be worth an eagle. But under free coinage of both metals depression will end. There will be money enough to carry on the business of the country, and agriculture, industry and commerce will prosper as in former good times."

This is good sense and good patriotism. The Freie Presse is one of the leiding German papers of the country, and represents the views of a large German constituency in the upper Mississippi valley. They and their paper stand by the interests of their adopted country.

Linds Political Strength.

John Lind represented the Second Minnesota district in congress three terms, from March 4, 1887, to March 4, 1893. He refused further nomination, although there was practicaly no opposition to continued nomination and election.

John Lind's phenomenal popularity and poliitical strength has alarmed the atate machine, and so the Merriam press has tried to belittle it by citing the fact that in 1890, when the Republicans of Minnesota came near being swamped completely and narrowly escaped by saying one or two candidates out of a hundred—that Lind got a smaller majority than in 1888 and 1886.

This amusing argument was treated by Lind in his Duluth speech, according to the Herald, as follows:

"I find something here I had almost forgotten," said he, "a clipping from the News Tribune (jeers and cries of "never mind that!") in referance to myself. I trust this statement is not a fair sample of the argument and the truth you get. This paper says I did not carry my own county the last time I ran for office. The truth is that I ran 260 votes ahead of the Republican ticket headed by Merriam—who by the way heads it by proxy now (Laughter and cries "that's so.")—and in the district I ran 6,000 votes ahead of Merriam. It also fell to my lot that year to be the only Republican congressman returned from this state. If those are circumstances discouraging to a young man in politics then I don't know anything about politics." (Applause)

Our Merriam-Hanna gold standard friends would do well to tackle some easier problem than John Lind's strength and popularity.—Penny Press.

Test of Prosperity.

I know of no test of prosperity absolutely infallible except the rate of wages paid to laborers. —Bourke Cochran's Speech.

If Mr. C. got a thousand dollars for that speech, it was gold wages.

Did the orator ever think of the farmer who toils the year round and stores his granaries with grain which he can hardly get enough for to pay him for harvesting and marketing?

McKinley's Big Advantage.

They say that Mr. Bryan had to go away from home in order to obtain an audience, while McKinley doesn't have to go out of his own door-yard.—Cedar Rapids Republican.

Of course the wealthy flock about the standard bearer who will assist them in making their hoarded money more valuable. While most of those who advocate the cause represented by Mr. Bryan have othe use for their wealth than wasting it toadying about the Presidential nominees residence, looking for a fat office for themselves or theit friends in case their man is elected.

A Word to Travelers.

Though our vast West is rapidly becoming tramping ground to the hordes of restless folk who periodically abandon heath and home to wander far afield in search of new scenes, yet there are still too many eastern people who spend all their vacations abroad, and have never been west of the Alleghanies. For these there yet remains an exquisite pleasure, unlike any other, and never to be duplicated,—a first view and those keenly enjoyed first impressions of some of Nature's rarest miracle spots.

A word of warning, however, is needed: every year's delay is robbing some of these places of their greatest charm, for the hand of civilization and progress is in one sense a destroyer and it is stretching that hand to the most coveted and secret haunts of the miracle worker.—From "Wonderlands of the West," in Demorest's Magazine for September.

Dr. Ridpath on Silver.

Dr. John Clark Ridpath the eminent historian has been nominated for Congress from the Fifth District of Indiana. The National Bimetallist quotes him as having among other things, said:

NEW MEANING FOR "DOLLAR."

"Not a single dictionary or encyclopedia in the English language before the year 1878 ever defined dollar in any terms other than of silver. In that year the administrators of the estate of Noah Webster, deceased, cut the plates of our standard lexicon and inserted a new definition that had become necessary in order to throw a penumbra of rationality around the international gold conspiracy.

There have been several quotations published from time to time from James G. Blaine's silver speech in the United States on Febuary 7th, 1878. Some of the gold bug organs deny the authenticity of these quotations. We desire to say that they have been verified and are correct. The entire speech is a valuable addition to the literature of the day upon the silver question. It will be found on pages 820 and 821 Congressional Record: Volume 1, Part 1 Second Session, Forty-fifth Congress.

FREE SILVER TO THE FRONT.

Free silver is the one great issue before the people in this campaign. The campaign is the hottest for years, and waxing warmer daily. It is bound to equal that of 1860, when Stephen A. Douglas, and Abraham Lincoln and Breckinridge and Bell were pitted against each other for the Presidency, and when the plain railsplitter from Illinoi's broad prairies carried off the plum. The people are now debating the one great question. They are determining in their own minds how they will vote. They are bound to do what they themselves consider right. They are fast finding out that the great daily newspapers, many of them, are only leading them around in a circle trying to befuddle and bewilder them. That instead of setting up plain guides for them to go by they are telling them different yarns about 53 cent dollars making wealthy mine owners richer while they make the laboring man poorer. Such things have been carried on long enough, and now that the orators are out helping to muddle matters the average man begins to see through their schemes and reasons a little for himself. He begins to see that if we are on a gold standard and have only $8.41 per capita of the standard in the country that we are surely coming to worse instead of better times. If we have about 24 dollars per capita in gold, silver and paper combined, then it amounts to our having nearly twice as much debts to be paid with gold as we have gold in the country if as Mr. Foraker, of Ohio, said, the silver is redeemable in gold. To say nothing of the debts not represented by money.

Would it not be easier for the average man to get hold of a dollar occassionally than to get a twenty dollar gold piece into which most of the gold is being coined?

Talk about rich man's money and poor man's money. If there is any difference isn't it plain that the silver dollar is the poor man's money? Don't he more often possess less than five dollars? Ought not his dollars to be worth by law what they represent themselves to be? Is it fair to give him a chunk of silver worth 53 cents and call it a dollar? What assurance has he that some fine morning after he has accumulated a larger number of them than he has been able to get for a long time he will awake to find that the possessors of gold have declared his silver shall pass for 53 cents on the dollar? Would he not feel safer if he knew that silver had been put back on the same foundation as when it helped build up this great country; if it was a standard the same as it always was, the same as gold a 16 to 1.

The Careless Officer

Rockford Minn. Aug. 25th, 1896.

George Crandall. He thinks that he is a professional officer but he knows little about it.

He hired me to nurse the family of Joseph Schaar, after they suffered with sickness for three long weeks, for two dollars a day.

When I got to their house, there were four children sick and a baby two months old and one little girl dead.

He did know how to be mean. He forbid Mr. Schaar the public road when the corps was taken to the grave yard. He sent him through the woods with the corps and the coffin almost tipped out of the buggy. When Mr. Schaar came home, finding the sick family one of the children not expected to live and think how mean he was treated, why he must be pretty near heart broken. Other people are allowed to take a dead animal through the public street to bury them but Mr. Schaar was not allowed to take his own daughter to the grave yard through the public street.

The doctor said the children were to drink Beef Tea. The beef was ordered but brought two days after. He also said the children should be bathed in ice water three times a day. So the ice was ordered but wasn't brought till three days after that. Then I ordered some Turkish towels and several days after Mr. Crandall brought 6 yards of coarse toweling rough enough to skin an elephant.

The doctor said Lemonade was to be given to the children. The lemons were ordered but weren't brought till four days afterwards.

All the towels and bedding used by the little girl were burned, but were not replaced by new ones.

I gave him a little talk to bring things more prompt and then he got angry at me.

Saturday morning, Aug. 15th, Dr. Soper was over to see the sick folks. He told Mr. Schaar that if the little boy, Willie, should get worse to send for him immediately. Willie got worse that afternoon and Mr. Crandall was to get the doctor. Instead of going right away he waited till he got his stack of grain done. When the doctor came he asked Mr. Schaar why he didn't let him know sooner. He said till morning and Willie died 15 minutes to 3.

Mr Crandall always brought things when it suited him best and not when he ought to.

Mr, Schaar sent Mr. Crandall with a note to his brother-in-law but he never took it there.

Monday some more towels and bedding were burned but Mr. Crandall didn't bring any bedding till Wednesday evening he brought three quilts.

The doctor said the house should be whitewashed and so Mr. Schaar ordered a brush. The next day Mr. Crandall brought a broom and told Mr. Schaar to white-wash with that. I never heard anything like that in all my life. He treated Mr. Schaar just the same as if he had a little boy to deal with.

If it had not been for Mr. Sleight, I think they would have suffered more still for the need of provisions, for Mr. Crandall never brought a thing when it was ordered.

I think if anybody deserves a punishment he does. Such a man is not fit to have any office. It is a shame and disgrace for whole Rockford Town and Wright County to have fuch an officer as George Crandall is.

He refused to pay me the two dollars a day for which I was hired. I worked ten days and a half which maks twenty one dollars and he offers to pay me scventeen. but I will not break my bargain.

I hope that every voter will vote for a betcer officer next election.

From the chaska Valley Herald we clip the following reprint concerning John Lind, their neighbor still further up the Minnesota Valley:

"The man or men, who, after talking with a few enemies, say that Mr. Lind cannot carry New Ulm and Brown county, will find themselves greatly mistaken early in November. He will carry this city, and will have the largest majority in the county ever given to any candidate for office.—New Ulm News."

Newspaper Men's Day.

"Newspaper Men's Day" at the State Fair, Saturday September 5th, will be replete with features of an interesting and sensational character. The program is in charge of committees from the State editorial association the St. Saul and Minneapolis press clubs, and a great program of sports is to be furnished. There will be a mamouth cake-walk in which the swellest colored belles and beaux will compete for prizes to be awarded by popular vote. Cake-walks made a great hit of the season at lakes Como and Harriet last summer and the newspaper men propose to get one up that will discount all previous affairs of the kind. Albatros, the fastest quarter horse to harness in the world, will be sent against the fastest bicyclist in the northwest. best two out of three heats. There will be a race of sextette bicycles, the first ever seen in the northwest; horse races bestween Winnebago and Chippewa Indian; races between mounted polsce of St. Paul and Minneapolis; a bicycle drill by a military company with a military band; a relay running race, battle royal and a host of other features will be included. The state fair this year is organized on the scale of a northwestern exposition, with exhibits from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, North and South Dakota. More and better exhibits are reported in all departments without exception. Great amusement programs are provided for each day of the week but none will excel the newspaper men's day. All excursion tickets are good until September 7th, so as no one going to the fair need miss the last and best day which will be the culimation of the greatest fair Minnesota and the northwest has ever seen.

The week of the state fair, August 31 to September 5, will be a notable one for the twin cities. The G. A. R. national encampment is held at St. Paul and the national encampment of the Knights of Pythias at Minneapolis. It is expected there will be between 150,000 and 200,000 visitors in the two cities during the week as railroads are giving a rate of one cent a mile outside of the 250 mile limit, good for thirty days. There will be parades and spectacles each day in both cities, so arranged that th main features do not interfere with each other and each city offers carnival features at night. When to all this is added the great state fair and a dozen attractions in the way of amusement enterprises, it does seem as though it would be a real misfortune not to be able to take advantage of the opportunity to be present, enjoy and take part in what promises to be the greatest week in all the eistory of the wonderful twin cities.

Grand Army Encampment.

The thirtieth G. A. R. Encampment will be held in St. Paul from Aug. 31, to Sept. 5. Circulars of information have been sent out. All railroads sell tickets within 250 miles of St. Paul for one fare round trip; outside that limit the rate one cent a mile. Boys with white caps will be posted on every street corner to give information on all subjects. 30,000 veterans are expected to join in the grand parade of less than two miles, on asphalt street, shaded most of the way. This is to be one of the chances to shake hands with old comrades once again.

New York World

Thrice-a-week Edition

18 PAGES A WEEK. 156 PAPERS A YEAR.

Is larger than any weekly or semi-weekly paper published and is the only important Democratic "weekly" published in New York City. Three times as large as the leading Republican weekly of New York City. It will be of especial advantage to you during the Presidential Campaign, as it is published every other day, except Sunday, and has all the freshness and timeliness of a daily. It combines all the news with a long list of interesting departments, unique features, cartoons and graphic illustrations, the latter being a specialty.

All these improvements have been made without any increase in the cost, which remain at one dollar per year.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and the BUFFALO GAZETTE together one year for $1.75

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

Kissing another man's wife is all right—if she doesn't object—says a New Jersey judge. That judge talks as if he had had experience as to the consequences if she does object.

The new girl is affecting the "y." There are Alyses, Lilyans, Carolynas and Kathryns coming on the stage to crowd out the Maes. What is the matter with Myke, Tym and Jym?

A thousand barrels of flour were ordered recently from a Mobile firm for Spanish Honduras, and a Louisiana merchant back from Honduras says that the trade between that country and the states is increasing.

"Who," exclaims the Boston Home Journal, "finds the lost umbrellas?" We have an eye on the scoundrel who finds them in this office, but if they are returned before the fall rains no questions will be asked.

New York city has been asked to buy the home of Washington Irving, at Tarrytown. The admirers of the author of the Knickerbocker history want to see it converted into a literary shrine with a Dutch room, an old English room, an Alhambra room and so on, for the various phases of the author's life.

The keys of the typewriter often unlock both hearts and pocketbooks. John C. Simonds, of San Francisco, left all his property, $125,000, to a widow who did his typewriting for him. His relatives think that some undue influences were brought to bear on the deceased, and will try conclusions in the courts.

Quick-firing guns are more depended upon at the present day than extreme length of range, and in this respect what is considered the most wonderful of guns, perhaps, is one of the Maxims, which can fire as many as 600 shots a minute, and yet is so light that a soldier can carry it strapped to his back.

A man who makes his home at a farmhouse in Dover, Del., has built up quite an industry in spruce gum. Since he started in business he has disposed of about 4,000 boxes. As each box contains 250 pieces, the whole number would foot up to 1,000,000 chews, which calls for a vast amount of jaw wagging.

The Wyoming republicans have nominated a woman for presidential elector. One of the beauties of woman suffrage in Wyoming is that it came without agitation and without any organization by the women. The women of Wyoming have their right of suffrage recognized just as have the men, and there never has been a woman suffrage campaign in the state.

The new French rolling boat, a boat on big bicycle wheels, has made a record of 60 miles an hour. It does away with the friction of 20 or 30 feet of vessel under water. If these boats prove a success on a large scale they will revolutionize travel on the water, making it possible to cross the Atlantic in two days. Score another for the bicycle.

Czar Nicholas is falling into the same condition of terrorism which afflicted his predecessors on account of the nihilistic plots. A Russian czar really doesn't have much fun. The nihilistic foe works in the dark and the annual expense of the precautions to protect the czar from bombs, daggers and bullets would run even an ill-governed American city for a year.

The request of some cyclists that carriages be compelled to carry a bell or other signal may be followed by a demand that bells be hung on all cows. A young woman in Indiana, riding peacefully along in the country at eventide, suddenly found her wheel running up the back of a cow lying by the roadside. She was thrown, and the machine was kicked into the ditch.

Uncle Sam's standing army is slowly growing, and according to a recent report it lacks but 600 of its maximum strength of 25,000 men. This increase has been accomplished by the new system of recruiting, and it is gratifying to note that not only are the enlistments more numerous, but a very perceptible improvement is shown in the personnel. With as small a standing army as this country has it is essential that every man should be a good soldier.

Prof. Ball, the astronomer royal of Ireland, has finished a curious calculation on the distance to the nearest of the "fixed stars," inspired by a visit to one of the Lancashire thread factories. The superintendent of the factory informed the star-gazer that the combined output of the various factories was 155,000,000 miles of thread per day. Prof. Ball replied that if all the factories in Lancashire should work day and night, producing 155,000,000 miles of thread every 12 hours, it would take them 200 years to spin a thread long enough to reach from the earth to the nearest of the fixed stars.

That the report of Dr. Nansen reaching the north pole was a canard is now satisfactory proven—if more proof were needed—by the explorer himself, who has progressed far enough back toward civilization to announce that his trip was a comparative failure, notwithstanding that he went 15 miles farther north than any previous expedition. In the same way it may be quite positively accepted that the recent report of the sighting of Andree's balloon in British Columbia is also a "fake," pure and simple. By this time the world should have become wiser than to accept such rumors as veritable truth.

In a discussion of the question whether widows and widowers ought to remarry, M. Morselli, an Italian statistician, has shown that the number of suicides among widows and widowers is exceedingly large. Out of 365 men who committed suicide in Italy, 100 were married, 108 were bachelors and 157 were widowers. As to women who committed suicide, in both France and Italy the majority were found to be widows. These figures are startling, but no doubt some other philosopher could make out a good case for the other side. The conclusion, in any event, is that widows ought to remarry.

WARMLY WELCOMED.

Lord Russell Given a Great Ovation at Saratoga.

England's Chief Justice Speaks on International Arbitration—Praises the United States—English People Must Work Together.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 21.—No greater ovation was ever presented to any speaker in Saratoga than that accorded Lord Russell, lord chief justice of England, when he entered Convention hall Thursday morning to address the American Bar association in the nineteenth annual convention here assembled. Applause was long continued by the audience of 4,500 persons. In introducing Lord Russell President Storey said:

"I have now the very great pleasure, not of introducing, for he needs no introduction to any English-speaking lawyer, but of presenting to you Lord Russell, of Killowen, the lord chief justice of England, who will deliver the annual address on 'International Arbitration.'"

Lord Russell Speaks.

As Lord Russell stepped forward the audience broke into unrestrained applause, which continued for fully a minute. He prefaced his address by saying:

"My first words must be in acknowledgment of the signal honors done me by inviting me to address you on this interesting occasion. You are a congress of lawyers, met here to take council, in no narrow spirit, upon questions affecting your profession, to consider the needs for legislation which time and experience develop; to consider the tendencies of legislation, state and federal, and the course of judicial decision." [Applause.]

Praise for the United States.

Speaking of the formation of international law, Lord Russell complimented the United States thus:

"It is not too much to say that the undoubted stream of tendency in modern international law to mitigate the horrors of war, to humanize or to make less inhuman its methods, and to narrow the area of its consequential evils, is largely due to the policy of your statesmen and the moral influence of your jurists."

Impediments to Arbitration.

Speaking of the difficulties in the way of effective arbitration, he said:

"But there are differences to which, even as between individuals, arbitration is inapplicable—subjects which find their counterpart in the affairs of nations. Men do not arbitrate where character is at stake, nor will any self-respecting nation readily arbitrate on questions touching its national independence or affecting its honor.

"Again, a nation may agree to arbitrate and then repudiate its agreement. Who is to coerce it? Or, having gone to arbitration and been worsted, it may decline to be bound by the award. Who is to compel it?

"These considerations seem to me to justify two conclusions. The first is, that arbitration will not cover the whole field of international controversy, and the second, that unless and until the great powers of the world, in league, bind themselves to coerce a recalcitrant member of the family of nations—We have still to face the more than possible disregard by powerful states of the obligations of good faith and of justice."

English People Must Work Together.

Concluding, the speaker said:

"Mr. President, I began by speaking of the two great divisions — American and British—of that English-speaking world which you and I represent to-day, and with one more reference to them I end.

"Who can doubt the influence they possess for insuring the healthy progress and peace of mankind? But if this influence is to be fully felt, they must work together in cordial friendship, and each people in its own sphere of action. If they have great power, they have also great responsibility. No cause they espouse can fail; no cause they oppose can triumph. The future is, in large part, theirs. They have the making of history in the times that are to come. The greatest calamity that could befall would be strife which should divide them.

"Let us pray that this shall never be. Let us pray that they, always self-respecting, each in honor upholding its own flag, safeguarding its own heritage of right, and respecting the rights of others, each in its own way fulfilling its high national destiny, shall yet work in harmony for the progress and the peace of the world."

Vote of Thanks.

Lord Russell concluded his address at 12:15 o'clock. As he closed the audience vigorously applauded, and then Edward J. Phelps, of Vermont, moved that the thanks of the association be presented to Lord Russell for the eloquent address which they had had the pleasure of hearing. This was carried, as was also the following:

"Resolved, That the American Bar association concurs with the principles enunciated in the eloquent address of Lord Chief Justice Russell. Be it further,

"Resolved, That it be referred to the committee on international law to recommend such further cause of international arbitration."

Robert D. Benedict, of New York, chairman of the committee on judicial administration and remedial procedure, presented a very voluminous report which, in the main, favored appeal in criminal cases.

Work Is Finished.

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 22.—When the American Bar association convened at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning for their concluding day's session, the first business taken up was the election of officers for the ensuing years. The officers elected were as follows:

President — James M. Woolworth, of Omaha, Neb.
Secretary—John Hinkley, of Baltimore.
Treasurer—Francis Fawle, of Philadelphia.
Executive Committee—Alfred Hemenwey, Boston; Charles Claflin Aller, St. Louis; William W. Howe, New Orleans.

A vice president for every state in the union and members composing the local council in each state were also elected.

The association completed its labors at 12:45 adjourned sine die.

Heavy Loss by Fire.

Lima, O., Aug. 24.—Fire Saturday destroyed the coach department of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton shops and the freight car department building. The loss will reach $60,000.

Abandoned His Trip.

Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 25.—Prof. Andree has just arrived from Danes island, Spitzbergen, on board the Virgo. He has abandoned for this year his idea of crossing the Arctic region in a balloon, the season having become too far advanced to justify an ascension.

Princeton's New Library.

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 25.—Ground has been broken for the new university library of Princeton. The building will be about 200 by 180 feet, four stories high, and will cost $598,000. Henry M. Potter, of New York city, is the architect.

Big Sum of Money Disappears

Montreal, Aug. 25. — Six thousand dollars disappeared from a safe at the Canadian Pacific railway station at Joliette during Friday night last. The package containing the money was locked in the safe Friday evening, but next morning the safe was found unlocked and all the money gone.

Broke His Neck.

Bay City, Mich., Aug. 25.—While a crew was handling the heavy angle iron chain on one of the Brown hoists at Wheeler's shipyard the chain broke, striking Thomas Parker and breaking his neck. His home was in Detroit.

TRADE OUTLOOK.

Signs Are Not Very Encouraging for a Business Revival.

New York, Aug. 22.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say:

"Political events of the week had no definite influence upon business prospects, for the phenomenal variations in sterling exchange and the beginning of imports of gold, although following the great meeting in Madison Square Garden on Tuesday, may be fairly attributed to the accumulating excess of merchandise exports over imports, to which attention has been repeatedly called, exports from New York for the past two weeks having been 20 per cent. larger and imports here 21 per cent. smaller than last year. The rapid movement of grain, and the unusually early marketing of cotton tend strongly to aid the banking syndicate which has undertaken to regulate foreign exchanges.

"Withdrawals of money to the interior are rather large, and commercial loans are hard to place, and this difficulty checks many new enterprises and business in many departments. Bank clearings are small for the week, 15 per cent. less than last year. Railroad earnings are not as good as might be expected for the first half of August, exceeding those of last year by only 3.4 per cent.

"Speculation has advanced wheat over 1 cent during the week, corn a small fraction, and cotton five-eighths, the principal motive power being reports of injury to growing crops.

"The boot and shoe industry is rapidly nearing the end of past orders. Prices are a shade weaker. Leather is weaker with a small demand, although restricted supplies have caused a shade of advance in some kinds. Hides at Chicago averaged more than 3 per cent. lower for the week again, the fall in the past five weeks having averaged about 25 per cent.

"The iron and steel manufacture has only continued depression to report, and nearly all finished products are being sold below current quotations. There is rapid curtailment of production, but in spite of this the supply of finished products appears to greatly exceed the demand for them. The one bright spot is a sale of 9,000 tons of steel rails to Japan, for refitting railways in that country, which makes an aggrate of 46,000 tons exported during the year. Nothing encouraging can yet be said regarding the woolen manufacture, and the demand for goods, even at recent reductions in prices, is still disappointingly small. A heavy auction sale of cotton goods brought prices which were considered quite encouraging, and the current demand is fairly maintained, although the mills are not inclined to make large contracts for the future in view of the rise in raw material. In general the working force in the textile branches does not appear to have increased.

"Failures for the week have been 286 in the United States against 222 last year, and 27 in Canada, against 43 last year."

MONON ROAD.

Judge Woods Appoints William McDoel as Receiver.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 25.—Suit was filed in the United States circuit court here Monday asking that a receiver be appointed for the Louisville, New Albany & Chicago railroad, better known as the Monon system.

Monday morning Judge Woods came down from Chicago and his appearance was the signal for a fresh outbreak of the rumors. These were confirmed, when, shortly after noon, a receivership suit was filed by John T. Mills, Jr., of New York, by his attorney, Harry Crawford, of Chicago.

Judge Woods, without a hearing, signed an order appointing William McDoel, of Chicago, receiver. Mr. Mills, the plaintiff, already has a heavy judgment against the road. Mr. McDoel's bond was placed at $100,000. The total indebtedness of the road is given at $14,600,000.

An answer was filed by E. C. Field, for the company. None of the allegations is denied, the railroad "throwing itself on the mercy of the court."

YOUNG PEOPLE'S UNION.

Delegates Listen to Addresses and Hold Outdoor Meetings.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 22.—The convention of the Young People's Christian union, in session here, was addressed Friday afternoon by Rev. George Morrison, of India, on present needs in India. R. A. Torrey, D.D., of Chicago, and Rev. C. H. Strong, D.D., of Sterling, Kan., also delivered strong addresses.

At the evening session John R. Alexander, D.D., of Egypt, spoke of the educational work in that country in flattering terms. Rev. J. D. Rankin, of Denver, addressed the convention, following which the delegates made a contribution of several thousand dollars to home and foreign missions. Outdoor services were held at sunrise, noon and evening.

Havoc Played by Lightning.

St. Louis, Aug. 24.—A severe windstorm visited the states of Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Texas and Oklahoma territory Saturday. Several lives were lost and much property destroyed. Electrical discharges and heavy rain accompanied the storm of wind. At Effingham, Ill., the electric light plant, the Austin planing mill, the Trade palace and the Austin college were unroofed. All wires are down and the city was in darkness at night. At Mendota, Ill., Pohl's hotel and several residences were unroofed. All the grain fields about Mascoutah, Ill., were destroyed. At West Plains, Mo., the storm was severe upon light structures. The grand stand at the ball park, where a game was in progress, was blown down and 15 persons were injured.

Newfoundland Fisheries Fail.

St. Johns, N. F., Aug. 21.—The mail steamer from Labrador which arrived here reports that the Labrador fishery is a total failure. The steamer traversed the whole coast as far north as the Moravian settlements. The failure of the fishery virtually means starvation for thousands of fishermen next winter. The fishery along most of the New Foundland coast has also proved a failure.

Miners Curse Alaska.

Seattle, Wash., Aug. 25.—The steamer Al-Ki arrived from Alaska Sunday evening. Capt. Patterson said that he had brought about 75 miners from Cook's inlet. They had only tales of hardship to tell, and came back empty-handed, cursing the country. One man has five dollars in gold dust, which he said cost him $500.

Death of a Titled Englishman.

London, Aug. 25.—Charles Frederick Cooper Ponsonby, second Baron de Mauley, died at his residence, Langford house, Lechlade, Gloucester, on Monday. He was born in 1815.

A Great Deadlock.

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 25.—The deadlock now existing in this (Seventh) congressional district is a record-breaker in the number of ballots. When the convention adjourned Monday afternoon 1,508 ballots had been taken without the slightest change from the first ballot.

Not Many Red-Haired Criminals.

Columbus, O., Aug. 22.—An examination of the prisoners in the penitentiary here has resulted in the discovery of an interesting fact in criminology. Of the 2,500 prisoners in the institution only three have red hair.

PYTHIANS AT CLEVELAND.

Supreme Lodge in Session—Uniform Rank Encampment.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 25.—Officials connected with the meeting of the supreme lodge Knights of Pythias and the encampment of the uniform rank say that from present appearances the gathering will be the largest and most successful of any in the history of the order. It is expected that fully 75,000 Pythians and their friends will visit the city this week, and of these 15,000 will be members of the uniform rank. The tents of the encampment have been pitched at Camp Perry-Payne, an immense field less than a mile from the heart of the city, owned by ex-Senator Henry B. Payne, while the sessions of the grand lodge are held in the new temple.

SUPREME CHANCELLOR WALTER B. RICHIE.

The reports of the officers of the grand lodge show a remarkable growth and development of the order. That of Supreme Chancellor Walter B. Richie was listened to with special interest and was praised for its patriotic utterances on the Americanism of the order.

In his report, Thomas G. Sample, supreme master of the exchequer, congratulated the order upon the healthy condition of finances. The receipts for the biennial term ending March 31, 1896, including a balance of $29,059, were $183,600 and the expenditures $147,703, leaving a balance of $35,897.

The report of Maj. Gen. James R. Carnahan, commanding the uniform rank, showed that the revenues had been sufficient to meet all the expenses of the management. The income for the biennial term was $18,935 and the outlay $7,893. The rank had made a steady and substantial growth. Some of the divisions had not been able to hold together on account of the hard times, but the new divisions organized during the financial depression were great proofs of the strong hold the rank had upon the Knights of Pythias in general. Warrants had been granted for 104 new divisions.

The sessions of the Imperial Palace of the Knights of Khorassan opened Monday morning in Jan Ben Ja Temple, and will continue until Thursday. This branch is to the Pythians what the Mystic Shriners are to masonry, and it will introduce an innovation on previous encampments in the form of a weird midnight parade in uniform, something on the order of the Mardi Gras in New Orleans. The tents of the Khorassans have been pitched on Payne avenue, directly opposite those of the uniform rank.

A NEW SECRETARY.

David R. Francis, of Missouri, Appointed Successor to Hoke Smith.

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Aug. 25.—President Cleveland announced Monday night that David R. Francis, ex-governor of Missouri, had been appointed secretary of the interior, vice Hoke Smith, resigned, and that he will assume the duties of his office September 1.

Washington, Aug. 25. — Secretary Hoke Smith will sever his connections with the interior department on Saturday next, the 29th of August. He will devote this week to clearing up "odds and ends" and finally disposing of such departmental work as has been prepared under his direction and is ready for his signature.

Silver Club Men to Meet.

Washington, Aug. 21.—George P. Keeney, the national organizer of the silver party since its organization, and a member of its executive committee, has been appointed by the silver party national president of the various nonpartisan silver and bimetallic clubs of the United States. Mr. Keeney has called a national convention of such clubs to meet at Chicago September 23. All of the old bimetallic unions, bimetallic leagues, Bryan-Sewall silver clubs, national silver clubs, silver clubs and patriots of America are invited to attend and participate. The representation will be three delegates at large from each club of 20 or more, and one additional delegate for every 50 members on the club rolls.

The purpose is to unify all non-partisan silver organizations under a common plan for effective work during the coming campaign.

Burglars Kill a St. Paul Man.

St. Paul, Minn., Aug. 24.—Shortly before two o'clock Sunday morning Thomas Curlin, of Lake Elmo, heard somebody in the front part of his building. Seizing a revolver he rushed out, only to be met with a fusillade of bullets, five of which passed through his body. He died instantly. The murderer or murderers failed to get any money and have not been apprehended. All the money in the house, $300, was tied in a bag around his wife's neck.

Killed by a Boxer.

Van Buren, Ark., Aug. 25.—While sparring, Emsie Williams was hit on the left breast by Will Clark and sank down and died immediately. Clark was examined by the coroner, who acquitted him, the verdict being excusable homicide. Williams was a farmer and leaves a large family.

Death of McKinley's Uncle.

Muncie, Ind., Aug. 25.—Rev. John McKinley, an uncle of the republican candidate for president, died Monday from old age. He was born April 20, 1818, in Erie, Pa. In politics Mr. McKinley was a democrat.

Well-Known Railroad Man Dead.

Baltimore, Md., Aug. 25.—A private telegram from Atlantic City, N. J., states that Stephen D. Kennedy, Maryland passenger agent of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, died there Monday of Bright's disease. Mr. Kennedy was born in Simcoe, Ont., in 1849. He had been connected with the Pennsylvania railroad for 20 years.

Another "Blue Book" Coming.

London, Aug. 25.—The government will issue another—the third—blue book on the Venezuelan question on Friday next. The book will deal especially with the Schomburgk line.

BORROWED FROM BYZANTIUM.

Russian Coronation Ceremonies Closely Resemble Those of the Old Empire.

Only those who have studied Byzantine history can have any idea of how closely the ceremonial of the Moscow coronation resembles, even in its minutest details, that which used to be observed at the coronation of the Byzantine emperors, says the London Chronicle. Although the Russian church did not separate from that of Rome until the twelfth century—that is, nearly 400 years later than the schism of Photius, which rent the western and eastern churches asunder—nevertheless it retained its oriental rite. In 1184 a Russian commission arrived in Byzantium to study the etiquette and ceremonial, ecclesiastical and profane, of the court and church of that capital. On their return to their native country a great change took place in the national costume, architecture and ceremonial. When Moscow became the sacred city par excellence of the empire the kremlin was rebuilt on the same lines as the Blachernae palace on the land walls of Constantinople. Like its Greek model, it consists of a series of halls and apartments—kiosks, as the Turks call them—linked together by gardens and interspersed with scores of churches and monasteries, the whole surrounded by a wall and entered by strongly fortified gates, above which were icons of the virgin and saints. Burnt down early in the century, it has been rebuilt in plainer architecture, but on the same Byzantine plan.

A NEW RECORD.

Deepest Spot in the Ocean Nearly Six Miles.

For 20 years or more the deepest spot in the ocean has been supposed to be to the northeast of Japan, says the New York Journal. There the bottom lies 4,655 fathoms down, or more than five miles beneath the surface of the waves.

In the latest hydrographer's report of admiralty surveys, made by the British government, this ocean record, which has stood so long, is beaten, for there is official information of a deeper sounding than has hitherto been made. The deepest spot in the ocean, so far as known at present, has been found to be in the neighborhood of the Friendly and Kermadee islands, in the Southern Pacific. Here the maximum depth is 5,155 fathoms, or close upon six miles. The observation, made by the officers on board the British ship Penguin, is all the more interesting for the fact that it bears out the result of previous researches, showing curiously enough as it does that the deepest parts of the sea are not far from land.

Deep-sea sounding has come of late years an exact science in itself. One curious feature of it, and one which is little known, is that the "leads" used have to be constructed with especial strength in order to withstand the enormous pressure of the mass of water which bears down upon them when they lie upon the bottom. So great is this pressure that the sounding apparatus in ordinary use would be crushed.

SPIDERS FOR PARTNERS.

A Sirup Bottler Who Utilizes the Services of 6,000 Insects.

A sirup bottler has improved upon the prison lesson of Bruce, says Science. He has taken the spider into partnership in the working of one of his important departments. Flies, cockroaches and other insects, attracted by his sweets and encouraged by the genial air of his bottling room, used to interfere with his work, get into his bottles, steal his goods and "worry him to death." Some 6,000 spiders now make their home on the ceiling and walls of his bottling department. Said the bottler to an interviewer:

"These creatures know more than a great many people. Spiders do not care for sweet things and never drop into my vats or get into my bottles. I never disturb them except to feed them occasionally. They appear to know my call and will come out and feed from my hand or take a fly from my finger.

"They shut themselves up during most of the winter months in their little nests you see stuck like daubs of mud about the ceiling. When winter comes I brush away all the webs. They prefer to weave new ones every spring.

"I have been running this spider farm only two years, but I find my little partners indispensable. They will not endure in the place a single fly or insect that is a plunderer of sweets and sirups."

Curious Remedy.

A centenarian in the Newry (Ireland) workhouse, being troubled with asthma, tried to relieve himself by opening his chest with a cobbler's knife, as he said "to let out the wind." It was thought to be an attempt at suicide, but the man had done the same thing before and had obtained relief in breathing, he said.

A FOUR-YEAR-OLD.

A four-year-old's a baby,
Whatever you do or say.
You may rig him out in a roundabout
And teach him the time of day;
As his muscles grow he will bluster and blow
Till you think him an army of men;
Until short of breath you may "love him to death"
And declare "he's his father again,"
But, whether you will, he's a baby still,
Whatever you do or say.

A four-year-old's a baby,
Whatever you do or say.
He may run and shout and want to play out
In the yard the livelong day;
He may put on his hat and his coat and all that,
And button his shoes with a hook:
He may swagger and strut and pretend to be, but
No matter how big he may look
He's a baby still, whether you will,
Whatever you do or say.

A four-year-old's a baby,
Whatever you do or say.
You may call him a man, as a mother can,
Seventy times a day;
If he cries when he's hurt, all covered with dirt,
You'll gather him up in your arms,
Nor kisses refuse to cover the bruise
And quiet his tearful alarms.
For whether you will, he's a baby still,
Whatever you do or say.
—William S. Lord, in Chicago Record.

AGAIN.

BY BULKELEY CRESWELL.

Characters: Maj. Blowzer, aged eighty-seven, Blue Artillery; Miss De Trafford Mutton, aged thirty-two, thirteen seasons out ("twenty-four last birthday"); Mamma, her mother; Philips, a parlor-maid.

Scene: Drawing-room in important garrison town. Sofa at back, chair and tripod work-basket with worked silken cover; fire, with glass over-mantel. Tea-table in front of sofa. Basket-chairs with bows on them, photographs, draped flimsy on picture frames. Proprietors: Scent bottle, two Bladder Sleeves, one Yellow French Novel with picture on back; tea-things with sugar, book, etc.

Miss De T. Mutton—I am not at home to anyone but Maj. Blowzer; you understand, Philips?

Philip—Yes, miss, I understand. (Exit.)

Miss De T. Mutton (puts down novel on sofa and ruminates)—Yes, I'm sure he will come. I've managed mamma nicely. He asked so pointedly. He was so very— But why me instead of mamma? Surely he can't think—no, he cannot think that I take care of myself! It's years since I went anywhere without a chaperon. I—he— (Is not quite satisfied; gets up and goes to glass and preens and plumes herself, fusses out skirt, plucks at bladder sleeves; presses down flat curl in middle of forehead; smooths over bodice; notices she is looking anxious; looks pretty into glass; frowns for contrast; looks pretty again; says in dumb show: Yes, isn't it? Then again a little more: Yes, isn't it? Notices one cheek has wider surface of red than the other; thinks: "It is my cheek towards the fire—it does not matter." Realizes that it is the cheek away from the fire; adjusts with handkerchief; begins to try and see her back; fancies she hears some one and stops; tries to see it again; thinks she is looking dull; goes to table, drops eau-de-Cologne from scent bottle on lump of sugar, eats it; prepares another. Loud knocking below. Drops sugar and runs to window; peeps cautiously round blind; runs back to sofa. Notices yellow French novel with picture on back, thrusts it under cover of work-basket; runs for Waverley novel from bookcase, gets back on sofa with smart dress, bladder sleeves, slippers, ankles, white flounce underskirt, etc.) (Enter Philips.)

Philips—Maj. Blowzer. (Enter Maj. Blowzer.)

Maj. Blowzer (awkwardly)—Ah—how-dy-do, Miss De Trafford? (They shake hands.) I hardly hoped to find you at home on such a lovely afternoon. I'm—

Miss De T. Mutton—Yes, isn't it?

Maj. Blowzer—'Fraid I'm disturbing your reading. Waverley, I see. (Wishes he had never come begging.)

Miss De T. Mutton—Yes, I delight in Waverly, don't you? It is my pet of all Sir Walter's. I'm never tired of reading it. (Sits sofa L.)

Maj. Blowzer—Yes, very much, yes; we used to do it at school. (Takes up book and sits uneasily.) Ah, this, yes, I see—Quentin Durward.

Miss De T. Mutton—That? O, yes! yes, that. But won't you put down your hat, Maj. Blowzer?

Maj. Blowzer—Thanks, yes, thanks. (Tries to seem as if the idea was new to him. Decides he will never go begging for bazars again.)

Miss De T. Mutton—Won't you have some tea, Maj. Blowzer?

Maj. Blowzer—O, thanks very much, yes, thanks.

Miss De T. Mutton—Sugar?

Maj. Blowzer—Please, yes, thanks, yes, thank you. (Realizes he must begin.) I hope, Miss de Trafford, you have recovered from the fatigues of last night; you look very fresh, if I may say so.

Miss De T. Mutton (fears she has overdone it)—O! wasn't it delightful; and that last waltz with you, Maj. Blowzer! (Looks at him, accidentally drops lump of sugar, reaches over sugar basin for it, picks up lump charged with eau-de-cologne, puts it into tea, hands him cup.)

Maj. Blowzer—O, thanks! Yes, I remember; you were telling me all about a bazar you were helping with; awfully good of you, don't you know, I think. (Smells tea; tries to sniff at it without being noticed; tastes cautiously.)

Miss De T. Mutton (remembers she had on black satin and Philanthropy the night before; does a graceful laugh of three syllables)—O, no! I'm quite in love with bazars; have I given you enough sugar, Maj. Blowzer?

Maj. Blowzer—Quite, thanks, yes. (Coughs slightly; remembers to have heard of "scented tea," hopes he will never meet with it again. Looks about for excuse to set down cup.) Now, well, I suppose—this kind of thing—for instance, now—may I? (Puts down cup and takes silken cover from work-basket.)

Miss De T. Mutton (suddenly)—O, don't, please.

Maj. Blowzer—I beg pardon. (Sees open French novel with picture on back.) Ah-ha, I see, yes, well, perhaps we had better not—. (Laughs.)

Miss De T. Mutton—A novel by—

Maj. Blowzer—Yes, so I see, Miss de Trafford, I know it. (Laughing.) Ho! ho! I've read it myself, ho! ho! ho! twice, ho! ho! ho! ho! Oh dear, and—ho! ho! ho! you'll excuse me, but—but Waverley, ho! ho! ho! ho! (Laughs, looks at her, feels in his element, thinks: "Come, this is all right.") Well, perhaps we had better cover it up again.

Miss De T. Mutton (Remembers when she last blushed; tries to recollect how she did it; fails.)—I am afraid mamma reads rather curious books. (Thinks she ought to push out her slipper and look at it. Does so.)

Maj. Blowzer (Looks at her and laughs; hopes he has not hurt her feelings; determines to make up for it. Moves easily to seat on sofa.)—My dear Miss De Trafford, I'm sure you must think it very strange in me to call after such a slight acquaintance like this, but you will remember that there are occasions when strict formalities may be excused. There was something that would not wait—I think you can guess what it is.

Miss De T. Mutton—(Thinks she ought to sit silent, and looks gravely at her fingers and twiddles something in her law. Reaches for scent bottle and twiddles it.)

Maj. Blowzer (Thinks she need not be so cut up at his finding the novel)—I wished to speak last night, but you know how difficult it is to manage such things at a large dance. (Remembers how he stood close beside her and looked searchingly for her through the ball-room, in order that he might take Katie Travers in to supper instead, and be believed when he should explain how he hunted for her in vain.)

Miss De T. Mutton (softly)—Yes. (Remembers the same occasion and that she said in a loud voice, beside him, to a friend: "Oh, have you seen mamma?" but without drawing his attention from his keen quest of her.)

Maj. Blowzer (in a burst of unreserve)—Well, my dear Miss De Trafford, it is like this, we are getting up a bazar to help the fund in aid of the widow of the gunner killed last month, you remember? My wife is away—.

Miss De T. Mutton—Your wife!

Maj. Blowzer—Yes, she's away, and I promised her I would do what I could before she came back. The poor fellow was in my old battery; and I thought if you would be so kind as to give us the benefit of your help and experience it would—.

Miss De T. Mutton (loudly and rapidly)—O, I shall be delighted.

Maj. Blowzer—Now, that's very good of you; very kind.

Miss De T. Mutton (loudly and rapidly)—O, I shall be delighted, only too pleased, I'm sure; charmed; I'm so glad you came—so unfortunate—mamma—out—would have been delighted—.

Maj. Blowzer (taken aback and feeling for hat)—O, thanks; now that's awfully kind, don't you know—.

Miss De T. Mutton (still loud and rapid))—Don't please, no. I'm del'ghted—the opportunity—greatest possible pleasure—should never have forgiven you if you hadn't asked me.

Maj. Blowzer—Thanks—good of you—indeed. No, really—good-by, good-by. Thanks again—grateful, I'm sure; good-by. (Remembers that the White Hart is close at hand and he can get a drink at once. Exit.)

Mamma (in a clear ringing voice)—Did they send those cakes?

Miss De T. Mutton (stamping)—O, I don't know whether they've sent any cakes. Where have you been all the afternoon?—Black and White.

FIRST USED.

In England Over Two Centuries Ago Was Gilt-Edged Paper.

A letter from James I., bearing his sign manual and addressed to Sir John Stanhope, requesting him to pay £200 into the royal exchequer and dated 24 July, 1604, is written on squared paper. A holograph letter from Lord Cranborne to his father, the earl of Salisbury, lord high treasurer of England, and dated Paris, 18 February, 1608, is written on cut and gilt-edged paper (the first example of this process in my collection). As the paper was, however, doubtless purchased in France, this date cannot be claimed in a description of English letters. All through this period the edges of the paper are almost uniformly rough; but we come to another letter on squared paper in 1619, 7 February, from Henry, Lord Clifford, to Sir Thomas Fairfax, asking him for a subscription of five Jacobuses to a fund for furnishing a piece of plate to be run for every year at Peplingcoates (an early racing date). The position of the seal affords in this instance an incontrovertible proof of the original shape of the paper. A letter, with sign manual and holograph subscription, from Charles I. to Duc d'Orleans, 28 April, 1636, is on gilt-edged paper (my earliest English example).

An interesting illustration of the use of gilt-edged paper in this reign is afforded by the original accounts for stationery supplied to Princes Charles and James in the year 1641. These documents are signed by Bishop Duppa, the tutor of these princes, and certified for payment by the earl of Essex. Among the items are the following: "1 Reame of fline Cutt paper, 00. 10. 00. 6 quires of fline Venise fol. gilt, 00. 12. 00."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

What Mohair and Alpaca Are.

Mohair is the fleece of the Angora goat, grown in the orient and at the Cape, and is the most lustrous fiber known. In its natural state it is white, and can consequently be dyed to any color. Alpaca is the fleece of the animal of that name, also of the goat family (llama is a near relation), and is grown in South America. In its natural state it is black, brown or piebald, with a very small proportion of white. Consequently it can only be dyed a darker color, generally black. Whenever, therefore, you see a luster dress which is lighter than dark gray, you may be sure it is mohair, especially if it has a peculiar sparkle which is something like that of a newly broken piece of lump sugar. Alpaca, being somewhat finer and softer than mohair, is mostly used for coat linings, but it is also made into dress goods in its natural gray. It was introduced and intended for linings, but was taken up by a whim of fashion for dresses and had a great run 30 years ago. Its popularity gave the name of alpaca in a rough and ready way to all bright goods, although most of them are made from mohair, and many of them from English wool. — St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Will Be on a Large Scale.

State exhibits from Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, North and South Dakota as well as Minnesota will be shown at the state fair this year, which will be held midway between St. Paul and Minneapolis Aug. 31 to Sept. 5, the same week as the national encampments of the G. A. R. and the Knights of Pythias. Railroads give a rate of a cent a mile good for 30 days, so that an enormous crowd is expected at the fair.

The state fair for this year has accordingly been organized on a scale of an exposition of resources of the entire Northwest. A great program of races has been provided and there will be games of la crosse between Winnebago and Chippewa Indians, balloon ascensions and parachute leaps, and a host of other diversions. One thousand dollars in prizes is offered for the Deere-Webber bicycle day, Monday, Aug. 31, the opening day of the fair, when all bicyclists coming to the grounds on their wheels are to be admitted at half price and children free. All departments report increased entries and there will be a tremendous showing of agricultural products, cattle, horses, sheep, swine, poultry, etc. Increased transportation facilities from St. Paul and Minneapolis to the grounds have been provided and every arrangement made for handling great crowds.

Possession Vs. Title.

In 1882 John Erickson bought a quarter section of state land in Wilkin county at $6.75 an acre. He paid nothing on the purchase price, however, and allowed the repeated warnings from the auditor's office to pass unheeded. The land was then sold by the state to H. O. Dasseth at $17 an acre. Erickson refused to give up possession and went ahead and put in his crops.

Dasseth has now brought suit for the possession of the land and is assisted by Attorney-General Childs, who states positively that Erickson has no more right upon the land than a stranger and has no right even to the crops he planted there.

Murder Suspected.

An old hermit lady, by the name of Hayes, commonly known as Black Norah residing about four miles northwest of Waverly, was found a few yards from her house one night with her skull broken in. She was last seen about a month ago, and it is thought that the body had lain there nearly that long, as it was in the last stage of decomposition. She is reported to have had considerable money in her house. It is thought she was murdered for her money.

Horribly Mangled.

Pat Manley, a section hand on the Great Northern road, was instantly killed by a freight train which he was trying to mount. The accident occurred at Fridley, Anoka county, and the coroner took charge of the remains shortly after the accident. It seems that the man was about to climb up the side of the car, when the car jolted and he lost his hold, falling beneath the wheels. He was crushed and mangled horribly.

Fell to His Death.

Thomas Shafer, 18 years old, residing at 244 Twenty-second avenue S, Minneapolis, sustained injuries recently which resulted in his death the next day. Shafer, together with several other lads, was climbing the river bank near the Washington avenue bridge. While attempting to scale a particularly dangerous ledge, he missed his footing and was precipitated to the rocky bottom of the bluff.

Starved Himself to Death.

Charles Lingren, 46 years of age and formerly residing at 641 Jackson street NE, Minneapolis, died at the city hospital. The family with whom Lingren formerly boarded state that he had hoarded a small amount of money and began denying himself the necessaries of life. He practically starved himself to death and was adjudged insane and sent to the hospital for treatment.

Costly Chickens.

James Prince, John Langren and Frank Treat of New Brighton, were convicted by a jury of illegal shooting of prairie chickens and were assessed $28 each. The shooting was done near the Ramsey county line, about three weeks ago, and three chickens were secured.

News in Brief.

The prison exhibit at the state fair this year will be the handsomest in the history of that institution.

John Kallendorfar, 29 years of age, committed suicide by jumping off the Robert street bridge, St. Paul.

The German Lutherans of Faribault will erect a residence for their pastor.

Gov. Clough has issued a Labor Day proclamation, declaring Monday, Sept. 7, a legal holiday.

The Provident Trust company of St. Paul has been incorporated with a capital of $500,000.

Stratton Bros.' drug store, at Belle Plaine, was burglarized. Jewelry and money amounting to $125 was taken.

C. G. Selvig of Rushford has been appointed naval cadet from the first district at Annapolis with Guy Whitlock of Dodge Center alternate.

While playing with matches, the clothes of a 10-year-old daughter of P. H. Parsons, Jr., of Willmar, caught fire and burned entirely off her body. The child died.

The Atwood Lumber company, one of the largest lumbering concerns along the line of the St. Paul and Duluth road, has shut down its mill at Willow river because of a poor demand for lumber. The season's output amounted to 14,000,000 feet as against 21,000,000 feet last season.

George Thompson, an inmate of the state reformatory at St. Cloud, made his escape recently. He was engaged in farming on the state farm, about a mile from the institution.

Erick A. Norell, grocer at Anoka, has made an assignment to W. P. Macomber. Norell has conducted business in Anoka 12 years.

C. N. Lafond, of Little Falls, was arrested by Game Warden Trebby for shooting a turtle dove. Other prominent citizens have been threatened with arrest.

Gov. Clough has made the appointments to the state board of equalization from the odd numbered judicial districts, the terms of the old members expiring. There is only one change, Guilmond Anderson, of Hanska, succeeding Edwin Paulson, of Linden, Brown county.

D. D. Bodahl, was appointed postmaster at Valley, Polk county, vice M. G. Peterson, resigned.

SHE HAD HIM ANCHORED

His Wife Had Taken Stern Measures to Reprove His Laziness.

He was known to the community as "Ole Man Scraggs" and was noted for the amount of work he did not do. The village hotel was his favorite loafing place, for the reason, perhaps, that it was here that the man who lavishly asks everybody to drink is most frequently encountered. His wife had expostulated with him and tried to make him sign the pledge, but without avail. He had not even the virtue of Rip Van Winkle. He would not go so far as to promise. In a spot on the porch where the sun filtered through some vines just enough to make the temperature high enough for comfortable slumber he was dozing the afternoon away, with the small of his back in the seat of his chair. His pose was that of beatific indolence.

"Hello, Scraggs!" said a drummer who frequently visited the town. "Have a drink?"

He lunged forward from the chair and stopped with a violent jerk. An expression of dismay came over his face. He tugged with all his might at his right foot, but it did not budge.

"Help, help!" he yelled. "Send for the doctor! I'm paralyzed!"

"What's the matter!" asked the drummer. "Is your foot asleep?"

"That foot can't go to sleep," he answered, as he looked wildly around. "It's made of wood. I've got a wooden leg, but this is the first time in my life it ever refused to walk when anybody said 'liquor.'"

The landlord appeared at the door and asked, indignantly: 'What's the matter here? Somebody having delirium tremens?"

"I don't know," answered the drummer. "Whatever it is, it's something serious. I just asked Scraggsy to come in and have a drink and he can't get to the barroom."

The landlord's countenance assumed a broad grin. "Your wife was here about 20 minutes ago," he remarked.

"What's she done?" inquired Scraggs. "Put a conjuring trick on me?"

"No. She looked you over and took a tenpenny nail out of her pocket and a hatchet from under her arm. 'I'll fix him,' says she. 'He don't ever come home and I'll give him some excuse for staying here all the time, as he seems to like the place so well.' Just then a customer called me inside, but I heard her hammering away for dear life."

"By glory!" Scraggs ejaculated, as he got down on his available knee to inspect the reluctant foot more closely. "I'm spiked to the spot. She's gone and drove a chunk of iron right through one of the finest feet that ever came out of the shop. It's a wicked piece of vandalism, that's what t is. Go inside, fellers, and don't wait for me. Leave me out in the cold world, the victim of a woman's perfidy." Then as a new thought struck him he exclaimed:

"She didn't go downstairs, did she?"

"No."

"That's one comfort. She didn't clinch it on the other side, anyhow. Go on inside," he repeated, waving his hand tragically, "and leave me to work out my own freedom. All I ask is that you'll send me a chisel and a hammer, and mebbe in the course of time if the invitation holds good I'll drag my splintered remains in and drown some of my sorrow in the flowing bowl."—Detroit Free Press.

NOT THE DOG'S FAULT.

She Blamed Fido for All of the Excitement.

A well-dressed woman, leading a frisky Skye terrier by a chain, walked into the ladies' cabin of a Gloucester ferryboat the other day. As soon as she had seated herself the Skye terrier with blinking eyes crawled under the seat and proceeded to go to sleep.

A well-dressed Gloucesterite, carrying a small market basket, entered the ladies' cabin and deposited his 180 pounds of avoirdupois in the next seat to the woman with the Skye terrier. He shoved his basket under the seat, and, without drawing a newspaper from his pocket, settled himself to read.

The boat was moving from the slip, when suddenly the woman began to wriggle. She toyed impatiently with her skirts, and, in a stage whisper audible to those nearest her, said: "Don't be rude, Fido," and gave the dog chain a little jerk. A moment later she turned pale, and, giving the chain a hard jerk, said, screechingly: "Lie down, Fido; behave yourself, sir!" The passengers smiled, and the woman gasped. She jumped up with a shriek that would have done credit to a Sioux Indian, and began to strike her skirts and dance about as if executing a Comanche war dance. As she and the dog swung round the cabin the animal resembled a rag pin wheel just set off.

The other passengers had by this time become intensely interested in the performance and stared at the woman in open-eyed wonder. An idea suddenly struck the well-dressed Gloucesterite. He reached under the seat and calmly withdrew his basket, and as he raised the lid a look of wisdom overspread his rotund features. To him, at least, the mystery of the woman's actions was made plain.

"Madam," he said, without moving an eyelash, "when you are through with my lobster will you kindly return it to me?"

There was a last wild despairing shriek as the woman collapsed into a dead faint. Then the Gloucesterite wrenched open the jaws of his lobster and replaced the crustaccan in his basket. Some among the crowd continued to roar, while others set about restoring the unfortunate woman to consciousness.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Dainty Gown of White.

A simple but pretty white frock is of lawn, and has the usual flaring skirt, a deep hem, hand sewed, being the edge finish. The bodice is made of lawn tucking, alternating with lace insertion, and the model used is a fitted blouse. The full sleeves are of the plain lawn, drawn into cuffs of the tucking, each cuff coming far down over the hand in a point that is outlined with a frill of narrow lace. The collar is a folded stock of white satin ribbon, with flaring bows from the back; a deep point of tucking overlaps each side of the stock just in front; these points have an edge finish similar to that on the cuffs. The belt is a folded satin ribbon with a flaring bow on the left side. With this is worn a large hat of cream white straw, trimmed with gay flowers.—St. Louis Republic.

A NATURAL BEAR TRAP.

One Place in the Yellowstone Park Where Nature Suffocates Wild Animals.

F. H. Knowlton tells in Recreation about a natural bear trap in the northeastern portion of the Yellowstone National park, on a small stream called Cache creek, about ten miles above its junction with the Lamas river. Knowlton and a friend were going up through a gulch Cache creek had made, when near the head of it, about 50 feet distant, they saw a huge grizzly bear curled up as if asleep. Considering it to be impolite to awaken it, and nothing to offer but prospectors' picks, they climbed up the side of the gulch at once, quietly and expeditiously.

Out of reach of the bear, they stopped and fired rocks and anathemas at it, but as the bear continued in the same position they finally made up their minds that it was dead. It was dead and had been dead about five hours. There was no wound on its body, but a little blood had dripped from the nostrils. They then became conscious of a sense of suffocation from strong sulphur fumes arising from mineral springs thereabouts. The bear had wandered in them, tempted, perhaps, by the skeletons of four other bears, an elk, squirrels, rock hares and butterflies and other insects, and had been asphyxiated by the noxious gases.

The head of the gulch made a sort of a basin in which the gas settled. This gas is not very deep, a man's head being about on the surface of it, since the scoop's rim allows the gas to flow down the stream with the creek, in a sort of a gas river on the water creek.

CHINESE HIGHBINDERS.

Bitterness of the Vendetta Shown in a Recent Incident.

The bitterness of the vendetta of local Chinese merchants was shown recently in the arrival and warlike preparations of 13 of the most notorious hatchet men in the state. The appearance of these highbinders and the announcement that the price held upon the heads of Joe Gar and Lee Mee Toy had been increased to $1,000 caused the greatest excitement in the district. The news spread rapidly and agents of both sides were on the streets, at the police stations and at the Chinese consulate. It is claimed that the highbinders have been brought to this city by Lee Yip Duck, the Chinese merchant and gambler, who instigated the expulsion of the proscribed merchants from their society, and at whose door it placed the blame for all the recent disturbances, including the murder of the Chinese clamdiggers.

Four Chinese have reported to the authorities that they overheard a conversation in which Lee Yip Duck guaranteed to pay $1,000 for the life of either Joe Gar or Lee Mee Toy. These men are willing to swear to their statement and insist that a series of new murders is being planned. Most of the Chinese highbinders who arrived in the city are from Fresno. They belong to the Bow-on-Tong, the most notorious and most powerful highbinders' society in the state. Among its members are the most desperate Chinese criminals in California.

SOFT CRABS.

There Are Conditions Which Make It Dangerous to Eat Them.

"There is no danger in eating soft-shelled crabs," observed an epicure to a Washington Star man, "if they are fresh, but they are poison if they are not. They should be well seasoned, and an extra lot of pepper put on them as a precaution, especially if the weather is very hot when they are eaten, or if they are eaten shortly before one retires. It is the habit of many persons to eat soft shelled crabs at night time. I do not know but that they taste better then. It is sometimes dangerous to many to drink milk after eating crabs. Milk seems to develop the colic that follows eating soft-shelled crabs with some persons.

"Another thing should be remembered, and that is a sharp thunderstorm will kill soft-shelled crabs, and even the hard-shelled crabs at times. Unless the soft-shelled crab has been cooked before the thunderstorm, I think the safer plan would be to decline to eat it. Under all other conditions there is no danger of partaking of them, for I do not think anyone would be criminal enough to cook a dead crab, hard or soft shell. The proper way to kill a crab is to throw him into a kettle of boiling water. I know that some people think this is cruel, but it is no more cruel than to stab them with a needle or kill them with chloroform, as I have known some extra sensitive persons to do."

How Electricity Kills.

Experiments have been made by a French scientist upon dogs in order to determine the cause of death in electric shock. The conclusion reached is that for a given animal in normal condition as to health a definite amount of electrical energy will produce fatal results. It is thought that the action of the electrical discharge is to contract the arteries and to increase the pressure of the blood, and that death is due to inability on the part of the heart to sustain the increased pressure of the blood so produced. Post-mortem examinations seem to show that the passage of the current does not cause any anatomical disintegration.

The Garden South.

The South is destined to be, and is rapidly becoming, the garden of the United States. Here life is easier to live, the rigorous winters do not eat up the fruits of the toil of summer, nor are the summers so trying as many northern people have supposed. "I used to live only half the year," said a northern farmer recently settled in the south, "and I used to work all the time then. Now I work half the time and live all the year through."

Home seekers' excursion tickets will be sold over the Monon Route to nearly all points in the south at the rate of one first class fare (one way); tickets good returning on any Tuesday or Friday within 31 days from date of sale. Liberal stop-overs are allowed. These excursions start (and tickets are sold) Aug. 17, 18 and 31; Sept. 1, 14, 15; Oct. 5, 6, 19 and 20. Call on any agent of the Monon Route for further information, or address FRANK J. REED, G. P. A., Chicago.

Dishonored Drafts.

When the stomach dishonors the drafts made upon it by the rest of the system, it is necessarily because its fund of strength is very low. Toned with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, it soon begins to pay out vigor in the shape of pure, rich blood, containing the elements of muscle, bone and brain. As a sequence of the new vigor afforded the stomach, the bowels perform their functions regularly, and the liver works like clock work. Malaria has no effect upon a system thus reinforced.

Pistols and Pestles.

The duelling pistol now occupies its proper place, in the museum of the collector of relics of barbarism. The pistol ought to have beside it the pestle that turned out pills like bullets, to be shot like bullets at the target of the liver. But the pestle is still in evidence, and will be, probably, until everybody has tested the virtue of Ayer's sugar coated pills. They treat the liver as a friend, not as an enemy. Instead of driving it, they coax it. They are compounded on the theory that the liver does its work thoroughly and faithfully under obstructing conditions, and if the obstructions are removed, the liver will do its daily duty. When your liver wants help, get "the pill that will,"

THE TWIN CITIES' GREAT BARGAIN CENTER

S. E. OLSON CO.,

Minneapolis, Minn.

During the Carnival Week there will be thousands of strangers in the city for the purpose of attending the State Fair, the K. P. Encampment, the G. A. R., or for purposes of general sight-seeing.

We have parlors and reception rooms with piano, writing materials and comfortable chairs in which to rest after a morning's visiting or shopping. We have a nursery, in which are a number of comfortable cribs, where the little one can take a nap while the mother is visiting the various departments in the "Big Store."

On the balcony adjoining the reception parlors is a free employment office. No fees are charged for securing good positions. We will also check unhandy parcels for you free of charge.

In the basement we have a restaurant, where you can secure a good lunch for five cents. We serve a regular table d'hote dinner for twenty-five cents. The basement is cool, well lighted and airy.

In our sixty different departments you can buy everything to be found in any other stores. We buy in such large quantities that we can sell cheaper than the ordinary store-keepers can purchase. We save our customers the difference. Mail orders are filled the same day received and we are always glad to send samples on request. Our force of clerks will be glad to give you any information about the various points of interest in the city. We have lots of room and we wish to do whatever we can for the comfort of our patrons, especially those who are strangers in the city. These accommodations are for you, whether you wish to make purchases or not.

DELANO, FRIDAY, AUG. 28, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

The State Fair opens up with Bicycle Day, Monday, Aug. 31.

—Buy cheap tickets to State Fair on Aug. 31, Sept. 1 and 2.

—John Lohmiller has joined the bicycle brigade.

—Ben Wilcutt is building himself a new residence on his farm near Lake Hewey.

—The Presbyterians held their usual Summer picnic Thursday at Rebecca. Lake

—The Advent camp meeting, at Rockford is having fine weather for their services.

—The M. E. Sunday School held their annual picnic at Lake Rebecca on Wednesday Aug. 26, all report a good time.

—All persons, and especially the village authorities are cautioned to be sober when coming up R. R. Aye. elevated sidewalks.

—The council has finally determined where they will have the grade on R. R. Aye., and some new sidewalks have been laid.

—The old Cargill elevator has been repaired and is now used by the Delano Elevator Company for handling damp wheat.

—Monday, Sept. the 7th. has been set apart as Labor Day. Gov. Clough has asked that people generally, observe it as such.

—Several coveoed wagons wended their way westward through our village this week. One nicely fixed up was marked "Brownie Band."

—Considerable wheat and rye have been marketed here this week at about the lowest figures ever known in this place, and the grain is good too.

—Three picture galleries in Delano. If you want a photograph, tin-type or large crayon picture seek out the specialist in that line and you can be accomodated.

—John Cunningham, one of the oldest settlers in this part of the country, has rented his farm and is moving his family to Minneapolis to be near the University.

—The schools begin Tuesday Aug. 8. All children should attend every day of the term, including the first and the last. Nothing beats regularity in getting an education.

—It adds nothing to the dignity of an official, even though he be Mayor, to get out on the sidewalks and quarrel with property owners until he is told by one of them to stop or he would get his jaws slapped.

—On Monday morning while waiting for the mail, stage driver Reider's horse was frightened by a boy riding by on horseback, and broke from his moorings and proceeded up town at a lively pace. He soon tired and was captured on South Third street without damage.

—Should there be a lady in town who does not use the celebrated Yeast Foam we would advise her to try the free sample given her by the Northwestern Yeast Co's agent. Nothing like it for raising a light, sweet, nutritious and healthy loaf of bread.

—The Delano Cemetary Association met on Monday evening, at the office of Dr. Catlin. They allowed the bill of P. Martin, $3.58 for 27 hitching posts, and two days labor. They also passed the following resolutions. That all delinquent lot owners be notified by the Secretary of this Association to come and pay up their indebtedness or their accounts will be given into the hands of an attorney for collection." It was also resolved to meet the first Monday of every month at Dr. Catlin's office. There are no funds on hand, and the grounds need re-staking before winter, and several other matters need attention, if those in arrears pay up it will come handy for these purposes.

Personal.

William Sleight arrived on his bicycle, from Dakota, Monday.

John and Julia Cunningham drove to Minneapolis Tuesday.

Mrs. O'Hair visited Waverly Monday and M. A. on Tuesday.

Dad Gast was interviewing Delanoites one evening last week.

Prof. Charles S. Hawker returned from the city Monday evening.

Dyane Chapel was calling on friends at Long Lake recently.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Mohl, of Rockford, drove over Tuesday on business.

Mr. Robert Streeter, of Minneapolis, visited Mr. S. S. Hall and family over Sunday.

Misses Rebecka White and Estella Moody, of Albert Lea, visited old Delano friends this week.

Rev. Farber returned home last Friday night after a couple of weeks stay at his farm near Bird Island.

Misses Grace and Margie O'Hair returned last Tuesday morning after about a weeks visit at Waverly.

Miss Probst, of Denever, who has been visiting with her brother Louis' family left for home Tuesday morning.

Joe VanHman, of Buffalo and his daughter Sadie of Watertown, visited Delano friends during the week past.

William Brown, wife and daughter, Bernice, of Long Lake, were visiting, C. W. Ingerson's family Saturday.

Miss Anna R. Quinn came home from the University Summer School Friday evening. She says it was a success.

J. A. Wharton, George P. Shaffer and Dr. Catlin lisened to congressman Towne speech at Buffalo, Wednesday evening.

M. A. O'Hair was a delegate to the congressional convention, at St. cloud yesterday. He reports a very enthusiastic meeting there last night.

Prof. Wharton's wife and two boys landed at home from Ohio, this morning.

The Howard Lake Herald turned out quite a neat catalogue for the coming County Fair.

Miss Bertha Tuchtenhagen accidentally shot by Joe Giblin, near Waverly, a week ago Sunday, is likely to recover. It seems that about nine out of ten of such accidents occur on Sunday.

The Wright County Fair will be held at Howard Lake, September 8, 9, and 10. People who desire to have a good County Fair should do their part toward making it so, Bring out your products and compare them with your neighbors, and get some of the prizes.

At the gold standard meeting in Buffalo two hired bands furnished music and helped swell the audience, to listen to the Horr-i-ble tariff is a tax. At the bimetallic meeting the same hall was full and the silver horn was tooted by the whole Towne, and some of the music was Cutting.

There is some dissatisfaction in Middleville because an inquest was not held over the body of Lenora Hayes recently found dead in the brush near her house with her head partially gone. The woman is said to have had some money. The matter should be thoroughly investigated. Whether she had money or not makes no difference about the investigation. The county pays for that, and should do its best to ferret out evil doers, under all circumstances.

Congressman C. A. Towne, spoke to a full house at Buffalo, on Wednesday evening. There was no brass band, nor any other side show attractions for the people. But people quietly filed into the Court room and extra seats were carried in until the room was packed, many standing up through the eloquent discussion of the silver question for nearly three hours. From the vigorous hand clapping we should judge that quite a large majority of the audience were for C. A. Towne for congress; a still larger majority for W. J. Bryan for President. Mr. Towne used his charts that he had at Washington. He made things quite clear by means of them. He is likely to talk himself back to congress. He has the advantage in this campaign, as the people are more favorable to free coinage of both gold and silver than they are to the protective tariff on which Page Morris would like to get in on. Mr. Towne promises to be at Delano before the campaign closes. Don't fail to hear him, especially if you have any compunctions of conscience, on account of his being the Democratic Nominee for Congress.

Mr. Bryan's Idea of Duty.

(Extracts from a letter written by William J. Bryan to George M. Carden, Dallas, Texas, February 18, 1896.)

"As early as 1893, when the Democratic State Convention of Nebraska, controlled by candidates for the Federal offices, indorsed the President's financial policy, I stated that I would not follow the Democratic party to a gold standard."

"Directed by my conscience and by my best judgement, I shall use that vote to defend my rights, protect my family and advance the wilfare of society. No convention can rob me of my convictions, nor can any party organization drive me to conspire against the prosperity and liberty of my country."

"Men who honestly differ upon the paramount public question can not afford to be harmonized by a National Convention. AFTERNOON SESSION.

Meeting called to order.

Temporary organization made permanent.

Committee on resolutions report adopted, as follows:

RESOLUTIONS

Resolved, That the peoples' party of Wright county in convention assembled, re-affirms the principles enunciated in the Omaha and St. Louis platforms and pledges its hearty support for the election of Bryan and Watson.

Resolved, That the delegates elected from this convention to the state convention are instructed to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of John Lind for governor.

Resolved, That the delegates elected to the conaressional convention are instructed to use all honorable means to secure the nomination of Charles A. Towne for congress.

And whereas the present salaries of county and state officials: under the existing gold standard are out of all proportions to the paying abilities of the taxpayers of the state, thereof

Be it resolved, That we are in favor of and demand that laws be enacted reducing the number of officers and also their salaries.

On Motion the chair appointed a committee of five to select delegates to the State and Congressional conventions as follows:

A. G. Sexton, John Kelley, John Olsen, Paul Kennedy and W. L. Smith.

Delegates were chosen and confirmed.

State Convention, A. G. Sexton, John Kelley, D. Cochran, John Nygren, N. D. Vandergon, E. C. Day, Charles Wright, John McDonald, David Murdock, John Giblin, Jr. John P. Olson, H. L. Sand, D. W. Flannigan, R. D. Topping.

W. H. Cutting and John Kelley were on motion appointed by the chair to ascertain if the Conference committee was ready to report.

They soon returned, with a portion of the committee. R. Bennett reported as chairman, that they were unable to come to an agreement with the Democrats. As the Democrats insisted on having someone nominated that they might object to, Sheriff, Clerk of Court and Treasurer.

The Democrats were called on for a report and through James McDonnell of Wayerly, the report was given That they had offered the Peopels Party nearly everything and could not come to an agreement, Mr. McDonnell further stated that There are ten offices to be filled. If the Peoples Party will go ahead and fill five and leave us five. I will pledge them the party support. Recess for 15 minutes

The chair then declared nominations in order.

A. L. Sexton in one of his grandest strains of eloquence nominated that veteran Timothy Desmond for Sheriff

Mr. Desmond declined to run, Levi Vannurden, J. P. Kuhnley and S. M. Lind were then nominated.

The chair appointed E. C. Day, Ed. Zebarth and John Devaney tellers.

R. Bennett moved that the ballot for Sheriff be informal.

F. W. Johnson moved to pass sheriff for the present. Voted down.

First ballot, Vannurden 26, Lind 5, Kuhnley 5.

R. Bennett moved to make the informal ballot formal. Carried. And Levi Vannurden was declared the nominee for Sheriff.

For Treasurer, W. H. Cutting nominated "One of the best men in the county, Ed. Ziebarth." He was chosen by acclamation.

For Clerk of Court Johd S. Johnson, John C. O'Leary, and Ed Sherwin were nominated, Sherwin declined to run. A ballot was taken resulting in Johnson 36, O'Leary 7. John S. Johnson was declared the nommee.

For County Attorney Jacob Kuhnley nominated W. H. Cutting, Elected by acclamation.

Register of Deeds, J. Z. Cochran was chosen by acclamation.

H. Tanner thought the Democrats ought to have a say as to what offices they would take.

The chairman said they were taking them at their word.

James McDonnell was called on He did not deny having made the offer and had nothing to take back,

Chairman Cochran said there was a higher officer than either Tanner or McDonnell present, and as they did not know which represented democracy He would call on the chairman of the Democratic Committee John C. Nugent. Mr. Nugent said "I have nothing to say."

T. G. Mealey thought Coroner and Conrt Commissioner hardly adapted to fill the vacancy in the want column of Democracy.

W. H. Cutting offered if the convention would say so, to withdraw from the race and allow the Democrats to name County Attorney. They dedn't consent.

Several favored putting up a full ticket unless the Democrats would agree to be satisfied with what was left them.

County Commissioners were then chosen.

1st Dist. E. C. Day. Mr. Day made an eloquent speech not giving the present board a very flatering send off, and pledging if elected to stand by the tax payers.

2nd Dist. Louis Bremer.

5th Dist. John Nygren.

Chairman of County Committee David Cochran was re-elected.

John O'Leary got the floor and informed the gentlemen that the Republicans of Wright County have put up a job, and that the "Free silver Democrats" would have a full ticket in the field.

Bennett, Kennedy, Cutting and others indulged in a liberal flow of elequence.

It was moved and carried that the chair appoint a committeeman from each commissioner district.

Bennett moved that the County Committee be empowered to fill all vacancies on the ticket in case the Democrats refuse to do so.

Republican County Convention and Primary Election.

A Republican County Convention for the County of Wright will be held at the Court House in the Village of Buffalo, in said County, on Wednesday the 16th day of September 1896, at 11 o'clock A. M., for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following named county offices of said County, viz:

County Auditor, County Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, Judge of Probate, County Attorney, Clerk of the District Court, Superintendent of Schools, County Surveyor, Coroner, Court Commissioner and County Commissioners for the first, third, and fifth Commissioners Districts of said County. Also to elect forty one delegates to represent said Wright County in the Republican Legislative Convention for the 38th Legislative District of Minnesota, to be held in the Village of Buffalo, in said Wright County, on the 17th day of September 1896, to nominate four candidates for the Legislature in said District.

The several election districts in said Wright county are entitled to representation in said county convention as follows: One delegate at large from each election district and one delegate additional for every forty votes, or major fraction thereof, cast for Knute Nelson for Governor in 1894, to wit:

Albion	4	Rockford	5
Buffalo	4	Silver Creek	3
Chatham	2	Southside	3
Clearwater	4	Stockholm	6
Cokato	6	Victor	4
Corinna	2	Woodland	3

Maple Lake	2	Delano V	3
Marysville	4	Howard Lake	3
Middleville	4	Maple Lake	1
Monticello	4	Monticello	4
Otsego	3	Montrose	2
		Waverly	1

The primary elections for the election of said delegates will be held in all of the said election districts of said Wright County, on Tuesday September the 15th 1896, the polls to be opened at 7:30 o'clock P. M. and remain open until 9 o'clock P. M., one hour and thirty minutes.

Said primaries to be conducted under the primary election law of this State; the town and Village committees must fix the place for holding the said primary elections, and give at least six days notice of the time and place of holding the same as the law requires.

Dated August 24th 1896.

By order of the county committee,
48-2t J. T. Alley, chairman.

Chancellor Crows.

WATKINS, Minn, Aug. 31, 1896.

Dr. T. J. Catlin, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—I will send you a line or two, to let you know that I am still alive, and as much of a "Renegade" as ever. We have not done much threshing yet; farmers have not been ready; and the crop is only half what it was last year; making it no inducement for them to rush it on the market at 40 cents a bushel, when some have only 5 and 6 bushels of wheat to the acre. Just think of getting $2.00 and $2.50 an acre for a crop of wheat--But then it is Gold "you know," and good as the most "enlightened nations" have.

Now I am not talking muce but I have been over half of Sterns County, three Townships of Meeker, and the Gold or McKinley men are hard to find. The ratio is about one gold man to 150 silver men. The only active McKinley man I found in Stearns county was my Friend Guy Halgren, who used to live in Watertown, and is in the drug business, at New Richmond. So be of good cheer, John Lind is good for 50,000 majority at least, and Bryan no doubt will lead that number. Best wishes to all my 16 to 1 friends. Respectfully

F. F. CHACELLOR.

Democratic County Convention and Primary Election.

A Democratic County Convention will be held at the Court House in the village of Buffalo in the said county on Thursday the 24th day of September 1896, at 11 o'clock A. M. for the purpose of placing in nomination candidates for the following named county offices of said county viz:

Auditor, Treasurer, Sheriff, Register of Deeds, Judge of Probate, County Attorney, Clerk of the District Court, Superintendent of Schools, County Surveyor, Coroner, Court Commissioner and a County Commissioner for the first, third and fifth commissioner district in said county:

Also to elect thirty three delegetes to represent said Wright County in a Democratic Legislative Convention for the 38th Legislative District of Minnesota to be held at the Court House in the village of Buffalo on the 24th day of September 1896, to nominate four candidates for Representative in the Legislature from said district.

The several election districts in said county are entitled to representation in County Convention as follows: One delegate at large for each election district and one additional delegate for every thirty votes or major fraction thereof, cast for the Democratic nominee for Secretary of State at the General Election of 1894, to wit:

J. C. NUGENT. Chairman.

THE Minneapolis Tribune, somewhat noted for bad breaks, intimates that the old soldiers are for gold; and "they will vote as they shot."

THE gold standard people are flooding the country with suppliments to all the country newspapers with gold standard articles. Read them, compare them, find out for yourselves how utterly inconsistent many of their statements are, and they will destroy each other. They don't harmonize by a good deal on many important points. Then get hold of a good paper on bimetallism; read the constitution of the United States; read the money plank in all the political platforms for the past twenty years; then vote as your conscience tells you.

As the parade of the G. A. R. veterans wound down from Summit avenue to Sixth street in St. Paul yesterday, a McKinley enthusiast, as each division passed, called for cheers for McKinley. The response made by the old soldiers indicated that they are as unanimous in favor of standing by their country now as they were 30 years ago. They will evidently vote as they shot. When the shooting was in progress Bryan was too young to know.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Our reporter happened to be at that place at that time, and says that while some of the eastern states and Nebraskans cheered quite loudly that many states responded quite feebly; and one old veteran expressed the sentiments of many when he sung out "We are not here for politics." The old vets can't be whipped into line by such tactics.

Benefits of Free Silver.

The free coinage of silver, same as we now have of gold, and previous to '73 had of silver, would give us more standard money on which to do business, and instead of 92 per cent of the business in this country being done on credit people would pay up a little closer. The late Hon. William Windom was of the opinion that there was not enough of gold or of silver alone for money, and he was good authority being Secretary of the Treasury at the time.

It, together with the abolition of the clause which allows a discrimination against silver by making contracts payable in gold, would place the two metals on a parity, and do away with the 53 cent dollar cry. The restoration of silver to its place as standard money would soon make the bullion value and the money value the same, and both equal to gold at the ratio that has so long been maintained by the United States.

America is a silver producing country and can furnish her own money. Other countries need their silver for money for themselves: they will not sacrifice anything to ship it here to be made into our money. The teaspoons and silver dishes will raise in value rather than depreciate, and people are not going to have them melted up and use tin or wooden spoons and dishes in their stead.

With a larger volume of standard money, one dollar as good as another, money manipulators could not corner the market so easily. More actual dollars would be in the hands of the people where bankers and brokers could not get hold of them so easily.

As for the story that only 52 millions of silver can possibly be gotten into circulation among 70 millions of people in the United States; it is hard to believe

Don't Bite.

For several weeks we published three Questions for Gold Standard Men, requesting some of our county papers, especially the Eagle to answer them. But they didn't seem to bite at our bait, and we had about concluded that it was useless to try to have them tell us where they stand, when the Annandale Post of last week offered if we would tell them what we mean by basis to answer the questions. We presume Mr. Rank would prefer a gold standard definition so will refer him to Harrison's speech at carnagie Hall, or to McKinley's letter of acceptance; he will find the term used in both, in its usually accepted manner; so now we shall anxiously await Mr. Rank's views on the questions.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., August 28, 1896.

Everybody around democratic headquarters has worn a broad smile ever since Mark Hanna's interview, trying to hedge on the silver question, was published. Senator Faulkner says of that interview: "I never saw a more significant interview appear during a campaign. Mr. Hanna virtually admits now that unless he can force some other issue to the front he is beaten on the currency issue. He recognizes, what is the absolute truth, that the great masses of the people of the U. S., in the west especially, are bimetallists. He sees that they will have nothing to do with a single gold standard, and he proposes now, with the election only ten weeks off, to swing around and try to undo the work of the republican convention by claiming that there is no hospitality to silver in the republican platform. He admits the democratic contention that bimetallism is the proper thing for this country, but I do not think that he can fool the people by his profession of friendliness at this late day."

Not a little amusement has been the result of the Henry Watterson boom for the gold bolters Indianapolis nomination. Should Watterson head the ticket President Cleveland would probably decline to support him for personal reasons, as there has been ill-will between the two men since early in the first Cleveland administration, but as most of the belters are Cleveland men. Mr. Cleveland will most likely be able to head off the Watterson boom.

The literary bureau of the Democratic National Committee, which was organized this week, will do its work in connection with the Congressional committee. Mr. Clark Howell, of the Atlanta Constitution, is the head of the bureau, but the exigencies of the state campaign in Georgia will prevent his remaining in Washington until after the state election and Representative Richardson, of Tenn. is in charge. Before returning to Georgia Mr. Howell said of the literary bureau: "This department will do its utmost to meet every reasonable demand for campaign literature. It is important that Chairmen of State Committees and that Democratic leagues and other organizations wishing literature should communicate with us at once, indicating the character of literature desired. We are prepared to supply campaign material with special reference to the currency question, the bond issues, the income tax, and other matters of like character. The committee is not overburdened with money, and for this reason it will concentrate its attention as far as possible to the doubtful states."

One of the busiest places in Washington is the headquarters of the National Association of Democratic Clubs. The formation of Bryan and Silver Clubs in all sections of the country are daily going on at an unheard of rate, even at McKinley's home, as may be seen by the following extract from a letter received from the Secretary of the Bryan Free Silver Club of Canton, Ohio: "This club is the central organization of the city and county. We have in the city at the present time four other Bryan Free Silver clubs that are auxiliary to this. These clubs are composed of members of all parties. Party politics and party names are scarcely mentioned here any more. They are either "gold bugs" or "silver men", and the "silver men" far outnuber the "goldbugs". I feel certain that McKinley's own ward, city, county, and state will be carried for Bryan."

Secretary Hoke Smith, who will solely because of his determination to support the regular democratic ticket add the prefix "ex" to that title, next week, did not at first intend to take any active part in the campaign, but in answer to numerous requests he has agreed to take the stump in Georgia for the state and national tickets. Missouri Democrats in Washington regard the selection of ex-Gov. Francis as Secretary Smith's successor as an attempt to throw that state to McKinley by building up the strength of the gold bolters. Some of them say that Gov. Francis had almost made up his mind to come out for Bryan when he was tendered this position, although he says he intended to bolt from the first and was only waiting for the proper time to make the announcement. It is not thought in Washington that Gov. Francis will take the time necessary to familiarize himself with the intricate affairs of the Interior Department, but will devote his time to politics, allowing his competent corps of subordinates to run the department.

Gold or Silver—Which? or Both?

BY REV. D. J. HIGGINS

This is the burning question which is absorbing every other in this presidential campaign. Every Christian citizen should study it in all its bearings on the welfare of the country. He ought to study it dispassionately with a judgement as free as possible from all partisan bias. He can more easily do this because every political party is split and divided on this issue. It is not a distinctly party question. One may be a good Republican or Democrat and take either side of the money question. Here is also a good opportunity to exhibit a Christian courtesy towards those who differ in opinion. In the use of language he that is most temperate and courteous has the better argument. The foundation of this discussion should be the historic facts concerning the money of our country, and the argument in favor of any policy of finance should be a process of fair inference from that history. Let us get at some verified facts to guide us.

1. The United States treasury, in its circular No. 123 says: "Gold and silver dollars being standard coins of the United States, are not redeemable." Why not redeemable? Because they are "standard coins." They are money because the gold and silver bullion have been coined into "stand ard coins" at the United States mints. Their value as coins was fixed by the coinage law and not by any intrinsic value inhering in the bullion. The national bank currency is redeemable in "lawful money," that is, in either "standard coins." Silver certificates are redeemable in "standard silver dollars," for which redemption the silver bullion is stored in the United States treasury. Gold certificates and greenbacks are redeemable in gold coins, for which the $100,000,000 of gold reserve is held in the treasury. United States bonds are redeemable in that kind of money specified in the bonds. Gold and silver bullion are commodities in the market, and have a bullion value; hence they depreciate and appreciate as bullion and not as coin. But when coined into "standard coins," they become money and not commodities; hence in the United States both "standard coins" have an equal purchasing power and are "legal tender."

2. Official information received by the United States treasury gives the production of gold and silver during 1895 nearly equal in the world. Of silver the amount produced is $226,000,000; and of that the amount of coinage is $100,000,000. The production of gold during 1895 is $203,000,000; the coinage of which is free.

The New York Sun, one of the strongest gold standard papers in this country, says that "the value was fixed not by the cost of the production, but by the coinage law." The inference is therefore that a free coinage law for silver would fix the price of silver in a fair ratio to gold. If gold production is protected by a free coinage law, why should not silver production be protected by a free coinage law? If a free "coinage law" for both gold and silver would fix the price of both in a ratio of 16 to 1 then no one could buy silver for less than ninety-five cents an ounce and there could be no "cheap dollars."

3. "Prior to 1873 there was no more legal limit to the coinage of silver than there is now to the coinage of gold." Very little gold or silver coin was in circulation; paper money was the principal money. Only $8,000,000 of silver dollars had been coined in this country. These dollars were largely bought up and melted into bullion because silver bullion was worth more than gold bullion. This was made a reason for demonetizing silver, by declaring it no longer "legal tender" money, and adopting the single gold standard. In 1878 specie payment was reached, and because there was not gold enough in circulation to redeem the paper money, congress ordered that the silver dollar containing 371.25 grains should be a legal tender dollar for all debts. But this coinage of silver was limited to not more than $4,000,000 worth per month. This was not a full remonetizing of silver, for it limited the amount to be coined and reduced the amount of pure silver in the dollar from 412½ grains in 1870 to 371.25 in 1878, which is the amount of silver in our present standard silver dollar.

The inference of this history is that we have gold standard of bullion value of silver, and a bimetallic standard of money value of gold and silver coin. Because of this, gold bullion has the chance of determining the price of gold and silver in the market for speculative purposes; it can raise its price and depreciate the price of silver for its own advantage. The question is, would it not be better for the country to stop this speculation in bullion values, and return to the bimetallic standard of both bullion and money that the country had prior to 1873 and or eighty-one years?

The evident tendency of the banking interests of the country is shown in the recent agreement of the banks to hold back gold from circulation. Go to any bank and try to get gold and you will find that the bank will pay out only silver dollars. "Gold and gold notes have totally disappeared during the last fortnight." If the banks are in politics this is a very effective argument to the business men of the country. The speculative purpose is to raise gold to a higher premium by hiding it, for in view of the fact that there is more gold in the country than silver, there can be no necessity for this hoarding. A free coinage of both metals would head off this seeming conspiracy against silver. It would cheapen gold and bring it out of hiding and advance silver towards a parity of bullion value corresponding to the present money parity. What the country needs is both metals circulating side by side without the possibility of any dear or cheap dollars. Free coinage of both metals will break the corner on gold and reduce the exaggerated purchasing ower of that metal to its normal standard. Dr. Otto Arndt, of Germany says this country by wise coinage laws could force bimetallism in Europe. Edmond Thery, the French bimetallist believes that free coinage by this country will lead to internationol bimetallism.—Methodist Herald.

In a Bad Predicament.

There is one hopeful sign in our political horizon. The packed or manipulated convention for nominating officers is loosing its power. Old politicians can no longer have everything their own way. The Democrats have stranded their old political bosses by their action at the Chicago National Convention, on the silver issue. They nominated a man of the people, instead of, a tool of politicians backed by the money interest. The old ringsters were not prepared to meet the move of their creatures, great or small, and are stranded. They may follow the mass in the new move but can get neither office or prestige. Our Wright county bosses are now lamenting over the discovery that their tactics belong to other days. They have too many marks of the old corruption to disguise their position. The Populist convention turned them down.

The Waverly Tribune, the servile mouthpiece of these political ringsters show just how they feel after defeat.

Mr. Tanner the sage of the ring is going to devote his pen to the task of trying to patch up some scheme by which his friends can regain their lost power. His first effort aims at driving the nominees of the Populist convention out of the field by refusing the support of his little paper. Other means will be tried if this does not carry.

If they cannot get office they must have revenge by beating thr whole ticket, state, national and county. They have been so ill treated and their feelings hurt so badly that the chances are they will lose their new found confidence in the silver cause and bolt the whole ticket if something is not done to smoothe their ruffled spirits. They claim to hold not only the entire Democratic vote of Wright county but the majority of the Populists. They even say the Populist convention was with them and still they did not get what they wanted. How happens it that with so much prestige they came out at the small end? This question seems to puzzle Mr. Tanner. He says in his comment on the convention that a few delegates prevented the consumation of a result a majority of the delegates wished. Hard on a reform majority if a few delegates can run them.

It the result Mr. Tanner and the majority he had in that convention wished, was to secure the best places for Mr. Tanner's men it seems strange that the conventoon gave its nominees such hearty support when they wanted the old politicians. Mr. O'Leary was up and strange to say only got seven votes while Mr. Johnson received 36 that does not look as thongh the convention wanted Mr. O'Leary. Mr. Vannurden received 26 votes, which would make it seem that he was the choice for sheriff. Mr. Ziebarth received the entire vote of the convention for treasurer, Mr. Cochran received the nomination for register of deeds by a unanimous vote and we understand he is a silver Democrat. The convention certainly does indicate that these men were the choice of the great majority of the delegates. It seems to me that the entire delegation were perfectly willing to nominate real silver Democrats but did not care to enthrone ring bosses who have abandoned Cleveland Democracy just for the occasion. Where were these men on and before the 7th of July? If we remember right these were among the men that represented Wright county at the State convention that sent a Mike Doran, gold standard delegation to misrepresent Minnesota at the Chicago convention.

We ask the Tribune, Had the Democrat convention nominated for the Presidency Grover Cleveland or John G. Carlyle does he think the Populist convention at St. Louis would have endorsed either?

Had the Minnesota state convention nominated Mike Doran for Governor would the popalists endorse him?

If not why should Wright county Populist take his hench-men?

These men got part fusion with the populists two years ago and sold out to the Republicans. From their action it seemed they would have gone over to the Republicans if that party was not already gorged with office seekers.

It is very evident that the object of fusion this time was to get office hoping to ride through on the silver wave that is going to sweep the nation.

Mr. McDonell is reported to have said that the Democrat committee was willing to give the Populist "almost any five offices." This must be a mistake Mr. McDonnell is too well versed in the English Language to use the word, almost, in that sentence. Again this report says: "No sane man would have taken Mr. McDonnell literally." We think Mr. McDonnell's reputation for veracity is very good, and the convention knew it, so he was taken at his word.

We see no reason why patriotic reform Democrats should not fill this fusion ticket and support it. The chances for victory are excellent. The people want new men to use in the new movement.

The Tribune would have no reduction in salaries of public officers though the taxpayers income is reduced to half what it was when these salaries were made. He thinks money should be spent in canvassing, in other words the candidate should be enabled to buy his way into office if he could not stand on his merit.

The Tribune has shown his true color and can be no longer mistaken for a reform organ. He excels in giving taffey to his admirers, so the best thing the discomfited office seekers can do is, to take a stick apiece, and retire from public politics. Every man who espouses a cause can not expect to be rewarded with an office. There is an over-production of such patriots.

Bolting Democrats.

The convention of bolting democrats was held in Indianapolis this week. John M. Palmer, of Illinois, and S. M. Buckner, of Kentucky, two veterans of the late war, one on either side, were chosen candidates for President and Vice-President.

The platform endorses Grover Cleveland; eulogizes the Supreme Court; declares for tariff for revenue only; advocates taking the government out of the banking business; a pension for deserving soldiers; and a gold standard, (nothing about international agreement.)

They say the Supreme Court of the United States was wisely established by the framers of our constitution. But they don't say a word about silver and gold being the coin of this same constitution.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.
Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoka, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

BUFFALO GAZETTE and DEMORIST'S MAGAZINE.

One year for $2.50.

THE New York World

Thrice-a-week Edition

18 PAGES A WEEK. 156 PAPERS A YEAR.

Is larger than any weekly or semi-weekly paper published and is the only important Democratic "weekly" published in New York City. Three times as large as the leading Republican weekly of New York City. It will be of especial advantage to you during the Presidential Campaign, as it is published every other day, except Sunday, and has all the freshness and timeliness of a daily. It combines all the news with a long list of interesting departments, unique features, cartoons and graphic illustrations, the latter being a specialty.

All these improvements have been made without any increase in the cost, which remain at one dollar per year.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and the BUFFALO GAZETTE together one year for $1.75

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.00.

and BUFFALO GAZETTE 6 months for 90 cts; or three months for 50 cts.

If the horse had sense enough to read statistics he would be sick at heart. The United States has 12,133 miles of electric road and only 1,219 miles of horse road.

The mayor of New York continues to refuse to kiss the bride on occasions where he officiates at weddings. Some day he will be looking back upon lost opportunities.

Large families are becoming more fashionable in the east. A Hartford man has 41 children, while a New York man has been sent to the Tombs for having 14 wives.

In the east certain women are said to be wearing unmatched stockings. Thus we are going from one glorious innovation to another, and life grows every day more and more delightful, to say nothing of more soulful.

A girl in Iowa evinced such an extravagant desire to "scorch" about on a bicycle that her stern parents confined her nimble feet with a log chain. This was too heavy an anchor to put on soaring ambition and the police interfered.

In his will Peter the Great points out the course to be pursued by his successors for the extension of the Russian empire and the subjugation of Europe. In clause nine he says: "Do all in your power to approach closely Constantinople and India. Remember that he who rules over these countries is the real sovereign of the world."

Russia's penal system which has so long been a disgrace to civilization will shortly undergo a change, it being proposed to abandon the Siberian convict colonies and open the country entirely to free settlers. But instead of effecting a reform the government proposes to make the system even more terrible than it is now, by transporting convicts to Archangle and the islands of the north.

Only 906 persons in 1,000,000, according to a medical authority, die from old age, while 1,200 succumb to gout, 18,400 to measles, 27,000 to apoplexy, 7,500 to consumption, 48,000 to scarlet fever, 25,000 to whooping-cough, 30,000 to typhoid and typhus, and 7,000 to rheumatism. The averages vary according to locality, but these are considered pretty accurate as regards the population of the globe as a whole.

Eurpean observers have recently noticed a strange fact regarding the freaks played by lightning. It appears that deaths from lightning strokes are extremely rare in the large cities, though only too numerous in the rural districts. The only solution is that the multiplicity of wires, instead of inviting the electric fluid, conveys it safely away. Old Ben Franklin's head was assuredly very level on the subject of lightning rods.

Mankind are engaged in an almost continuous struggle for the mastery with the bugs, worms and moths, and still the latter seem to be as numerous and destructive as ever before. Massachusetts has expended a million dollars in efforts to exterminate the gypsy moth. The appropriation of this year was $100,000. It is now nearly exhausted, and the commissioners have begun to discharge the men employed, but the moths are still holding the fort.

"Those whose hair turns gray prematurely," says an oracle, "are sympathetic and honorable." We are assured that the hair is more apt to turn gray from overscrupulousness than from grief. The same authority tells us that women with pale hair are impulsive and very fickle and that men with fine light hair "are smart, conceited and become selfish and are always inconstant." All red-haired people are smart—unless they are otherwise, when they are the stupidest creatures on the face of the earth.

The occupation census just completed by the Russian government indicates that in that country, as well as this, the proportion of persons employed in manufactures and commerce is increasing more rapidly than the agricultural population. In 1882 out of every 100 persons of fixed occupation 49.55 were classed under the head of agriculture, 50.45 under the head of industry. This year the census returns show a proportion of 41.89 to 58.11. Undoubtedly the same state of affairs may be observed in most other countries. The movement of population is from the country toward the cities.

The assignment of the drygoods firm of Hilton, Hughes & Co., in New York, marks the end of a vast commercial house built up with such unerring energy from the smallest beginnings by A. T. Stewart, embarked in business in lower Broadway in 1823 with a financial capital of $3,000. In a score of years he had amassed a fortune and built the marble structure that overlooks the City Hall park, and in 1862 he moved into what was then the largest retail store in the world, which cost him nearly $3,000,000. This was the monument to the "first merchant prince of the United States," and this is the establishment.

Justice Beach, of the New York supreme court, has ruled that a baby cannot be held in pawn for his board bill. A colored woman had taken care of a baby on an agreement that she should receive ten dollars a month for its board. The parents owed her $100 for the child's board and refused to pay, but sought to take away the child. They secured a writ of habeas corpus, and the child was produced in court. The colored woman thought she had a right to keep the child until its board was paid, but Justice Beach ruled against her. She must give up the child and sue the parents for the money due.

LATER NEWS.

The G. A. R.

St. Paul, Sept. 2.—The crowd of veterans who people St. Paul were awakened yesterday morning by the booming of the guns which at sunrise woke the echoes in firing the national salute of twenty-one guns. This started the weary veterans of Camp Mason from their beds to commence the second day's fatiguing duty of sight-seeing and hand-shaking.

Most of the boys are now here. At least 150,000 people are here, and that is half the number insured to Father Abraham many years ago. Then the boys were alone, but now they have their families and friends with them. They are just as ready to march for enjoyment now as they were to march for their country then. Their banners bear the motto, "Peace, not Strife." Their watchword is "Friendship," not "Enmity." They are here on a mission of joy and not grief.

Where do the 150,000 come from. Everywhere from boundary to boundary and from seabord to the sound. The estimate of the size of the crowd is based on the numbers of trains that have brought them here. About 100 specials arrived Monday and as many more arrived yesterday. That makes 200 specials. On the very conversation estimate of fifty regular trains daily and including suburban service, there were eighty-six, the total number of trains that brought veterans to St. Paul from outside points in the past two days is 300. They contained from five to fifteen coaches each a moderate average being nine coaches, making in all 2,700 coaches.

Last night was given over to camp fires by the veterans and to the grand reception arranged for them by the ladies of St. Paul. The evening was a trifle cool for this last feature, as the arrangements called for an out-door promenade and reception following the camp fires.

LI HUNG CHANG.

Famous Chinese Viceroy Comes to America.

He Is Royally Greeted at New York—Sees Uncle Sam's Warships—Receives a Great Ovation on Landing.

New York, Aug. 29.—Li Hung Chang, viceroy of China, ambassador extraordinary to Russia and world-renowned diplomat, arrived in New York Friday and became the guest of the nation.

The day was a perfect one. Bright sunlight overhead, an atmosphere clear as crystal, with a tinge of autumn coolness in it, and a light breeze that ruffled the surface of the bay combined to make the first view that Li Hung Chang had of the harbor of the metropolis a pleasant one. Added to its natural beauties was the imposing spectacle furnished by the presence of the finest fleet of war ships Uncle Sam has ever gathered together. They were the best of the new navy, and every vessel was polished and painted and made ready in Bristol fashion for the reception of the honored guest. There was the fine cruiser New York, flag ship of the fleet, with Admiral Bunce on board; the cruisers Cincinnati, Columbia, Raleigh, Newark, the battle ships Indiana and Massachusetts, peerless in their class; the Maine, the Texas, the monitors Amphitrite and Terror, the ram Katahdin and the dispatch boat Dolphin, with the reception committee on board.

The committee from the Dolphin boarded the St. Louis off quarantine and accompanied Li Hung Chang to the pier of the American line at the foot of Fulton street, where the landing was made. Preparations for the reception of the famous Chinaman had been carefully arranged. Maj. Gen. Thomas Ruger, commander of the department of the east, as the personal representative of President Cleveland, with his two staff officers, Maj. George W. Davis and Capt. Mills; William W. Rockhill, first assistant secretary of state, representing his department; the Chinese minister, Yang Yu, and secretary; the Chinese Consul Sze, and a representative of the press, boarded the United States dispatch boat Dolphin early in the morning and steamed down the bay to meet the ambassador.

Floats the Chinese Flag.

At the masthead of the St. Louis floated the imperial colors of China, the yellow flag with an immense dragon boldly outlined in the center in natural colors, blue, red, green and yellow. When the St. Louis came to quarantine a steam launch was lowered from the davits of the Dolphin and the receiving party conveyed over to the big liner.

Reception on Board the New York.

After Gen. Ruger and party stepped aboard the St. Louis they went immediately to the aft drawing-room, where they were met by Vice President Wright, of the American line. Li was in his state-room, and word was sent to him that the government representatives were ready to meet him.

Steps on America's Shores.

It was 1:20 p. m. when the steamer touched the pier. Li's sedan chair was gotten ready for him, but he turned to the men and said: "I do not need it. I prefer to walk upon American shores."

At 1:30 p. m., accompanied by the official party, he left the steamer by a private gangway and was greeted by the naval militia, who beat a welcoming tune upon drums. The party descended from the upper pier by elevator, which was elaborately decorated with Chinese colors, to the floor below, where another company of naval reserves formed a cordon. Here eight carriages were in waiting for the foreigners.

A detachment of the Sixth cavalry, U. S. A., was in waiting to escort the envoy and his suite to the Hotel Waldorf. A start was made at two p. m.

Visits Grant's Tomb.

New York, Aug. 31.—Li Hung Chang was visited on Sunday by a delegation of 30 Chinese merchants, representing the Lee family in these parts. The most interesting part of the day's programme was the visit of the ambassador to the tomb of Gen. Grant on Riverside drive. Li Hung Chang had a great admiration for Gen. Grant, who was one of his heroes. At three p. m. the police stopped traffic and nobody was admitted into Thirty-third street. A dense mass of people lined the sidewalks along Fifth avenue as far as the eye could see. There were bluecoats stationed all along the route which was covered by the distinguished visitor. Col. Fred Grant, accompanied by his son Ulysses Grant and by his brother Ulysses Grant, of San Diego, Cal., arrived at the Waldorf at 2:20 o'clock. Mrs. Grant, the widow of Gen. Grant, who was staying at the Fifth Avenue hotel, was driven to Col. Grant's house, 25 East Sixty-second street, where Li Hung Chang was to visit her after the ceremony at the tomb was over.

Li Hung Chang and party drove up Riverside drive opposite the tomb at 4:15 o'clock. His appearance was a signal for hearty cheering. There was a short delay while one of the Chinese attendants hastened back to a rear carriage to bring Li Hung Chang's seat and chair. When it arrived he was carried by four policemen from the road to the tomb. He carried an umbrella in one hand and a gold-mounted cane in the other.

Li's Tribute.

On reaching the top of the steps Li alighted. The heavy iron door leading to the tomb was then opened. Li, after taking in one hand his floral wreath, entered the crypt and placed it on the iron casket. Before doing so he made a profound bow. Li's wreath was a beautiful affair. It was about four feet in diameter and consisted of bay leaves and white mauve orchids tied with yellow velvet. The occasion seemed to affect Li deeply. In conversation with Col. Grant he referred to his warm admiration of the late general's qualities. One of the leading reasons, he added, for returning home by way of America was to visit his friend's grave. Through an interpreter he made many inquiries about the mausoleum, towards which he forwarded Hon. John Russell Young a check for $500. After remaining standing for 20 minutes alongside of the casket Li uttered several words in Chinese and made a profound bow. Stepping backward to the door, he repeated the same words to himself and made a second bow. Then he withdrew. As he seated himself in the sedan chair the crowd uttered a rousing cheer. This seemed to please him greatly, for he gently nodded his head.

TWO SHORT SPEECHES.

Mr. McKinley Addresses More Visitors at His Home.

Canton, O., Aug. 29.—Maj. McKinley made two speeches Friday, and they were both short. His first visitors were a committee representing the executive committee of the National Republican league. They came fresh from the meeting at Milwaukee. John Goodnoe, of Minnesota, delivered an address, and Maj. McKinley responded briefly. Among other things he said:

"I have seen somewhere the inquiry: 'Cannot the United States establish a financial system of their own; is it too weak and dependent to do that?' I answer: The United States now has a financial policy which in the main it has been pursuing since the beginning of the government, and which it does not mean to change until it can find a better one. Those who make the inquiry are usually against our American policy of finance, and they are insisting that we shall adopt the financial policy of China and Mexico. I hope it will not be thought an evidence of lack of national spirit or national independence that we decline to adopt their proposition."

At four o'clock a large delegation of United Brethren clergymen, who are attending a conference here, called upon Maj. McKinley. Bishop J. H. Mills, of Oregon, spoke in behalf of the ministers and Maj. McKinley, in response, said, among other things:

"Good citizenship lies at the foundation of our true greatness as a free government. Those who proclaim it are indeed Christian teachers and public benefactors. The better the citizen the better a free government and its laws. It is a gratifying fact that in our form of government character counts for so much; the lack of it amounts to almost disqualification for public trust. Whatever men's individual opinions on moral questions are, or may be, whether good or bad; whatever may be their party affiliations, all prefer that public officials shall be of high character and worth. They may be heedless of virtue and careless in their own lives, but they insist that those who are to execute the public will shall be men of unquestioned integrity. Public opinion demands this, and happily all political parties respect it."

AERONAUT FALLS.

Mrs. Hibbard Dashed to Pieces at Clayton, Mo.

St. Louis, Aug. 29.—Mrs. George W. Hibbard, known professionally as Victoria LeRoy, fell from her balloon Friday at Clayton, St. Louis county, a distance of 2,500 feet. During each day of the county fair at Clayton this week she has made successful ascensions. At five o'clock Friday evening she had ascended about 60 feet when her parachute became detached and fell to the ground. The balloon shot up rapidly. The woman, in an effort to catch the parachute, had partly fallen and was hanging with one arm hooked over the trapese bar. When the balloon was almost lost in the clouds a dark speck was seen to drop from it, and the 3,000 spectators groaned in unison. The frantic husband rushed into his tent and seized a pistol. As he pulled the trigger with the weapon pointed at his heart his arm was seized and his life was saved.

The whirling form of the unfortunate woman crashed through the top of a large elm with awful force. Her back was broken, she was disemboweled and her brains were scattered all over the tree's branches. She was 26 years old and had considerable experience as an aeronaut, having devoted the past eight years of her life to the perilous art of navigating the air. She had made over 200 ascensions. Three times she met with serious accidents and was slightly injured on several occasions. The awful accident created a scene of wild excitement at the fair, women screaming and fainting, while men stood breathless at the terrible catastrophe.

NOTED RUSSIAN DEAD.

Demise of Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky, Minister of Foreign Affairs.

London, Aug. 31.—A dispatch to the Telegraph from Kieff says that Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky, Russian minister of foreign affairs, died suddenly while traveling from Vienna to this place. Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky was in the company of the czar at the time of his death, and his demise was wholly without warning.

The news of the death of Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky, according to the dispatch to the Telegraph, caused great excitement throughout Russia, where the personality of the minister of foreign affairs was considered to be second only to the czar himself. Prince Lobanoff-Rostovsky pursued a strong foreign policy—a policy which was regarded in some quarters as threatening the peace of the world. His death at the present juncture is regarded as a most dramatic and important event, upsetting as it does all possibilities of conferences between the foreign ministers of the great powers and compelling the czar to change the plans concerning his tour through Germany, France and England.

No Money for Suicides.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—At the morning session of the supreme lodge of the Knights of Pythias a resolution was introduced prohibiting the payment of death benefits to suicides whether the victim be sane or insane, or whether the self destruction be brought about by delirium tremens, despondency, narcotics or opiates. If the deed is done within a period of five years after his reception into the order, the suicide's heirs do not get a cent.

Tillman Challenges Harrison.

Washington, Aug 29.—The democratic congressional committee furnishes the press with the following telegram, addressed to ex-President Harrison:

"Hon. Benjiman Harrison, New York city, N. Y: I have just spent a week in Pennsylvania speaking to many thousands. Your speech in New York Thursday night attacks me specifically, and I would be pleased to meet you in joint debate before a northern audience, preferably at Indianapolis. B. R. TILLMAN."

Fight with Burglars.

Jacksonville, Fla., Aug. 27.—At San Mateo, Fla., Tuesday night, Mayor S. W. Rowley discovered three burglars in his residence. A fight followed, in which Rowley and two of the burglars were shot. The burglars are strangers and are believed to be northern crooks.

HIS PALACE BOMBARDED.

Sultan of Zanzibar Ousted by British Shot and Shell.

London, Aug. 28.—The foreign office has received dispatches from Zanzibar stating that the usurping sultan Said Khalid having refused to surrender Thursday morning, in accordance with the terms of the British consul's ultimatum, the palace was bombarded by the warships in the harbor, and after the bombardment was captured by the British sailors and marines who had been landed by the war vessels

Washington, Aug. 28.—The department of state received the following cablegram Thursday morning from Dorsey Mohun, United States consul at Zanzibar.

"Khalid Bin Bargash refusing to surrender, palace bombarded by English fleet at nine o'clock Thursday morning and totally destroyed. Many killed. He took refuge at the German consulate. Afterwards Hamond proclaimed sultan. All Americans safe."

The state department has no information as to the Americans referred to in Consul Mohun's dispatch. The American trade with Zanzibar is considerable, approximating $1,000,000 annually. The United States buys from the Zanzibaris ivory, hides, rubber, gums and cloves, and sells cotton and petroleum. There is no anxiety lest American interests suffer.

Zanzibar, Aug. 29.—The crisis here is regarded as ended. The new sultan, Hamoud Bin Mohammed Bin Said, is expected to follow the peaceful lines of his predecessor, and it is understood that Great Britain does not intend to make any change in the existing form of government.

G. A. R. VETERANS.

Annual Encampment Opens in St. Paul with a Reception.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 1.—It is estimated that there were over 80,000 strangers in the city Monday night and trains were still coming in bearing the veterans and their friends.

Monday night several of the crack posts of other cities, notably those of Detroit and Chicago, gave drills in the streets. At 8:30 p. m. Commander in Chief Walker and Mrs. Walker were given a reception at Hotel Ryan, which was attended by several thousand people. At the same hour at the state capitol a general reception in charge of the Minnesota Relief corps was given to the grand army proper. This was attended by 20,000 people.

SLAIN UNDER ORDERS.

Turkish Authorities Sanction the Recent Massacres.

Constantinople, Sept. 1.—There is no longer any doubt that the massacres were arranged by the Turkish authorities, and it has been ascertained that orders were only given to the Bashi-bazouks to cease massacreing the Armenians after the bloody work had been going on for 30 hours. It is also a fact that hundreds of Turks were brought over from the Asiatic side of the Bosphorus in order to take part in the massacres, and many Armenians were put in boats, which were then taken out to sea. Their fate is unknown, but there is not the slightest doubt but that they have been drowned.

Although it may be true that the attack on the Ottoman bank originated with the Armenian revolutionary committee, it is admitted on all sides that the massacres which followed were not justified, and that from 3,000 to 4,000 people lost their lives in the streets of this city, or in those of the suburbs, during the past week. The Armenians also intended to attack the palace, the branch office of the Credit-Lyonnaise and other places, their avowed object being to force the powers to intervene in the Armenian question.

Ex-President Harrison Speaks.

New York, Aug. 28. — Ex-President Harrison spoke to a large audience in Carnegie hall last night, upholding the republican national platform and candidates. He devoted much of his speech to denunciation of what he termed an attack by the Chicago platform upon the supreme court and the president's power and duty to enforce all of the laws of the United States without awaiting the consent or call of the governor of any state. He declared there was no one to defend the Wilson bill, the result of which measure had been the great panic of 1893, universal business distraction and the prevailing distress and anxiety. He talked long and argued strongly in favor of the maintenance of the gold standard.

A Mother's Crime.

Kansas City, Mo., Aug. 29.—At noon Friday the family of Charles W. Green, traveling passenger agent of the Big Four railway, consisting of Mrs. Green and three children, a boy, aged 13, a girl, aged nine, and a little girl of six, were found dead in their home, 519 West Thirty-fourth street. All the little ones were in their beds and the mother lay dead in a doorway with a revolver by her side. The murder or suicide is supposed to have occurred Wednesday morning, about two o'clock, as at that hour neighbors heard pistol shots near the Green home, but no investigation was made until the non-appearance of the Green family led to an inquiry.

Signed the Sixty-Cent Scale.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 29. — The Island City Coal company of Linton, A. M. Ogle, president, has signed an agreement to pay the miners the scale asked, 60 cents per ton. The Island company is the third largest in the state. The agreement is considered a great victory for the miners, especially so as Mr. Ogle is vice president of the Bituminous Operators' association.

Italy's Latest Naval Move.

Rome, Sept. 1.—King Humbert has signed a decree ordering the formation of an Italian Atlantic squadron for the protection of Italy's interests in South Africa.

THE FLOWERS OF THE TREE.

Need to Stoop to No Tricks for the Scattering of Pollen.

It has come about that the lowly plants, unable to secure their ends by fair words, have had recourse to guile—to tempt the insects by velvety textures of rich color widely spread, by exhaling sweet and powerful odors, by offering nectar, and finally by devising artful appliances, whereby an insect can be loaded with pollen without his knowledge what time he is imbibing the seductive nectar. Some have gone a step lower, and because they could not afford to produce so brilliant a display as other plants, have set to work to press the vulgar carrion-loving flies into their service by developing petals of a livid purple hue, and giving forth a putrid odor. Faugh! Shall hearts of oak and beech and ash stoop to such tricks?

The forest tree, says Good Words, has a hundred or a thousand years to live, and exhibits no precocious anxiety to produce fruit. At 15, 20 or 30 years is time enough to think of such things; and when the time comes the delicate essential organs are protected merely by a few simple green or yellow scales, or by none at all. The pollen is lavishly produced, for the wind is not so precise a vehicle of transmission as the insect, and but a very small percentage of the pollen grains will reach their destination. This, however, is of little consequence, for an incipient seed needs but one pollen grain to fertilize it, and should a hundred fall upon it, 99 would be superfluous.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

THE WILD SOWER.

Up and down the land I go,
Through the valley, over hill;
Many a pleasant ground I sow,
Never one I reap or till;
Fan and flail I never wield,
Leave no hayrick in the field.

Farmer goes with leathern scrip,
Fills the harrowed earth with seed:
In the selfsame score I slip
Germs of many a lusty weed;
Though I scatter in his track,
I possess nor bin nor sack.

He sows wheat, and I sow tare,
Rain and sunshine second toil;
Tame and wild these acres share,
Wrestling for the right of soil.
I stand by and clap my hands,
Cheering on my urchin bands.

Mine the cockle in the rye,
Thorned thistle, large and fine,
And the daisy's white-fringed eye,
And the dodder's endless twine;
Mine those fingers five that bind
Every blade and stalk they find.

Mine the lilies, hot and bright,
Setting summer meads on fire;
Mine the silkweed's spindles white,
Spinning autumn's soft attire.
Goldenrod and aster then
I bring up by bank and glen.

Whoso fleeth to the woods,
Whoso buildeth on the plains,
I, too, seek those solitudes,
Leading on my hardy trains;
Thorn and brier, still man's lot,
Crowd around the frontier cot.

Many serve me, unaware—
Shaggy herds that ceaseless roam,
And the rovers of the air
Passing to their winter home;
More than these upon me wait—
Wind and water bear my freight.

Thus, a sower wild, I go,
Trafficking with every clime,
Still the fruitful germs I sow
That shall vex your harvest-time;
Otherwise, ye toil-stooped men,
Eden's ease were come again!

A DEEP-WATER GHOST.

BY PAUL PASTNOR.

We were four bronzed, jolly sportsmen, who happened to meet during the partridge shooting season at a little hostelry in the southern part of Virginia. There was a real old-fashioned fireplace in the waiting room of the hotel, and here we used to gather every evening to smoke our cigars, compare notes on the sport of the day, and "swap yarns."

I remember in particular the story that Lloyd told us, the night before we parted. It was unique and weird. Lloyd was a tremendously big, athletic fellow, and he had a way of saying things in that deep bass voice of his that made them doubly impressive.

He had been sitting for some time with his chin on his hand, looking steadily into the open fire. Benson had been telling a rather commonplace ghost story, and the rest of us had dutifully oh-d and ah-d and pretended to shiver at the proper laces, but Lloyd said never a word. When silence settled upon the little group once more, however, Lloyd sat up in his chair, uncrossed his feet, and remarked:

"Now, boys, I am going to tell you a ghost story the like of which you never heard before, and the best of it is it's all true, for it happened to me exactly as I shall tell it.

"When I was in Sweden, some 15 years ago, I had an opportunity to do considerable gunning, as my friend and host was a landed proprietor and controlled the hunting and fishing rights of a large and valuable territory. In this tract was one large lake, called Lake Fryksdal, which abounded in fine fish, particularly pike of a remarkable size. Hovering over this lake almost constantly were a few pairs of whitish-gray birds which the Swedes call sea-eagles — great, magnificent, broad-winged creatures, whose food consisted of the large fish that were so plentiful in the waters of their habitat.

"I had a strong desire to shoot one of these birds, although I knew them to be held in almost sacred esteem by the inhabitants, who believed that if anyone should kill one of them, he would be haunted by the sprite of the bird as long as he lived. But not being the least bit superstitions, my passion for obtaining a specimen of each new bird or animal I came across in my travels easily overcame all scruples, and I forthwith laid my plans to secure one of the sea-eagles.

"I shall never forget the circumstances connected with the shooting of this bird. It was a bright, still afternoon. I had been lying for hours behind a large rock on the shore of the lake waiting for one of the birds to come within range of my fowling-piece. A pair of them were sailing hither and thither above the surface of the lake, waiting for an opportunity to pounce upon some pike or other fish that might be sunning itself at the top of the water. At length I saw one of the eagles drop like a shot from a height of more than 100 feet, and strike the water in a cloud of foam and spray. The next moment he rose, bearing a good-sized fish in his talons, and flew heavily toward the shore. My heart began to thump against my ribs, as I saw that, if the eagle held to his course, he would pass almost directly over the place where I lay concealed. Crouching down, I waited for the shadow which I knew must precede the bird, as he was flying between me and the sun.

"At length it came—a big, slowly-traveling blot of darkness—and the moment it passed me on the shingle of the beach, I leaped up, with both barrels of my gun cocked and ready. There, scarcely 40 yards away, and a little to the left, the eagle loomed in the clear, sun-lit air. The gun sprang to my shoulder, and a quick, loud report rang out on the silence. With an almost human scream, the bird dropped the fish from his talons, and came sailing down with outspread, quivering wings, graceful even unto death. Slowly he settled upon the beach, wings extended. I dashed towards him. The great wings were vibrating silently on the stones. The head and neck had fallen prone in the weakness and stupor of death. But as I stood over my victim, the eyes of the great bird met mine with a glance which I shall never forget—reproachful, pleading, accusing, condemning. I fairly shivered and turned away my eyes. It was a look to haunt a man his life long. But when I turned again the eyes had glazed, and the magnificent white eagle was stretched out in the motionless beauty of death.

"When I took my prize home, my host said, sadly, and more than half seriously: 'I am sorry you killed the bird. He will haunt you to the day of your death.' I laughed carelessly, yet somehow my heart misgave me, and it was weeks before I could get over a certain apprehensive uneasiness that pursued me even in my dreams.

"I spent the ensuing winter and spring in Stockholm; but with the return of another summer my friend in the country invited me most cordially to repeat my visit at his fine old estate, and as I knew he really wanted me to come, I had neither heart nor reason to decline.

"The weather during July was exceedingly warm, and during our frequent fishing trips to Lake Fryksdal my friends and I often refreshed ourselves by taking a dip in the clear waters. One afternoon, as we were fishing off shore near the place where I had shot my eagle, I said to my host with bantering triumph: 'Well, a year has passed, and I haven't seen the ghost of that sacred eagle yet!'

"'Never mind,' was the reply, 'you will see it yet. Mark my words. It will come to you some time when you least expect it.'

"I laughed and proposed that we take a swim, as the sun was getting up very warm, and the fish were not biting at all. My friends assented, so we undressed and plunged into the lake. I dove straight down, and, catching hold of the jagged end of a large rock, opened my eyes to look about me for a moment.

"Never, if I live to be a hundred, will the sight that met my eyes at that instant be effaced from memory. Coming toward me, silently, and yet with incredible swiftness, was the bleached and snowy skeleton of a gigantic bird, with wings outstretched! It made no ripple, no pulsation of the water. It seemed to have no means of propulsion, for the ghostly wings were rigid and motionless. Yet on it came, swift and still; and, to my horrified imagination, in the whited sockets of the skull gleamed those same reproachful, condemning eyes which the dying eagle had turned upon me a year ago.

"To say that I was fairly paralyzed with fear but inadequately describes my condition. Though beginninig to suffer for lack of air, I could not to save me have let go my grasp of the rock. I was fascinated, enchained. Every muscle in my body was rigid and beyond control of the brain. And still that horrible, mysterious specter was coming toward me, and I could neither avoid it or ward it off.

"How long I clung there, suffocating and helpless, I know not. I only know that, just as the water-ghost was about to strike me in the face, a lithe, white form flashed in between, a strong hand seized my arm and I was dragged forcibly up to the surface of the water. Then I lost consciousness, and the next thing I remember was being rolled over and over on the back and punched in the ribs, and then opening my eyes on the pale, anxious face of my friend, who had dived down and saved me.

"When, an hour or two later, I told him the story of my deep-water aparition, he smiled incredulously, even as he said: 'Did I not tell you you would see it some time?'

"But the mystery was solved a few days later, when, picking up a Stockholm paper, I read the following paragraph:

"'A GHASTLY TROPHY.

"'A recent writer tells what may be truly regarded as one of the most curious incidents of natural history. In some of the Swedish lakes, he says, large birds of prey are in the habit of swooping down on the pike basking at the surface of the water. In these cases, if the pike be more powerful than the bird, the latter, unable to extricate his talons, is borne to the bottom and drowned. Incredible as the story seems, Eckstrom, Rev. Mr. Moller, and other writers, state that the flesh of the pike heals with the talons of the bird in its back, while the bird becomes converted into a skeleton, which is carried about by the pike. One skeleton, which had long been exhibited by a pike in Lake Wetter, had acquired a greenish tinge ,and was regarded by the fishermen as a harbinger of misfortune.'"

A Heroine of the Albert Medal.

Miss Hannah Rosbotham is the only woman who has received the Albert medal. This lady was, and still is, assistant school mistress at the Sutton National schools, St. Helens, Lancashire. On October 14, 1881, the stone belfry of the school was blown down during a terrific gale of wind, and fell through the roof into the infant school room, where nearly 200 children were assembled, causing the death of one and injuring many others. The moment this mass of masonry had fallen the schoolroom and its gallery were filled with stones, slate and timber. Whilst others had fled for safety, Miss Rosbotham, who at the time of the accident was teaching elsewhere, deliberately went in among the fallen mass and clouds of dust, and, while fully conscious of the extreme danger to which she was exposed, remained on the spot until every child had been placed in safety. At the imminent risk of her own life this heroine of 23 removed four infants who were partially covered with the debris and also rescued therefrom a little girl who was completely buried and who must inevitably have been suffocated had not such gallantry been displayed.—Strand.

How excellently these sweet strummers aid digestion in this city of the Medici! They and their stringed toys appear everywhere. Indeed, the more obscure the eating house the more systematic their visitations. The music dignifies the viands. Not always was the wine good nor the cutlet a la milanaise of the tenderest; but one forgets these defects in the plaintive spectacle of a white-bearded, sightless mandolinist led into the room by an angel-faced (though not very clean) little girl to add the sauce of harmony to the meal. I have seen a warm-hearted neighbor shed tears over his "carcioffi" during the melody and another let his meat go cold while he beat time to the musician's strumming. The Florentines are all sensibility—or nearly. Touch their hearts and you may be sure you have touched their pockets also, though there may be naught inside these. For my part I reckoned the copper to the mandolinist as an integral part of my dinner bill.—Cornhill Magazine.

Orange Jelly.

One box gelatine dissolved in a kitchen cupful of water. In one hour's time pour on this a cupful of boiling water. Stir until melted, then add two cups of sugar, a stick of cinnamon, the grated rind of an orange and a lemon, the juice of three oranges and a lemon and a cup of sherry. If one objects to the wine more lemon juice may be substituted. Strain through a cloth and pour into molds.—Brooklyn Eagle.

—"It always flies to my head!" exclaimed the man with a bald pate, as he brushed off the troublesome insect.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Monument Unveiled.

About 2,500 people attended the unveiling of the Fort Ridgely monument. Many of the soldiers who were at the fort during the Indian outbreak in 1862 were present and participated in the exercises. A large delegation was present from New Ulm, including Company A of the Second regiment of Minnesota militia, commanded by Capt. Steinhauser; the artillery company of Capt. Burg; the Great Western band and a large number of citizens. Old soldiers were present from various other counties, and some came from South Dakota and Iowa. The country about Fairfax turned out en masse.

The exercises were held near the old cemetery, east of the old fort. Rev. Hanscom opened with prayer. Judge Flandrau, chairman of the monument commission, made the opening address and delivered over the monument to Adjt. Gen. Muehlberg, who made a most befitting reply. The principal speech was by Capt. J. McGrew, of Duluth, who had charge of a cannon during the battles. He was followed by Col. Sheehan and Capt. Culver, each of whom gave interesting sketches of the dark days of 1862.

Two Tramps Killed.

A rear end collision, caused by a train breaking in two, occurred just east of St. Cloud on the Great Northern. Some 12 empty box cars were derailed and smashed into kindling wood. Two bodies, badly disfigured, were removed and now await identification. The two unfortunates were stealing a ride in an empty box car, which was turned upside in the ditch. One is that of a man about 32 years old, a laborer, and evidently a Scandinavian. On his person was found a summons issued by Judge Crossin, of Melrose, but the name of the defendant is torn off. There was absolutely nothing on the body of the other, a youth of perhaps 17, by which he could be identified.

A New Fish Man.

Chairman Timberlake, Secretary Benson and Executive Agent Fullerton, of the state game fish commission selected a new superintendent for the fish hatchery. W. H. Morgan, who for 15 years has been in the service of the United States in the fish culture department was selected for the place. He has held important positions in California, Washington and Michigan, and is well posted on all the latest methods and appliances. He will assume his duties on Sept. 1, and will have charge of the improvements laid out by the commission which are to be begun at the fish hatchery immediately.

The Chase Given Up.

The police of Willmar rounded up the tramps in town. But seven were discovered, four of whom were detained on suspicion of having something to do with the wholesale robberies of Wednesday night. They could not be identified by any of the victims and had nothing in their possession to incriminate them. No clue has yet been discovered of the highwaymen and the pursuing parties have returned. Young Tilden was not so seriously injured as supposed, and was carted out of town by his companions of the traveling tents.

Trusties Skip Out.

James Lange and W. H. Senafrank, two inmates of the reformatory at St. Cloud, employed in running the electric light plant at night escaped from the institution at 3 o'clock in the morning. When the guard went around he two were on duty. They took a ladder with them used in the boiler house with which they climbed over the stockade. Both wore gray suits and hickory shirts. They were "trusties" and Lange was returned to the institution a few months ago having broken his parole.

News in Brief.

F. R. Baysinger, a young bicyclist, was shot and seriously wounded at Castle Rock by a hide buyer from Chicago, named Luker.

John Bell, separator tender for Thos. Lewis, steam thresher, near Grand Meadow, while climbing over the cylinder made a misstep and his foot was drawn into the cylinder and concaves, tearing it to shreds and cutting it off close below the knee.

A tramp while trying to steal a ride on a freight train at Ellsworth fell and had his foot taken off. He was intoxicated.

Joseph Buckman, deputy game warden at Little Falls, was arrested for shooting a blue crane. He was fined.

The postoffice at Ovetia, Polk county, has been discontinued. Mail will go to Lindsay.

Mrs. M. Walhart, of Royalton, has received $4,500 back pension money.

Well diggers at Duluth struck a spring after blasting through six feet of rock. In the spring was a frog about an inch long in body and three inches long from tip of outspread forefoot to tip of his hindfeet. The frog is of a white and light brown color, and apparently has no mouth, although he is possessed of bright black eyes.

The river drivers are making a special effort to break the jam between the Vermillion and White Oak point, and it is expected that logs will be running freely through Pokegama dam soon.

The house of a man named Meyer, of Pike Creek, was totally destroyed by fire. Fire caught from a stove. Loss, $1,500; insurance in the Farmers' Insurance company for $500.

A tramp stole a case of knives at the Temperance hotel at Carver, but was arrested while still on the premises and the property was recovered. In justice court he pleaded guilty and was fined $5 and costs, which he paid, and was discharged. Within an hour he stole a horse brush, but was again arrested, but settled by returning the brush and paying the owner $1.

J. P. Molinger & Co.'s elevator and mill at Crookston were entirely destroyed by fire. Two Northern Pacific cars were burned.

A "fresh air fund" boy, Eddie Westburg, visiting Wood Lake, fell through a hay rack and broke his leg.

The Davenport house at Winona was damaged by fire $3,000.

The suit brought by R. D. Mallett against the city of Duluth, to prevent the floating of the new water bonds, has been withdrawn and matters are in a fair again for some satisfactory adjustment of the prospect for a new water plant.

The crop of wheat in Minnesota falls about 35,000,000 bushels behind last year. The last crop was so exceptional that it will be unnecessary to remind the public that comparison with it is unfair from the standpoint of average yields.

BRYAN IS HEARD.

The Democratic Candidate Makes Three Speeches in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 1.—The welcome given Mr. Bryan by the people of Cleveland was unprecedented in his campaign tour from New York to his home in Nebraska. Ten thousand people had gathered in and about the Lake Shore station to wait the arrival of the nominee's train, and when it arrived they greeted him with a vim. An open carriage drawn by four white horses was in waiting for Mr. and Mrs. Bryan and in this they were conveyed through streets crowded with cheering people to the Hollenden hotel, followed by more than a score of other carriages containing members of the local committee, and escorted by silver clubs from many of the Cleveland wards. A national salute was fired by Battery A, Ohio national guard, as the train came in and fireworks were displayed all along the route to the hotel.

When the carriage reached the centennial arch erected in commemoration of Cleveland's one hundredth anniversary as a settlement, the magnificent structure, as beautiful in proportion as the Arc d'Triomphe in Paris and more than that famous monument, burst into a flood of light furnished by a myriad of electric globes. After a hasty dinner at the Hollenden, Mr. Bryan was escorted by many of the local and visiting silver clubs through highways packed closely with people to the Central armory. Here fully 8,000 people had gathered. Charles Wissar, the temporary chairman, made a vain attempt to be heard, but the audience kept shouting for Bryan and he gave way to Charles, P. Salen, the permanent chairman. Mr. Salen was more successful and succeeded in making the audience understand that he was introducing Mr. Bryan. As the candidate stepped forward, clad in his familiar short black coat, the people cheered until they could cheer no longer.

There was really nothing new in the address delivered by the young orator, but he put a fervor into his words and gestures that gave the audience every opportunity of venting its enthusiasm. The speech there was the principal one delivered by Mr. Bryan during the evening.

It was the same scene of enthusiasm over again at Music hall, where Mr. Bryan went immediately from the Armory. Ten thousand more people were there and they cheered him as heartily and as frequently as those at the Armory had done.

Back to the Hollenden hotel the candidate was hurried from Music hall, and from the balcony he delivered a third address to a vast concourse of people gathered in the open street. When he concluded and stepped back, the crowd pressed into the lobby of the hotel and managed to corral the candidate, who shook hands with so many that he was fairly exhausted when he made his escape.

TRADE REVIEW.

Leading Commercial Agents on the Business Situation.

New York, Aug. 29.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"Clearing house certificates have not been issued, but instead gold is coming hither largely on the swiftest steamers, about $11,000,000 being already on the way. Higher lending rates bring it, notwithstanding foreign events, which disturb London markets, and growing confidence in the monetary future of the country helps. The shrinkage of merchandise imports and the increase of exports also help. These tendencies all help to lessen the strain.

"Failures for the week have been 288 in the United States, against 186 last year; and 33 in Canada, against 42 last year. Liabilities in failures for three weeks ending August 20 were $20,932,285, against $6,519,366 last year, and $8,214,470 in 1894. The stoppage of Milton, Hughes & Co. this week is, of course, not included in these figures. The stoppage of works also continues, including among other iron concerns the Illinois steel plant, at Hammond, Ind., and the Lakeside nail works there. Disruption of the tin-plate association results from inability of many concerns to go on paying wages demanded, and will presumably be followed by the stoppage of some. Other iron works are getting very light new business, and there is so little doing that quotations are almost nominal..

"Boot and shoe shipments continue large. New business is scarce. Quick deliveries are urged, but advance in price deters buying beyond actual needs. Leather is a shade weaker, and hides again lose about 2 per cent. for the week. Sales of wool have been in four weeks only 9,595,300 pounds, against 22,200,400 last year. Actual quotations are hard to get, but sales to realize are at bargain prices, and domestic imports and reshipments of foreign are in considerable quantities. No gain is seen in the demand for woolen goods. Cottons show a stronger tone.

"Speculation in products caused an advance of 1.62 cents in wheat, but by Thursday it had been lost, only to raise again and close at nearly the top. Heavy western receipts continue low as prices are. Corn declined on Thursday to 26.25 cents here and 20.37 at Chicago, which is close to the lowest ever known. Crop advices continue favorable, but western receipts indicate less disposition to sell at current figures. Cotton has reacted sharply from its advance to 8.62 cents, and 8 is now quoted with little demand."

MET A JUST FATE.

A Springfield (Ill.) Man Killed by His Stepdaughter.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 29.—One year ago Albert Caldwell, aged 50 years, was sent to the Joliet state prison for five years for criminally assaulting his stepdaughter, Ella Gentry, at their home in Carlinville. Thursday night the woman shot and killed her stepfather, who had been released from prison and had come home to work as a coal miner. He had threatened her, and when, with a razor in his hand he attacked her on the street she killed him.

A St. Louis Firm to Retire.

St. Louis, Sept 1.—It is announced that the H. T. Simon-Gregory Dry Goods company, of this city, will dissolve partnership and retire from business between now and the close of the year. The concern is the second oldest of its kind in St. Louis, is capitalized at $600,000, has a surplus of $100,000 and a business of about $1,000,000 a month. The merchandise of the company is estimated at from $750,000 to $1,000,000, and as soon as this can be disposed of the firm will dissolve. The only reason given for the dissolution is the desire of both Mr. Simon and Mr. Gregory to retire from active business.

Dropped Dead.

Chicago, Aug. 31.—After playing a good game of cricket at Parkside Saturday, and while joking because he had not been vanquished, A. P. Broadfoot, a well-known member of Scottish societies and athletic clubs, fell dead in the presence of a score of friends. He was a victim of heart disease.

Brooklyn Returns.

Delaware Breakwater, Del., Aug. 31.—The cruiser Brooklyn pased in at 9:25 o'clock Saturday morning on her return to Philadelphia after the successful official trial trip off the Massachusetts coast.

LI HUNG CHANG.

Liberality of the Views of the Chinese Statesman.

It is claimed that notwithstanding Li Hung Chang has shown some liberality of views toward modern improvements and education, he is at heart a hater of foreigners, and has an abiding faith in Chinese institutions and methods of government. He is, it is true, a great admirer of Confucian philosophy, and remembering the enduring history of his people we can hardly wonder at his devotion to the institutions which have made that history possible. When we call to mind the experience China has had with certain western nations, it might not be considered strange if his attachment to foreigners was not very ardent; but in all his public life, says John W. Foster in Century, his conduct shows that he feels the need of foreign aid, and is disposed to give it proper welcome, and of all Chinese statesmen he is the most liberal-minded and free from prejudice. He is far from claiming that the present system of government is perfect. He has, in fact, urged upon the authorities at Peking two important changes which look to a reform of the most serious defects in the system; to wit, the withdrawal from the viceroys of provinces of powers which should be exercised only by the imperial government, and such a change in the method of admission to the public service as will liberalize the examinations, and make fitness rather than scholarship the test. There are other changes which he would gladly bring about if he had the power; but, as he confessed to Marquis Ito, "China is hampered by antiquated customs which prevent desirable reforms."

LONGS TO BE A SLAVE.

A Southern Negro Who Wants to Go Into Bondage Again.

Some of the letters that Mayor Thacher gets are curiosities in their way. People from out of town who wish to find out anything in the city of Albany invariably write letters to the mayor. It doesn't make any difference what the information desired relates to, the mayor, they think, ought to know, says the Albany Argus.

A letter was received from a negro away down south, who, Mr. Monahan says, has been dead for 30 years—not literally a corpse, but deceased as far as his grip on hustling, progressive nineteenth century life was concerned. This man believes that slavery is still an institution in this great land, and is ignorant of the glorious fact that the master's whip hasn't cracked for 30 years. He never heard of the president's proclamation, never knew that the north had whipped the south, and that 1,000,000 lives had been sacrificed to free the slave. In his letter to the mayor this colored man asked to be brought north and sold back into slavery. There is no question that he found it impossible to live in the south, and longed again for the irresponsibility from self-support of slavery days which he thought still flourished in the south.

BEAU BRUMMELL.

At the Grave of a Famous Dandy and Wit.

English visitors to Tilly-sur-Seulles having satisfied their curiosity, turn to Caen, where lie the bones of an Englishman who has left behind an immortal reputation as a dandy and a wit. Beau Brummell, after having been the friend of the prince regent, died in poverty, a friendless imbecile. Born in 1778, George Bryan Brummell was educated at Eton, where he made a name for social aplomb, readiness of repartee and fastidious neatness in dress. He went to the Oriel college, Oxford, for a years. He was presented with a coronetcy by the prince of Wales in the Tenth Hussars, and for some years enjoyed the friendship of the prince, who was afterward George IV. At last they quarreled, but "Beau" Brummell held his own in society until gambling losses made him flee the country. In 1830 he was appointed British consul at Caen. His creditors closed round him, and in May, 1835, he was cast into prison. His spirit seemed to have been broken, and in 1837 he showed signs of imbecility, and died at the Asylum of the Bon Sauveur, Caen, in March, 1840.

Ward Off Lightning.

Telephone wires seem to have an important influence in preventing lightning from striking, according to the investigations of the German telegraph department. Three hundred and forty towns with telephone saystems and 560 towns without them were under observation. In the former the lightning struck three times for every hour of storm; in the latter five times. Moreover, the violence of the lightning was much less in the former cases.

Racial Lines in Africa.

All the colored people in South Africa are treated alike by the whites as divided from themselves by a wide and impassable gulf. A native, whatever his rank, would seldom be permitted, except as a domestic servant, to enter a private house. When Khama was in England last autumn and was entertained at lunch by the duke of Westminister the news excited general annoyance and disgust among the whites in South Africa.

All Want to Bolt.

It is fashionable now to bolt. A politician will bolt; so will a door, and bolting cloth is used at the mills. Money, too, has a fashion of bolting, but the people will never bolt from their allegiance to the Saint Paul & Duluth Railroad, which is of too long standing to be easily disturbed. For years and years the people of the Northwest and other sections of the country have regarded the Duluth Short Line as the best and most available route between St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, West Superior, Stillwater and other northwestern points of importance, and every year strengthens their allegiance. The Duluth Short Line trains are modern, handy, swift and smooth, and they make thousands of new friends annually, so that those who want to be in the swim should take this line. Ticket agents will gladly furnish maps, circulars, etc., or they may be had by writing to W. A. Russell, General Passenger Agent, St. Paul, Minnesota.

Summer Resorts on the Monon.

The Summer resorts on the Monon Route are having a "big season." West Baden and French Lick Springs are more popular than ever, and Paoli has started a new sanitarium to take the overflow. The waters of these springs have been recommended by prominent physicians as superior in their curative properties to those of Hot Springs, White Sulphur, or even the noted spas and 'bads" of Germany. West Baden indeed has been fitly called "the Carlsbad of America." Cedar Lake is prettier than ever and just as full of fish. The railroad company has a fine park there and is soon to build a new station.

FOR the past half dozen years Warner's Safe Cure has not been advertised in the weekly press, the city papers having been exclusively used. The Company manufacturing the old and reliable kidney and liver medicine have, however, come to the conclusion that the country paper is read more thoroughly than the city daily and better results can be obtained by returning to the weekly. In this they are correct, and we hope our readers will prove it to them by reading the new advertisement of the Warner's Safe Cure Co. which will be found in another column of this paper, and acting on the advice there found.

Too Late to Mend.

There is a point beyond which medication cannot go. Before it is too late to mend, persons of a rheumatic tendency, inherited or acquired, should use that benignant defense against the further progress of the supertenacious malady—rheumatism. The name of this proven rescuer is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, it should also be recollected, cures dyspepsia, liver complaint, fever and ague, debility and nervousness.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, SEPT. 4, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—The funeral of Charles Yantos who was killed at Minneapolis Snuday was held at the Catholic church here on Wednesday.

—School District No. 48, the Ziebarth district begins a six month School on Monday next. Miss Anna Parslow has been re-engaged to teach.

—Charles Yantos, a brother of Mrs. August Berneck, of this place, was run over by the cars and killed, at Minneapolis on Sunday evening.

—The R. R. has been unusually busy all week hauling passengers to the cities. Long trains, some of them decorated, and all filled to overflowing have been rushed citywards.

—Trains have been way behind time most every day this week, and standing room even on the platform has been at a premium. Everybody going to the Twin Cities.

—One of the "strongest" arguments yet heard in town in favor of a gold standard was that of Councilman Wash Rader in a street confab a few days ago. It was very conclusive.

—Several old soldiers returned home Wednseday morning not waiting for the grand parade. The crowds are reported to be very large in the Twim Cities. Cant hardly see anything for the people.

—The Gospel workers are still at work in their tent. Street meetings have been held each evening on the corner of Bridge and River Streets. Quite an interest has been manifested by some of our citizens.

—The Georgia University Graduates and Operatic Minstrel Stars supported by J. Edward George's Challenge Band and Symphony Orchestra are to be here on Tuesday, Sept. 8. Our people will remember they gave an entertainment here last December. Price, 25, 35 and 50 cents.

—People have been flocking to the Cities in great bodies all week, to attend the K. P. Convention; the G. A. R. re-unions, the State Soldiers reunions, the State Fair and many other attractions. It would be useless to try to give all the names of all who have participated in the festivities of the week.

—A west bound freight train on Monday, ran over a deaf and dumb Swede man named Brachen who lived near Shaw's crossing. The man had been across the track to his brothers place and was returning home when struck. The train brought the dead body to the depot here from whence friends removed it to his former home.

—On Tuesday night the house of Joseph Micah was completely dertroyed by fire. The house was in the South East corner of the village behind trees from the main part of town and the fire occured at about 11 o'clock so but three or four citizens knew of it until the next morning. Mr. and Mrs. Micah had a narrow escape themselves being obliged to crawl out at the window. They lost everything but had some insurance.

—The Parochial school will open up Tuesday, Sept 8, with three teachers. Rev. M. Savs will be local director, and desires to have every scholar understand English as soon as possible. This is right people in this country are at a great disadvantage unless they can talk, read and write the language of their country. No difference how well educated you may be unless you can talk with those about you, and with whom you must do business, and live you are not able to get along socially or other wise as well as if you could talk the language of the country.

Literary Note.

Apropos of Mr. Cornelius Vanderbilt's disagreement with his son, and the latter's marriage to a woman very much older than himself, the editor of the Cosmopolitan, in the September issue, seriously discusses the education most useful to modern life, and substantially, if not in words, asks: "Does modern college education educate?" The September Cosmopolitan, as if to show what a magazine can do, gives four complete stories in this single number, by such noted authors as Frances Courtenay Baylor, Maurice Thompson, Gertrude Hall, and John J. a'Becket, Louise Chandler Moulton, Mrs. Lew Wallace, Francisque Sarcey, I. Zangwill, Agnes Repplier, Norman Kerr, M. D., H. C. Chatfield-Taylor, Wm. Eleroy Curtis, Robert E. Strahorn, Colonel Tillman, and Ruth Mc Enery Stuart are also among the contributors to this one issue of a magazine that is sold for ten cents. Nor is this all. Among other writers not already mentioned is Camile Flamarrion, who has an article on "The Wonderful New Eye of Science," which alone is worth the entire price of the magazine. The Cosmopolitan has been gradually perfecting its engraving and mechanical departments. until the publishers believe that, in the September issue, they present a number unrivaled in artistic and mechanical excellence.

Galloway's Big Free

Concert Co. will open in their large tent on the lot opposite City Hall in Delano for one week, commencing Menday, Sept. 7 and change programme every night. Good seats and lot of fun and it is all Free, for every one. Don't miss it. Remember it is free.

Personal.

Drs. Ames and Soper have been down to see the city entertainments.

John Sleight, of Rockford, visited Delano on business Saturday.

Miss Bertha Gunn, of Montrose, visited with Rev. Farber's family this week.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Hohl and George Crandall, of Rockford, were in town on Tuesday.

Phil Lanway and family, of South Arm, Michigan, is in town visiting relatives.

Emery cunningham left Wednesday for Minneapolis to resume his studies at the "U."

Mr. Mossberg who has been visiting here for a few weeks returned to Minneapolis Tuesday.

Mrs. M. A Chance has moved to Minneapolis for the winter to allow Jenner and Vinnie to renew their studies.

Miss Maggie Kelley of Buffalo who has been engaged to teach the Primary department of our School, was in town Saturday.

Dr. P. O'Hair, of Waverly was in town Saturday. He's no homeopath, but he advocates that doctrine for a money standard.

Rev. M. Savs, who has been spending a few weeks at St. Paul has returned. He has been assighed to this place, permanently.

Miss Irene Cheely came up from Minnetonka Mills Saturday to move her household goods to Elk River where she will have charge of the Primary department of the Public School.

County Cullings.

The Democratic County Convention to elect county officers and to elect delegates to the 38th Legislative convention has been called for Thursday, Sept. 24. at Buffalo. And the People's Party Legislative Convention has been called for the same time and place.

A. Y. Eaton certainly is a conundrum to Wright County people. His paper starts out with poetry for McKinley; he goes on and thinks Towne has the best case; that Bryan will even carry Ohio, (and the Senator is an Ohio man himself, and ought to know). Queer man, that Eaton.

Editor Saylor is evidently working toward a gold standard. He charges more for printing than the commissioners allow at legal rates, and he kicks on printing any more of the W. C. T. U. "stuff." He don't believe in any thing free anymore. No free trade, no free silver, no free printing for temperance women. Just the way when some fellows get a little boost like county printing at legal rates with a chance to do their own figuring.

The Democratic County Convention to select delegates to attend the Congressional convention at St. Cloud M. A. O'Hair was chairman and A. P. Ritchie, secretary. The following delegates were selected: T. G. Mealey, M. A. O'Hair, S. A. Gordon, F. W. Gorman, A. P. Ritchie, W. S. Hunnington, James E. Madigan, J. Z. Cochran, Ed Sherwin, J. C. Nugent, Frank Boerner, William Ziebarth, Charles Bugbee, J. H. Wendell and Joseph R. Reems.

Some time ago the Howard Lake Herald endeavored to make it appear to the public that the GAZETTE was overcharging the county for some printing. The County Commisioners did not agree with the Herald, and our bill was allowed. We see by the last proceedings of the County Commissioners that a bill of "H. S. Saylor, publishing proceedings and other printing $97.25 allowed at $74.75. So the boss of the Wright County Printing Syndicate has been docked $22.50 on one bill. It is now in order for the boss of the W. C. P. S. to rise and explain why this extra charge?

This week's Eagle says: "They know full well that every gold man in the country is able to show the advantage to all and especially to our national credit the single gold standard would be. They know that we can also show the ruinous private and national effects the adoption of a silver standard would accomplish. They know this but desire to bluff." It looks a good deal as if the Eagle was bluffing. If she is so able to tell people all these things, why don't she out with it and not be so long ruffling her feathers getting ready. Election will soon be here and she will have lost her grand opportunity.

It has been rumored that a quartette of politicians would endeavor to work up a mass meeting and place in nomination a ticket for county officers. The mass meeting probably wont materialize until after the Republicans have nominated their county officers. If the mass meeting were to be made up of the people, instead of politicians it might have a chance. But under existing circumstances if the Democrats stick to their bargain, and nominate the balance of the ticket as their committee arranged for, they will be doing about as well as they can for the party this year. If they do not like all the ticket now up perhaps they could agree on some changes.

INDEPENDENCE

Webster says in his old edition. Dollar is a coin of the United States worth 100 cents, but it is said that the administrators of Noah Webster's estate have cut the Lexicon since 1873, after the demonetization and changed the definition.

Chambers Encyclopedia says Dollar is the name of a coin, and the unit in the monitary system in United States.

Dollar derived its name from the village dollar in the smallest county of Scotland.

Near the close of the fifteenth century they coined the silver extracted from their mines into ounce pieces.

The American dollar is taken from the old Spanish dollar and is only 7½ grains less. It was formerly only silver, but in 1873 the gold dollar was made the unit of value in the United States and thus the change of the lexicon but in 1878 silver was remonetized and now shares with gold the rank of standar money. Many of the farmers (the producing class) are advocating a single gold standard, whether it be from a political or a financial standpoint I am unable to say; but may it be either one or the other, it will not be their making or for their benefit, for history does not give any account of the combination of wealth trying to put money in the poor man's pocket. I have heard it said that the Republican party of this country had the brains and the money. I am willing to admit they have most of the latter, and this is only a club in their hands to beat our brains out with, and they measure their brains by the amount of money they are able to control.

All this howl and cry against free coinage of silver is only an imaginary ghost set up in the midst of the camp to frighten the people.

If we had both gold and silver on a parity in this country for 81 years and it done the business in trade and commerce, what's the matter with it today, the trouble is the money power of England and this country is aiming to get control of our money system, and thereby she will enslave us not by chains and shackles perhaps, but by bonds and mortgages and it seems to me that any man of ordinary intelligence ought to see this, if he does not I should think he was blind to his own interest. Those money Lords do not intend that gold (the most deceptive money there is) shall be the poor man's money, it is the dear money, and if made the only legal tender money or unit of value can be handled by the money power as the potter handles the clay. If the farmers of this country want all their obligations made payable in gold and that at a premium then vote for a single gold standard and you will get it to your hearts content. For several years I have read on both sides of this money question and have come to but one conclusion, that the whole thing is nothing but a financial conspiracy of the money power to make for themselves more wealth and bring down the producing class of this country to serfdom same as in Ireland. Now brother farmer would it not be well to lay aside your party affiliation as you would a garment and look this thing square in the face regardless of fear favor or politicall aggrandizement.

Where is your gold today? You do not see any. They tell you that the talk about free coinage of silver has made gold seek a hiding place, in part this may be true but it is no fault of the silver it is only a deceptive scheme to make believe that silver is nothing but spurious money. I have read many of the late speeches made by the republicans, and all of them have a sameness and are all misleading and thereby the people are fooled. I understand that Grover Cleveland, that bull dog apostle of a single gold standard will join issue with the Republican party and vote for McKinley. You are welcome snd I repeat it thrice welcome to that monument of avoirdupois, who has for his text book the interest of the money power of this country at heart, and sold ont his party at much less than cost and would have gone into the hands of a receiver for all him. A man that has no honest convictions is only a tool in the hands of others. When Cleveland had power to make the Democrat party the kite he was willing to let it remain the tail for what any fool ought to be able to tell. I would ask any man let it come by inspiration, prophesy, or otherwise, how will or how can a single gold standard be a benefit to the farmer, the laborer, or the poor man, and if we get a single gold standard it will be a sandy foundation for the poor man to set himself on.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself: carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

Among our Exchanges.

It is a noticeable fact that Bourke Cochrane's reply to Bryan is not being circulated as a campaign document by Mr. Hanna. It was not the effort which had been anticipated.—St. Peter Herald.

It is a noticable fact that Rourke Cockrane's reply to Bryan is not being circulated as a campaign document by Mr. Hanna. It was not the effort which had been anticipated.—St. Peter Herald.

Whether he is right or wrong in his views on the money question, may be a question, but under all the circumstances there can be no question as to Mr. Townes honesty and sincerity of purpose.—Buffalo Journal.

The increase of $70,000,000 in exports of manufactured goods since the repeal of the McKinley bill is one of the things that is the matter with Hanna, and also with the tariff logic of Hanna's principal.—The World.

If McKinley had always been sound on the currency question, or if there was good evidence that he has really been converted to sound money, sound money democrats might have some excuse for voting for him. Under present circumstances there is no excuse for such action.—Wabasha Democrat.

If John Lind's friends are responsible for the abuse that has been heaped upon him by the daily papers of late, they show great sagacity but if anyone representing the Republican cause is responsible, it is a specimen of coarse political work that will prove costly.—Sherburne County Star News.

Hereafter the subscribers of THE NEWS will be furnished the Wright Co. Times to carry out their unexpired subscriptions to the News. All others will be dropped. It don't pay to publish it, so we will drop it, as we said we would do four years ago when The News was launched.—Clearwater News.

The shipment of 500 tons of Alabama iron to Liverpool and 300 to Genoa is accompanied by the statement that it brings better prices in Europe than in America. It is clear, at any rate, that we can make iron and ship it across several thousand miles of water and sell it in successful competition with the cheapest of "European cheap labor."—New York World.

Hereafter the suscribers of The News will be furnished the Wright Co. Times to carry out their unexpired subscription to the News. All others will be dropped. It don't pay to publish it, so we will drop it, as we said we would do four years ago when The News was launched.—Clearwater News.

Report sent from here to the Pioneer Press of the Horr meeting said there were a thousand people present and half as many were turned away. Wholesale deception seems to be the order of the day. Not over 650 people were present including the residents of this village. It was further stated that McKinley and the state officers would carry this country by 2000 majority. If they carry this country by 500 majority they will do well. Why not tell the truth, it will be better in the long run.—Buffalo Journal.

Fusion Campaign.

The campaign is now on all along the line. Fusion of forces is the fashion. All agree that the principle question for settlement is the money standard. The Republicans declared in their national convention for the maintainence of the present gold standard until an international agreement can be brought about for bimetallism. The majority of the convention, firm in the belief that this was wrong, walked out of the convention, and with their followers at home, have declared themselves ready to vote for the candidate representing bimetallism, by this country, without longer waiting for an international agreement which don't seem likely to come about soon. They take the only logical way of having their votes count for their convictions.

The Democrats in National Convention declared for bimetallism, for free gold and free silver, at the present ratio of 16 to 1; without wating for other countries to tell us when. They nominated W. J. Bryan as their standard bearer. The People's Party nominated the same candidate; so did the free silver Republicans, and with united forces they propose to, if possible, give a rousing majority in the United States for what they believe best for the country, the free coinage of both gold and silver, with no contract laws to discrimulate against either. The Democrats who prefer a gold standard are playing into the hands of the Republicans, by nominating another Democratic ticket; are assuming the position of the day in the manger; they propose to throw away their vote on a candidate they have no hope of electing, in order to pull away from the bimetallic ticket a few votes. Don't be misled by them. Don't do as we did two years ago vote for a first class Democrat, Geo L. Becker for Govenor, while the ring leaders went saraight for Knute Nelson. Don't get caught so again. But fuse all along the line honestly and fairly, as possible, in spite of those who would disupt party and every thing else; even risk the downfall of the Republic itself in order to procure office or other private ends. For Congress, support a true, and tried, and able adyocate of your principles C. A. Towne; even though he is a protection Republican. The platform proposes not to tinker with the tariff much.

For state officers, again, it has been thought best to fuse all the forces opposed to ring rule. John Lind, a Republican thrice hononed as Congressman from his district: Once the only Republican Congressman from the State, heads the ticket. Democrats, People's Party men, and Free Silver Republicans will vote for him and it looks now as if the rings that haye become interlocked in state affairs will be shattered and the people will haye a state government of their own.

For Judges of the District Court the Republicans of Hennepin thought themselves strong enough to carry out their old tactics and ignore outside counties entirely. consequently the Republicans of Isanti, Anoka and Wright have resolved to teach their Republican bosses of Hennepin a deserved and thorough lesson by helping to re-elect Judges Smith and Pond two Democrats to the bench on which four Republicans already sit.

In county matters the Democratic bosses insisted on a fusion with the People's Party and the committees of the two parties failed to agree. The Democratic committee made the open convention of the People's Party a proposition that they nominate any five of the officers and they would take the balance. This was done, and the manly thing for the Democrads to do, under the circumstances, is to make the best they can of the bargain in this fusion year, and try to harmoniously as possible elect their National, Congressional, State, Judicial Legislative and as many as possible of the county officers.

Yet office is not the only thing, Principle first. Let there be a general cleaning out of bosses. Let the people assert themselves. Let them make their own selections for office. Let them vote their principles, then will the wheels of our government track better. Then will it require less grease to overcome the friction caused by personal greed for office and paltry pelf.

BILL ERWIN don't seem to think his presence at Glencoe now would aid in ferretting out the mob that hung his clients. We are not positive but what it might.

THE I. O. G. T. and others are making arrangements to have a bill passed this winter granting local option to counties the present township law to remain the same as at present.

ARKANSAS has been heard from. The issue in the election was between gold standard and bimetallism the Democrats representing the latter. Democrats won by almost double the majority received for the past two elections.

LAST week the Republicans crowed so over their great victory in Vermont that some of the Bryan men about here began to grow a little timid. But they didn't know that in Vermont the Democratic candidates were for a "gold standard."

THE Mississippi Valley Medical Association will meet in St. Paul, from Sept. 15 to 18. A tour to Yellowstone Park has been planned, to cost $78, for round trip. Many M. D's. will enjoy this grand trip, as will as the meeting at St. Paul.

THE Minneapolis Tribune devotes a double column to the use of H. W. Snow to try to convince its readers that wheat goes up while silver goes down, ect, ect. Any farmer in this community can tell him better in very short order.

REV. E. R. LATHROP is a queer one. He don't scruple to tell his dreams in the columns of the Methodist Herald, in favor of a gold standard but he does object to giving any good "sound money" argumenys in them. Queer folks as well as queer money in this world.

THE gold standard folks make a great ado about straw votes on trains being two to one in favor of McKinley. When it is taken into consideration that all the office seekers of the G. O. P. are making trips to Canton to see their candidate, while Bryan is doing his own traveling it looks as if they had ought to do better than that with their straw votes.

REPUBLICAN papers that have been ranting about the kind of men who adyocate a double standard of free gold and free silyer are now quoting for the education of their readers that noted personage Herr Most as believing in a single gold standard at present; advocating the inyention of some new articles of luxury, of silver, to use up that metal, and the article winds up with "I believe in revolution and not in humbug." Isn't it wonderful what some of the gold standard people do believe in; or have believed in? There's Guerilla Mosby for instance.

WHAT a contrast is presented between our presidential candidates, both considered good, clean men McKinley remains at home, where he receives the train loads of visitors from all parts of the land. While Bryan goes oyer the country, and meets the people at their homes. McKinley chooses his crowds, has them wait on him when he is ready, has his speech ready for the occasion, and when he is tired he can put up his sign, not at home, and go out for a horseback ride. Bryan, represented as fond of swimming, breasts the tide, and weathers the gales while each wave of public opinion wherever he goes brings him up one notch higher and one step closer to the white house. Never, since the campaign of Lincoln and Douglas, on the slavery question, a question rivaling in importance the present money question have such crowds come out to hear arguments in a political campaign as are meeting Mr. Bryan at all points along his line of travel; and such enthusiasm as he is awakening everywhere never was heard of before in this country.

Rockford Officers.

ROCKFORD Sept. 8th. 1896.

Dr. Catlin.

Dear sir having met same people outside of my own neighborhood who have read that piece signed by Mrs. Guilden and not acquainted with the facts in the case I find there is an impresion among them that Mr. Schaar's family were not treated properly by me during the time they were quarintined; now thenconsidering the source from which that came and the little truth it contained I believe in justice to my self and the Town I represent as a health officer you will bo willing to correct the mistake by making an appology through your paper for accepting and printing the same without investigating farther in the matter and oblige.

Yours Truly
GEO. O. CRANDALL.
Rockford Minn.

Mrs. Golden, with whom we had no acquaintance, called, and insisted on haying the article published thinking if it was wrong it could be easily refuted we printed it. Mr. Craudall says concerning sending for the doctor, that it was near supper time and his wife got an early supper for a hired man who helped him less than ten minutes to top out the stack, then ate and made the trip to Delano on a wheel, in much less time than he could with the team.

Ex-Congressman Baldwin for Gold.

From the Duluth News Tribune we clip the following purporting to be an interview with Major M. R. Baldwin, now chairman of Chippewa Indian Commission; and ex-Congressman of the Sixth Congressional District:

"I can say, as a Democrat, that I don't feel that I can support McKinley, as I believe, under the conditions which exist in the present campaign, that a Democrat at the coming election may cast his vote or not, and still be a Democrat. if convinced that the election of Bryan is the quickest and most effective manner of disposing of the free silver sentiment. That would be sufficient warrant for supporting Bryan. While I haves thorough accquaintance with Mr. Bryan, and a high regard for the man. I have little confidence in him, on account of utter lack of respect for many of his associates. On the other side of the question we have advecates of sound money. and among them are men in whose honor, integrity and ability I have always had, and still haye, the greatest confidence. On the other side, among the advocates of free silver, I find such men as Stewart, Bland, Tillman, Donnelly, Coxey, Altgeld, Carl Brown and others that have never inspired me with confidence or respect."

If Mr. Baldwin eyer said that it would go to proye thot his Indian associations have not raised his standard of patriotism any. The idea of an American citizen, an office holder, a Democrat at that under the existing circumstances advising voters "that a Democrat at the coming election may cast his vote or not, and still be a Democrat." Wouldn't he be a dandy Democrat? Wouldn't he be chuck full of patriotism to sit by and see the country in its present financial difficulties and lend no helping hand? Not yote! Why what ails Mr. B? Has he adopted the breech clout and exchanged his civilization for that of the old fashioned Chippewa.

As for Mr. B's remark: "While I have a thorough acquaintance with Mr. Bryan, and a high regard for the man, I have little confidence in him, an account of utter lack of respect for many of his associates." If Congressman Baldwin couldn't make up his mind on the money question any better than the above quoted interyiew indicate, it is no wonder he thinks Mr. Bryan has little respect for some of his associates. Mr. Bryan is looking after people who can determine what they want and dare vote their convictions. As for Mr. Baldwin's lack of confidence in Mr. Bryan there are a good many people throughout the Sixth District who still insist that our ex-congressman either was a poor reader of human nature or placed his confidence in a great many people for whom his constituency did not have a high regard. His lack of confidence in Mr. Bryan, for the reason given, under the circumstances, is an excellent endorsement of our candidate for president. The idea of a man trying to down Bryan by saying he has a high regard for the man, and little confidence in him. That's one of the Major's short comings, at least it was about two years ago, when we supported him for Congress, not knowing he would get off anything like the above clipping.

Gold Standard vs Silver Standard.

Men who haye money hoarded away or hold mortgages, and who are extremely selfish, careing little or nothing for their neighbors, or who can't see farther than their own personal and present benefits, favor a gold standard. The scarcer real money is in the land the more valuable it will be; and if their own little pile looms pretty well in the percentage of the money in the country they will rapidly amass wealth.

Men engaged in the banking business who wish to make money off of handling other people's money or securities are for a gold standard, because the less real money in circulation the more credit will haye to be given, the greater will be the amount of notes and other paper to be shaved or collected by banks. It is said that 92 per cent of business of the country is now done on credit; that paper, notes and the banks do the business of the country to such an extent that much money is not needed, that the United States is doing one third of the banking business of the entire world on a capital of $8.41 per capita of gold and $8.77 of silver.

Men engaged by the month at large salaries, if they are greedy silver, selfish and have no place in their heart for the men from whom their salaries are gathered up; or who figure only from month to month and cant see that in the near future, under existing circumstances, their salaries would cease entirely, are for gold standard; because they can liye better on their salaries now than eyer before. They can buy more eatables; more clothes, more of most anything they wish for than ever before, and thinking only of today, and themselyes, are for a gold standard.

Men who till the ground, who raise the stock, who make their living from the farms, who own the farms and pay taxes, insurance and other things at usual rates, while they sell their farm products, though there is a tariff on most of it, for less than they ever did, can more easily see that it is to their interest to have money they can get hold of. They like to have money in their pockets for current expenses, they like to buy what they need and pay cash for it and take the discounts, they believe in "Owe no man anything." But under the present gold standard system when they can't get hold of a gold dollar, and all business is really done on credit, all other money according to good gold standard authorities, being redeemable in gold (though Carlisle says silver is not,) and they receive checks instead of cash for what they sell; pay a few cents to get rid of them; or turn them over for debts already made, they are fast loosing their patriotism, their independence, becoming "cheap men." A man loyes to be an honest man; he loves to owe no debts: he likes to pay cash, to receiye cash, to know that his money is good, and that it is his own. It helps him when he has a few dollars left above his ezpenses to feel independent, to love his surroundings better, to look all men in the face, to be a truly free man in a free country.

And when the independent farmer has money to spend the merchant can do a better business, the travelling man can sell more goods, the wholesaler man can handle more money, and the laboring men will find more to work at. Without money men are poor: they must economize, they must do without luxuries and many necessities. With money plenty people will pass it along. And everybody and the country be more prosperous.

Gold Flees.

Our gold standard friends tell us that we must not vote for free silver because if we have the free coinage of gold and silver both, gold will all go out of the country. How do they know that it would? Does history teach anything of the kind? In 1873 when the silver dollar was left out of the coinage act was not a silver dollar worth three cents more than a gold dollar?

When there is not enough of either metal alone for standard money on which to do the business of the country, as the late Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury, in his last great speech in New York, told the people, is it not necessary that we haye both metals as standard money?

Gold flee from the country! How can it? Where will it flee too? Haye you a few dollars in gold of your own? If so is it going to flee from the country because we haye a larger per capita of standard money?

If, as is alleged, 92 per cent of the business of the country is done on credit. couldn't we have at least 10 times as much silver as we now have without hurting anything or driving gold out of the country?

If you have eight per cent enough of coal in your shed to last you over winter will it all go to England if you purchase enough wood to help you out? If you haye half enough oats to winter your horses will it all flee to Europe if you happen to fill up your corn crib so as to not run short? If you haye labored and earned a $100. will it necessarily take wings and fly away if you labor some more and earn another $100. If gold does flee to the old countries, who assists it in its flight? Is it you or I? or is it the bond-holder, and the wealthy manufacturer who does business in this protected country while he resides in that cheaper country on the other side of the Atlantic? And don't they carry just as much gold there now as they would under the silyer standard?

Don't be afraid if we get free coinage of silver, and the hoarders of gold find that the white standard is, as it formerly was, worth as much or more than the yellow standard, gold will come forth from its hiding and seek opportunity to get into circulation along with its mate.

If you haye occasion to hire half a dozen harvest hands and they ask you three dollars per day, you tell them I can't pay it, I will let my family harvest my crop, you get out your wife, your girls and all go to work, the harvesters see that their opportunity is past; they offer to help you at your own price. So with gold when their is not enough in the country to do business on it crawls away; it hides; but let the free coinage of silver come and see how soon the country would haye plenty of "yaller dogs."

Lynch Law at Glencoe.

On Sunday morning at an early hour a mob of masked men entered the jail at Glencoe forced the jailor to surrender the keys, overpowered the nightwatch and broke open the cages in which were confined Dorman Musgrove and Henry Cinmars, the murderers of Sheriff Rogers, and took them to the bridge where they hung them. This was not in accordance with law and was wrong. We have always condemned mob law, when we have read of burning negroes at the stake in the south. We haye also spoken against its use in the north and now, when it occurs in an ajoining county, eyen though to ayenge the death of an officer of the law we must condemn it.

Mob law, on general principles, is wrong, because a score or two of men disguise themselves and hang a fellow man eyen though he is an admitted criminal, it does not make their crime less heinous than that of two men who resist an officer of the law and shoot him. One crime does not right another. Good citizens abide by the laws. If laws are wrong they should be righted in the regular way and not by mob law. It surely is provoking to have criminal lawyers hunt up the cracks and crevices of a poorly constructed law and drag out a murder trial to a length and expense to tire out the patience ef everybody. But eyen this does not justify the hanging, by a mob, of men in jail, one already convicted of murder in the second degree. Usually, we believe, it is not the better class of people who commit murders, under the use of masks at the hour of midnight, whether single and alone in pairs or trios or even in the form of a mob. The perpetrators of such an outrage on justice should be found and punished by law if possible.

JUDGE MOER ON OHIO.

Says it is Sure to Go For Silver.

Judge S. H. Moer, Who returned last week from his Eastern trip, gives a very encouraging story of the growth of the silver sentiment in that home of goldbugs. To a Herald man this morning he gave a few words of the result of his obseryations:

"In Pennsylyania," he said, "there seems to be no question but that ex-Congressman Sibley, who is a strong silver Democrat, will be returned to congress. In the western part of New York I found a large amount of silver sentiment among the farmers, Republicans and Democrats alike. New York city is, of course, strongly for gold, but New York state is deemed excellent fighting ground, and is by no means to be conceded to McKinley. Much depends upon the amount of work put in there, and it is probable that a strong effort will be made in that state in behalf of Bryan.

"I had little opportunity of personally acquainting myself with the attitude of New Jersey, but around Atlantic City the Democrats confidently claim the state. The Republicans also claim it, however, so it is difficult to determine the prospects from that state exactly. In Ohio people are enthusiastically for silyer, and there is a general claim by the silver men that Bryan will carry the state by 35,000 to 50,000 majority. Indeed, many claim that there is no more hope for McKinley in Ohio than there is in Nevada. The silver men are offering any amount in bets on Bryan. In Cleveland the Republicans do not even talk of McKinley's carrying the state, and the best they can do is to say, 'Oh, it looks dubious now, but it will swing around all right before election.' The Lake towns in Ohio are especially strong against McKinley.

"The demonstration in Cleyeland was an immense affair. The dispatches said that there were 500 there from Akron, O. Cleveland people estimated the number of Akron people there at 1200. Among them were 237 Republicans, and the crowd carried a banner to the effect that they not only promised, but guaranteed McKinley's own home and country for Bryan."—Duluth Herald.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.
Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoko, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

The year is getting on toward the point where a man lets the icebox alone and begins to get nervous about the furnace.

Diplomacy has won for Bolivia what war failed to win, and Chili has at last conceded her sister republic a strip of Pacific ocean coast line.

France is disappointed in her last census, which shows a gain of only 138,819 in the last five years. The birth rate in France has fallen from 32 per 1,000 to 22, and in some provinces to 14.

Just as Germany is the land of short-sight, so it is the land of stuttering. At the present there are over 100,000 stuttering children in the national schools. The infirmity, indeed, is supposed to be contagious.

The whipping post is a relic of barbarism, but when it is revived for the punishment of the wife-beater, as in Maryland the other day, it can be excused on the ground that the punishment fits the crime.

This has been an unusually disastrous year for mountain climbers. Not a week has passed since the season began in Switzerland without one or more deaths and many accidents. Usually those who are killed or crippled for life belong to the most useful and intelligent class.

There were 1,823 employes killed on the railroads of this country last year, but among passengers there was but one life sacrificed for every 1,668,791 carried by the railroads. The man who looks upon railroad travel as dangerous will do well to consider that he has a million and a half chances for a safe journey to one chance of being killed.

It is a curious fact that in spite of its great brilliance the electric light does not carry so far through a fog as gas light, and for that reason is not in favor for lighthouses. It is now proposed, however, to try the incandescent gas light, which is cheap, and is said to carry farther in bad weather than either an electric light or an ordinary gas light.

American shipbuilding has become extremely interesting to British experts since the St. Paul and the St. Louis made their magnificent ocean records, and it is significant to note that E. K and J. W. P. Laird, representing one of the largest of the English shipbuilding concerns, have just arrived in this country to make a study of American methods.

A report made to the state department by our minister to Belgium shows a marked improvement in the conditions of the masses in that country. It is stated that the family of the average workingman uses 117 pounds more bread now than 30 years ago, that he is eating wheat bread instead of rye, that he has twice as much butter and lard, and that the consumption of meat has increased threefold.

Under the will of Rev. John H. Campbell, a Universalist minister of Buffalo, N. Y., the Players' club has come into posession of the largest private collection in the country of pictures and autographs of actors, stage relics, old programmes and prompt books. It includes the prompt book of "Hamlet" used by Edwin Forrest, and an enormous album which contains the portrait and autograph of every actor and actress of any prominence who had appeared in this country in the last half century.

Mr. Labouchere, of London Truth, says that he received the two following advertisements for insertion: "Wanted—by a dowager, too aged to ride a cycle (84), an experienced lady cyclist accustomed to the very best society. Must be able to ride 20 miles an hour, so as to keep in sight youngest daughter, who is agile and injudicious." "A lady, highly connected, is prepared to chaperon (on a cycle) the ambitious daughter of a millionaire. Is an expert in all paces (cycling). Can be trusted to keep alongside of the swiftest detrimental and to lag discreetly in the rear of an eligible elder son."

The English people are very fond of drawing unfavorable contrasts between English and American journalism on account of the "personal character" that is alleged to pervade the latter. How is this from a recent Saturday Review, which bears itself as a glass of fashion and the mold of form in British newspaperdom? "The member for Anglesea, a Mr. Griffith, is a sort of Welsh farmer, probably polished by a university education. He is a big, raw-boned man, with feet like scows, and hands to match. His enormous windmill arms and legs make him look something like an overgrown Newfoundland pup."

Dr. Nansen's reported intention to undertake an antarctic expedition before returning to his north polar quest is bound to awaken the greatest interest among scientific men. Nansen has long had the confidence of arctic experts on both sides of the Atlantic as a thoroughly well-grounded scientist, and his prodigious success in penetrating to the furthest north has given him a prestage among practical explorers quite equal to that which he enjoyed for several years among students. His pluck, intelligence and patience are now beyond dispute—these are the supreme qualities of the successful explorer.

"A woman's train" was run over a New York railroad the other day. The passengers and crew were all women. Of course, there was a trained engineer in the cab with the pretty woman who had her hand on the lever, but that part of the enterprise was doubtful propriety. Women can manage many things just as well as men, including a railroad train, if those who take the places of engineer, fireman and brakemen are trained to the work. But a railroad excursion is not an enterprise to come under the head of society fads, and the "woman's train" should be manned by a crew of experienced men.

TAKES IN WASHINGTON.

Li Hung Chang Sees Many Wonderful Things and Asks Questions.

Washington, Sept. 5.—Li Hung Chang, after breakfast at 6:30 a. m., was driven about the city and shown the public buildings and principal points of interest. At noon he partook of luncheon at the Chinese legation and afterward inspected the buildings, method of transacting business and held a long conversation with Minister Yang Yee.

In the afternoon Maj. Gen. Miles, Gen. Beck, Gen. Ruggles, Gen. Greeley and others called to pay their respects. The viceroy asked Gen. Miles how old he was, and when the general told him he had served with Grant the viceroy became deeply interested and asked numerous questions about Grant's army life. After this interview ex-Secretary Foster took the viceroy, Lord Li and Dr. Mark to call on Secretary Carlisle at the latter's residence. The visit turned out to be the most important of the day and resulted in the complete demolition of the afternoon programme. When the discussion had continued until 4:30 o'clock the viceroy drove to Secretary Lamont's, where he left his card, repeating this courtesy at the residences of Gen. Miles and Secretary Francis. At seven o'clock he sat down to an elaborate dinner tendered by Secretary Foster. During the repast the United States Marine band, under special orders from the navy department, gave a serenade. At the conclusion of the dinner Gen. Foster made a few remarks, to which Li Hung Chang responded through his interpreter in written speech.

His address expressed the favorable impression received by him during his visit to the United States of the liberty and freedom enjoyed by the people, the welfare and prosperity in their industrial and commercial pursuits, the characteristics of their classical, historical, philosophical and poetical literature, the manner of application of the scientific discoveries for promoting the happiness of mankind and the display of their artistic taste in the architecture of the public buildings, sculpture and paintings of historical figures and facts. These impressions, he said, he would carry home, not only as augmentations to his store of knowledge of the points of western modern civilization, but as the means of enlightening the millions he represents and inculcating the introduction of those very means and ends of civilization into China and amalgamating the oldest civilization of the far east with the most modern of the extreme west.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Li Hung Chang was up bright and early Monday morning, feeling well, though he passed a very restless night, the noise of the falls disturbing him. He had breakfast at 7:30. The day broke fine and clear, and a change in the programme was made. Instead of waiting for the special train, the viceroy accompanied by Sir Henry Joly, Sir A. C. Parmalee and his interpreters took carriages at nine o'clock and drove to the Canadian side, where a trip through the Canadian park and Dufferin islands was made. Li was evidently much more impressed with the view of the falls from the Canadian side, and so expressed himself. He said it was magnificent and sublime.

Toronto, Ont., Sept. 8.—Earl Li Hung Chang and his numerous retinue reached Toronto late Monday afternoon by a special train, accompanied by Sir Henry Joly, representing the dominion government; W. G. Parmalee, the Chinese commissioner, and Dr. Horsey, all of whom go through with him to the coast. Li did not come into the city proper at all, but stopped off at the Industrial fair, which he inspected thoroughly.

Washington, Sept. 8.—The Chinese minister, Yang Yu, accompanied by several members of his legation, visited Mount Vernon Monday by special train and deposited on the tomb of Washington, the handsome wreath which Li Hung Chang was prevented by inclement weather, on Saturday, from placing there with his own hands.

LABOR DAY.

Bryan Speaks to Chicago Workingmen—Debs at Terre Haute.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Labor day was generally observed as a holiday in Chicago. The celebration was the biggest thing of the kind ever seen here, William J. Bryan, democratic nominee for president, being the star attraction. More than 20,000 men participated in the parade Monday morning. The procession formed on the Lake Front and marched through the principal streets, after which the laborites betook themselves to the various picnic grounds on the outskirts of the city. The crowd which went to Sharpshooters' park where Bryan was to speak was enormous.

Mr. Bryan did not make a partisan speech. He said he did not intend to disregard the proprieties of the occasion by entering into a discussion of partisan questions. His speech was devoted to an exposition of the form of government in this country, its usefulness and its abuse; to an appeal to workingmen to maintain the integrity of the ballot, to bring about a reformation in the conditions which surrounded them if they were discontented and wanted a change. He told the people not to vote according to ideas of their employers, and was greeted with tremendous applause. Discontent, he said, lays the foundation of all progress. He impressed upon the workingmen the importance of voting only as their judgment and conscience dictated. His address was applauded at frequent intervals.

St. Louis, Sept. 8.—Labor day was observed in the usual manner here. The government and municipal buildings, together with banks, business houses and merchants' exchange were closed. The allied trades associations held a joint parade at noon and marched to Concordia park to listen to speeches and witness athletic games. The weather was cool and delightful.

Chicago, Sept. 8.—Dispatches report the general observance of Labor day in the usual manner throughout the United States. Among the cities in which the day was observed in a notable way were Minneapolis, Detroit, Cleveland, Louisville, Kansas City, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburgh, Montreal and Toronto.

Wants to Try It Again.

London, Sept. 8.—Charles Mitchell has written a letter to Sporting Life, in which he says that he will shortly revisit the United States to again attempt to secure the boxing championship of the world.

BRAVE MEN KILLED.

Falling Walls Crush Out Lives of Firemen at Benton Harbor, Mich.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Sept. 7.—Yore's opera house and adjoining buildings were burned early Sunday morning, entailing a loss of about $65,000 and causing the death of 11 firemen and injury to a number of others. The killed are: Frank Watson, Edward H. Ganges, Arthur C. Hill, Frank Seaver and Robert Rolfe, all of St. Joseph; John Hoffman, Thomas Kidd, Frank Woodley, Will Melten, Scott Rice and Louis Hoffman, all of Benton Harbor. All but three of the dead men were married.

The injured are: Ex-Fire Chief John A. Crawford, of Benton Harbor, burned and overcome by heat and smoke, seriously injured; Frank Paget, of St. Joseph, legs mashed by falling brick; Will Freund, of St. Joseph, cut about the head and burned; Jack McCormick, of Benton Harbor, legs broken and internally injured.

Several others were injured, but none of them seriously. The opera house was a large four-story brick structure. The fire broke out shortly after midnight. It had gained much headway before the alarm was given, and when the firemen arrived the building was a mass of flames. The St. Joseph departments were sent for and arrived soon after. The fire continued to gain on them and was spreading to other buildings when the hook and ladder companies went to the rear of the building, hoping to be able to direct a stream into the mass of flames from a second-story window. Hardly had they arrived there than the wall, with a mighty crash, came down before them, burying 15 men under the red-hot bricks. Other portions of the wall were tottering, and the rescue of the imprisoned firemen was deterred for some time, as it was expected every moment the remainder of the wall would fall. Finally, some of the crowd rushed into the mass to rescue the shrieking and struggling men.

Frank Watson, of St. Joseph, was the first man rescued, but he was dead, and his body was a mass of broken bones and mangled flesh. The search continued until five o'clock when the last victim, Arthur Hill, was removed. They were carried to offices and private houses where doctors from both cities were in waiting to render aid. Some of them died en route and others died while their wounds were being cared for. The dead were taken to the city hall, which was turned into a temporary morgue. Some of the men were so badly mangled that identity was only had by letters and papers in their pockets. As the bleeding forms were carried through the streets they were followed by throngs of awe-stricken men and women eager to learn whether the victims were friends or relatives.

LYNCHED AT GLENCOE, MINN.

Citizens Rise Up Against a Jury's Verdict.

Glencoe, Minn., Sept. 7.—At 20 minutes after one o'clock Sunday morning Charles Cingmars and Dorman Musgrove, murderers of Sheriff Rogers, were hanged to the railroad bridge, less than a quarter of a mile out of town. One of the men was hanged from the north side of the bridge and the other from the south side. The deed was done by 100 citizens of McLeod county, who thus expressed their disapproval of Saturday's verdict that Musgrove be confined to the state prison for life instead of being sent to the gallows. The murder was one of the most coldblooded in the annals of Minnesota.

Cingmars and Musgrove, two tramp desperadoes, were traveling northward, according to their own story, to the wheat fields of North Dakota. A few miles below Glencoe they accosted a farmer, took possession of his team and drove into town. On the way up they beat him for trying to handle his own team. The farmer reported them to the officers at Glencoe and a warrant was issued for the arrest of the men, who by this time had disappeared.

Sheriff Rogers took the papers himself and started in pursuit of the desperadoes. Just at dusk on the evening of June 20 he overtook the two men five miles south of Glencoe. Riding up to them he said: "Boys, I want you to go back to Glencoe with me." "Well, we don't have to go," said Musgrove, as he brought a Winchester rifle to his shoulder. Before Sheriff Rogers could say another word the tramp began firing on him and he fell down, his body pierced with five bullets. Twenty-four hours later the two fiends were captured by a posse of 500 men in a neigboring county and taken to Glencoe. The jail was surrounded by several hundred men, and a lynching would have occurred but for the prompt action of Gov. Clough, who sent out a company of militia from St. Paul just as the hanging was about to come off. The prisoners were immediately taken to St. Paul and put in jail there.

ARKANSAS ELECTION.

Democratic Ticket Has an Estimated Majority of 65,000.

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 8.—The election held in this state Monday was for all state, judicial and county offices, including two-thirds of the legislature which will elect a successor to Senator James K. Jones, chairman of the democratic national committee. He has no opposition within his party and his reelection is an assured fact. As far as heard from, the election throughout the state passed off quietly and an unusually large vote was polled. The question of licensing saloons was the principal issue in the majority of the counties. Here in Little Rock, it was the issue of the day. The prohibitionists or anti-license advocates were defeated by a large majority. Democrats and republicans had full tickets in the field, while the populists and prohibitionists nominated candidates for governor only. Republican advices received up to nine o'clock indicate that their vote will exceed 160,000, an increase of 24,000 over 1894.

Carroll Armstrong, chairman of the democratic central committee, predicts the election of the entire democratic state ticket by 65,000 majority. Judging from the increase in the vote already received many of the colored voters in Woodruff and Jackson counties voted the straight democratic ticket. Several of the counties so far as heard from have doubled their vote. Chairman Cooper, of the republican committee, concedes the election of the democratic ticket by 45,000 majority. Mr. Armstrong says that to free silver is due all the credit for the great democratic majority. The gold democrats are said to have voted the straight democratic free silver ticket almost solidly at every precinct so far as heard from, and it is believed that this policy has largely prevailed throughout the state.

WATSON WILL STICK.

Says He Won't Retire for Sewall, Whom He Scores at Dallas.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 8.—Thomas E. Watson, or Georgia, vice presidential nominee of the populist party, addressed a Labor day audience of 5,000 people Monday. He will speak at Bonham, Tex., today, and from there goes to Kansas. In part he said:

"Every man ought to know that if Mr. Bryan is to be elected he will be elected by the votes which the people's party give him. If he carries Nebraska, where he lives, it will be the Tom Watson populists who will carry it for him. And I put it to you, democrats, if you want our votes don't you think you ought to 'tote fair' with us? You say: 'Let's go into copartnership,' but you want to be both partners. Why, even in that kind of a copartnership they should remember that there is a rule of law which says that man and wife are one, but it takes two to make the bargain, and yet you democrats who cannot get along without our 1,800,000 votes say that our partnership ought to consist of the same two partners and you want to be both. Well, we want to fuse with you. We don't want to swallow you, and we don't intend that you shall swallow us.

"If I came off the ticket it would mean the death of the populist party. If you are honest in demanding silver legislation you should not want the whole thing. Where would the silver cause have been in 1894 and in 1895 if it had not been for the people's party? Ask somebody else to kill the people's party, but don't ask me. I sat by the cradle where the party was born. I have fought its battles. I have supported its principles since its organization. I have taken pride in its growth, its sorrows have been my sorrows, and don't ask me after all my service with the people's party to kill it now. I am going to stand by it till she dies, and I want no man to say that I was the man who stabbed it to the heart. The people's party must never die. It has done too much good to die. It was the people's party, my friends, that made the democrats come to taw. We were a coal of fire on the turtle's back, and it never had any idea of traveling until it felt the force of the fire.

"Sewall has got to come down. He brings no votes to Bryan; he drives votes away from Bryan. I would bring votes to Bryan and bring thousands of them. Sewall can come down without hurting his party a little bit. I have got to stand on the ticket where my friends placed me. I can't come down. You may try to run me off, but I am going to fight before you do it. I am willing to go into partnership with you, but I don't want any Jonah and the whale business, with you playing the whale. You might forget to do what the whale did with Jonah. We might never get out any more. Mr. Sewall cannot carry his own family. Whenever my own son takes the stump and begins to make speeches against me like Mr. Sewall's son is doing against him I will get off the ticket and crawl under the bed and hide myself. Mr. Sewall is a national banker, and therefore out of touch with the people. Mr. Sewall is a railroad king, and therefore out of touch with the people. Mr. Sewall is a bondholder, and therefore out of touch with the people. And I make bold here to say that Mr. Bryan himself has laid down the rule which, if carried out, will take Mr. Sewall off the ticket. He said in New York in a public speech that a candidate running upon a platform should not only indorse every plank in that platform, but should indorse every sentence and every word of it. Apply that rule to Mr. Sewall, and Mr. Sewall would get off while I stepped on. Mr. Bryan must have meant that; let him deny it if he did not. That construction has been put on it by democrats. It is the only construction that can be put on it. Mr. Sewall does not stand squarely on the platform. Let Sewall scoot and Watson arrive."

NEW G. A. R. OFFICERS.

Maj. Thaddeus S. Clarkson Is Elected Commander in Chief.

St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 5.—Maj. Thaddeus S. Clarkson, of Omaha, was elected commander in chief of the G. A. R. by acclamation by the national encampment Friday morning.

Adjt. Gen. J. D. Mullen, of Minnesota, was unanimously elected senior vice commander, that office always going to the state where the encampment is held.

The junior vice commandership went to the south. Charles W. Buckley, of Alabama, was elected. Comrade

MAJ. THADDEUS S. CLARKSON.

Shoales, of Georgia, was also a candidate. A. E. Johnson, of the department of the Potomac, Washington, D. C., was elected surgeon general and Rev. Mark B. Taylor, of Massachusetts, chaplain in chief.

The utterances of President Fliot, of Harvard university, concerning the grand army were presented in a report from the committee on resolutions, which was adopted, declaring that "while we emphatically condemn such statements as unworthy and untruthful, we will not dignify them by a formal resolution of condemnation." The project of establishing national parks on the site of Vicksburg and Fredericksburg was strongly indorsed. A resolution was adopted asking congress to pass a law forbidding the use of the national coat-of-arms and flag for political purposes or for private gain, as in a trademark or label.

On motion of Cumberland post No. 737, of Illinois, the encampment supported the proposition to raise Maj. Gen. Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., to the rank of lieutenant general.

The encampment installed the new officers and adjourned at one o'clock sine die.

Mrs. Agnes Hitt, of Indianapolis, was elected president of the Women's Relief Corps.

The recommendation in the president's report that Andersonville prison site be purchased by the corps and kept permanently in condition as a war exhibit was adopted. A committee was appointed to attend to the matter and every member of the corps was asked to contribute five cents towards the purchase and maintenance of the fund. Over $2,500 were subscribed to the fund by the delegates present.

China Favors Salisbury's Proposition.

London, Sept. 5.—A dispatch to the Central News from Shanghai says that the government at Peking is disposed to agree to the conditions proposed by Lord Salisbury, that in exchange for the increase of tariff by China that government shall concede the abolition of transit dues and permit free trade within the empire.

Murdered for His Money.

Excelsior Springs, Mo., Sept. 8.—Mathew Clark, an aged and wealthy bachelor farmer, who lived alone on his farm three miles south of here, was found near his house, his head beaten, and other indications showing that he was murdered for his money.

A GENTLEMAN.

Exhibits the True Knightly Spirit—A Lesson in Courtesy.

She was an old German woman. No one knew where she was going, but evidently some distance, for she carried an enormous bundle wrapped in newspaper and containing her personal effects. Supernatural gifts of second sight were not necessary to discover the last fact, for hardly had the old woman entered the train before the contents of her package were exhibited to the view of the other travelers. Newspapers have their uses, but they were never intended for wrapping parcels. The strain and the heat of the poor old creature's arms had been too much for it. There was a sound like the outburst of a long pent-up sigh, followed by a shower of neat but plain garments of feminine wearing apparel along the aisle, and a ripple of laughter which traveled rapidly down the car. Everyone was interested. That newspaper was gone, the contents of the package were scattered. What was the owner going to do? She did not know any better than the other passengers, and it was no laughing matter for her. Just then a man, who had been intently reading his paper, looked up and took in the situation at a glance. He arose quietly, put down his paper and stepped into the aisle. One after the other he took up the different articles, rolled them into tight little bundles, took his own paper and wrapped them neatly in it, tied together the broken string and handed the woman her package in many times better condition than it was before. She was not diffusive in her thanks, but her gratitude was shown in her face. "Oh, tank you, sir; tank you, sir," she said, as she sat down, smiling happily, her rejuvenated bundle clasped tightly in her arms again.

HINTS FOR THE HOME LAUNDRY.

The difficulty experienced by housekeepers generally in having washing done at home causes many who can ill afford the expense to send their clothes to laundries, where inferior soap and injurious washing fluids are used, while if proper attention is given the work it may be done quite as satisfactorily in the home laundry.

Assort the clothes, divide the table and bed linen from the wearing apparel, and the fine garments from the colored. First immerse the white articles in hot water and wash carefully with Ivory soap. After all are taken through the suds, put in a tub, pour boiling water over them, let cool, wash out in clear water, rinse in blue water, wring, starch and hang on the line. The colored clothes should then be washed in the same way, without scalding. When all are dry they should be taken from the line, sprinkled, folded evenly and laid in the clothes basket. The ironing must be done with hot, clean irons, and the clothes hung up to air.

A HOLE IN THE MOUNTAIN.

Wonders of a Cave Near Chattanooga That Puzzle Geologists.

"The most peculiar cave I ever saw," said a Chattanooga man to a Washington Star writer, "is on Raccoon mountain, near Chattanooga. It has never been explored, and no one really knows whether or not there is much of a cave. The Indians have several legends concerning it, and it is remarkable that no one has ever entered it. It was supposed by the Indians to be haunted, and there are some gruesome tales told about it. The only opening yet discovered is on top of the mountain. It has been sounded with a line of considerable length without finding a bottom to the chamber through the roof of which the opening exists. There is a constant roaring sound, like the wind sometimes makes. It does not seem like water, and is undoubtedly caused by air circulating in the immense hole in the mountain. There are no volcanic indications, and the cave is a puzzle to geologists."

$400 Truck Farms in Virginia.

September 1st and 15th and October 6 and 20 Home Seekers' Excursion tickets will be sold from points in the west and northwest over the Big Four Route and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. to Virginia at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. Those who have investigated the state are of one opinion, that Virginia is the best state in the Union today for farmers. Situated at the doors of the great eastern markets with cheap transportation and a perfect climate it has advantages that cannot be overcome. Small farms may be had for $10 per acre and upward according to location and improvements. For descriptive pamphlet of Virginia, list of desirable farms and excursion rates address U. L. TRUITT, N. W. P. A., C. & O., Big Four Route, 234 Clark St., Chicago.

DEBIT AND CREDIT.

Come, little Paul, and let me tell about this thing which I have done—
This net of debt which round my life for your dear baby sake I've spun;
Sit on my knee and hearken well, for you,
I know, are worldly wise,
And I'm prepared to follow out what course of conduct you advise.

First, there's a mortgage, full of terms and clauses ponderous and grim—
But likewise there's a giant tree with one particular, long limb
Which reaches out to beckon us—to beckon
you and beckon me
To come and build a swing and play beneath the grandly spreading tree.

Then there are notes, a bunch of them. I pledge my purpose and intent
To pay them off at sundry dates at rather vigorous per cent.;
But also, Paul, there is a house whose roomy attic was designed For rainy days, and little boys and blocks and toys of divers kind.

And, Paul—you follow me, of course—there is an abstract and a deed—
Which are the driest documents I ever had the woe to read.
I think I signed them, but perhaps I did not sign, but only sealed.
— Then there's a great, green lawn which slopes to westward to a stubble field.

A great, green lawn where you will play;
I'll buy a comrade dog for you;
And there'll be plenty romping-room, and hide-and-seek locations, too;
And in the evening I'll come fast hasting
on the choo-choo car,
And we'll explore that stubble field, where pretty summer flowers are.

Then there are bonds of rigid sort; I pledge and swear myself to these,
But, on the other, credit, side there is a wealth of cherry trees;
Moreover there are legal forms filled out with words most monstrous big,
But, also, there's a corner where you'll take your wooden spade to dig.

So, come, my boy, imprisoned in this city
flat from day to day,
And in the wisdom of your years proceed with what you have to say.
A chuckle for my answer? Ah, you don't believe my bargain bad.
Then prove your glad approval. Kiss your jolly, debt-encumbered dad.

THE CAPTAIN'S STORY.

BY ALBERT DELPIT.

It was just after the scandal at our club, and a little group of us were talking in a very animated way of the affair. Capt. Joubert did not join in the conversation, and did not even seem to be listening to us.

"What will you take for your thoughts?" I said to him at last.

"Oh! they are not worth much. I was thinking just then of an incident which occurred once at a club in a small provincial town where I happened to be staying."

"Tell us about it!" exclaimed one of the other men, and the captain lighted a cigarette and, putting his elbow on the mantel-shelf against which he had been leaning, began his story:

"Well, it was when I was in garrison at M——, one of the dullest and most stupid of provincial towns. There was nothing in the world for a fellow to do with himself there, no theater even, only a low music-hall.

"When I was off duty I gradually got into the habit of turning in to the Union club, which, by-the-bye, was the only one the town possessed.

"It was called 'the Union,' I should imagine because there was always a dispute of some kind or another going on there. There was very little play at this club except at the time of the three annual fairs, each of which lasted a week. One autumn afternoon, just at the opening of one of these fairs, I happened to go to the club rather early. There were a fair number of men there that day who were strangers to me, wealthy farmers of the neighborhood, who rarely came into town, and the various owners of the country houses round.

"'They are playing high to-day,' said one of the habitues of the club to me. I turned round towards the table to watch the game, and was so surprised at the sight of one of the players that I almost exclaimed.

"It was a young man of some 22 or 23 years of age, whom I knew by sight. I was very much interested in him, for his father had fought courageously at Magenta and had been killed on the field of battle, leaving his widow and son by no means well provided for. The young man came very rarely to the club, and I had never seen him touch a card before. I was stupefied therefore to see him holding the bank, and a good bank it was too, for there were plenty of notes and gold coins, heaped up in front of him.

"'How much?' called out one of the players.

"'Oh!' laughed a wealthy farmer, 'M. de Mertens is in luck's way; he can safely keep his bank open.'

"I noticed that the young man's face was deadly pale, and there was an excited look in his eyes.

"'Open bank,' he said, and it seemed as though the very words had changed the luck.

"Ten times running Mertens lost, and in a quarter of an hour his bank was cleared out. Another man took his place and the play went on. It got so exciting that I, too, was fascinated, and joined in. There was no room to sit down at the table, so I continued standing, holding my hat in my hand and throwing my winnings into it. I had a run of luck, and went on playing in the most excited way until I was startled by some one calling out: 'You are being robbed, captain!'

"I started, and instinctively seized a hand which had knocked against mine through my sudden movement. It was M. de Mertens' hand, and he held the £40 note which he had just taken out of my hat. The wretched man's face was convulsed with emotion. Our eyes met; his were dilated with terror, and there was a look in them that seemed to hold me spell-bound.

"'M. de Mertens is my partner,' I said, haughtily, to the man who had warned me; 'and I am surprised that you should dare to bring such an accusation against a gentleman whose reputation is so well known.'

"The individual who had called out had never been to the club before, and did not know M. de Mertens at all. We had all been standing round the table close to each other, and on seeing another player put his hand into my hat, it was very natural that the man should have thought it his duty to warn me. On hearing my explanation he apologized most humbly to M. de Mertens, and several of the acquaintances of the latter gathered round and expressed their regret that such an insult should have been offered him.

"We then continued our play, and M. de Mertens soon after left the club. Three days passed, and I heard nothing more of the young man. In shielding him as I had done, my first thought had been of his father, and I had determined to save from disgrace the name of the brave soldier of Magenta. Of course, I could quite understand that the young man should now shrink from seeing me again, but still it struck me as rather strange that in some way, either direct or indirect, he did not attempt to express his thanks.

"One evening, however, just as I was going out to pay some visits, my orderly informed me that a lady wished to see me. I went into the drawing-room, and there I found a woman of about 45 years of age. She was very dignified-looking, and there was an open, honest expression about her face which fascinated me.

"'I am Madame de Mertens,' she said, simply. 'My son told me everything about the affair at the club, and I have come to thank you with all my heart for having preserved for us intact the honor of our name.'

"'Madame——,' I began; but she interrupted me in her emotion and nervousness.

"'My son had got entangled in various ways, and in desperation had taken to play. It appears he had lost every penny he possessed that night. You know the rest, alas!'

"I felt very much embarrassed, for the poor mother's grief was terrible to witness. She was still standing there in front of me, her face was deadly pale, and the tears were trembling on her long dark eyelashes.

"'He is young, madame; you must not take it to heart so,' I stammered. 'It was just a moment's weakness. I will see your son, and—'

"'No, captain,' she said, shaking her head, sadly, 'he is no longer here * * * he has enlisted, and is already on his way with the regiment.'"

We had all been listening attentively to Capt. Joubert's story, and when he stopped speaking there was silence for a few minutes.

"And what happened to M. de Mertens, captain?" asked one of the group. "Did you ever hear?"

"He is dead. * * * Six months ago I received a letter from Kelung—a pitiful little letter—written with very pale ink, and on a sheet of paper that was all crumpled and yellow with age. There were only a few lines for me to read. I know them by heart. They were as follows:

"'I am mortally wounded * * * Admiral Courbet has just brought me the cross; but * * * I am dying. I am sending it to you, my poor cross * * * for you saved me, and I should like you to wear it * * *'

"This is why, my friends, instead of wearing the decoration which I received from the chancellor, you always see me with the sergeant's cross which poor Mertens sent me. Poor boy! To think that he started as a thief, and died a hero's death at Kelung."—Strand Magazine.

BESIEGED BY NUNS.

Wonderful Tale of a Conquered Monastery on the Canary Islands.

A curious tale of a besieged and conquered monastery belongs to the early history of the Canary islands, and is retold by Charles Edwardes in his description of the isles. In the early part of the eighteenth century there lived in Orotava, on the Island of Teneriffe, a convent of Dominican nuns, who, after some years of ease, had the misfortune to be burned out of house and home. They went into temporary quarters for a year, but became dissatisfied with such unconventional walls, and began looking about for a permanent abiding place. At that time there was in Orotava a house of Jesuits which had lost its former importance, and, though commodious and healthful, gave lodging to but two men, the rector of the house and his assistant.

On this mansion the nuns cast covetous eyes, and soon resolved to appropriate it. One morning about 40 of them advanced against it, by strategy induced the Jesuit brother to open the outer gate, and then, trooping into the courtyard, fell on their knees, thanking God for this preliminary success. In vain did the two monks reason with them on their scandalous conduct. They merely held their ground, exclaiming: "Father Andrew, this is a large cage for so few birds!" Some of the more reasonable members of the sisterhood explained that they were really in need of a dwelling as spacious as this, and that they did not propose leaving it. The rector, in despair, fled into the sacristy, from which retreat he exerted his colleague to be of good cheer. "Patience, brother," cried he, "and do your best to extricate yourself from those ladies!" That, however, was more easily said than done, especially as the nuns were becoming so excited that they might momentarily have been expected to resort to the argument of nails. The siege lasted for three or four hours. News of it flew about the town, and bands of young men, scrupulously neutral, watched proceedings from the bars of the outer gate. Eventually the Jesuits yielded, and the nuns occupied the house until a new convent, entirely to their taste, was erected for them.—London Globe.

He Was Not Used to Shoes.

A tall and heavily-footed colored man limped painfully into a large store in Phoenixville one day recently and began to complain bitterly to the proprietor that he had been swindled. "Dese hyar shoes," he said, "suhtinly is de wu'st I ebah see. Dey jes' nachelly got me all tied up in knots." "What seems to be the trouble?" inquired the proprietor. The colored man scratched his pate for a minute and said: "Fo' de Lawd, I doan' know. Hit sho'ly seems laik somebody done cast a spell on dem. Fust dey feels all right, an' den de nex' day hu'ts mos' dreffful." The dealer took a look at one of the shoes, then he began laughing. "You're not used to wearing shoes, are you?" he asked. "Well, boss," was the reply, "I doan' weah 'em much, da's a fack." "Well, the trouble is, you've got them on the wrong feet." "No, sah! No, sah!" cried the negro, "dey ain' nuffin' wrong wif mah feet." The dealer explained the difference between right and left and the customer went away happy.—Philadelphia Record.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Dead in a Bath Room.

James Cullen, the proprietor of a bottling house at 251 Hennepin avenue, Minneapolis, was found dead in the Turkish bath parlors of the Guaranty Loan building early Saturday morning. Cullen engaged in a fistic altercation with James Gallagher Friday night before closing up. As a result of the fight Gallagher was thrown out of the place by Cullen, who was a large, heavy man. Gallagher left with a broken arm, threatening arrest for assault and battery.

The bar tender states that Cullen was drinking heavily Friday night and after the fight left the saloon, saying that he was going to take a bath at the Guaranty Loan parlors. An attendant at the parlors found Cullen's dead body on one of the lounges at 3:30 o'clock in the morning.

The body of Cullen was removed to the county morgue and a cursory examination of it gave rise to the supposition that something besides heart disease was responsible for the man's death. In several places on the body the skin had peeled off, giving the impression that the man had been subjected to intense heat.

Booms Will Close.

The boom companies have been ordered to close their booms on Sept. 12. This action was decided upon in a joint meeting of all the log owners in Minneapolis, held in the offices of the Mississippi & Rum River Boom company.

Immediate steps are to be taken to place all the logs now in the booms in a condition of safety, also so that they may be gotten at with the greatest convenience next spring. The sentiment of the log owners was unanimously in favor of closing the mills at the earliest possible date, and the only reason that the date was not set for one week earlier was that certain of the mill owners, Backus, Nelson-Tenney, Day, and one or two others desired a little longer time to cut in order that they might be in a condition to meet all the orders attendant upon their spring trade.

The decision to close the booms Sept. 12 means that the mills of Minneapolis will cease cutting lumber one week later, thus throwing out of employment hundreds of men.

Lost $2,000.

A dispatch from Chicago states that James L. Sprague, a patent claim agent of Minneapolis, arrived there over the Lake Shore road from Buffalo, N. Y. He got into a political argument near the Van Buren street station, and offered to bet that a statement he made could be substantiated, and at the same time pulled out a roll of bills amounting to $2,200. The bet was not taken, and he, with eight persons, entered a Parmalee bus to be driven to a down-town hotel. Just after entering the bus he discovered that his roll was gone. He ordered the driver to stop and asked the passengers to allow him to search them. They refused, whereupon he called Patrolman Beechter, who had the whole crowd taken to the Harrison street station. The money was not recovered, and it is thought that a clever pickpocket, seeing Sprague flash the roll took it while the Minneapolis man got into the bus.

Stung by Bees.

The 2-year old daughter of John Hanson, of Winona, was nearly stung to death by bees. The little child had wandered into the yard of a neighbor, where bees are kept, and began to amuse herself by poking at the hives with a stick. This greatly angered the bees, and they came out in swarms and covered the whole body of the little intruder. The child was literally one mass of stings, and the two attending physicians pulled hundreds of stings out of her body. It was at first thought that the wounds would result fatally, but the little suffer is somewhat improved, and her recovery is now hoped for. In attempting to rescue her two women from the house where the bees were kept were also badly stung in trying to save the child.

Will Race No More.

There was a fatal accident on the state fair track where horses were being speeded. It was a horse, and not a human being, however, that was the victim. Sapphire, a 4-year old runner, belonging to Michael Lynch of St. Paul, was being jogged on the track by a boy. Some horses loose in the infield came running up. Sapphire reared suddenly and launched heavily against the post, striking his head in such a position that his neek was broken and he fell to the ground dead. The colt was worth about $500, and his loss is keenly mourned by his owner, who had great expectations of him.

News in Brief.

O. Nolan, while under the influence of liquors, fell over the high embankment at the Union depot in Minneapolis and broke his back.

During the carnival parade at Minneapolis, E. L. Walsh was knocked down by a horse and his left leg broken twice.

Gus Mueller, of Rochester, committed suicide by shooting himself in the abdomen. Cause: Despondency over his health.

State Bank Examiner Kenyon has taken charge of the Manufacturers' bank, of West Duluth, and C. E. Peaslee has been appointed receiver. The failure is attributed to the bank's inability to quickly realize on its assets. Deposits are about $40,000.

About two weeks ago a stranger giving his name as Earl Wood came to Freese & Freese's livery stable, in Willmar, and rented a team on pretense of going out to set up threshing rigs. Wood not returning, the authorities were sent in search of him. The team was found in Paynesville, where he had sold it for $40. He was arrested near Duluth and brought back by Sheriff Odell. In the hearing in the municipal court bonds were fixed at $400. Not being able to furnish this, Wood was placed in the county jail to await the action of the grand juay.

D. B. Morrison, a Winona shoe dealer, has closed his doors.

Guy Daggett was overcome by gas in a well on the farm of Charles Kruger, near Dodge Center. His brother, Guy, went down to put a chain on him, and, as he tried to help start him up, he fell 15 feet further into the well. As Guy reached the top the chain broke and Mr Krueger caught hold and held for an hour before he could summon help. Both are very low, but will recover.

Archibald Gordon was arrested at Hector and taken to Redwood Falls for stealing a bicycle.

While resisting arrest at St. Paul Martin McDonough was shot by Officer O'Neill and dangerously wounded.

GREAT BRITAIN'S CHEEKINESS.

Englishmen Themselves Seem to Partially Realize It.

We English go our own way, so far as we can see, with very little regard for anybody's susceptibilities and we must suffer other powers to go theirs, interfering only when the injury becomes serious enough to require something more dignified than shrill remonstrance. The other powers suspect us at least as hotly as we suspect them and with this extra justification that, as they see quite clearly, our power reaches everywhere, our broad road is always open and though we protest that, except as regards ships, we are a feeble folk, yet whenever need arises in Europe, Asia or Africa there are the troops ready to march forward and, as a rule, execute their orders with the kind of precision that generals admire.

We are not little Englanders by any means. On the contrary, we hold that the future of the world depends greatly upon the strength of the British empire and its ability to take a leading part in ontrolling and guiding Africa and Asia; but if we are to carry out such ideas as we are now carrying out in eastern Africa we must suffer the equal powers of Europe to carry out theirs. It is folly to claim East Africa, as we are practically doing, from Alexandria to the cape, and at the same time worry about France on the Niger or Russia in northern China and Mazanderan. We are getting into a position in which we seem to our neighbors to lie around the world like the serpent of the Norse mythology, and then we are angry because they watch us jealously and try to do little enterprises on their own account.

It is like a quarrel among neighbors about foot paths, and we cannot honestly say that it is we who display either the patience or the fearlessness of the best caste, much less the tranquillity of those who are sure alike of their rights and of their power to enforce them. Fancy Great Britain on one day summoning Sikhs to garrison Suakin and on the next screaming around because a Russian ship-owning company has bought some swampy land at Che-Foo and stopped or not stopped some English owner's access to the sea.—London Spectator.

The Pearl.

The pearl is the one gem that comes to us perfect from the hands of nature, and to this its great antiquity as a gem is largely due. Precious stones whose beauty and brilliance depend on polishing and cutting would naturally be discovered and utilized later. The discovery of the diamond, for instance, probably dates within historic times. Though known earlier, it was not generally included among the gem treasures of royalty even as late as the seventh century. The modern cutting of diamonds in regular facets was invented as recently as 1456. Indeed, it is quite probable that the pearl was the first gem known and treasured by prehistoric men—since the search for food must have been the first occupation of the earliest of the race, and the shining pearl would thus have been discovered in river mussels if not in marine oysters. Certain it is that the Old Testament and the ancient written histories allude to pearls, and that remoter evidence is found in the tombs and excavated cities of still earlier eras. The Egyptians, Babylonians, and Assyrians held the pearl in an esteem verging on reverence. —Appleton's Popular Scinence Monthly.

Birds in Hot Weather.

All birds seem to enjoy the heat, provided that they can obtain water, which in England is never wanted except in the chalk downs when the ponds dry up. There the rooks wait till dusk round the troughs from which the sheep are watered, evidently suffering acutely from thirst. But pigeons will seek out the hottest slopes and angles of the roofs, and common roadside birds, such as the yellowhammers and pipits, sit out in the sun all day. Most of the insect-eating birds, except the fly-catchers, retire to the trees and bushes, and both chickens and partridges purposely seek shade. The former, if no other cover is available, will lie in the shadow of a wall, creeping close up to it as the line of shade narrows toward midday. Partridges either lie under the hedges or move into the turnip fields when, as in hot September weather, the leaves are broad enough to cover them. But our wild birds never suffer from heat like those of Australia, where the parrots and lories have been seen to drop down dead when forced to fly across the open ground in summer trouth.—Chicago Chronicle.

"THE OLD SALT DOCTOR."

Mr. Wm. C. Hart Relates an Interesting Narrative.

From the World-Herald, Omaha, Neb.

Mr. William C. Hart, favorably known among his friends and acquaintances as "The Old Salt Doctor," is probably the most familiar character in the vicinity of Twenty-fourth and Franklin streets, Omaha, Nebraska. Mr. Hart is now over 80.

An interesting history of his recovery from a common malady follows: A little over five years ago I became afflicted with a malady, the name of which I do not know. My family have been troubled the same when they arrived at my age, and they said I was on the same road and that there was no cure for me. The symptoms were, dizziness, loss of memory, and an utter prostration of the nerves. The most notable trouble was a swimming of the head, when I came in from a walk or was out standing in the sun or doing any kind of exercise at all. When I would sit down, my head would swim and everything would dance before my eyes, and I would become so dizzy that I would have to hold to a chair to keep from falling; or if I were sitting down and got up suddenly, everything would whirl before me, and I would have to hold to the chair for some little time; my memory was so poor that it was difficult for me to remember some of my best friends. This state of things continued for about a year and a half, and kept getting worse and worse; I could not remember anything, and my head was in a constant whirl; everything swam before me so that life was really miserable.

On the recommendation of some friends, I went to my druggist, Mr. Shrader, on Twenty-fourth and Clark streets, and got a box of Pink Pills for trial, and after taking a few doses I began to feel the effects and found that they were doing me good. When the first box was gone I got another and another until I had taken four boxes and I was entirely relieved. And now, although my memory is not so good as it was forty years ago, it is greatly improved, and is better than many men's memory that are much younger than I; my dizziness is entirely gone, and my nerves are strong as they were ten years ago, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did it too. I cannot speak too highly of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and have, and shall continue to recommend them to all my friends or any one else that is in need of a strengthening tonic.

The reporter interviewed Mr. Shrader, the druggist, and many of Mr. Hart's friends and acquaintances in regard to his statements, and they all told the same story as to Mr. Hart's recovery from his malady.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

DID IT HURT YOU?

A Question Often Out of Place and Unnecessary.

The old hymn in Sam Taylor's "Original Poems" beginning with "Who Ran to Help Me When I Fell?" ought to have a provisional clause added to it. The person who hastens to help a sufferer who has been shocked by a fall should not say a single word. Of course, says the Philadelphia Record, the benevolent bystander is brimful of questions: "Where are you hurt?" "Have you sprained your ankle?" and lastly the insane request to know whether you can fall down a flight of 20 steps or from a piazza ten feet above ground and not be damaged any more than if you had thrown yourself on a down pillow only a foot away! Of course you are hurt; and the nerve shock is so great that any sort of question, even if "they" shall fetch hot water, is an additional blow to the nervous system. You are suffering, perhaps, too much to speak; yet they pelt you with questions while every power of your body is endeavoring to regain self-control. You ought not to answer. You would like to scream that "it hurts" a hundred times more for being summoned to speak and to diagnose yourself. All instructions in the line of "First aid to the injured" should begin with: "Be perfectly silent when you run to lift or help a person who has fallen and is still partly dazed with the tremendous shock." Let it be for the sufferer to say: "Oh, my head!" or "Oh, my leg, or back!" He will indicate as soon as it is necessary the injured part; but meanwhile you are driving him nearly frantic by asking about it. These simple yet important directions do not seem to be impressed upon the average helpful mind. Tact, of all things, is as necessary as a knowledge of a tourniquet made from a stick and a pocket handkerchief. Hot water, of course, is required for all bruises and sprains; but let it be brought without asking. The relief to the victim of an accident in having swift and noiseless helpers about him or her—absolutely silent, yet knowing exactly what to do—is very great. Anyone who "has been there" knows it all. Yet how quickly is it forgotten when we run to lift up somebody else, and begin to pelt him with: "Where did it hurt you?" "Are you hurt?"

PURE WATER CORRODES IRON.

Use of Lime in Boilers Will Prevent Further Action.

The corrosive power of pure water on new or unscaled boilers was well illustrated in the city of Glasgow, when a new water supply was introduced from Loch Katrine, one of the purest waters in the world which are available for city consumption. The former supply had been poor and calcareous, and old boilers were much coated with lime scale. To the dismay of the users, those who had put in new boilers or new tubes found them rapidly corroding, while the old scaled and coated boilers remained as before; those, too, who had removed every possible trace of incrustation from their old boilers by mechanical or chemical means, intending thus to get, as they expected, the full benefit of the pure water, were also badly troubled by corrosion; and even the old boilers, as the scale was gradually removed by the unvarying soft and pure water from the lake, were more or less corroded when no means were taken to prevent it. It was found, however, in this case, that introducing a little lime from time to time—enough to give the boilers a slight calcareous coating—usually prevented the corrosive action of the water; then, again, in the course of time, the effect produced was that the lime, organic matter, and iron-oxide skin, united in forming a protective oxidized surface which prevented further corrosion.

The Garden South.

The South is destined to be, and is rapidly becoming, the garden of the United States. Here life is easier to live, the rigorous winters do not eat up the fruits of the toil of summer, nor are the summers so trying as many northern people have supposed. "I used to live only half the year," said a northern farmer recently settled in the south, "and I used to work all the time then. Now I work half the time and live all the year through."

Home seekers' excursion tickets will be sold over the Monon Route to nearly all points in the south at the rate of one first class fare (one way); tickets good returning on any Tuesday or Friday within 31 days from date of sale. Liberal stop-overs are allowed. These excursions start (and tickets are sold) Aug. 17, 18 and 31; Sept. 1, 14, 15; Oct. 5, 6, 19 and 20. The Blue and the Gray.

Both men and women are apt to feel a little blue, when the gray hairs begin to show. It's a very natural feeling. In the normal condition of things gray hairs belong to advanced age. They have no business whitening the head of man or woman, who has not begun to go down the slope of life. As a matter of fact, the hair turns gray regardless of age, or of life's seasons; sometimes it is whitened by sickness, but more often from lack of care. When the hair fades or turns gray there's no need to resort to hair dyes. The normal color of the hair is restored and retained by the use of

DELANO, FRIDAY, SEPT. 11, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—King's Hand Book of the United States was delivered here today. It is a nice book.

—Schools are in full blast with the usual number of students. Several from neighboring towns are in attendance.

—That old barn on the Bruggaman property, on River street that has for so long been a nuisance, was, this week, torn down.

—The street and tent preachers who have held meetings here for a couple of weeks pulled down their tent early this week and took their departure.

—The Electric Belt Show opened up at the City Hall Monday evening. The band practiced in the Council Room below. When they tooted the "electricity" could be fairly felt in the Hall.

—Notices have been posted for primary election of delegates to the County Convention, and to the Legiflatiye Convention, at the City Hall on Tuesday Sept. 22, from 7 to 8 o'clock P. M. The Village Committee for the next two years is to be selected at the same time. Turn out and help to start things to suit you.

—Mr. George, manager of the Georgia University Troupe, has just come from a trip through the copper mines of Northern Michigan. He says there is more money in that place than any other place he has struck lately. Mr. G. is quite an ardent silver man and says there are lots of silverites in Northern Michigan and in West Wisconsin, where he has been.

—The Georgia Minstrel car was switched off here Tuesday morning and the band, a fine one, paraded the streets at noon. In the evening one of their unique entertainments was given in the City Hall. Being so soon after the G. A. R. encampment and State Fair, and the prices a little above what our people were accustomed to the audience was not very large. But the entertainment was good just the same.

—Mr. John Buche, a hardware merchant, of Clifton Kansas, made us a pleasant call Saturday. He wears a Bryan button, and claims Kansas will give a rousing majority for his candidate. He says on the train of twelve cars coming to the G. A. R. Encampment, loaded mostly with women and children, were 216 votes, a vote was taken resulting in about two for McKinley to one for Bryan which was better than he expected in a crowd of the kind.

—A traveling man named Branch claims that a vote was being taken on the train on which he was coming from the city and that when the man that was taking up the vote came to him there was 41 for Bryan and 145 for McKinley with two cars more to be counted. Who are the passengers? A lot of travelling men, from selfish interests or for their employers selfish interests, for a gold standard, forms a large per centage of the passengers, on most trains and especially on Monday morning coming out of the city.

—Will free silverites go to heaven? The streets of the New Jerusalem, you know, are lined with gold and the average free coinage man would shudder at the thoughts of walking on such a pavement.—Delano Eagle.

I have heard it said; yes, even read it, many times, in an old Book, (the contents thereof have not yet, to my knowledge, been contradicted by the Eagle force) that it is easier for a camel to go through a needles eye, than for a rich man to go to heaven. Now if these two assertions; that the free silverites wouldn't, and the rich man (gold bug) can't go there, are correct, Heaven must be a very lonesome place.

M. C.

—The Georgia Minstrels got off a scorcher on the Village council Tuesday evening, at their entertainment. One of the party said "As I was comin down de street I met a run away, it was terribie. A man was thrown out of the wagon and his brains left on the ground. Dey took de man to de drug store for repairs I picked up de brains and took dem ober. I thought the man would want his brains, but he wouldn't hab 'em; wouldn't accept his own brains." "Why" was asked," "Why wouldnt the man accept his own brains?,' "He said he wanted to run for member of de city council ob Delano and he didn't need any brains."

People's Party Legislative Convention. 38th Legislative District.

A People's Party Legislative convention, 38 Legislative District, Wright and Sherburne counties, will be held at the court house in the Village of Buffalo, Thursday, Sept. 24th, 1896, for the purpose of placing in nomination four candidates for members of the Legislature.

The several election districts in Wright and Sherburne counties will be entitled to representation in said convention as follows:

One delegate at large for each election district and one candidate additional for every twenty five votes or major fraction thereof cast for S. M. Owen for Governor in 1894.

The primary election for the election of said delegates will be held in Wright county on Tuesday Sept. 22, 1896. The polls to be open at 7 o'clock p. m. and remain open until 8 o'clock p. m. Sherburne County convention; otherwise as indicated for Wright county. Primary elections to be conducted under the primary elections laws of this state. The Town and village committee must fix the places for holding the said primary election and give at least 6 days notice of the time and place of holding the same as the law requires.

County Cullings.

The Wright County Times wants Towne defeated for Congress because if McKinley don't get a majority of the electoral vote and the election goes to the House of Reprsenteatiyes Towne will help defeat him there! My, how scared Mr. French is getting.

The Eagle says Towne is a free trader; doubly so! Either the Eagle or Mr. Towne tells a falsehood. Our greatest objection to him is because he is not; but that issue dont seem to be in this campaign very largely, and if Bryan is elected there is no danger of resuming the McKinley Tariff.

Herbert Tanner has formally announced in the Eagle his departure from the Democratic party. He favors a gold standard. Why then don't he go to the National Democratic Party; not to the Republicans who favor Bimetallism as soon as they can get England to permit them to have it?

H. Tanner in yesterday's Eagle tries to make people believe Dr. Catlin and the GAZETTE are lying about him. We believe he knows better. So do the people. The communication signed "Observer" that made him so mad, we take no credit for, but can furnish him the author's name when he wants it.

Some trouble is being had in Rockford, over the payment of the doctor's bills for attending diphtheria cases. The board claims the bills are too high, and instead of paying over three hundred dollars are said to have offered to pay thirty dollars. This is too big a difference, and the doctors have engaged an attorney and commenced suit against the chairman of the board, individually. The poor laws and the quarantine laws of Wright County and of the State need simplifying. Very few such bills are settled without some trouble, under the present laws.

Among our Exchanges.

Up in Vermont the democratic candidate for goyenor was running on a gold platform. The banks up there refused to renew it and hence these taars.—Minneapolis Times.

Jesse D. Grant, the younger son of Gen. Grant and now a resident of San Diego, Cal. has joined the People's party and is advocating the free coinage of silver and gold. He is the worthy son of a worthy father who said that, had he known the act of 1873 demonetized siyer, he would never have signed the bill.—Duluth Herald.

Congressman Towne addressed a large and intelligent audience at the Opera house on Friday evening last, and spoke most eloquently for two hours and a half upon the silver question, barring twenty minutes of explanatory remarks. He spoke with his accustomed freedom of language, and painted in lurid colors the evils which our people alleged to be suffering from the demonitization of silyer, and undoubtedly made a deep impression upon many of his hearers.—Wright County Times.

The hog disease which has been carrying off whole herds of hogs about Cleveland, continues without any signs of abatement. It is estimated that not less than 500 hogs have died in Cleveland alone. McCabe, Burnes and others have lost them by the hundreds. C. J. Colin and his neighbors have also lost large numbers and are still losing them. The disease does not appear to be hog cholera but seems to be some affection of the lungs, for all that have been examined, have badly diseased lungs.—St. Peter Herald.

The Greatest Blessing to the Largest Number.

MONTIVEDIO, Minn., Sept. 8 '96.

T. J. CATLIN, Delano, Minn.

All Americans if they haye any love for American institutions and for the best government under the sun, should favor that law that will bring the greatest blessing to the largest number. How can anyone claim that the present "gold standard" will bless the farmer, the mechanic, the miner, the common laborer. We will all admit that it is favorable to the non producing class who live solely from intesests on money invested or loaned, but no one can claim that they are a majority in the United States. Out of our sixty seven millions inhabitants we have twenty two million males engaged as laborers or producers. Eleyen million of them are farmers, and they are by far the largest class engaged in any one occupation. Then certainly some laws should be enactde tending to benefit and stimulate the tillers of the soil. Then let us look at what effect demonetization of silver has on the farmer. In 1873, when silver was demonetized, it was worth $1.32 per ounce or two cents premium and wheat was worth $1.00 per bushel. Today silver bullion is worth 69 cents per ounce and wheat 40 cents per bushel. So they have kept at a parity.

But, they will say, the silyer question in the United States has nothing to do with the price of wheat. "It is regulated in London and Liverpool." Well, granting that is so, let us see if we do not contribute somewhat to stimulating and regulating that market.—You now live in London. You are dealing in wheat. You find wheat in India is worth forty cents, in rupees, and in the United States it is worth the same price, 40 cts. All agree that we, in the North produce the best quality of wheat; so, of course we will supply England with wheat—Not so. Why? You in London can come to the United States and with 70 cents you can buy one ounce of silver, take it to India, coin it into rupees, or $1.29, with that buy, at 40 cts. per bushel, 3 bushel and 9-40. or one peck of wheat. Is it not plain? To compete with India for the London market we must sell three bushels of wheat; not for 40 cents a bushel, but for the 70 cents; or at 21 cents per bushel.—Now have I lied or have I resorted to the common tactics of the goldbbugs—told the truth to prove a lie? No Sir: it is plain to every one I told the truth and have used facts to prove the truth and 20 cts a bushel is what we farmers must sell wheat for to compete with India; or raise the bullion yalue of our silver, and the only way to raise that value is to have free coinage and full legal tender silver dollars, 16 to 1; and bullion must go up to $1.29 cents an ounce.

Gets Back at Them.

We notice an item in the Star News of last week, to the effect that at the Owen meeting last week the speaker asked for a division of the house on party lines, and only 10 populist noses could be counted This is a lie from whichever source it comes, and does no good to any party as those people who were present will know it is a lie when they read it. The fact is that at the end of Mr. Owen's speech that gentlemen asked for questions and someone asked, "Who nominated Wm. J. Bryan for president?" and the answer he got was as follows: When anyone gets so particular as to split a hair in the present struggle for the right and benefit of our country they shall not be accounted as American citizens." This was all that transpired at the meeting the rest of the story must haye been in the gentleman's mind.—Becker items in Sherburne County Times.

How A Failure?

Mr. McKinley, in his letter of acceptance, persists in saying that the Wilson tariff law is a failure and must be replaced with one constructed on the "principle" of his bill of 1890.

Wherein is it a failure?

It yields, considering the depressed condition of trade, all the revenue that was expected from it. The shortage comes from the nullification of the income tax, which would have produced $30,000,000, while last year's deficiency was only $26,000,000. But with the big hole knocked in it by tax-dodging plutocrats the law yielded in the bad trade year just closed $160,000,000. This is $29,000,000 more than the McKinley law produced in its last year, and within $17,000,000 of that law's yield in 1892.—World.

Bryan And M'Kinley.

Mr. Bryan, in going West, leaves behind him in many respects a most agreeable impression. He is a bold, gallant and attractive young leader, and he says what he thinks without beating about the bush. Whether one is or is not able to agree with him in his free-silver views he cannot deny to him the courage of his convictions.

Mr. McKinley has not shown the frankness and courage that have charecterized Mr. Bryan. For months he presented a sphinx-like silence, considering what would win him the most votes. Nor are some of the forces behind McKinley such as to encourage a lover of good government. The trust we still have with us, and Mark Hanna, his chief backer, is the embodiment of the trust idea. Does it not look as if the Government, in case Mr. McKinley should be elected, would be administered by the trusts for the trusts and with the trusts?—New York World.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 4th, 1896.

The McKinleyites haven't had much to enthuse over before so they are making the most of the Vermont election by yelling themselves hoarse over what every intelligent man knows to have been a foregone conclusion. This isn't worrying the democrats even a little bit. Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, says of it: "We made no attempt to carry the state, while the republicans have spent lots of money and have exerted every energy to win. I am told that a house to house canvass was made by prominent republicans." Senator Harris, of Tenn., one of the old democratic war horses, said: "If the republicans can find any comfort in the Vermont election they are welcome to it. They will need a great deal of comfort before this campaign is over." Secretary Diffenderfer, of the silver committee, said: "The effect of the election will be to unify the south and west and middle west. The election shows that the east is making a sectional fight, and I don't know anything which could have happened that would haye made more silver votes. We had no idea of carrying Maine. We have not done anything in either state."

The democratic National Committee has decided to accede to the request of the Pennsylvania miners, and will send Senator Tillman, of S. C. upon a ten days stumping tour of the coal section. The democrats do not expect to carry Pennsylvania for Bryan, but they have excellent reasons for expecting to give the republicans some very unpleasant surprises in a number of the Congressional districts of the state.

Senator Gorman was at Democratic headquarters this week, and it is expected that from now on he will take an active part in the management of the campaign. He believes that Bryan and Sewall can be elected.

Every Alabama democrat in Washington regards Dr. Moseley's recent interview about the rosy chances of the republicans to carry that state as nothing more nor less than an attempt to get a part of Mark Hanna's big campaign fund, and one Alabamian says of it: "In view of the stringency of the money market down our way, the true blue democracy would be pleased to see Dr. Mosely pull any amount from Mr. Hanna's plethoric political purse. We rather enjoy the fun, and the money goes into circulation." As to how the state will go, Mr. Percy Clark, who took an active part in the late State campaign and who is now in Washington conferring with members of the democratic National committe, says: "I say it with a knowledge of the conditions existing that the straight Bryan and Sewall ticket unfused, will carry Alabama by 100,000 majority."

Rev. Sam Small, who has just returned from a stumping tour of the States named, said to Chairman Faulkner: "Nebraska is safe for Bryan beyond the shadow of doubt, Missouri is safe, Illinois looked so when I was there a few days ago, and Ohio is doubtful." Mr. Small was was also very emphatic in saying that "Nobody out west wants Watson." He has gone back to Illinois to take the stump.

The number of applications from clubs for membership in the National Association of Democratic Clubs has been steadily increasing, but the record was this week broken when fifty-three applications were received in a single day.

Mark Hanna's convention of bolting democrats, which met at Indianapolis this week, excited scarcely a ripple of interest at democratic headquarters, and it is not expected that its ticket will excite any more interest among the democratic voters of the country.

It was a fake convention from start to finish and it is doubtful whether a dozen of the men who participated in it will vote for the ticket they helped to nominate. They intend voting for McKinley, but have put up a counterfit democratic ticket in the hope that it may catch the votes of some democrats who cannot stomach McKinley and who migh haye voted for Bryan, thus adding to McKinley's chances to win. It would really have been more manly for the convention to have endorsed McKinley instead of putting up a dummy ticket, and the result would have been precisely the same on the 3rd of November.

Ex-Secretary Hoke Smith left Washington this week. He made a record as Secretary of the interior which has never been surpassed, and left the work of that great department in better condition than it has been for years. He also left many warm friends who wish him success in all his undertakings.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

WE DO Job Work.

READ John Lind's letter of acceptance, on the inside of this paper. Even the Globe calls it good.

"THE early bird catches the worm". Bryan delivered a speech before breakfast on one of his recent trips.

W. J. BRYAN is to give Minnesota audiences a chance to hear him before election. Look out for dates and give him an audience. He is a fine orator.

IF gold standard money is the safest why is it the moneyed men are afraid the people will vote for free coinage of both gold and silver as it used to be.

BOURKE COCHRAN refuses a Republican nomination to Congress. He evidently don't care to be in the next House. Perhaps he don't think he would be on the majority side.

THE Howard Lake Herald takes occasion to hit the "invincible David Cochran" over the head of the GAZETTE "Observer." Try again Mr. Saylor. You did't guess right.

THE press bureau, at National Democratic Headquarters according to this morning's Globe puts Minnesota down as 35,000 majority for Bryan, and expect him to carry 36 out of the 45 states.

THE Minneapolis Tribune draws the line at Page Morris and his clothes, and rises to remark that "We have it on the very strongest Pop. authority that the war was over a long while ago." We are glad to know that the Tribune has learned that fact.

THE idea of D. W. Lawler and W. D. Washburne escorting Bourke Cockran of Tamany fame on to the stage before a Minneapolis audience to orate against the candidates and the platform of the people of this great country seems absurd; but it is said to be a fact.

THE great dailies are continually telling us that "A gold standard is the thing." We have had a gold standard for twenty three years, and if people have no more confidence in it than they have now, it is about time to resume the double standard of the Constitution.

DAVID B. HILL'S friends in his district have finally aided him over a very hard place in his political road; they elected him one of the delegates to the State Convention and instructed the delegation to vote for the endorsement of the Chicago platform and its candidates Bryan and Sewall.

THE Minnesota Editoral Excursion across lake Superior was enjoyed by a few only of the active editors. This is campaign year and most of them had to stay at home and attend to business. Besides the country is on a gold basis and it is hard to scrape together the few dollars required for expenses.

THE police arrested a man in Cleveland Ohio, for speaking in the public square without a permit, as the ordinance had never been enforced and the orator was talking on free silver, it made considerable of a disturbance and after several other speakers had been arrested, and bailed out, the Mayor annovnced that hereafter people could talk on any subject from the platform in the public square. Had the populace permitted the speakers to be arrested, and made no effort to have their constitutional right, the right of free speech, would thay have been allowed to enjoy that privelege?

SOME of the gold standard papers have been abusing silverites, and claiming they were trying to make a sectional issue of this campaign. They surely are doing so themselves they are not only making it a sectional issue but haye divided parties; haye even set up our Vice President's son against his father. And when Vermont went Republican they howeled louder than a wolf, see that! when Maine went Republican as it always has, and as everybody expected it would they cry out as lustily as ever see! "Maineites" are for "Sound money!" they add that many Maineites have moved west, and they will vote with those at home. As a matter of fact some of the loudest free silver men about here are from Maine.

A Contrast.

If two men, each the possessor of $1000, move into a community and purchase homes for themselves; one buying 40 acres paying cash down a team, some cattle and hogs, all paid for in cash; the other buying 80 acres half on time, some stock, a team, paying half down and going in debt for the other half; whose credit would be best at the end of the first year? Which could buy to the best advantage? Of course all would say he that paid cash. Is it different with a nation? Is not the nation best off that has standard money enough to buy what it needs? Are not people in a better condition to get trusted who have money enough to pay for what they buy? A government that is trying to do business on paper, on a credit system, without standard money enough to pay cash when they desire to do so is surely at a disadvantage, just as much so as the farmer who has his note in the hands of all his neighbors.

Why We Want Silver.

Since we have had money in this country, it has been the law, up to 1873, that silver and gold were both standard money. So long as there was no discrimination by law against either metal, one was as good as the other for use. When Congress made a law that contacts could be made payable in gold, it discriminated against all other money. This was wrounge. And we want silver and gold to be coined at the mints, as they were previous to '73. We want a silver dollar to be worth the same as a gold dollar, because:

There is not enough gold in the country on which to do business. People cannot get hold of primary money enough to keep their debts paid; but must keep borrowing to pay up their debts. This method of borrowing to pay debts has been carried on until the government itself has been forced into doing business on the same plan; and has been selling government interest bearing bonds to raise gold to redeem greenbacks. Windom, Blaine and other eminent statesmen have admited that they thought the gold not sufficent for standard money.

We want silver because it will restore the equilibrium between prices and dollars. When our government got in debt it was on a basis of gold and silver both as standard money. It was on a basis of good prices for farm produce. We are entitled to pay our debts in the kind of money we made in. It is unfair to ask man to pay two loads of wheat, or two head of horses for a dept he contracted when one load of wheat or one horse would pay the dept, just because men with money haye taken advantage of their fellow man by passing laws makmg such a thing possible. Let us put our money on the same basis it was on when our nation made its debts, and allow the people to pay them in the amount of products they could pay them in before the money was demonetized.

Both Best.

Which do you think would be best for this country, to open the mills to the millions, or the mints to the millionaires?—Weeping Water Republican. We would prefer to have both opened. It would be better for business.

In the Right Place.

We are gratified to see by the last issue of the Eagle, that Mr. Tanner has publicly declared his political views. We knew he was on the conservative side on most questions and though we are for progress and reform; for the motto excelsior, in thought and action, we respect the honest views of every one who differs with us in opinion. Mr. Tanner declares he is not an office seeker. We did not mean to have it understood that we classed him as such. We only classed him as the tool or spokesman of the office-seekers, who went over to the Populist convention to dominate its action when they had no sympathy with the Populist cause; or even with the principles of the silver Democrats, and then had the audacity to use the so-called Populist organ to criticise the action of the convention and try to injure the prospects of the nominees. They found MEN in that convention not political tools, such as they haye been used to handle. We were right in our surmises that they would turn up in the ranks of the Republican party if the chances of office were not so few. The going over of Mr. Tanner, who does not want an office himself, and can be no longer used by the old ring proves the truth of our observation.

We should think that all honest Cleveland Democrats would be shouting for McKinley, because they are men who are satisfied with the present condition. The same class that dominated Mr. Cleveland's administration will dominate Mr. McKinley's should he be elected. As far as ability is concerned there is not much difference in the men. Mr. A. J. Wilson says in the Investor's Review, "In selecting him (McKinley) as their candidate for the Presidency the Republican party seems te us to haye gone very low down indeed, in the scale of public men. Mr. McKinley's public utterances haye never conveyed to us the idea that he was a man of ability, still less that he was a man of sincere and strong convictions. He is the product of the political machine pure and simple, and into the keeping of that machine the inhabitants of the United States appear to have committed their future beyond remedy." Our opinion of McKinley is in perfect accord with this opinion of an English editor of a gold standard organ. We think all men who believe in machine politicians and packed and salted conventions should array themselves on the McKinley side for the chances are that the people's candidate will win, if all the politicians do not act as the devil's did in the Poet's vision "make a long pull and a strong pull, and a pull altogether." But reform forces beware! Let none of the traitors enter your ranks. They bring no strength to a righteous cause; and the Populist who wanted fusion with such men should put themselves in Dogberry's place on the party records. OBSERVER.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 11th, 1896.

Bryan enthusiasm has been on tap in Washington this week. The Arkansas election started the ball by putting all the democrats in a jubilant humor, and the news which has been coming to Bryan's headquarters has all been of a pleasing nature to his supporters. The local democrats are fairly bubbling over in their enthusiasm while engaged in making preparations for the big meeting they are to hold on the 19th inst., and which is to be addressed by Mr. Bryan Unless present anticipations fail to be realized it will be the biggest political meeting ever held in Washington.

"Put up or shut up" is the gambler's argument but there are times when it is the most convincing that can possibly be advanced. Representative Mercer, secretary of the republican Congressional committee, is from Nebraska and he never tires of claiming that state for McKinley. This week Mr. C. H. Pirtle, of populist headquarters, who is also from Nebraska, sent Mr. Mercer word that he had $500 to wager that Bryan would carry Nebraska. Mr. Mercer did not accept the wager.

Senator Faulkner said of the silver victory in Arkansas: "If it has any significance, it is not that the battle is won for the democratic nominees, but as evidencing the fact that in one of the greatest Agricultural states of the Union the candidates nominated and the principles announced at Chicago meet the approval and command the support of the great agricultural and laboring classes so strongly represented in that state. It appears further that the great amount of campaign literature sent into Arkansas by the republican organization had no other effect than to stimulate to stronger efforts those who are now realizing that the great producing classes of the country must have relief from continually falling prices, resulting from the gold standard."

Representative Bankhead, of Alabama., says his state will give Bryan 75,000 majority re, gardless of any thing the populists may do and that if the populists vote with the democrats it will go much higher.

Deputy Commissioner of Pensions, Bell, was a very mad man when he found out that it had been telegraphed out of Washington that he was a recent convert to free silver and that his conversion was the result of his having become offended because President Cleveland had not promoted him. He said indignantly: "There is not a particle of truth in this story. I am not a recent convert to free silver, but have been advocating it openly and aboveboard, as everybody knows me, for years. I was in full sympathy with my party in Illinois at the time of the silver convention in that state over a year ago. Moreover, I have never been an applicant for any promotion in the Pension Buteau since I secured my now present position, nor have I expected any promotion. I am now and have been for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, without awaiting the action of any other country, for the reason that I believe it to be economically, scientifically, historically and legally right, and for the further reason that I believe it to be for the best interests of the great majority of the people of this country. I am for the free coinage of silver, and for the election of Bryan, because I believe that the best interests of the country would be subserved by his election, and the restoration of silver to the position it occupied as primary money in this country prior to 1873."

Mr. James L. Norris, assistant Treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, and president of the Jackson Democratic Association of Washington, made a firey speech before the latter organization this week, in which he said: "If the candidates named by the true and only democratic party at Chicago are to be elected we must waste no time in the states that opposed the war of 1812. There was the peace faction then, as there is the gold faction now; there was legalized state smuggling then defrauding the nation, as there is the illegal syndicate despoiling the Federal treasury now; they had Quincy's then who declared for separation of the states, 'amicably if we can, and violently if we must'; they had a British party then, as we have a Morgan-Rothschilds syndicate now, to destroy the credit of the nation that profits may accrue to the syndicate; the pulpit then thundered against the war, as it thunders against genuine patriotism today."

No utterance during the campaign has been more pleasing to the friends of Mr. Bryan than the words of Senator Teller in a speech at Morrison, Ill., which were telegraphed to Washington. Senator Teller said: "I think I know every man in public life among the Democrats who had the slightest claim to a nomination, and I say to you here now, after an acquaintance of more than seven years with Mr. Bryan, and a pretty close acquaintance with him, too, that in the whole ranks of the Democracy there was not a man better equipped and more worthy of nomination than he."

A Symbol of Value.

All money is but a symbol of a fixed value; its real value varying with the stability of the government choosing the symbol. If it is real worth that is essential to make a money standard. Why not take diamonds? You will say that they are too scarce and not divisible into dollars and dimes. Neither is gold. Gold dollars and dimes are fictitious coins.

They tell you that the silver is the best representative money. Then why not let silver represent itself? The Standard silver dollar rebresents silver; it reprepresents our trust in God; it represents the union of all the states in one; and, more than all this, it represents 100 cts of all debts public and private in the U. S.

I do not claim to be wise enough to tell just what has brought this experimental Republic down to this sputtering condition; but I do know, that the poverty which has commenced at home, has had its seed sown in the lobbies of congress.

In the days of Daniel Webster, we had national arbitration; but, as long as England has her big navy and Germany her big army, civilized man will be asking for International arbitration for the next 100 years to come.

We haye had national money ever since we have had nations; but international bimetalism and international money shoot into the futnre like the word eternity. A person can not conceive of any broader or grander subject than international arbitation to write upon; but, so long as English fleet and England's banks lie looking across the channel at the German banks and German army, great men may as well go look for the point to the North Pole as write of international arbitration or international bimetalism.

I warn all silver men to remember the parable of the laborer who came into the vineyard at the 11th hour. They are the reinforcements that can make a Waterloo.

That the American people are very hopeful, is well illustrated by a man whom I met last week. He said: "That he wished Grover Cleveland would hurry up and pay the people that money he'd borrowed for them last winter, as then he'd allowed to get a new share on his plow this fall."

COUNTRY SKETCHES

The Situation as Viewed by Rev. Thos. McCleary.

Editor Penny Press:

In my last letter from the northwest, I gave your readers some account of the country along the Soo. Since then I have traveled quite extensively along the Great Northern and have conversed with farmers, and tradesmen of different professions, and men with no visible means of support, and have made close observation, so I write with reasonably good ground when I state that in products the country is in a fairly prosperous condition, the towns have made substantial improvements, since I visited them some years ago, this is particularly noticeable of Long Prairie, Fergus Falls, Barnesville, Crookston, Argyle and Larimore. The wheat crop is not in such poor condition as represented, there are some sections where it is very poor, but others where it will go 20 bushels or more to the acre. Some sections even not cultivated because of the continued wet weather of the spring. The hail storm was not so bad as represented. The windows in Laramore were not all smashed, nor the crops all destroyed—it is true some farmers lost all, and on the big Elk Valley farm three thousand acres were destroyed, but there were four thousand acres left untouched by hail, and as I rode to and fro over Dakota and Minnesota. I saw fields waving with golden grain, that seemed to say the people shall not want for bread. I found that while farmers out of debt are getting along fairly well, those burdened with debt are discouraged and hopeless, the low prices, the high transportation, the big interest makes more than they can handle—and why go out to toil for task masters who lash them with the scourge of debt.

There are many idle men around the country, who claim to be looking for work which they cannot find, for many of them I judge are specialists, for they won't take a job unless it is in their line, so they he around the parks in the towns, and camp by fires built near railroads in the country. Some honest, willing men, cannot get employment, though the reason for this in many cases is that they are not capable. Politically the country is boiling like the Yellowstone Park, with steam noise and colors, but the white color is preyalent over the west, silver is on top. The question is argued in street and car and station, this is especially true in the far west. I believe it true that the wealthy people and the prosperous people are in for gold—while the farmers and general people want the double standard.

It seems as though the screws are being turned on those who dare to take the silver side—they are called cranks, ignoramuses, dishonest dollarites, anarchists. Many of them will lose situations unless they keep still. I tried to buy a Penny Press on the train but could not; I asked why and the newsey told me they did not sell them --They were going to if there was a demand for them. I saw the big sales of our city morning papers at the station in Grand Forks. I asked the boys for the Penny Press, but they told me they did not have it. At Livermore, Montana, I asked for the Penny Press, of the train boy. Don't carry it,"--why-- "I don't know, there is more call for it than for any other paper." I think I know said I, those who manage your, business don't want the information on silver circulated. After a moment's pause the agent said: "Perhaps that's so, but we have to sell what is sent us."

There should be fair play and the people are determined to know and all attempt to force in this campaign will reach, are those who make it, this is the most intelligent, thoughtful, clean, campaign this country has had since the war. There is a good, great leader on each side and a thinking people all over this land and a God of justice and love behind all—so let the battle of ideas go on and good will come out of it, whicheyer side wins.

Rum, Rum, Rum, from Minneapolis to Cinebar licensed and upheld (except in Dakota, where prohibition is the law, which they are trying in every way to evade) the great political issue that could come before the people yet, it goes for naught, it is untouched. Give us the whisky bill of the United States and we will start the manufacturers, employ the men, run the government without borrowing gold. Great God, when will the people arise and with thy help put down this boss devil? —Penny Press.

"Up Country Gentlemen" Called Down.

Becker, Minn., Aug. 31, 1896.

MR. DARE—Can and will you please inform the public who that up country gentleman is, mentioned in your last issue, who reported the division of the house and numbering noses, &c., at the close of Mr. Owen's address. I was there and saw no such thing, and I enquired of the janitor and he saw it not, and an audience of 200 present did not see it. We would all be glad to know that wonderful gentleman and make his acquaintance. Such home lies cause our people to doubt all statements coming from your paper.

J. H. SHEPARDSON.

The above is one of two communications received on this subject, and in reply will say that the incident referred to was related on the streets of Elk River as a fact. We believed it to be such or would not have published it. We have not been able to communicate with the party with whom it originated in time to give his reply in this issue, but will endeavor to do so next week —Elk River Star News.

Vermont And Arkansas.

Arkansas is said to have given 60,000 majority for the Democratic state ticket. This is the response of the solid South in its war against the national honor, the constitution and the laws to the voice of the solid North which Vermont spoke a few days ago in defence of the national authority and national honor. The solid South is arrayed on the side of repudiation, state sovereignty, lawless deffance of the courts, the laws and the national authority. The solid North is where it stood thirty-five years ago, arrayed in defense of the honor of the government it then sayed and of the supremacy of the constitution and the laws which it then defended against the forces of sectional treason. To every gun that the solid South fires upon the Sumpter of the national sovereignty and the national faith the solid North will reply with a cannonade of American patriotism that will sweep the forces of repudiation and anarchy into the same wide grave which thirty years ago engulfed the armies of the Southern rebellion.—Pioneer Press.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.

Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoka, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

An Ohio girl took arsenic as a freckle annoyer. She and the freckles are both gone.

Gertrude Vanderbilt brings $5,000,000 into the new Whitney family. It is evident that young Whitney can afford to take his bicycle to the repair shop whenever he wants to.

This country spends $20,000,000 annually for chewing gum, which is said to be twice as much as is spent on the churches of the country, says the Philadelphia Inquirer.

It is estimated that there are 10,000,000 bicycles in use in the world. It is the poor man who can now afford to drive a fast horse. The bicycle is a reformer. It has almost entirely done away with the crime of horse stealing.

Sir Benjamin Richardson, the distinguished English physician and medical writer, says that seven out of every ten sound and reasonable people ought to live to be 110 years old, and would if they "took care of themselves."

Statistics show that London contains 244,000 young women who are learning, or trying to learn, to play on the piano. In view of this fact, the statement that London is full of Americans eager to get home needs no further explanation.

Between January 1, of the year 1137, and January 1, 1896, over 7,000,000 persons perished in earthquakes. The greatest mortality in any one shock or series of shocks was at Yeddo, Japan, in 1703, when 191,000 persons perished in three days and nights.

Siberia is proving to be the "great west" of Russia. The great rush of peasants into the newly-opened districts is such that the great Siberian railroad is congested and cannot carry all the passengers who present themselves. Russia will soon be more than ever an exporter of food products in competition with the United States.

The report is revived that Mrs. Hetty Green proposes to endow a home for aged and superannuated actresses. The scheme is doomed to ultimate failure, for everyone knows there are no aged or superannuated actresses. They are all young and beautiful, chic and naive. Generations may come and go, but the "young, beautiful and talented actress" is with us always. She never grows old. The home will be forever tenantless if it ever materializes.

A large number of aeronauts have met death recently, and in almost every case it is announced that the fatality occurred after many years of ballooning, during which time the aeronauts sustained no accidents. This goes to show that sooner or later the danger of the profession will display itself. If the history of all aeronauts were closely studied it would probably be found that nine out of ten were killed in the practice of their trade.

Up to 20 a youth wants nine hour's sleep, and an adult should have eight. Insufficient sleep is one of the crying evils of the day. The want of proper rest and moral conditions of the nervous system, and especially the brain, produces a lamentable condition, deterioration in both body and mind and exhaustion, excitability and intellectual disorders are gradually taking the place of the love of work, general well-being and the spirit of initiative.

It now appears that Mrs. Li Hung Chang was with her husband in this country, but not even the newspapers found it out until it was too late. The wife of a great Chinaman is not supposed to share his honors. She must keep in the background. In truth, it seems that the word wife is largely tabooed among clever Chinamen. No wonder that Li Hung Chang was astonished when he saw western women with bared shoulders and gloved hands.

The extent of the work to be done in improving the navigation of the Mississippi river is disclosed in the latest annual report of Maj. Hanbury, in charge of work on the channel between the Illinois and Ohio. According to this report, 2,979 snags were removed during the year. The work of the snag boats never ends. Next year as many or more snags will have to be removed in order to insure safety in navigation. Maj. Hanbury reports that in the work of destroying the causes of which snags are the effect the snagboat crews had destroyed within the year 19,648 leaning trees.

Though the number of paper factories in the United States has decreased 20 per cent. during the last 15 years, the product of American factories during the same period has increased 40 per cent., and the present capacity of the paper mills of the United States is 300,000 tons a year. More than $100,000,000 is invested in the paper factories of the country, which number 700, and the total number of employes in them is larger than our standing army. New York and Massachusetts stand at the head of the states in respect to the amount of paper manufactured. Wood is becoming quite a popular factor in paper making.

Still more interesting than the voyage made by the two Swedish sailors in a rowboat from New York to Havre, though that was a foolhardy daring, is the voyage made by Capt. Joshua Stocumbe, of Boston. He is reported to have navigated the schooner Alameda Spray from Boston to Apia, Samoa, with no help whatever. The story sounds improbable, but if it is true Capt. Stocumbe must be one of the bravest men of the present generation. It is dangerous for a ship with her full complement of men to round the Horn, and even such a ship encounters perils innumerable in the course from Valparaiso to Honolulu.

WEST AND SOUTH.

At Paducah, Ky., and at Cobden, Ill., a slight earthquake shock was felt.

For no cause known Charles Maidment, of Richmond, Mo., killed his wife and then took his own life.

At Battle Creek, Mich., Mrs. Henry Ingham, who has fasted 164 days, has begun to take food again.

At a meeting in Milwaukee the state central committee of the gold democrats decided not to put a state ticket in the field in Wisconsin.

At a wedding feast at Bondurant, Ia., 14 persons were poisoned and some of them were in a serious condition.

In Chicago a mercantile alliance was formed by 200 manufacturers and over 30,000 retail merchants outside of Chicago to be called the National Association of Merchants and Travelers, the object being to make known the advantages of trading in Chicago and the improvement of methods of merchandising.

Colorado republicans met at Denver and nominated J. E. Hursh for governor.

At Houston, Tex., Samuel Allen, a lumber dealer, failed for $500,000.

Populists in convention in Des Moines, Ia., indorsed the democratic state ticket.

The firm of Herron, Taylor & Co., wholesale grocers in Memphis, Tenn., failed for $100,000.

In Chicago Mrs. Laura Behrent was burned to death by the explosion of a gasoline stove and her 13-months-old boy was fatally burned.

"Sound money" democrats nominated W. D. Crenshaw for congress in the Second Illinois district and N. W. Robinson in the Seventh, and in the Third Ohio district the democrats nominated John L. Brenner.

Montana republicans in convention at Helena nominated A. C. Botkin for governor.

The doors of the Mutual national bank in New Orleans were closed.

With liabilities of over $300,000 the Bank of Commerce, a state institution, closed its doors in New Orleans.

Democrats of the Fourth Wisconsin district nominated Robert Schilling for congress, and the Montana republicans nominated C. F. Goddard for congressman at large.

In Cincinnati the Franklin cotton mills were placed in the hands of a receiver, with liabilities of $163,000.

The United Society of Christian Endeavor will hold its next convention at San Francisco July 7-12, 1897.

On the Lake Shore road an express train caught fire near Goshen, Ind., and one car containing money and valuable goods was burned.

The notorious outlaw, Polk Wells, died in prison at Anamosa, Ia.

William J. Bryan left Lincoln for a month's tour of speechmaking through the south and east.

From Vermont, Pennsylvania and Ohio delegates, with their respective governors, paid their respects to Maj. McKinley at Canton, O.

In session at Pueblo the people's party of Colorado nominated Morton S. Bailey for governor.

At Paris, Ark., Charles Hamilton was hanged for the murder of an old man named McAbee in Franklin county last winter.

The National Letter Carriers' association at the annual meeting in Grand Rapids, Mich., elected J. N. Parsons, of New York, president.

At Thompson's mill near Dubuque, Ia., Mrs. William Vyverberg and her 20-year-old daughter were drowned by driving off an embankment into a swollen creek.

In Chicago Burke Cockran, of New York, spoke to a large audience in favor of "sound money," and he was particularly severe on Mr. Bryan and his theories as enunciated in speeches made by the latter.

In a quarrel Jose Perea shot and killed his sweetheart, Altagracia Polaco, at Las Vegas, N. M., and then killed himself.

Charles O'Toole, Charles McGovern and George Stevens were found dead in a miner's cabin a mile from Victor, Col. It is thought they were poisoned.

At Louisville Senator Palmer, of Illinois, and ex-Gov. Buckner, of Kentucky, were notified of their nomination by "sound money" democrats for president and vice president, respectively, of the United States. A telegram was read from President Cleveland indorsing the nominees and platform.

Cars loaded with passengers went through a bridge 30 feet into the water near Eureka, Cal., and four persons lost their lives and ten others were badly injured.

A mob lynched Ship Kinsey (colored) near Lovett, Ga., for criminally assaulting Mrs. Monroe Johnson, a young married white woman.

Congressional nominations were made as follows: Alabaama, Eighth district, T. S. Plowman (dem.). Louisiana, First district, John Fitzpatrick (dem); Second, R. C. Davey (dem.). Kentucky, Fifth district, J. B. Baskin (dem.).

Lead and oil works at Kansas City, Mo., were burned, the loss being $100,000.

At New Whatcomb, Wash., the Bennett national bank failed with liabilities of $50,000.

At Big Jim's Crossing in Oklahoma, six Indians who were attempting to rob the agency were killed by a posse.

In the wreckage of a burned train at Wellington, Ill., the charred remains of four tramps were found, and it is thought that eight others perished.

By letter Messrs. Bryan and Watson were notified of their nominations for president and vice president respectively, by the populist party.

At Knoxville, Tenn., Cullen & Newman, extensive china and glassware importers, assigned with liabilities of $200,000.

The "sound money" democrats decided to name presidential electors in Minnesota, but not a state ticket.

In Milwaukee two men and 25 horses lost their lives in a fire which partially destroyed Albert Manger's livery stable.

At Minneapoils A. F. and L. E. Kelley, a mortgage loan firm, filed an assignment with liabilities of $150,000.

In Des Moines, Ia., D. B. Lyons, a bond dealer, failed for $175,000.

Fire destroyed the Union compress in Little Rock, Ark., and 5,000 bales of cotton, the loss being $300,000.

"Dock" Panthur and "Bart" Thrasher, two notorious outlaws, were killed by deputy sheriffs near Horse Creek, Ala.

FOREIGN INTELLIGENCE.

A tornado swept over parts of Paris, doing great damage to property and killing five persons and injuring over 50 others.

Eliza Dutcher and her son, aged 11 years, were murdered in their home at Moncton, N. B., by unknown persons and the building set on fire.

At Fort Palamidi, in Greece, 15 men, mostly notorious brigands, were executed.

Leaders of the conspiracy against the Spanish government in the province of Cavito have been shot.

By order of Gen. Weyler, 51 insurgents who were confined in the Cubana fortress and Moro Castle in Havana were shot.

At Belgrade a conspiracy has been discovered to depose King Alexander of Servia.

In collision of a street railway dummy engine with a horse car at Valencia, Spain, 30 persons were injured, 19 probably fatally.

P. J. Tynan, the Irish "invincible" who was arrested at Boulogne, made a statement to the effect that the plans of the conspirators contemplated the destruction of Balmoral castle, the queen and the czar by dynamite.

From Vancouver, B. C., Li Hung Chang sailed for his home in China.

LATER NEWS.

Official returns from sixty-one out of sixty-five counties in Arkansas give Jones (dem.) 71,625, Remmel (rep) 26,410, Files (pop.) 11,280, Miller (pro.) 1,643. Jones' plurality, 45,234; Jones' majority, 33,310. The indications are that Jones' majority in the state will be considerably less than at first estimated.

Corbett and Fitzsimmons have agreed to fight for $10,000 a side within 120 days from the 15th, before the club offering the largest purse. Geo. Siler, of Chicago, was named as referee.

Harry Larroway, a railway porter, was arrested at Detroit, Mich, the 15th, for robbing the mails. He was caught in the act and 43 letters were found upon his person.

Two men and 25 horses lost their lives in a fire that partially destroyed the livery stable of Albert Manger at Milwaukee, Wis. The names of the two men who were fatally burned are not known.

Near Little Rock, Ark., the 15th, a 12-year-old Polish boy killed a 4-year old child with a club. He then dug a shallow grave, buried his little companion and fled.

The Rome correspondent of the London "Chronicle" says peace has been negotiated between Italy and Abyssinia. The Negus Menelek demanded 2,016,000 lire (about $400,000), not as ransom, but as indemnity for the cost of sustaining his prisoners.

Owing to a collapse of a gangway at Buesingen Germany, the 15th 45 persons were thrown into the Rhine; three were drowned and five were pulled out of the water in critical condition. It is feared that others are missing.

With over 100 town to hear from the Republican plurality in Maine figures up 46,425 and will probably be 50,000 when all the returns are in. The returns are complete from towns, cities and plantations in the state and from ten of the counties.

MR. LIND'S LETTER

The Democratic Nomination For Governor Accepted.

MONEY MOST IMPORTANT.

Gold Standard Chargeable With the Shrinkage of Prices—Same Rules Govern the Price of Money that Govern Other Commodities—Railroad and Other Issues.

ST. PAUL, Sept. 12.—The following is the letter of notification to Hon. John Lind of the Democratic nomination for governor of Minnesota and his letter of acceptance:

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 28.

Hon. John Lind, New Ulm, Minn.:

SIR—The Democratic state convention of Minnesota, which met at Minneapolis on the 3th day of this month, chose you as its candidate for the office of governor of Minnesota at the ensuing election, and we were appointed a committee to formally notify you of such action. We take this method of performing this honorable and pleasing duty.

We have delayed giving you this notice until the various political parties of this state have met in convention, in the hope that the Democratic tender of support would be reinforced by that of the People's party of this state. Our hope has been realized, and you are now in a position to accept the leadership of the allied forces of the friends of free silver now striving for the election of candidates, national and local, who have taken common ground in the great struggle for economic reform in progress in the United States.

The convention did not overlook the fact that you have not heretofore affiliated with the Democratic party; but in this contest party lines are and will be dirsegarded, or rather let us say, that a new alignment of the great political parties is taking place. We find many of our old and trusted leadsrs, men who in the past our party has loaded with honors, deserting us in the face of the enemy, while from city, farm and hamlet throughout the land have come recruits—men like yourself, men fresh from the people, men filled with lofty conceptions of true American manhood, who put country before party, who recognize that great reforms can only be secured through some sacrifices and who in drisegard of selfish interests and personal advancement cast their lot and link their fate with those who are doing battle for the right.

We believe the single gold standard now established in the United States and sought to be perpetuated, is an evil so great that unless abolished the masses will be reduced to degradation and grinding poverty. Behind this wicked policy loom vast aggregations of wealth, gigantic and unlawful trusts and aggressive corporations, all seeking, often by corrupt and unlawful methods, their further aggrandizement at the expense of the producer.

Already in this contest coercive measures are being resorted to prevent the will of the people being fairly expressed through the constitutional means of the ballot. Such methods pre-suppose either that the mechanic, the laborer, the farmer and the clerk have not sufficient intelligence to be allowed to vote according to their convictions, or that they have not the right to do so. Either claim being once established, government by the people is at an end.

In offering you this nomination and the support of the Democratic party of Minnesota, we cannot promise to wage an expensive campaign in your behalf; we can refer you to no well drilled and well paid corps of assistants at our command, we can, however, pledge you the manly and intelligent support of the rank and file of our party, men who are earnest because they feel they are right and who are brave because they are honest.

And because you have shown that you are able to occupy high official position without yielding to corrupting influences; because you follow your honest convictions without regard to your personal advancement; because you believe in the brotherhood of man without distinction as to nationality, religion or social position; because you are intelligent and farseeing enough to realize the needs of our people, and brave enough to advocate the people's rights, we, upon behalf of the Democratic party of the state of Minnesota, tender you the nomination of that party for governor and ask you to accept it.

JOHN P. REA,
FRANK. L. RANDALL,
E. C. GRIDLEY,
H. HIMMELMAN, JR.
THOMAS D. O'BRIEN.
Committee on Notification.

REPLY OF MR. LIND.

Accepts the Nomination Tendered Him by the Democratic Committee.

John P. Rea, Frank L. Randall, E. C. Gridley, H. Himmelman, Jr., and Thomas D. O'Brien, Members of the Notification Committee Appointed by the Democratic State Convention of Minnesota:

GENTLEMEN — Having received your communication advising me of my selection by the Democratic party of the state of Minnesota as its candidate for governor, I beg leave to submit to you my acceptance of the high honor conferred by the convention of the party. In so doing I deem it proper to state that I have also accepted the nomination of the other great party of this state—the Populist party—and that in doing so, I stated to its delegates in convention assembled that I should accept the nomination by the Democracy of the state of Minnesota, when formally advised of it, as I accepted the Populist nomination, not as a Democrat, not as Populist, nor as a Republican, but as a citizen of our great state, in hearty sympathy with aims and endeavors of the united reform forces and ready to do my share of the work in the pending struggle. This struggle is to secure the adoption in the nation of a financial policy which will tend to relieve the working and producing classes of the United States from the existing paralysis of business, the loss of profit in production, the enforced idleness of labor, and the misery brought upon our people by the gold standard, as well as to release our great state from the small clique of individuals, who, under the name and through the organization of the great Republican party in this state, have not only controlled its action, but have also in former years prostituted your party, to give aid to their schemes, to defeat the will of the people, to prevent the passage of wholesome reforms in legislation and administration, and to further the personal interests of those in control.

ISSUES OF THE CAMPAIGN.

In view of this, and as you refer to the fact that I have not heretofore been affiliated with your party, I deem it not out of place to briefly state my own convictions on the issues in this campaign. The present contest is not one of platform, but of issues. Hence, I shall not devote any time to platform discussion, except to say that in the new alignment of political forces which has taken place, and is in daily progress, there is sufficient unanimity on the vital and imminent questions, as formally expressed in the several platforms of the reform forces, to enable us to cheerfully co-operate and work together for the common good of our state and nation.

That this is not an ordinary campaign is clearly evidenced, not only by the action of your convention, but by the action of the other great party to which I have referred. No mere temporary condition of our politics would bring together such great divisions of our people, who have heretofore been opposing and contending elements in our politics, nor would so many members of the Republican party ignore the ties of party association and friendships and ally themselves with those to whom they have been opposed in the past for trivial causes. Nothing but questions of vital importance—a sense of common danger and an aroused patriotism—would make this great body of our people forget all past differences, ignore considerations of creed, nationality, party prejudices and party pride, and unite in harmonious action, both nationally and in this state.

The underlying cause of this great movement it may be difficult to express in apt words, but, in my own mind, I am clear that however it may be formulated by different individuals, or in different platforms, the conviction has forced itself upon the great mass of our people that in the appropriation of the great natural wealth of our country, and in the distribution of the increased products of human industry, caused by the employment of modern inventions and labor saving machinery, the few, and the owners of capital, have obtained more than their fair share. The farmer feels that, though his power of producing riches for others has been increased beyond comparison, his hours of toil have not shortened and the net reward for his labor is growing less from year to year. In the field of organized labor, though wages have been fairly well maintained by reason of organization, the specter of want of employment is constantly before the workman's mind. If he has children, his solicitude for their future weighs heavier upon him than his own toil. The farm laborer has not only suffered by a material reduction in wages, but he has largely ceased to look forward with either the hope or expectation of becoming the owner of a farm himself as has been the rule in the past. The demand for his service is declining, as the farmers grow less able to employ help, and he, with others unemployed, drifts to the cities and makes the conditions of obtaining employment and maintaining wages more difficult there. Such are the conditions which no candid observer can deny. The patriotic citizen, while hopeful for the speedy and peaceable solution of this problem and confident of the the American people to devise means, in accordance with the constitution and spirit of our institutions, for correcting the errors of the past and for securing a more equitable distribution of the enormous wealth which our country produces, cannot but fear the consequences if this work is long delayed, and it is this fear and solicitude which has united the people.

GOLD STANDARD TO BLAME.

I hold, and, with me, it has been a matter of conviction ever since I first entered public life, that the most potent factor in producing existing conditions, by which a larger share of the products of the soil and of human labor are taken by capital from year to year, has been the adoption of the gold standard. The attitude of capital, arrayed, as it is, solidly for its continuance only serves to strengthen me in that conviction. That this attitude of capital is the result of groundless fear, quite as much as sordid motives, I cheerfully concede, but the effect on the question is the same.

The political and industrial liberation of the populations of Western Europe and of our own country before and during the early decades of this century gave human ingenuity and energy a scope which it had never before enjoyed. Invention and labor saving machinery multiplied the results of human endeavor a thousand fold. Production increased enormously, but with the increased production came a period of lower and falling prices, affecting Europe and America alike. The cause of it was the insufficiency of the quantity of the metallic money of the world to adequately measure the increased quantity of products and to serve the extended demands of commerce. Panics, crises and failures were the order of the day between the 30s and the 50s—conditions very similar to the present. Industry was paralyzed, commerce lagging, labor idle and agriculture suffering.

With the discovery of gold in California human activity and industry were revived. The enormous production of gold entered into the monetary circulation of the world and gave prices an upward tendency. Business and every legitimate undertaking, properly conducted, afforded profit. Gain, or the reasonable expectation of it, is the magic wand which starts the idle mill, turns the furrow and gives labor work. Except as temporarily disturbed by the disastrous results of excessive speculation, induced by reckless issues of bank money, the period between 1850 and 1870 was the most prosperous, and contributed more to the advancement of civilization than any like period in the history of the world. But the continued upward tendency of prices resulting from this addition to the world's stock of money was a thorn in the side of the bondholding and income-drawing classes. While the earning capacity of capital engaged in business increased the purchasing power of fixed incomes, or of the dollar or pound, received from interest on bonds, did not grow. In other words, the conditions were such as to favor the worker rather than the drone. This was intolerable to the income-drawing classes then, as it is now. They determined on a reversal of things. This could only be accomplished by inducing governments to discontinue the use of one or other of the money metals as full and unlimited legal tender and limiting its coinage. The production of gold being the greater, that metal was attacked first. A learned Frenchman, Mr. Chevalier, wrote a large volume, urging the immediate necessity for demonetizing gold. Richard Cobden translated it into English, and wrote a preface, re-enforcing the arguments of the author. Holland, Germany and Belgium, fearing the "flood of gold," as the gold advocates now pretend to fear a flood of silver, demonetized gold. England would probably have done the same had it not been for the fact that gold was largely produced in her own colonies. A united onslaught was then made upon silver, and it was successful.

EFFECTS OF DEMONETIZATION.

The story of its demonetization has been so often told that it needs no repetition. Our country, though the largest producer, consented to the degredation of one of its important products. The demonetization of silver had the desired effect. By limiting its coinage and depriving it of its full money functions, it cut off one of the two sources for the supply of standard money, impaired the bank reserves of the commercial world, and, as a result, circumscribed credit, and brought on an era of falling prices.

The world's production is largely carried on on credit. The banks are the great arteries for conducting the world's circulating capital to the points where it may be most profitably employed. Bank facilities and improved methods of business enable us to economize the handling of money to a great extent, and by rapid transit its circulation is accelerated. Nevertheless, the fact remains as true as ever, that credit is, and of necessity always will be, limited by the extent of the bank resources. A banker who says that he can carry on his banking business without an adequate reserve is either a fool or an early client in the bankruptcy court. Jevons, the great authority on finance and a gold standard advocate because he was an Englishman, says:

"While the elasticity of credit may certainly give prices a more free fight, inflammation of credit must be checked by the well defined boundary or available capital, which consists in the last resort of the reserve of notes equivalent to gold in the banking department of the Bank of England. Prices may temporarily rise or fall independently of the quantity of gold in the country; ultimately they must be governed by this quantity. Credit gives a certain latitude without rendering prices ultimately dependent of gold." (Page 30, Investigations in Currency and Finance.) And again (page 176): "It is the aggregate of coin and gold in circulation or reserve, in short, the supply of gold as compared with the work it has to do, which determines the range of prices."

While Professor Jevons here uses the term "gold," it should be borne in mind that it was used with reference to the English system which recognizes only gold as ultimate redemption money, and that the principle is equally applicable to silver and gold or "coin" in countries having the double standard.

WHY PRICES HAVE SHRUNK.

Since the demonetization of silver in 1873, population, production and commerce have continued to grow and extend. The use for money has increased. That is, there has been more work for it to do, and the work has been extended over greater areas. If both silver and gold had been fully utilized the production of these metals would not have supplied a sufficiency of standard money to wholly maintain prices. It is safe to say, however, that with the larger basis for safe credit which the use of both would have afforded, the fall in general prices would have been slight. With silver discarded as standard money, the basis for credit has been contracted and prices have had to shrink to come within the range at which the exchange could be effected by the quantity of standard money available and the credit which it could safely maintain. A single illustration is sufficient. Our Minnesota wheat crop this year is estimated at 45,000,000 bushels. At $1 per bushel it would take twice as much money and credit to handle it as at present prices. As there is not enough coin to furnish the necessary money and to sustain the needed credit available for handling wheat at that figure, prices have had to shrink to bring them within the amount of money and credit available for handling it.

What is true of wheat is substantially true of all products. It is this shrinking process, this necessity for a larger amount of exchange and products to be expressed in a relatively smaller amount of money and credit, that causes the continued fall in prices and is responsible for the foreclosure notices and the failures which fill our papers. But, say our opponents, it is not the want of money, it is the want of confidence that makes the times hard. I grant it. But, let me ask, the lack of confidence in what? In our money? No, our money is so good that it takes two bushels of wheat to buy the silver dollar where it used to take only one. It is want of confidence in business — in production. You can safely challenge any man to point out a line of industry today that promises profit unless it enjoys a monopoly. Falling prices and prosperity cannot exist together. It is this condition of affairs that has silenced the mill, closed the shop, and turned hundreds of thousands of efficient workers into idlers and tramps. Speaking of the results of a fall in prices, Professor Marshall of Cambridge university says:

"A fall in prices lowers profits and impoverishes the manufacturer, while it increases the purchasing power of those who have fixed incomes. So, again, it enriches the creditors at the expense of the debtors; for if the money that is owing to them is repaid, this money gives them a greater purchasing power, and if they have lent it at a fixed rate of interest each payment is worth more to them than it would be if prices were high. But for the same reason that it enriches creditors and those who receive fixed incomes, it impoverishes those men of business who have borrowed capital, and it impoverishes those who have to make, as most business men have, considerable fixed money payments for rent, salaries and other matters."

The fall in prices since the demonetization of silver is nearly 50 per cent, as is shown by our statistical reports, and no one can assert, and give valid reason for his assertion, that we have yet reached the bottom. Less money and a narrower basis for credit relative to the amount of work for it to do always has and always will produce lower prices. Six years ago, on the floor of the house of representatives, I stated it as my conviction that if we ceased to utilize more silver for coinage wheat would sell for 40 cents a bushel in Minnesota. Not a dollar of new silver has been added to our coinage in three years, and 40 cent wheat is upon us.

SAME RULES GOVERN MONEY.

The same rules which govern the prices of other commodities govern the price of money. If corn is more plentiful as compared to wheat in one season than it was the previous year it will take more corn to procure a given quantity of wheat than it did before. If all products have been produced in a larger amount than has been the increase in money, it will take more of the commodities to secure the piece of money. The farmer who takes a load of product to market does so to procure money. If money has become scarcer as compared to products, he is compelled to give more of his products for the dollar, and that is what he has been doing since 1875. The gold standard advocates admit this. After the passage of the Sherman act, adding 4,500,000 ounces of silver to our circulation monthly, prices advanced almost immediately. Wheat and all agricultural products rose with the price of silver. The Hon. Jerry Rusk, secretary of agriculture, said of its effects, on page 8 of his report for 1890:

"The recent legislation looking to the restoration of the bimetallic standard of our currency, and the consequent enhancement of the value of silver, has unquestionably had much to do with the recent advance in the price of cereals. The same cause has advanced the price of wheat in Russia and India and in the same degree reduced their power of competition. English gold was formerly exchanged for cheap silver, and wheat purchased with the cheaper metal was sold in Great Britain for gold. Much of this advantage is lost by the appreciation of silver in those countries. It is reasonable, therefore, to expect much higehr prices for wheat than have been received in recent years."

President Harrison, in his message to congress in December, 1890, said:

"The enlargement of our currency by the silver bill undoubtedly gave an upward tendency to trade and had a marked effect on prices, but this natural and desired effect of silver legislation was by many attributed to the tariff act."

The fall in prices of our export products affects us nationally as it does the individual. It makes it more difficult to make both ends meet. We produce and export more cereals, meat products and cotton from year to year, but without appreciably increasing the value of the total. We exported:

LOVE LIGHTENS LABOR.

Advantages Country People Have Over Their City Brothers.

The countryman has, if he be wise enough to perceive it, good reason to count himself a luckier person altogether than he whose work is done in town. For the latter, says Black and White, unless he be exceeding well off, there are few pleasures easily obtainable in the intervals of toil. Food and sleep are excellent in their way, but they are necessities, and they are usually taken under such circumstances as to have nothing of the character of luxuries. The countryman is luckier than this. It may be that his toil is tiring and that his wage is a small one, but he labors in such a way that he always gets the fullest enjoyment out of his rest, and when he pauses to take his midday meal it is under conditions that would make a perfect holiday for the city, and to whose charm even the man accustomed to them cannot grow callous. He lies at ease among the sheaves that he has cut, and the sun, whose ardent rays made his toil the heavier, now adds to his delight. Moreover, he eats with the pleasantest of waiters to see to his comfort; it may be his wife who brings his dinner, or perhaps it is some buxom girl from the farm who is not yet his, though she will some day be, as she knows within herself, and he is not afraid to believe. Verily, his toil is hard in itself, but he must be a singularly discontented person if he do not find it light amid these surroundings and under these pleasant conditions.

Florida Truck Farmers.

There are indications of cooperation among the truck farmers of Florida. As a means of encouraging truck growing along their lines in that state the Plant system has called a meeting to consult those who wish to cultivate vegetables, to the end that the people and the railroads may mutually benefit each other in producing and marketing vegetable crops. The proposition is made by the Plant system that the growers shall meet and form themselves into an association in order that they may be effectually benefited, and it offers to furnish the best seeds that can be secured of various crops that can be grown successfully in that section at cost, without any charges for transportation.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

BURDENS REMAIN THE SAME.

It is gravely suggested that if we sell for lower prices, we buy cheaper. If debt were unknown, our people might heed such an argument, but even then the falling prices would take from the producer a larger share of his products from year to year for those burdens which are comparatively fixed. Our taxes are substantially the same as they have been heretofore—not lower. It takes nearly double the products of the farm to pay them that it did 15 or 20 years ago. So with freight and similar charges. On my father's farm in Sibley county, in this state, we have raised on an average 2,000 bushels of wheat yearly for the last 15 years. The average price of wheat in Chicago for the years 1882, 1883 and 1884 was over $1 per bushel. The average price for 1893, 1894 and 1895 was 62 cents. This year it is less. The freight rate from New Ulm during the first three years was 18 cents per hundred and 20 cents during the last three years. It took a little over 200 bushels or about one-tenth of the crop to carry it to Chicago during the first period, and 387 bushels or nearly one-fifth of the crop to transport it to the same market during the latter three years. What is true of wheat is true of all other farm products. It is this insidious drain on the farmers' earnings—taking a larger share of his products year after year for interest, for taxes, for freight, for insurance, etc., that leaves him without a surplus at the end of the season and without means to be anything but an indifferent customer of the local merchant. And still many of the latter advocate the gold standard, while self-protection, it would seem, would prompt them to favor a policy that would not kill the goose that lays the golden egg. Again, when we consider the indebtedness of our people and the fact that the gold standard and falling prices make it practically impossible to discharge it, the situation appears grave. On Jan. 1, 1890, according to the United States census report, the mortgage indebtedness of the people of this state was $197,745,989. The interest charges on it was over $15,000,000. Add to this the railroad, the municipal and the unsecured and commercial indebtedness, aggregating a much larger amount than the mortgages, and we have an interest charge on the industries and productions of the state which probably exceed $40,000,000 per annum. Is it any wonder that merchants complain of dull times and that business is slow?

FREE SILVER THE REMEDY.

For this state of affairs our opponents offer no remedy. The gentlemen who recently met at Indianapolis propose the pet scheme of the bankers for issuing bank currency. I do not believe for a moment that the American people will ever again farm out the function of issuing money to private corporations, and if congress did provide for an issue of bank currency, the increase in our circulating medium by that means would afford only temporary relief. It would not affect the prices of our great staples which are fixed by the markets of the world. Nothing but the restoration of silver to its position as standard money can affect the general level of prices throughout the commercial world. Why should it not be restored? Why should not the mints be open to silver as they are to gold? It is conceded that it was a mistake to close the mints to it. No statesman in any country has ever claimed or received credit for his participation in its demonetization. On the contrary, every legislator connected with that act has repudiated any knowledge of how or why it was passed and has apologized for his connection with it.

It is said that we cannot have free coinage of silver at its present ratio, for the reason that the silver bullion in a silver dollar is worth only 53 cents. To my mind, it is a most remarkable thing that silver bullion is worth as much as it is, measured in gold. The use for money has always been the principal use of the metals. When that use was largely taken away from silver and made to rest alone on gold, it was but natural that the metal discriminated against should fall in value as compared to the favored one. The use which an article serves constitutes its value. Two things which serve the same purpose and have the same use have the same value. Why is a coined silver dollar of the same value as a gold dollar? It is not because it is redeemable in gold. It is not redeemable in anything. It is because it does the work of the gold dollar. The silver dollar pays store bills, pays debts, pays taxes, feeds the living and buries the dead, just the same as a gold dollar. That is why it has the same value. If the Mexican or Canadian dollars could perform the same service would they not be worth as much?

It is said that if we opened our mints to the coinage of silver dollars, the silver of the world would be dumped upon us. What warrant is there for such a statement? In the European coinage, to the extent that silver is used, it is used at a higher ratio than ours. European coin could only be sent here to be coined at a loss. In India, China, Japan and most of the South American countries, all the money that the people have is silver, and it is not reasonable to suppose that these countries would or could strip themselves of their medium of exchange and send it here. If they did, how could they do business? Who would sell silver bullion at a discount when the greatest and wealthiest nation on earth stood ready to treat it the same as gold? If all the silver in the world should come here, we would only have about $56 per capita. France now has $36 per capita of silver and gold. If silver did come, would it be given to us as a gift or would it be given to us in exchange for our products? In either case, would it be an evil?

INTERNATIONAL AGREEMENT.

But, say our opponents, while we concede that silver must be restored to give us better prices and prosperity, we cannot do it alone. We must await for an international agreement. We have waited for an international agreement as long as I can remember. Will England, the great creditor nation of the world, ever consent to a system by which she will get less products for the interest and money due her? Will she not hold out for the present plan by which she gets two for one? The commission appointed by Queen Victoria to inquire into this question reported to her majesty in October, 1888, as follows.

"It must be remembered, too, that this country is largely a creditor country of debts payable in gold, and any change which entailed a rise in the price of commodities generally, that is to say, a diminition of the purchasing of gold, would be to our disadvantage."

The argument that we must wait for England is sham. It means that we must wait forever. It may be well enough for the little European countries to hesitate to take a step without the consent of the others, or of some of them, but for us to talk of international agreement when we possess the domain of the better part of a continent, is puerile. The difficulty is that our own people fail to recognize our own strength and greatness. Our great dailies persist in looking at America through English spectacles furnished by Wall street. They speak of English greatness and power, but say not a word of our own, except to urge that we are impotent to do justice to our own people.

COMPARISON OF ENERGIES.

Mulhall, the great English statistician, in an article in the June, 1895, number of The North American Review, in making comparison between this country and Europe, says: "If we would compare the energy or working power of the United States with that of other nations the following table would suffice to show at a glance:

Countries.	Hand.	Horse.	Steam.	Total.	Per Inhab.
Millions of Foot Tons Daily.
United States	6,405	55,200	67,700	129,305	1,940
Great Britain	3,210	6,100	46,800	56,100	1,470
Germany	4,290	11,500	29,900	45,580	902
France	3,380	9,600	21,000	34,580	910
Austria	3,410	9,300	9,300	22,510	560
Italy	2,570	4,060	4,800	11,390	380
Spain	1,540	5,500	3,000	10,040	590

Here we see that the United States possess almost as much energy as Great Britain, Germany and France collectively, and that the ratio falling to each American is more than what two Frenchmen or Germans have at their disposal. Moreover, the military armament which keep in forced idleness 4,000,000 men in Europe are happily unknown in the United States. It is not merely that European nations are deprived of the labor, skill and exertions of 4,000,000 men in the prime of life; they have also to set apart 1,000,000 workers of the agricultural and industrial classes to feed and clothe the standing armies and defray the cost of artillery, war vessels, etc. Thus the average of productive energy in France, Germany and England is much less than appears in the above statement. When in connection with this, we consider that we have more miles of railroad than the rest of the world; that our commerce, domestic and foreign, is greater than that of all Europe, excluding Russia, and that the shipping and commerce of our inland lakes is greater than that of the Mediterranean, is it not humiliating to an American citizen to be told that we must beg leave of Europe to do justice to our own people. I have devoted much time to this question, because I believe it the most important issue in the national campaign, and because it is the first time that the people have had an opportunity to pass upon it at the polls.

STATE ISSUES CONSIDERED.

You refer in your letter to the trusts and combinations which prey upon the people. So far as it lies in the power of state law and state legislation to destroy and prevent their unjust exactions, that power will be invoked and applied. But it must not be overlooked that conditions which promise no profit to legitimate business are prone to produce combinations and trusts in the hope that the gain which cannot be gained legitimately may be secured through the creation of a monopoly. A strict enforcement of the obligations of common carriers, fair, open and equal rates of transportation, will go far toward destroying the efficacy of trusts and combinations for the oppression of the people. Few attempts at monopoly succeed unless they control the facilities for transportation.

While the national questions are entitled to great consideration at the hands of the electors, the state issues equally merit their attention. The last legislature, in response to a well defined public sentiment, passed an act to regulate the selection and appointment of the large number of persons employed in subordinate positions in the civil service of the state. Our present governor vetoed the bill. I think it important that this question be called to the attention of the voters so that another legislature be returned that will again respond to the popular demand. I do not believe that the people of Minnesota desire that the offices created for their service should be used to bribe the electors and for the promotion of personal ambition. That public officers who are heads of departments or who share the responsibility of administration with the chief executive should be in harmony with the policy of the administration in one thing; that subordinate positions requiring special skill or training should be filled without regard to fitness by any man whose sole claim to place is that of political service, and that often of the most questionable kind, is another question. My own views on this question I can best express by stating that while in public life I was called upon to appoint nearly 300 of my constituents to office. That I always succeeded in selecting the best and fittest among the applicants is not likely. If I failed it was an error of judgment, but I never made an appointment with reference to any personal political interests. Neither did I demand any political service or solicit or receive a money contribution directly or indirectly from any of them. Their lips are not now sealed by party obligation.

THE RAILROAD QUESTION.

The railroad question demands the attention of the executive of the state and of the officers appointed by him to administer that important branch of executive responsibility. It should not be approached in a hostile spirit, however hostile the railway interests of the state may be to our political success. Both during the campaign, and if charged with the responsibility of administration, I am sure that those of our people who support me for the great office for which I have been nominated will neither advocate nor seek to enforce any measure tending to cripple any legitimate interest in the state, much less one so closely identified with the development and welfare of our great commonwealth. But, upon this subject we shall insist, as we shall in all other cases, that there shall be in this state no power higher or greater than the law and the duly constituted officers for its execution. Every railroad corporation shall have the strong arm of the law applied in good faith for its protection, but we also propose that it shall submit to its rule as well to the humblest citizen.

That transportation rates, at least on certain commodoties, are unreasonably high and higher than in our sister states less favorably situated, is a fact easily demonstrated. The Republican party in its platform in 1890 pledged itself "to secure the reduction of rates on grain, lumber and coal." How it has redeemed the promise, let the people answer. In the section of the state where I reside, on the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul and the Chicago and Northwestern companies, where I am the most familiar with the situation, rates on grain more especially, instead of having been reduced, have been advanced from 10 to 15 per cent in the last 10 years. This fact remains true, though those companies have made nominal reductions at a few points since I called public aetention to this state of affairs at Minneapolis some weeks ago. The people have a right to demand, and it is the duty of those in authority to see to it that no greater burdens are imposed upon our producers than justice and fair treatment to all interests demand. No radical action is proposed, but we intend to see to it that rates are adjusted with reference to the interests of the producer as well as the railroad magnate. That such is not now the case is best shown by the evidence of Mr. Stickney, president of the Kansas City road. On Aug. 8 last, before the interstate commerce commission, he testified: "I tell you gentlemen this scheme of rate making is what makes anarchists. It says to the farmer, 'Do as I want you to, or I'll see that you don't do anything else.' High rates are charged the farmer for shipping his grain, and then the rich grain merchants are given less cut rates."

TAXATION.

In the matter of taxation, the thoughtful citizen cannot escape the conviction that both our laws and our methods of applying them are defective. It is a subject deserving the earnest attention of our people. Under the present system, the largest share falls on property employed in production, while many forms of accumulated wealth escape entirely, and the burden generally is unequally and unjustly distributed. To remedy this evil, wise legislation must come to the aid of better methods of administration.

OUR PUBLIC LANDS.

Another question demanding the attention of the people is the preservation of the public lands to the state by the general government. The management of our swamp lands and the neglect of stare executives and state officers to guard the interests of the state and the public domain in that particular is scandalous. I will specify only one case. In 1875 the legislature passed an act granting to the Duluth and Iron Range Railroad company a grant of 6,400 acres of land per mile to aid in the construction of that road. A time limit was fixed by that and subsequent acts for the completion of the road, but it was not built within the time, nor until many years after the limit had expired. The grant was not earned. No steps were taken by the state government to secure its forfeiture. Lands have been certified from time to time in large areas to the company, though it was in default. In the selection of the lands for the grant the company was limited to lands lying in St. Louis, Lake and Cook counties. To secure enough lands to fill the immense grant within the counties named the appointment of servile tools as deputy United States surveyors was secured, who returned large areas of high and timbered uplands as swamp. No attempt to expose these frauds or to prevent their consummation has been made by any state official so far as I know, except the present state auditor. He has refused to certify further lands, but he is unable to get the question as to whether the company is entitled to any lands tested in the courts, as the attorney general refuses to bring the necessary suit for that purpose.

In conclusion, permit me to add that, much as I appreciate the confidence shown and the honor conferred upon me by the great party which you represent, I assure you that I feel and realize how keenly the responsibility which it implies—not only for the campaign, but in discharge of the high duties of the office for which I have been nominated, if elected.

I bring to your service in this campaign neither money nor great talent. I will aid you in the work before us to the best of my ability. I shall bear with fortitude and patience the calumny and slander which are always the lot of those who seek to overthrow abuses of power or place. Over the result I have little anxiety. It is not my contest. My personal success is a matter of small moment. It is not my cause or the cause of any individual that we seek to further. If elected I shall, by all constitutional means, further such reforms in state affairs, in legislation and in administration as the situation and the just expectation of the people demand. I shall do my duty as God gives me judgment to perceive it. JOHN LIND.

DIABOLIC MUSIC.

Trains on the Elevated Roads Destructive to the Nerves and Temper.

Passengers who have their nerves set on edge daily while riding on elevated roads are at a loss to account for the horrible screeching, grinding noise of the wheels, particularly when the trains are rounding curves. It is difficult to describe the noise, but it is so annoying that many people avoid riding on elevated trains whenever it is possible. This noise is not heard on any of the heavy express railroad trains, but is confined to the elevated.

Inquiry as to this nerve-destroying racket showed that employes as well as passengers were in ignorance. A reporter asked a dozen guards on the Alley "L" before he obtained anything like an intelligent answer. The first guard asked replied:

"Blamed if I know. Jest roundin' the curve, I guess."

The last man questioned gave it as his opinion that the racket was the result of carelessness in the use of the cars. He said:

"I think it is because the wheels grind on the rails, and a little oil might stop the noise. Another thing, I think the trucks become rusty, and as the train rounds the curve they produce unusual friction. Perhaps it would be dangerous to oil the track at the curve, for if the train was running at a high rate of speed there would be some danger that it might leave the track.

"It is a fact that cars on the elevated and surface street railroads are not so well cared for as those on a great railroad. While the engines on the elevated are always kept in first-class condition and the car axles are kept well oiled, not much further attention is paid to running gear. It is looked after in only a perfunctory way. I think with proper care the trains could be made to run as smoothly as on a heavier railroad."

Whatever may be the cause, there is no doubt that this peculiarly diabolical screeching is destroying the nerves and temper of thousands of people. The railroad authorities would confer another to the manifold delights of elevated travel by adopting means to suppress it.—Chicago Tribune.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

The State Fair.

The roundup for the state fair was dismal so far as attendance was concerned, on account of the rain on Friday.

Notwithstanding the ingubrious closing, financially the fair was a big success. Both in attendance and receipts it outstrips last year very handsomely. Treasurer Moffett furnishes the following statement of the receipts, which is absolutely official, save the receipts of Saturday and the railroad tickets, which are estimated:

FINANCIAL EXHIBIT.

Ticket sales, Monday	$1,501.00
Ticket sales Tuesday	5,193.58
Ticket sales Wednesday	7,175.00
Ticket sales, Thursday	17,396.59
Ticket sales, Friday	8,116.75
Ticket sales, Saturday (estimated)	1,000.00
R. R. tickets for the week (estimated)	770.00
Receipts from other sources for 1895	11,434.05
Total receipts for 1896	$52,883.57
Total receipts for 1895	49,755.88
Excess receipts 1896 over 1895	$3,083.69

This shows $41,405 cash gate receipts, which at 50 cents a ticket would make 82,810 persons passing through the gates for the week. As children are half rate, and there are many complimentary tickets in the hands of employes, exhibitors and others, it is safe to say that over 100,000 persons attended during the week.

While by this statement the receipts for 1896 over 1895 show but $3,082, there are a number of unsettled matters which will swell this sum to $5,000, perhaps considerably more. After paying all expenses, including some important building repairs, the week's business will show a net profit of some $15,000 or more.

Valuable Keepsake.

C. O. Mousso, of Minneapolis, well known as the first white male child bern in Minnesota, had a relic of the civil war to show the G. A. R. visitors last week. Mr. Mousso, having removed from Minnesota to Missouri in 1855, enlisted at the breaking out of the war, in Company B of the Second Missouri infantry. He was with the Confederate army at Vicksburg when Pemberton surrendered to Grant, and was paroled with the rest of the prisoners captured. The original parole document is in the hands of the government, but a few weeks ago Mr. Mousso received from the war department a photographed copy, signed by James William Dawes, captain of the Ninety-seventh Illinois, who was paralling official. Mr. Mousso, who removed to Minnesota in 1885, after an absence of 30 years. prizes this document very highly.

Steel Storage for Wheat.

The Marshall Milling company, at Marshall, has just completed a system of pneumatic steel fireproof storage for handling wheat. The system is quite a novelty in this part of the country, the only similar system in this section being located at Springfield. It consists of two large steel tanks there, 35 feet in height and 32 feet in diameter, and having together a capacity of 50,000 bushels. These are situated 75 and 100 feet west from the mill, and the carrying of the grain to and from the tanks is done through a 7-inch pneumatic pipe running from the tanks to the mill building, and which has a handling capacity of 500 bushels an hour, operated by fans and air currents, which blow the grain to and from the tanks. The tanks are constructed much like a huge boiler, and are necessarily air and water tight.

Attacked the Sheriff.

During exercise hour in the jail at Crookston a prisoner asked Jailer Samson for a drink. As it was handed in, Samson was seized pulled into the jail coridor and choked into insensibility. Joseph Gua, a half-breed serving a larceny sentence from East Grand Forks, escaped. A servent girl heard the scuffle, and locked the outer door in time to prevent the escape of all the prisoners.

Foot Ball.

After eight months correspondence and conferring, the football game between Minnesota and Wisconsin has been arranged and the date set for Nov. 21, at Madison. This news will set at rest all the anxiety which has been manifest during the past few months in regard to this game. The game is a fixture for the year, and the season with both Minnesota and Wisconsin will be brought to a fitting close.

News in Brief.

J. Bemie, a laborer, was killed by an Eistern Minnesota train at Nickerson.

Winona milk dealers are worked up over a cut in prices from 5 cents to 3½ cents a quart made by a firm that recently started in business there.

Luverne has a new creamery in full operation. About 1,000 cows have been pledged.

During a quarrel between Mike Brennan and P. J. Hoffman, of Duelin, Hoffman stabbed Brennan in the heart with a pocket knife killing him instantly.

P. J. Hannon, a switchman, was killed in the Great Northern yards at Minneapolis, by being crushed between the bumpers of two freight cars.

Minneapolis has been selected as a meeting place in 1897 by the Scandinavian singers of the Northwest.

The residence of C. J. Anderson, of Little Falls, was entirely destroyed by fire.

Charles Carlson, a farmer of Culdrum, had his head blown off by the accidental discharge of a shotgun he was carrying in a wagon.

Fred Carl, arrested by St. Paul authorities, turns out to be a prisoner from the reformatory at St. Cloud who had broken his parole, The prisoner will be taken back to St. Cloud, and the $50 reward offered for his capture by the officials of the reformatory will be split up among those who assisted in his arrest and identification.

In the federal court at Minneapolis O. B. Vail pleaded guilty to counterfeiting, and was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary at Stillwater and pag $100 fine.

A saw mill employe, named Dremmon, was killen by an edging that flew from a machine in the mill at Tower.

Ed Ryan, a steamboat fireman, was run over in the railway yards at Duluth. The head was completely severed from the body.

The decision of Secretary of the Interior Hoke Smith in the now famous 30 case was received by Attorney General Childs and by him transmitted to State Auditor Dunn. The state's claim to the land is not allowed and the decision of Land Commissioner Lamoreaux is sustained.

R. G. Coleman was convicted at Minneapolis of using the mails for fraudulent purposes, and was given six months in the county jail and $100 fine.

TROUBLED WITH INSOMNIA.

A Drummer Tells of a Bad Case—Why He Quit the Farm.

"Was I ever troubled with insomnia?" exclaimed the Chicago drummer, in reply to the question of an acquaintance, relates the Detroit Free Press. "Only one season, when I was about 18 years old, but that was enough. Don't care for any more of it in mine, thank you."

"Do you mean to assert that you had the insomnia at the early age of 18?" demanded the other.

"Didn't assert anything of the kind. I said I was troubled with insomnia, not that I had it. The party who had it was an old farmer for whom I was working at that time, and he had the queerest and also the most persistent and malignant case of it I ever heard of. Couldn't sleep mornings after four o'clock, and he used to get out under my window and begin splitting wood and singing like a whole camp meeting.

"No use trying to sleep after that, so I used to take the hint and get up and go to work.

"Then evenings his insomnia would come on again so he couldn't get to sleep, and to kill time he would take a lantern and go out to the barn and thrash grain or husk corn until about midnight, and of course I was expected to go along and keep my end up.

"Well, things kept on in this way until that insomnia of his came plaguey near wrecking my constitution, and then I collected my back pay and quit. That was my last experience on a farm. Keeping awake 19 hours a day, not to mention the hard work, was a trifle more than I could stand, so I decided to get out and go into some business where I wouldn't have to hang around the premises and help sit up nights with my employer's insomnia, in case he happened to have it. That's why I like traveling—my boss can have insomnia, or fits, or anything he likes, and I won't know a thing about it until I come to draw my month's salary."

MAKING SILHOUETTES.

Some Instruction in the Art of Producing These Old-Time Favorites.

Even in the enlightened days, when the art of photography has advanced so very near to perfection, there are still some old-fashioned people who cling with fondness to these silhouettes. One great thing in their favor is, that the least clever among us may with a little patience and a steady hand, find in them a pleasing recreation, and soon become adroit in their execution. But there may be some of our young readers who scarcely know what a silhouette is, and such unenlightened persons we will endeavor to instruct in the almost forgotten art. A few sheets of drawing paper, a pencil, and a lamp, are all the essentials needed to commence operations, says Happy Thoughts.

The operator first fixes a sheet of paper to the wall, by inserting a pin in each corner. Then the person whose likeness, or "silhouette," is to be taken, is seated in a chair, close to the wall, in such a position as to throw a distinct shadow of his profile (as near lifesize as possible) on the center of the paper. To secure steadiness a wine glass, or some such support, is placed between his head and the wall—for the slightest movement often causes failure. Having arranged these matters satisfactorily, the operator proceeds to sketch, with a pencil, the head and profile of the "sitter;" and this requires a steady hand and some dispatch, as it is no easy matter to sit in one position for a great length of time perfectly motionless. When the sketch is concluded, little skill will be needed to bring the task to an end. The operator has only with a sharp penknife to cut out the head in the line of the pencil mark. The center part is then thrown aside, and the other paper laid on a piece of black cloth, which throws out the features boldly, and, if sufficient care has been taken, a striking likeness will be the reward.

An Experiment to Try.

An interesting experiment in magic may be performed that will show it to be a mistake that water will find its level, says the Chicago Interior. Take a glass tube and bend it in the shape of a U. Pour it half full of pure water, and be sure that the pitcher from which you pour it will only fill the bent tube half full. That is for effect on the observer. Now take another pitcher containing pure brine, a solution of common salt, and pour it slowly into one of the arms of the tube. The water in the other arm will rise an inch or two above the level of the brine in the other, and if you continue pouring it will run over, until all the fresh water is driven out. There now, you have an illustration which can be used for a number of purposes!

Not More Destructive.

Strange to say, says the Military Gazette, the improvement in firearms has not increased the murderous results of battles. The battles which have been fought in the South American wars since 1890 show that only one out of each 79 men engaged was killed. In the Franco-German war of 1870-71, one in each 53 met death, while in the Crimean war one in each 35 of the effective force were left dead on the field.

A Singular Form of Monomania.

There is a class of people, rational enough in other respects, who are certainly monomaniacs in dosing themselves. They are constantly trying experiments upon their stomachs, their bowels, their livers and their kidneys with trashy nostrums. When these organs are really out of order, if they would only use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, they would, if not hopelessly insane, perceive its superiority.

$400 Truck Farms in Virginia.

September 1st and 15th and October 6 and 20 Home Seekers' Excursion tickets will be sold from points in the west and northwest over the Big Four Route and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. to Virginia at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. Those who have investigated the state are of one opinion, that Virginia is the best state in the Union today for farmers. Situated at the doors of the great eastern markets with cheap transportation and a perfect climate it has advantages that cannot be overcome. Small farms may be had for $10 per acre and upward according to location and improvements. For descriptive pamphlet of Virginia, list of desirable farms and excursion rates address U. L. Truitt, N. W. P. A., C. & O., Big Four Route, 234 Clark St., Chicago.

Summer Resorts on the Monon.

The Summer resorts on the Monon Route are having a "big season." West Baden and French Lick Springs are more popular than ever, and Paoli has started a new sanitarium to take the overflow. The waters of these springs have been recommended by prominent physicians as superior in their curative properties to those of Hot Springs, White Sulphur, or even the noted spas and 'bads" of Germany. West Baden indeed has been fitly called "the Carlsbad of America." Cedar Lake is prettier than ever and just as full of fish. The railroad company has a fine park there and is soon to build a new station.

"It's a cold day when I get left," remarked the putative 100-pound chunk of ice, as it vanished into a three-inch wet spot on the back stoop.—Detroit Tribune.

Very low rates will be made by the Missouri, Kansas and Texas Railway for excursions of August 18th, September 1st, 15th and 29th, to the south, for Homeseekers and Harvesters. For particulars apply to the nearest local Agent, or address James Barker, Gen. Pass. & Tkt. Agt., St. Louis, Mo.

DELANO, FRIDAY, SEPT. 18, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—John Arup says: "We have a Norwagian King hare, in Minnesota, while ago. Now we get a Swede one."

There will be a gold standard speech in the city hall, Delano, on Thursday evening, Sept. 24th., by Col. Ayme.

—Fair day, last Saturday, passed off much as usual, except most of the crowd went home earlier than usual.

—Fred Wandersee on the new road to Montrose has built him a nice new frame house and has it ready for plastering.

—Rev. Ryburg, of Northfield, will preach at the Scandinavian Mission Church here two Sundays each month for the winter.

—The Schubert Symphony Club will give an entertainmedt in the Hall under the auspices of the K. P's. Saturday evening Oct. 3.

—The rains this week have put the fields in the finest condition for plowing and farmers are improving their opportunity to turn over the soil.

—The Delano Roller Mills shiped a car load of flour to Illinois this week. Miller Johnson ain't so particular where his flour goes to. so he gets the money, and accepts silver.

—In another column we pubiesh an interesting letter from the Rev. Thomas McClarey a well known Methodist Minester of Minneapolis, to the Penny Press. It speaks for itself.

—Mr. Towne has promised to be in Delano for a speech before the campaign closes. Look out for him. Don't fail to here him on the great issue to be settled this campaign.

—John Coolen is about mooving his hardware store on to River Street. He is going to have a new building on the rear of the old Bruggaman property.

—Thanks to Mr. Freeman for fine sample of sweet corn, roasting ears. And to Mrs. Stanley for some nice tomatoes. Nothing like the good things of the land, and clever neighbors.

—Three teams passed through town Wednesday on their way toward the Cities. They claimed to have spent five weeks in search of work in the western part of the state, but had not done a days work during that time.

—Bicycle business seems to have been under a cloud the past week on account of rain and mnddy roads. Few wheels are seen in use, consequently horses are being curried up and trotted out for travling purposes.

—Read John Lind's letter of acceptance, on the inside of this paper. See what the candidate for Goyernor has to say for himself. Mr. Lind appears to be making friends among the people, wherever he goes, or where his letter goes.

—On Saturday evening, Aug. 29, some lady left a small box wrapped in paper with a two cent stamp on, with the post mistress; it being dark, Mrs. O'Hair did not notice that there was no address on the package until she came to mail it. The lady who left it should call and give the address to which she wants it sent before it goes to the dead letter office.

—A three year old girl of Gotlieb Herman's came near getting drowned one day this week. She had a basket, and was playing go to market when she accidentally backed up to a tub full of water, falling backwards into it. Gotlieb is very thankful to his neighbor Mrs. Anderson who happened to see it and rescue the little one before she drowned. It was a narrow escape.

—Night was made hideous, by the rattling of tin pans, hammering of saws, jingling of bells, pounding of drums, tooting of horns, firing of guns, etc., etc., on Wednesday evening, around the new home of Dr. J. E. Soper, to which he had just gone, from the evening train with his bride. We don't think the discordant sounds were intended as Webster defines charivari, as an insult; but only as an annoyance for the cessation of which the Doctor was willing to pay liberally. It seems as if this country had ought to have become so civilized as not to permit such a demonstration. That people ought to be allowed to get married and go to house-keeping in peace, without being obliged to treat the town. In this instance, however, the boys insist that the doctor said he didn't know what a "charivari" was. He knows now. And Bishop Dyer says it was a good one. Many of the leading citizens of the Village were seen coming home from the direction of the doctor's residence after the noise had ceated.

Republican County Convention.

The Republican County Convention was held in Buffalo Wednesday last, Henry Kreis chairman, J. A. Wharton, Secretary. The following ticket was nominated. Auditor, H. S. Swanberg; Treasuror, A. Hanaford; Sheriff, G. C. Carpenter; Register of deeds, E. M. Nagel; Judge of Probate, J. J. Wooley; Clerk of Court, C. H. Vorse; County Attorney, J. C. Tarbox; Superintendent of schools, J. F. Lee; Surveyor, G. A. Eaton; Coroner, Dr. Wakefield; Court Commissoner, S. A. Putnam; Commissioners, 1st Dist. Thomas Hudek; 3d. J. F. Lauzer; 5th. A. G. Johnson.

Representatives for 38th. Dist. Ole Mattson, G. P. Boutwell, J. M. Beldon and A. N. Dare.

Personal.

Sheriff carpenter drove over Fair Day and seen the folks.

F. F. Chancellor has returned from his thrashing trip.

Mr. Walker, of Mound City, visited with the Delano boys Tuesday.

W. C. Hawk, of Rockford, was over last Saturday seeing the Fair.

Elmer S. Babb was confined to the house a few days this week by sickness.

John Elliott, of Rockford, was in attendance at the Delano Fair last Saturday.

William Stanley who was on the sick list last week drove to town Monday.

Mrs. C. A. Connor, of St. Peter, visited Dela no relatives and friends this week.

Phil Lanway returned home today from a visit with old friends near St Michaels.

Hon. John Belden, of Montrose, was looking up the gold bugs, Fair Day, at Delano.

Elder Chaffee preached and held quarterly Conference at the M. E. church last night.

C. E. Peters, has returned from Hutchinson, and again smiles upon customers of the G. N.

Fred Farber, fresh from the harvest fields returned home Friday evening, to attend school.

Commissioner Burbee, of Rockford, interviewed the silverites here, Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. Buckley entertained her cousin Mrs. Martin and husband, the fore part of the week.

Mrs. C. E Coffin, and son, of Benson returned home Saturday, after visiting Delano friends.

Charles Ferrel drove down Saturday with his sister Mrs. Mapes and her son Warren, on business.

Mesdames Douglas, Stacy and Nichols, of Montrose drove down to quarterly conference last evening.

Mr. Isaac B. Cooper, and daughter Jesse, of Wasioja, Dodge County, visited his son, J. S. of Delano, last week.

Norman Webb and wife, of Alabama, spent a few days this week, with his sisters Mesdams Chance and Mulford, here.

Mr. Johnson, of Belle Plain, visited his son, A. E., of this place, Saturday. Mr. J. says old Scott is a free silver county.

Joseph Cambell, wife and son and Miss Anna Erickson, of Minneapolis were up Tuesday to attend the funeral of O. Erwig.

Elmer Coffin, of Minneapolis made us a very brief call while the west bound train was at the depot this morning. He was making a business trip to S. Dak.

David Thompson, of Macallister College visited his sister Mrs. E. S. Babb, over Sunday. He entertained the C. E. S. at the Presbyterian church with a report of the National meeting at Washington, D. C.

County Cullings.

The Wright County Fair at floward was about up to its usual proportions. There is altogether too little interest taken by farmers and others who might exhibit something of interest; and too much attention given to wheels of fortune, gambling devices and sport. The Delano Band attended Wednesday, and furnished some fine music. Thursday was a rainy day.

The Democratic County convention will be held at Buffalo, Wednesday, Sept. 22, for the purpose of placing in nomination a county ticket' and electing delegates to the Legislative convention. It is to be hoped that they can succeed in getting a ticket before the people that will get elected. Ordinarily the republican nomination is considered about as good as an election; but, this year so many are changing their votes for one or the other thing that democrats and people's party together stand a fair show of getting something.

The 38th Legislatiye District, composing Sherburne and Wright counties have four members of the Legislature to elect. Usnally they are expected to send republicans. This year John Lind is expected to carry the district and he can make lawsi alone, so there is a probability that some of the legislators on the silver ticket may pull through, in order to give him a chance to help the people out of the fix they have been drifting in for years. Let the Democrats and silver folks make no mistake in selecting a ticket to win.

Among our Exchanges.

To abuse the free-silver people and call them crazy men and repudiators is a great mistake of the other side. It makes votes for Bryan.—World.

So Mr. Mckinley is not going on the stump after all! Well, perhaps it is best for him. The people might ask him some very embarrassing questions about the trusts, protection, syndicate, &c.—New York World.

About $1,000,000,000 per annum is said to be spent for drink in this country, notwithstanding the fact that most of us go to bed sober every night. The Voice quotes some statistics which show that in the manufacture of this immense amount of liquor 50,179 men are employed, who receive for their labor as producers $38,996,791. If that $1,000,000,000 was spent for twenty of the necessaries of life it would give work 372,836 men and pay them $163,926,930 in wages. Unquestidnably if the amount of the drink bill could be expended in building houses, buying clothes and furnnure, and making the dinner table more attractive, few lines of business would have occasion to complain of hard times.—Pioneer Press.

The Anderson bill needs but one thing to make it a law--a majority of the votes of the people of Minnesota at the next general election. On us of the northern counties lies the task of getting that majority. Every man of us owes to his fellow men his best efforts to that end. The railroads pay yearly some $800,000 of tax. The railroads own in Minnesota some $235,000,000 worth of property. If they paid taxes on it all, as all men else must, they would pay $4,7000,000 of annual taxes. There, fellow suffers from this monstrous injustice of untaxed railroad lands, is the text. From it preach an unceasing sermon to every friend, relative and acquaintance you have in all the state from now till election day. —Aitkin Age.

Mc Cary's Politics.

"And what was this allurement, dost thou ask? A dust dug from the bowels of the earth, which being cast into the fire, came out a shining thing that fools admired and called a God?" —Pollok Course of Time.

The children of Israel, during their travels in the wilderness, became dissatisfied with the true God and so they made a golden calf to worship, and now that calf has become a full grown cow. And our country is full of frisky and waspy politicians who pretend to know more about our money systemand the single gold standard than Alexander knew about founding an empire.

If all is true that the leading Republicans say about the Democrats and silyerites, this country cannot surely prosper, being contaminated by such unworthy set of renegades. And many of the republican papers are crying out in their wrath against free coinage of silver. Some do it for filthy lucre; some because they do not know any better, and some no doubt from principle. But all this talk about Bryan and his followers being disloyal and anarchists is only making votes for Bryan. All the men in this country are not fools, and most of them will not have the newspapers dictate to them how they shall vote. The free ballot is a constitutional right to every American citizen; guaranteed to them by their forefathers and this thing of intimidation by the Press, trust and combines, is not of a free republican origin. Let men be elected to office on their merits who are willing to swear allegience to the Constitution; the flag and the laws of our country regardless of party affiliation. To be an advocate of free coinage of silver is no mark of disloyalty to his country. It would seem that with many the single gold standard has become a hobby "and when the Gods showered humanity with blessings one of the biggest in the bunch struck the man with a hobby"—gold and silyer is not redemption money,--silver stands on its own merits is coined by the government and is a legal tender, as well as gold, then why should this government discriminate against it? Many men are advocating a single gold standard, when every dollars worth of property they have is under mortgage; and perhaps they haye not rubbed two dollars together during the last three months. Perhaps it would be well to mention right here thet many laboring men have been threatened with being discharged if they did not support a gold standard and vote for McKinley. And also merchants and other men who owe large amounts to large corporations and stock jobbers haye been intimidated and their manhood has been jepordized.

Many people seem confident of Mc Kinley's election. McKinley may be all right as a man, but is naturally ambitious and wants to be president, or he never would have allowed himself to have been nominated for president on a single gold standard platform. Once he was a free silver man, but love of office and party ambition got away with him, and I suppose the people know or should know that Mark Hanna, Chairman of the Republican National committee holds McKinley's situation in his hand. Just as well vote for Mark Hanna as to vote for McKinley when Mark Hanna and that syndicate holds $18,000 of McKinley's paper. Mark Hanna says McKinley can not speak and he is as silent as a Chinese God. Some of the Republicans say Bryan is a kid and of no brains much. He invited Mr. McKinley to meet him on the platform, but Mark Hanna knew better and so he would not let him. Bryan is the first man nominated for President who dared take the stump since Lincoln and Douglas; and to say that he can match anything on the platform the Republican party dare put out, is not putting it too strong, either in oratory or sound logical talk. The trouble is they do not love him, but they fear him more than any man that has been nominated on that side for years. Now would be a good time for Mark Hanna to let McKinley tell about the tin plate industry. Gentlemen, if you have anything you can bring against Bryan's reputation, why he is not a man, true and tried, and is not worthy of the place for which he is nominated, show it up by substantial proof or forever hold your peace.

I am in favor of all parties having their rights. Let each candidate haye a fair run and a fair count, and the one that gets there let him have it in peace and the rest of us should be satisfied.

It has often been told me that when this country was under Republican rule we always had good times; and that a high protective tariff was essential to prosperity and that the McKinley tariff was nothing but a monument of prosperity to the people of this country. Let us see! The duties of the four years of the McKinley tariff was as follows:

First year, 1891, duties collected $219,592,436. Second year, 1892, $177,336,944. Third year, 1893, $208,142,670. Fourth and last, 1894, $131,807,758. And the duties collected for the year 1895, under the Wilson tariff, ending June 30, 1895, was $151,907,558. And up to June, 1896, Wilson bill the duties amounted to $161,000,000. So you see that the Wilson tariff bill during its two years of existence took, at the ports of entry, nearly as much tariff duties as did the last two years of the McKinley tariff.

The duties on Barley under the McKinley tariff was 30 cents per bushel. Under the Wilson bill it is 30 per cent advalorum. Duties on eggs under McKinley tariff, 5 cents per dozen; under Wilson tariff, 3 cents per dozen. Dnties on potatoes (Irish) McKinley tariff, 25 cents per bushel; under Wilson tariff, 15 cents per bushel. Now here are three articles of produce showing the duties on them by McKinley tariff, and Wilson or present tariff. Now for the Government to get any revenue out of these articles under the McKinley tariff they must be sold very high in this country. So high that the poor people of this country could buy but little of such produce, hence no tariff.

Now the common people of this country (or most of them) are getting tired of this everlasting quarreling over politics. What the people want is something to eat; raiment to put on; and money to pay taxes, etc. This country is big enough and has enough resources to give every man, woman and child plenty of every thing. Then you gander-shanked politicians who are lookin for office or your own aggrandizement stop playing the fool, and give the people a chance to look after their own interest. Our country is a country for the people and not for individuals We are liying in a fast age. And we read in Holy Writ that the love of money (not money itself) is the root of all evil. Men should study this money question for themselyes. If they depend upon their party leaders they will get into the fog. And one thing the people should remember we have no fifty cent silver dollars; never had, and never will have. J. H. M.

People's Party Legislative Convention. 38th Legislative District.

A People's Party Legislative convention, 38 Legislative District, Wright and Sherburne counties, will be held at the court house in the Village of Buffalo, Thursday, Sept. 24th, 1896r for the purpose of placing in nomination fou candidates for members of the Legislature.

The several election districts in Wright and Sherburne counties will be entitled to representation in said convention as follows:

One delegate at large for each election district and one candidate additional for every twenty five votes or major fraction thereof cast for S. M. Owen for Governor in 1894.

The primary election for the election of said delegates will be held in Wright county on Tuesday Sept. 22, 1896. The polls to be open at 7 o'clock p. m. and remain open until 8 o'clock p. m. Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.

Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoka, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully, O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

A FEW weeks ago Secretary Carlisle published a circular to the people saying that; "Standard silver dollars are legal tender at their nominal or face value in payment of all debts, public and private, without regard to the amount, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract." Since then the gold has gone to cover, is out of sight, and our country, on the boasted bimetallic system of the gold standard men is now really transacting a good share of its business on silver dollars, said to be worth 53 cents, and the balance of the business is done on paper. Now the Secretary is obliged once more to speak, this time he says if people bring silver to him and demand gold in exchange he will be obliged to give it to them. How long can he do this? How many days until a new issue of bonds will have to be made?

Wouldn't it really give people more confidence in their money system to be able to thrust their hands into their pockets and haul out gold or silver either knowing that one was equally as valuable as the other regardless of other countries, or that no body could stipulate against it.

Is money that can be stipulated against "honest money?" Is it "sound money?" It is, indeed "hard" money hard on the poor fellow who can't pay his debts with it.

THE NEW COUPLE.

She was new and was constructed on the latest modern plan,
But she lost her heart, like others, and, of course, 'twas lost to man;
So at last the two were married, and they started married life,
As they thought, equipped and ready, well prepared for any strife.

She was posted on his business quite as thoroughly as he:
She had studied all the details, and, as any one could see,
She could run his shop or office; and it also seemed quite clear
She could act as his bookkeeper or could serve as his cashier.

She could sell goods on commission, or could buy on thirty days;
She was sharper than most merchants in all proper business ways;
She could "take" from his dictation, and dictate to others too;
There was nothing 'round the office that she really couldn't do.

So they thought they were well armored for a life of great success,
But the outcome of their trial was a failure more or less;
They are doomed to boarding houses, and regretfully they roam,
For while they both can run the office, neither one can make a home.

THIS issue of the GAZETTE closes the eighth volumn, and next week begins the ninth year for the paper.

REPUBLICANS want Americans to manufacture their own goods. But make money for other nations! Strange.

THANKS to Calderwood & Hefron, 322, Hennepen Ave. Minneapolis for a copy of their useful little pocket manual of 1896 Politics. Send for one Price 15 cts. Nonpartisan, but useful to all.

REPUBLICAN newspnpers are trying harder and harder each issue to make their readers believe that Tariff is an issue in this campaign. They claim a higher tariff would fix things. Why don't they advocate free silver? They say no nation would have our free silver. What more effective tariff could we get?

BRYAN is to come to Duluth and make one of his flying trips, speaking a few minutes at every place he can to St. Cloud; thence to Minneapolis. He is to deliver a speech at Duluth, St. Cloud and in the Twin Cities. See him if possible. Form your own opinion of the man. Dont take all the reports you may hear for facts.

THE Duluth Herald published an object lesson: R. H. Kleinschmidt, of Helena Mont. a wealthy man, offers to make a contract secured by a forfeture of $20,000, to take $100,000 worth of silver for which he will pay $1.10 per ounce as soon as President Bryan signs a free coinage bill. This don't look like free coinage making 53 cent dollars.

NOW with gold out of circulation a premium of 47 cts on the dollar, in the near future, the arguments of the and with every prospect of its going to gold standard people, that the only way to get bimetallism is to vote for the gold standard and have faith appears about on a parity with the argument used by the old negro to his wife to cure her toothache. It is said that aged colored gentlemen said, now Hannah don't fret about yo toof, just tink it don't ache, and it will be all right. After standing that argument as long as she could Hannah took the broomstick and whacked Sambo over the sides until she broke a couple of ribs, and when he complained Hannah turned his own argument back onto him, Now Sam, just fink it don't hurt and it will be all right.

Free Silver Protection.

Gold standard organs are trying to make us believe that if we vote for the free coinage of gold and silver both as standard money, gold will all leave the country, and we will have to do business on silver; and no other nation will accept it for their products, and we will be shut out from the markets of the world, and be in a terrible fix! We don't take any stock whatever in this argument, But in case we should turn out to be wrong, and the gold standard people right, on this particular point, is it not exactly what the Republican platform agrees to give us, the highest kind of protection? Could our country have any better protection from foreign goods than to have the foreigners refuse to take our money? Haven't the Republicans rather gotten themselves into a dilemma by adopting this line of argument? Is not the plank they wish to have most prominent in their platform that of Protective Tariff? And could they make stronger protection than would be afforded by what they claim would result from the free coinage of silver? They certainly are not consistent in asking people to vote for a Chinese wall of protective tariff, while they demanded their vote for a gold standard so that they can have their money accepted in any country.

As we said before, we take no stock in the theory that free coinage of silver will drive gold out of the country. But if we did believe, as the Republicans say that it would, and we favored, with them, high protective tariff, we would vote for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, 16 to 1, expecting to manufacture all our own goods at home; even if we returned to the spinning wheel and loom in every household and dressed in the blue or butternut jeans of a hundred years ago.

It looks to us as if the leaders of the Republican party didn't believe that the free coinage of silver would prevent other nations from taking our money in exchange for their products, or they would advocate it at once.

Free silver people are not alarmed about the wonderful amount of silver to be dumped here as soon as the mints are opened, to free coinage. They can accept many millions and pay it out for debts if it becomes a drug on their hands. They can get rid of a big pile of it before, it will trouble them much.

Gold Standard.

The gold standard for some reason or another don't seem to be working well in this country at present. For more than twenty years our financial system has been based on a gold standard; and everything has been done by owners of money to actually get the country upon that system, and the more nearly the thing is accomplished the harder times grow. They tell us to hold on a little longer, and things will brighten. It seems as if more than two decades ought to suffice for a trial. It will soon, if kept on, result as did the feeding of shoepeg oats to the fellows horse. No time, for years, has been like the present. No body has confidence in our money system, and yet the Republican platform asks people to maintain a gold standard until an international agreement can be had. The very men who are working hardest to have the gold standard maintained do not have faith in its resulting, as they say, in bimetallism. They make their notes payable in gold. and Judge Elliot, in our own district has decided a lawsuit by making a judgment read, in the case of William A. Mather vs. Frederick W. Dean, for $4,000 in gold of the United States, of the present standard of weight and fineness etc. So they can collect their notes in "gold" thus completely demonetizing silver, so far as the payment of debts is concerned where the gold clause has been put in the note.

Secretary Carlisle who has recently issued a circular stating that silver standard dollars are not redeemable in anything, has since announced that in case silver dollars are brought to him and gold demanded he will have to accomodate those asking it.

We are told that in order to have bimetallism we must keep up the present gold system. They tell us one thing and they do to us another. They talk one way and act another. They say the gold standard will give us plenty of both gold and silver, and, already they have taken the gold out of circulation. You don't find gold now among your receipts. One of the leading merchants in our own town told me this week that for five weeks he had not deposited a piece of gold in the bank. It is already out of circulation. The gold standard then don't give us dollars of an equal value. It gives us gold at its highest present value, and with a tendency to rise in price as it becomes necessary to have it to pay the debts with the gold clause in.

Our local money loaners have disposed of mortgages, as far as possible, that did not contain the gold clause, so that all their funds may be in gold or in notes calling for that metal. If a gold standard is the proper kind of a standard no scare the people chance to get up ought to shake its foundation from center to circumference, as it is now disturbed. If a gold standard is the only way to have both gold and silver we ought now after twenty years to be able to have the two metals, so far as money is concerned, so agreeable with each other that anybody would as lief have one as the other, and there should be no contracts made by bankers and others discriminating in what kind of money they will take their pay.

Every dollar in the United States should be worth its face, to any man rich or poor and no law should make it possible for his debts to be paid in gold while he himself helps hoard up the yellow metal to loan to the borrower at a premium to pay his debts with.

International Agreement.

For twenty years has our country been waiting for an international agreement to be brought about on the money question. Nearly all leading countries at about that time, were, by hook or crook, brought to a gold standard system of finances. Just how it happened, don't seem exactly clear to most people; but it happened just the same. Soon committees were appointed by different nations to hold meetings to try to hit upon a plan for bimetallism. Most countries seem to agree that there is not enough gold in the world to serve for standard money alone. That silver and gold both should be used, same as it used to be. When one was above par the other could be used. But the committees failed to agree upon a plan. The people of the United States have tired waiting. The Republicans admit, in their platform, that bimetallism is desireable, and that they will try to have other nations go in with them and get it. But most of the people of our country don't believe in waiting longer, for England which has plenty of gold for her own use, to dictate to us what we shall do in the matter, and have resolved to unite, regardless of former party affiliations in trying to bring about the free coinage of both gold and silver as standard money without any contracts making one worth 100 cents while the other is worth but 53 cents. If the people in this country succeed there is every evidence that the international committees will loose their jobs. That the people of other countries will demand the restoration of bimetallism by their government; and thus the difficult problem be settled as it should be by the people themselves.

Bismarck and the International Agricultural College at Budapest, as will be seen in another place have sent word of their faith in and willingness to assist in bringing about the old state of affairs in money matters.

Patriotism.

Patriotism is the love of country. Few people but love their home and their native land. Even the most indifferent man will fight in defence of his home when assailed by an enemy. This is not the highest type of patriotism. But to him who will leave his home and his family and go to defend his native or his adopted land and its institutions from dishonor. To him that votes, intellegently, and honestly belongs no small degree of patriotism. The baliot is our weapon in this country. It is a mighty power, and can when properly used right the wrongs of the oppressed. Every man who loves his country and

"Breathes there a man with soul so so dead
Who never to himself hath said
This is my own my native land!"

should take care to assist with all his might in shaping and directing the political affairs of the country. In this free land, some become too indifferent, too careless of what is done, and how it is done; they do not take time and trouble to read up, and study for themselves, sufficiently to form an opinion on many leading questions; such people knowing their fault, feeling their inability to decide rather than risk making a mistake stay away from primary elections, and permit, others many of whom are induced to attend for sinister motives, or for personal, selfish reasons to arrange preliminaries; to formulate a platform, to nominate a ticket; and then, if they become apprised too late of the fact that things don't suit them, they either vote for the other party or remain away from the poles. Poor patriots these! They are not the stuff of which herose, indeed, are generally made. True, in case of a war which there own votes, rightly cast might help avert, they may shoulder their guns bravely, to shoot down their foes. It is better done by ballot. The tiger in his lair is a savage foe; the lion in his den is hard to face; the cock crows loudest on his own dung hill, the ignorant man who never votes, who is too indolent, or careless to instruct himself on the quesiions of the day: The questions which threaten the very freedom of his neighbors and himself, or the disruption of country; who neglects his duty as a true American citizen, though he fight equal to the bravest can never make reparition for his neglected opportunity; Every citizen of the United States owes it to himself and to his posterity, to his country and to his home.

"Be it ever so humble,

to bestir himself; to get all the information possible; and to use his own judgment in casting his ballot in times like these. A great question is before the voters of the United States now! It is not only stirring the people of this country but the world is looking on to see whether or not we will decide for a gold standard or for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver. Our votes count. Our own state is debateable ground, both parties claim it. It is possible that your vote, reader, whoever you are, may decide the question of who shall receive the electoral vote of Minnesota, and in case Minnesota's nine electors are needed by the one or the other side to gain the victory our own state and your own vote may possibly settle the question for not only the U. S. but for the world for ages to come. No one knows the result; what the outcome of this election may bring upon us, or turn aside for our good, the good of the world. Never since the days of Abe Lincoln's first election has so much responsibility hung over the heads of voters in America. Never before in the history of our state have we had a likelyhood of being the pivot on which the balance will turn. Our state has heretorore been counted safely the same way. Not so in this election.

Don't neglect your plain duty as a citizen whether native born or not, to do your best to vote right this time.

A Slap at the Dutchman.

Bismarck may be supposed to have as much idea of what is good for America as Li Hung Chang has about the foreign policy of the Kaffirs.—Duluth News Tribune.

Job Work.

A Criticism.

After reading the article: "Three Vice-Presidents," by Theodore Roosevelt, I am inclined to take a pessimistic view of things in general, and literature in particular.

It seems strange that a periodical of the dignity and standing of the Review of Reviews would publish an article devoid of the essential literary merit truth. I have read many articles from the pen of this writer that were interesting, as descriptions of places and manner of living on western ranches; but as I have never seen these places and have never met anyone that was familiar with ranch life I do not know but his descriptions of western life may be as faulty and wide of the mark as his knowledge of the Populists. Had his article appeared in one of the hireling newspapers I would not be surprised because their business at present is to color and misrepresent in every way to carry their candidate over the threatening wave of public sentiment that if left to act next November at the polls will overwhelm strong party despotism and put the government again into the hands of the common people, but that such a scurrilous artical should be presented and recommended in a first class magazine is a sign of literary degeneration. We know the editor and management of the periodical is in sympathy with the Republican party but that does not excuse the appearance of an article that misrepresents a large number of American citizens who hold different views. When I was at the National capitol to see congress in session an exgovernment clerk told me to notice the Populists in the senate. She described Senator Peffer so I would have no difficulty in locating the Populist members. She said, "O, they are just as nice looking as the others I was so surprised to see such a looking man as Peffer a Populist." She seemed to have held in common with many other eastern people of her grade of intelligence that all populists were like Josiah Allen until she saw and heard the Populist in congress. I was a little amused at her ideas of Populists. Now we have nearly the same idea from a man whose name is familiar to magazine readers and who figures in municipal reform in N. Y. City. We must class him among those that are ignorant of the facts regarding our western middle classes and the people that form our toiling masses; Had he studied or even observed these people he would find honest and fairly intelligent men in all parties and the Populist party has its proportion and a large proportion of intelligence. He might farther observe that every party or society has a cause for existing and that each at least when it is organized stands for some principal of truth. Men differ in opinion. We have different forms of government, different religions because we have no absolute proof of the truth of any form of government or religion. Men do not dispute or have different opinions on exact sciences. Hence when a man relegates to the cave dwellers or to the barbarous races, men who differ from him in politics and class their leaders as criminals or unwashed demagogues we must consider him ignorant or untruthful in either case his work can not be classed as literature. True literature will hold up a true picture of man in all conditions. Genious can show the noble struggle of man for liberty even in the poor wretch behind the barricade in the streets of Paris. The true literary man shows his knowledge of his race by his sympathy with all classes. I am sorry to see such an article in one of our Magazines and fear the time has come when our magazines give much of their space to the idle rich or to a class of inferior writers who pamper the whims of the luxurious classes. No fair minded person can read the address Mr. Bryan made to the working men of Chicago without classing him among the best thinkers of our age and nation, and this is the man Roosevelt would have us think that is leading a band of dishonest idlers and barbarians.

Bismark a Bimetallist.

DALLIS, Texas, Sept. 9.—In speech here to-night Governor Culberson read the following significant correspondence between himself and Prince Bismark on the money question:

Prince Bismark—Sir: The great question of finance is now of sepreme interest to the people of the United States. It is presented in various forms, but in a general way it may be said to be, first, whether the United States shall adopt the single gold standard, or, second whether they shall adopt bimetallism with both gold and silver as the standard, or primary money. The argument in favor of each is well known to you, but it is particularly insisted that we should adopt the policy of bimetallism because the supply of gold in the world for coinage is insufficient to meet the demand, or because such a standard will still further depress the values of all property.

Which in your judgment, is the best policy to adopt, the gold standard or bimetallism, giving your reasons? What effect, in your judgment, will the immediate adoption of bimetallism by the United States have on the cause of bimetallism in Germany and other great commercial nations.

—C. A. CULBERSON. Governor of Texas.

In reply, Prince Bismarck said:

Friedrichsruhe, Aug. 24, 1896.—Honored Sir: Your esteemed favor has been duly received. I hold that this is the very hour that would be advisable to bring about between the nations chiefly engaged in the world's commerce a mutual agreement in favor of the establisement of bimetallism, The United States are freer by far in their movements than any nation of Europe and hence if the people of the United States should find it compatable with the interests to take independent action in the direction of bimetallism, I cannot but believe that such action would exert a most salutary influence upon the consummation of international agreement.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

One of the things that "touches" us most frequently as we straggle through life, says an exchange, is the dude book agent who sold us an Art Portfolio in 200 parts on monthly payments.

The lobster factories along the Maine coast have closed for the season. Taken all together the season was not successful, on account of the numerous large gales which have visited the coast this season.

What new thing in deadly weapons will reach us next? A revolver has been invented which carries 12 cartridges in its handle, all of which can be fired in regular order by the movement of the trigger.

A society of young women has been formed in New York whose members pledge themselves not to marry into any family any members of which are addicted to strong drink. If one of those young women meets a young man with a billion dollars and a bottle, she will have the struggle of her life to keep the pledge.

The annual consumption of sugar by the people of this country is about 60 pounds for every man, woman and child. In the case of the young person much given to chocolate caramels and ice cream the consumption probably reaches 175 to 200 pounds per annum, and the sugar frequently costs the accompanying young man as much as 60 cents a pound.

There is nothing so easy to forget as the meaning of holidays. They begin as occasions for the celebration of certain events and end simply in opportunities for public enjoyment. The great mass of the people look on such days as occasions for bicycling or attending athletic meetings or simply doing nothing. The few who stick to the original idea are in the vast minority.

If parents would be a little more cautious and not leave matches where small children can play with them, there would be less frequent cause for tears, and for water in large quantities. Not a few disastrous fires and a good many deaths have occurred from this cause, and now the sport of little people has occasioned the destruction of almost an entire town—Tignish, on Prince Edward's island.

Next year will occur the centenary of that graceless piece of headgear commonly called the "stove-pipe" hat, which first came into common use in Paris in 1797. How such a stiff, ungainly head covering has managed to maintain its popularity is, indeed, singular, but as common-sense ideas in clothing seem to be getting the upper hand, it may not be long before the "stove-pipe" may be knocked into a cocked hat.

Overcrowded Japan turns eager eyes toward the vast unpeopled territory of north Australia. Though English officers predict that trouble would follow Japanese colonization in the great island, it is probable that one of the greatest exoduses of the age will shortly set in from Japan to the north Australian coast. The old world people must have room, and they will follow the precedents of all history by taking it wherever it lies open.

The practical joker is at his old tricks and gets funnier and funnier every week. He used to be content with firing rifle and pistol balls through people's heads, explaining afterward, with a merry laugh, that he did not know the weapons were loaded, but he rather outdid himself in Bridgeport, Conn., when he poured kerosene over a negro and touched a match to him. The man died in agony, but he was a most amusing spectacle while he was burning.

The unusual sight of female pall-bearers was witnessed at Port Jaris, N. J., the other afternoon at the funeral of Mrs. Helen Gillson Hissam, wife of Frank Hissam, of that place. Mrs. Hissam was a member of the Royal Templars of Temperance, in which organization she took an active part. The members of the order attended the funeral services at the Methodist church in a body, and selected six women to officiate as pall-bearers. They carried the casket to and from the hearse, the church and the grave, performing the same service heretofore allotted only to men.

Balloon experiments were made recently by the Austrian government to test whether serviceable observations could be made at a safe distance from the enemy's fire. A balloon 33 feet in horizontal and 46 in vertical diameter was sent up from a point 5,500 yards away from a battery and was kept at a height of 2,600 feet. Eighty shells, containing over 10,000 bullets, were fired at it, but only three small holes, which did not affect its working, were found when the balloon came down. The inference is drawn that in actual warfare balloons can be used to advantage at that distance.

It is an old and untrue saying—untrue like a good many treasured axioms—that the hair of a dog will cure its bite. But they have found an equally homeopathic remedy for snake bite in the bile of the snake. At least, a Florida physician says that a patient of his was stung by a rattler, and after sucking the wound and applying ammonia, he made an incision and poured the bile of a snake into it. There was no swelling of the injured part or suffering or inconvenience, and the man is well. This is useful to know, but it deprives some citizens of an earnest hope, because the old remedy for snake bites is whisky.

BLOOD IS SHED.

Five Men Killed in a Mine Riot at Leadville, Col.

Many Others Are Wounded—Miners Lay the Blame on Outside Ruffians—State Militia Sent to the Scene.

Leadville, Col., Sept. 22.—Five men lost their lives in the attacks upon the Coronado and the Emmett mines early Monday morning, four being of the attacking party and the fifth a city fireman, who was shot down while in the discharge of his duty, dying during the day. The dead are as follows: Jerry O'Keefe, foreman hose No. 2, aged 24, shot through the body; Bert Meier, 30 years, face riddled with buckshot; James Benson, aged 40, eight buckshot in abdomen; John Mahoney, bullet in abdomen; William Higgins, bullet in abdomen.

It is believed a number, variously estimated at from six to fifty, were wounded during the attack upon the barricaded miners, but they were quickly taken away and secreted, even the physicians attending them being careful to make no report of their patients. Of the besieged men, no one was injured, except one slightly wounded in the foot as he escaped from the Coronado mine over the trestle, where he was the target for a hundred guns.

Militia on the Scene.

The state militia which has for the fourth time in two years been called out to stop rioting in mining camps is arriving, and will do merely patrol duty, for there is absolutely no evidence of rioting in the entire camp. The two militia companies of Leadville, a large company from Cripple Creek and two companies from Pueblo were on hand here before darkness came on, one company patrolling the powder magazines, three at the Emmett mine and the others on duty at the armory who will doubtless assist the deputy sheriffs and police department in patrolling the camp. The first regiment from Denver, with the Chaffee light artillery and a troop of cavalry, reached Leadville at midnight. While no one can predict with certainty the outcome, the miners and mine operators who talk say that there will be no further trouble until the militia returns home.

Vigilance Committee Formed.

The miners deplore the whole matter and seem disposed to lay the blame upon outsiders, ruffians who have flocked to the scene of the trouble. The destruction of the Coronado has finally aroused the law-abiding citizens to take steps for a summary treatment of the trouble hereafter. Monday afternoon a meeting was held in the opera house and a document received 200 signatures, which is practically an agreement to stand together to protect life and property. In short, it is a vigilance committee.

COST THREE LIVES.

Result of a Railway Collision Near Connersville, Ind.

Connersville, Ind., Sept. 19.—Friday morning a little before ten o'clock a freight train on the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton railroad collided with the pay train near Longwood, about five miles west of this city. The pay train was returning to Hamilton and the freight had been ordered to take the siding at Salter's switch to let the pay train pass. The freight was too heavy for the engine to pull over the steep grade and had to be cut in two. The rear section had been safely sidetracked and the engine was returning for the remainder of the train on the siding at Longwood, when it crashed into the pay train. The two engines came together with terrific force, completely demolishing the locomotive of the pay train. The victims were as follows:

Killed—Chris Sweatman, engineer of pay train, Dayton, O.; Frank Kinsey, fireman pay train, Gallion, O.; George A. House, conductor of freight train, Indianapolis, Ind.

Injured—Clifford Hughes, Lockland, O., fireman on freight, hurt about head and internally, cannot recover; E. Wysong, Connersville, hurt about head and limbs; James Rourk, Connersville, badly bruised; John P. Scallan, assistant paymaster, Cincinnati, badly bruised; George Campbell, Hamilton, brakeman, slightly injured; Marion Brown, Piqua, O., conductor pay train, badly hurt, injured internally; Albert L. Keppler, Indianapolis, brakeman freight train, legs injured; J. J. Jansing, Cincinnati, paymaster, badly hurt about head and shoulders.

THREAT OF THE SULTAN.

Powers Must Keep Their Hands Off or He Will Kill All Christians.

Berlin, Sept 22.—A telegram from Constantinople in the Vossische Zeitung says the sultan vows that no Christian shall live in his empire if an English or any other fleet or warships attempts to force its way through the Dardanelles. Everything is in readiness, the telegram says, to start a general massacre the moment the bombardment of the Turkish forts on the Dardanelles begins. The sultan is crazed by fears of assassination or dethronement. The Vossische Zeitung implores the powers to back up the grand vizier and reduce the sultan to submission.

AN IOWA BANK FAILS.

The House of Watson & Sons at Vinton, Makes an Assignment.

Vinton, Ia., Sept. 19.—The banking house of S. H. Watson & Sons, established for 40 years, made a general assignment Friday afternoon to Mat Gaasch for the benefit of their creditors. Liabilities, $250,000; assets, $350,000. Depositors and creditors will be paid in full. The assignment will not affect other banks in the city.

Big Influx of Gold.

New York, Sept. 18.—Lazard Freres have engaged $4,000,000 gold for importation to New York. Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co. have an additional $250,000 gold on the way from Europe. The sum of $240,000 gold was deposited in the subtreasury Thursday in exchange for greenbacks. The steamships due to arrive to-day from England and Europe are expected to bring between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. This amount may be exceeded. Fully nine-tenths of it will go into the subtreasury. The total known amount of gold already arrived, now on European steamships sailing for New York, and engaged for importation is $36,385,000.

Lowered a Record.

Northport, N. Y., Sept. 22.—The bay mare Marietta, 2:09¾, and the brown mare Miss Lida, 2:10¾, owned by Henry C. Havemeyer, of New York, were driven Monday afternoon at Burr's driving park, Cammack, L. I., to beat the world's team record of 2:15¼. The track was heavy and estimated to be at least four seconds slow. On the second trial the team, without a break, covered the mile in 2:12¼.

ASK THE GOVERNMENT TO ACT.

Indignation Meetings Held in England to Protest Against Sultan's Cruelty.

London, Sept. 19.—Mass meetings to express the indignation felt against the sultan were held Friday night in Birmingham and other cities in England. Resolutions were adopted which in general terms called upon the government to take immediate and active steps to end the reign of terror in Turkey. In Bristol and elsewhere amendments to the resolutions were offered urging Great Britain to act forcibly, alone if necessary, but these amendments were defeated.

Constantinople, Sept. 17.—Turkish official circles have issued a circular in which they say they cannot understand either the blind rage of the English press against the Turkish government or the sympathy expressed for the Armenian anarchists, whose plans are merely a repetition of the bomb-throwing of the Irish Fenians and their menacing of English buildings for the purpose of compelling the British government to come to terms. The Armenian revolutionists, the statement declares, have formed an infamous coalition with nihilists and anarchists and all demolishers of society.

Since the issuing of the Hynchakish circular 3,000 Armenians have been arrested, and the exodus of Armenians continues. The Turkish officials declare that they have discovered a quantity of bombs and dynamite in the Halidjisglou quarter.

Owing to the Turkish government's communication to the embassies of the powers in regard to rumors of another Armenian outbreak here, the embassies here have deputed the foreign consuls to authorize the police to enter foreign houses when necessary and arrest Armenians throwing bombs or shooting therefrom.

It is feared in high quarters that a Mussulman movement is afoot against the sultan, and military measures on an extensive scale have been adopted.

The offer of the Turkish government to furnish the embassies with guards has been declined, the foreign officials prefering to rely upon the guards of blue jackets from the warships of the powers.

MAINE VOTES.

The State Election Results in a Victory for the Republicans.

Bangor, Me., Sept. 19.—The Whig publishes the official returns filed at the office of the secretary of state of the congressional vote in all the districts, complete, except from a few towns for which the governorship vote is taken, showing that the aggregate vote for republican congressman reached 83,809, against 34,318 for the democratic candidates, giving a republican plurality in the state of 49,491, of which Reed has 10,539; Dingley, 13,916; Milliken, 12,802, and Boutelle, 12,234.

Mr. Reed's plurality will reach 10,000, the largest he has ever received, and his friends are so elated that they tendered him a serenade. The returns show a majority of about 12,000 for Mr. Dingley for congressman from the Second district, over 10,000 for Mr. Milliken in the Third district, and practically the same for Mr. Boutelle in the Fourth district.

In the state legislature the democrats will apparently have less than a dozen of the representatives in the house, and not one in the senate.

Little Rock, Ark., Sept. 18.—Complete returns from last week's election in this state are now on file in the secretary of state's office, the delinquent counties reporting Thursday. Jones (dem.), for governor, received 91,124; Remmel (rep.), 35,836; Files (pop.) 13,989; Miller (pro.), 742. Total vote, 141,691. Jones' majority, 41,128; Jones' plurality, 55,553.

MODERATE IMPROVEMENT.

Business Continues Slowly on the Upward Move Toward Prosperity.

New York, Sept. 19.—Bradstreet, in the weekly review of trade, says:

"The moderate improvement in trade the last few weeks continues, and is emphasized by further speculative purchases of wool, renewed buying by wool manufacturers, the reduction of surplus stocks of cotton goods, increased demand for seasonable fabrics, continued confidence among manufacturers of iron and steel that there will be an early revival in demand, and improvements in request for staple goods in the South Atlantic and gulf states.

"The volume of sales of general merchandise shows a small gain over last week, and the feeling among wholesale merchants is one of more confidence in a comparatively early improvement. Unexpectedly large sales of dry goods are reported from Boston, Chicago and St. Louis, with indications they may continue throughout the month. At the more important northwestern centers larger sales of hats, shoes, hardware and drugs are reported, although the total is less than in the like portion of last year. Much of the gain at the south is due to the rapidity with which the cotton crop is being gathered and marketed. At San Francisco general business is somewhat more active, particularly exports of barley. Trade has been stimulated at leading Washington business centers, in which state rains have damaged the grain crops. Willamette Valley (Ore.) wheat raisers are selling wheat freely at current quotations.

"The total number of business failures throughout the United States this week is 315, which is seven more than last week, 97 more than in the corresponding week last year, 97 more than in the last week of 1894, 31 fewer than in the corresponding period of 1893, and not quite twice as many as in the like period of 1892."

Monks Massacred.

Madrid, Sept. 21.—A dispatch to the Imparcial, from Hong Kong says that the rebels at Cavite, Philippine islands, captured the monastery there and massacred the monks, putting them to death with knives. The dispatch adds that over 100 rebels who had been captured by Spaniards were flung into a small dungeon at Manilla. The next morning 54 of the prisoners were found dead, they having been suffocated during the night. The Spaniards, with the object of striking terror among the sympathizers of the rebels, make it a practice to execute their prisoners publicly. The men are taken out in batches and shot before the eyes of anyone who desires to witness their death.

Hill's Position.

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 19.—Senator Hill has made the following statement concerning the report that he had written to friends that he would support the Chicago ticket: "I have no desire to either affirm or deny newspaper stories and rumors regarding my position on the national ticket and other political questions. When I have anything to say I will state it over my own signature."

Trade Balance in Our Favor.

London, Sept. 21.—America's foreign trade balance is nearly five times as great as it was last year. Therefore a continued flow of gold and a consequent rise in the bank rate is inevitable. For the present, however, demand is transferred to the Bank of France, which, it is understood, is willing to meet demands, and is selling American eagles at a shade under the London quotation.

A FURIOUS STORM.

Heavy Losses Due to a Terrific Gale in Ogden, Utah.

Ogden, Utah, Sept. 19.—Ogden and vicinity have been visited by a terrific windstorm which began at about noon Friday and was still raging at midnight. There was no accompaniment of rain or hail, but the gale blew at about 60 miles an hour. Trees were blown down and plate glass fronts blown in, but no serious damage occurred until 8:30 in the evening, when a large three-story warehouse, 50x100 feet, brick, belonging to Kiesel & Co., wholesale groceries, was blown down and the contents fired by electric wires. A few minutes after the crash the entire outfit was a mass of flames and many smaller buildings were completely destroyed with it. The building was located at the foot of Twenty-fourth street on Wall avenue, near the railroad yards, and was surrounded by numerous other warehouses. The damage and loss will exceed $100,000. The Utah & Northern passenger train which leaves Ogden at 8:40 ran into an obstruction in the shape of trees and almost every pane of glass in the cars was broken out. The train returned to Ogden for repairs.

Salt Lake City, Sept. 19.—This city and vicinity caught a part of the storm which wrought havoc in Ogden, but little damage was done here beyond the blowing down of some electric wires and the uprooting of a few trees. In the south the storm was more severe and telegraph and telephone wires are nearly all down, so that little news can be obtained.

JOHN BOYD THACHER NAMED.

New York Democrats in Convention Nominate Him for Governor.

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 18.—The democratic state convention finished its work Thursday, indorsing in the resolutions adopted the Chicago platform and candidates and nominating John

JOHN BOYD THACHER.

Boyd Thacher, a gold democrat, for governor. The rest of the ticket nominated was, Judge Wilbur F. Porter, of Watertown, for lieutenant governor and Robert C. Titus for judge of court of appeals. The electors selected are: At large, Robert H. Bush, of Horsehead: Benjamin Wood, of New York, and a full set of district electors. William F. Sheehan telegraphed his resignation from the state committee.

REPORT ON PENSIONS.

Commissioner Murphy Reviews the Work of the Bureau.

Washington, Sept. 22.—Dominic L. Murphy, commissioner of pensions, has made his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, to Secretary Francis. He says:

"There were added to the rolls during the year 40,374 new pensioners, and there were restored 3,373 who had been previously dropped, a total of 43,717. During the same period the losses were 29,393 by death and 1,141 by remarriage (widows), 1,684 by legal limitation (minors), 2,552 because of failure to claim pensions for three years, and 9,323 for other causes, an aggregate of 44,093.

"The net gain over the previous year was only 154, and it may now be safely assumed that the roll from this time forth will show a marked and steady diminution, unless congress should enact still more liberal provisions than are now upon the statute books.

"The whole number of pensioners upon the roll June 30, 1896, was 970,678. The amount disbursed for pensions was $138,214,761, a decrease of $1,592,575, as compared with the previous year."

Commissioner Murphy recommends an increase to $12 per month of pensions to survivors of the Mexican war, and also recommends pensions to widows of officers and soldiers who died from causes originating in the service prior to March 4, 1861. He recommends the passage of the bill pending in congress for the codification of the pension laws.

Sovereign Grand Lodge I. O. O. F. Meets at Dallas.

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 22.—The seventy-second annual meeting of the sovereign grand lodge of the world of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows opened in Dallas Monday. Nearly 3,000 visitors were here, representing all parts of the civilized globe. The meeting will continue a week and double the present number of visitors are expected. Grand Chaplain Venable delivered prayer, and then Gov. Culberson welcomed the delegates in an address of considerable length. Mayor Frank P. Holland was sick and Hon. Barnett Gibbs represented the city in the mayor's absence. He delivered a brilliant address. Grand Sire Stebbins responded for the sovereign grand lodge of the world. The sovereign lodge went into secret session at three o'clock p. m. to read reports of the grand officers. Grand Sire Stebbins delivered his annual address. The reports of the grand secretary and the grand treasurer showed the sovereign grand lodge to be in satisfactory and progressive condition. A cash balance of nearly $29,000 was shown to be in bank.

Honor the New Battleship.

New York, Sept. 22.—Gov. Claude Matthews, ex-President Harrison and about 75 prominent citizens of Indiana went on board the United States battle ship Indiana, lying off Tompkinsville, S. I., Monday, and presented to the officers of the vessel the silver service and library that the citizens of Indiana have provided for the craft named in honor of the state they represent. Gov. Matthews made the presentation speech, to which, on behalf of Capt. Evans and the officers and men of the Indiana, Assistant Secretary of the Navy McAdoo responded. Remarks were also made by Gen. Harrison.

Russian Fleet Under Orders.

Sebastopol, Sept. 22.—A portion of the Russian Black sea fleet, consisting of four ironclads, three gunboats and several torpedo boats, is cruising off Otchakoff, at the mouth of the Dneiper, under orders on receipt of a telegram from the Russian ambassador at Constantinople to join the admiral, leaving here with the remainder of the fleet and going direct to the Bosphorus. The whole fleet has been placed on a war footing and has embarked three battalions of infantry and troops. The south of Russia has also been placed on a war footing.

THE ORGAN.

Its Presence in an Indian's Home an Evidence of Aristocracy.

When traveling over the Crow Creek and Lower Brule reservations, adjacent to this city, it is no uncommon sight, says the Minneapolis Journal, to see elegant and costly organs occupying positions in log houses whose exterior present anything but a cheerful or prosperous appearance. Yet these Indians are fairly prosperous, and having during the past few months received considerable money from the government, have expended it for such articles as meet their fancy. In addition to fine furniture, carriages and carpets, many of them have purchased organs. Indian families that have invested their surplus wealth in organs are the envy of all their neighbors until the envious ones can themselves purchase instruments, and then harmony is restored in the Indian settlements.

Sometimes the Indians, in their desire to live as their white neighbors do, assume obligations which they are unable to meet. Such was the case with John Barry, a Sioux who lives north of this city near the big bend of the Missouri river. Barry and his family wanted an organ badly, and after considerable negotiating prevailed upon an agent to sell them an $80 instrument upon payment of five dollars—all the money they had—the remaining $75 to be paid at a certain date. The amount became due a short time ago. The money not being forthcoming, the agent secured the services of Sheriff Jordan, of this city, and together they proceeded to the home of the Indian, took possession of the organ and carted it to town. Barry and his family have now lost caste with their brethren who are fortunate enough to own organs, and are again looked upon simply as ordinary Indians.

A DOG'S BIG EXTERNAL JAG.

Washed with Whisky to Kill Fleas He Forgets His Troubles.

There is an uptown family which boasts the ownership of a royally bred shepherd dog. The royally bred shepherd dog, in his turn, boasts the possession of a colony of fleas of appalling number, and, to judge from the dog's behavior, surprising industry, says the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

At the beginning of the summer Mr. Dog was clipped, partially as a concession to the heat, but more particularly as a concession to the fleas, which were making things interesting, not only for the dog, but for the occupants of the household. The clipping process did not, however, have any effect at all on them, and it was determined by the lady of the house to resort to heroic measures.

Accordingly the dog was well rubbed with whisky and afterwards washed with carbolic soap. Before the soap stage was reached, however, the canine didn't care what became of him, for the whisky, soaking in through his hide, had made him the proud possessor of a large and well developed jag.

From the frisky stage he passed to the wabbly stage, and from the wabbly to the comatose, and when it was all over, his washing at least, he was totally indifferent as to whether school kept or not.

For several hours after his whisky shampoo he was very much in his cups, and, even after he had slept off his drunk, he held to the ethics of alcoholism by exhibiting an unusual fondness for ice water. How he managed to sport a brown taste when he had derived the jag from spirits externally applied passeth the understanding, but to all appearances he did.

CAUGHT UP WITH THE HERD.

Southern Railway Conductor's Apt Retort to an Impatient Passenger.

Southern railroads have a reputation for slow travel, and in some cases it is well merited. A western traveling man, says Harper's Round Table, making a trip on these lines suffered a great deal of annoyance from this particular failing, but up to the time of the following incident he had enjoyed himself immensely guying the conductors, trainmen or any person having to do with the roads about their rapid transit. He was traveling one afternoon on an exceptionally slow train, which came to a stop every now and then without any apparent cause. After expressing himself very audibly to the passengers, he resigned himself to the inevitable and dozed off into short naps, which were interrupted by the sundry jerks of the train, at which he complained. The passengers showed their annoyance at these complaints by angry looks. The last apology had been that the cattle obstructed the track. The train had started again and proceeded about ten minutes when it halted with a jerk. Up walked the impatient traveler and petulantly remarked: "Dear, dear! I suppose, conductor, this worse than slow train has struck another herd of cattle." "Struck another one! Not much," replied the conductor. "We've simply caught up again with the first herd we ran into; that's all." The traveler subsided and the conductor was left in peace.

An Unexpected Answer.

On a recent Sunday night a minister was preaching in Belfast, when a young man in the congregation, getting weary of the sermon, looked repeatedly at his watch. Just as he was in the act of examining his timepiece for the fourth or fifth time, the pastor, with great earnestness, was urging the truth upon the conscience of his hearers. "Young man," said he, "how is it with you?" Whereupon the young man with the gold repeater bawled out, in the hearing of nearly the whole congregation: "A quarter past eight." As may be supposed, the gravity of the assembly was very much disturbed by the occurrence.

BRYAN AT ASHEVILLE.

The Democratic Candidate Makes a Strong Speech.

His Effective Attacks on the Secretary of the Treasury are Keenly Relished by the Assembled Multitude of North Carolina Farmers.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., Sept. 17.—A most hearty welcome was given to Mr. Bryan yesterday by the farmers who had gathered here in thousands to listen to an address by the democratic candidate for the presidency.

Mr. Bryan was driven to the Battery Park hotel, where he and members of the democratic organizations were given an elaborate dinner by the manager. The party was then driven to a platform in a valley between the great hills which have helped to make this place so interesting.

The candidate was introduced to the immense audience by Hon. Locke Craig. He said:

I have a reason for coming to North Carolina which is personal aside from my interest in the electoral vote of this state. It was the state of North Carolina which at Chicago before I became a candidate, before my own state had taken any formal part in presenting my name—it was the state of North Carolina which by resolution decided to give me the unanimous vote of their delegation in that national convention. I appreciate the honor which they were willing to do me and therefore it gives me great pleasure to come among these people whom they represented and give what assistance I can, if any assistance be needed, to secure the electoral vote of this state for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1.

I am glad the canvass of this state opens in this county, which was the home of one of the grandest public men given to this nation, not alone by North Carolina, but the entire country, Senator Vance. He was a man whom I delighted to honor and I am glad I stand among his neighbors and friends advocating the same cause he so eloquently advocated and I cannot more than impress upon your memories the words he so often spoke. Among the last of his public speeches was one upon the money question. Let me read you a few words from it: "The great fight is on. The power of money and its allies throughout the world have entered into this conspiracy to perpetuate the greatest crime of this or any other age, to overthrow one-half of the world's money and thereby double their own wealth by enhancing the value of the other half, which is in their hands. The money changers are polluting the temple of our liberties. To your tents, O Israel." He foresaw the struggle in which we are now engaged. He realized its magnitude when many others did not. Those words came from him as words of command: "To your tents, O Israel." And the command was heeded by the democratic party and they engaged first in a warfare with the party to rescue that party and the party name from the hands of those who were using it to advance the interest, not of democracy, but of plutocracy.

It was a great contest. I venture the assertion that never before in the history of this country did any party have such a contest within its ranks as that which ended at Chicago. The democratic idea has been that the party is but the instrument of those who compose it, and derives its power from the will of the voters who number themselves as members of that party. Yet it is often the case that the party machinery or bosses have more to do with shaping the policy and making the nomination than the voters themselves. I am proud to be the nominee of a convention which represented no machine or bosses, but the unpurchased suffrages of the voters of this country.

A few months ago the most sanguine democrat did not believe that success this fall was more than possible. The most sanguine democrats felt that four years of gold standard administration had destroyed almost the possibility of success. But the voters of the democratic party determined to make one final fight, and determined that if die the party must it should at least maintain the honor of those who believe in the right of the people to govern themselves. The result is just what it always is if people lay aside expediency and seek to do their duty and accept the consequences.

In trying to do right the democratic party won a possibility of success which it never could have hoped for if it had consulted expediency. They told us we must not disturb the harmony of the party. Every time we made speeches in favor of the free coinage of silver we were told that we were disturbing the harmony of the party. And if we spoke emphatically they tried to read us out of the party. They called us everything and tried to make us pledge ourselves to abide the decision at Chicago before we could go into the convention. I, for one, told them whenever they would bring a pledge that the gold standard democrats would take it would be time enough to ask free coinage democrats to make pledges. I stated in answer to an inquiry that I would not support for president a man who would, in the presidential chair, continue the present financial policy and mortgage the United States to English bondholders. I said it because I meant it. I may be wrong in my judgment, because none of us are infallible, but my judgment is the only judgment that controls my conduct.

Now, when the secretary of the treasury denounced me as a populist and said I had said I would not support the nominee, I replied that I did not expect him to support the nominee, if he were a free silver man. The time came when he was put to the test and the only difference between him and me was that I was candid enough to tell the people I would follow my conscience and he tried to control a convention and then bolted when he failed to do it. I have sent him no letter begging his support. The highest compliment he can pay me is to oppose, because then the world will know the secretary of the treasury whom I appoint, if I am elected, will be as different from him as I can find. I do not dispute the right of any democrat to vote against the Chicago ticket, if he thinks its success will imperil the country, but what I ask is that these men who have been pretending to be democrats shall now, when the democratic party has been rescued from the people's despoilers leave the name and not attempt to take that name with them into disgrace. They call themselves democrats. No true democrat ever nominated one ticket for the purpose of voting for another.

We have this contest to meet and we are prepared to meet it. We have a cause that appeals to the intellect of those who think and to the hearts of those who feel, and we are willing to place that cause in opposition to the cause which merely appeals to the pocketbook. One gentleman suggested not long ago that sentiment was on the side of free silver and said a number of poems had been written on our side and pointed to the fact that they don't write poems in favor of the gold standard. I would like to see a poem written in defense of a government of syndicates by syndicates and for syndicates. The only word which will rhyme with syndicate is hate.

The restoration of bimetallism is demanded on behalf of those who are the strength of every nation and the gold standard is desired by those who profit most as business is paralyzed and the masses impoverished. The best evidence that the gold standard is not good is found in the fact that no party has ever indorsed it in the United States. A little group of assistant republicans declared so but no party ever did so. The republican party did not declare the gold standard was a good thing. There were those in that convention who had been trying for years to fasten the gold standard upon the American people, but the republican platform did not declare the gold standard good, but pledged the party to get rid of it. But instead of trying to get rid of it now the republican party said we are going to get rid of it as soon as foreign nations take more pity on us than the republican party was willing to do. The republican platform declares for the maintenance of the gold standard, until, that is a long word—until the leading commercial nations of Europe join in international bimetallism. How long is that? No man can tell. It is equivalent to saying we must maintain the gold standard permanently, and the reason I believe it is that men who put that in never made an effort to have the gold standard abandoned. Those who framed that platform have been advocating the gold standard as the standard of civilization and telling you that we had outgrown the use of silver. If the gold standard is the standard of civilization, why abandon it? Those who prate most about international bimetallism are the ones who do not want it. They are in the position of a defendant in a lawsuit who is always willing for a continuance or a hung jury.

Mr. Bryan then went over some of the arguments used by him before and continued as follows: I denounce the idea some seem to have that the government has a right to lessen the volume of money, but no right to increase it. I denounce as false and infamous the doctrine that the government has a right to starve the people by taking their money from them, but has no power to feed them by increasing their supplies. When they tell you you ought not to invoke legislation for the purpose of increasing the volume of currency, tell them you are following the example set in 1873, when the money-owning classes invoked the power of legislation to strike down a portion of the nation's money in order to raise the value of the other portion. If they can appeal to the law to take away some of the money you had, why can you not appeal to the law to place you back where you were.

Some are afraid if we pass a free coinage law there will be such an enormous increase in the volume of our currency that we won't know what to do with it. You can't read a speech made by our opponents but you will find contradictions in it and one proposition will answer another. For instance, a man will say if we had free silver it would give the mine owner a profit of 100 per cent. when he took his bullion worth 50 cents to the mint and had it converted into a dollar, and it is a terrible thing to let him make that profit. After he has worried about that he will tell you as matter of fact that the law adds nothing to the value of the metal under the free coinage of silver and 50 cents of bullion will only be a 50-cent dollar. Both the statements cannot be true. If you convert 50 cents' worth of bullion into a 50-cent dollar there is no profit to the mine owner. And if the mine owner makes a profit by converting 50 cents' worth of bullion into 100 cents, then there are no 50-cent dollars.

Then you will hear that under free coinage we would be flooded with silver until money would be so cheap we would not have any use for it, and when you have been frightened as badly as you can be that way, they will tell you this cheap money will run the dear money out and it will take fifteen years with our mints running at full capacity to make money enough to take the place of gold, and that will make money so scarce that a silver dollar will be harder to get than a gold dollar. You can't have too little and too much all at once.

An opponent once put that proposition to me in debate. There I was 1,500 miles from home, among strangers. I had to answer on the spur of the moment and I just blurted out I would make more mints. He had not thought of the possibility of making more mints. After making that explanation a lawyer told me he was glad I had called attention to it as he had never thought of the possibility. In order that I may not leave any special cloud on the lawyer I want to say in another state a doctor made the same remark. You can understand how a great man might be unable to think of so small a thing as opening more mints. That is one of the advantages of being a great man; you can't always think of little things.

They say cheap silver dollars will come in and run the gold dollar out and then money will become so scarce the silver dollar will be worth more than the gold dollar. Just think of it. Don't you know if the cheap silver dollars run the dear gold dollars out, the very moment the silver dollars become dearer than the gold, some of the cheap gold dollars will come back and run the dear silver dollars out? They think we are going to repeal the Gresham law. But I must close. It is a great temptation to talk a long while when I find as enthusiastic an audience as this; and that is the reason I have been talking a long while all along the line.

A MOUNTAIN MYSTERY.

Arizona Residents Puzzled by a Strange Mountain Formation.

For the last half century the American residents of Tuscon, A. T., have been trying to solve the mystery of what appears to be a hole through a mountain peak in sight of the town. In the clear air it looks to be only a short distance away, when in reality it is at least 40 miles.

By the aid of a good marine telescope the mountain can be brought to within a few miles, but not near enough to tell the exact nature of the rock formation. A first peep through the glass would lead one to believe that there was no mystery about it. The hole appears as plain as possible, but several days' study of the spot will develop the fact that the hole does not always look the same.

Many days when the sky is dark behind the mountain the hole will appear a brilliant white, like a snowdrift, and on days when the sky is blue it will often look so dark as to be almost invisible. These facts have led many to think that it is an immense piece of mica lying with its polished surface toward the sky and reflecting the cloud formations of another part of the horizon, instead of being the light seen through a hole. Viewed with the naked eye, the hole simply appears as a white spot, but the telescope reveals pine trees and other details, although very indistinctly.

The range of mountains in which the strange peak can be seen is known as the Catalinas, and numerous parties have made the attempt to climb it, but all have failed on account of the steep and rugged precipices in the vicinity.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Large Work.

Never in the history of American shipbuilding has such work been seen as in the construction of the Bessemer Steamship company's fleet of lake freight ships, all of which hail from Duluth. About the close of the first week in December last the company was formed, and its Cleveland agents made contracts with large shipyards, all then fairly full of work, for the building of twelve great ships, each to be larger than anything on the lakes with the exception of the one steamer afloat and the two under contract for the Zenith Transportation company of Duluth. Today sees the seventh of these ships at work, while one more will be ready the last of the month and the remaining four in October. In addition, four ships have been purchased and the fleet, as it will be before the close of the coming month, less than 10 months after the decision to build was made, will have a capacity for carrying in one load the enormous quantity of 65,000 tons on present, and 95,000 tons on the coming deeper draft. These ships have cost about $8,400,000.

Grain Inspection.

The members of the Superior board of trade say that the proposed scheme of the Duluth and Minneapolis grain men owning elevators in that city to overthrow the Wisconsin inspection law by taking it into the courts and having it decided unconstitutional will not work. At least they will not be the ones upon whom the burden of the fight will devolve, as, according to the reports from St. Paul, the Minnesota interests would have it. It is reported that the Minnesota railroad and warehouse commission has refused to take any hand in the present fight except to agree to place inspectors at Sandstone, Minn., and there inspect wheat for Superior. It is proposed to then place it in the Great Northern elevators at Superior and let the board of trade try to stop them for running without a license.

"Section 30."

The federal circuit court of appeals has disposed of the famous section 30 case. The decision of the lower court has been maintained and the Warren backers are the victors.

The title of the case was Emil Hartman appellant, vs. James H. Warren et al., appellee: appeal from the circuit court of the United States for the district of Minnesota.

By the decision rendered Warren, or his assigns, shown to be the rightful owners of the Iron Range property, which has been for so long in litigation. The decision finds that Warren was a beneficiary under the treaty concluded by the United States and the Chippewa Indian of Lake Superior and the Mississippi, on September 30, 1854, and that he had the power to sell his right to locate the land.

Sustain the Management.

A meeting of G. A. R. men was held in Rawlins post hall at Minneapolis, to take action in regard to an article which recently appeared in one of the city papers which quite severely scored the management of the soldiers' home at Minnehaha for taking nearly all of the inmates to the parade in St. Paul last Wednesday, and leaving several of the oldest verterans to show the institution to the numerous visitors. Resolutions were drawn up stating that the soldiers who were left behind were too feeble to care to attend the parade, although carriages would have been provided for their conveyance, and that, moreover, there were very few visitors at the home that day. The resolution also express the utmost confidence in the management of that institution.

No State Ticket.

At a meeting of the state central committee of the national democrats it was decided to abandon the idea of naming a state ticket. While there are some members of the committee who favor such a step, in the opinion of the majority it was not advisable. It was further decided not to interfere with the congressional situation by naming a candidate in any of the districts. However, the committee unanimously agreed to name an electoral ticket, and this was done. The names of those chosen were not given out for publication, and it was deemed wisest to ascertain whether the gentlemen named would serve, and whether any of them were inelligible for the office.

Badly Burned.

Mrs. Peter Porten of 481 Thomas place, St. Paul, was burned by a lamp explosion, and it is not expected to live. She was alone in the house and the lamp was in the next room. In some way it tipped over and exploded. She rushed in and in attempting to extinguish the flames her clothing caught fire and she was terribly burned. She was taken to the city hospital.

News in Brief.

The Macalester college opens up for the new year with over 200 students.

John Foell was knocked down by footpads in Winona and robbed of $70.

Col. McFarland, of Ten-Mile Lake, was found dead at New York Mills, near the station. It is supposed he died from apoplexy.

Near Canby, Thomas Hanson engaged in a quarrel with Harry Devere and in the fight received four cuts that will prove fatal. Devere was arrested.

The body of a man was found in the woods near Detroit. He is supposed to have been murdered, as he has an ugly gash in his skull.

A. B. Cutts, general passenger agent of the Minneapolis & St. Louis, says that his road has not been properly credited with its share of work during the recent carnival. Instead of only 40 coaches per day, as given in one report, the road brought in during three days, beginning Aug. 31, exactly 223 crowded coaches, containing at least 17,000 people. This gives the road third place.

T. J. Johnson, of Minneapolis, shot his wife in St. Paul and then killed himself. Both are colored and had separated. She will recover.

St. Peter will levy a 5 mills tax to build a new schoolhouse.

The second annual convention of Minnesota State Liquor Dealers association was held at Duluth with 250 delegates in attendance.

Thomas Horan, an ex-city detective of St. Paul, and Charles Fletcher were held to the grand jury on the charge of having attempted to swindle by means of a worthless check.

William Pye, who went from Minneapolis as Congressman Fletcher's appointee to the Annapolis naval school cadetship, has successfully passed both physical and academic examinations there and has entered the naval academy as one of Uncle Sam's cadets.

THE STORY OF CRETE.

From the Age of Fable to the Present Year of Grace.

There are not many islands with a more stormy or more heroic history than that of Crete. In remote antiquity it was the redoubtable "Isle of One Hundred Cities," and had an illustrious line of kings, among whom were Rhadamanthus, Minos and Idomeneus. The last-named led a fleet of 80 ships to assist in the conquest of Troy, and was the last of what we may call the legendary kings. After him a gap of several centuries occurs, and when the record is resumed it is no longer fable, but authentic history. At the time of the Persian invasion of Greece the island was populous and prosperous. It was divided into several independent republics, which, like those of the peninsular Hellas, were not always in peace and friendship with each other. They kept free from foreign wars, however, except as they voluntarily furnished mercenary troops to whichever side would pay best for them. This was done in both the Persian and Peloponnesian wars, when the Cretan archers were as noted and as dreaded as those of Merry England in later ages.

The prowess of the ancient Cretans and their insular position kept them free from invasion down almost to the Christian era. While the eagles of Rome "flapped wide wings in fiery flight" over nearly all else of the known world that island retained its independence. Indeed, it was only through intestine quarrels that it was at last subdued. Some 70 years before the Christian era Rome took advantage of the prevailing discord in Crete to invade the island, on the pretext that the Cretans had given aid and comfort to Mithridates, and had ill-treated some Roman soldiers. The first army was repulsed and almost annihilated by the Cretans. But Rome was determined to achieve the conquest, if it took the whole power of her empire. Army after army was sent, and after three years of desperate fighting Rome prevailed. For the first time in her history Crete became, in 68 B. C., subject to an alien master. From that day to the present, for more than 1,900 years, she has been a conquered province, never once regaining the independence so long maintained and so reluctantly relinquished.

For many years Crete remained an appendage of Rome, and then of Byzantium. It first fell into Moslem hands in 823, when the Arabs, led by Michael the Stutterer, found it an easy prey. No important attempt to colonize it was made by the new conquerors, but many of the Greek inhabitants, voluntarily or involuntarily, accepted the Moslem faith. So it comes to pass that at this day there are few Turks or Arabs in the island, though many Mohammedans, the latter being of as pure Greek blood as their Christian neighbors. After 137 years of Arab rule the island was retaken by the Greeks under Nicephorus Phocas, who taught the Arabs what he thought "an everlasting lesson." It remained under Greek rule until the establishment of the Latin empire by the crusaders, when, in 1204, it was turned over to Boniface, marquis of Monferrat. The Genoese tried to buy it of him, but he sold it to their rivals, the Venetians, instead, for the sum of 100,000 silver marks. The Cretans revolted against the Venetians, and, assisted by Genoa, gave them much trouble. Indeed, during their several centuries of ownership, the Venetians had few years of peace with the turbulent islanders.

The second Moslem conquest dates from 1645. Sultan Ibrahim, on the pretext that Venice had given assistance to the Knights of Malta, sent an army of 100,000 men to seize the island. It took them nearly two months to capture the port of Canea, and no less than 24 years to reduce the capital city of Candia. Then Venice yielded the whole island to the Turks, excepting three ports, the last of which she also relinquished in 1715. Thereafter came the bloodiest chapter in Cretan history. Oppressions, rapine, torture and massacre made up the daily story for more than 100 years. The Cretans were in a chronic state of revolt, and in 1821 would probably have been successful had not an Egyptian army come to the aid of the Turks. Seven years later, when Greece became independent, Crete was ceded to Egypt as a reward for the latter's services. For some years thereafter, under the wise rule of Mehemet Ali and Mustapha Pasha, the island enjoyed such prosperity, peace and justice as it had not known for many centuries. Unhappily, in 1840 the powers compelled Mehemet Ali to surrender it again to Turkey, and since then affairs have been nearly as bad as possible. The great rebellion of 30 years ago resulted in the granting of some reforms. But the Cretans did not know how to make proper use of the advantage they had gained, and now the whole battle must be fought over again.—N. Y. Tribune.

SINGULAR TRAITS.

How Animals Sleep—Badgers Spend the Winter on Their Heads.

Badgers make beds of grass and then sleep on their heads. Mr. Cornish has found them when hibernating "with the top of their flat heads on the ground, and the rest of the body curled over, as if they had fallen asleep in the middle of turning head over heels."

A pet dog which is on the friendliest terms with master and servants often makes the most ridiculous fuss if anyone touches the box or basket in which it sleeps. Like children, or the old women who hide gold and bank notes in the mattresses, the dogs have nearly always a small hoard of very old, dry bones hidden away in their bed, in the straw or under a rug, as the case may be. The proper kind of bunk for a dog is a shallow box, made with the sides sloping outward, like a wheelbarrow.

Cats choose whatever is cleanest, freshest and brightest. "A nicely-aired newspaper lying on the floor or in a chair, or linen fresh from the wash is almost irresistible. But the oddest taste in beds developed by a cat was that entertained by a very highly bred gray Angora, which was justly petted and admired by the family in which it lived. For some months it would only sleep in or upon a hat—ladies' hats being preferred. If it could discover one with the inside uppermost it would be inside it. If not, such was its love for this form of couch, that it would curl itself round the brim, and with its long, furry tail and pliant body, made a fine winter trimming to a summer hat, though gentlemen who found it cuddled round their tall hats regarded its taste with less admiration.—Chicago Chronicle.

A GETTYSBURG SURVIVOR.

Milton F. Sweet Speaks of His Experiences Since the War.

From the Journal-Press, St. Cloud, Minn.

Each day, each month, each year, the Grand Army of the Republic is growing smaller. Almost each hour is some veteran soldier of the Rebellion responding to the call of the Great Commander and joining the army of the silent majority. At such an alarming rate is the death rate increasing among the army membership that statisticians tell us that it will be but a few years before the Veterans will be but a memory. It is for this reason that the entire public is interested to hear of the recovery from sickness of a comrade.

James M. McKelvy Post G. A. R., of St. Cloud, Minnesota, contains one such, Milton F. Sweet. No man stands higher in the community than does he and through his trict integrity and honesty of conviction she has won the respect of all who know him. Mr Sweet has for many years been a resident of Minnesota, and for the past ten years has resided in this city, where he is engaged in the manufacture of carpets. He is now fifty-one years of age. He served in the war three years and seven months, with Company G, New York, participating in sixty battles, including Gettysburg.

During the war Mr. Sweet contracted heart disease, which was accompanied by excessive nervousness. As age increased his symptoms grew worse and many were the remedies resorted to by him without the slightest relief.

We will let Mr. Sweet tell the story in his own words:

"Six months ago, at the suggestion of a comrade, who had been benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, I began their use, and I very cheerfully state that they have invigorated and built up my nervous system in a wonderful way. They have done me a world of good and I have been greatly benefited by their use, where everything else I took failed to give me the relief I sought for. I have recommended them to a large number of my old comrades and it is a pleasure for me to do so, for I feel that the manufacturers are deserving of any good that I can do them in saying a good word for their product, in return for the good they have done me. I will gladly recommend these pills to any one writing me if they doubt the genuineness of this statement."

When interviewed, Mr. Sweet felt so grateful for the good that he had received through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that he did not have the slightest hesitancy in going on record. His word is considered his bond by all who know him throughout this section. Mr. Sweet is not the only one in Stearns County who is using this celebrated medicine and with equally good results.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 13th day of June, 1896.

JAMES R. JERRARD, Notary Public,
Stearns County, Minnesota.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

A DUST STORM.

An Estimate of the Weight of the Load It Carries.

Blown dust is a general and familiar nuisance to housekeepers over the entire west. A minimum estimate, verified by direct observation, for the quantity of dust settling on floors during such storms, says a writer in Appleton's Popular Science Monthly, is about a fourteenth of an ounce of dust on a surface of a square yard in half a day. A maximum estimate made on the basis of the above newspaper accounts would be at least five pounds to a square yard of surface for a storm lasting 24 hours. If we then suppose that a house is 24 feet wide and 32 feet long, has open crevices which average a sixteenth of an inch in width and have a running length in windows and doors of 150 feet, the wind may be supposed to enter half of these crevices with a velocity of five miles per hour for the time the storm lasts, or for 24 hours. The dust may be supposed to settle on not less than 85 square yards of surface, including floor space and horizontal surfaces of furniture. The minimum estimate, based on these figures, gives us 225 tons of dust to the cubic mile of air. The maximum estimate would be 126,000 tons.

The Garden South.

The South is destined to be, and is rapidly becoming, the garden of the United States. Here life is easier to live, the rigorous winters do not eat up the fruits of the toil of summer, nor are the summers so trying as many northern people have supposed. "I used to live only half the year," said a northern farmer recently settled in the south, "and I used to work all the time then. Now I work half the time and live all the year through."

Home seekers' excursion tickets will be sold over the Monon Route to nearly all points in the south at the rate of one first class fare (one way); tickets good returning on any Tuesday or Friday within 31 days from date of sale. Liberal stop-overs are allowed. These excursions start (and tickets are sold) Aug. 17, 18 and 31; Sept. 1, 14, 15; Oct. 5, 6, 19 and 20. Call on any agent of the Monon Route for further information, or address FRANK J. REED, G. P. A., Chicago.

$400 Truck Farms in Virginia.

September 1st and 15th and October 6 and 20 Home Seekers' Excursion tickets will be sold from points in the west and northwest over the Big Four Route and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. to Virginia at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. Those who have investigated the state are of one opinion, that Virginia is the best state in the Union today for farmers. Situated at the doors of the great eastern markets with cheap transportation and a perfect climate it has advantages that cannot be overcome. Small farms may be had for $10 per acre and upward according to location and improvements. For descriptive pamphlet of Virginia, list of desirable farms and excursion rates address U. L. TRITT, N. W. The Ins and Outs of It.

If you get best wear out of a coat, best work must have gone into it. You can't get good bread out of poor flour.

Moral: You can't get the best out of anything, unless the best is in it; and the best has to be put in before it can be taken out. Now, we have a rule to test those sarsaparillas with a big "best" on the bottle. "Tell us what's put in you and we'll decide for ourselves about the best." That's fair. But these modest sarsaparillas say: "Oh! we can't tell. It's a secret. Have faith in the label." . . . Stop! There's one exception; one sarsaparilla that has no secret to hide. It's Ayer's. If you want to know what goes into Ayer's Sarsaparilla, ask your doctor to write for the formula. Then you can satisfy yourself that you get the best of the sarsaparilla argument when you get Ayer's.

DELANO, FRIDAY, SEPT. 25, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Dr. A. A. Ames, ex-Mayor of Minneapolis, will speak in the City Hall tomorrow night.

—Gen. Howard, Gen. Algers, and Col Bourst, delivered addresses here this evening, from the rear end of a private car.

—More new cement sidewalk is being put down in front of the I. O. O. F. building, Wittman's daug store and the Wright County Bank.

—At Tuesday evening's Democratic caucus M. A. O'Hair, H. E. Buck and R. M. Bohn were chosen delegates to the county conveytion at Buffalo on Thursday.

—We have had an exceptionally fine fall for crops. But the frost got a few late crops of corn and cane. Fall plowing is being done in good shape the late rains putting the groung in excellent condition.

—The ladies aid of the M. E. church will hold a six o'clock supper and sale of fancy articles at the City Hall, on Tuesday evening, Sept. 29th. An interesting musical and literary program is being prepared. Admission 25 cts. and 15 cents for children.

--The much talked of discussion on the silver question is to come off on Thursday evening, Oct. 1, at the City Hall. Prof. Wharton talks for a gold standard and Dr. Catlin for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver. Prof. Hawker is to preside.

—S. W. Belford, of Denver, will talk on free coinage at Maple Lake, Sept. 26; Annandale, the 28th; Delano, the 29th; Wayerly, the 30th; Cokato, Oct. 1; Victor Town, Friday, Oct. 2; Montrose, Oct. 3; Rockford the 5th; Buffalo, the 6th; St. Michaels, the 7th.

—We did not hear the first speaker, Mr. Ayme, at the City Hall last night. The last, Prof. Shields, claimed to be a minister, and for an educational address on the money question he took the cake for flatness. The cheers for McKinley, at the close of the meeting, were distressingly weak.

—At least one gold standard man who heard Col. Aymes; last night says he thinks he lied about Mexicans getting about 20 cents a day for work at home when by crossing the line into the Unitod States they could get a dollar. It is asking a good deal of a Delano audience that they should believe such things; even gold bugs in this part of the country know more than that.

—A Minneapolis man a former resident of Delano informed us a few days ago that the gold bug men were obliging their employees to fall into line in the parades for "Sound money" and that a few days ago the Burlington R. R. laid off 42 men because they would not parade in a gold demonstration the night before. Talk about Slaves! Where is the freedom of the Laboring man?

--At the M. E. quarterly conference, held at the church Thursday evening, Sept. 17, Elder Chaffee presided, and Professor Hawker was chosen Secretary. The following officers were chosen;

Stewards, Mrs. C. H. Green, Mrs. H. V. Wilder, Mrs. C. M. Johnson, C. S. Hawker, J. H. Ferrell, Mrs. W. H. Stacy, Mrs. Wm. Douglass and L. H. Pryor. Recording and District Steward, Charles S. Hawker.

Trustees, T. J. Catliu, C. S. Hawker, Wm. Stanley, M. F. Kelsey and J. E. Brothers, Delano; Wm. Stacy, C. Swartout, William Douglas, Charles Ferrell and J. M. Haven, Montrose. James Young, R. Fairbanks and C. G. Halgren, Watertown.

Committees. On Missions, Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Douglas. Church Extension T. J. Catlin. Sundayschools, Mrs. Green, Anna Ferrell and Jennie Malsed. Tracts, Mrs. Kelsey, Carry Nichols. Temperance, T. J. Catlin and C. Swartout. Eduertion, L. H. Pryor and C. S. Hawker. Freedmen's Aid, Mrs. Strickland and Mrs. Wilder. Church Records C. S. Hawker. Parsonage and Furniture, Ladie's Aid Society of Delano. Church Music, Mrs. Farber and Mrs. Stacy. Estimating the Pastor's Salaries, Dr. T. J. Catlin, Mrs. A. Stacy and Mrs. Wm. Douglas; same on estimating amount necessary for Confenence Claimants.

Americans like to laugh, and this fact is not overlooked by the Schubert Symphony Club Several numbers on their program as well as all their encores are full of fun, and you will be highly entertained by their program at the City Hall on Oct. 3d.

Mr. Louis McPike, the well known entertainer with the Schubert Concert Co., is an all around musician as well as elocutionist, and like all the members of this favorite Company is famous for his versatility as well as his artistic excellence. Hear him Oct. 3rd.

In our opinion a concerted action among gold staudard democrats to knock out all the legislative props John Lind might get, by neglecting to issue calls for conventions and otherwise making it possible to throw out those who might be elected has been at work in our district. Thats wrong! Its wicked! and whether due to negligance or political intrigue and chicanery it should be nipped in the bud.

The Annandale Post said if we would tell them what the deffinition of "basis" is, as relates to money they would answer our "Questions for Gold standard men."

Is the United States on a gold basis?

How much money per capita is there in the United States now?

How long can the country do business on a gold basis?

We refered them to McKinley's letter and Harrison's speech for a definition of the term and have heard nothing more from them. Evidently they are no more anxious to answer the questions than the Old Maid Bird (she now claims to be 25 years old) up street. Don't these gold standard organs know, or are they really as much afraid to answer as they are to have bimetallism without England says they may? Come now, if you know and dare to do so tell us all about it.

There is certainly an object in the silence of these great men, so form your own conclusions.—Maple Lake Messenger.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 18th, 1896.

Several important democratic conferences were held in Washington and vicinity during the present week, and the precautions taken to keep the subjects talked about at these conferences out of the newspapers have been successful. Among those taking part in these conferences were Senator Jones, chairman of the democratic National Committee; Senator Faulkner, Chairman of the Congressional Committee; Senator Butler, Chairman of the populist committee, and Senators Gorman, Teller and Dubois, and National committeeman Scott, of the democratic advisory committee. It is enough for those who desire the election of Bryan and the triumph of silver to know that the object of these conferences was to add to the certainty of that result, and that they were in every way satisfactory to those who participated in them. More could not be told without a violation of confidence, and without furnishing information which might enable the McKinley crowd to throw obstacles in the way of certain plans. Suffice it to say that every man who participated in these conferences is certain that Bryan will be elected.

Democrats are unsparing in their criticism of Secretary Carlisle, who, by the way, is going to take the stump in Kentucky for Palmer & Buckner, for having written a letter saying in effect that he would redeem silver dollars in gold, if the demand was made, Senator Faulkner declares this to be an invitation to the money sharks to raid the gold reserve of the Treasury and force the issue of more bonds, and expresses the opinion that it will be worth thousands of votes to Bryan and silver, by convincing people of the intention of the gold men to go still further than they have yet gone towards turning our financial interests over to half a dozen bankers in Europe and New York He says this "emphasizes the necessity as well as the duty of those who believe in American financial independence to support the American policy represented by the democratic ticket."

Hon. E. P. Baldwin, Auditor of the Treasury, continues to make Bryan and silver speeches just as though he had never heard anything about President Cleveland's intention to remove every office holder who takes the stump for Bryan. Mr. Baldwin made a speech before the East Washington Democratic Club this week especially devoted to the financial question. After stating in detail how the money power had dictated the financial legislation of the country until present unsatisfactory conditions had been reached, and placing the fault for the present system upon the republicans, Mr. Baldwin said: "How does McKinley propose to stop the sale of bonds if he is elected? He can't get gold in any other way than Mr. Cleveland did, by the sale of bonds. This administration had to sell bonds to keep the reserv in tact, and had to do so a second and a third time. How will this condition be remedied by McKinley? It was either issue bonds or pay in silver, and if the latter had been done the bankers would have cried repudiation. Bonds had to be sold from $1.04 to $1.17, the financiers making this great profit, and this state of things would continue under Mc. Kinley. If Mr. Bryan is elected a democratic House will be elected. We have the Senate, and a bill will be passed which Mr. Bryan will sign and the law will be enforced and these hard times will disappear."

A well advertised public meeting of the "Sound Money League", of Washington, was attended by just seven people and three of them were newspaper reporters.

Representative McMillan, of Tennesse, who has come off the stump long enough to finish preparing the democratic Campaign Book says of the present situation: "From the beginning of the fight those well posted have known that the republicans had everything east of New York; that the democracy had everything south of the Potomac and Ohio rivers, and everything west of the Missouri river, and that it has got such a hold in the Northern states of the eastern portion of the Mississippi valley that the entire Maine election or the Vermont election have been insufficient to make even McKinley and Hannah feel secure. The democratic party with all the handicaps that have been placed upon it, is in a better position to win a victory today than it has been at this stage of the campaign in any contest in the last twenty years. We are going to win this fight. Maine and Vermont prove that the republicans were correct in their estimate of New England, just as Arkansas and Alabama proved that the democrats were correct in their estimates as to the situation in the South and West."

Capt. D. F. Allen, a member of the State Board of Tax Commissioners of Indiana says of his state: "I think that Indiana is almost certain to give its electoral votes to Bryan. There is no weakening on the part of his adherents out our way: on the contrary, the cause is gaining force all the time. If a vote were taken now he would win by 35,000 majority, and there is every reason to think he will defeat McKinley by those figures, or even more. The farmer vote is for silver and no argument or persuasion of the gold crowd can change the minds of the men who feed the Nation."

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.

Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoka, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

A FEW weeks ago Secretary Carlisle published a circular to the people saying that: "Standard silver dollars are legal tender at their nominal or face value in payment of all debts, public and private, without regard to the amount, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract." Since then the gold has gone to cover, is out of sight, and our country, on the boasted bimetallic system of the gold standard men is now really transacting a good share of its business on silver dollars, said to be worth 53 cents, and the balance of the business is done on paper. Now the Secretary is obliged once more to speak, this time he says if people bring silver to him and demand gold in exchange he will be obliged to give it to them. How long can he do this? How many days until a new issue of bonds will have to be made?

Wouldn't it really give people more confidence in their money system to be able to thrust their hands into their pockets and haul out gold or silver either knowing that one was equally as valuable as the other regardless of other countries, or that no body could stipulate against it.

Is money that can be stipulated against "honest money?" Is it "sound money?" It is, indeed "hard" money hard on the poor fellow who can't pay his debts with it.

HASTY JUDGMENTS.

(FROM THE PRISON MIRROR.)

Don't be too hasty to construe
The motives of another.
Let charity with mantle true
Enfold your lowly brother.
You cannot know what tenderness
Within his heart is hidden,
Nor why at grief and sore distress,
His tears will flow unbidden.

Though rough his hands and deeply lined
With coarse trade-marks of labor,
By these you may not gauge the mind
Of him that is your neighbor.
His garb may be of common grade,
Well patched and sadly faded—
Not by this scale should he be weighed,
Nor by this standard graded.

Not versed in classic lore of Greece,
Not learned in ancient story,
Nor ever heard of "Golden fleece."
Or Alexander's glory:
Yet he may have a kindly heart
That beats for those that sorrow,
A helping hand to do his part.
To better some tomorrow.

To glance at ocean deep and wide,
When summer smiles enwreath it,
Is not the way to gauge the tide,
That swiftly runs beneath it:
A plummet and a deep-sea line,
Must be employed to sound it,
By these we may the truth divine,
Rejoicing when we've found it.

The rugged rocks that hilltops crown,
May be devoid of beauty—
To guard some treasure deeply down,
May be there bounden duty,
To find the jewel in the clay,
There must be constant labor:
'Tis by a hasty glance we may
Misjudge a worthy neighbor.

—Chicago Inter Ocean.

THE Canadian and Pacific R. R. is having a big strike all freight trains are said to be tied up.

THE little village of Canton, Minn., that was so much excited in '92 over manifestations claimed to have taken place at the Catholic church is having a revival of the excitement.

FRANK RANDALL, of Winona, is authority for the statement that New Sweeden, Nicollet County, formerly haying but two Democratic votes now has a Bryan and Lind club of sixty members. Mr. R. was born in Nicollet County and knows what he is talking about.

WHILE electioneering in Delano a few days ago Judge Simpson was asked by a physician, "What's the matter with Frank Nye?" The Judge replied, "Some of you silver doctors must have got hold of him. The Doctor quickly retorted: "I guess he must have taken the gold cure.

THE Globe has some political new from Col Ayme as follows: "In the Sixth congressional distries, both at Delano and at Litchfield, I found the sound money sentiment strong. In Delano the silver men are very quiet and Towne has no show there."

This news coming from Col Ayme, who with Rev. Shield, held a meeting here will be taken for just what it is worth, by our citizens; but if the gold men have no higher Aymes and no stronger Shields than those two men they are working at a great disadvantage. Most everybody, even the gold men, that heard them, were of this opinion.

AMONG other questions said to have been asked C. A. Towne at Royalton was: "Are protection and reciprocity compatible with the free and unlimited coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1?" From a Republican standpoint this ought easily to be answered. They claim that with free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, no country will take our money. This would certainly be protection; all anybody could ask for. As for reciprocity this view of our money might not work. From a democratic, or 16 to 1, view of the question, of course they take no stock whatever in 16 to 1 making a cheaper dollar than a gold dollar.

GOLD standard papers keep telling us, as they have for weeks, that the silver cause is waneing; that there is no chance for Mr. Bryan; that his physical frame is giving way. In other columns they report that Mr. Bryan was greeted by the largest crowd, ever seem in town; that his speech was received amidst the greatest enthusiasm. Then some of his speaches are printed and they serve at once to show to the readers, that Mr. Bryan can still make speeches good ones, and that the cause of the people, free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at 16 to 1, is far from dying out; but that it is growing rapidly all over the country in the very face of the opposition of the almost entire great daily press.

THE eminent Catholic Priest, Rev. Cleary, of Minneapalis, has been interviewed by the Penny Press on the question of the circular sent out by Mark Hanna asking the support of the Catholic clergy. Here is a sample of remarks:

"This insolent and egotistical assumption, on the part of these representatives of the plutocrat candidates, of enjoying a monoply of the honesty and patriotism of the country, will prove a most fatal boomerang for the gold bug party. The base assumption that the farmers of the great West, who are confronted with financial disaster, because of the conspiracies of trusts, and of large monied interests, aganist their products, are not more honest and patreatic than speculators in government securities in Wall Street, must be resented by all upright men.

GOLD standard papers are doing their best to detract the attention of the people from the main issue of the day. Knowing their weakness on the money question; finding themselves without arguments to convince anyboby, save through purely selfish, and not patriotic motives, they have set themselves to work to hunt up other objections to the election of William J. Bryan to the Presidency. It looks now as if their attempts would all prove in vain. They tried to impeach Mr. Bryan's motives and they failed; they tried to laugh him down and they failed; they called him and his followers anarchists, repudiators and like names, they have about quit that line of tactices. They tried to scare his followers off by telling of all the dire results his election would bring upon the country; of the fleeing of gold from circulation. Their predictions have even now been verified, as to what moneyed men might do under a gold standard, the gold is out of sight. Under a free coinage of both metals this feat would be at least twice as difficult to perform. And as the gold is already out of circulation the worst free silver could do would be to preserve the present condition of finance.

Even the Globe, in Sept. 30 issue, Says: "The country could live under any kind of tariff or without any tariff at all. The country could live, doubtless, although in a disgraced and unfortunate condition, under the free coinage of silver. But the country could not live if the Union were virtually dissolved by annulling the power of the federal government to enforce its own law. There was comparatively little talk or thought about this on the day after the Chicago convention. The surprising success of free silver filled all minds to the exclusion of other matters, and a brief reference to the 'anarchy' plank was all the mention made of the deference of that body to mob law." Where was the astute Globe? Would it be so surprised as to allow the country to be so endangered and never wake up to give the alarm until this late date?

A Good Year for Reformers.

This should be a good year for reformers all over the country. It is a well known fact that many evils have crept into the machinery of our government. Many reforms are necessary in, from the highest to the lowest office in the gift of our citizens. Elections are run in wrong ways. Nominations aer sought by greedy individuals who wish to hang on to the financial teat, or who are seeking one office as a stepping stone to a higher one. Others are given places on the ticket with them. Not for personal fitness for the office for which they pretend to run, but for the purpose of placing them in positions to aid their bosses: to do the dirty work of the campaign; to mingle with those with whom the chief don't wish to associate, but whose vote must be secured at any hazzard, or expense, in order to procure the political bosses election. These things are seen in high places, respectable men, are nominated for President of the United States, then a man to get votes where a respectable man can't, is put on the tail of the ticket, to balance the kite. This is wrong. The nominee for Vice-President should be as good, as respectable, in every way, as the nominee for President. So all along down the line. The Lieutenant Governor should be as capable of filling the chief Executive's offices of the State, as is the Governor himself.

Members of the Legislature should be men selected for their worth; their known honesty, and ability to do right, for their adoptapility to perform the duties of law maker of our great State; and not to help some other part of the ticket and get left, themselves; thus leaving, those desiring a respectable Legislature the alternative of voting for what they do not wish. Every man on every ticket should be above such criticism; if they are not it is the duty of people desiring a good state government and good state laws to select those who are.

On county tickets men honest, capable, reliable, punctual, and who will fearlessly and without favor discharge the duties of their offices should be selected. Look carefully over the long list: be careful to get the best men, in every instance.

The Republican candidate for President is a Methodist, the Democratic candidate a Presbyterian. If they live up to their beliefs, they should personally conduct clean campaigns. No public or private dinners with intoxicating drinks, and midnight revelries. They cannot expect to win with such tactices; they must practice what they preach. People in this country have got about through with that kind of campaigns. They demand that their officials have clear brains, and that their minds are not dumbfuddled with drinks.

Under the present election law it is hard to know how people vote. They have a right to vote in secret; and the election day steerer of votes has about lost his job. It is impossible to place a ticket in a man's hand and have him go in and vote it as already prepared. He must mark his own ballot after he goes into the voting booth. No liquor can be legally sold on election day. If reformers keep their eyes open they may find a few violations of the laws, if so vote against them every time. A man who violates the laws of his state and the laws of morality to get elected to a petty office usually will do no better after he has his election secured.

Let the very best men possible be put in all offices, from top to bottom or the ticket. So far as the main issue free silver and gold at 16 to 1 goes, the President and the Congressmen are the ones to vote your sentiments on. They being all good men, make choice on issue of the day. After that, take the men who under the cercumstances can best discharge their duties, And give to the people the best government.

John Day Doth Reply.

Washington, Sept, 28.—John Day Smith has replied to C. A. Pillsbury's request that he substantiate charges of alleged coercion in connection with the mill hands and the Cockran parade. He says in part:

Permit me to state that I am not correctly quoted in your lettet. The only time I used your name, and I did not speak of "the Pillsburys" at all, was in connection with your furnishing McKinley badges without charge to be worn by voters, and your efforts in behalf of the Cockran parade and meeting. The correspondent with whom I talked was also unfortunate in reporting me as criticising the circular issued by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railway company; whereas, my statement reffered to Ives' circlar of the Burlington, Cedar Rapids & Northern railway; otherwise I think I was reported with substantial correctness.

It is but just that I should add that in this interview I stated that I had traveled over the state quite extensively and that Bryan's supporters had opposed to them in his contest practically all the corporations, railroads, mill owners and nearly all banks and employers of labor, to any large extent. I also stated that there was not a syndicate, a combination or a trust operating in our state and against the interest of her people but what was doing its utmost for the election of McKinley.

I further stated that there was an organized system of intimidation among the employers of labor throughout the state, such as had never been attempted or dreamed of before. I believe my statements are true.

I notice that you do not deny, what you challenge me or any other person to prove. Even if true it would be difficult to prove. It is a fact which can't de denied that many men in our city are wearing a "sound money" ribbon or McKinley button, who state privately that they expect to vote for Bryan on election day. They are laboring men. It may be that their positions would not be endangered by their wearing Bryan buttons, but they believe they would be.

In view of charges of intimidation, and they do not originate with me, how simple a matter it would be to put an end to them. No man in the state has a better reputation for business integrity and sagacity than you. Now would you and other large employers of labor be willing to follow the example of Roswell Miller, president of the Milwaukee road, and state in a circular to your employes that every man employed by you may feel at perfect liberty to discuss the political issue of the campaign outside of business hours, and that no person will be discharged or prejudiced who works for the election of Bryan and votes for him in November. If not, why not?—Penny Press.

To Farmers.

In an article headed "To Farmers" the Louisville Courier Journal, now a strong advocate of a gold standard, tries to prove that "Free and unlimited coinage of silver will certainly result in":

1. About fifty cent dollars.
2. A rise in groceries, clothing, fuel, rents, to a double price.
3. Closing of factories, shops, and stores; throwing employees out of a job.
4. Suspension of insurance."

How inconsistent! What can ail the Courier Journal? Has she taken the gold cure? If the dollars are made worth fifty cents, and the price of groceries, clothing, fuel and rents are doubled, how will that change matters? If a man gets two 50 cent dollars for his day's labor can't he buy as much groceries and so on at the double price as he could before? And how is that going to stop factories, mills and such business?

As for insurance, if the people didn't pay the insurance, the loan and building, the trust companies more than they ever get back, they couldn't build such fine buildings, furnish such splendid offices, and pay such large salaries to their officers besides loaning their funds back to the people to pay their premiums with.

Isn't double prices just about wath the farmers are looking for? If they can get good prices for grain and other products of their farms want times be better here than before?

As we said before, we expect when this government makes a law that a silver dollar is just as good as it ever was it will be so and there will be no difference in the purchasing price of a silver and a gold dollar.

Some Comments.

Now that the Democratic county convention, is over reformers may reflect on the gain they made by fusing with Wright county Democratic organization. That the reform party should take silver men both Democrat and Republican on their ticket at their own conventions was good policy, but that to fuse with the organization was a mastake is now plain to be seen. When will men learn that their legislators and commissioners are the most important offices in the county or district? Why are people so criminally careless in selecting men for these important offices. Now voters can only use their judgment at the polls and select the best from men asking support. Every Populist in the county should vote for Levi Vannurden for Sherriff. He is a good honest business man and farmer. He did not seek the office. He is a new man and a reformer. He will make a good officer if elected. J. C. Nugent was a Cleveland Democrat until this fall and left that faith, to all appearance, to get an office. He is an old politician and not the right man on a reform ticket. No good Populist can consistantly support him.

As for discussing a question with Mr. Tanner, we did not think for a moment of lossing time at any such unprofitable business. He must have a new meaning for the word bigotry, to apply the term to us. We are merely calling the attention of the public to politicians and our county politics, adding some brief comments on the general situation. If Mr. Tanner can specify anything we said about him and prove that it was untrue we will apologize. We believe we were correct in our judgment. We certainly agree with Mr. A. J. Wilson in his opinion of Mr. McKinley but not with his opinion on every other subject. We agree also with Mr. Tanner that his place is in the rank and file of the Republican party as it is the place for all machine politicians and easily handled voters; it represents the unprogressive element in this government. We should think all the back numbers would store themselves there. But we do not agree with him when he tries to dictate the actions of a reform party.

We have not declared that we are in the populist party or that we believed free and unlimited coinage of silver was a remedy for all existing evils in our system, so Mr. Tanner may have missed the mark when he assigns that position to us.

We believe in common with many other Americans that there is vast room for improvement in our way of managing the affairs of our Republic and in our politics generaly. We are anxious to see W. J. Bryan elected because he is an able honest man and was nominated by a representative convention. It is a disgrace to a republic to have its voters coerced and bribed to force an unpopular financial system on to its people. It is not true that English bondholders and bankers are working for free coinage at 16 to 1 in the United States. On the contrary they are supporting the gold standard conditions that are favorable to the industrial classes in this Republic; are favorable to the common people of Europe. Industrial civilizations should be above the spirit of militancy and hatred. We have no time for that nation that we must do all we can to injure the interest of other nations in order to strengthen our own. Such talk is only meant to pamper prejudice and ignorance. Mr. Wilson's artical was an editorial comment on American affairs as they appeared to him. His article was not ment as demagoguery to help the ccause of silver in the U. S. thinking it would help his nation to any extent to the detriment of this nation. We credit him with better judgment on such matters. He is a thinker but not infalible. Mr. Tanner tries to show that we are unfamiliar with current English writing.

We admit that, the knowledge we have not is very volumnous, but there are a few things on this little planet that has escaped even Mr. Tanner's notice.

Charles A. Dana has as poor an opinion of McKinley's ability as Mr. Wilson has which he expressed in several editorials last June, when McKinley was nominated. We do not indorse him all he says however. Mr. Tanner gives no one credit for a purely honest opinion he has been in the business of "manufacturing the plausible" so long that he has lost sight of the true.

Thanking you Mr. Editor for your valuable space we will withdraw for the present from our point of observation.

How They Love Us.

From the Representative we take the following clippings, which may interest some of our readers. Putting this and that together makes quite a suggestive story:

"The following illustrates how the "bosses" love the "common heard:"

The people be damned.—Vanderbilt.

The best meal to give tramps is a leaden one.—N. Y. Herald.

The capital of this country is organized at last.—N. Y. Tribune.

The battle with socialism will be brief, but it will be hot.—Rev .Dr. Hitchcock.

The American laborer must make up his mind henceforth not to be so much better off than the European laborer. Men must be contented to work for less wages. In this way the workingman will be nearer to that station of life to which it has pleased God to call him.—New York World.'

A Monster Bird of Freedom Bears a Message to McKinley.

OAKLAND, Cal., Sept. 30.—A big eagle caught in the hills near Berkely a few days ago has been sent to William McKinley at Canton, Ohio, by Senator Elis Dennion. Accompanying the bird was a letter, part of which read:

"He bears you our greetings from California and fairly illustrates the watchfull eye, strength of purpose, determined will and unconquerable spirit that anamates the Republican party in this distant state. The letter is inspired not alone by your past enviable record, but the dignified and consistant position you so ably maintain to day."—Minneapolis Tribune.

What! Isn't it enough to coerce Bryan voters into gold standard parades, and rob them of their rights, that the Noble Eagle, emblem of freedom, must needs be dragged down from his home among the clouds, and like a chained slave made to bear the greetings of the REPUBLICAN party to its chief! in these times when party is laid aside for principle?

Miss Mary Taylor, the heroine of the poem, "Mary Had a Little Lamb," died recently at Somerville, Mass.

Dr. Nansen was accorded an extraordinary demonstration on his return to Christiania, in spite of the fact that he didn't bring home as much as a fish pole.

Chicago suburbs are toying lightly and intellectually with golf. Golf is a kind of spiritualized "shinny," a sort of "kick-the-stick" with a college education.

As soon as Prof. Graham Bell gets his sunbeam telephones to working, a lot of people will rent them to make love over, although much of the talk will be all moonshine.

In an artesian well being sunk at San Bernardino, Cal., a cedar log was found at 280 feet and a layer of charcoal at 50 feet depth, showing that the valley has been filled in by erosion.

The sympathy felt for cheerful idiots who allow themselves to be buried alive by hypnotists is more than offset by the satisfaction of knowing the country has one fool less, in case of accident.

The football young man looks charming with his sweater and long hair. When he gets his arm in a sling and his face in a poultice he won't look so well, but he will know a great deal more.

The Canadian parliament has just voted $446,000 to drill in camps her organized army of 35,000 men before next June. Eleven camps of instruction will be established this month to accommodate 10,000 officers and men and 1,000 horses.

Russia is to-day a greater positive force in the affairs of the world than any other power. The bear controls China more than does England, it dominates Turkey, holds all Europe in leading strings, and interposes a check to Japan's acquisitive designs on the continent of Asia.

It is argued that the bicycle means more social life for the farmers. They will receive more visitors from the towns, and by having bicycles of their own they can make more frequent calls on neighbors. This is not the least of the many hopes that are wrapped up in the two-wheeled vehicle of the present.

Oscar Freymann, of Brooklyn, but a native of Russia, has been granted patents on a flying bicycle, which weighs only 85 pounds and with which he hopes to go to Europe in two days. The "flyers" are constructed of steel and silk, after the manner of bird's wings. Freymann may not have struck it, but some one will, sooner or later, and by and by we will be flying.

Paper can be manufactured out of almost anything that can be pounded into pulp. Over 50 kinds of bark are said to be used, and banana skins, bean stalks, pea stalks, cocoanut fiber, straw, sea and fresh water weeds, and many kinds of grass are all applicable. It has also been made from hair, fur, wool, and from asbestos, which furnishes an article indestructible by fire. Leaves make a good strong paper, while the husks and stems of Indian corn have also been tried.

The 24 o'clock notation now prevails in Italy, so far as government regulations apply. The children go to school at 9, but they are dismissed at 13, 15 or 16, as the case may be. The courts open at 10 and close at 17, parliament assembles at 13 and adjourns—sometimes not till 24, or later. The government theaters announce that the curtains will rise at 21 o'clock (rarely earlier) and a. m. and p. m. are no longer known on railroad time tables. How far the legal hour has made its way with the public it is difficult to say.

The British journals have been full of poems, editorials and epistles congratulatory of Queen Victoria upon having reigned longer over the United Kingdom than any preceding monarch. Indeed, her reign has been longer than that of any sovereign who sat upon an English throne, inclusive of those who reigned before Scotland and Ireland were incorporated as parts of "the United Kingdom." Queen Victoria had ruled for 59 years and 3 months on the 20th of September. No reigning monarch has maintained so pure a court or has lived so blameless a life as Queen Victoria.

Isaac B. Potter, chief consul of the New York division of the League of American Wheelmen, furnishes some interesting statistics anent the omnipresent bicycle. There are, he says, probably 2,500,000 bicycle riders in the United States, and it is estimated that 1,000,000 wheels will be sold during the present year. This might mean that five per cent. of our population of 70,000,000 will be mounted on wheels by the end of the current year were it not necessary to make a generous allowance for the number of wheelmen who buy new wheels and discard old ones. Is any ease the figure is impressive.

Charles Bates, United States deputy surveyor, is busy at work in the Rosebud reservation, where he has a surveying contract. Many of the Indians on the reservation have expressed a desire to receive allotments of land in severalty, and large tracts of the reservation are being surveyed with this object in view. The Indians on the Pine Ridge reservation have not yet indicated a willingness to receive their allotments, principally for the reason that Red Cloud, their aged and respected chief, is opposed to it, and in deference to his wishes but few allotments will be made to the Indians there.

MORE FIGHTING AT LEADVILLE

Strikers Attack Bon Air Shaft, But Are Repulsed by the Guards.

Leadville, Col., Sept. 28.—Renewed rioting has occurred. At ten o'clock Sunday the military guard at the Bon Air mine on Carbonate hill was attacked. The pickets were driven in behind the stockades by a fusillade of lead fired from one of the dark recesses of the mountain. Buckshot riddled the timberwork of the mine and whistled close to the ears of the militiamen. The fire was returned, the heavy ring of the Springfield rifle sounded on the air, and in a few moments all Leadville was awake. Lieut. Verdeckberg telephoned Gen. Brooks that the guard had been driven in, and a few moments later the troops were turned out and started to the Bon Air on double time.

The shots from the Bon Air sounded like a hail. Lights flashed in all the windows of the town, and within half an hour the streets were filled with men, armed and ready to go to the mine, which is some little distance away. The exchange of shots was lively and lasted for fully 15 minutes. The attacking party was located in one spot, while the fire of the military was scattering and from different points along the guard line. A squad of infantry with fixed bayonets charged into the brush, but the assailants retreated rapidly before them and were soon silenced. This attack occurred at a time when the union was consulting for peace, and will have the effect of causing renewed enlistments to the ranks of the militia.

CRIME RAMPANT.

City of Cleveland Suffers Greatly from a Band of Robbers.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 29.—There is no abatement of the epidemic of crime in this city. Hold-ups and murderous assaults upon peaceable citizens continue and the startling audacity of the desperadoes and their cool, united methods of doing business astound even the police. Since Sunday night 25 houses have been entered. Citizens are wrought up to such a degree of alarm that the streets are practically deserted by seven o'clock in the evening and the unfortunates who are compelled to be out late ride home in cabs or engage bodyguards to accompany them. The police are just simply unable to cope with the criminals, and although supposed leaders have been arrested, the depredations increase in number to an alarming extent. Houses have been robbed within a few hundred feet of the central station and pedestrians are held up in the very heart of the city almost before dark.

SEVEN DROWNED.

Disaster to a Boating Party Reported from Shields, England.

London, Sept. 28.—Seven lives were lost Saturday at Shields by the foundering of a boat that was overloaded. The party that entered the boat sank her almost to her gunwales, but as they were in perfectly smooth water there was no great danger. When, however, they got some distance out in the harbor, they encountered a small sea, which broke over the boat, and despite the efforts made to bail her, soon filled her and caused her to sink. Other boats went to the rescue, but before they could reach the people struggling in the water, seven of the party had been drowned.

He Was Pardoned.

Frankfort, Ky., Sept. 29.—Rev. J. W. Combs, a Baptist minister of Perry county, was convicted some time ago of perjury and sentenced to the penitentiary for one year. Monday he came into Frankfort without guard and asked Acting Gov. Worthington for a pardon. The acting governor examined the letters from the officials of the trial court and promptly pardoned Mr. Combs. Had the governor not pardoned him the reverend gentleman says he would have gone to the penitentiary and placed himself in charge of the warden.

Bought by Wanamaker.

New York, Sept. 29.—A positive announcement was made Monday afternoon that John Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, had bought the business of the suspended firm of Hilton, Hughes & Co. Mr. Wanamaker will start up the business again as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made. The business will be reorganized on entirely new lines.

Army of Cumberland Elect Officers.

Rockford, Ill., Sept. 25.—The Army of the Cumberland elected the following officers Thursday: President, Gen. W. S. Rosecrans; corresponding secretary, Gen. H. V. Boynton; recording secretary, J. W. Stiel; treasurer, Gen. Fullerton; historian, C. G. Mifla.

Columbus, O., was chosen as the next meeting place.

A Misplaced Switch.

Wilton, Mo., Sept. 29.—A freight train on the Missouri & Kansas railroad was wrecked here Monday by a misplaced switch. Fireman William Blake was buried under the engine and killed and Engineer John Evans was injured. The switch had been thrown by some unknown miscreant.

Murdered Her Niece.

Peoria, Ill., Sept. 29.—In a fit of insanity Monday morning, Miss Jennie King, aged 37 years, killed her brother's daughter, Grace King, nearly four months old, by pounding her on the head with a rock.

Passed Away.

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26.—Mrs. Eliza Griffin Johnson, the widow of the late Confederate Gen. Albert Sidney Johnson, died in this city Friday at the home of her son-in-law, United States Attorney Dennis. She was 74 years old. Her former home was in Kentucky.

Prof. Garber Dead.

Allentown, Pa., Sept. 29.—Davis Garber, professor of mathematics and astronomy of Muhlenberg college, died here Sunday of bowel troubles. Prof. Garber was 57 years of age. He graduated from Pennsylvania college, Gettysburg, in 1863.

A NATION OF SMOKERS.

Last Year the United States Produced 4,237,755,943 Cigars.

Detroit, Mich., Sept. 29.—Nearly 300 delegates were present in Turner hall Monday morning when President G. W. Perkins called the twenty-first session of the Cigarmakers' International Union of America to order. Thomas Dolan, representing the local unions, made an address of welcome, which was responded to by President Perkins. A committee on credentials was appointed and the convention adjourned until afternoon.

At the afternoon session President Perkins read his report, which was an exhaustive one. The report shows that the cigar trade has not materially improved, although there has been a slight increase in the output. The total product for consumption in the United States alone for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, was 4,237,755,943 cigars. The total number of factories of all kinds reported is 14,070, of which number 7,147 are strictly union and 6,925 are mixed and nonunion. The union factories give employment to 12,278 union hand workmen and 15,247 union mold workmen. The open shops employ 10,675 union and nonunion persons. The total amount of wages paid out per year is $41,767,989 and the value of the product is $129,693,275.

BROKE THE RECORD.

Gimm Rides a Bicycle Over 486 Miles in Less Than Twenty-Four Hours.

Chicago, Sept. 26.—Louis Gimm, of Pittsburgh, lowered the American professional bicycle record for 24 hours (paced), which he held and won a purse of $400 at the Coliseum Friday night. The 24 hours expired at nine o'clock, but Gimm was an easy winner at 8:36. He covered 486 miles 1,151 yards in 23 hours and 36 minutes. Fifteen thousand people saw the finish and enthusiastically cheered the winner. Gimm finished in bad shape physically. Frank Walker, of New York, who holds a 24-hour record of 490 miles, made in London, rode a hard finish and came in second. He was in better condition than any of the other riders. He rode 482 miles 968 yards in 24 hours. Fred Schimmer, of Chicago, who recently was made a professional, got third money, covering 462 miles 567 yards. C. W. Miller, of Chicago, started out as a likely winner, but finished fourth with 459 miles 233 yards to his credit. Lyman Myers, of Minneapolis, and Bert Harding, of St. Louis, scored 400 miles and over to get special prizes and then quit. A. Schoch, of Minneapolis, broke all records for continuous riding. He rode 273 miles without getting off his wheel, and in 400 miles was off only two minutes.

CLOSED UP.

Poor Business Causes Big Mills in Cleveland to Quit.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 26.—The Broadway Flour Milling company shut up shop and went out of business Friday afternoon, and its plant, machinery and stock are now for sale. This is the result of a long season of bad business and still worse prospects for the future. The company decided, after a long deliberation, to close up its affairs before it got any deeper in the hole, and liquidate its present indebtedness. This news created a great stir in commercial circles about town, as it was understood that the Broadway Mills company was one of the soundest institutions of the city and was supposed to be doing a thriving business. The capital stock of the company, of which George V. Lewis was president, was $150,000. The plant, including machinery, was valued at $145,000.

Break the Records.

Trenton, N. J., Sept. 29.—The national circuit meet of the League of American Wheelmen opened at the annual interstate fair at this place Monday, and as a result over 10,000 persons were present, the largest in the history of the fair. John S. Johnson, paced by two quads and a triplet, beat all previous public records for one mile, crossing the tape in 1:47 flat, the best previous time being 1:48¾, made by Tyler at Waltham, Mass., in 1894. "Jimmy" Michael, the Welshman, paced by two quads and a triplet, covered five miles in 9:51 4-5, the fastest time ever made on any track.

Trust Deed for $50,000,000.

St. Louis, Sept. 29.—The St. Louis & San Francisco Railway company has filed in the recorder's office here a deed of trust on all the property of the company to secure the payment of $50,000,000 in four per cent. bonds. The bonds are to be paid in gold coin of the United States of the present weight and fineness. There are 50,000 bonds of the denomination of $1,000 each, and they mature in 100 years.

Vote Against the Women.

Indiana, Pa., Sept. 29.—At Monday's session of the Pittsburgh conference of the M. E. church the question referring to the admission of women as members of the general conference was discussed behind closed doors and voted upon. The women advocates made a gallant fight, but were defeated by five votes.

Condition of the Reserve.

Washington, Sept. 29.—The net gold in the treasury at the close of business Monday stood at $122,045,550. The gold withdrawn at New York amounted to $98,200. There was received at New York $2,000,000 in gold in exchange for currency.

Fire at Omaha, Neb.

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 28.—Fire at Essex, Ia., Friday night did about $8,000 damage to buildings and stocks, the chief losers being A. E. Seabron, general store and stock, $4,000; C. L. Beech, restaurant, $1,000; Fred Newquist, drugs, $1,000. Firemen from Red Oak and Shenandoah lent aid.

Marshal Shot Dead.

Rome, Ga., Sept. 28.—J. R. Tidwell, marshal of Seney, Ga., was shot dead by Lester Echols, whom he had arrested for drunkenness Friday night. Echols escaped. He is being hunted with bloodhounds.

British Seamen Drowned.

London, Sept. 28.—The admiralty has received a dispatch from Nagasaki, Japan, stating that a boat belonging to H. M. S. Narcissis (armored cruiser) capsized September 11 in Fish river, and that Capt. Lang and three seamen were drowned.

Incendiary Fire.

Clinton, Ia., Sept. 28.—Fire of incendiary origin almost totally destroyed the four-story stone building of the Northern Illinois college Saturday morning at Fulton, Ill., across the river from here. The loss is estimated at $20,000.

SPREE ENDS IN DEATH.

A Brutal Father Chased by a Mob Drowns Himself.

Cleveland, O., Sept. 28.—Just before dark Sunday night Edward Wald, a ship carpenter residing at 53 Mulberry street, narrowly escaped lynching at the hands of an infuriated mob of west side citizens. Wald came home under the influence of liquor, quarreled with his wife and finally struck her. The 14-year-old son Edward seized his father's arm and entreated him to quiet down, whereupon the brute became enraged and threw the boy down the stairway leading to the street, a distance of 20 feet. The little fellow screamed for help and rolled out of the open doorway into the street writhing in convulsions and frothing at the mouth. Dr. C. A. Turner was summoned to attend the boy, and a crowd quickly collected to revenge the brutal outrage. Rev. John McHale, a Catholic priest, was hastened to the scene and administered the last rites of the church to the dying boy. Meanwhile the crowd increased to a mob, which was goaded into fury by the sight of the helpless child struggling in convulsions on the pavement until the clamor for revenge swelled to an ominous roar. An impromptu delegation of 40 forced their way into the house to drag out the inhuman father, and others were dispatched for a rope. Wald had locked himself in a bedroom. The door was broken open, and the brute dragged into the street, fighting desperately. The police arrived before the rope appeared and thus intercepted a lynching. The mob gave battle to the police, determined not to allow Wald to escape them. During the scrimmage the prisoner broke loose from those who were holding him and ran down an alley toward the river. The mob was close at his heels and when the fugitive reached the river, knowing that his chance for life was less than even if captured, plunged into the cold, muddy water of the Cuyagho and was drowned. His body has not been recovered. The boy will die and the wife's injuries may also prove fatal.

A STEP FORWARD.

A Distinct Improvement Is Shown in Business Circles.

New York, Sept. 26.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"A very moderate and yet distinct improvement is seen, no longer one in the buying of materials, which continues and stiffens prices, but also in orders for products of some industries in money markets, and in exports of staples. It is as yet little more than a step toward better things, but has already started some important works and prompted a few considerable contracts. While the gain in working force is not great, it seems clear that for the first time in many months there is some net gain.

"An important change is the general advance in produce markets, especially in wheat, which rose sharply on Thursday and Friday, closing 5½ cents higher for the week. Reports of crops abroad were supposed to be the chief cause, as visible supplies in this country increased largely, but for the first time since July 1, western receipts fell below those of the same week last year. If there should be an unusual foreign demand it would make a great difference with future business.

"Cotton advanced an eighth a week ago but lost three-sixteenths, and with full receipts might have gone farther but for resumption of work by several important mills. Much less than the full capacity of mills is working, and the demand for goods has been quite slack, with a decline of a sixteenth in print cloths, but in other goods recent advances are maintained. A few o. the woolen mills are resuming, the belated demand for heavy goods constituting most of the gain visible, but manufacturers show confidence that more goods will be wanted when the future is more clear.

"Finished products of iron meet more inquiry, and the placing of contracts for 15,000 tons of steel for three new battle ships, for one large building here and for several bridges, explain the starting of two or three works, but after such months as have passed a little business is a gain. There is no gain in the boot and shoe manufacture.

"Failures for the week have been 315 in the United States, against 216 last year, and 39 in Canada, against 50 last year."

FASTEST OF ALL.

John R. Gentry Paces a Mile at Portland, Me., in 2:00 1-2.

Portland, Me., Sept. 25. — Thursday was an eventful day at the Rigby track because the world's pacing record was broken by John R. Gentry, the magnificent horse pacing the fastest mile ever made in harness and placing the world's record at only half a second over two minutes, or 2:00½. Gentry was driven by W. S. Andrews. His record before starting was 2:01½, which he made September 8 at Glens Falls, N. Y., in the second heat of a race with Star Pointer.

Horrors of Insurrection.

Madrid, Sept. 25.—A dispatch to the Imparcial from Hong Kong says that steamers which have arrived there from Manilla, the capital of the Philippine islands, brings the announcement that Cavite is occupied by 15,000 insurgents. Over 100 monks have been murdered in the islands since the breaking out of the insurrection. Many of the victims have been fastened to trees, their clothing having been soaked with kerosene oil and then ignited and burned to death.

Monument to Hans Christian Andersen.

Chicago, Sept. 28.—A handsome granite monument of Hans Christian Andersen, Denmark's favorite poet, and one of the world's best story tellers, was unveiled at Lincoln park Saturday afternoon. The statue is the work of Johannes Gelert, of this city, and cost $10,000. Preceding the exercises at the park there was a parade of Danish societies from the Auditorium to the grounds where the festivities were held.

Fix the Blame of Mine Disaster.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 26.—William Stein, Edward Roderick and Edward Brennen, the three state mine inspectors appointed to investigate the Twin shaft disaster at Pittston, the 6th of July last, whereby 58 lives were lost, have made their report to Gov. Hastings. The inspectors say that in their opinion, Mr. Lagen, who was in charge of the work at the mine, erred in judgment in going so far into the mine from the bottom of the shaft. They say his error of judgment was the cause of the loss of his own life as well as of those subordinate to him.

More Tollgates Wrecked.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Sept. 28. — A mob wrecked four toll gates in Mercer county, Friday night. At Cheeselick the mob forced Andy Yocum, the keeper, to get out of bed and chop the gate down. The mob was heavily armed, and Yocum was told that if he collected any more toll they would return and dynamite his house.

Contract Secured by a Louisville Firm.

Washington, Sept. 28.—The contract for the erection of the Youngstown (O.) public building has been awarded to Bailey, Koerner & Co., of Louisville, Ky., at $31,894.

A QUEER BELIEF.

The Place of Torment to Which Wicked Buddhists Are Consigned.

The place of torment to which all wicked Buddhists are to be assigned on the day of final reckoning is a terrible place of punishment. The Buddhistic hell is a sort of apartment house, divided into eight "easy stages." In the first the poor victim is compelled to walk for untold ages in his bare feet over hills thickly set with red-hot needles, points upward. In the second stage the skin is carefully filed or rasped from the body and irritating mixtures are applied. In the third stage the nails, hair and eyes are plucked out and the denuded body sawed and planed into all sorts of fantastic shapes.

The fourth stage is that of "sorrowful lamentations." In the fifth the left side of the body and the denuded head are carefully roasted, Yoma, the Buddhist Satan, superintending the work. In the sixth stage the arms are torn from the body and thrown into an immense vat among the eyes, nails and hair previously removed. Then in plain hearing of the sore-footed, blind, maimed, roasted and bleeding victim the whole horrid mass is pounded into jelly. In the seventh stage the other side of the victim and his feet are roasted brown and then comes the eighth and last stage, in which the candidate is thrown into the bottomless pit of perdition.

The Basin Diskboat.

The new disk steamship, the invention of M. Bazin, was launched at St. Denis dockyard. Admiral Coulombeaud, who has a high repute among French naval authorities, is said to be a firm believer in the possibilities of this new invention, and he has computed that only one-twenty-eighth of the power required to drive an ordinary boat is needed for a Bazin craft of the same size and speed. The diskboat of M. Bazin is by no means the first attempt to apply the roller principle to navigation, but heretofore the rollers have been made to perform the duty of paddle-wheels, or propellers; in the new boat they are merely devices to overcome friction, and the report of M. Bazin's experiments indicate that he has been markedly successful.

Child Marriages in India.

In India there are 100,000 boys and 627,000 girls under the age of 14 who are legally married, while 8,600 boys and 24,000 girls who have not attained the age of four are under marriage bonds as arranged by their parents.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

THE BABY'S FIRST SMILE.

There's many a pleasure we meet with in life,
Of joy there is many a thrill;
There are transports that come in the midst of the strife,
When the noise of the conflict is still.
But there's naught in this world so wond'rously sweet,
From Greenland's white snows to the Nile,
There's nothing so heavenly, pure and complete
As a dear little baby's first smile.

The lover's first kiss—we know it is fine;
Its memory will haunt us for aye;
Though the flowers may fade and the stars may decline,
Its rapture will never decay.
Yet not for a moment can we compare
What may have a tincture of guile,
In an Eden of blossoms so fragrant and fair,
With an innocent baby's first smile.

An angel, perhaps, is a beautiful sight,
But an angel we never have seen,
And far, far away on the regions of light,
With their daisy-starred meadows so green;
But we are content when here we behold,
Encumbered with burdens the while,
A gleam from the city whose streets are of gold,
In a sweet little baby's first smile.
—George W. Crofts, in Chicago Inter Ocean.

A SHIPWRECKED CREW.

BY GEORGE H. COOMER.

"That fine-looking boy who holds the bat," said the new master, indicating a young lad in the center of the playground, "is one of my best pupils. He is English, and was brought here a year ago, after being taken from a wreck."

"Ah," I replied, "you like him, then. I am glad of that. As to his studies, there is certainly one in which he will be likely to excel, and that is geography."

"Geography!" exclaimed the master. "It is really a pleasure to hear the little fellow recite it. He fairly devours it. I think he would be able to floor the committee in that branch of study."

The new master was a grave, elderly man, who, whenever I met him, seemed to take pleasure in talking to me, though our acquaintance had been only for a week or two.

But now Arthur, the English boy, catching sight of my calico shirt and blue jacket, came eagerly to the spot where we stood; and then, for the first time, the teacher knew that his young pupil and myself were fast friends.

"You must tell me the story, from first to last," he said, after listening to the greeting between Arthur and me, in which we had dropped some remarks that aroused his curiosity. "I must hear it, for I feel a great interest in both of you."

We seated ourselves on the schoolhouse steps—the master, Arthur and I. But how difficult it seemed to realize the past and feel that this happy schoolboy had ever looked upon terrors so dreadful as those amid which I had once seen him, far out upon the great deep.

How his bright eyes sparkled or moistened, as I related the circumstances which had, a year before, brought us acquainted, and which I will repeat in substance for the reader:

I had sailed in the ship Altai, bound for Maranham, in Brazil, and on the equator we were becalmed for 23 days.

There was from the first, a sail in sight, which after a time was brought quite near us by those momentary puffs of air which will occasionally ripple the water in such a calm; and we at length found her to be the whaling brig Catherwood, of London, Capt. Dore.

Her officers were several times on board of us, while the vessels lazily drifted within half a mile of each other, and it seemed very pleasant to meet such neighborly people upon the ocean. They laughed, however, when we complained of the tediousness of our passage, which had up to that time occupied five or six weeks, and said they had not seen land for seven months!

It was then that I first saw young Arthur, whom I found to be the captain's son. Mrs. Dore, the lad's mother, was also making the voyage; and coming on board with the others fairly charmed our crew with her sweet face and manner.

Seven months out from port, the captain's wife and son were hungry for books and papers, and we were happy in being able to supply them, in exchange for the well-thumbed reading matter which they brought us from their brig.

Capt. Dore told us that as soon as the calm should be over, he would go northwardly, toward the West Indies, to give everybody a good run ashore; but that he did not wish to enter Maranham, near which we then were, as a vessel he had spoken had reported the yellow fever there, and he feared for his wife and boy.

When the wind again sprang up, we stood for the Brazilian coast, while the Catherwood bore away to the north, carrying away with her more domestic happiness than I had ever before associated with the idea of a whaler.

Arthur waved his handkerchief to us from the maintop, and then dimmer and dimmer grew the white sails of the English brig, till even her main royal disappeared—a demonstration, if any were needed, that the world is a mere ball.

We lay at Maranhan for a number of weeks, then started on the return passage. Once more at sea I speculated on the chances of again falling in with the Catherwood; but the old proverb of "a needle in a haystack," naturally recurred to me, as I felt how improbable it was that we would meet with her. In the meantime, I had been much interested in the whaler's books, and wondered how Mrs. Dore and her boy liked those which they had obtained from the big merchant ship.

But we were fast sweeping to the northward. The West India islands were passed, and I ceased to think of the English brig as hovering anywhere near our path.

One night, however, when we were almost up with Bermuda, I dreamed of going on board the Catherwood, and seeing her crew in the most terrible distress. I have little faith in dreams, yet so vivid was the impression conveyed by the one in question, that during all the following watch I felt my spirits oppressed by a melancholy which would permit me to think only of shipwreck, starvation and death.

It was early that forenoon, when one of our men, at work aloft, reported an unusual object off the lee-bow. Upon standing in its direction, we discovered it to be a portion of a vessel's deck, on which were five men. Yet they hardly seemed men, for their faces and forms were those of frightful skeletons. They had almost lost the power of articulation, and not one of them was able to rise upon his feet.

After being carefully lifted to our deck, they showed an anxiety to inform us of others of their vessel's crew who were somewhere drifting in a like condition. Three or four of us ran aloft, away up to the royal mast heads.

In a moment or two we hailed the deck, announcing a discovery, and the ship was headed for the forlorn object which we made out upon the distant waters.

We came down from our lookout to find one of the five poor sufferers already dying, and our kind-hearted tars doing all in their power to alleviate the misery of the others.

That portion of the wreck for which we were steering was soon visible to all hands, and as we hove-to and towed it alongside with our boat, it was seen that among the nine persons who lay upon it were a woman and a boy.

Until this moment I had not connected the Catherwood with the tragic scene, but the sight of these two inspired a sudden thought of her, and recalled my dream of the night before.

Yet that they could be Mrs. Dore and her son appeared almost impossible—this ghastly woman and boy who resembled nothing living that I had ever seen before.

The child appeared at the point of death, but the woman, although very weak, seemed to have borne up better than any other of the sufferers. She could speak with no great difficulty, and her first words, upon being handed over the ship's side, were those of anxiety for her boy.

"Do not mind me now," she said. "Attend to him. Oh, do not tell me that he is past help!"

Still, we could not see in her Mrs. Dore, or in her son the little lad we had so petted as a most welcome visitor only a few weeks before.

But presently she added:

"We belong to the brig Catherwood. I remember your faces. I came on board your ship off Brazil. Save my poor boy! Oh, to lose him now, after all this suffering!"

Her woeful, sunken eyes were wholly dry, as she spoke, but those of our honest sailors were moist indeed.

In the meantime, one of the unfortunates had already breathed his last on our deck, and most of the others looked as if they must soon follow him.

There were now 13 remaining, five of whom died within three days; but Capt. Dore, with his wife and boy, and five of the foremost hands, began slowly to mend.

They told us that the Catherwood had been caught in a hurricane to the southwest of Bermuda. Her masts were swept by the board, and she became water-logged, but the oil she had below prevented her sinking. The casks, however, thumped so heavily as, after some days, to start the deck, which, breaking into two parts, floated with the crew, the remainder of the vessel going down.

There had been 25 persons on board, of whom three were lost in the hurricane, while eight had died of starvation before our ship love in sight; the only morsel of food tasted by the sufferers during their ordeal of 14 days having been the carcass of a small dog belonging to the captain.

A week after the rescue, we placed the survivors safe on shore at our own port, where in a few months they regained their former strength.

Capt. Dore, being under no necessity of returning to England, accepted the command of a fine American whaleman, while Arthur, as intelligent as modest, became the most popular boy in the school of his suburban neighborhood.

By the time I had told the master the story, the boys had all gathered around; and I left them standing, with looks of admiring sympathy, about their little marine associate, who had seen and suffered so much more than themselves.—Golden Days.

Not Disloyal.

A number of years ago, in a section where the methods of holding elections were notoriously loose, a man who had in his employ a large number of negroes was nominated for a municipal office. One of his workmen was an especial favorite, and the candidate was a good deal surprised to hear that this particular employe had voted the other ticket. Summoning him to the office, he said:

"Jerry, haven't I always treated you well?"

"Fus' rate, boss. I's allus said dat, I has, 'bout de fines' white folks dat is."

"Then why did you go back on me?"

"When does you mean?"

"At de election."

"I didn't go back on yer."

"There's no use of trying to conceal it. You voted against me at the election."

"'Deed I didn't, suh. Dem fellers come ter me an' dey wanted my vote. An' I wasn't goin' to lose de chance ter do sumpin' tow'ds cripplin' 'em financially."

"So you did vote for the other man?"

"Yassuh. I was under contract ter do dat much, an' I couldn' break mer promise. But I only voted foh him once, an' I done voted foh you nine times, suh."—Detroit Free Press.

Abbot Islip's Rebus.

One of the greatest of the many abbots who have ruled the abbey was Islip, who held office in the sixteenth century. He had a genius for architecture, and did so much toward the building of Westminster and other cathedrals throughout the kingdom that he is known in history as "the great builder." His body lies buried at Westminster in a little chapel called by his name, near the west entrance. In designing and building this chapel the abbot made the room itself a monument to his memory by repeating over and over again in the elaborate carved stone frieze which adorns the wall his favorite rebus or name sign—an eye, with the branch, or "slip," of a tree, grasped by a hand; and, as a second form, a man slipping from the branch of a tree to the ground.—Max Bennett Thrasher, in St. Nicholas.

Prone to Error.

"He seems to be a little empty in the upper story," said the one who knew him not.

"Beg your pardon, but you are entirely wrong," said the one who knew him well. "He is full to the muzzle."

Which shows how prone to error one may be on a superficial information.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

A Snake Bite.

Carl Strom, the 4-year old child of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strom, residing at St. Paul, died Sunday of what is thought to have been a snake bite. Mrs. Strom with her three children have been spending the summer in the country near Hastings. Friday, Carl came to his mother and complained of a pain in his left foot. He said that a frog had bitten him. The mother thought it was only a slight matter, but on Saturday morning the boy's foot had become so swollen that a doctor was called. He questioned the lad and came to the conclusion that it was a snake which had bitten the boy. There were two little red marks on the foot which looked much like a snake bite. The doctor could do nothing with the case, however, and after a day of intense suffering little Carl died.

A Stabbing Affray.

At Glyndon Mike Rider, a clerk in a merchandise store, became mixed up in a quarrel with some hobos, in which he received a stab in the back with a pocket knife, inflicting a very serious wound. Dr. Awty, city physician of Moorhead, was called to attend to the wounded man. The knife blade had broken off in Rider's back after penetrating about four inches. After the doctor had returned to Moorhead he received a telephone message saying the wounded man had commenced to spit blood, which would indicate that the knife blade had penetrated one of Rider's lungs.

A Bit of Romance.

A young woman employed by the Winona Produce company may secure a husband in a somewhat novel manner. A few days ago, in candling eggs, she came across one on the shell of which there was writing. Examination showed it to be the address of a young farmer living north of Winona, accompanied by the request that some girl correspond with him. The Winona maiden answered, and in reply received a letter stating that the farmer was 19 years old and would like to marry. He owned a house and 40 acres of good land and considerable money besides.

May Discharge for Cause.

Attorney General Childs has transmitted an opinion to Superintendent of Public Instruction Pendergast, holding that school trustees have the power to discharge teachers for cause. The question arose from a case in Blue Earth county, where one of the teachers was charged with grossly immoral conduct. The law gives the power to revoke certificates to the county superintendent, and the question was if the board could discharge the teacher if the superintendent failed to act.

The Capital.

The specifications for the structural iron work of the subbasement floor of the new state capitol will be ready for inspection by prospective bidders in a few days. At the last meeting of the commission it was directed that an invitation be published asking for bids, which will be opened at the next meeting, Oct. 6. After the subbasement floor has been laid it is probable that work will cease until next spring.

Through a Bridge.

Charles Rystrom fell from the East Seventh street bridge in St. Paul and was quite seriously bruised. He was riding a bicycle, and in attempting to cross the bridge did not notice that some of the flooring had been torn up. In one of the open places he was thrown from his wheel and fell to the ground 20 feet below. His injuries will not prove fatal.

News in Brief.

Ignatius Donnelly has been nominated for the state senate by the populists of Dakota county.

A postoffice has been established at Garnes, Polk county, with Ellef K. Gjernes as postmaster.

A young man from Luverne was injured while handling a thresher engine near Woodstock and died soon after. He was backing the engine toward the separator and crushed himself against the self-feeder.

Burglars entered A. W. Stone's hardware store at Bird Island and took over $50 worth of cutlery, revolvers, etc.

The supreme court has decided the range 44 cases and these six towns which Wilkin county has been trying to get will remain in Otter Tail.

Nearly 100 bids were received for the construction of 59 miles of county road, Duluth to Eveleth. Bids were received on both cash and bond basis. The cash basis bids were about $30,000 less than the bond bids.

Dog License Inspector Hicks, of Minneapolis, reports that the city took in charge this season 800 dogs, 700 of which were killed.

Dick Price, of Fairmont, was nominated for congress in the Second district by the prohibition convention. He will enter the race and work for election.

The Northern Pacific is using its new grade on the Lake Superior division between Duluth and Staples. The same power required to move 1,000 tons on the old grade moves 1,400 tons on the new.

The village of Elba was visited by a destructive fire. The blaze started in the saloon of Mike Goerin, which is connected with the Clawson House. This latter building was also soon destroyed. The saloon and residence of John Mouer went last.

L. D. Marshall, of the St. Anthony and Dakota elevator company, has been looking over the new stations on the Halstad line, and selecting sites for elevators. The company will build four, one at E. D. Child's farm in Andover, one at Climax, one at Neilsville and one at the Marsh river crossing in Norman county, and a fifth may be erected midway between the Andover station and Climax.

The new passenger steamer North Land, of the Hill line, was sunk at her dock in Duluth, as a result of negligence on the part of workmen employed in taking her machinery apart for the winter. The damage is slight.

Attorney General Childs rules that while to all intents and purposes the populists and democrats are one party, having fused upon presidential electors, congressmen governor and the county and city ticket, they are still two parties and as such are entitled to a judge of election at every polling place in the state, provided they ask for his appointment.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doud, of Winona, celebrated their golden wedding the 24th.

An elevator and warehouse at New Paynesville was burned and the depot partially destroyed.

PUNGENT PARAGRAPHS.

—"You look frightfully gloomy, Simpkins; are you in debt?" "No, the trouble is I can't get a chance to be."—Chicago Record.

—"I told her I would lay the world at her feet." "What did she say?" "She said if I was that athletic I ought to be traveling with a show."—Chicago Record.

—Combination.—"Oh, you just ought to see our flat," she exclaimed, enthusiastically. "We've the loveliest combination kitchen and folding-bed that ever was."—Detroit Tribune.

—"Smart woman, Jones' wife." "Why?" "Found she talked in her sleep; studied awhile, and now she lectures him all night without disturbing her own slumbers!"—Larks.

—"Are you a socialist?" asked a Texas colonel, poising his pocket-flask in the air as he regarded his chance acquaintance suspiciously. "I am." "Then you will excuse me if I drink before passing the flask."—Texas Sifter.

—The Little Critic.—"I think that must be a splendid book, Aunt Jennie." "Why do you think so, dear?" "Because, when you read the author's description of that midnight scene, I got just as sleepy as I could be—just as if it really was midnight."—Harper's Bazar.

—"Henry," said she, "wake up. I believe there is a man in the house." "Well, what if there is?" said Henry, sleepily. "If there was a woman in the house, do you suppose I would go to the trouble of waking you up and telling you about it?" By this time Henry was awake and explaining.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE ART OF NURSING.

A London Professional Who Does Not Believe in a "Born" Nurse.

A woman who is a trained nurse, occupying, after years of practice, a superior place in a London hospital, has been giving a course of lectures on her profession. Her first proposition at a recent talk was that there is no such thing as a born nurse; the habit of observation was a duty and the basis of nursing, which was an art only learned by practice.

Among some practical utterances of the speaker were: "A sunny sickroom, one that was entered by the sun once in 24 hours, is desirable; patients placed on the south side in a hospital ward recover sooner, by ten days to a fortnight, than those on the north side. Plenty of light is beneficial, except in cases of brain disease. The less furniture in the room the better, and to keep it clean a damp duster should be used instead of a dry one. The air must be kept as pure inside as outside, and there was little or no risk about having the window open, top and bottom, if the patient were well covered, head included, and a good fire kept burning. Night air is not injurious; it is purer in a city after ten p. m. than at any other time. The bed should never be in a corner, but accessible from all points. In fever and surgical cases, a 'cradle' had sometimes to be used to keep off the weight of the bedclothes; an impromptu cradle could be made out of a bandbox, with the bottom knocked out. Bedmaking was the grammar and keystone of nursing; many regular nurses could not make a good bed. It was important to act with decision when the time came for any office, and not to worry the patient by hesitation or talking of what was to be done; to tread quietly, but firmly; not on tiptoe, and never to whisper to a third person. Every effort ought to be made to secure for the patient two hours' sleep before midnight. Amateur nurses often broke down through neglecting to take food when keeping watch through the night. — St. Louis Republic.

A FAMILY DISCUSSION.

But Mr. Boram Fails to Take a Hand in It.

Boram abhors anything frivolous, and when he sat down to dinner the other day it was with a determination to carry on a rational and pleasant conversation such as the doctor had assured him would promote digestion and good health. "There was one thing remarkable about that St. Louis con—" he began.

"Quit scrouging me," shouted the youngest as he landed on the short rib of his sister with a pointed elbow.

"There was one remark—"

"Jist a drop more cream in this here coffee," from the country uncle, who was in to spend a few days, to the head of the table.

"Ahem! There was one re—"

"I scorched on the avenue last night," broke in the shock-headed boy who is in the seventh grade. "I wasn't skeered of no policeman. I give 'em the hyenar laugh."

"There was one remarkable—"

"Sarah, when I sound the buzzer you are expected to respond at once," said Mrs. Boram as the maid of all work appeared. "Help Mr. Boram to some more butter."

"There was one—"

"I don't mind Edith Wobberly borrowing books from me," cut in the eldest, "but she's got to return them or I will choke off the supply. Some people never do know anything."

"There wa—"

"There has been so much rain this season that we can't count on more an half a crop of anything. Never saw the like in my life. I'm clean discouraged," and the bucolic uncle mopped his florid countenance with a bandana.

"Were you going to say something, papa?" queried Mrs. Boram of her husband.

"Not a thing. Don't let me interrupt this highly edifying conversation. Pass the red pepper."—Detroit Free Press.

Cats Around the Farm.

Rats infesting the granaries and cribs on the farm have always been a source of a great deal of annoyance and only occasionally do we see the receptacles for corn and grain so constructed as to be rat proof. To make them so requires a good deal of extra effort. We believe plenty of good cats are preferable to rats. A supply of female cats will keep the farm rid of rats, and they need not be kept about the house either. They can be taught to stay where they are needed.—Coleman's Rural World.

WATER PIPES GUARD CONVICTS.

When Prisoners Cut the Pipes Water Escapes and Guards Are Thereby Alarmed.

A new idea in jail construction has recently been successfully tested in Boston. In brief, the scheme is to construct the cells of hollow pipes and fill them with water. When a pipe is served the water escapes, and by a system of registers in the office of the jail the fact is made known, as well as the particular cell where the pipes have been attacked. No attempt is made to have the pipes particularly hard. Common gas pipe is as good as any and will answer every purpose. The water is kept under a high pressure so that it will be sure to give the alarm when the pipe is severed.

Under the usual system of jail construction it is aimed to make the bars so hard that saws will not affect them; or, at best, so hard that cutting would be a slow progress. But convicts in jails are as clever as the men who construct jail cells, and methods have been discovered for taking the temper out of the hardest steel. Nitric acid will do, and so will common candle. If the flame of the latter is kept for several days close against a bar of chilled steel it will be made so soft that a common steel saw will cut it. Solid steel plates have been eaten with acids and escape made possible. The filling of hollow pipes with water seems to be a good thing.

CAUSTIC IN MOTHS.

Discovery of the Substance Used in Escaping from Cocoons.

A most remarkable entomological discovery has been announced by Oswald Latter, the great naturalist. It is to the effect that the imago of the moth Dicranura vinula secretes a pure caustic potash which it uses to penetrate the tough silken bag or cocoon in which it is inclosed, says the St. Louis Republic.

Caustic potash is, as most everyone knows, a powerful caustic which destroys skin and flesh when brought in contact with it. That it should be secreted or formed in the mouth or internal anatomy of any living creature is so singular and unlikely that the entomologists were at first inclined to disbelieve the story as related by Mr. Latter, in telling of his discovery.

It has long been known that this particular species of moth used some kind of liquid with which to soften the cocoon when he arrived at the age when nature hinted that it was time to get rid of the silken envelope, but Mr. Latter's experiments have for the first time disclosed the nature of that liquid. Prof. Latter made this singular discovery by clipping the ends from cocoons and catching the liquid when it was ejected. This he subjected to chemical analysis.

HOT SPRINGS, VA.,

$400 Truck Farms in Virginia.

September 1st and 15th and October 6 and 20 Home Seekers' Excursion tickets will be sold from points in the west and northwest over the Big Four Route and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. to Virginia at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. Those who have investigated the state are of one opinion, that Virginia is the best state in the Union today for farmers. Situated at the doors of the great eastern markets with cheap transportation and a perfect climate it has advantages that cannot be overcome. Small farms may be had for $10 per acre and upward according to location and improvements. For descriptive pamphlet of Virginia, list of desirable farms and excursion rates address U. L. Truitt, N. Summer Resorts on the Monon.

The Summer resorts on the Monon Route are having a "big season." West Baden and French Lick Springs are more popular than ever, and Paoli has started a new sanitarium to take the overflow. The waters of these springs have been recommended by prominent physicians as superior in their curative properties to those of Hot Springs, White Sulphur, or even the noted spas and "bads" of Germany. West Baden indeed has been fitly called "the Carlsbad of America." Cedar Lake is prettier than ever and just as full of fish. The railroad company has a fine park there and is soon to build a new station.

DELANO, FRIDAY, OCT. 2, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--This is Vol. IX, No. 1.

—Landlord Gilmer is improving the Danforth House in appearence and convenience.

—John Coolen will soon move his hardware stock into the New building on River St.

—The Delano Democratic Committee for the next two years is T. J. Catlin, R. M. Bohn and Frank Cramer.

—The K. P.s entertainment in the City Hall Saturday night, by the Schubert Symphony Club, will be worth hearing.

—Some miscreant stole Mrs. Bain's honey and destroyed the bees, last week. They must have been hard up for sweetening.

--The wedding of Mr. John Mayer and Miss Sopha Soshnek, will take place at the Catholic Church next Tuesday at 10:30, A. M.

—The new cement sidewalk has been extended to the corner of 2nd street and R. R. Ave. and that corner now presents Metropolitan airs.

—"Honest Dollar" by Prof. E. A. Ross can be had of Charles H. Kerr & Co., 56 Fifth Aye., Chicago. It wants the goldite to get out of our sunshine.

—Mrs. Mac Anderson has received from the government a nice tomb stone which she has placed at her husbands graye, in the cemetery south of town.

—Mrs. O. Anderson and family moved last week to Springfield to make their home on the farm with Mr. Anderson. S. J. Cooper occupies their old home, and H. S. Gilmer now runs the Danforth House.

--A confidence game was worked on a lot of working men at Little Falls the other day. The report says J. A. Konka secured money from a number of men supposed to amount to about $300, and now can't be found.

—If Prof. Wharton's friends hadn't cheered so vigorously before he began to speak at all, and so inordinately and inopportunely afterwards we might have been inducad to believe his arguments had some weight in the debate last night.

--We recently received a sample copy of "Up to Date," an illustrated paper published in Chicago, the only one of the kind coming out squarely for W. J. Bryan for President. Its cartoons are up to date, as good as any in the country. 5 cts per copy. 10 issues for 50 cts.

—Dr. Ames, of Minneapolis, made a very good speech here, Saturday evening, to a large audience. There were present some who would like to vote for him, but when they think that he has no show of being elected and that Mr. Lind needs the votes to aid in breaking up the state rings, they will probably refrain from throwing their votes away.

—"If not Silver What?" by John W. Bookwalter, is a handy book for reference on the leading questions of the day. It handles the question from a bimetallic standpoint in an able manner. It can be had by addressing A. L. Claypool & Co. Springfield, Ohio, until Nov. 1st. One copy, bound in cloth, postage prepaid, 40 cts., paper cover, 20 cts.

—S. W. Belford, of Denyer, addressed a fair sized audience at the City Hall, on Tuesday evening on the political questions of the day from the standpoint of a bimetallist. Mr. Belford is an eloquent and instructive talker, and he warmed up to his subject. His speech was well received. Mr. Cutting made a short speech after Mr. Belford had finished his.

The Schubert Mandolin and Guitar club will render some very bewitching selections upon three mandolins, two guitars, violin and cello at the Schuberts concert on Saturday Oct. 3.

We have no recollection of so inviting a musical program as that of the Schuberts Symphony Club and Lady Quartette which appears here on Oct. 3 having been before offered our readers. Look over their program carefully and you will agree with that it is too inviting to miss attending.

—The M. E. Ladies Aid Society held a nice sociable at the City Hall, on Tuesday evening. They had a good supper and a fine programme. The latter was not rendered as the announcement had been made that S. W. Belford, would speak there at that time. Several politicians collected five dollars and gave it to the Ladies as an inducement for them to hurry up their exercises. Mr. Burt, of Big flats, N. Y. an early setler in this neighborhood, now here on a visit donated another five dollars. So the Ladies were well pleased with their supper and their proceeds.

—The hall was well filled last night, though the croud came late. to hear the debate between Prof. Wharton and Dr. Catlin. The disputants were new in the field and did not have their material for reference as handy and their speeches as well arranged as they should, but succeeded in a rambling way, in getting most of the points before the audience. The only way to know anything about such questions as the one now to be settled, the money question, is to study it, and a good many points were presented last night which we hope will be looked up by the voters before election.

--George Rogers says he attended the Schubert concert at Montivideo, Wednesday night, and it was the best he had seen for 400 years. They will be here Saturday night.

--Bicyclists still insist on making a race track of the sidewalks much to the inconvenience of pedestrians and others. Why don't our City Authorities have the ordinances respected?

Personal.

Otis Billings, of Minneapolis was in town today.

Rev. Allen, of Minneapolis, visited with Rev. Davies this week.

Prof. Hawker presided with dignity at the discussion last night.

Miss Irene Cheeley has resigned her position in the Elk River schools.

Mrs. C. F. Peters, of Minneapolis, visited Delano friends this week.

Timothy Gleeson, of Minneapolis was visiting Delano friends to-day.

Mrs. George Bolton and daughter went to Minneapolis this morning.

Mrs. Alice Davis left this morning for a visit with her mother at Hamline.

Rev. J. L. Farber and wife, left Wednesday for Anoka, to attend conference.

C. M. Casey, of Waverly, visited Delano, professionally, on Wednesday.

G. A. Eaton, candidate for County Surveyor attended the joint debate last night.

Mrs. J. A. Mayer, and Miss Sallie Soshnick were among passengers for the cities, this morning.

Messrs Nugent, O'Leary and Cutting, of Buffalo, attended the political meeting here, Tuesday evening.

Jake Mayer is home on a visit, from Great Falls. He don't appear to have lost any flesh by living out west.

Lucian Wakefield, the gentlemanly advance agent of the well known Andrews troupe was in town last week, on business.

Miss Hatty Gross went to the City this morning. We understand she is to attend the Normal school at St. Cloud this winter.

Editor Frank, of Cokato Enterprise made his uncle William Lewis, of this place a visit, and called on us Monday morning. He reports business good at Cokato.

Phil Lanway and wife returned home to South Arm, Michigan, Tuesday. His aunt Mrs. Tiff Hittsman accompanied them for a visit to her aged mother whom she had not seen for thirty years.

Dr. Talmage Opposed to Turning a Pulpit Into a Political Stump.

Washington, Sept. 27.—Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, in his sermon at the First Presbyterian church to-day, made the following allusion to the presidential campaign:

"During the last six presidential elections I have been urged to enter the political arena, but I never have and never will turn the pulpit in which I preach into a political stump. Every minister must do as he feels called on to do, and I will not criticise him for doing what he considers his duty; but all the political harangues from pulpits from now until the 3d of November will not in all the United States change one vote, but will leave many ears stopped against anything that such clergymen may utter the rest of their lives."

This statement was followed by a reference to the depression now prevailing throughout the country, and he said that never within his memory had "so many people literally starved to death as in the past fewmonths," He believedthe country was better off after every crisis, and that the Almighty would settle the controversy between the metals.- Pioneer Press.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

THE WRIGHT COUNTY W. C. T. U.
MRS. ELIZABETH C. FRISBIE, CO. SUPT. PRESS WORK.

A Bishop of the Church of England recently returned from the Transvool, makes the following statement: "I moy say that the government prescribed the sale of the intoxicants to the natives with very salutary results. It is a very rare thing to see a native drunk, and then it is the fault of some rascally white."

Republican Women Activo.

The Kansas Women's Republican Association, which is organized in every county of that fertile State, has held its convention, and passed resolutions congratulating the country upon the St Louis platform and candidates, and adopting the platform unanimously. The action of the State Convention was followed by that of every county club and association, all of which reported a healthy sentiment in favor of sound currency. While the Kansas woman do not have full suffrage, they enjoy municipal suffrage, and propose to elect as many gold men as they possibly can. It looks as if simular conventions would be held in Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and New York, in all of which States there are enthusiastic clubs and auxiliaries of Republican woman. In California the woman are taking a very active hand in the campaign, and are enthusiastic for a sound currency. It looks now as if the Golden State would be carried for McKinley and Hobart.

Mrs. Elizabeth C. Frisbie, Wright Co. Supt. Press work, W. C. T. U Monticello.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 25th, 1896.

The silver men have had plenty of encouraging news from other States to make up for the discouraging stories from New York which indicates the almost certain loss of that State. It is admitted by republicans that the fusion which has been completed in North Carolina between democrats and populists makes that State certain for Bryan. In Kentucky the democrats and populists have satisfactorily fused, which places that state in the Bryan column. A letter received at silver headquarters from D. W. Atkinson, president of the Free Silver Club, of Sparta, Mich., says: "Silver is bound to win in Michigan, because every party in the state has advocated free silver until the present campaign, and there are thousands of republicans and prohibitionists who can't and won't surrender the conviction of a lifetime at the command of a few politicians who change color in a single night. In any ordinary campaign the democrats and populists combined are a tight match for the republicans, and now when thousands of prohibitionists, and hundreds of republicans, are joining us there can be no doubt of the result.' Hon. John C. Cannon, of Kans, says: "You need have no fears about Kansas, as the leading republicani themselves in private conversation concede Kansas to Bryan. I have a bet with a leading republican that Bryan's majority will not be less than 20,000, and I offered to increase the bet and he declined. A republican poll of the state shows that Bryan will carry it by over 20,000." Mr. J. W. Armstrong, of Richmond, Missouri, says Bryan will carry that state by more than 60,000 majority, and there is equally encouraging news from Indiana, Iowa and Illinois.

Wsahington capitalists have no votes, nuless they retain a residence in one of the neighboring states. as some of them do, but they are trying to control the votes of all those who happen to be in their debt, as may be seen by the following letter which was sent to a Virginia voter; "As you are aware, the friends of free silver and gold respectively declare that if their candidates are elected the country will enter upon an era of prosperity. They respectively declare that if the other side is elected misery and troubld will be the result. As I favor McKinley I believe that within a few days after the election of Bryan all gold in the Treasury will be withdrawn, and there will be a terrible panic in money affairs, from which it will take the country many years to emerge. After Bryan's election one of the first things done will be the calling in of all debts by creditors, because they do not wish to be paid 50 cents for each dollar loaned. I hope you will not regard this letter as a threat or an intimation that you should vote otherwise than you conscienciously believe to be right. Our company will do after election just what you would do under the same circumstances. I hope you will be able to take up your note and collateral before election." This letter needs no comment, but it really is a shame that there is no law to reach and properly punish the men who write such letters.

The sensational statements concerning the payment of money to the officers of the Knights of Labor by the Democratic Congressional Committee were very quickly disposed of. In connection with the publication of their organ, the K. of L. maintain a printing office. The Democratic Congressional Committee gave that printing office some campaign documents to print, and as a matter of course paid for the work when it was done, and the checks—one for $1,000, and one for $800—were necessarily made payable to the National officers of the K. of L., who are in charge of the printing office owned by that organization. Somebody connected with a Washington bank through which these checks passed told about them and thereupon was built the sensational statements.

Mr. Jeff Chandler, once prominent in legal circles in St. Louis and in Washington, but now residing for the benefit of his health at Los Angeles, Cal., is in Washington. Speaking of republican claims as to California, he said: "The democratic and populist vote combined exceeds the republican vote in California by 44000. The most thorough fusion has been perfected by the first two, and while there may be slight defections on the part of so-called sound money democrats, the loss will be too small to alter the result. California will give a decisive majority for Bryan and an emphatic negative to the idea that this country can't run its own affairs without asking the consent of European governments I do not know whether he will win or not, but the opposition is hugging a delusion if it thinks Bryan is already beaten."

The Democratic National Committee having made a contract to have the newspaper plate matter it sends out made by a Chicago firm, this week closed the literary bureau which has been maintained at the Washington headquarters, because it will be more convenient to have the matter prepared in Chicago than in Washington.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.

Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoka, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

In four weeks more the country will know whether McKinley or Bryan will be President.

THE Duluth News Tribune goes for Mr. Towne in great shape for addressing a crowd on Sunday, on politics.

FLORIDA and Georgia have been added to Alabama and Arkansas, by their recently held elections, as states safe for Bryan.

THE Bryan chances appear to be good and instead of waning as the gold people would have us believe they are growing more sure.

MARTIN CONZET, of Greenwood, says he don't see what the gold men could have to please them: They complain of Bryan because he quotes Scripture, and of John Lind because he is an Infidel.

Minnesota is for once set down in the doubtful column. The combined vote of Populists and Democrats was larger before than the Republican vote, and now, that so many free silver Republicans are abroad in the land it does look as if the state was more than doubtfully favorable to free silver, and Bryan.

THE St. Cloud Times says that while breaking a tract of prairie a few days ago. John Lietha plowed up a large silver medal, bearing a picture of President Polk on one side, and clasped hands of an Indian and a white man on the other side. Some Indian Chief is thought to have lost it on the prairie.

GOV. CLOUGH has offered a reward of $250. apiece for the arrest of the two robbers of the Sherburne, Martin County bank. The robbers shot cashier Thorburn and a collector for Walter A. Wood, named Oesterm, who lived at Luverne, both men were killed. The robbers got $1,000, and escaped on bicycles.

PRIVATE reports from the west confirm the newspaper claims that the west is for Bryan. Letters from Hon. B. F. Christleib, at Pasadena California speak very favorably of Bryan's chances. E. W. O'Meara, of Sheridan, Montana, are the same: And Scott Gunn, lately returned from Washington says that state is surely safe for free silver.

IF the Page Morris reports are all up to that of the Princton blow out, as reported in Minneapolis Specials, Towne need not be much scared. They claimed 500 torches in line, and Mr. Charles Judkins who was there, says he thinks 150 would have been a much farer estimate. It can't do much good to exagerate like that. Better tell it as it is. It want look well after election to compare such bloated crowds with the small votes received.

THE people of Minnesota have had "boss" rule so long that they are completely tired of it. They have concluded to turn it down all along the line. The records at the State Capitol have been in the hands of one party for nearly forty years, and much has been charged up against some of the officials, even by their own party, that it is about time to place them in hands not under control of State rings. The people want to know what is going on. If Russel Sage, or any other man or clique of men, is obtaining a large or small share of the lands of our state, as has been recently charged, and as charges were made two years ago of attempts of similar kind of work, people want to find it out.

Our legislatures have been so manipulated as to mix matters up in many respects. People want matters mended generally, all along the line. State interests are so numerous, and of so much importance, as to call for the highest intelligence and the most upright and honest men as legislators. The public buildings, and the running of them involve a large expenditure; the school mining, timber and other state lands, to look after, grain inspector, dairy business, transportations and many other things in order to have no legislation in wrong ways.

The laws especially applying to county and village organizations need many weak places fixed up. Those who know them best, or can find out the needs, and can be depended on to honestly do for the best interest of the people should be elected to attend to these matters.

For county offices almost any man of ordinary intelligence and education can look after things and keep them straight. The man with fewest rings and the best reputation for uprightness in his own business is best calculated, usually, to attend to public business. Honesty, industry, punctualli ty sobriety are among desirable considerations.

Notice to Democrats.

In answer to questions asked me by mail and otherwise, why I did not call a convention to nominate county officers before the time expired. I would state that it is true I was elected chairman at the last convention; but as the old chairman claimed his right to hold until the two years were fully up, and in the interest of harmony, I was advised to let him act until such time. Why he did not publish a call I do not know. we have secured harmony, but missed a convention.—Sherburne County Star News.

C. W. HAYDEN.

FROM MONTANA.

An Object Lesson.

SHERIDAN, Montana, Sept. 28th, 1896.

EDITOR BUFFALO GAZETTE,

DELANO, MINN. Dear Sir:—You will please find inclosed a clipping from the "Butte Miner" which I would be pleased to have published in the GAZETTE: I sent a copy to the "Eagle" some time ago but they would not publish it. I supposed when I sent it that they wobld be fair enough in the study of the present issues to at least publish it, even though they commented on it but was mistaken.

It is needless to say that our state is going strongly for Bryan and Free Silver, by at least Twenty thousand, or three for one, and hope that Minnesota will also line up on that side but have some doubts.

Very Respectfully,
E. W. O'MEARA.

Three of a Kind.

One of very best object lessons of the campaign is found in a study of the three circulars sent out by the financial dictators of the east during the last 34 years. The first was the "Hazard Circular" of which touched upon the subject of retireing the greenbacks or making them payable in coin. The second called upon the friends of the banking syndicate to support such newspapers as would oppose the issuance of money by the government. The third, which was issued in 1893, takes the last step in the direction of a financial dictatorship and calls upon those in the inner circle to do all possible to bring about the retirement of all silver, silver certificates and treasury notes. Here are the interesting documents and they should be read by every voter in the United States who is inclined to listen to the false prophecies and dishonest arguments of the single gold standard advocates who are opposing the election of Bryan:

This one was issued by an agent of London capitalists to the New York capitalists in 1892:

The Hazard Circular.

Slavery is likely to be abolished by the war power, and chattel slavery destroyed. This, I and my European friends are in favor of, for slavery is but the owning of labor and carries with it the care of the laborer, while the European plan, led on by England, is for capital to control labor by controling wages. THIS CAN BE DONE CONTROLLING THE MONEY. The great debt that capitalists will see to it is made out of the war, must be used as the means to control the volume of money. To accomplish this the bonds must be used as a banking basis. We are now waiting for the secretary of the treasury to make the recommendation to congress. It will not do to allow the greenback, as it is called, to circulate as money any length of time, as we cannot control that.

This one afterward issued by New York bankers:

The Banks' Circular.

Dear Sir: It is advisable to do all in your power to sustain such prominent daily and weekly newspapers, especialy the agricultural and religious press, as will oppose the issuing of greenback paper money, and that you also withold patronage or favors from all applicants who are not willng to oppose the government issue of money. Let the government issue the coins and the banks issue the paper money of the country, for then we can better protect each other. To repeal the law creating national bank notes, or to restore to circulation the government issue of money, will be to therefore seriously effect your individual profit as bankers and lenders. See your congressman at once and engage him to support our interests that we may control legislation.

The Panic Circular of 1893.

Dear Sir: The interest of national bankers require immediate financial legislation by congress. Silver, silver certificates and treasury notes must be retired and national bank notes upon a gold basis made the only money. This will require the authorization of from $500 to $1,000,000,000 of new bonds as a basis of circulation. You will at once retire one-third of your circulation and call in one-half of your loans. Be careful to make a money stringency felt among your patrons, especially among influential business men. Advocate an extra session of congress for the repeal of the puroha sing clause of the Sherman law, and act with the other banks of your city in securing a large petition to congress for its unconditional repeal, per accompanying form. Use personal influence with congressmen and practically let your wishes be known to your senators. The future life of national banks as fixed and safe investments depends upon immediate action, as there is an increasing sentiment in favor of government legal tender notes and silver comage.

Read these circulars and then say whether the gentlemen of the east who are insisting upon a gold basis are sincere. Read the first circular and compare it with the last and having studied the regular progression toward a state of affairs which will place the government in the hands of the gold clique, say whether you should now blindly follow the men who have entered into a conspiracy to enslave the people for all time.

Political Letter.

JOHN W. CLOSE.

Little Falls.

Dear Sir, and friend: Replying to yours of the 5th inst will say I never fall out with anyone for differing with me on political questions but I can afford to be extremely liberal now as I am sure we shall win. W. J. Bryan will be our next President; it is now beyond any doubt. By the way, John, I am no old time democrat, I never in my life cast a vote for that party but I shall vote for Bryan. Believing as I do that free coinage of both silver and gold is the only solution of the question. Hard times, Low prices and the closing of all kinds of Industries Chrushing the life out of the onward march of civilization. There is more involved than the simple question of "more money." It is a question of American Liberty. It is a question whether Mark Hanna will reign or shall we continue a free people with a free ballot. It is a question whether this shall be an Aristocratic Government or shall it continue "a government of the people for the people and by the people." I honestly believe could you see this question in the white light of truth and reason, you would as soon cut your own throat as vote for Mr. McKinley. What would you have thought of the negroes in the south when Abraham Lincoln issued its emancipation proclimation if they had all enlisted in the Rebel army to fight against the very thing they all longed and prayed for. And yet you expect farmers and producers to vote for plutocracy to continue contractions of the currancy—continue to store its mints and the mines and its mills—appreciate its contracted currancy and increase its bonded indebtedness by issuing more bonds to borrow more gold to pay interest on the interest and thereby depreciating all prices of all commodties that we sell to pay these bonds. Are all men born blind or have they lost all reason? Did God direct Columbus to America that Mark Hanna might institute a white race of slaves?—Yours for government by the people.—T. W. KEITHLEY.

McGary Again.

I am constrained by force of habit and political influance to write an article for your paper.

We read in the Scriptures that perilous times shall come, that men shall be lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, that they shall heap to themselves riches, such as silver and gold, shall say I am increased in goods, etc. It is strange that a nation like this so young in years, with such a vast domain and such great resources should in so few years become the bone of contention between European countries and the money lords at home.

According to the cencus of 1890 our national debt, mortgage debt and private debt are almost beyond computation, and they have grown no less since then. The mortgage debt of this country according to the census of 1890, was $6,019,679,985, this is upon real estate alone, you add to this our national debt which is $1,717,481,779.90 which amounts to about 20 dollars per capita. Then you take the corporation debts, the chattle mortgage debts the private debts, and where are we, do you think there is any cause for alarm? Now these figures are not of my making or of any political party but as compiled and taken from the census report of 1890. Now if this country should establish a single gold standard and have gold as the only primary money along with all other leading commercial nations of the wide world where will the glittering gold come from to do the business of the country with. All obligations contracted heretofore when due will if not paid, will by a new contract be made payable in gold and all obligations made now and henceforth from this time on be made payable in gold. Where will the producer, the laborer and the mechanic get the gold to buy his mortgage debt? By going to the bank and paying a premium on gold. Now how can a farmer, a producer and n man who works for a living vote for this accursed thing: the single gold standard?

A good many are saying the light of the Democratic party is going out (or silverites if you will allow us to call them) and that Bryan is loosing ground. Please read both sides, and if your head has not been turned the wrong way, you will find Bryan has large ovations wherever he goes; more than can hear him speak; and that in McKinley's own state. At Cincinnati he had a hearing of 100,000. The subsidized press of the country may tell you the silver question is dying, but their talk is only to deceive.

Our political opponents done considerable crowing because the republican party carried that little state of Maine, way up next to the British line; that exports nothing but white beans, spruce gum and Christmas trees we did not expect anything else.

I read in the Scriptures that Moses and the children of Israel built a Tabernacle in the wilderness and that both gold and silver were used with great profusion in its construction. But there was used a great deal more silver than gold; but finally they went into monometallism and established a single gold standard by making a golden calf; and Moses' wrath was so kindled against them for this iniquitous thing they had done that he ground the calf into powder and strewed it upon the waters and made them drink of it. This was a god of their own creating.

I find that in most cases that argument, with those who are wedded to party and a single gold standard useless. I believe in liberty, free press and free speech: and that all men should have a right to their honest convictions in religion and in politics. But how the common people of this country, a God fearing and a liberty loving people can from honest convictions of heart, bow in humble submission to the money power of England and Wall Street who seek under a cloak of hypocrisy to rob them of their honest toil is more than my brain is able to conceive. And men that can not see there is a trick in this gold standard business must be blind to their own interest. But the time is coming when this secret will be made known. They have had line upon line and precept upon precept. So people will suffer by their own acts but I think some of my sophisticated friends understand the money question about as well as the old man understood the words Epluribus unum, when asked by his little boy what it ment. The old man's interpretation was that it meaus the tail goes with the hide.

No, Mr. Lind did not lie about railroad rates. He told the exact truth, and no railroad freight agent will attempt to deny his figures. More than that, there is no more truthful man in this country than John Lind, and his word will be taken as against that of any gold-bug newspaper in christendom where he is known.—Waseca Herald.

Van Vredenburgh's Famous Painting.

An exquisite reproduction in 14 colors of Van Verdenburgh's oil painting, "Our Bench Show," representing a yard of playful puppies (size, 10x36 ins.), is given to every subscriber, with the December issue of Demorest's Magazine (published November 15). This issue is enlarged and bound in a beautifully printed cover, and is replete with illustrations and reading matter pertaining to the x-mas holidays. It is sold for 20 cents a copy. The Van Vredenburgh alone in this one number is worth more than the price of a year's subscription. It is the cutest picture we have seen and appeals to every lover of art and to everyone who is fond of dogs. Any of our readers who wish this beautiful picture can, by cutting out this notice and sending it to the Demorest's Magazine, 110 Fifth Avenue, New York, with 20 cents in stamps, receive it by mail, carefully packed, and at the same time a copy of the X-mas Demorest. The magazine, by the way, has been phenomenally successful during the past year, having increased its subscription list to 180,000 names—a clear gain of 100,000. There must be something in a magazine that can do that.

BRYAN COMES.

He is coming from the west on a special train, on Saturday, Oct. 10. He is to be at Waverly for a ten minutes speech, about 5 P. M. At Delano, at 5:50, for five minutes. Turn out and hear the first Presidential candidate from west of the Mississippi River; the next President of the United States, WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN, of Lincoln, Nebraska.

Minnesota is down on the doubtful list, and the Bryan Wave is rolling this way; your vote may decide the election in this state and the United States. Loose no chance to receive knowledge of how to intelligently cast your vote and be sure you vote your own honest convictions.

An American Defect in Cooking.

The prime defect in cooking is in the use of refined white salt, which should be used only at the table for such as prefer an access of seasoning.

The secret of the savors in French soups and vegetables is the use of "black" or "grey" salt, which is course and crystallized. But if this is not easily obtained in America, there is a variety which will give a fascinating result, and that is the sea-salt such as is used in bathing. It can be had at any chemists, and will amply repay the small cost. It is used in moderation, for one does not want the result to be "salty." All seasoning must be added with skillful hands, governed by a wise head, and always with the conscientiousness that a woman who loves her work will give to the humblest kitchen detail. Toujours fidele is a good mottow for the kitchen, and whoever follows it will have no mishaps of burning cake or tasteless vegetables. It is all a case of cause and effect,—and, I may add a sleight of hand. If the rules are faithfully followed success must ensue.—From "A Savory Secret," in Demorest's Magazine for October.

To date the government has paid nearly $3,000,000 in premiums for speed made by war vessels, in excess of the contract requirements.

An eastern paper says the bleached blond dates back to the time of Mahommet. It is but justice to her to say she hardly looks that ancient.

The growth of the Argentine Republic since 1861 has been remarkable. In that year the population was placed at 1,350,000, while at present it is said to be 4,000,000.

The price of a stolen kiss has been fixed by a court in Illinois. A farmer purloined a kiss from a pretty girl and she asked for $15,000. The court gave her $250.

So rapid has been the change in the English language that the English of to-day bears no more resemblance to the English of 1,000 years ago than it does to German.

The lobster factories along the Maine coast have closed for the season. Taken all together the season was not successful, on account of the numerous gales which have visited the coast this season.

An investigation of the knowledge of school children in a large city showed that a percentage of them had never seen a cow. That's nothing. The same thing may too often be said of the restaurant butter.

The new woman seems to have made her appearance in China. The daughter of a magistrate in Shantum acts as treasurer in her father's district, keeps the books, pays the bills and stirs up delinquent debtors.

It now appears that Li Hung Chang's trip was the idea of the dowager empress of China, who believed that a knowledge of the institutions of Europe and America was necssary to the welfare of China. The old lady has a large head.

"Ah!" observed the fool question maker, "learning to ride the bicycle I see! How are you getting on?" "I sometimes get a derrick to lift me on," she remarked icily, "and at other times I fall off the house into the saddle." And then she tried to mount and ran into the plum tree again.

Marble of excellent quality has been found in several parts of Alaska, particularly at St. John the Baptist bay, Whitestone narrows, Rood's bay, Mitchell's bay and Marble bluffs. The different localities are soon to be thoroughly prospected by skilled men with a view to opening them and marketing the product.

There was an anniversary celebration in the Cherokee outlet the other day. Three years ago it was an Indian reservation; to-day it has a white population of 80,000, 20,000 of whom live in towns. In that short time schools have been established, cities laid out and the picturesque boomers form an orderly and law-abiding community.

The Audubon society of New England is making an effort to stop the use of bird plumage to decorate women's hats. A Florida paper, however, asserts there is "still a great slaughter of bright plumage birds for the market" in that state. The reform must come from the women themselves. Thoughtful women should refuse to wear the wings of a dead bird upon their hats.

Oklahoma promises to be in the near future one of the great cotton-producing states. Gov. Renfraw, in his annual report, says that the ante-bellum declaration "cotton is king" seems applicable to Oklahoma. Oklahoma will shortly rank among the cotton states of the union. Unless the present indications fail the present cotton crop of Oklahoma will be larger the greatest ever gathered, and he predicts for the coming year one of genuine prosperity.

That 1,000 Canadians should emigrate to Brazil is a matter for the serious consideration of the Canadian government and people. The party left the other day from Montreal, despite the exertions of the mayor of the city and the minister of the interior, acting evidently upon the advice of a Brazilian commissioner. The case naturally has excited attention in the Canadian house of commons, yet the government is powerless to prevent people leaving the country.

Negro emigration from the United States to Liberia has never been extensive, and the fate which befell the last party of colonists will probably have the effect of discouraging further emigration for a long time to come. A party of six persons who have just returned report that of the 202 emigrants who were landed at Monrovia last spring nearly one-half are dead and the remainder are enduring great sufferings. The return of the negroes to Africa has been the dream of many persons, but it seems to be, at the present time, nothing more than a dream.

The experience of Miss Lizzie Graffmyer, of Pittsburgh, Pa., should serve as a warning to other young women to beware of matrimonial bureaus. Miss Graffmyer became entangled in a correspondence with one of these institutions and in the course of time obtained a husband by paying $25. Her newly-acquired and enterprising "lord and master" borrowed $25 of her before she even had time to fix his name in her memory and has not appeared since. Miss Graffmyer is fortunate in getting rid of him so soon and with so small a loss, but other confiding women may not be so fortunate.

It has been discovered that if bone marrow is not the elixir of youth, at least it is a powerful tonic. Bone marrow is now served in Parisian restaurants, spread raw upon thin slices of bread in a dainty manner, and it is said to be a very palatable morsel. Everyone eats it who can afford to buy it. Dr. Renault, of Paris, prescribed bone marrow to an anemic patient as a tonic, with immediate and most gratifying results. The news of its wonderful effects spread rapidly, and at the present time bone marrow eating has become a fashionable fad. American physicians are reporting cures of nervous prostration.

AN ILL-FATED TRAIN.

Locomotive Boiler Explodes—Seven Persons Are Killed.

Osage City, Kan., Oct. 5.—A frightful railroad wreck, attended by serious loss of life, and made more terrible by the self-murder of one of the passengers, occurred at five o'clock Sunday morning on the Santa Fe road, two miles north of this station. Seven bodies have been recovered from the wreck, and it is feared other victims are buried beneath the debris. The wrecked train was the east-bound passenger No. 2, the same that had such a thrilling experience with bandits in New Mexico on Friday night last. The wreck was caused by the explosion of the boiler of the locomotive. The engineer should have stopped for water at Osage City, but, being behind time, he endeavored to run to the next tank. Though it is not positively known, the engineer and fireman having both met death in the wreck, it is surmised that their neglect was the cause of the disaster. The train had proceeded but two miles beyond this place, about to the Peterson coal chutes, when two terrific explosions were heard, one following close upon the other.

The locomotive was completely shattered. The express, baggage and passenger cars came crashing upon the wrecked engine and the coaches that were ahead were piled up in one heap of wreckage. Those in the rear were all derailed, but the passengers riding in the rear escaped serious injury.

The wreck was marked by scenes of the wildest confusion among the terrified passengers. The nerves of many were at a high pitch as a result of their experience with the road-agents of New Mexico, and when the crash came the first impression of nearly every one was that the train had been attacked again by robbers. One passenger, William Beckler, of Los Angeles, en route to Chicago, lost his reason entirely. When the crash came he drew a single-barreled pistol from his pocket, and, in the presence of a car full of terrified passengers, took his own life, sending a bullet into his brain. Beckler had been drinking heavily. He was about 55 years of age. Owing to the excitement and confusion little could be done to rescue the injured and remove the dead bodies until the sun appeared. Seven bodies were finally recovered. The dead are: William Beckler, Los Angeles, Cal.; Engineer Strump, Topeka, Kan.; Fireman Harry Hollister, Topeka; William McAdams, tramp, riding on baggage car and supposed to be from Chillicothe, Ia.; three tramps, names unknown, all of whom were riding on the baggage car. Three persons were injured.

SLAIN BY CUBANS.

Spanish Forces Lose 1,000 Men—Maceo Captures the Trocha.

New Orleans, Oct. 3.—The Times-Democrat's Key West special says: Advices received here from Havana state that Antonio Maceo in a recent attack on the trocha inflicted terrible losses on the Spaniards, more than 1,000 being killed and wounded. The attack was made at night and was carefully planned. The fighting was general all along the line, but was fiercest near Artemisa, where Antonio Maceo led a picked force of insurgents against the Spanish column commanded by Gen. Aralas. The Spaniards were taken completely by surprise. They were aroused from sleep to find a hail of insurgent bullets falling upon them. Gen. Aralas and his staff, half clad, rushed from their headquarters and tried to rally the Spanish troops, who were panic-stricken by the insurgents' attack. It was half an hour before even a semblance of order could be restored to the Spanish column, and during that time the troops remained huddled together, an easy mark for the bullets of the Cubans. It was during this period of the panic that so many of the Spanish troops were killed.

It is said many Spanish officers were killed and that Gen. Aralas himself was slightly injured. After Gen. Aralas succeeded in rallying his men he made a retreat and the Spaniards fell back four miles or more, leaving the trocha in the hands of the insurgents. Antonio Maceo did not pursue the Spaniards, but held possession of Artemisa until morning, when he retreated to his stronghold. Before the insurgents retreated they demolished the section of the trocha near Artemisa, blowing up the fortifications with dynamite.

The attack raged from Bahia Honda on the north to Makanda on the south, and at all points the strong line was demolished. Maceo could easily have crossed with his entire force, but it seems that he had not such purpose in view. His object was simply to demolish the trocha so that it could not impede his eastward march when he desires to advance to meet Gomez.

LAND OFFICE REPORT.

Commissioner Lamoreaux Presents Figures Relating to the Public Domain.

Washington, Oct. 5.—Commissioner Lamoreaux, of the general land office, has made his annual report to the secretary of the interior for the past fiscal year. A synopsis of the report is as follows:

The total land selections during the year were 13,200,000 acres, of which 4,820,915 were homestead entries and 6,789,591 railroad selections. The increase in selections over the previous year was 4,802,673 acres. The cash receipts were $2,106,361, an increase of $72,907.

Lands patented to railroads in satisfaction of grants, 15,527,844 acres, an increase of 7,342,508 acres over last year; agricultural patents, 5,470,400, an increase of 2,628,480 acres. The total number of acres patented was 22,669,989. The total vacant public land in the United States is 600,040,671 acres, of which 316,651,861 are surveyed and 283,288,810 unsurveyed. The amount of land surveyed during the year was 9,908,808 acres.

Considerable attention has been given during the year to correct surveying and in nearly every public land state resurveys have been ordered upon reports of the examiners.

Takes an Appeal.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Ottmar Mergenthaler, inventor of the Mergenthaler typesetting machine, has appealed from the decision of Commissioner Seymour in awarding priority of invention to certain important improvements of the machine to W. S. Scudder. There are two cases, in both of which the commissioner of patents decided in favor of Scudder. The appeal is to the United States court of appeals of the District of Columbia.

Mills Start Up.

Lawrence, Mass., Oct. 6.—The Everett mills started up Monday morning, on 40 hour time, giving work to 1,300 persons. The mills have been shut down since July 30. Several departments of the Arlington mills resumed operations Monday, giving work to 3,000 of the 3,500 employes. The Pemberton is now the only mill in the city not in operation and there extensive improvements are being made. It will be started up next week.

TRADE REVIEW.

Much Hope Expressed in the Future of Business.

New York, Oct. 3.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"The westward movement of money continues, and for the quarter has exceeded interior receipts by $31,000,000. The gold ordered for importation amounts to $43,250,000, and arrivals thus far to $40,544,550, besides $2,000,000 expected from Australia, which will raise the treasury reserve above $150,000,000. Relief has been welcome in commercial loan markets, where 7 per cent. is done more freely on west paper than 8 per cent. recently, but October settlements cause monetary hardening. Merchants and manufacturers are waiting, but there are not wanting signs that many have the confidence to invest and push forward as though the dawn of prosperity were close at hand. The quarter that has passed has been most trying, but things would be worse than they are but for the general belief that better times are near.

"The complete report of failures for the quarter which ended with Wednesday shows an increase which would be surprising if political causes were not obvious. In number, 6½ per cent. less than in the panic quarter of 1893, failures for the quarter show liabilities 11.1 per cent. less, amounting to $73,285,349, against $97,869,682 in the previous half year.

"The continued advance in wheat may prove of the utmost importance. It has been 1.12 cents for the week and 10 cents since September 2 and is mainly due to short crops abroad and unusual foreign demand. Cotton has weakened after its sudden rise, because the demand for goods has relapsed into hand-to-mouth buying, and print cloths are lower at 2.56 cents. Some injury has been done by recent storms, but the market seems not now in the humor to magnify them.

"There are unmistakably encouraging signs in the great industries, although the actual gain in working force employed or in new orders received is slight. But the strong demand for materials, for pig iron, hides and wool, as for cotton, does not diminish, and has already gone far enough to stiffen prices. In wool quotations are scarcely stronger, but represent actual sales more nearly than in past weeks, when buyers with cash almost made their own prices.

"Buying of bessemer pig again lifts Pittsburgh quotations to $11.75 without any general gain in the demand for finished products, and steel bars for the first time are sold at 1 cent against 1.2 basic by the association for iron bars. Plates and rails are in less demand, but there is heavy buying of sheets at the west. Confidence that reviving business must bring a greater demand than all the works can meet induces the various associations to make no change in their prices."

MARTINELLI ARRIVES.

Has Not Been Empowered by Pope to Establish an Ecclesiastical Court Here.

New York, Oct. 5.—Mgr. Martinelli, archbishop of Ephesus, recently appointed apostolic delegate in the United States to succeed Cardinal Satolli, was a passenger on the Cunard liner Campania, which arrived at her dock Saturday morning.

The archbishop is a short and slender man. He has a swarthy complexion, piercing black eyes, and black hair, slightly gray. He is very graceful in his action and has an attractive manner while in conversation. He speaks English fluently. He said the pope had not decided who was to succeed the deceased Bishop Ryan, of Buffalo, and

MOST REV. SEBASTIAN MARTINELLI.

Bishop Curtis, of Wilmington, resigned.

He denied that he had been empowered by the pope to establish an ecclesiastical court in this country to try cases which were formally referred to the congregation of the propaganda at Rome.

The archbishop left for Washington in the morning.

Mgr. Satolli will sail for Europe on the 18th inst.

THE RUIN IN FLORIDA.

Further Reports of the Storm's Havoc—Much Distress Exists.

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 6.—Every report in regard to the storm increases the death list, and the estimation of the property lost. The condition of the people in the storm district is appalling, and there is urgent need of aid to prevent starvation. Advices from Baker say: While the suffering in Baker county is great from the effects of the storm, the damage is also very great. It is estimated that the total loss aggregates some $250,000. Some say it will reach $300,000, of which George Canova, one of the leading merchants, is damaged about $150,000, and Mrs. McPeoms, $50,000 to $80,000. Ossulto's loss is about $30,000, of which the Eppinger-Russell company lose about $15,000. John Villes' loss is about $60,000, of which the turpentine men lose in the neighborhood of $25,000. McClenny's loss is about $20,000. The balance is distributed among the farmers. The above does not include loss of cattle which cannot be estimated until spring, Baker county being a large cattle-raising section.

The county commissioners have issued an appeal to the governor, advising and petitioning him to devise some means to assist the suffering people of the county in their sad affliction caused by the storm of last Tuesday. The people are in destitute circumstances, without shelter to cover their heads, without food to appease their hunger and a great many are without a change of clothing. They suggest an earnest call to uninjured counties to come to their aid, or if necessary, a call for an extra session of the legislature. They also state that but one ginhouse stands in the county, every church and schoolhouse is destroyed and the merchants, who are heavy losers, are unable to contribute to the distressed. Most all of the farmers in the county have lost their crops, just housed and ready for market, and as a consequence are unable to pay the merchants for advances and fertilizers furnished, and even to purchase food for their suffering ones.

Football Season Opens.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 1.—The football season was opened at Yale Wednesday afternoon with Amherst as a visiting attraction. The Massachusetts team gave Yale a hard argument, allowing the blue only two touchdowns the first half and none the second, the final score being: Yale, 12; Amherst, nothing.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—Pennsylvania played its second football game of the season Wednesday afternoon and easily defeated the Gettysburg college team by the score of 32 to 0.

TENNESSEE HEARS HIM.

Mr. Bryan Greeted by Big Crowds at Memphis and Nashville.

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 6.—William J. Bryan arrived in Memphis Monday morning at 7:30 o'clock. Thousands of people were at the Poplar street station to witness the arrival of the democratic candidate. The famous Neely zouaves were at the immediate entrance to the station and escorted Mr. Bryan and the Memphis committee to the Peabody hotel, where the party took breakfast. At ten o'clock Mr. Bryan was escorted to the baseball park by the committee. Ten thousand people were in waiting and gave the nominee a rousing reception. Mr. Bryan was introduced by Senator Isham G. Harris.

He spoke in part as follows:

"I say to you here, my friends, that my interest in the cause of bimetallism is so deep that I would without a moment's hesitation resign my nomination in favor of any person in this country who can better carry this cause to victory. It is not a time to listen to personal ambitions. It is not a time to set personal interests above the national good. It is not a time when we are to consider the temporary effect of this election upon party organizations. It is a time when we are to consider the effect of the gold standard, if perpetuated, among party organizations not on this country alone, but on all mankind.

"I want to impress upon your minds that it is not only necessary that we shall elect a president and vice president in favor of free coinage, but it is necessary that there shall be a congress in favor of free coinage. The president can sign no bill until that bill reaches the white house, and before any bill reaches the white house it must have received the indorsement of a majority of the members of the house of representatives and a majority of the members of the senate. If there is one majority in either house against free coinage the president is powerless to restore bimetallism to the people. If you are in earnest for bimetallism you must show that earnestness by doing anything necessary to be done, to elect congress, senate and president.

"My friends, I could not feel the interest that I do in this campaign if all I had to commend was party regularity. I appeal to you on higher ground than that. I have a stronger claim upon your support than can be given by regularity of a convention. I stand by the right of the American people to have a financial system of their own. And therefore my candidacy appeals to every American citizen who believes in the right of the people of this country to govern themselves regardless of the aid or consent of any other nation on earth. I am not appealing to any sentiments hostile to foreigners, but I say to you, my friends, that that nation does not deserve to be called a nation which has to accept a financial policy 'ready made' from some other country."

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 6.—Great crowds greeted William J. Bryan in his eight hours' journey through Tennessee Monday.

The train bearing the party rolled into the Nashville station at 8:35. The town was wild. Red fire and Roman candles filled the air and the streets were almost impassable. Carriages were in waiting for the party and Mr. Bryan was promptly driven to the Haymarket, where he delivered his first speech. The candidate was introduced by Senator Bate as the next president of the United States. He was cheeered and applauded throughout his speech and many times stopped by the enthusiasm of his listeners. He said among other things:

"I can understand why the people of this state, and especially of this portion of the state, should feel so deep an interest in the cause which is being represented by the Chicago platform, because, my friends, we are fighting to-day the battle that Andrew Jackson fought when he was in office. We find arrayed against us the same combination, the same aggregation of wealth, with the same abuse against him; we meet the same intolerance that he met, we suffer from the same abuse that he suffered from; every name is applied to-day to the advocates of free coinage that were applied to old Hickory when he fought for the American people. It has been the lot of those who have espoused our cause to be denounced and abused by those who favor the gold standard. It has been the lot of those who have defended the cause of the common people to be assailed by those who doubt that capacity of the people for self-government and would deny to them the right of eating the bread which they earn. The gold standard never fought a fight which was submitted to the people. The gold standard has made every step in its progress by underhand means and has not for one moment attempted to obtain the consent or the indorsement of the American people. But in this campaign, at least, we have the issue before the people, and we have a chance in this election to cast our ballots for the maintenance of the gold standard or for the restoration of the money of the constitution. I believe so truly in the justice of our cause that I cannot for one moment doubt what will be the result when the American people are called upon to decide this question.

"My friends, we have lost some democrats in this fight, but I am mighty glad that most of those whom we lost were generals. We have not lost many privates in the army. We might have kept all the democrats who are gone if we had been willing to pay the price they asked. If we had been willing to make the democratic party the agent to fasten plutocracy upon the American people we could have kept every man who has left us. But we have to choose between throwing overboard those who have been millstones about the neck of democracy and throwing over democracy itself, and we prefer to save democracy and let the aristocrats go. My friends, we have not lost by it. It has been our gain. It is always true that those who dare to do right are rewarded in the long run, and the democratic party is receiving its reward—not even waiting for the long run—it is receiving its reward right now for daring to do right at Chicago. We are drawing to our ranks those who are in the republican party for bimetallism. They have come to us because they see now that the hope of international bimetallism is a delusion, and that it is used only as a cover, while the leading republicans are attempting to fasten the gold standard permanently upon the American people. And not only are we gathering from the ranks of the republicans, but the populists, in their national convention here, were willing to go outside of their own party lines to nominate as their candidate for the presidency the man already nominated by the democrats and free silver republicans. We are consolidating the sentiment in favor of free coinage to the grand struggle against our enemies."

PONY FOR FORTY CENTS.

New Swindle Practiced Upon the Gullible New Yorker.

Here is a brand-new swindle. The man who invented it or heard of it in some out-of-the-way part of the world had some money, says the New York Recorder. He rented a house in one of the oldest parts of New York. It is a quarter in which swell Knickerbockers lived, and some of their descendants live there to this day. He made himself a familiar figure in a liquor store in the neighborhood, where he sampled various brands and vintages and proved himself a connoisseur.

One day he told the proprietor that he had taken down a brick wall in the rear of the cellar of his house, intending to replace it with stone, as it had grown moldy. Behind it he found three casks of remarkable brandy that had been lying recondite for many years, undoubtedly the property of some long dead and forgotten householder, who knew a good thing when he saw it, and was saving it.

The saloon man bought it at $16 a gallon, having previously tasted an alleged sample that for bouquet has never been surpassed upon this continent or any other. The goods were delivered and the tenant disappeared with two months' rent in arrears. It was really good brandy worth about six dollars a gallon, at which price it had been bought from a Broadway street wine merchant.

However, the wineroom man did not lose anything. His customers are drinking brandy (at 40 cents a "pony") which they are assured has lain in a New York cellar for 100 years.

PRIMITIVE WOMAN WAS NEW.

Indian Relics Prove That the First Potter Was a Woman.

The discovery near Maurice river, in the neighboring state of New Jersey, of large numbers of stone implements used by Indian or other tribes in the long-gone centuries brings into notice the primitive woman, says the New York Tribune.

In New Jersey, as everywhere else in the world, she appears to have been industrious and energetic and ingenious. Among the implements discovered which she employed in prehistoric New Jersey were flint knives, with which she cut meat and probably vegetables; flint scrapers, with which she cleaned the skins of deer and bear, wildcat and other animals, preliminary to drying and smoking them for use as wearing apparel; clay pots and pans, pipkins and dishes, which she made in primeval potteries, at first the sun drying them and thereafter burning them in hot wood fires. The pottery shows here and there artistic yearnings on the part of the unknown makers, more uncouth and rudimentary than those of the ancient cliff-dwellers, but nevertheless they disclose the artistic sentiments and confirm the long list of examples collected by Prof. Mason, of Washington, showing that the first potter, the first modeler, the first sculptor and carver and the first artist was a woman.

NOW AND THEN.

Oh, now and then there comes a day
When all our skies are bright,
And all of life's appointed way
Is bathed in golden light;
When roses hide no thorns beneath;
When love holds no alloy;
And zephyrs full of perfume breathe
From out the hills of joy.

The present is a fleeting thing,
The past will live for aye,
And all its stories of treasures bring
Forever and a day.
And softer shall the echoes come
From time's receding shore;
Each day will gleam a pleasure from
The days that are no more.

Oh, memories of such, awake!
And glad the weary now;
A wreath of recollections make
To crown the dreamer's brow.
Oh, silent voice and vanished hand,
Bring back the golden sheaves!
The ripple of the waters and
The laughter of the leaves.

THE WOMAN IN BLACK.

Traveling recently from Chicago to New York, I found in the morning, upon crawling out of my berth, that the train was standing stock still. The porter told me it had been standing there for an hour and a half, while I had been sleeping the sleep of the just. I dressed and peeped out, and saw that we were alongside the platform of a country station. I took a good breakfast in the dining car and then went out to stroll up and down the platform.

In the cab sat the driver, or engineer, as they call him, alone, waiting. With the natural fondness of an Englishman for machinery, I stopped and gossiped with him a moment about the engine.

Then I offered him a cigar, which he took with thanks, and asked me to come in. I swung myself into his cab.

The engineer, a bright, pleasant-faced man about 40 years old, explained to me the uses of the numerous valves and levers about him. They were all as bright and shining as polish could make them, for an engineer is as proud of his engine as any housewife is of the neatness of her dwelling. I glanced at the two shining steam gauges with the clock between them, and then I noticed what seemed to be an ordinary white moth, mounted in a gilt frame, hanging against the wall of the cab.

"Is that for an ornament?" I asked, pointing at the moth.

The driver smiled. "Well, partly for an ornament," he said, "but a good deal more for sentiment. I put that moth there because it saved my life, and the lives of 250 people as well."

"How in the world can insect save human lives?" I asked.

"Well, I will tell you, if you want to hear the story. I reckon there's time enough before we are able to get out of this."

I settled myself in the stoker's seat and prepared to listen. "It wasn't such a long time back," said the engineer; "only a year ago last spring. I was running this very train, and with this very engine—old 449. My stoker was Jim Meade, the same fellow as I have got now. You can see him over there, leaning up against the telegraph office.

"Jim's a good boy, but he's very superstitious; believes in ghosts, dreams and warnings. I used to laugh at his fancies, but I don't make so much fun of him as I did—not since we saw the 'Woman in Black.'

"We were timed to leave M—— about one o'clok in the morning, and to arrive in S—— about six o'clock. On the night when the thing took place a fearful storm of wind and rain had been raging since early evening, and was at the height of its fury when I started from the engine shed.

"It was about midnight and the wind seemed to sweep clear round and through the building. It was terribly dismal. Jim was there, and the engine was all ready, so after getting my working clothes on, I ran the engine down to the station. Our train, the vestibule limited, was an hour late. I gave the engine a thorough oiling, and made sure that all was in order.

"As we sat in the cab we could hear the storm raging on the outside, while the rain, driven by the gusts of wind, beat fiercely against the windows.

"'It's going to be a bad run, Frank,' Jim said. 'I wish we were in S——, safe and sound.'

"I laughed. 'What makes you feel so terribly glum, Jim,' I said.

"'Oh,' said he, 'I feel creepy, somehow. Seems like there's something terrible going to happen. I can feel it in my bones.'

"I laughed again. 'You got a little wet coming over, I guess, Jim,' said I. 'And the sound of the wind isn't very encouraging, that's a fact.'

"To tell the truth, I was a little nervous myself, notwithstanding my easy way of treating Jim's notion.

"Presently our train came in, long and heavy, consisting mainly of sleepers. It used to make me nervous to know that the lives of hundreds of my fellow men were in my keeping, but now I think nothing of it. That night I was nervous. What if the frightful storm had made a signalman careless, or if a rail had been loosened by the settling of the track somewhere? On these fast trains a man must rely on the vigilance of the employes, for in order to keep to time he must run at such a speed that often he cannot see a signal before he is upon it.

But I laughed at myself for my fears as I backed down and coupled on to the train. I set the brakes, and found everything in good order.

"By and by the little gong above my head clanged sharply, and with a puff and hiss of escaping steam we were off into the night and storm, rattling over junctions, past signal lights, and between long lines of carriages till, with a roar and a rumble, we rushed over the long iron bridge and away through the hills, waking their slumbering echoes with our shrill whistle.

"Then I pulled the throttle wide open, and the clank and roar soon settled into a hum, for old 449 was doing her best, and we were making 50 miles an hour.

"The darkness was intense, save where the headlight, an electric device, cast its funnel of light into the gloom. Jim had a big fire, and kept steam up to a high pressure, so that we fairly flew past sleeping hamlets and still farmhouses.

"At our first watering station I made sure that all was working smoothly, while Jim inspected the headlight. The station master handed out the orders, which showed that the line was clear as far as our next stopping place. On we went.

"The darkness grew more intense, if possible, while the wind shrieked by. The rain became more blinding, till nothing could be distinguished in the gray mist which enveloped us.

"Suddenly through the mist and rain I saw looming right in front of us the gigantic figure of a woman wrapped in a long, black mantle, which seemed to flutter in the wind. She waved great, spectral arms about in swift, twisting movements. As I stood looking in horror, the figure vanished with a final wave of the arms.

"I was too much astonished and stupefied even to make a movement of my hand toward the throttle. At that moment Jim had been bending over the fire. As he looked up he exclaimed:

"'Halloa, Frank. What's up. You look as though you had seen a ghost.'

"I did not answer. My mind was too full of the strange figure I had perceived.

"We were now nearing Red Creek, where there is a bridge over a deep stream. I felt more nervous than ever. We dashed around the curve and whizzed by Rock Creek station, which is only a mile from the bridge. As we passed I glanced at the steam gauge for an instant. A cry from Jim caused me to turn quickly toward him. He sat rigid, his eyes large and staring. His jaw dropped, the very picture of terror. He pointed with a shaking finger out into the darkness. I turned and looked, and then I began myself to shake. There on the metals was the same hideous figure of a woman outlined on the background of light from the engine, now motionless, now whirling in a witch dance, but all the time motioning us back.

"'Frank,' gasped Jim, but scarcely above a whisper, 'don't go over that bridge. Don't go, for heaven's sake! Don't go until you are sure it's safe.'

"I suppose I was pretty badly scared. At any rate, I put on the brake for all I was worth. I couldn't have resisted the impulse to stop the train.

"As we came to a stop I could hear the roar of the water in Rock creek just ahead. I stepped out of the cab and met the conductor coming up.

"'What's the matter? What's the matter?' he asked, impatiently.

"I felt decidedly foolish. There was no gigantic woman to be seen now. Nothing could be made out more than a few feet away in the blinding storm.

"'Well,' said I, 'we've seen something. I don't know what it is—seemed like it was a great black ghost that was waving its arms and warning us not to go forward.

"The conductor looked at me curiously. 'Are you crazy, Frank,' he said. 'I should think you were. But we're so near the bridge we'll take a look at it.'

"We took our lanterns and went ahead, leaving Jim with the engine; he looked frightened to death. But I tell you, we hadn't gone five rods before we stopped in horror.

"There at our feet lay a black chasm, filled with the roar of the river, as swollen with the spring rains, it dashed down toward the lake. The bridge was washed away.

"Only a few splinters of wood and twisted iron clung to the abutment, while now, far out over the blackness, that awful black figure of a woman danced again on the thin air, relieved against the shaft of light that the headlight threw.

"It was flinging its arms about as if in wild glee. The conductor stared at the chasm and then at me.

"'Was that the thing you saw when you stopped the train?' he asked.

"'Yes.'

"'Well, it's something more than luck that saved us to-night, Frank.'

"We went back slowly to the train, feeling very queer and thankful, too, I can assure you. Several passengers had come running forward by this time. Among them was a young fellow from Chicago about 18 years old, who was smarter than the whole of us, as it turned out.

"When he was told of the woman in black he turned and looked at the locomotive headlight. Then he ran up toward it. I looked up as he did so, and I saw a peculiar spot on the glass.

"'There's your woman in black!' said the boy.

"And there it was, sure enough—that same moth miller that you see there in the frame. He was clinging to the inside of the glass. As I tapped on the glass the creature flew back and lighted on the reflector.

"That's the whole story, sir. The moth, by fluttering on the glass just in front of the illuminator, had produced a great black shadow like that of a cloaked woman darting in front of us, and when he flapped his wings in his vain attempt to sail out through the glass, he gave his mysterious shadow the appearance of waving the arms wildly.

"Then when he flew back out of the direct shine of the light, the figure disappeared, of course.

"We never knew just how he got in there, but no doubt it happened when Jim went to fix the light at the pumping station.

"Anyhow, he saved our lives by scaring us with that woman in black.

"So you see why I keep the moth in the frame. It's to remind me of the way we were saved that night. Yes, you may call it accidental, but I call it providential."—Pearson's Weekly.

Napoleon's Growth in Cosmopolitanism.

Napoleon ordered Marmont, in case Blucher should resume the offensive, to abandon Paris and hasten to Chalons. This was not a sudden decision; the emergency had been mentioned in a letter of February 8 to Joseph, and again from Rheims emphatic injunctions to keep the empress and the king of Rome from falling into Austrian hands were issued to the same correspondent. "Do not abandon my son," the emperor pleaded; "and remember that I would rather see him in the Seine than in the hands of the enemies of France. The fate of Astanyax, prisoner to the Greeks, has always seemed to me the unhappiest in history." In this ultimate decision Napoleon showed how cosmopolitan he had grown; he had forgotten, if he ever understood, the extreme centralization of France; he should have known that, Paris lost, the head of the country was gone, and that the dwarfed limbs could develop little or no national vitality.—Prof. W. M. Sloane, in Century.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Killed.

A terrible accident occurred Saturday night, about 7:30, near the ruins of elevator A, in Minneapolis. At the hour mentioned Michael Irving, John Irving and Frank Dunsmore were at work on a side track of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railroad. The electric lights had not yet been turned on, and in consequence it was quite dark. An M. & St. L. L. switch engine was working around the yards, as is usual at that time of night, and had occasion to run down the track upon which the three men were working. There being several tracks in the vicinity it is almost impossible for one to tell in the dark upon which track an engine or train might be, no matter how plainly it might be heard. A cry from one of the injured men, as the engine passed the spot, reached the ears of the fireman and engineer, and in an instant the switch engine was stopped and the two men ran back to the place whence the cry had came.

There a terrible sight met their gaze. Michael Irving lay across one of the rails, with both legs almost severed from his body. John Irving, his brother, and Frank Dunsmore, although severely injured, were in a condition that was not entirely helpless. The former had received serious injuries about the head, arm and hip, while the latter was injured about the head and hip only.

The Beekeepers.

The Southern Minnesota BeeKeepers' Association held their annual convention in Winona. During the morning a paper was presented by Andrew Quisch, of Hokah, on "The Nameless Disease Now Called Bee Paralysis." Mr. Steinman, of Beaver, presented a paper on "Foul Brood and Cook Brood." "The Management of Bees" was the subject taken up by Mr. Judge, of Pickwick. In the afternoon J. F. Lang, of La Crosse, presented a paper on "The Working of Bees," in which he gave his practical experience in handling them. This was followed by the question box, which took up considerable time. Perhaps the most important thing of the whole convention was done during the afternoon in the adopton of a resolution referred to the convention for passage by a special committee, which had been appointed in the matter, to have the Southern Minnesota Bee Keepers' Association act in unison with the state organization to secure such legislation as was possible to have a state inspector of bee hives appointed to crush out all hive troubles with foul broods, as the disease is very infectious among the insects.

Libel Suits.

Congressman Towne has begun libel suit against the News-Tribune of Duluth, because of the publication of an article from the St. Paul Dispatch, printed Aug. 24, in which it was insinuated that he was acting from selfish and mercenary motives in advocating the views he advocates on the currency question, and that he had been acting in the special interest and pay of owners of silver mines, or had stock in silver mines. Papers in a similar suit against the St. Paul Dispatch have been sent to Ramsey county for service. The amount sued for is $75,000.

The News-Tribune made a sort of retraction when served with a notice by Towne's attorneys, 30 days ago, but the Dispatch did not.

A Good Indian.

Gus H. Beaulieu, of St. Paul, has received a letter from Amazen Clark, dated at the Mille Lacs reservation, bearing the news that Moozomaunay, one of the chiefs of the Chippewa bands in Minnesota, died at Mille Lacs reservation Sept. 3, at the advanced age of 85 years. The deceased was well and favorably known in the vicinity of Mille Lacs as a friend of the whites. In 1862, when almost all the tribes on the western frontier were hostile to the government, the Mille Lacs Chippewas remained loyal, mainly through the efforts of Moozomaunay.

A Barbecue.

Preparations have been begun for a grand barbecue, to be held at Hawley, probably Oct. 31. This promises to be a monster affair and will be attended by a large number from Moorhead as well as surrounding towns and villages. Men of national reputation will be there to speak and it is expected to be a glorious close of the campaign. Definite announcements will soon be made.

A MEDAL FROM CONGRESS.

America's Tardy Recognition of the Inventor of the Life-Boat.

In 1878 Joseph Francis received the unusual honor of the thanks of congress. In 1888 a gold medal was voted for his services to mankind, and on April 12, 1890, in the historic blue room of the white house, at Washington, this beautiful medal, the most costly one ever bestowed by the government of the United States upon an American citizen, was formally presenteed to Mr. Francis by President Harrison. Mr. Harrison referred to the medal as the tribute of a grateful country to a citizen who had rendered conspicuous service to mankind, and in his address, said:

"The tributes you have received from foreign countries to the value of your life-saving appliances are now tardily but generously and fittingly confirmed and crowned by this testimonial from your own. It was not enough that the savage wrecker should be driven from the coast—for the arm of the sympathizing watcher who had taken his place was still shortened, and impotent to save. You have given it power—you have made it possible for the shore to send succor to the ship. You have invented and suggested appliances that have saved many thousands of human lives. Not many of these have been able to know or to thank the man who saved them; but the nation to-day voices the gratitude of these and many thousands more who will owe their deliverance to you. In the name of the American congress and the American people, I place this medal of honor in your hands."

The medal is of large size. It cost $6,000. It was designed by the well-known sculptor Augustus St. Gaudens. A portrait bust of Mr. Francis, in relief, fills the center, and is surrounded by 38 diamonds. This is the inscription:

The United States of America
By Act of Congress, 27 August, 1888, to
JOSEPH FRANCIS,
Inventor and Framer of the Means
For the Life-Saving Service of the Country.

The reverse shows a ship in distress with the rescuers at work.

On one of the early days of April, 1892, an added honor was awarded to Mr. Francis, one but seldom vouchsafed—an introduction, by unanimous consent, to the United States senate in session.—W. S. Harwood, in St. Nicholas.

A Delicious Spanish Drink.

And at this hour the town belched forth beggars, and every boy demanded to be our guide. But it was unaided we found our way, now to the beautiful doorway of a plain, yellow-washed house standing in some silent, remote little square, and now to an old Moorish courtyard, its graceful arches disgraced and dishonored; now to an angle in the street overlooked by a high balcony gay with Moorish tiles; to a church hot and sweltering, as if it had never had time to cool, the silks and jewels of Christ and the Virgin gleaming from half seen altars; or to hanging gardens of palms as luxuriant as they should be in the town where was planted the first palm that ever grew from Spanish soil; or to whatever chance loveliness there was in the monotonous perspective of low, white houses. Nor did we need a guide to show us the way to the cafe, where we drank the most delicious cooling drink that was ever yet made. It is worth while to be thirsty in Spain; for its helada, or crushed ice flavored with lemon or orange or banana, is the daintiest device with which this thirst could be quenched, and there is no town in Spain where it is to be found in such perfection as at Cordova. But you must be fairly boiling to appreciate it.—Elizabeth R. Pennell, in Century.

Damage by Lightning.

Damage by lightning is unmistakably increasing, according to the director of the statistical office of Berlin. Various causes are assigned, such as the employment of electricity in various industries, the continual change of form of the earth's surface by deforestation, drainage, etc., and the impurities introduced into the atmosphere by the growing consumption of coal. Prof. Von Bezold some time ago showed that for Bavaria the fires due to lightning increased from a yearly average of 32 in 1833 to 1843 to 132 in 1880 to 1882, while the number of persons struck by lightning and of those killed rose from 134 and 73 respectively in 1855 to 186 and 161 in 1885. An interesting fact noted is that persons struck generally perceive neither lightning nor thunder, but receive the impression of being enveloped by fire.—Public Opinion.

PERFECT HEALTH.

How It May Be Obtained by All.

An Interesting Bit of History as Told by a Traveling Man.

From the World, Cleveland, Ohio.

After an extended trip lasting several months and embracing many points of interest throughout the West and South, Mr. George Lockhart, of Hudson, Ohio, returned home a few days ago. He is bright and genial as ever and looks as if his long holiday had thoroughly agreed with him.

Mr. Lockhart's business during his travels took him frequently to Hot Springs and other health resorts. He does not appear to have been very favorably impressed with the peculiarities of life at such places, nor with the benefits received by the patients. "Men go there to get cured of disease," says he. "They take one hot bath in the morning and spend the rest of the day generally in drinking, gambling and general dissipation. How they can expect to recover under such treatment passes my comprehension. But they are, as a rule, what the world calls good fellows, free with their money and bent on enjoying themselves.

"With one man, however, whom I met at such a place I formed what I hope will prove a permanent friendship. I am indebted to him for benefits which have left on my mind a feeling of the strongest gratitude. I was, as you know, not at all well. A slight lameness in my right leg, contracted about a year ago, had gradually become worse until I was compelled to go around on crutches all the time. Then my general health failed, until in the latter part of the summer I had about concluded to come home to die. Such a state of affairs as you will easily understand, was anything but comfortable. I was, in fact, neither more nor less than a helpless invalid, a nuisance to myself and everybody around me. It was at this juncture that one day on the train I fell into conversation with the man I mention. He recommended me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so. You see the result."

And Mr. Lockhart expanded his broad chest and smiled. "Look here," he continued, as he took off his hat and holding it on a level with his head, kicked it easily with the foot that used to be lame. No better picture of perfect health and abounding animal spirits could be wished for than this one-time invalid.

"My future movements are uncertain," said Mr. Lockhart at parting. "I will remain in Hudson for some time, but before the summer is over I expect to make a visit to Europe."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes (never in loose bulk) at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

"JAMIE," called out his mother, sharply, "you've been loafing all day. Satan always finds some work for idle hands to do. Take this basket and bring in some kindlings."

The Garden South.

The South is destined to be, and is rapidly becoming, the garden of the United States. Here life is easier to live, the rigorous winters do not eat up the fruits of the toil of summer, nor are the summers so trying as many northern people have supposed. "I used to live only half the year," said a northern farmer recently settled in the south, "and I used to work all the time then. Now I work half the time and live all the year through."

Home seekers' excursion tickets will be sold over the Monon Route to nearly all points in the south at the rate of one first class fare (one way); tickets good returning on any Tuesday or Friday within 31 days from date of sale. Liberal stop-overs are allowed. These excursions start (and tickets are sold) Aug. 17, 18 and 31; Sept. 1, 14, 15; Oct. 5, 6, 19 and 20. Call on any agent of the Monon Route for further information, or address FRANK J. REED, G. P. A., Chicago.

$400 Truck Farms in Virginia.

September 1st and 15th and October 6 and 20 Home Seekers' Excursion tickets will be sold from points in the west and northwest over the Big Four Route and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. to Virginia at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. Those who have investigated the state are of one opinion, that Virginia is the best state in the Union today for farmers. Situated at the doors of the great eastern markets with cheap transportation and a perfect climate it has advantages that cannot be overcome. Small farms may be had for $10 per acre and upward according to location and improvements. For descriptive pamphlet of Virginia, list of desirable farms and excursion rates address U. L. TRUITT, N. The Pill that Will.

"The pill that will," implies the pills that won't. Their name is legion. The name of "the pill that will" is Ayer's Cathartic Pill. It is a pill to rely on. Properly used it will cure constipation, biliousness, sick headache, and the other ills that result from torpid liver. Ayer's pills are not designed to spur the liver into a momentary activity, leaving it in yet more incapable condition after the immediate effect is past. They are compounded with the purpose of toning up the entire system, removing the obstructing conditions, and putting the liver into proper relations with the rest of the organs for natural co-operation. The record of Ayer's Pills during the half century they have been in public use establishes their great and permanent value in all liver affections.

DELANO, FRIDAY, OCT. 9, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Rev. J. L. Farber has been returned to this charge and will resume his work where he laid it down when he left for conference.

—The entertainment by the Schubert Symphony Club given Firday evening under the auspices of the K. P. Lodge, was fine. Every body enjoyed it.

—Congressman Charles A Towne is to speak in Delano Thursday evening Oct. 15th, at the City Hall. Don't fail to hear the most elgpuent plea for free and unlimited coinage of both silver and gold at 16 to 1.

—Fast daiving on tha street is against the ordinances of our village, yet there are those who persist in going as fast as their teams can draw them. It is dangerous business and should be looked after.

—Martin Conzet and wife vistied about a week in Minneapolis lately, attending the German's old Setlers meeting. M. C. says where there used to be nine now there is only three older setlers than himself, he having come to the Territory in 1853.

—Teday we received the following telegram from the Secretary of the Democratic State Central committee:

ST. PAUL, MINN., Oct. 8, 1866.

T. J. CATLIN, Delano, Minn.

Bryan special arrives Delano five fifty; departs, five fifty five.

E. M. POPE, Sec'y.

—Bryan, the next President of the United States, Providence permitting, will address a large crowd of the inhabitants of this village and vicinity tomorrow, Saturday, at 5:50 P. M., for five minutes, at the depot. It is to be hoped that the large body of voters who have so long occupied that precarious position, the top of the fence, will then and there resolve to get down, and get down on the right side; the side of the peole.

—The double wedding at the Catholic church on Tuesday was attended by a host of friends of the happy couples, from Montana, Minneapolis and other places. The entertainment at the house of J. A. Mayer during the balance of the day and evening was enjoyed by many Delanoites. Dancing at the Hall was kept up till an early hour next morning. A reception was given Wednesday, by Mr. Sosnek, father of one of the brides. The contracting parties have the best wishes of everybody.

—Quite a lot of sidewalk has been put down lately and if it was on the grade people might be satisfied with it. But as scarcely any of it is on grade. there is every prospect that the next councle, if they are like the present one, will order it reconstructed to suit them. The proper thing in a town like this is to have the easiest grade possible established, then live up to it from the first. So long as people are pmited to lay sidewalks to suit them, regardless of grade, so long will there be trouble about it.

—A serious wreck occured Friday evening about five miles this side of Minneapolis, where a freight train had broken in two and a car been thrown across the track, the west bound passenger train ran into it, and wrecked a portion of the train. The engineer, John Needham, of St. Paul was killed. The passengers miraculously escaped with a few slight bruises, though the whole end of one car was torn out.

C. J. Buckley, Miss Allie Murphy, Mrs. Geo. W. Bolton and Mrs. John Mayer were among the passengers. The train did not get to Delano until about 2 A. M. Saturday.

—Prof. Wharton talks about Dr. Catlin saying Russia, a silver country offered to loan the U. S. a gold country $400,000,000. That was the way the Dr. answered the Professor's argument that no silver conntry ever flourished: and that all tho gold would leave the country if we had bimetallism here. We think it will bear comparison with the Professors answer "the're dead" to the Dr's quotations from Windom and Blaine favoring bimetallism. If the Professor would learn McClearys speech he could recite it better.

Mr. S. W. Belford, of Denver made some good speeches in Wright County, the past week; but on account of illness dsd not fill his appointment at Rockford, Monday evening. We understand that the crowd assembled was well pleased with speeches by Rev McLain and D. R. Farnham political issues of the day from a free silver standpoint.

Commissioner's Proceedings.

The full board met Sept. 28, at Buffalo in special session.

School petitions were granted as follows:

John Workman's land to be attached to district 78, granted.

Owen Devanney to dist. 74, granted.

James Carlson to dist. 60, continued to Sept. 29, at 10 a. m.: afterwards granted.

Change in county road terminating where Minneapolis, St. Michaels and Buffalo county road crosses section-line between 7 and 18, T. 120, R. 23, granted.

A number of claims were allowed.

The largest to C. A. French, ninty tax receipt books, $108. And expenses in the Honora Hays coroner's inquest case.

Personal.

T. K. Danforth visited Delano friends the fore part of the week.

Clarance Handscom, of St. Peter, visited our furniture firm Tuesday.

Prof. Hawker, returned Sunnay evening from a visit to the Cities.

Commissioner Bugbee, of Rockford, took a trip up the line Wednesday.

Mr. Smith, the electrician, was in town one day last week.

Delmont Gould and crew went west to thresh this week.

John Nugent's portly form was seen on our streets Wednesday.

F. W. Johnson, Cokato's miller, made us a pleasant call Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Jake Stoltz, who has been visiting friends at Watertown, S. D. is home again.

Rev. J. L. Farber and wife returned home from Conference at Anoka, Monday evening.

William Jennings Bryan; will address the people of Delano at 5:50 P. M. Saturday, Oct 10.

Rev. J. R. Davies visited with Wm. Stanley this week on their way to their new home, at Hector.

Mrs. John Haffner, of Moreton, N. D. is sojourning for a season with her son-in-law L P. Probst.

Miss Anna Parsow and Mrs. C. W. Ingerson spent Saturday with friends at Long Lake and Minnetonka.

Mr. and Mrs. John Czoch and Louis Mayer were among Minneapolis people at the Wedding Tuesday.

Mrs. Rioso, wife of our night operaror arrived yesterday and Frank expects to go to housekeeping soon.

Frank Nelson, of Minneapolis, was in town Tuesday. He is to have a job if Clough is elected but dont think he will be.

Charles Judkins, of Baldwin, Candidate for Legislature, on the Democratic and Peopels party tickets was a caller Tuesday.

Mrs. C. A. Conner who has been visiting relatives here was called home, to St. Peter Saturday, by the illdess of her husband.

Scott Gunn, a former resident of Delano, but who has been residing in the state of Washington for eight years past returned with his family to this place Saturday.

Post Master Inspector Wood, of St. Paul, visited our P. O. Tuesday. He found things O. K. He gave us a call and set up a few lines of Bryan literature, just to let us know he had not forgotten how to "stick type."

The gold standard people are awfully scared in our county. They have pressed into service about every available man to be found to try to convince the farmers that they should vote against their own interests and in the interests of those who loan them money. Farmers read, and many of them know more about the financial affairs of our country than do the men who come to their school houses to tell them how to vote.

It has been suggested that if the editor of the Star News would let Towne alone he might get more votes for himself. If we could compass Towne's defeat at the expense of our election we would willingly do so, as we feel that Mr. Towne has shown bad faith to the Republican party and is a dangerous man to trust with the interests of the district in congress or anywhere else. Without expressing an opinion about his sincerity, we can have no future confidence in his judgment, and consider his defeat of more vital importance to the district; state and county than our own election to the legislature would be.—Sherburne County Star News.

TEETH Dr. Niven will be in Waverly Oct. 7, Howard, Oct. 8, and Delano, Oct. 10 and 11.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed bids will be received up to the 10 th. of October 1896 for the extension of the water main; beginning on River Street and running East, on Rockford Street to third street. Contractors can call at Recorder's office for specifications. The council reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

W. R. JOHNS,

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself: carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis. in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both, gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlighted nations of the earth.

The Democrats and People's party fused on a legislatiye ticket in this legislative district last week, Charles Judkins, of Baldwin, being nominated for representative for Sherburne county. Mr. Judkins is a very good man, who would make a creditable representative should he be elected.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct 2, 1896.

Mr. Bryan's supporters find nothing discouraging in the situation. On the contrary, they have excellent reasons for believing Mr. Bryan's chances are better than those of Mr. McKinley. These reasons are not entirely based upon reports made to the managers of Mr. Bryan's campaign, although there is no doubt of the trustworthiness of those reports as a rule. Those democrats who are careful not to allow their wishes to become tangled up with their judgment have been making a study of the figures put out by the more conservative supporters of McKinley and have thereby strengthened their belief in Bryan's success. The latest of these tables appeared on the editorial page of the Washington Post, which is strongly for gold. It gives Bryan 205 electoral votes, McKinley 140, and puts 102 in the doubtful column. To accept this table as correct is to be sure that Bryan will be elected, as the 102 electoral votes classed as doubtful, of which Bryan must get 19 to be elected and McKinley must get 84, are made up of the following states: Illinois, Oregon, California, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin and Iowa. It is a very conservative claim to say that Bryan will certainly carry more than five out of these ten states, which would elect him with votes to spare. if the rest of the table be all right, and there is no doubt about that, as with the exceptions of Indiana and Nebraska, it only includes in the Bryan column states which are conceded to Bryan by the republicans.

Hon. W. E. Chilton, Secretary of state for West Virginia, was one of the party which came to Washington to escort Mr. Bryan to that state. While in Washington Mr. Chilton said: "I am not afraid of the result in West Virginia, and have no hesitation in predicting that Bryan will get its electoral vote. Our people are strongly for silver, and many converts have been made from the republican ranks. The Palmer and Buckner ticket will not poll much of a vote. The republicans are making the most strenuous efforts for McKinley, and the allegations of coercion and intimidation of railway employes are strictly true. But there is always a reaction against such methods, and a feeling of resentment arises in the minds of the men who are thus coerced that will result in causing hundreds of them to vote the other way".

Gen. W. J. St. Clair, of W. Va., who was in Baltimore with Mr. Bryan, and who passed through Washington this week, said: "I found a degree of Bryan enthusiasm in the City of Baltimore that was rather surprising, in view of the tone of its bolting democratic newspapers. The talk about McKinley's great majority in the Maryland metropolis is all nonsense."

Senator Gorman's disinclination to make ante-election claims and promises adds force to what he told Mr. Bryan and the other gentlemen who participated in the conference held in New York City this week. He promised that Mr. Bryan should have the electoral vote of Maryland, and he said that he considered that the democrats still had an even chance to win, notwithstanding the influences that were being used against them.

Democratic confidence, which has been fairly good from the beginning of the campaign, has greatly increased since the conference in New York this week, participated in by Messrs. Bryan, Sewall, Chairman Jones, Senator Gorman and other democratic leaders. At that conference every aspect of the campaign was carefully considered, and the deliberate and unanimous conclusion of those present was that Mr. Bryan was making a great campaign, and that unless something not now expected should occur to change the drift of public sentiment in favor of the free coinage of silver he would be elected with a number of electoral votes to spare. It did not take long for this opinion to spread among the rank and file and the result has been a natural increase in democratic confidence which cannot fail to make itself felt in the work of the campaign.

Senator Faulkner has been getting some very cheering news this week from all around, but that which pleased him most has come from Michigan, California, Iowa and Kansas, which are claimed by some republicans and put in the doubtful column by others. According to Senator Faulkner's advices neither of them will be carried by McKinley. The democrrtic state committee of Michigan reports that state to be absolutely safe for Bryan, and gives the figures to back up the claim; reports from California say that it is now only a question of the size of the majority Bryan will get in that State; Iowa is considered so safe for Bryan that its prominent stump speakers are being sent into other states, and a poll of Kansas gives Bryan the state by 50,000 majority.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.
Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoka, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanmously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Wreas, The republicans of Hennepin county by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representive of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that default of such nominations, it is the duty every republican to vote at the polls for men whom he regards as best qualified seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seavre Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to re-election."

Upon motion was carried that the secretary furnish one newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

DON'T forget to turn out and vote at the coming election. Pick out your men and make your cross opposite the name of every man you wish to have elected. If you believe in free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold vote for Bryan, Towne and Lind. If you don't, vote anyway, vote for what you believe to be for the best of the country. It is the proper time to settle this important question as to whether or not we will do business on a gold standard and on credit, or on a bimetallic basis and pay as we go. Everybody vote and roll up a majority long to be remembered, and that will be satisfactory to even the side that is defeated.

Citizen Ireland's Politics.

One of the foremost men, in public matter in our state has long been, Archbishop John Ireland. He is never backward in expressing himself on matters of public interest. In reforms he has been foremost; especially in the temperance cause will his work long be remembered. Taking advantage of his position as an offset to the publication of Archbishop Walsch favoring bimetallism, 27 men in St. Paul, whom so far as we are acquainted, are gold standard believers, have prevailed upon Archbishop Ireland to write a lengthy article opposing the Chicago platform. The opening remarks of this letter are such as will find responsive chords in the hearts of every true citizen of our country. But after these comes what seems to us to be some very contradictory assertions, and arguments against the Chicago platform. Every true and honest citizen of our country has the same right to his beliefs as has the eminent Archbishop so far as the politics of our country are concerned, and no one is more willing to admit this than is John Ireland. Believing with him that "To be silent when words of mine may be of some profit to the people would be cowardice, would be crime" we will endeavor to point out what we consider defects in the article of citizen John Ireland, giving first his very patriotic prelude, as follows:

"I am not unwilling, in the crisis through which the country is now passing, to speak for the integrity of the nation, for social order, for the prosperity of the people, for the honor of Ameica, and the permanency of free institutions. I am a citizen of the country, concerned in all the interests of the nation, subject to all the responsibilites of citizenship. To be silent when words of mine may be of some profit to the people would be cowardice, would be crime.

I am not unmindful of the objection made against the churchman speaking at any time on matters which have entered the arena of politics, lest his influence as a teacher of religion seem to be used to promote the interests of a political party. I might reply that there are occasions when a political platform means disaster to the country, when politics are closely connected with morals, or religion, and that on those occasions the churchman must be the patriot without allowing a moment's thought to considerations of expediency, and must take in hand the moral or religious issue, even if it be vested in the garment of politics. But in the present instance I seek no excuse of this kind, I speak entirely as the citizens, without warrent from my ecclesiastical position.

Deep as my convictions are, I hold in all due respect my fellow citizens who hold convictions at variance with my own. I impeach neither their good faith nor their honor. I am dealing not with men, but with principals and movements. This justice which I render to those whose ideas I am ready to combat, I am sure they will render to me.

I stand by the platform and the presidential candidate of the republican convention of St. Louis. I am opposed to the platform and the presidential candidate of the democratic convention of Chicago.

The days of the civil war excepted, at no time did so great peril threaten the country as that which is involved in the political campaign of to day.

The question of free and unlimited coinage of silver is put in the foreground. This question has its importance; but it is of a minor importance, in presence of other questions which are brought into issue."

Citizen John Ireland then strikes out at the Chicago platform by complaining that the plank "We denounce arbitrary interference by federal authorities in local affairs as a violation of the constitution of the United States and a crime against free institutions.' As being in its logical effect against the United States; it is secession; the secession of 1861 which our soldiers believed they had consigned to eternal death at Appomattox, but which demands again recognition from the American people. The declaration in the Chicago platform has and can have no other meaning." Here we don't agree with citizen Ireland. This government is supposed to be "of the people, by the people and for the people," and the people have a right to vote to correct anything tending to either military or mob law. The people themselves ask for nothing more than Constitutional rights.

The learned man's attack on Senator Tillman is mostly because he happens to live in South Carolina. He says: "Thrice now has South Carolina spoken for session when it passed in 1832 the nullification ordinance, when in 1861 it fired on Fort Sumpter, when in 1896 it cries out: "A sectional issue and it will prevail." He might, further have said that during the Revolution South Carolina was heard from through many patriotic citizens. That all that has happened in that state has not been bad. The state belongs to the United States and her citizens are entitled to the same respect as are the citizens of any other State in the Unoin.

He further objects to the Chicago platform because of the plank "We especially object to government by injunction as a new and highly dangerous form of oppression." This form of government in the eyes of the people, who are the government, has been stretched to cover cases it ought not to cover, and in calling attention to it in the platform they have done but what they have a perfect right to do. Why, if the government is to be run by injunction, and by the abuses of the priveleges of injunction, it will lead to as great an evil as we are told the selling of indulgences did, that aided in bringing about the reformation of Martin Luther.

The Supreme Court is a part of this government "of the people for the people and by the people" and it has been changed before, and whenever a vacancy occurs it is filled by the party then in power making it more in harmony with the existing administration. There don't seem to be such a terrible wrong about adding to its numbers if business demands a larger number of judges.

Citizen Ireland has no more right to complain of the arraignment of class against class by the terms "common people" "to the laborer" "to the downtrodden" and to denunciation against "plutocrats, "corporations" "money grabbers" and "bankers" than have the people themselves to complain of such as he alluding to them as he does, and to their platform as threatening the country with "lawlessness and anarchy." Would the good man have the people say nothing while times grow harder and harder for them, while the monoply, trust, syndicate and wealthy corporation officials roll in financial obeicity and contribute liberally to his desires? Would he have them say nothing while their wages are cut down and their employers make gifts of thousands to charitable institutions?

Then he goes at the financial question using much more than half his space to try to turn men to his way of thinking on what he has called "a secondary issue in this campaign." He is afraid that the proposed return to the coinage of 1873 would bring financial depression far beyond anything we are now experiencing. He claims Archbishop Walsh's arguments don't apply to this country. He admitted we are having hard times under a gold standard but thinks it would be harder under bimetallism.

We think the citizens of the United States are learning that the gold standard, under which we are now existing, and experimenting is a failure and will vote to return to the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at 16 to 1.

ROBERT A. SMITH, Ex-Mayor of St. Paul, has been appointed Post Master of that city in place of Henry A. Castle whose term expires.

Providence Favors Bryan.

From the first, things seem to have favored Mr. Bryan in his candidacy for the highest honor the people can confer on anyone. His great strength of character developed itself in his remarkable speech before the Chicago Convention, at once showing his peculiar fitness for the position of leader of a great reform movement. He is a young man, possessed of the qualifications required in a Chief executive. He is fearless and strong. He was perfectly acceptable to the Peoples' Party and to Free Silver Republicans, and, perhaps, the only Democrat that could have been nominated that would have so completely harmonized the elements of reform through out the country. His moral and social character is above reproach, and he harmonizes all elements of reform and seems bound to win in the race for the Presidency.

Trusts, Corporations, Syndicates and money loaners of all kind are fighting against him only to strongthen his chances with thinking people every where.

His opponent in the race is tied up at home by his managers, and those who can afford it, or those who the managers see fit to furnish fare visit him at his home. The people all over the country see nothing of him. Mr. Bryan runs himself. He travels over as much as possible of the land he seeks to be president of; he meets as many as possible of the people he wishes to represent at the White House and shakes hands with them; or in his pleasant way tells them what he thinks best for the amelioration of our present hard financial straits. He tells the voters to cast their ballots for men in sympathy with themselves. He is one of the people himself, and is in sympathy with those like himself.

Bryan And The "World-Herald."

The editor of the Penny Press is in receipt of a letter from the president of the World-Herald company, of Omaha, Hon. G. M. Hitchcock, in reply to a letter of inquiry touching the relations of Mr. Bryan to that paper, on account of some of the utterances of that paper in the remote past having been falsely attributed to Mr. Bryan. The particular matter referred to was the poster which is now to be seen throughout this city and St. Paul and probably other parts of the state, charging Mr. Bryan with being opposed to pensions. President Hitchcock's letter is as follows:

Omaha, Oct. 10 1896.

"Editor Penny Press:

"Replying to your inquiry and to others like it we beg to say that Mr. Bryan became editor of the World-Herald September 1, 1894, at which time the World-Herald became a free silver paper, advocating the coinage of gold and silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

"The World-Herald was the first great paper, with possibly one exception, to declare for free coinage, and since September 1, 1894, has yigorously advocated that principle. Whatever utterances of the World-Herald against free coinage are now quoted by gold press, date back to a period prior to Mr. Bryan's connection with the paper. THE PRETENSE THAT SUCH UTTERANCES ARE RECENT EDITORIALS IN THE WORLD-HERALD IS A FRAUD FOR THE PURPOSE OF DECEIVEING THE PUBLIC AND INJURING THE WORLD-HERALD OR MR. BRYAN.

"Mr Bryan's opponents are also circulating an editoral taken from the World-Herald of November 18, 1892, and relating to pensions. MR. BRYAN DID NOT BECOME EDITOR OF THE WORLD-HERALD UNTIL SEPTEMBER 1, 1894, AND NEVER WROTE A LINE FOR THE WORLD-HERALD PRIOR TO THAT DATE. HIS POLITICAL PLATFORMS HAVE ALWAYS FAVORED LIBERAL PENSIONS TO THE SOLDIERS.

You are authorized to make explicit denial of these charges in accordance with the above. Yours truly,

"WORLD PUBLISHING CO.
G. M. HITCHCOCK,
"President."

It will remain to be seen whether those who have used the charges above referred to, will have the manliness to make the proper retraction and explanation.—Penny Press.

Protective Principles.

From Sunday Call, Easton, Pa., Sept. 27, 1896

During the past week the managers of the Business Men's Republican Club of Easton, Pa., sent to New York and purchased four large American Flags. What appears strange in this connection is that these howlers for home protection should overlook the fact that Easton has the largest Flag Manufactory in America, in which none but American wool bunting is used in the manufacture of flags. This factory has been idle for five weeks owing to lack of orders. It does seem that if the principle of home trade and protection is as near to the hearts of the business men as they pretend, they would have the flags made in their own city, by their own people, and of American bunting, instead of preferring an European article.

It don't seem very consistent to preach protection and trade in Europe, but that seems to be the plan of the gold standard people all along the line. They even want our money made so that it will pass in England, and never caring what we do for money at home.

Denies He's "Bolted"

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 12.—A. R. Talbot, law partner of Wm. J. Bryan, tonight gave the following signed statement to the Associated Press:

I see that it is stated in the press reports that I have "bolted" Mr. Bryan, my law partner, now candidate for president on the democratic ticket. I have always been, and am now, a republican, but no man has greater admiration or higher regard for Mr. Bryan than I have. His honesty, integrity and patriotism can not be questioned. I have not bolted Mr. Bryan, and any statement to that effect is untrue. A. R. TALBOT.

The success of free coinage will bring down the rate of interest on money, and cause an immediate rise in the price of all commodities. When silver becomes primary money the American mines will pour their products into the mints, and a NEW ERA similar to that produced by the issue of greenbacks during the civil war will begin. Gold will leave the banks and enter into competition with silver in the avenues of trade, and the manufactories of the United States, which have been shut down or crippled since 1892, will AGAIN RESUME their fight for the English markets.—The London Financial News.

in a way to carry conviction to the people who will even loan him the use of their ears for two or three hours, to say nothing of the hundreds and thousands all over the country who are reading his great speech delivered in Congress. He had a crowded house here last night, and undoubtedly made many votes for the cause of Free and Unlimited Coinage of Silver and Gold at 16 to 1.

The speaker showed very plainly that on the money question the majority of the Republican party, and not he, had changed.

That what the country wants is more primary money; more of the actual medium of exchange on which to transact the business of the country.

That this country is now doing one third of the banking business of the world and is in every way in far better shape to maintain a parity of the two metals than ever was France, which for seventy years did, at a ratio of 15½ to 1 maintain almost an exact parity, while for a number of years during the time, silver was produced in twice the amount that gold was; and for another period gold was produced in three times the amount that silver was, and yet France kept 15½ ounces of silver and 1 ounce of gold worth practically the same.

Mr. Towne says Free and unlimited Coinage of Silver and Gold at 16 to 1 is bound to win in the United States, the State and in the Sixth District.

Chairman Rosing's Announcement.

Chairman Rosing, of the Democratic State Central Committee, announces that, after waiting for returns and making careful estimates, he figures on the majority for Bryan in Minnesota at 15,000; Lind for Governor, 30,000. And he expects the fusion forces to elect seven out of the nine Congresmen. Every voter should get to the polls as early as possible on Tuesday, November 3d, and help make these predictions correct. Every voter counts, be there.

Democratic County Ticket.

The Democrats have in nomination the following County ticket. It is unnecessary to give an extended write up on these men. They are almost without exception well known throughout the county. Most of them have good men as opponents, so that the people must make their own choice. Be sure to make an X after the name on the ticket for whom you wish to cast your vote:

For County Auditor, Ed Sherwin of Monticello, a Free Silver Republican is the nominee. He is well known over the county and is hustling for an election.

For Treasurer. E. A. Ziebarth, of German decent, lives in Franklin, is an ex-soldier, and an old settler.

For Clerk of Court. John S. Johnson of Woodland, a Scandinavian, and popular among his neighbors, in an old settler and was given a high recomendation by Mr. O'Leary who withdrew from the ticket in his favor, he having been nominated by the Populists.

For Sherriff, John Nugent of Chatham, who everybody knows is running.

For Register of Deeds, J. Z. Cochran, of Smith Lake was nominated by the populists and by the Democrats.

For County Attorney W. H. Cutting holds two nominations. He has served in the office before.

For Court Commissioner, E. R. Wells was nominated. But Mr. Putnam the Republican nominee informs us has refused to run against him.

For Surveyor H. T. Moland, of Silver Creek, a Scandinavian who has served for several years as a Republican, and who, it is claimed, they left off this year because he was in favor of free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at 16 to 1 is the candidate.

For Coroner, Dr. E. A. Shannon, of Buffalo, is a practicing physician, of middle age, has been Coroner in Carver County, is running.

For Superintendent of Schools, John Giblin, Jr. of Waverly, is the nominee.

For County Commissioner, First Dist. E. C. Day. Third Dist. W. M. Ziebarth. Fifth Dist. C. J. Nygren.

For Representatives, Ole Mattson, Dave Flannigan, J. P. Kuhnley, Charles Judkins.

For Congressman of the Sixth District.

No, Mr. Lind did not lie about railroad rates. He told the exact truth, and no railroad freight agent will attempt to deny his figures. More than that, there is no more truthful man in this country than John Lind, and his word will be taken as against that of any gold-bug newspaper in christendom where he is known.—Waseca Herald.

The Democrats and People's party fused on a legislative ticket in this legislative district last week, Charles Judkins, of Baldwin, being nominated for representative for Sherburne county. Mr. Judkins is a very good man, who would make a creditable representative should he be elected.—Sherburne County Star News.

An American Defect in Cooking.

The prime defect in cooking is in the use of refined white salt, which should be used only at the table for such as prefer an access of seasoning.

The secret of the savors in French soups and vegetables is the use of "black" or "grey" salt, which is course and crystallized. But if this is not easily obtained in America, there is a variety which will give a fascinating result, and that is the sea-salt such as is used in bathing. It can be had at any chemists, and will amply repay the small cost. It is used in moderation, for one does not want the result to be "salty." All seasoning must be added with skillful hands, governed by a wise head, and always with the conscientiousness that a woman who loves her work will give to the humblest kitchen detail. Toujours fidele is a good mottow for the kitchen, and whoever follows it will have no mishaps of burning cake or tasteless vegetables. It is all a case of cause and effect,—and, I may add a sleight of hand. If the rules are faithfully followed success must ensue.—From "A Savory Secret," in Demorest's Magazine for October.

A profound medical authority says that horn playing is dangerous, injuring the heart and circulation. It is to be hoped that this may become generally known.

They are now manufacturing a beautiful and serviceable silk from wood pulp. It is reported it can be made for 20 cents per yard. If this is true, goodby silk worm.

Five new asteroids were discovered on photographs of the heavens one evening recently by Dr. Max Wolf, of Heidelbery. This brings the number of minor planets up to 423.

Perhaps that Pittsburgh judge is right in deciding that "a wife has no exclusive right to the affections of her husband," but we believe she at least should have the refusal of them.

Homicide was the subject of discussion at the National Prison association recently in Milwaukee, and it was there decided that murder was on the decrease. This is in direct contradiction to the popular belief, but it is the view of men who are admirably equipped to get at the facts.

There is a building in Poughkeepsie that is probably the oldest one on the Hudson river. It is at the corner of Washington and Delaware streets, and was erected, according to the tradition, in 1713. It is being repaired to prevent falling into decay. The plaster on the walls is six inches thick and the laths are hand cut, about two inches in thickness.

Men are now living who heard the eminent scientist Prof. Silliman declare in a lecture at Yale colege, after a careful mathematical calculation, that no boat could contain a sufficient amount of coal to propel it across the Atlantic ocean. It is not likely that he ever dreamed that ships would be constructed which could contain and consume nearly 2,000 tons on a single voyage.

F. G. Jackson, who discovered Nansen, is talking of finding the north pole all by himself. Mr. Jackson is on the spot, so to speak, having located a suburban residence on the north shore of Franz Josef Land, where there are no mosquitoes in winter. Some sweet day, by and by, he proposes to run up to the pole and carve his initials on it, if Herr Andre doesn't fly over it first.

George Crocker, an habitual drunkard of San Francisco, braced up and kept sober five years to earn a legacy of $490,000. There is a good deal of talk about "this terrible thirst," but it is safe to say that almost any drunkard could conquer it easily for $490,000 at the end of five years. There is too much sentiment about the man who makes a wreck of himself to gratify an appetite.

Cultivating literature on a little oatmeal may be well enough, but when it comes to perpetuating the fame of authors by statues there are certain inconveniences attending too thin a diet. One of the objections made to having a statue of Stevenson erected to him in Edinburgh is that Stevenson was too thin to appear well in a statue. Thin authors will please take notice and at once lay in a supply of certain foods warranted to produce a pleasing rotundity of form.

The idea that the women of the far east are virtually slaves and education is denied them, has long prevailed, but to judge from some recent experiences desirable reforms have been effected even in the ancient, oriental countries. A Hindu woman, Miss Larabji, who not long ago received a degree from Oxford, is practicing law in her native land, and has just successfully defended a native, charged with a serious crime. The new woman lives in the east as well as in the newer civilization.

The theatrical world has become somewhat agitated by the summary action of the owner of an opera house in Butte, Mont. This impetuous person did not also own the ground, and because the owner of the latter refused to either buy or sell, the opera house is now a picturesque mass of ruins. The owner of the building had the structure torn down. The western country has been so victimized by cyclones and other disturbances of the elements that it is to be hoped owners of buildings generally will not join in this exhibition of accessory destructiveness. All through revenge.

Three miles from a ranch in Wyoming is a burning coal mine, the presence of which may easily be noted for a distance of more than 20 miles around. Some men visited the great field and say it has the appearance of having been on fire for centuries, and Indian traditions are to this effect. These all tell of underground fires that have been burning there since the first Sioux came to the country. The coal vein lies 15 feet below the surface, and, as the fire has consumed the fuel, the earth has crumbled and fallen until a hollow area acres in extent has been formed. The fire does not blaze, but smolders.

A careful inquiry into the average height of men of different nations has elicited the following facts: The English professional classes, who head the list as the tallest of adult males, attain the high average of 5 feet 9¼ inches. Next on the list come the males of all classes of the United States, and a minute fraction behind come the English of all classes. Taken right through the English and American races are approximately of the same height. Most European nations average for the adult male 5 feet six inches; but the Austrians, Spaniards, and Portuguese just fall short of this standard.

Identified.

Fairmont, Minn., Oct. 13.—The Sherburne bank robber this afternoon gave Sheriff Hill his true name and where his parents live. The robbers were brothers. The older brother, the one killed, was named Lew Kallihan, and the one here in jail is C. H. Kallihan. Their home is at Rock Rapids, Iowa.

Sheriff Hill at once telegraphed the sheriff at Rock Rapids and just received an answer that the Killihan boys are well known there, and, thought considered rather wild, were never known to have committed any crime. The father of the desperadoes own a billard hall and the Kallihans are considered very respectable people.

Gory Deed of Desperadoes at Sherburne, Minn.

Rob a Bank and Kill Two Men—One of Them Being Overtaken Shoots Marshal Gallien and Kills Himself.

Sherburne, Minn., Oct. 8.—This town is in the wildest state of excitement over the most thrilling tragedy that ever occurred in southern Minnesota. The Bank of Sherburne was robbed of a large sum of money and two men were almost instantly killed at about 1:20 p. m. Wednesday. About noon two men, one of whom looked like a mere boy, rode along the main street on bicycles. They were both well dressed, but were unshaved and travel-stained. The strangers hung around the outskirts until shortly after one o'clock, apparently sizing up the situation. At that time they sauntered lazily down the street and stopped immediately in front of the Bank of Sherburne. After a moment's talk they went into the bank, and the elder of the two men engaged Assistant Cashier George Thorburn in conversation.

Precisely what occurred inside the bank is not known, as nobody was on the street in the immediate vicinity at that time. One of the desperadoes, however, evidently got hold of a roll of bills containing about $1,000. Thorburn probably tried to prevent the men from getting away with the money, and they whipped out their revolvers and began firing, and at the same time retreating.

One of the bullets struck Thorburn in the neck and another cut the aorta, causing almost instant death from internal hemorrhage. The shooting in the bank aroused the town and people began running in that direction. The first man to reach the place was Olaf Oestern, of Luverne, a traveling salesman for the Wood Harvester company, of St. Paul. The desperadoes evidently feared that they would be captured, as they quickly turned their firearms upon Oestern. He made a dash to grapple with them, but was not quick enough, as he was struck on the head and fell dead at their feet. They ran down the street, firing at random, while people in the street scurried to places of safety. The fleeing robbers ran about three blocks to a clump of bushes, where they had coached their wheels, mounted them and rode rapidly away toward the Iowa line, six miles to the south. Mayor C. E. Everett at once did all in his power together with the town marshal to run down the bandits. He also sent a dispatch to Gov. Clough at St. Paul, telling him of the awful tragedy and asking advice.

Wells, Minn., Oct. 10.—John D. Sair, who no doubt engineered the robbery at Sherburne Wednesday afternoon, is dead, as is also Marshal Gallien, of Bancroft, Ia. This bloody sequel to the Martin county tragedy came a few minutes after nine o'clock Friday morning in a bloody battle on the state line road near Elmore, Minn. A posse of 100 men in command of Deputy Sheriff Ward, of Martin county, got on the trail of Sair shortly after daylight and tracked him to a farmhouse. Deputy Ward knocked at the door and was answered by a woman, but before she had spoken three words Sair rushed up behind her and began firing over her shoulder at the officers. He fired seven times in quick succession, one of the bullets striking Marshal Gallien in the forehead and killing him instantly. The desperado then quickly ran out of the house by way of the back door, mounted his bicycle and dashed off toward the east. The posse caught sight of him and followed close behind. This chase was kept up for four miles, when Sair broke a pedal on his wheel and took to the fields on foot.

As he ran across a cornfield toward a clump of trees Deputy Sheriff Ward dashed up, dismounted, and, resting his gun upon a tree, fired, the shot from his Winchester taking effect in the robber's shoulder. The latter fell, it was supposed from the shot from the gun, but when the posse gathered around him it was found he had shot himself in the head, the shoulder wound only being a slight one. Upon examining the body the officers found a portion of the money stolen from Sherburne in an inside pocket of his shirt, the amount being about $600. Fastened to a belt around his body were two revolvers and a wicked-looking dirk knife. The body was taken to Elmore at noon and thence west to Sherburne later. The coroner's inquest has adjourned until Monday without finding a verdict. The body of the dead marshal was taken to Bancroft, Ia.

DEATH OF DU MAURIER.

The Famous Author of "Trilby" and Other Noted Works Expires.

London, Oct. 9.—George Du Maurier, the artist-novelist, author of "Trilby," died at 2:30 o'clock Thursday morning. His end was painless and he passed away surrounded by friends. The illness of Mr. Du Maurier was pathetic in the extreme. For days he had been hovering between life and death, at intervals conversing with his friends regarding his work. Upon one occasion a friend at the dying man's bedside referred to the success of "Trilby" as a book and as a play, whereupon Du Maurier replied: "Yes, it has been successful. But the popularity has killed me at last."

The Georgia Election.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10.—Official returns show that the democratic majority for the state ticket in Wednesday's election will run over 50,000. Atkinson's majority falls below this by several thousand, but this fact is due to local fights on the head of the ticket. One notable feature is the fact that the democrats have carried the Tenth district, Watson's district, which is the closest in the state.

Thanksgiving in Canada.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 13.—The Laurier ministry has selected Thursday, November 26, as Thanksgiving day for Canada, as in the United States. The government four years ago purposely changed the date to a week ahead, but the present government thinks it better to have it uniform with the American republic.

Steamer Sanilac Is Safe.

Ashtabula, O., Oct. 10.—The steamer Sanilac, which was reported lost on Lake Erie, came into port Thursday morning and was wind-bound here all day. She was caught in the storm off Erie Wednesday night and was compelled to drop her consort, the schooner Oneonta. She was badly shaken up and her furniture damaged, but the loss will not be heavy.

REPLY TO WASHBURN.

Mr. Bryan Finds a Theme in a Letter from the Ex-Senator.

Minneapolis, Minn., Oct. 13.—Mr. Bryan declines to comment for publication on Archbishop Ireland's letter, holding that he can not make an exception to his almost invariable rule not to enter into a controversy with any person on political subjects. He may, however, have something to say on the subject indirectly in one of his speeches.

The 8,300 seats of the Exposition building were filled when Mr. Bryan, escorted by a body of 20 old soldiers, entered. The candidate received an ovation which lasted for fully five minutes. When the enthusiasm had ceased ex-Mayor P. B. Winston called the meeting to order and introduced E. C. Marchand, who presented to the candidate an ink stand, 16 parts silver and one gold, on behalf of laboring men of Minneapolis.

After returning thanks for the inkstand presented him Mr. Bryan said that he advocated bimetallism because he believed it was a good thing for the laboring men of the country, and continued as follows:

"I have received a letter dated October 12 and signed by W. D. Washburn, who is, I understand, an ex-senator from this state. In this letter he asks me certain questions about my vote and action in the house of representatives on the tariff bill, for which I refer him to the Congressional Record. But when he asks me to enter into a discussion of the tariff question I tell him that there is a question before the American people which is far more important than the tariff question. There is a question which can be settled now; the tariff question can be settled any time. If he wants me to discuss tariff I tell him to join with me in a prohibitory duty on foreign financial policies and then I will discuss the rest of the schedule. Or, if he is not willing to discriminate against that foreign product by a prohibitory duty, I will ask him to wait until he has settled the money question by international agreement and then submit the tariff question to international agreement. I am not going to discuss the tariff question, because I am going to discuss the paramount issue of this campaign, made so by three political parties and considered so by three political parties, and considered so by republicans who are afraid to discuss it and try to discuss the tariff question instead. But there is a part of this letter which I think you ought to hear, and I am not going to deny you any good thing. He says:

" 'The audience will be composed, I presume, very largely of laboring men and wage-earners of a high order. This class of people, like others dominated by human selfishness, so far as their own interests are concerned, probably prefer to receive their wages in dollars worth 100 cents rather than those worth only 53 cents.'

"I shall take for my text the words: 'Like others dominated by human selfishness, so far as their own interests are concerned.' Laboring men, I want to ask you why it is that every goldbug says that you are selfish and that you are influenced by selfish considerations, while every goldbug pretends to be a philanthropist who simply loves honest money because it will help other people? I want to know why it is that these goldbugs are so sorry that everybody else will be influenced by personal interests and so positive that personal interest cannot affect them. I will tell you why: If a man believes a thing is good for himself, and also good for others, he will admit that it is good for himself. If he thinks a thing good for himself, but bad for others, he will never admit that it is good for himself. You will find that men never deny that a thing is good for them if they also believe it is good for others. It is only when they believe that they prosper by others' adversity that you hear them standing up and denying that they have any pecuniary benefit."

Mr. Bryan said he had received during the day, too late to verify its correctness by the Congressional Record, what purported to be an extract from the speech delivered by Mr. Washburn in the United States senate July 11, 1892. He continued:

"In this extract I find that Mr. Washburn gives the price of wheat, beginning with 1865 and running down to 1890, and that he uses these words: 'The hopes of the producer have been turned to ashes. The grain dealer, the miller and the business man have been disappointed. The balance of trade in favor of this country that everyone looked forward to with so much assurance has been much below the general estimate, probably from depreciation of prices in agriculture and few exports, at least $200,000,000. Gold is still leaving the country and there is but little profit or spirit in general business, while I think there is a general disappointment that, with the tariff of 1890, we do not see better times.'

"But there is another thing that I want you to notice about Mr. Washburn's letter. I believe that Mr. Washburn is a large employer of labor. Now, if he is dominated by selfishness, why is he worrying so much about having to pay his employes in 53-cent dollars? If his employes are so much afraid that they are going to suffer personal loss because of free coinage, why doesn't Mr. Washburn rejoice, if he is dominated by human selfishness?

"Now, if these words are correct, then Senator Washburn tells you that there was general disappointment that the tariff of 1890 was not followed by better times. And, again, he says, Mr. President, the people of the country were startled. I certainly was, when the statement was made in an article in one of the magazines a few weeks since that one-half of the property and wealth of this country were owned by 36,000 persons. And he says: 'The millionaires, the ten millionaires, the forty-millionaires, or the hundred millionaires, almost without exception, have neither created nor earned their wealth. The royal road to wealth has been through the illegitimate speculation, stock and grain gambling, market wrecking, railroad wrecking trusts and the whole family of iniquities that have been developed under the nefarious methods of the exchange of this country.'

"Ought the senator to be surprised if we are alarmed at the same thing which scared him four years ago? Ought he not to be alarmed when he finds that nearly every man whom he describes there, nearly every class which he described, is united in this campaign in opposing the candidates nominated by the Chicago convention. If it is alarming that 36,000 people own half the wealth of this country, is it not alarming that those who own the wealth should unite to control legislation in order that they may continue their domination of the affairs of this country? Is it not alarming that all the great truth get together behind the bulwark which the republican party has raised up by its platform and contribute out of their abundance a corruption fund which has never been paralleled in the political history of this country and seek with that fund to purchase an election in order that they may get back out of the people more than they have spent in trying to overcome the people?"

BRYAN AT ST. PAUL.

He Tells the People How the Government Should Be Administered.

St. Paul, Minn., Oct. 12.—The Bryan party reached this city a few minutes before seven o'clock Saturday evening, and were taken at once to the Ryan hotel for dinner. The main meeting of the evening was that in the big Auditorium, the seating capacity of which is 6,000, but which contained not less than 8,000, who had crowded into the available standing room. Before the speech by Mr. Bryan, Mr. Nash, for the local labor organizations, presented him with a gold pen and a silver penholder and an address on silk, expressing the hope that this pen might be used in signing the free-coinage bill that they hoped would pass.

Besides the meeing at the Auditorium other meetings were held at the Market hall and at Paul Martin's opera house, where Mr. Bryan spoke more briefly. In his Auditorium speech Mr. Bryan said in part:

"When government is properly administered there will be no railroad wreckers to make themselves rich by bankrupting those who put trust in them; when government is properly administered there will be no representatives of a coal trust sitting by every fireside to exact tribute from those who desire to be protected from the cold of winter; when government is properly administered there will be no syndicate fattening out of the government's adversities after they have brought those adversities upon the government for their own benefit; when government is properly administered there will be no corporations which assume greater authority than the power which created them; when government is properly administered it will recognize those fundamental principles set forth in the declaration of independence: 'All men are created equal; that they are endowed with inalienable rights; that governments are instituted to preserve these rights; and that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed.' When these four principles are applied, then government will be what it ought to be. No man who understands society or the necessity of government will ever raise his hand against government. It is against the abuses of government, and we shall not be driven from our purpose to eradicate these abuses, although every man intrenched behind a special privilege shall heap abuse upon those who attempt to rob him.

"I would not favor the free coinage of silver did I not believe that it would be beneficial to those who toil, because my political philosophy teaches me that there can be no prosperity in this nation unless that prosperity begins first among those who create wealth and finds its way afterward to the other classes of society. More than that, civilization itself rests upon the great mass of the people, and it is only by carrying the mass of the people upward and onward that we can expect any advance in civilization.

"There can be no real civilization where a few in the land have more than they can use and the many have an insufficient amount to give the necessary sustenance. Nor do I believe these great inequalities can exist in a nation where the government observes the old maxim of equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

The speeches at the Martin and Market halls were along the same lines as his speech, but much briefer. Mr. Bryan is to speak at the exposition building, Minneapolis, to-night.

Fargo, N. D., Oct. 12.—En route from Aberdeen, S. D., to this city Saturday Mr. Bryan at five o'clock made a speech to a number of early-rising enthusiasts dressed in buffalo skin coats. At the baseball park in this city he made a speech to an immense audience. He said, in part:

"Other questions can be settled at another time, but when a great party puts in its platform a plank which declares that a financial policy which the American people do not like shall be submitted to just so long as foreign nations insist upon it, it raises an issue which must be settled at once. I call your attention to the fact that the republican platform, for the first time in the history of that party, or in the history of any party in this country, proposes to surrender the right to determine its financial policy and place legislative control over it in the hands of the American people.

"The gold standard, carried to its logical conclusion, means that all legal tender money except gold is to be abandoned, and that whenever you have a debt to pay you must go around and find gold, no matter how hard it is for you to find it. More than that, the financial policy of the republican party not only contemplates gold as the only legal tender, but it contemplates bank notes as the only paper money.

"You tell us that we will approach the standard of Mexico if we have free coinage. There are other nations which have not free coinage. Take Turkey, for instance. Will we approach the standard of Turkey if we maintain the gold standard? See what the gold standard has done for Turkey. If I had to choose between Mexico and Turkey as a future home I would far rather go to Mexico and use silver than go to Turkey and enjoy gold."

At Breckinridge, Minn., Mr. Bryan spoke from the rear platform of his car to a good sized crowd. A stop was made at Herman, and Mr. Bryan discussesd the coinage question as he has discussed it often before. At Morris, Minn., the largest enthusiastic crowd was found that was left behind. Mr. Bryan addressed the people a few moments from the platform of the car. In his address he claim of the republicans that they had determined the financial policy of the country rather than legislate. Brief stops were made at Benson, Kerkhoven, Willmar, and Mr. Bryan spoke at each of these places. He told the people that the country has been getting larger crops all the time and has been growing richer and more of their farm products. He said that for years the republicans had been working to maintain the gold standard under cover, while openly advocating bimetallism. Between St. Paul speeches were delivered at Litchfield, Waverly and Delano.

Cost of Feeding the Nation.

Washington, Oct. 12.—It costs $684 to feed the United States for one year. This fact is revealed in the annual report of the commissary general which was submitted to congress today.

LATE MILLINERY.

Blue must be reckoned the most fashionable color for millinery this season, dark shades—principally navy blue and sapphire.

Several shades of red are fashionable as well. They are all the way from the dye, whether of the pecan or cherry berry or poppy varieties, to the delicate pink and cerise are also in vogue.

In spite of this marked preference for gay colors the trade is also being done with black velvet; still, this material is used less than might have been expected for covering shapes. Feathers are not much asked for by the trade.

As matters now stand the favorite world greens and violets have the best place. These are the colors which are produced in the greatest variety of shades; moss, blue green, reseda and water greens are equally the fashion. The violets run from eveque to blue, while from aubergine to red are the lilacs.—Dry Goods Economist.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by reputable druggists.

In the enjoyment of good health, the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If acted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

THE GOVERNOR'S ESCAPE

BY FREDERICK M. COLBY.

More than a hundred years ago, in the sweet springtime of the year, pretty little Hetty Marvin sat in her father's orchard, tending the bleaching of the household linen.

On the grass, in the sunshine, by the little brook, lay the long web of 50 yards or more—the spinning and weaving of which had occupied Mrs. Marvin during the long months of the previous winter.

It had been carried there by the farmer and his stout "help" on one of the earliest of the warm spring days, and after being thoroughly wetted was spread upon the green turf, to pass through the long process of whitening necessary before it could be cut up for the family use.

Hetty was not old nor strong enough to help her mother in the heavier work of the kitchen and the dairy, so it devolved upon her to superintend the bleaching. She was not quite 12, a bit or a girl, with bare feet and a profusion of soft, dark hair that would not be trained, but persisted in straggling over her pretty face, and veiling half the time a pair of vivacious, although thoughtful, dark eyes.

Her task was not a hard one. Whenever the folds of the linen grew dry, Hetty sprinkled them afresh with water, obtained from the brook in her gourd-shell dipper. This was to forward the whitening.

The rest of the time she sat under the orchard trees, busy with her book or her knitting, or romped with Towser, the big house dog that bore her company.

On this particular May afternoon, Hetty sat under an apple tree, reading Bunyan's "Pilgrim's Progress." But, like the notable little housewife that she was, she did not allow the adventures of Christian and Hopeful to keep her mind from the task she was overseeing.

The great web of linen was nearly whitened, and had to be dampened quite often now—a labor that left the little maiden no large amount of spare time.

This seemed the harder, as Hetty was at the most interesting portion of Christian's wanderings, when that hero and Hopeful were in Doubting castle, under the surveillance of Giant Despair and his plotting wife. Every leisure minute that she had was devoted to the book.

The afternoon was very beautiful and still. The sun shone warmly upon the green hillsides, where the violet and the saxafrage were blooming in yellow and snowy and purple glory upon the red farmhouse, set in its frame of lilac bushes all abloom, and upon a dry and dusty highway—which here came up close to the orchard, and was joined by a well-traveled path that led from the farmhouse through the field, although upon the other side of the house the broad thoroughfare swept up close to the front yard.

The boughs of the old apple tree shook their green leaves tremulously above the head of the young girl, and the water of the little brook murmured musically in its channel, as it tumbled over the mossy pebbles to join the broad Connecticut, not far distant, whose surface was visible where it emptied into Long Island sound.

A peaceful day, with only peaceful sounds around her, and yet even little Hetty knew that there were other agencies abroad in the early summer air.

On the morning of that May day, 1777, looking from her childhood's home, she had seen the reflection of the flames in the eastern sky, that told of British and tory vengeance upon New London.

The night before, when she and her elder sister were in bed, horses' hoofs had dashed up to the door, and a fugitive had been stealthily let in—no less a personage than Gov. Griswold himself, who, fleeing for his life, had sought a retreat among his relatives in this secluded farmhouse.

Her cousin was still there, concealed behind her mother's chest of drawers in a hole in the wall, for she herself had carried his dinner to him. That his enemies were likely at an any time to track him thither was a fact patent to the Marvin household.

Hettie had not troubled herself much about this latter danger to the safety of her kinsman. Perhaps she had not thought enough about the matter fully to understand the peril that would accrue to her distinguished relative in case such an event happened.

She was only a little girl, after all, and just now more intent upon the escape of Christian and Hopeful from Doubting castle than she was in anything in this practical world, save the whitening of her mother's linen. She was reading where Christian had found the key of promise in his bosom, and was rejoicing over the discovery with Hopeful, when Towser sprang up, with a loud bark.

Just at that moment a man came running through the orchard—a man with his hat off, and wearing a haunted, anxious look on his pale face. At the first glance, the girl recognized Gov. Griswold.

He did not see her, in his haste, and sprang by her; but he paused as she called to him:

"Cousin, cousin! what is the matter?"

"Hetty, the British and Tories are at the house, and I am fleeing for my life. Please keep Towser quiet! They will hang me if they catch me."

The girl instantly quieted the dog, who, though friendly enough to the family guest, felt it incumbent to take some notice of his hurried steps.

"But how do you mean to escape?" she asked, growing somewhat pale at the thought of her gallant cousin being caught and hung by the British.

"I left a boat hidden down on the river, and two of my friends are waiting there for me. If I can get down there before my enemies overtake me, I shall be saved. Good-by, little cousin! When the dragoons come along, tell them I have gone up the road after the mail-wagon."

Hetty Marvin's dark eyes looked up, very much surprised and very much distressed, through her truant curls.

"I cannot tell a lie, cousin—indeed I cannot!" she cried.

"But you must, child, else the British will surely overtake me! You would not betray me to death, Hettie?"

"No, no! But I must not, dare not lie. I will never tell which way you go; they may tear me to pieces first. So run quickly, for they are coming."

The loud tramp of horses' hoofs rang out fearfully near.

"It's no use," said the governor, looking around, desperately. "Unless I can deceive them I am a doomed man."

The click of spurs and sabers could now be heard up the road. The dragoons would soon be there. Yet Hetty felt that she could not tell an untruth, even to save her cousin's life. Suddenly her face flushed with a happy thought.

"I cannot speak falsely, Cousin John," she said, "for that would be wicked; but the British shan't get you if I can help it. Crawl under my web of cloth; they'll never think of looking there for you. Get down as quickly as you can, cousin, for they are almost here, and I will cover you, and stand sprinkling my linen."

The governor looked around with the keenness of a hunted deer. His ears and his eyes told him that it would be vain now to attempt to escape by flight, and his little cousin's plan pleased him.

"It is my only chance, and I thank you," he said. "I will get down as you say."

Suiting the action to the word, Gov. Griswold crept under the great web of linen, and Hetty saw that he was carefully covered and then hastened to the brook to fill her gourd with water.

She was sprinkling the web with her trembling hands when the British dragoons rode up, a score of fierce-looking men in gay uniforms, their heavy sabers clanking at every movement their horses made.

The sharp eye of the leader noticed the little girl in the orchard, and, riding close to the wall, he called out, sternly:

"Child, has anyone passed here within a half hour?"

"Yes, sir," answered Hetty, growing very pale. "I saw a man, running very fast, go by not ten minutes ago."

"Which way did he go?" asked the officer.

"I promised I wouldn't tell, sir," said Hetty, sobbing in her fright.

"But we are friends of his, and we wish to give him aid," said the officer, cunningly. "Did you not see which way he went?"

"Yes."

"And you won't tell us?"

"I said I promised not to tell, and I won't, even if you kill me!" said Hetty.

And she looked very brave and determined, though she trembled so that her teeth chattered.

"Don't you be frightened, child," said a man, whom Hetty recognized as a tory of the neighborhood, and who was evidently the guide of the party. "Is not your name Hetty Marvin?"

"Yes, sir."

"And now, Hetty, wasn't this man your cousin, Gov. John Griswold, and hasn't he been stopping at your house?"

"Yes, sir," replied Hetty.

"Of course, he said something to you when he went past—now, didn't he, Hetty?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did he say?" inquired the tory, his eyes flashing with triumph.

"He—he said he was flying for his life."

"Just so, Hetty. And he told you his plans, very likely? Be a nice girl and tell us all he said."

Hetty was not deceived by the tory's pleasant speech; but she had been thinking, and she had concluded she could aid her kinsman as well by her frankness as her silence. So she said, with an air of candor:

"My cousin told me that he was going down the river, where some friends were waiting for him with a boat, and he wanted me to tell the men who were chasing him that he had gone the other way to catch the mail wagon."

"And you promised to do as he wanted you to, eh?"

"No, I told him I could not, for that would be telling a lie."

"What did your cousin say to that?"

"He asked me if I wanted to betray him to his death."

"And then you promised that you wouldn't tell which way he went, were you to be killed for it? You are a very brave girl, Hetty, and your cousin ought to be very thankful to you. Now tell us what his last words were as he ran away, and we won't trouble you any more."

It seemed to Hetty as if the tory's eyes were looking directly at the place in the web under which her cousin lay, and her courage almost failed her; but she answered:

"His last words were: 'It's my only chance, child, and I will get down as you say.'"

Then, overpowered by her alarm for her kinsman, if they should rightly interpret the language she repeated, she carried her apron to her face and sobbed aloud. But there was no need. The dragoons had not understood her, and supposing that they had obtained correct information, they galloped hurriedly down the road toward the river, while the hunted fugitive lay safe and quiet in the retreat where the simple shrewdness of his little cousin had hidden him.

The governor's friends had been on the alert. He had arranged a signal with the boatmen that a white cloth by day or a light at night, displayed from the attic of his hiding place, should inform them if he wanted assistance.

Such a cloth had been displayed from the Marvin mansion. But when the boatmen saw the dragoons galloping madly down the road, they rowed out into the sound. The British, concluding that the boat contained the fugitive, gave up the pursuit.

Gov. Griswold did not return to the house. He lay under the linen web quite contentedly until night came, and Hetty went to the house to get her supper. When it was fully dark, Mrs. Marvin came out with some food and a valise that contained his valuables and papers.

Then a light was placed in the attic window, while the fugitive made his way undiscovered to the river, where he was received by his friends, who, seeing the signal light, had returned to the shore.

Affairs quieted down in Connecticut after awhile, and the governor finally returned to his family, which had been augmented during his absence by the birth of a daughter. To this young lady he gave the name of Hetty Marvin, in honor of the girl who had been the means of saving his life, and who afterwards became the wife of a noble patriot, and the mother of descendants who have honored their native state.—Golden Days.

—Seasonable.—"Is that a clever novel you are reading, Miss Pincenez?" "No, but I carry it around with me because it has a linen cover."—Chicago Record.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

The Carnival.

It is quite evident that the leading business men of men of Minneapolis have taken up the idea of presenting there each season an annual fall carnival in a manner thoroughly worthy of the spirit of superiority which has always characterized everything attempted in a public way in that city.

So pronounced is this sentiment among members of the newly organized Fall Festivities Association that they do not propose to enter upon the work of arranging for a next year's carnival in a timid or faltering manner, but in a studious, thorough and most effective way. Among other things it is their intention to send an experienced representative, during the coming winter, to the leading carnivals of this country to observe the minute workings of the older established events of this nature. They will have associated with them in the work of preparation for next season A. Parker, whose inventive skill and wide experience made his services in behalf of the last carnival, in originating and successful presenting of the coronation concert, the beautiful "float" idea and other features of inestimable value.

After the Capitol.

Kandiyohi people are up in arms against work on the new capitol. Swan J. Fletcher and thirteen other residents of that county, J. F. Kelly, the St. Paul attorney, have served H. W. Lambert with summons to appear before the court of the fourteenth judicial district—Polk county—and show cause why he should not be restrained from proceeding with work on the state's new building.

Years ago the state set apart a piece of land in Kandiyohi county as a capitol site. Subsequent developments made it unwise to use the site, but it has remained the property of the state and as such has served as an argument for the Kandiyohi people in favor of locating the capitol there.

School Fund Apportionment.

The apportionment for the schools of of Minnesota has been prepared, according to law, by Superintendent of Public Instruction Pendergast. The total amount of money to be apportioned is $852,562,35, and this divided by the total number of scholars, gives the per capita allowance of $2.90. Every county in the state reported, so so that all have a share in the apportionment. Hennepin county, with 34,193 pupils, receives $99,159.70, while Ramsey comes next with 22,792 pupils and $66,386.80. St. Louis receives $29,884.50, Stearns $24,951.60 and Polk $23,724.90.

Sold.

The Auditorium building in St. Paul has passed into the hands of the Commercial club. The building has a seating capacity of 3,000 and has been the scene of many notable gatherings, the last being the Grand Army encampment, during the first week in September. In taking control of the building the Commercial club assumes a gigantic task, but St. Paul is now assured of a permanent auditorium for the many large conventions held annually in that city.

John S. Pinney, secretary of the Commercial club is manager of the Auditorium.

About Logging.

About 12,000 workmen are employed in the logging industry of Minnesota. It is estimated that the total amount of white pine standing is 14,424,000,000 feet, and of red or Norway pine 3,412,475,000 feet. In 23 counties there are 10,889,000 acres of natural forest, and in the whole state there are 11,800,000 acres of natural forest, not including mere brush and swamp land. The annual cut of pine for each of the past three yars is estimated at 1,500,000,000 feet. The consumption of mercantile hardwood lumber in Minnesota is estimated at 100,000,000 feet annually.

Mines Open Again.

Somewhat unexpected orders were received at Biwabik to resume operations at the Cincinnati mine, and shipments were begun this week. Captain White, who is in charge, says he expects mining to continue all winter. From 80 or 100 men will be employed. This is cheerful intelligence for the townspeople, as it was not expected that any mining work at all would be done this winter.

News in Brief.

J. J. Cochran, of Smith Lake, was shot in the leg by the accidental discharge of a gun in the hands of his son.

A box full of fine strawberries was gathered Sunday, the 4th, at M. W. Cook's nursery, south of Rochester. The vines have not been protected from frosts and in spite of the cold weather are bearing their second crop.

The Interstate elevator at Franklyn burned to the ground, with about 8,000 bushels of wheat. Cause of the fire is unknown.

Little Joseph Lombardo died in St. Paul, of hydrophobia, the second victim to the dread disease in that city within a week. The Lombardo child was bitten by the same dog as was Amelia Branch who died a few days ago.

Henry Clementson, while playing with companions at Rockester, was accidentally shot through the liver. He will probably live.

J. Q. A. Woods' residence at Sauk Center was destroyed by fire. Loss, $500; partly insured.

Anderson & Co., the granite men, who own the granite block which crashed through the St Germain street bridge at St. Cloud, some weeks ago, have served notice on the city council that they would claim damages against the city for injury to the block, of $836. The claim was promptly rejected, and it is probable that a suit will follow.

While the wagon of R. Rassmussen was standing by the curb in Minneapolis, thieves stole 125 pounds of butter therefrom.

E. E. Mylial's tailor shop at Grand Meadow was burglarized in a scientific manner and about $100 worth of goods taken.

Henry Dankers, 19 years of age, while working around a threshing machine in the town of Mt. Pleasant, caught his right foot in the cylinder of the machine and crushed it so badly that amputation of the foot was necessary.

A $5,000 fire occurred on the farm of William Wagner, nine miles northeast of Moorhead. Two large barns, granary, 16 head of horses, harness, wagons, machinery, hay and 4,000 bushels of oats were destroyed.

In a tussel with burglars R. H. Davenport, of Minneapolis, had an arm fractured.

RUIN ON THE COAST.

The Atlantic Seaboard Swept by a Furious Storm.

New York, Oct. 13.—The West Indian hurricane which arrived in this city Sunday is blowing off the coast, making the water boil and driving the breakers mountain high. Its center Monday morning was about 700 miles off the coast at this point. This city and adjacent coast lines on the outskirts have not felt the full force of the hurricane. Little damage has been done in this vicinity. Reports from the Long Island coast received say the storm has increased in fury and that much damage is being done. At 2:30 o'clock Monday morning a monster wave struck Seidl's concert hall at Brighton and tore away two-thirds of the structure. There is little hope that the remainder can be saved. The Brighton Beach race track stables are flooded and the horses have been removed. Rough estimates place financial losses along the Coney Island beach at $200,000. A large number of temporary structures along the water front were destroyed. The boulevard was flooded as far as Neptune avenue.

Manhattan Beach shared the disaster. Much of the ornamentation of the grounds in front of the Manhattan Beach hotel was swept away, and the magnificent lawn in front of the Oriental hotel was made a dismal waste.

At Rockaway Beach at least 20 hotels and pavilions were carried away. Seaside avenue is flooded, and the residents are in a panic. Connections with Far Rockaway are all cut off, as the ocean and bay meets in several places.

Asbury Park and Long Branch have suffered to the extent of thousands of dollars, and the damage continues with every wave. At Asbury Park the waves are pounding heavily against the famous board walk, carrying destruction in their wake. The planking has been torn up from Seventh avenue to Asbury avenue, a distance of over half a mile. At the foot of Sixth avenue several summer houses have been razed, and the monument marking the spot where the New Era was wrecked in 1854 was toppled over and wrecked.

It is feared Joseph Cole, William Camp and Samuel Hamilton, of Barnegat, N. J., who went out on the meadows with eight horses, were overtaken by the tide and have perished. They had not returned late Monday night, and it was impossible for anyone in the town to get out to them.

MARCHING HOSTS.

They Help Chinago to Celebrate the Anniversary of Her Fire.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—Twenty-five years ago the city of Chicago was laid waste by the most destructive fire that has ever wrought destruction in an American city. Friday, in commemoration of that day of dreadful havoc and suffering, a magnificent metropolis, so far exceeding the old city in wealth, beauty and population that comparisons are useless, if not utterly impossible, celebrated the rebuilding and progress of what is now the second city in America.

The anniversary was taken advantage of by the local managers of the presidential campaign to make a demonstration in advocacy of the continuance of the present national financial system, both republicans and gold democrats joining forces under the direction of the Business Men's Sound Money association in organizing a parade the equal of which has never been seen in this or probably any other American city. As a counter demonstration the combined silver forces at night gave a torchlight parade which was quite as noticeable as the day parade of the gold men.

Probably in the history of Chicago there has never been such a number of people congregated on its streets. The sidewalks along the entire route of the parade were a congested mass of humanity, which was with great difficulty kept from blockading the streets by the constant activity of an immense detail of police.

A FLOOD OF GOLD.

Leaving Europe for American Shores—The Latest Consignments.

New York, Oct. 10.—The steamer Fuerst Bismarck, which arrived from Europe Friday morning, brought £25,000 of gold consigned to Lazard Freres, Kidder, Peabody & Co., have engaged $750,000 gold in London for shipment to Boston.

The steamer Columbia, due next week from Europe has a consignment of $500,000 gold for Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co.

The Bank of British North America has an additional consignment of $250,000 gold on the steamship Lucania, which leaves Europe Saturday.

The total amount arrived, en route or engaged since August 28, is $51,550,629.

London, Oct. 10.—Gold to the amount of £356,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England Friday for export to the United States.

DEFEAT FOR MACEO.

Insurgents Reported to Have Sustained Heavy Losses.

Havana, Oct. 13.—Dispatches received here Monday from official sources in the Province of Pinar del Rio say that another battle has been fought between the Spaniards and the insurgents under Antonio Maceo, resulting in another victory for the former. Gen. Echague was in command of the government troops and Maceo led the enemy. The fighting took place at San Diego, and the insurgents are alleged to have sustained enormous loss. The dispatches also say that the loss of the Spanish troops was considerable, that the fighting continues, and that no details are at present obtainable.

Will Fight It Out.

Chicago, Oct. 10.—In response to the story that emanated in Grand Rapids, Mich., to the effect that Gen. Palmer and Gen. Buckner would withdraw before election day, Chairman Bynum has issued a statement pronouncing it without foundation. He says the men who composed the Indianapolis convention were sincere and in earnest. They believed that the nomination of candidates was necessary to prevent the destruction of the democratic party, and they have never for a moment contemplated the abandonment of their principles.

Steel Works Resume.

Scranton, Pa., Oct. 13.—The Scranton steel works of the Lackawanna Iron company, idle for nearly three months, resumed work in all departments Monday morning on orders that will keep the works on "double turn" for some time. Over 1,200 employes are benefited by the order.

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN.

Healthy Signs for the Future Appear in Trade Circles.

New York, Oct. 10.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"Distinctly better conditions have appeared of late and are reflected in somewhat larger employment of labor, in large transactions and in continued buying of materials for manufacture. A great part of the change is due to those resistless laws of supply and demand, which take wheat where it is wanted and gold where it is wanted. India is waiting for cargoes of wheat on the way from Pacific states, just as Australia and South Africa were not long ago. The surplus usually available from India disappears and the surplus from Russia and European countries is reduced, according to late estimates, 75,000,000 bushels. Happily, this country has a supply which official accounts have not correctly measured, if actual movements do not greatly mislead. Atlantic exports—2,069,071 bushels, flour included, for the week, against 1,707,629 last year—are not yet so large as to force prices upward if European buying based on European needs did not control our markets. A feature of large importance, too, is the unusually heavy foreign demand for corn, which is a rarely failing sign of deficient crops abroad, where other grains are used instead of wheat when the latter becomes scarce and dear. It is another good sign that railroad earnings, amounting to $28,745,318 in the United States for September, show a smaller decrease than in August, 1.3 per cent., against 5.7 per cent., compared with last year.

"The demand for iron products is so light and so much business is held back pending the election that decreasing output is not an unhealthy sign. There is quite a good demand for sheets, especially at the west, and rather better for pieces, and outside concerns are getting large contracts in steel and iron bars and in nails, but prices have not been reduced.

"The upward rush of hides has advanced prices at Chicago 6 per cent. for the week, to the highest average since last November. Prices of leather have risen 2½ per cent., with small dealings. Shoes are selling very little, as consumers refuse to pay higher prices, and dealers remember buying at high and selling at low prices last winter. Orders for the next season are few, and many concerns may close for a time.

"More gold has been ordered from Europe, so that $4,000,000 are now on the way. Speculation in stocks has yielded a little, about 1.13 for railroads and 55 cents for trusts. The outward movement of money to the interior has been $4,000,000 for the week, and little is doing in commercial loans, with rates about one-half per cent. higher than a week ago.

"Failures for the week were 256 in the United States, against 288 last year, and 46 in Canada, against 52 last year."

JUSTICES MEET.

Term of 1896-97 of the Supreme Court Formally Opened.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The supreme court of the United States met at noon Monday and opened the term of 1896-97. All the justices were present at the opening session, although Judge Field's health is such as to make it probable he will not be able to join his associates on the bench regularly. The several justices during the past summer visited their respective circuits and sat with the circuit judges in the disposition of cases, except Mr. Justice Harlan, who remained in Washington throughout the entire vacation, save for short trips to near-by resorts. No business was transacted Monday save to receive motions for admissions to the bar. When these had been disposed of the court adjourned and, accompanied by the clerk and marshal, called at the white house and paid their respects to President Cleveland. This ceremony, which has been a part of the proceedings of the opening day of the term from time immemorial, was intermitted in the years of 1894 and 1895 because of the absence of the president from the city.

A PRELATE'S DEATH.

Archbishop of Canterbury Stricken with Apoplexy at Church.

London, Oct. 12.—The archbishop of Canterbury, primate of all England and metropolitan, Rt. Hon. and Most Rev Edward White Benson, D. D., and privy councillor, died suddenly Sunday while attending divine services in the church at Hawarden. The archbishop was the guest of Mr. Gladstone through whom he was appointed to the archbishopric of Canterbury and, in company with the Gladstone family, went to the Hawarden church Sunday morning. After the services had commenced a commotion was noticed in the Gladstone pew and immediately thereafter church attendants were seen removing the archbishop, who, it was supposed, was suffering from a fit. He was taken to the rectory, and medical assistance was hastily summoned. The doctors worked over him in vain, and at 11:45 o'clock, he died. The physicians state that death was caused by apoplexy. Archbishop Benson was 67 years of age.

CAMPAIGN AFFECTS TRADE.

Big Loss in Postal Receipts Due to Political Agitation.

Washington, Oct. 13.—The effect of the political agitation upon business is indicated by the falling off in postal receipts for the quarter ending September 30. There is a falling off of $1,500,000, as compared with the quarter ended in June and $63,000 as compared with the quarter ended September 30 of last year. While the loss is not large for the last quarter as compared with the corresponding quarter of 1895, it has taken place in the face of the fact that the postal revenue increases more rapidly than population in prosperous years, and that there would have been an increase of nearly $1,000,000 under normal conditions.

STRIKE IS OFF.

Telegraphers Effect a Compromise with the Canadian Pacific.

Montreal, Can., Oct. 8. — The telegraphers' strike on the Canadian Pacific railway was declared off Wednesday morning. It is understood that all of those operators who have not performed criminal acts will be reinstated. The other terms agreed upon are in the nature of a compromise. The trouble was settled by a committee of the Brotherhoods of the Engineers, Firemen, Conductors and Switchmen, acting as a conciliatory medium between the Canadian Pacific railroad and the strikers.

Thousands Given Work.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Oct. 13.—The Homestead and Duquesne plants of the Carnegie Steel company were put in operation Sunday night after an idleness of several weeks. Several thousand men were given employment. The company will keep the men employed as long as there are any orders to fill. The Braddock wire works of the Consolidated Steel and Wire company, which have been closed for four months, except for several weeks when special orders were filled in the galvanizing department, will resume in all departments the latter part of the week, employing 1,000 men.

Famine in Asiatic Russia.

St. Petersburg, Oct. 13.—Famine is threatened in the Amur province of Asiatic Russia, the crops having been destroyed by flood.

$400 Truck Farms in Virginia.

September 1st and 15th and October 6 and 20 Home Seekers' Excursion tickets will be sold from points in the west and northwest over the Big Four Route and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. to Virginia at one fare plus $2 for the round trip. Those who have investigated the state are of one opinion, that Virginia is the best state in the Union today for farmers. Situated at the doors of the great eastern markets with cheap transportation and a perfect climate it has advantages that cannot be overcome. Small farms may be had for $10 per acre and upward according to location and improvements. For descriptive pamphlet of Virginia, list of desirable farms and excursion rates address U. L. Truitt, N. W. P. A., C. & O., Big Four Route, 234 Clark St., Chicago.

"Cincinnati Flyer."

The Monon has put on a fast flyer for Indianapolis and Cincinnati. The train leaves Chicago, Dearborn Station, at 11:50 A. M., reaches Indianapolis at 4:37 and Cincinnati at 7:45 P. M., thus making the run, Chicago to Indianapolis, in four hours and forty-seven minutes, and Cincinnati in seven hours and fifty-five minutes. This is the fastest time made between Chicago and Indianapolis and Cincinnati by any line. The "Cincinnati Flyer" is equipped with elegant day coaches, the Monon celebrated high-backed seats, parlor car and dining car. City Ticket Office, 232 Clark St., Chicago.

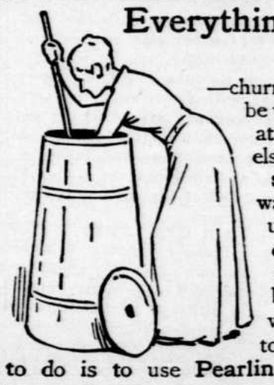
Everything connected with Butter



—churns, patters, tubs, firkins—ought to be washed with Pearline. That gets at the soaked-in grease as nothing else in the world can. Things may seem to be clean when you've washed them in the usual way; but use Pearline, and they really are clean. It might make all the difference, sometimes, between good butter and bad. Wherever you want thorough cleanliness, or want to save your labor, the best thing to do is to use Pearline.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, OCT. 16, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Page Morris speaks in the City Hall tonight.

—The hall was crowded last night to listen to speech of C. A. Towne, on the silver question. They heard a good one.

—A very pleasant surprise party was given in honor of the birthday of Miss Bertha Johns, last night, at her home, by about twenty of her school mates. Every body had a good time.

—One of the worst wrecks ever occuring in this vicinity happened last night about ten o'clock. The west bound freight engine ran down to the tank to take water; the train broke in two and the two parts came together, demolishing about fifteen freight cars, strewing groceries and other goods along the track. One freight car was telescoped almost completely from view into another car. Nobody happened to get hurt. The East bound passenger was delayed here for three hours while the wrecking crew cleared the track.

—Samuel Murphy, of Delano, presented W. J. Bryan with a fine potted Begonia, in full bloom, on the candidates recent visit to this place. It was about all Sam could do to lead it on to the rear end of the car. The card attached did not suit Sam and he went to the post office to get the post mistress to address another; it was near train time and no cards were on hand. Sam said "never mind expenses, take a postal card"; so one was addressed and paid for, and attached to the fine flower which was duly presented to the next President of the United States.

—John Belden, Al Hanaford, Prof. Hawker and Prof. Warton entertained a full school house in district No. 70 Tuesday evening, with political speeches. Mr. Beldon came first and announced that "the tariff was the leading issue; that the silver question was of little consequence." Mr. Hawker was next and said "if anybody had told me six months ago that the silver question would now have been in every nook and crevice of this wide country I dould have said they were in error." Mr. Wharton took the floor and announced that the silver question was not the leading one, and yet he talked around it for about an hour and a half. Mr. Hanaford followed. Then free cigars.

—Rev. Farber preached an uncomonly good sermon, even for him, last Sunday night. His visit to conference seems to have infused new life into his sermon, and the church was very well filled giving him something of an inspiration on that account. And his text was well selected, and on the whole he succeeded in impressing upon the minds of his hearers that a christion should let his light shine. The congrational singing led by the choir is good, and since the church has been fixed up inside and got electric lights it is a very comfortable as well as profitable place to spend Sunday evening. Prayer meeting Thursday evenings and Sabbath School at noon. every Sunday. Everybody invited.

—Glencoe Register: Capt. A. H. Reed, while in Chicago Monday of this week, held a conference with Chief Engineer Whitemore, President Roswell Miller, and Vice President Earl, of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad company, pleading for Glencoe's interests. He asked them to build a new depot and tried to show them the advantage in filling the gap in their road between Mankato and Glencoe. They assured the captain they had in view the matter of filling that gap and extending their line from Hutchinson northward as soon as railroad building was resumed, but they thought that our present depot could do us a while yet, as they had lately made considerable improvement about it. This shows that the Milwaukee company have not given up the idea of a north and south road.—The Hutchinson Leader.

Capt. Reed, and Mr. Holton of Elk River, were in Delano a few years ago, and a meeting was held at Young's Hotel, several of our townsmen being present, in the interest of this same matter. Perhaps after these years the road may be put through. It would surely be a good thing for people on the line.

Bryan kept his appointment and although the day was wet and gloomy, a large and enthusiastic crowd turned out to hear him. The band was on hand, anvils were fired and flags floated in the breezes. Men women and children flocked around the cars before they were brought to a stop near the depot. Mr. Bryan spoke for only a few minutes. But he very clearly and forcibly impressed upon the minds of the voters their duty to vote for a man in sympathy with the people and not with the trusts. He was warmly received and vigorously cheered, and after finishing his short speech shook hands with as many as could crowd up around the platform. Little Ella Sturman was held up by her mother, enough to reach the hand of Mr. Bryan who rewarded the effort with a hearty shake and a pleasant smile. Mr. Bryan seemed to be uncommonly popular among the ladies; they pronounced him handsome, pleasant, noble, and grand. His tour through the country and cheerful talks to the people at their own doors is making him thousands of votes.

Personal.

Albert Roehl, of Crent Falls, is in town for a visit.

Sheriff Carpenter was interviewing Delano friends Tuesday.

R. E. Franklin, of Howard Lake was down to the Towne meeting.

Earl Holsington and wife were up from Independence to hear Towne.

Robert Franklin informs us that Howard Lake has a Free Silver Club with 47 members.

Among Republican candidates in town this week we noticed A. Hanaford, Geo. Carpenter, J. S. Swanberg.

Ed Sherwin, of Monticello, candidate of the fusion on free silver ticket, for Auditor. was a GAZETTE caller Wednesday. Ed is a rustler and is figuring on being elected.

Among Democratic and Populist candidates in town the past week was William Jennings Bryan, of Lincoln, Nebraska; he came along, same as any other candidate, talked a little, shook hands with as many as possible and moved along to St. Paul. Everybody seemed tickled to see him.

Dr. E. A. Shannon, of Buffalo, candidate for Coroner, on the Democrat and Populist ticket, was a GAZETTE caller on Saturday. He is a very pleasant gentleman to meet, has served as coroner in Carver County, and knows how and will attend to the business with promptness and precision. He lives at Buffalo near the center of the county which is much in his favor.

Twin City Letter.

Jerry J- who contributes a letter to the Journal under the heading "North Star Politics" is always interesting, and although he writes from the standpoint of a hopeful Republican, he has more regard for the facts than the average correspondent. For instance in his last letter he admits that the fusion ticket is gaining ground in the southern part of the state, but he also claims that they have lost ground in the northern part. The writer is more familiar with the situation in the 6th and 7th Congressional districts than in any of the others, and I know whereof I speak when I when I say that the silver sentiment is gaining ground in both of these districts. This claim not only holds good in the country districts, but in the larger towns as well For instance in the 6th district at Duluth, I have been told by Morris men that Towne is holding his forces pretty well in the Zenith City, but that he is losing ground in St. Cloud, Little Falls and Brainard. At those places Morris men tell me that perhaps Towne has gained a little in their counties but that "Duluth will fix 'em plenty. I base my opinion of Towne's election largely upon the admissions of his enemies. Then, too, he is making the strongest canvass, and drawing the largest crowds, and in my judgment Mr. Morris is devoting too much of his time in a personal attack upon his antagonist, and not enough to the real issues. If I have any republican friends who are disposed to bank upon the election of Page Morris, to the extent to putting up any money, my candid advice is for them to invest it in hard coal. In the Seventh it is only a question as to whether Lommen's majority will be five thousand or seven thousand to the Peoples Party in the Seventh; then too, there is a large sprinkling of silver republicans in that district; then add to this unpopularity of Jim Hill,s and Russell Sage's agent who heads the republican ticket for Governor. Theh take the feeling toward the Great Northern, which gridirons that part of the state among the farmers, and you may put it down that John Lind will come out of the Seventh with not less than seven thousand majority, and Lom men not very far behind.

It would be a refreshing innovation if the Republicans could find a speaker to send into Minnesota who had not previous to the St. Louis convention, declared for remonetization. There is Ben Butterworth, a good fellow by the way, who is giving them a lift from Ohio. Six months ago he wrote a letter from which I take the following extract; "Is it not folly to suppose that the capitalists of England and they are the capitalists of the world will be easily persuaded to agree or consent to Bimetallism? Why should they? How is it their interests to do so? While we consent to their advantage to refuse, they have doubled the value of their credits by demonetizing silver."

Now comes Tom Reed of Maine to help save a state claimed for McKinley by fifty thousand. Yet this plan of claiming everything is nothing new. It was done four years ago by the Republicans when Cleveland went in so easily.

The enthusiasm which has developed since Mr. Bryan's trip through Minnesota is carrying consternation in the ranks of the British Gold Standardites. At this writing it looks as though the Union Ticket would win out in the North Star State.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 9, 1896.

Chairman Faulkner and all the other officals at democratic head quarters in Washington have a we're-bound-to-win expression on their faces. They have not lacked confidence from the beginning, but they have received information this week which they think makes the election of Bryan an absolute certainty. They deem it best not to make public the exact nature of this information at this time.

Mr. Laurance Gardner, secretary of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee, returned this week from the convention of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, of which he is also Secretary. He says the convention was the most largely attended and most thoroughly enthusiastic of any convention of the kind ever held, and that despite the hard times and the discrimination of the railroads there was a larger attendance than was expected. Speaking of what he learned on the trip Mr. Gardner said: "While at St. Louis, and on my way thither and back, consultations were had with the delegates from all parts of the country, and while I went to St. Louis already satisfied that Mr. Bryan would be elected, I returned with absolute certainty that nothing can be done to stay the tide that will carry him into the White House. I have refrained, up to the present time, from expressing my opinion for publication, but now, feeling so absolutely confident of the result, state the sincere belief that Bryan's election is assured. But as this is the fight of the people against the money powers of the world, we must be watchful and keep up the fight until the results are declared."

Democrats are wondering whether President Cleveland's return to Washington indicates his taking an active part in the remainder of the campaign. Some say one thing and some another. Meanwhile Secretaries Carlisle and Morton are talking for gold and small fry officials are asked for their resignations for talking for silver.

More than three hundred enthusiastic democrats went out to Laurel to hear Senator Gorman make his first Bryan and Sewall speech, and they were amply paid for so doing. Senator Gorman's statement of his own position on the financial question was at once modest and forceful. He said: "There are some democrats who have thought it best to go slow on the question now before the people, but when we submitted our views at the highest court in this land, the National Convention, there was nothing left for any democrat to do but to accept the decision." The Senator paid his respects to the bolters in a few vigorous and characteristic words and closed by assuring his hearers that the Maryland voters could not be bought—in his own language: "I think I know the people well enough to say that all the banks, railroads and other corporations will not be able to prevent Maryland from casting her electoral vote for Bryan and Sewall."

This week the Democratic Congressional Committee issued a pocket campaign book, giving in a nutshell the attitude of the democratic party in the present campaign, and especially designed to aid democrats in arguing for the free coinage of silver. Senator Faulkner says it is one of the mast unique, useful and popular campaign books ever issued.

Here are some of the reasons, in the shape of letters received at democratic headquarters in Washington, why the republicans are getting frightened about Ohio. From Fullerton, the Chairman of the Silver Club writes: "In our backwoods town in the corner of Ohio, where we usually poll nearly two hundred republican to ten or twelve democratic votes, we have organized a silver club, which now has more than ninety members. There has been a silver club organized in every township around us" and from Redfield the secretary of another Silver club writes: "This precinct polled 82 democratic votes last fall, and we will have over one hundred this fall."

Mr. Sewall's letter of acceptance made public this week, is confirmation which nobody can dispute of the positive assertion made weeks ago in this correspondence, that Mr. Sewall would neither be withdrawn nor withdraw from the ticket upon which he was placed by the Chicago Convention.

The republicans came dangerously near to being thrown into a panic this week by the unfavorable views they received from Ohio and other states which they had fancied to be sure for McKinley. They are still quaking in private, but have mustered up sufficient courage to resume their old game of claiming everything in public, and notice has been served upon their millionaire backers that more money—lots more—must be at once raised and sent into Ohio and other states without which McKinley cannot possibly be elected.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself: carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

Van Vredenburgh's Famous Painting.

An exquisite reproduction in 14 colors of Van Verdenburgh's oil painting, "Our Bench Show," representing a yard of playful puppies (size, 10x36 ins.), is given to every subscriber, with the December issue of Demorest's Magazine (published November 15). This issue is enlarged and bound in a beautifully printed cover, and is replete with illustrations and reading matter pertaining to the x-mas holidays. It is sold for 20 cents a copy. The Van Vredenburgh alone in this one number is worth more than the price of a year's subscription. It is the cutest picture we have seen and appeals to every lover of art and to everyone who is fond of dogs. Any of our readers who wish this beautiful picture can, by cutting out this notice and sending it to the Demorest's Magazine, 110 Fifth Avenue, New York, with 20 cents in stamps, receive it by mail, carefully packed, and at the same time a copy of the X-mas Demorest. The magazine, by the way, has been phenomenally successful during the past year, having increased its subscription list to 180,000 names—a clear gain of 100,000. There must be something in a magazine that can do that.

When the value of the pattern is considered the subscriber actually gets

Demorest's Magazine Free.

And what a Magazine it is! For 1897 it will be more brilliant than ever before. New management, new methods, new ideas. Each copy contains an exquisite reproduction in colors of some celebrated picture by a famous artist, worthy to adorn the walls of the most refined home. It is affirmed that DEMOREST'S is the only complete Family Magazine published combining all of the most excellent points of its contemporaries, besides having inimitable features of its own. DEMOREST'S is actually a Dozen Magazines in one.

It is a Digest of Current Events and Ideas for the busy man or woman, a Review and a storehouse of Interest for all. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters can find exactly what they need to amuse and instruct them, also practical helps in every department of domestic and social life, including the furnishing and ornamenting of the home, embroidery, bric-a-brac, artistic and fancy work of all kinds, etc., etc., and suggestions and advice regarding the well being and dressing of their own persons.

The scope of the articles for 1896 and 1897 will cover the whole country and its varied interests, and the articles will be profusely illustrated with the finest engravings, and, in addition, it will publish the best and purest fiction. It treats at length Out-of-Door Sports, Home Amusements and entertainments: it gives a great deal of attention to the Children's Department, and "Our Girls," and has a Monthly Symposium by celebrated People, in which are discussed important questions of the hour of interest to the older readers.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.
Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoko, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

A DELANO school boy was heard to remark that the best part of Page Morris' speech was where he mimicked Towne.

BRYAN is bound to beat because Providence, the people, poor and patriotic, are proof against purchase. by preferment, or plunder, when their homes and hapiness are in the balance.

THE St. Paul Dispatch contains a special from Chicago, which complains that several things have been charged to Mark Hanna that are incorrect among them that "after McKinley's election the standing army will be increased to 250,000 men, and that force will be used to prevent strikes and riots, and that labor is to be regulated by the regular army."

NOW is the time to relegate, as far as possible, all old poletical barnacles to the shades of obliyion. Those who have been laaders in any party, so long as to have secured a firmer hold in the ranks of the opposition than in their own ranks, who can secure office by votes traded for in the enemies army rather than by honest support of political frienrs, should be left at home.

EVERY means of controlling votes seems to be used by the gold standard men. Something awful to their financial welfare must be at stake when they get to threatning to raise an army of 465,000 soldiers. If they keep on they will in their desperation, want to have an injunction served to prohibit Bryan and his followers from speaking; and the people from voting. Vote your honest sentiments. If you are for McKinley, in your own heart, vote for him, if you are for Bryan vote for him, but don't fool away a vote on Palmer.

STRANGE things do come up occasionally. For instance the great Metropolitan press and the "Statesmen" and orators of our country have been telling the people daily and nightly, that no silver country has any gold in circulation. That if we have silver free no other country will trade with us; that demonetization of silver did not lower prices; now, all at once, the price of wheat goes up, while our country is practically on a silyer basis, gold not now being in circulation here; and we are asked to believe that our country is finding a market in India, in Mexico and in South America, all silver countries. Are we going to get our pay in rupees, in Mexican dollars, or what?

WE have been handed a letter from Chicago by John Reitzel who says as John Lind "has been denounced by his opponients as hostile to churches and unfriendly to religion" he would like to say that before and since Mr. Lind's nomination he had been at New Ulm, and had occasion to visit him at his home and found him and his family interested in the Congregational church servicee where Mr. Reitzel preached.

It would also seem that so great a religious institution of learning as Gustayus Adolphus College, at St. Peter would hardly invite a man whom they did not consider all right to lecture to the students as we understand John Lind has upon several occasions.

And if John is not a Christian, what improvement is the present incumbent of the Govonor's chair over him?

Has anybody vouched for the Christianity of Dave Clough? It looks as if the opposition had as well run their candidate for Govenor on some other issue.

Facts.

The law of '73 was passed; it matters not how.

Mr. Towne is out of his party; it matters not whether he left the party or the party left him.

The people are for a return of the free coinage of both silyer and gold.

Mr. Towne represents that issue.

Our duty is plain: If we want what the people want vote for Towne.

If we wish to continue the present system of contraction of currency until we have no money saye what the money men see fit to dole out to us, don't.

Gold Appreciates.

Gold, when scarce, is worth more than when plenty. When gold and silver were both coined, and according to law, worth the same, at a ratio of 16 to 1, we had about twice the primary money we have with gold alone as primary money. When we haye just wheat enough to do us and the corn crop appears to be going to fail our wheat keeps up its price; but when the corn turns out better than usual down goes the price of wheat. So with money if gold is too high according to all other things including silyer as soon as it finds a helper to do its work, in the free coinage of silver just the same as gold is now, the two dollars gold and silver will soon come to a parity. The talk about gold all leaving the country because we have the free coinage of silver we believe an error. We are said to be doing 90 per cent and over of our bueiness on credit. If we should pay up as we go a little closer it would be better for everybody except those that make their living out of other people's debts, and all our silver would find enough to do, so would our gold; what we want is both metals.

Ex-Mayor Eustis at Delano.

Mr. Eustice, of Minneapolis, a well known fluent speaker, addressed a hall full of people. Usually a ready, rapid and pleasing speaker Mr. Eustis though he tried hard to please his audience, frequently showed that irritability of temper which is apt to crop out in those who are becoming satisfied that they are doomed to defeat. And though he appealed to the sympathies, to the love of man for man, to the love of country, and to that root of all evil the love of money, the speaker seemed fully to realize the fruitlessness of his efforts. Though he battled laboredly to save an already lost cause people leaying the hall provoked him; little boys on front seats bothered him; and he seemed irritable generally. After provoking an argument with a silver man be kept recurring to it until he finally consigned him and all his kind to St. Peter. Although everybody knows James G. Blaine, was almost an idol to the speaker, and had expressed himself quite plainly on the money question yet he was not mentioned A few lines on a "debased or fluctuating currency permeate all the arteries of trade, paralyze all kinds of business, and bring disaster to all classes or people." from one of Minnesota's most eminent statesmen, the then Secretary of the Treasury, William Windom, in his great New York speech shortly before his death was read; but Mr. Eustis stopped reading just before coming to where Mr. Windom said: "Let me speak very plainly on this most important subject. Believing that there is not enough of either gold or silyer in the world to meet the necessities of business I am an earnest bimetallist, and concede to no one a stronger desire than I feel for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, as soon as conditions can be reached, through international agreement or otherwise, by which such coinage shall be safe." Secretary Windom went on to argue against resuming bimetallism at that time fearing the influx of foreign silver. If Mr. Eustis wished to place in evidence Minnesota's honored statesman's ideas he should have given the audience to understand what was the position of the dead Secretary on this great question, and not cite a few lines, which, if properly presented would have shown why the Secretary of the Treasury was then, in 1891, an earnest bimetallist.

Mr. Eustis went into such a tirade of abuse, and drew such a word picture of Bryan and his following, as to cause a life long republican, an old soldier to say; in speaking of the meeting "I didn't like the opening remarks." He tried to make out that everybody not for the gold standard was ignorant, dishonest or in need of "brain surgery." It didn't go with the thinking men of the audienae.

He wasted a lot of flowery eloquence in telling what the Lord thought when he was placing the raw materials in our country. He said "the Lord wasn't thinking of Charley Towne, he was thinking of McKinley." When he got that off we think he soared beyond his moorings, and didn't make a yote for his candidates.

He advocated paying a bounty on sugar; but just exactly what benefit of justice to a Minnesota farmer there would be in his raising wheat without a bounty to help pay a bounty to others who prefer to raise beets or cane didn't appear and isn't likely to without some "brain surgery." Neither did this talk seem to bring out much of a point on the financial question, on which the orator was billed to speak.

He gave a fine account of the advancement of science, of the improvements in machinery, in light, in engines, etc.; but failed to show where a gold standard had brought them about; in fact most of those he mentioned came before 1873, while business was being done on a bimetallic standard of 16 to 1.

The orator then told his colt and evener story, of his boyhood days; the one he told at Duluth; how smart he was to move the evener over a hole and give the colt the advantage on the load. If he would display the same good judgment now in helping move the financial evener back where it belongs instead of persisting in letting silver be idle while gold is pulling at a load already too heavy, and which is growing heavier and still heavier every day his listeners wouldn't think him so much in need of his own prescription, "brain surgery," He also repeated another of his Duluth stories, how he and his brother George used to carry water on a pole; his brother George walked in front, he brought up the rear, the water pail slung on a pole was carried on their shoulders; he while going along kept moving the bail a little closer to his brother's end of the pole, his brother never noticing the difference until when they arriyed at home his brother was unconsciously carrying the whole load. What a dishonest trick. The tricky boy is apt to be the tricky man. We could not help thinking how like that trick was the one he was advocating now; how he was helping slip the silver out of circulation and throw the whole weight of the business onto gold; to contract the currency until a few following along, behind get more than their share of the credit while the toilers at the other end of the pole are working to keep the wolf from the door with depreciated prices: of how he is helping slip the golden bail along toward Old England's end of the pole leaying to Brother Johnathan the leyithan task of paying debts, contracted on a double standard, in single standard dollars; in appreciated currency. Oh no! Brother Eustis! "Old Abe" said: "You can fool all of the people some of the time; you can fool some of the people all of the time; but you can't fool all of the people all of the time." Your brother has caught you sneaking the bail over! Some of the people haye felt the added load! You haye practiced this game too long. And Sir! on the 3d of November, by electing William J. Bryan Charles A. Towne and John Lind the people of Minnesota propose to serve notice on you to quit your contemptable meanness! Your brother will notify you that you must carry your share of the load.

To Voters.

We are on the eye of a great battle of ballots. Never since 1860 has there been such a division of forces as now. The leading question to be decided is shall we or shall we not have the money of our Constitution, gold and silver on which to do business. One class of men mostly belonging to corporations, trusts or syndicates or wealthy indiyiduals, or people who make money by dealing in money and such, are in favor of a gold standard, while people who are farmers, or who depend on labor for a liying want silver and go ld both, so that there will b enough standard money on which to do business; so that oyer ninty per cent of our business will not have to be done on credit; so that a few men can not hide away all our real money as they have now hid away the gold leaving us to do business on money which is dependent on that which is hid away, and leaving us to pay a premium, whatever the hiders see fit to ask to get gold in which to pay notes given payable in gold.

This is a question touching the interest of every man whether you have much or little it is your duty to be out Nov. 3 to the poles and vote for what you believe right. If you want both gold and silver one worth as much as the other same as we always had up to '73 vote for Bryan, Towne and for John Lind. It is possible the Governor might have to appoint a Unrted States Senator.

Page Morris spoke at Delano on Friday evening, to a full hall. He was unfortunate in coming so soon after so able an orator as Mr. Towne, and his attacks on that gentleman and his arguments didn't suit people who were not already the hottest kind of Morris men, and some of them didn't approve of the talk Page got off about Mr. Towne bringing his mother into the discussion. Any one who, under the circumstance, could object to what Mr. Towne said on that subject is certainly very hard up for an argument. Mr. Towne said my mother knows I am innocent and pure, and I have kept her with me for years. She is old and gray headed, and is almost heartbroken over the articles in the daily papers concerning me, and which she knows to be false.

Mr. Morris remarks in trying to refute Mr. Towne's argument why prices had depreciated since 1873 didn't hit the bulls' eye by a long way. Mr. Towne said that since the demonerization of silyer in 1873, farm products had depreciated, on account of the primary money. In 1818 to '45 they did the same. Although the mints were open to the free coinage of silver, on account of the Spanish wars no mining of precious metals was carried on, no money could be coined for lack of metal from which to coin it; this of course produced the same kind of times, a scarcity of primary money, and a decline in prices of produce. Mr. Morris admited the facts, but undertook to say that immediately after the war then, as after our war in the sixties prices depreciated, but gave no further explanation as to why.

As Business Men See It,

Franklin Paine & Co., a most reputable wheat firm of Duluth, who are not politicians, but men of business, haye issued the following circular to their customers, and, in a manly way tell them why they do it:

We advise our customers to make no more shipments until after the result of the election is known.

If Mr. McKinley is elected a flood of money will be let loose, much of which will flow into the channels of speculation, probably causing an advance in all securities.

Should Mr. Bryan win the immediate adjustment to a silver basis will result in thousands of failures among banks, busness houses and indiyiduals. Weak and strong alike will go because it will be impossible to realize cash upon any kind of assets. Both makers and payers of checks may be forced under while the checks are in trust. Even currency will change from a gold value while in route.

Hold your grain until the storm is over until you are sure of your money and of the kind of money.

From this date until after election we will pay for grain consigned us in curreucy by express only. This is not intended as "Politics," but as a business precaution.

This is but a sample of what is engaging the attention of the commercial world. It is the same all over the country, and it is, indeed, time to be alarmed when the best business men of the nation take this view of the outlook. Men engaged in business are the best judges of economic conditions, and what the above named firm adyises is almost the universal sentiment among that class throughout the entire country. Business rules the world, and the judgment of business men is worth more than that of the theorist and public agitator.

It has been suggested before that the friends of Mark Hanna would invest a lot of money in raising the price of wheat to disprove Bryans claim that wheat and silver go down in price together. Have they then tired of this and now want farmers to hold wheat themselves? If the business men believe McKinley and a flood of money at all likely, wouldn't they invest all they haye in wheat?

For Congressman of the Sixth District.
CHARLES A. TOWNE.

This Preacher's For Bryan.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Rev. Dr. Hiram W. Thomas, pastor of the Peoples' church, said to-day: "I have always been a republican and have always understood the republican party as being for the double standard. I am afraid, however, it is at heart tending to monometallism, and I think it best to support the silver side of this campaign. I am not taking an active part, but that is my opinion."

Dr. Thomas is probably the most widely known minister in Chicago.—Minneapolis Times.

Thousands for Defense.

WILMINGTON, Del., Oct. 19.—Ex-United States Senator John E. Henderson, of Missouri, in a speech here tonight, scored the Chicago platform nominees. He said in part:

The populist platform, which is now a part of the Democratic party, for Bryan stands for both, proposes to seize the telegraph and railroad lines. If they know what they are doing, they certainly intend to recognize the government. If they should be so bold as to make the attempt not less than 465,000 soldiers will resist. We will do as the men did in 1861. We simply asked then that the constitution be not disturbed and we will defend it as we did then.

We don't imagine John E. Henderor Archbishop Ireland who is reported as firing the hearts of old soldiers by telling them the flag needs their care as much now as in '61, will be called upon to turn out to suppress the people who vote their honest convictions and elect W. J. Bryan President, and that he will be found able to run the government witnout enlarging the standing army. They accuse people who are supporting Mr. Bryan with being Anarchists. Who is uttering the most anarchist sentences now. Threatening to raise an army, to scare folks from voting.

Silver! Gold!

If you are a Bimetallist and in favor of both Silver and Gold as real money vote for it. Vote for Bryan and Towne.

Don't sit around and wait until foreign powers tell us what to do!

Money is no object when the liberty of the American people is in the scale. They have the right to use the products of their Silver mines as well as of their gold mines, if they see fit to do so without the consent of the rest of creation.

If you are tired of boss rule and want a new government at the State Capitol, vote for the candidate of the People, Hon. John Lind.

If you have had enough of having the Minneapolis Republicans pick out a Judicial ticket; if you are tired of boss rule vote for Judges Smith and Pond.

If you are heartily sick and tired of machine politics, fix in your mind before you enter the booth who needs their attention called to the fact, and when you make a mark make it opposite the cleanest man you can find.

This is one of the most important elections ever occurring in this state. Be at the polls early Tuesday morning, cast your ballot to satisfy your conscience, and not as someone may tell you. You know what you want; vote for it.

Read over the amendments to be voted on posted at the polling place.

Don't fail to vote, and vote right.

Engagement Announcements.

The newest etiquette of engagements is for the head of the family formally, to announce to an interested world that a marriage has been arranged. This is done immediately Edwin and Angela exchange their vows and quite independently of the day fixed for the marrage, of the wedding announcement cards, and of invitations to the ceremony itself. An engagement announcement is engrayed on a large, white square of very thick, polished bristol-board, and states simply that "A marriage has been arranged between Edwin Beckwith, fourth son of John H. Hamilton, Esq., of Westwood, Dutchess County, New York, and Angela Deerborn, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. Nelson, of East 37th Street. New York City, to take place early in November."

In case, however, the engagement after this should be broken, precedent has already been established by one fashionable pair of parents who instantly issued formal cards saying that the arrangement for the marriage of their daughter had been indefinitely posponed—From Demorest's Magazine for October.

Dew is a great respecter of certain colors. To prove this, take pieces of glass or board and paint them red, yellow, green and black. Expose them at night, and you will find that the yellow will be covered with moisture and the green will be damp, but the red and black will be left perfectly dry.

A Kansas aeronaut fell 3,000 feet and his body made a hole 18 inches deep in the hard earth, every bone being broken and the flesh crushed to a pulp. The thoughtful correspondent of a local contemporary, after noting these facts adds that "the unfortunate man was quite dead when he was picked up." "Quite" hardly expressed it; he was extremely dead.

A new source of revenue is to be opened to the farmers of America, and especially to those of the eastern and middle states, in the European demand for apples, which is growing rapidly. Last year 35,000 barrels were exported, while the exports this year already amount to more than 600,000 barrels. The fruit brings good prices, but only the best of it can be sold in competition with the foreign product.

A dispatch received in Boston from Lowell observatory, Flagstaff, A. T., announces that the astronomers of the observatory have discovered that the planets Mercury and Venus each turns once on its axis during one revolution about the sun, making the day just equal to the year on those planets. They find further that Venus is not cloud-covered, as has been reported, but has about it a thick atmosphere, while Mercury has none.

A party of adventurers from Cleveland is going in search of some of the fabulous wealth of gold supposed to lie in the black sands of Cape Horn. The sea is so stormy and the coast so inhospitable that many lives have been lost in the quest, and the labor of getting at the gold has hitherto kept it from being a paying investment except in rare cases, but these explorers have some new appliances by which they hope to reap unlimited wealth.

The value of the great network of telegraph lines which covers this country was shown recently, when direct communication between Washington and Richmond was cut off by storm. The two cities are only 105 miles apart, yet the only means of communication was by way of New York, Cincinnati, Nashville and Atlanta, a distance of more than 2,000 miles. This was an instance where the longest way around was not only the shortest, but the only way home.

A double wedding took place at Paris, Tex. B. L. Tabb and Miss Emma Evans and Frank Evans and Miss Bettie Tabb were the contracting parties. Evans and Tabb were both widowers about 40 years old, and each had a daughter 15 years old. Tabb was married to Evans' daughter and Evans to Tabb's daughter. The young women had to obtain the consent of their parents, but there was no trouble on that account, as each of the fathers cheerfully gave it. By these marriages Evans and Tabb become each other's sons-in-law.

The navy department has been engaged in the past two years in making experiments with a view to discovering some economical and feasible plan for the use of oil as fuel for vessels. It begins to look as if the problem were either already solved, or were very near solution. The problem is of especial interest to the navy department just now, because of the need of torpedo boats of a high speed. If such a speed can be reached at all it can be reached more easily with the use of oil as fuel rather than coal, provided the transmission of energy can be secured simply and economically.

Statistics recently collected by a well-known trade journal show that, taking the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria-Hungary, Italy, Russia and Holland in a single group, there was an increase in population between 1860 and 1890 of over 180,000,000, of which 32,000,000 belong to the United States. This represents for us almost 100 per cent. of growth, and it is the highest percentage in the group, although Russia, with a lower percentage, shows a growth of 36,000,000. Germany increased over a third, Austria-Hungary over a fourth, Italy a fifth, Great Britain not quite a fourth.

If the observers at Flagstaff, A. T., are right in their conclusions that Mercury and Venus make but one revolution on their axes during their journey round the sun, so that each day is a year long, those planets cannot be inhabited by people constituted like those on the earth. It has been supposed that Venus at least was very similar to the earth in its phenomena and characteristics, and might be peopled by much the same kind of beings; but as Venus' period of rotation is nearly the same as that of the earth, it must have six months of uninterrupted sunshine and six of continuous night.

LATER NEWS.

R. T. Swallow, a well known labor leader, was found dead the 20th in the headquarters of the county democracy at Chicago. It is believed he committed suicide.

A mob of 500 toll gate raiders tore away the gates on the Owenton Mill and Flat Creed roads in Kentucky the 20th.

The populists and democrats of Georgia have failed to agree upon a fusion regarding electors. The populists demanded a major portion of the electors and the elimination of Sewall as a candidate for vice presidency. This the democrats rejected.

For the sixth consecutive time the Vermont legislature has elected Justin S. Morrill as U. S. senator.

A freight train on the Chicago Great Western railroad went through a bridge over the Patte river near Des Moines, Io., the 20th. H. T. Rhodes, conductor, and two unknown men were instantly killed.

The Oakland (Cal.) reservoir broke its walls the 20th, letting 2,000,000 gallons of water loose. Beyond flooding the streets, no damage was done.

Dastardly Plot.

St. Paul, Oct. 20.—One of the most diabolical plots for the wholesale wrecking of Northern Pacific trains in Crow Wing county has been foiled.

The man who gave away the plot to the Northern Pacific officials was Charles Holberg, but so anxious was he to protect himself at the same time, that the would-be robbers discovered they had been betrayed, and after shooting at the informer, they decamped and all traces of them has been lost.

The detectives and special agents in the employ of the Northern Pacific, however, have complete descriptions of the men. But as no overt act was actually committed, they will content themselves with keeping the bandits out of the county.

COERCION DENOUNCED.

Chairman Jones Issues a Strong Manifesto to Voters.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—The following appeal and warning, addressed "To the American People," was given out Monday night by Chairman Jones, on behalf of the democratic national committee:

"In view of the fact that the great corporations, with scarcely an exception, and many of the large employers of labor in the United States, are engaged in a concerted effort to coerce their employes into voting at the approaching election against their own convictions, I deem it my duty to call upon all those who believe in the supremacy of the law and the untrammeled freedom of the individual in the right of exercising the ballot, to use their utmost effort to prevent the success of this most flagrant act of lawlessness; for if this conspiracy succeeds, government by corporations will have succeeded government by the people. Corporations have no powers except those conferred specifically in the laws creating them. The right to coerce voters, or to interfere with American citizens in the exercise of their rights at the ballot box, are not named in any of these acts of incorporation, and when corporations undertake to exercise such powers they become law-breakers, and the good of society demands that they be rebuked and punished.

"During the present contest, which involves questions of the utmost moment to the American people, thousands of men have been compelled, by fear of losing their places, to join clubs and march in processions in behalf of a cause which they detest. Requests from corporation bosses to vote the republican ticket, which are perfectly understood to convey a threat of discharge in case of refusal, are made every day to men who dare not resent the insult. The corporations which thus appeal to force and fraud strike at the very foundations of republican government, and the lovers of free institutions must arouse themselves to save the country from its great peril. Especially should the workingmen assert their manhood rights. If they vote their convictions and in accordance with their interests, the democratic ticket is certain of election, and in that case the employing corporations will have no desire to embark upon a policy of punishment. On the contrary, they will be eager to conciliate employes who will have behind the assertion of their rights the vast powers of a federal administration in sympathy with those who toil. But should they submit to coercion, and elect an administration that will be the creature of the corporations and moneyed interests of the country, those workingmen whose entire submissiveness is regarded with suspicion will find themselves replaced by men who can be depended upon to vote as they are told. In the contest that is raging the salvation of the workingmen lies in the assertion at the polls of his rights as a free and independent American citizen.

"The perpetration of this attempted outrage upon free suffrage will work its own cure. An indignant people, jealous of their rights, will demand that the legislatures, state and national, shall proceed at once by rigorous measures to prevent the possibility of a repetition of such attempts hereafter. While the metropolitan press, with a few honorable exceptions, is under the domination of these incorporated conspirators, and is basely subservient to their wishes, the country newspapers, as a rule, remain undebauched, and are still in sympathy with the principles of government established by Washington and Jefferson, and illustrated and maintained by Jackson and Lincoln. They will cry out and spare not until such legislation is had as will prevent another such shameful attempt at abuse of power.

"In the meantime the success of the present conspiracy must be prevented. The pending contest is already won by an overwhelming majority if the honest sentiments of the people are permitted to find free expression at the polls, and this the people are ready to have at any cost. The national committee appreciates the needs of vigilance. It has taken steps to impress upon the people, and especially upon every democratic election officer, the great importance of scrutinizing the marks upon every ballot and of carefully watching every act at or about the polls, to make sure that no judge or clerk of election shall have an opportunity to betray the secrets of the ballot, if he would.

"The national committee, backed by the full power of the democratic organization in every state of the union, pledges itself that every scoundrel, whether public officer or private citizen, who is detected in any violation of the law, shall be vigorously prosecuted and sent to the penitentiary, if possible.

"JAMES K. JONES,
"Chairman Democratic National Committee."

Asked to Display the Flag.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Chairman Jones, of the democratic national committee, has issued an appeal to all persons who favor the election of Bryan and support the democratic platform to display at their homes or their places of business the American flag Saturday, October 31. This is the same day set apart by suggestion of Chairman Hanna for the same purpose on behalf of McKinley.

FOREIGN CHAT.

The "life tree" of Jamaica continues to grow for months after it has been uprooted.

Two and a half tons of Chasselas grapes were taken from the king's vine at Fountainebleau this year.

Russian newspapers which publish articles offensive to the government are twice warned. When a paper offends again it is promptly suppressed.

Italian engineers have found that the two Roman vessels discovered in the Lake of Nemi can be raised without too much difficulty, and the government has taken measures to have this done soon.

Eight golden weddings were celebrated on one day recently at Anderlues, near Brussels. The whole town turned out in honor of the occasion, they had a public dinner and ball, and each of the old people received the present of an armchair.

Thirty Armenian students recently went the rounds of the Paris newspapers to appeal to the moral sense and humanity of the editors. They were received politely, but only the socialists and some other radical papers were influenced by them.

BRYAN IN OHIO.

The Democratic Candidate Makes Many Speeches in McKinley's State.

Zanesville, O., Oct. 20.—More than three hours behind schedule time, Candidate Bryan reached Zanesville at 12:20 o'clock this (Tuesday) morning during a heavy rain, but found quite three large audiences waiting for him. Although very tired, he kept his engagements to speak. After leaving Washington Court House he made speeches at Chillicothe, Circleville, Lancaster and New Lexington. At each of these towns he was given an enthusiastic welcome. He left Zanesville at 1:12 a. m., and will speak at Martin's Ferry at 7:30 a. m.

Mr. Bryan made his first speech of the present visit to this state at Toledo at 6:30 a. m. Monday. His remarks there, as at all other places, during the day were upon well-known lines. The towns visited were Perrysburg, Weston, Deshler, Leipsic, Ottawa, Columbus, Arore, Sidney, Troy, Lima, Dayton, Hamilton, Xenia, Jamestown, and those above mentioned. Great crowds heard him at all points.

Several thousand people welcomed Mr. Bryan at Lima. He read extracts form Chairman Hanna's American flag letter, published Sunday and in commenting on it said:

"My friends, it is the first time that I know of that I have ever agreed with the chairman of the republican national committee and I want to sign my name to his letter and ask all those who believe in the ideas set forth there to display the flag on the 31st of October, because there is not a thing in that letter but what we advocates of free silver indorse. Now note what he says: That he wants the flag displayed by all those who on the 3d of November intend to vote for the preservation of our national honor. We advocates of free silver believe in having a financial policy made by the American people for the American people. Can you support the honor of the United States? He wants those to display the flag who are for 'sound money.' We who believe in the money of the constitution are for a sounder money than those who want to change our currency into pounds, shillings and pence.

"So that I join in that request for three reasons, first because everything that he asks in that letter we believe in and therefore we have as much right to display the flag on that day as any republican has, and we believe that we have a good deal more moral right, to do it in this campaign. I join in the letter for another reason. I do not want them to mark the advocates of free silver for slaughter on that day.

"My friends, if coercion is going to be attempted for heaven's sake let it not be attempted by using the flag as a means of pointing out the men to be threatened. If they want to find out who shall be slaughtered let them take some other emblem than the nation's emblem under which to do their nefarious work. There is another reason why I join in that request. I want some flags to float on that day which do not mean a government by syndicates and for syndicates.

"I want some flags to float on that day that do not stand for the opinions of those who say that if the majority of the people win in this campaign they do not know whether they will submit to the decision or not. I want some flags to float on that day which have behind them the honest sentiments of the American people; of people who intend to attend to their own business and do not intend to be bought or bribed or driven into the support of foreign financial policies. So, my friends, I want to ask all the advocates of silver to bring out the flag on that day. I want them to put it into their homes and in their places of business, and, if need be, to carry it upon the streets and let our opponents know that we do not intend to surrender that ensign and that emblem into the hands of the enemies of the people of this country."

At Hamilton Mr. Bryan said in part: "You call this the Gibraltar of democracy. I want to say to you, my friends, that in this campaign I stand for those policies which are democratic in the broadest sense of the term. I believe in the democracy that means the rule of the people, and I am opposed to plutocracy that means the rule of a few money magnates and the servility of all the rest of the people. If Jefferson's doctrine is acceptable to you, I want to say to you that we are preaching and teaching the principles taught by him. If Jackson's democracy is good enough for you, I want to tell you that we are preaching and teaching to-day what Jackson put into execution when he was the leader of the democratic party; and, my friends, in my judgment there never was a time when the people of the country loved more and needed more the principles of true democracy exemplified in legislation than they need those principles to-day, and it is because we appeal to the lovers of the democratic form of government, and the lovers of a government administered according to the motto 'Equal rights to all, special privileges to none,' that we are bringing to our standard more and more of the people of this country every day."

Arraign the Archbishop.

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Rev. Father J. F Nugent, of Des Moines, Ia., delivered a radical free-silver speech at Central Music hall Monday night to a packed house. He appealed to the feelings of hearers to such an extent that the names of Archbishop Ireland, Cockran, McKinley, Hanna and the republican leaders generally were vigorously hissed. He was preceeded by Rev. Father Malone, of Denver, Col., who attacked Archbishop Ireland's political views. "How strange the exigencies of a campaign," he said, "in which we see John Ireland, archbishop of St. Paul, and Robert Ingersoll standing with clasped hands on the same platform, and crying out against us as destroyers of public order."

——To ask Maj. McKinley to antagonize trusts is like asking him to repudiate Mark Hanna and his campaign of corruption and coercion. The trusts are McKinley's main dependence. They nominated him and he relies upon them for his election. If Maj. McKinley shall reach the white house he will owe his success to the trusts and their money, which they are handing over by the million to Boss Hanna for the debauching of the electorate of the republic. McKinley is owned by the trusts now, and as president he would be their property.—N. Y. Journal.

ALPHABETICAL ITEMS.

Peter the Great, among other changes made in the customs and manner of his people, also instituted a reform in the alphabet. Finding the number of letters greater than he considered necessary, he fixed the alphabet at 36.

Whether the Phoenicians borrowed their alphabet from the Jews, or whether the Hebrew alphabet was derived from the Phoenician, or whether both came from the Egyptian, are matters about which scholars are not agreed.

S was Shin, the tooth, and in its earliest form was, no doubt, a picture of the front tooth, the Phoenician character bearing a strong resemblance to two or three of these indispensable adjuncts to comfort in eating and digesting our food.

The hieroglyphic writing, from which some persons suppose an alphabet was derived, was in use at least 3,000 B. C., but the recently discovered inscriptions at the City of Nipur, in Assyria, carry back the origin of writing to a point 7,000 years B. C.

The tall silk hat first came into common use in Paris in 1797.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Decenial Celebration.

Minneapolis will welcome the Christian Endeavorers of the State to the celebration of their Tenth Anniversary on Oct. 22d to 25th, inclusive. This convention promises to be the best in the history of the Endeavor moments in Minnesota. Many delegates from all parts of the state are expected and great preparations are being made to give them a royal good time.

Among the prominent speakers who have been secured are Rev. Dr. Fifield, one of Chicago's most eloquent preachers, Commander Booth-Tucker, the head of the Salvation Army in America, and his wife, Consul Booth Tucker, and General Secretary John Willis Baer, of Boston.

The convention proper will be held in the spacious auditorium of the First Baptist Church, with overflow meetings at the Hennepin Av. M. E. Church. On Sunday Evening, October 25th, the closing service of the Convention will be held at the great Exposition Hall, seating 12000. The churches of St. Paul and Minneapolis will dispense with their evening services on that day, and join the Endevorers in a great Union meeting.

A large chorus of trained singers under the leadership of Prof. H. S. Woodruff is being organized, and will furnish sweet music for the Convention.

A special rate of fare and a third has been arranged on all the railroads, and doubtless a large number will take advantage of this fact to visit the Twin Cities and be present at the Convention.

All About the Capitol.

Channing Seabury, chairman of the capitol commission, has submitted to Attorney General Childs the papers served on him in the proceedings begun by a number of residents of Kandiyohi county, through John F. Kelly, to prevent the construction of the new capitol building in St. Paul.

The action is based on four questions, or four constitutional questions are raised. One is that the seat of government at St. Paul was only temporarily located there and that for such a temporary seat the state should only have a temporary building, whereas the building of a new capitol will be a permanent structure and will mean the permanent seat of government of the state.

In the second place, it is claimed that the constitution provides for ordinary and extraordinary expenses. The ordinary expenses are for charges and the expenses for the civil conduct of the state.

Novel Exhibit.

The chief exhibit at the street fair at Faribault was that of South American woods, made by the Orinoco company, of which Donald Grant is head. It consisted of about 20 difierent kinds of wood, which were cut in the forests of the Orinoco country. With this exhibit were also a number of jars containg fruits, fish and reptiles found in the same country and preserved in alcohol by Dr. A. C. Rogers during his recent trip to Venezuela.

Blew Up.

The feed mill boiler at Beckman, 15 miles east of Royalton, blew up, killing the engineer, Wm. Besch, and injuring several others. The mill is a small affair and run by a threshing engine, owned by Besch and Joseph and Peter Oestreich. Peter Oestreich had both legs blown off at the ankles and was badly bruised about the head. Mrs. Peter Oestreich was bruised on the back and Jacob Huhn was also badly injured and may die.

Fire at St. Cloud.

Fire at St. Cloud, in the cooper shop of the Tileston mill, consumed seven buildings and caused $8,000 loss. A high wind was blowing and it was fortunate that the mill itself escaped. The cooper shop employed about 15 men. The warehouse, near the shop, also burned, causing considerable loss in barrel stock. There is partial insurance. The dwelling of Mrs. Jennie Owen was also burned.

A Contingent Sale.

The Aetna, formerly Lowmore, mine, at Mountain Iron, Mesaba range, has been sold to the Thomas Iron company, a very large ore consumer of Pensylvania, contingent on the election of McKinley. The terms are agreed upon and the deal will be closed if McKinley shall be elected, and is off if otherwise. The mine is valuable property, and is a steam shovel proposition. It is owned by local men.

News in Brief.

The 3-year old daughter of Joseph Hershtowitz, of Minneapolis, overturned a lighted candle on herself setting her clothes on fire. Her injuries were fatal.

Frederick Gagne, night watchman at the Minneapolis postoffice, while riding to work on a bicycle was run down by an interurban car and killed.

J. M. U. Thompson, of Mathawa, was sentenced under the forestry law to pay a fine of $75 for setting a prairie fire and leaving it unprotected.

The Marine National bank of Duluth has gone into liquidation.

Burglars entered the residence of M. A. Lang, of Minneapolis, chloroformed the whole family, ransacked the entire house and carried off considerable plunder.

Two trolley cars collided under the Milwaukee railway bridge in Minneapolis. B. O. Silverson was slightly injured.

Pickpockets did a flourishing business at the Bryan meeting at Duluth. Twenty pockets were picked of wallets, according to the latest returns, and a number of diamonds were stolen. F. E. Brady, of St. Paul, lost a $200 stud, and E. C. Howard, of Duluth, lost a $200 stone and money and other articles to the value of $2,000.

The president has appointed Robert A. Smith postmaster at St. Paul, Minn. The appointment ends a long contest over the office. Smith succeeds Henry A. Castle, commission expired.

An unknown man was found dead in bed at the Hotel Ryan at Lake City. Death occurred from natural causes.

Postmaster General Wilson has selected Dakota county as the section in which to make the experiment on rural free delivery of mail in Minnesota. An inspector has been ordered to proceed to the county and report as to the conditions and select offices in connection with which the experiment is to be made.

JUSTICE IN ALABAMA.

Why a Prisoner Was Declared "Not Guilty."

A Jacksonville broker, while traveling in the Alabama mountains, was invited by a friend, a local judge, to attend the trial of a "cracker" for shooting a darky, and, the prisoner having no money to hire a lawyer, the judge appointed the broker to defend him, allowing that if the broker was not a lawyer, "he was an idiot because he wasn't one"—a judgment amply supported by his conduct of the case, says the San Francisco Argonaut. The broker cross-examined the witness briefly, sending in now and then a discomfiting trajectory. When he came to make a speech, he said: "Gentlemen of the jury, I have taken great pains to show you that my client was a respectable citizen. Ten witnesses have asserted—on oath, mind you—that he stands high in his community." The defendant was six feet three inches tall and the jury smiled. "He stood high in his community, and that is sufficient. Now, for the law. We find in the thirteenth verse of the sixteenth chapter of 'Chitty on Pleadings'—Chitty, gentlemen, was one of the bravest generals in the confederate army—this well-established principle of law." Here the broker adjusts his glasses, holds the book far off, elevates his chin and reads: "'No respectable white man can be guilty of crime.' That, gentlemen, is enough. I leave the case in your hands."

Each juror changed his quid, looked at his neighbor, nodded and, without leaving their seats, they rendered a loud and emphatic verdict of "Not guilty," and then joined in three cheers for the defendant and his lawyer.

Suicide in Japan.

An essay on the prevalence of suicide in Japan has been written by Mr. Saito Kokufu, a native statistician. The statistics extend over ten years and show that suicide has been on the increase in Japan, both actually and in proportion to the total number of deaths. In 1885 and 1886 the number in proportion to the population reached its highest. Mr. Saito observes that during these years there was a great rise in the price of the necessaries of life. In the case of Japanese women the age at which suicide is most frequent is about 20; the corresponding period with men is 25. Comparatively few women commit suicide after the twenty-fifth year, but men are not safe until they are past 40.

MY FOREST ADVENTURE.

BY GEORGE E. WALSH.

NOT every young fellow has had the privilege, or rather good luck, to kill his first bear at 18. But in the summer of 1885, a few days after my eighteenth birthday, I brought Bruin down in a single combat, although it nearly cost me my life.

This incident of itself would have been sufficient excitement and glory for one day, but circumstances made my desperate encounter with the bear only a prelude to dangers that capped the climax of a most eventful day's experience.

Consequently this is not so much of a bear story as the introduction might suggest.

I lived on a farm in the northern part of Maine in that year, and spent what time I could in the woods, hunting game and setting traps for all kinds of furry animals. My experience in woodcraft dated back several years, and, though merely a youth, I knew a good deal about hunting wild game. I was passionately fond of the sport, and an expert with the rifle.

Bears abound in the Maine woods at certain seasons of the year, but generally they are small brown and black bears, not much larger than a big dog. I had the utmost contempt for many of these creatures. But one hot day, late in the summer, I discovered one that commanded my respect and made me very anxious to kill him.

I was seated on a fallen tree in the thickest part of the woods, eating my lunch and cooling my parched lips with the water from a gurgling stream near by. Suddenly a crash among the bushes about a dozen rods away attracted my attention.

Looking in the direction whence the noise proceeded, I saw an enormous black bear standing upon his haunches, eating blackberries. He was scooping them in by the quart, stripping the bushes with his huge claws, and cramming them into his mouth as if half starved. As I watched the animal a desire to bring him down took possession of me. I felt sure that I could send a bullet through his heart from my position.

My rifle was loaded and stood against a neighboring tree. I took it cautiously, cocked it without attracting the attention of the bear, and aimed it at the creature's heart. I could hear a low growl almost simultaneously with the report of the rifle, and then I realized that I had invited danger.

The bear was only wounded and was rushing toward me with the most savage expression upon his face that I ever saw on any animal. I just had time to take aim again and send another bullet at the infuriated beast. But even this did not check his headway. He came staggering along with blood in his eyes and with a heavy paw upraised.

I dropped my gun and took out my long hunting knife. I realized that I had only one chance in ten, but I would fight hard for that one chance.

Everything seemed blurred for an instant. I saw the black body of the bear towering over me, ready to strike me down. In my right hand I held the knife firmly, ready to give a violent lunge at the right moment.

But the blow never fell. The bear staggered and tottered before me, and dropped at my feet in its death agonies. The two heavy bullets had performed their mission satisfactorily.

All would have been well with me had I been active in moving beyond the reach of the struggling animal, but in his violent movements Bruin's heavy paws came in contact with my left leg, and, as if realizing that he had caught his murderer, he began to claw and tear the skin and flesh. He lived only half a minute after falling, but in that time he had given me flesh wounds that I would remember for several months. The flesh was torn in places almost to the bone, and the whole leg rendered almost useless.

My pleasure at killing the big bear was partly cooled down by my sad plight. I was five miles from home and my journey through the woods would be slow and laborious. The pain soon became excruciating, and I started up to get home before my leg grew stiff and cramped.

I spent about two hours in covering one mile, and then I seated myself on the ground, faint and exhausted. I was in this position when a fine-looking deer rushed past me, as if pursued by hounds. Even in my agony I followed the creature with my eyes until out of sight, thinking what a splendid shot he would have made for me.

But the deer was no sooner out of sight than another followed from the same direction, fleeing rapidly through the woods. I expected next to see a hunter, or hear the baying of hounds. But instead of that a small brown bear came stumbling along, following after the deer.

My curiosity was aroused by this time, and I looked to see if another animal was coming in the procession. I almost laughed to myself when my eyes caught sight of two big rabbits jumping along behind the two deer and bear.

A more experienced backwoodsman would have interpreted these signs quicker than I did. I did not understand the meaning of this strange procession of wild animals until nearly a score of various kinds of creatures had passed me. They were all bound for the same general direction, and not one of them seemed to take any special notice of me.

Suddenly I sniffed the air. Smoke! Overhead, between the interstices of my leafy dome, I caught sight of dense smoke and burnt leaves. The forest was on fire!

How stupid I had been! The animals were all running for the nearest water—a shallow but broad lake about two miles distant. I jumped to my feet, and started to follow the intelligent brutes that had gone before me.

But a dozen yards brought me to the ground again, faint and exhausted. My leg was stiff and swollen, and it was impossible for me to do more than crawl along slowly. I could never reach the lake in time to avoid the fire.

I dropped upon the ground and moaned with pain and fear. To be roasted alive in the great, lonely forest was a death too horrible to think about. I wished then that the bear had killed me in the struggle for supremacy.

Then a thought occurred to me. It was an inspiration that came none too soon. If it had come two minutes later all would have been lost.

Crashing through the underbrush was a wild bull moose. Its path lay close to me, and my presence had no disturbing influence upon the frightened animal. It came along at a breakneck speed, and threatened to trample me to death if I did not move. The noble beast swayed its great head from side to side as it puffed and panted along like a giant of the forest. I could but admire the appearance of the creature even in the moment of danger.

I crouched down in the bushes and waited for the animal to reach my side. It swept within a foot of me, lumbering along like an old schooner at sea, clumsy, yet powerful and heavy. When abreast of me, I used all my strength to spring toward the huge antlers. I caught them with my hands close to the head, and then with a sudden powerful lurch I drew my whole body upon the back of the moose.

For an instant the animal appeared more frightened at my presence than at the fire, and it swung its heavy head angrily from side to side. But the roar and crackling of the fire were ringing close behind us, and death awaited us if we hesitated. The moose appeared to realize this as well as myself, and accepting the inevitable it trotted forward through the woods, carrying me securely upon its back.

The race for the lake was a close and wild one. The fire was gaining rapidly upon us, and the moose strained every nerve to get ahead of it. The heavy weight upon its back retarded its movements and made the poor beast pant and blow.

Through the bushes we crashed, heavy branches frequently knocking me on the head, while twigs and switches constantly struck me in the face. When the edge of the lake was finally reached I was as much relieved as the moose, for the ride through the woods on the back of the animal was anything but agreeable. With a wild plunge forward the brute carried me far out into the cool waters of the lake. Scores of animals were swimming around and diving under the water, uttering piteous moans and cries. Some were so exhausted that they could barely hold their heads above the surface of the water. The common danger made them all friends, and there were no combats and disturbances.

The lake was not deep, and I slid off the back of my moose as soon as we were free from the fire. The great hulking monster turned deliberately around then and gazed at me.

He was evidently concerned in what kind of creature he had saved. If he had made an attack upon me in the water I would have been helpless. But after satisfying himself that I wished him no harm, he turned and swam out into the middle of the lake.

The fire came raging through the forest, and burned the woods down to the very edge of the lake, but I was safe from its fiery blasts.

I staid in the water all that night, and the next day crawled home, with the worst-looking leg that you ever saw outside of a hospital.

But I had little to grumble at, for my life had been barely saved by the bull moose, and I was thankful enough for that to forget all minor complaints.—N. Y. Ledger.

POULTRY HOUSE PLAN.

Building Calculated to Accommodate from Eighty to One Hundred Fowls.

Several readers have asked for a plan for a good hen-house that will accommodate from 75 to 100 fowls, the same to be constructed in a manner that will keep the hens warm during severe winter weather, and enable the builder to keep several varieties or small lots of 20 to 25 in one room of it. Nothing said about cost.

We always presume that those contemplating going into the chicken business are not seeking merely a place to spend ready cash, but for the purpose of making pay out of the employment. We always endeavor to aid such persons by suggesting economy in the construction of buildings to the degree that will encompass the possibilities of making them strong, durable and comfortable.

It is generally conceded that fowls kept in small flocks do best, and in making up a plan for keeping the number mentioned we have followed up that idea closely, and present a five-room house with each room ten feet square, four of which are intended to provide accommodation for at least 20 to 25 hens.

To economize time, labor and expense, we suggest that this house be framed from posts set in the ground two and one-half feet, and seven and one-half feet above, with two by four studding spiked on top, running all the way around and across inside partitions, and the same six inches above ground. I would side with inch boards up and down, batten cracks, and make four gables, running the roof together to one point at center of feed room.

It is not essential that the building shall be over seven feet from floor to square; less will do. I prefer that a hen-house be roofed with either boards or shingles, as metal or slate get too hot for the best welfare of the fowls. The lights should be placed in so that they will point to south or east and should be from two and one-half feet to three feet wide and five to six feet high and well protected with strong wire netting.

The partitions that separate the four rooms from the feed room are intended to be made mostly of wire netting or lattice work. The nests are arranged with the entire construction made in feed room, with loop-hole from each room leading into the alley that fronts the nests, which allows the fowls of each room to pass secretly into the nests in the dark and still be in no way connected with another set of nests.

The idea of making these nests in the feed room is so that the eggs can be taken out without going into the adjoining room; also hens setting can be let into center room, fed, and replaced in their nests without disturbing any of the laying fowls.

The dotted lines are to locate how the roosts can be put in diagonally, about three or three and a half feet high, and a slanting floor placed underneath so that the droppings will not get onto the floor, and can be easily gathered by pushing them with a scraper down to the corner where they will drop into a portable box prepared for that purpose. This can be done every morning if absolute cleanliness is desired. The reader will observe that this arrangement affords the fowls full range on the floor of each room without the necessity of having the droppings to annoy them through the day.

For heating and keeping warm, the sides lined with wind-proof paper will add much comfort, and I suggest the placing of a cheap coal stove in the center room, which will aid materially in extreme weather in keeping the temperature up, which will add great comfort to the fowls and insure their laying right along without interruption, regardless of the extreme cold.

The ranges outside can be arranged in size to suit the owner of the fowls, either large or small, according to the room he may have to expand in. By all means do not make such inclosures too small. The entrance door, two and one-half feet wide, opens into a short entry which opens with a door to the room on the right and left and also into the center room.

This house will cost in the neighborhood of $40, labor included. I think an amateur who thinks of taking on three or four breeds of fowls will find a poultry house of this plan quite suited to the requirements of fitting out several breeding pens.—George E. Scott, in Ohio Farmer.

THE POULTRY YARD.

Sand should not be made a substitute for gravel.

Mixing breeds promiscuously does not work well.

The roosting places should never be on an inclined plane, as there will be a fight for the top places.

If fowls do not moult well look for lice; put a little flour of sulphur in their food and a little iron in the drinking water.

The chickens need a run on green pasture just as much as do the cows, hogs and horses. Don't shut them up in dry yards.

When fowls are confined in small runs and lack shade, there is nothing better than gourd vines. They are not eaten or destroyed by fowls and grow quickly, being both useful and ornamental.

Do not waste time packing eggs in lime water solutions. Eggs thus packed cannot be used with much satisfaction in cake making, and they have, to one used to the delicious taste of fresh eggs, a rank, limey taste.

When taking eggs to market carefully wipe each one, and, if they are mixed in color, sort them, placing the brown and white ones by themselves. They will look better by having each color in separate lots, and will in consequence bring better prices. — Rural World.

DRAINING PASTURES.

In Many Cases It Can Be Made to Pay Handsomely.

The impression is quite common that it will not pay to underdrain pasture land, says Drainage Journal. There are pasture lands that it will not pay to drain, but it is also true that in many instances it will pay to underdrain, in part, at least, lands used for grazing purposes. In passing through the country we see many acres of pasture land which, if sufficiently underdrained, would be very valuable. As they are now they are practically worthless, affording only wild and unnutritious grasses, worth but little for grazing purposes; in fact, such lands are disease breeders of the live stock which have the run of them. Pastures which need underdrainage may be cared for so as to present a good appearance to the casual observer, but when carefully examined are found to grow grasses of little value. If they have been seeded to tame grass there is such a mixture of water grasses with the tame that the pasture is poor.

If a landowner is doubtful as to the benefits of underdraining such land, let him put in one or more tile drains with good outlets and observe the result. The wild sour grasses will disappear and the tame grass sod will thicken and grow luxuriantly. The live stock are good judges. In grazing they will keep the grass near the drains cropped closely because it is more palatable to the taste and more nutritious. We are confident that the value of thousands of acres of pasture lands could be greatly enhanced if underdrained, which are, in their present condition, practically worthless. Those who have given little attention to the real condition of their grazing lands will be surprised in a careful examination of their condition. It will soon become apparent to them that where there is one blade of good, nutritious grass, four or five may be made to grow by a well directed effort in the underdrainage of the land.

STORING FARM WAGONS.

A Device Which Makes the Shifting of Wagon Bodies Easy.

The illustration below is of a home-made appliance placed in a barn the past winter and found to be a great convenience, especially in shifting from wagon body to hay rigging, and vice versa. This device consists of a round shaft, a, 9½ inches in diameter, reaching from one main side beam to the other, bb. In one end of the shaft are two spokes, c c, seven feet long, making four handles 3½ feet in length. From one handle to the next is a bolt e, about two feet long. The shaft runs in wooden boxes with bearings five inches in diameter. On one side of the shaft two small chains, f f, drop down within two feet from stake holes in wagon body, or hay rack, or other implement, as at g. From these ends of chain two pieces about four feet each, with hooks on the ends, run to the stake holes or hooking parts. Similar chains are arranged on the other end of the shaft. After the first rigging is rolled up, it is very easy to raise afterwards, as the weight of one body going down assists in raising the other.—F. C. Hubbard, in Orange Judd Farmer.

CHEAP FARM PAINT.

It Gives a Satisfactory Finish on Either Wood or Stone.

A method of painting farm buildings and country houses, while by no means new, is yet so little known and so deserving of wider application as to warrant a description. The paint has but two parts, both cheap materials, being water lime or hydraulic cement and skimmilk. The cement is placed in a bucket, and the skimmilk, sweet, is gradually added, stirring constantly until just about the consistency of good cream. The stirring must be thoroughly done to have an even flow, and if too thin the mixture will run on the building and look streaked. The proportions cannot be exactly stated, but a gallon of milk requires a full quart of cement, and sometimes a little more. This is a convenient quantity to mix at a time for one person to use. If too much is prepared, the cement will settle and harden before all is used.

A flat paint brush about four inches wide is the best implement to use with this mixture. Lay it on exactly as with oil paint. It can be applied to wood work, old or new, and to brick and stone. When dry, the color is a light creamy brown, or what some would call a yellowish stone color. The skimmilk cement paint, well mixed, without adding color has a good body, gives smooth satisfactory finish on either wood or stone and wears admirably.—American Mechanic.

Plenty of Swindlers Abroad.

The number of people who live or try to live by their wits seems to have increased rapidly of late. Never have swindlers of all kinds been more in evidence both in city and in country. In a single week no less than four schemes to defraud farmers have come to our notice. They are all variations of the venerable swindles which have been exposed so often in the press. One correspondent intimates that hypnotism is being used to bunko farmers in his locality. This is probably only the hypnotism of a smooth tongue on the part of the "agent" and careless business methods on the part of the victim. There is a heap of this kind of "hypnotism" all over the country at present. —National Stockman.

Lime for the Poultry Yard.

Air-slacked lime scattered about the house or yards will prevent disease, in many instances, and always prove of benefit in any case. Vermin is destroyed by the dusting of roosts, walls and floors with this penetrating, purifying powder; while in the outer runs the earth is cleansed of much of the poisonous quality by use of lime. No harm comes from the lime habit, but on the contrary a great deal of good may be effected by contracting it. Cleanliness is the key-note, and the employment of agents of this sort is the right thing.

Wonderful Results from Pink Pills.

Mrs. John Tooley Relates a Remarkable Story.

From the Democrat, Charlevoix, Mich.

The Democrat has had its attention called to a remarkable cure, due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the following statement, made to a reporter of this paper, will be read with interest by all similarly afflicted. Mrs. John Tooley, of Dwight, in this county, is the lady benefited by the medicine named, and she makes the following statement:

STATE OF MICHIGAN, } ss
COUNTY OF CHARLEVOIX, }

"In the year 1891 I was a great sufferer from extreme nervousness, which finally developed into an aggravated attack of St. Vitus dance. My health was very poor and I suffered terribly for six months, constantly growing worse. Finally I left home and went to my relatives in Canada for a visit, and my people never expected I would return alive. In Canada I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and the result was truly marvellous. When I began taking them I weighed but ninety-six pounds, and in nine weeks' time, during which I took four boxes of the medicine, I gained so that I weighed 125 pounds, and the St. Vitus' dance and all nervousness disappeared. I returned home in nine weeks, completely cured and in the best of health, and have continued so to this day. Previous to taking the Pink Pills I had been attended by several physicians, but with no good results. I owe my life to Pink Pills, and have earnestly recommended them to all my friends, and my mother and three brothers have taken them with good results, my mother for heart trouble. I will be glad to answer any and all enquiries as to what Pink Pills have done for me."

(Signed.) Mrs. John Tooley.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 2nd day of July, 1896.

Mrs. Tooley is now the picture of health, and the Democrat reporter could hardly realize that she was at one time so near to death. But her testimony is unassailable, and she is very earnest in her desire to spread the good news to other sufferers.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. They build up the blood, and restore the glow of health to pale and sallow cheeks. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature. Pink Pills are sold in boxes and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE DIVINE NAME.

The Ineffable Word That Is Never Spoken by Many Israelites.

Rev. Dr. Wise, president of the Hebrew Union college at Cincinnati, has given his view of the ancient Jewish rendering of the name of the Deity, reports the New York Sun. He says that the term "Jehovah," the ineffable tetragrammaton, is never pronounced by many Israelites. They use the word "Adonoi," which signifies "the Lord." The translators of the Bible followed this custom, rendering the word "Jehovah" as "Lord." In ancient times the Pharisees replaced the tetragramaton by Shem; they used "Shemo," which is also Biblical, as the sacred name, and this name is yet retained, to some extent, among the Jews. But it would appear from passages in the Psalms that Adonoi, or Lord, for Jehovah was more ancient even than the times of the Pharisees. It thus occurs eight times in Psalm lxxxiv. It also appears in the book of Exodus where "Jehovah" had been used in the original Hebrew. This substitution would seem to be older than any other, and it is yet common among all Jews.

Dr. Wise says he has found that the ancient translations testify in favor of "Adonoi."

Looking at the English translation of the Old Testament it will be found that the name Jehovah appears in the books of Genesis, Exodus, Judges, the Psalms and Isaiah. It is not in the New Testament.

CLIMATE AND CHARACTER.

National Traits Often Molded by the Nature of the Weather.

The civil war is said to have been caused by a difference in climate, and the question is now being discussed whether a hot or cold climate has the greatest effect on national character. It has been widely believed that a severe climate produces the greatest effect, because it compels effort and self-denial, and thus promotes energy and inventiveness, says the New York Journal.

It would also seem that the influence of climate upon the national character has been greatly exaggerated. Assyria, Babylonia, Egypt and Carthage, situated in hot latitudes, were among the most masterful nations of antiquity. Mohammed and his conquering legions issued from the burning wilderness of Arabia, and at a later period his successors were able to beat back the repeated attacks of the combined crusading nations from the north.

The greatness of a nation depends mainly upon intellectual and moral qualities, and these have often been conspicuously developed among the inhabitants of hot climates. It is important, too, to remember that the same nation, occupying the same region, may be great and powerful in one age and weak and contemptible in another. The difference between the ancient Greeks, Romans and Saracens, on the one hand, and their modern descendants on the other, cannot have been due to climate.

SPANISH MINES IN TEXAS.

There Is Talk of Reopening Some of the Old Ones.

The earliest settlers of Bell county, Tex., found along the mountains northeast of Belton and near Nolan's creek what appeared to be old mines that had probably been worked by the Spaniards, Indians or Aztecs. Since then every once in awhile there has been talk of trying to open the mines and see what was in them, says the Galveston News. They presented the appearance of deep holes in the ground, some of which had been partially and others almost entirely filled with dirt. In some instances bushes had grown in these places. In one or two cases large cedar logs had been placed over these mine-holes and dirt thrown on them. Some people have always contended that it would pay to reopen and work these old mines, but until now no one who desired to put time or money in them.

The recent discovery of gold four or five miles from Belton has given a new interest in these old mines. In one of these mines some men have begun work in earnest, and are keeping at it from day to day. They are not very communicative about their prospects for success, but this much they tell, that in a short time they are going to ship some of what they think is their best-paying ore to the smelter at eagle Pass. After it has been smelted they will know more. Meanwhile there is a good deal of interest about it around town.

How Old are You?

You need not answer the question, madam, for in your case age is not counted by years. It will always be true that "a woman is as old as she looks." Nothing sets the seal of age so deeply upon woman's beauty as gray hair. It is natural, therefore, that every woman is anxious to preserve her hair in all its original abundance and beauty; or, that being denied the crowning gift of beautiful hair, she longs to possess it. Nothing is easier than to attain to this gift or to preserve it, if already possessed. Ayer's Hair Vigor restores gray or faded hair to its original color. It does this by simply aiding nature, by supplying the nutrition necessary to health and growth. There is no better preparation for the hair than —The bottom seems to have dropped out of wheat so soon. We predicted the rise was a political move. We have heard that banks would pay out gold again but don't you believe it till you can get it in your hand.

—Saturday, Oct. 31, has been set apart by both Republican and Democratic chairmen of the National Committees as a day on which the voters on both sides shall exhibit their patriotism by displaying the national flag. Swing out your stars and stripes. Let people know you are patriotic above party.

—Wheat took a jump this week and our farmers have been disposing of some of their surplus. It is claimed there is a famine in India: that crops are short in South America and some other places. It has also claimed that politicians have conspired to raise the price in order to make political capital, we suspect the latter has most to do with the rise. And if we had wheat would be tempted to get the highest going prices and sell.

Ireland Again.

New York, Oct. 17.—Archbishop Ireland visited the encampment of Lafayette G. A. R., at the Masonic Temple, Friday evening. General Don Butterfield escorted the archbishop to the meeting to which he was introduced by Admiral Meade. His grace said in part:

"The flag which you preserved and the love which you so zealously try to promote in the minds of youth and the whole of our citizens derives its majesty from the battles through which you bore it to victory. It stands today the symbol of the truth that secession is a damnable heresy. Patriotism means the love of the whole country. So the flag is the flag of all the states, not of one state.

"You love the old flag to-day as warmly as you bled that it might still wave; and you will suffer no act of your own, no thought and no deed, to bring discredit on that flag. Veterans of the war, you have a mission to-day as great as that which called you to the battlefield in 1861."—Minneapolis Times.

Grain Going to Mexico.

Topeka, Kas., Oct. 18.—Owing to fact that the drought this summer dammaged to a considerable extent the wheat crop of Mexico government has removed the duty on grain for a period of several months, Kansas grain is now on the move into Mexico. The Santa Fe is handling a great amount of this grain, and the officials of that road expect to ship over 1,000 cars into that country within the next two months.—Pioneer Press.

Geo. W. Francis, living near Pierre South Dakota, a farmer of English antecedents, is now in England on a visit. He says that his brother is working in a Manchester cotton factory, and that the superintendent of the factory solicited subscriptions from the men to aid in electing McKinley, saying that if Bryan was elected English workingmen would have to pay double prices for their flour, and that under free silver American manufacturers would compete with them in foreign markets and perhaps throw them out of work. The mill in which this took place raised 87 pounds sterling to be sent to America to help in the fight against free coinage. This is very significant. It is an admission that under free silver the American farmer will get much higher prices for his products, and that the manufacturing industries would enjoy a great boom. Isn't this just what we want.—Litchfield Independent.

Be at the polls early, so that no excuse of crowded condition can prevent your voting. And vote right.

Rockford had one of the most enthusiastic Free Silver meetings it has been our pleasure to attend last night. Hon. Frances G. Newlands, of Nevada was the speaker and he is a good one. The hall was packed and Mr. Newland pointed out the fact that all the gold in the world, coined, was $4,000,000,000; that it could be piled in a room 22 feet square and 22 feet high; that England Germany and France own one half of this and have a string to the balance, in the way of mortgages and bonds which they can call in their gold on whenever they see fit. He thinks this not enough money on which to do the business of the world, and that this great country with its bountiful resources ought to have more standard money. Mr. Newlands was a protective Republican but says, although Mr. Bryan differed from him on this he would support him, for President on the money question. He now belongs to the Free Silver Party which he hopes will give Mr. Bryan 1,000,000 votes He came here to help Charley Towne, one of the coming men, but is glad to learn that Mr. Towne's election is already assured.

Mr. Griffiths, of Minneapolis another Free Silver Republican made a few remarks. Mr. Wendell was called out. He advised the support of the entire ticket. John Nugent was called for but would not speak. John seems to have many ardent supporters in Rockford.

If the Page Morris people are depending on such correspondence as that in Monday's Pioneer Press perporting to report the Delano meeting they will surely get left; as it cannot help but react whereyer people are acquainted with the facts. "An immense torch light procession"! By actual count when starting out there were 50 voters, several of whom live in Hennepin County; after marching around until coming back to our corner and heading for the hall the number of voters had increased to 60, the balance of the parade was made up of boys and many of them quite small boys at that. This was no "immense" affair compared with several Delanoites have had in former years. If that is the way they are figuring on electing Page Morris, and when the correspondent claims that "There are certain gains for Republicans in this portion of the county and McKinley, Clough and Morris will have a thousand votes to spare in Wright county on Nov. 3." we believe they are about as correct as they were in calling that an "immense" torch light procession.

The same game has been played at other places. A report published in a city daily claimed that 500 torches were in line at Princeton; Charles Judkins, who is a candidate for the legislature and an old soldier who has seen men in line before and is from Maine where people are supposed to be good at guessing and who was there told us that 150 would have come much nearer the truth. Such tactics won't win in this campaign. They have been too extensively used. The gold standard men claimed to have the Republican National committee solid; and a large minority of delegates walked out of the convention. They then claimed that the Democratic National convention would declare for gold. It didn't. They have persisted in claiming nearly everything ever since. All the time claiming that the silver craze is dying out. We think they have been, and still are, claiming altogether too much easily.

The enthusiasm which has developed since Mr. Bryan's trip through Minnesota is carrying consternation in the ranks of the British Gold Standardites. At this writing it looks as though the Union Ticket would win out in the North Star State.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 16, 1896.

Senator Faulkner calls Senator Quay's absurd claim of 270 electoral votes for McKinley a burlesque, and says that Quay knows the battle is lost and being compelled to put out some kind of figures he made them so large that nobody would believe them. A significant result of the publication of Quay's figures was their immediate effect upon the betting fraternity, the members of which may be counted upon to recognize a bluff when they see it. The most reckless of the gamblers were offering odds of 3 to 1 on McKinley until Quay's claim was made public. They at once reduced them to 2 to 1 and in some cases the most they will now offer is 7 to 5, and there are reasons for believing that the money to offer these odds comes from Mark Hanna's corruption fund.

Senator Corman returned from New York this week. As usual he refused to be interviewed, but he reiterated his statement that Bryan would carry Maryland.

The returns from polls made in nearly all the Congressional districts are sufficiently complete to indicate how the next House will stand, and an estimate, which is regarded by the democratic Congressional committee as very conservative, shows that 190 silver Representatives will be elected, including democrats, populists and silver republicans. That will give the silver men control of the House by a comfortable working majority and ensures the early enactment of a law providing for the free coinage of silver, if the estimate be correct and Mr. Bryan be elected, and democrats have no doubt of either, as Mr. Bryan has said that if elected he would call an immediate extra session of Congress for the express purpose of providing for the free coinage of silver, and the Senate is solid for silver and will remain so.

A Washington hotel proprietor has stirred up a regular hornet's nest by inviting all the other hotel proprietors to meet at his place "for the purpose of contributing to the McKinley and Hobart finance committee." Many hotel men have publicly condemned this scheme and announced that they would neither attend the meeting nor contribute, and the following resolution, unanimously adopted shows what democrats generally think of it: "Resolved, That the Columbia Democratic Club denounces the action of T. E. Roessle, proprietor of the Arlington Hotel, Washington, D. C., (who in the past has been the beneficiary of democratic patronage through National committees and representative democrats of the various states), in his personal efforts to tax the hotel men of this city in behalf of the McKinley and Hobart finance committee, and we earnestly call upon the hotel proprietors of Washington, without regard to their political affiliations, who do not wish to confine their trade to one political party, to repudiate and repel this contemptible effort to array them in such a partisan movement. Resolved that when hotel men arrogate to themselves the right to dictate to the people what their political course should be, we reserve—and shall exercise—the right to notify the traveling public of our political faith as to whom they should patronize when they visit Washington."

Secretary Morton has in a published interview allowed it to be seen that the administration thinks that "The republican party is making a great mistake in bragging of strength and not doing more work", and is very much afraid that Bryan is going to be elected.

If the Washington Post, gold organ though it be, keeps on increasing the Bryan vote in its estimates it will be conceding his election before the votes are cast. In its latest table it gives Bryan 205 electoral votes and McKinley 165, leaving 77 in doubt. If Mr. Bryan only has to get 19 electoral votes out of these 77 his election can be put down as a reasonable certainty, as the States from which those 77 votes are to come are Illinois, Maryland, Delaware, West Virginia, Minnesota, Michigan and Kentucky.

As a rule neither democrats nor republicans think Archbishop Ireland's letter will benefit McKinley. A Kansas man, now in Washington says: "It is quite possible and very probable that the letter of Archbishop Ireland will prove a boomerang, and cause more loss than gain to McKinley. The temper of a good many of the Western A. P. A. members is such that they are very apt to resent anything of advice from a Catholic source, and thus the letter of his reverence may be a sort of Burchard affair for which Gov. McKinley will owe him no thanks."

No matter how much money Hanna's committee gets it wants more, and it has actually had the impudence to open an office in Washington, and send a circular letter to all government officials, asking them to call to see the agent in charge of that office, and suggesting that if they do not care to call the agent will call on them at their residences. Yet this is an administration elected by Democrats.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with the leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

Advertise in the GAZETTE.

Bimetallism

By Bimetallism, we mean the coinage of both silver and gold alike both to be full legal tender.

Free coinage is to make money out of metal without charge to the owner.

We now have, and have had, since 1792, the free coinage of gold.

We had free coinage of silver up to 1873.

There appears no earthly reason why we should not now have both metals coined on an equal standing at the present ratio at 16 to 1.

The United States does over 9-10 of all business on credit.

If we had plenty of gold and silver we would not need to be trusted. Everybody would be better satisfied with cash.

Garfields Brother.

From the Footprints we clip the following:

The brother of James A. Garfield, our martyrd president, writes the following to the chairman of the Michigan Central Committee:

Jamestown, Mich., Oct. 9, 1896.—Hon. E. C. Watkins, Chairman Union Central Committee, Grand Rapids:

Dear Sir—I am diametrically opposed to allowing England or any European power or any other power to be consulted or to dedicate in any way our financial policy. I am in favor of all the gold and silver produced by this country used equally as money and treated alike at our mints. I am in favor of capital, but am opposed to having capitalists hoarding their money into a national bank vault or investing it in government bonds. I want capital put where it will do work. I was proud to be a Republican when Republican principles were voiced by Abraham Lincoln, President Grant, John A. Logan and James A. Garfield, but I am opposed to having the principles of the Republican party voiced by the bankers, bondholders of Lombard and Wall streets, through their agen Mark Hanna. I am an American, hence I am opposed to consulting any other power in our American policy, and especially on finances.

Van Vredenburgh's Famous Painting.

An exquisite reproduction in 14 colors of Van Verdenburgh's oil painting, "Our Bench Show," representing a yard of playful puppies (size, 10x36 ins.), is given to every subscriber, with the December issue of Demorest's Magazine (published November 15). This issue is enlarged and bound in a beautifully printed cover, and is replete with illustrations and reading matter pertaining to the x-mas holidays. It is sold for 20 cents a copy. The Van Vredenburgh alone in this one number is worth more than the price of a year's subscription. It is the cutest picture we have seen and appeals to every lover of art and to everyone who is fond of dogs. Any of our readers who wish this beautiful picture can, by cutting out this notice and sending it to the Demorest's Magazine, 110 Fifth Avenue, New York, with 20 cents in stamps, receive it by mail, carefully packed, and at the same time a copy of the X-mas Demorest. The magazine, by the way, has been phenomenally successful during the past year, having increased its subscription list to 180,000 names—a clear gain of 100,000. There must be something in a magazine that can do that.

SEE THE BEST,

DEMOREST'S

An Unparallelled Offer.

Demorest's Cut Paper Patterns are the most practical on the market. They are of any size that any member of a household could require. In each copy of the Magazine is printed a coupon entitling the subscriber, or purchaser, to a pattern (worth and regularly sold for 32c.), or any number of patterns for four cents each to cover package and postage. When the value of the pattern is considered the subscriber actually gets Demorest's Magazine Free.

And what a Magazine it is! For 1897 it will be more brilliant than ever before. New management, new methods, new ideas. Each copy contains an exquisite reproduction in colors of some celebrated picture by a famous artist, worthy to adorn the walls of the most refined home. It is affirmed that DEMOREST'S is the only complete Family Magazine published combining all of the most excellent points of its contemporaries, besides having inimitable features of its own. DEMOREST'S is actually a Dozen Magazines in one.

It is a Digest of Current Events and Ideas for the busy man or woman, a Review and a storehouse of Interest for all. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters can find exactly what they need to amuse and instruct them, also practical helps in every department of domestic and social life, including the furnishing and ornamenting of the home, embroidery, bric-a-brac, artistic and fancy work of all kinds, etc., etc., and suggestions and advice regarding the well being and dressing of their own persons.

The scope of the articles for 1896 and 1897 will cover the whole country and its varied interests, and the articles will be profusely illustrated with the finest engravings, and, in addition, it will publish the best and purest fiction. It treats at length Out-of-Door Sports, Home Amusements and entertainments; it gives a great deal of attention to the Children's Department, and "Our Girls," and has a Monthly Symposium by celebrated People, in which are discussed important questions of the hour of interest to the older readers.

Let us have your subscription at once. You get more value for your money than it is possible to secure in any other magazine.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

BISHOP WHIPPLE, of Minnesota and Mrs. Evangeline Simpson, widow of the late Massachusetts millionaire cotton manufacturer, were married at New York Oct. 22. The Bishop is 74 and the bride 35 years of age.

BE sure you find the names of all the Presidential electors when you go to vote. If you wish to vote for Bryan you must mark all the electors marked Democrat, Populist, and they will cast the vote of the state for Bryan

SOME of our Wrighs county Republican politicians have kicked over the traces and gone back on their brethern who wish to give Hennepin county republicans a lesson on the Judge matter. Vote for Smith and Pond and let the lesson be learned.

THE election of John Lind by a good majority is already assumed. He can not do much alone. He must have the state officials with him, and in order to change the laws to any extent the Legislature must help him. Everybody seems to think a change in state affairs would be a good thing. Let's have the change.

KENNEDY'S OWN, is the name of a new Minneapolis monthly magazine of Education, Literature and Civics. Last week we received a sample copy containing a fine article on bimetalism, by Gen. John P. Rea. The magazine is neatly gotten up and Mr. William Kennedy, who is well known here, deserves the liberal patronage of people interested in the subjects he proposes to treat.

THE Generals who traveled about the country abusing Bryan and his party supporters, were covered with confusion when they passed in procession by his residence in Lincoln, Neb. As a compliment to the occasion Mrs. Bryan hung out a portrait of Mr. McKinley, hansomely decorated. What an ideal mistress of the White House Mrs. Bryan will make.—St. Cloud Times.

THE G. O. P. seems to be out of luck all along the line this season. Even their selection of a yellow badge looking like a cigar ribbon was unfortunate. The Bryan ribbon of red, white and blue is much more attractive to the American citizen. To make amends the G. O. P. have now adopted a red, white and blue ribbon with great black letters "sound money" printed acrost the end. People don't want their national colors mixed up with those of pirates.

IN order to refute the argument of the gold standard people. that the government is behind the silyer dollar now, any more than it would be under free coinage, J. E. Child editor of the Waseca Herald, offers to give to any German Church in the county $100, if any man will show him a law that silver dollars are now redeemable in gold. And yet Secretary Carlisle has announced that if silver dollars were presented to him for redemption he would be obliged to pay out gold for them in order to keep up the parity!

YESTERDAY'S Globe says the McKinley men of Minneapolis have had money to bet on election but have watched it go begging till yesterday a New Yorker bet them $10,000, even, that Bryan would carry Minnesota. This with the admission of the Globe that the seventh Congresional district is really going for Lommen is quiet a come down for gold standard folks; but then single, standard is to be further lowered in Minnesota is the belief of most people, hereabouts.

PRIESTS STUMP FOR BRYAN.

Denounce Ireland, as Do Newspaper Organs of the Church.

(Special to the world.)

Chicago, Oct. 20.—Archbishop Ireland's letter has provoked many Catholics.

Father Nugent, an Iowa priest, denounced the Archbishop in a political speech in Central Music Hall last night. The organs of the church in this city and St. Louis have severely criticized Archbishop Ireland.

Priests are appearing on platforms in Iowa and this State for Bryan.—World.

THE latest reason given for Mr. McKinley staying at home is, that it is contrary to the laws for mortgaged property to leave the state.

M. J. DOWLING is out in an appeal to the voters to re-elect Congressman Heatwole. He speaks of the "broad view" of National affairs and intimates that Mr. Peck don't have such an endowment in this line as Mr. H. We are not acquainted with Mr. P. but if he has the big head any worse than Congressman H. had it the other morning before breakfast as he passed through Delano, or is likely to get it half so bad don't elect him. One of that kind is enough in one congressional district.

IN voting for President be sure and make a cross after every elector whose name has Bryan after it. There are nine electors the first nine on the ticket are for McKinley. The next NINE are for BRYAN, then comes two Prohibition electors, those voting for these can well afford to vote for seven Bryan electors also. Mr. Bryan is as good a man for President as is in the field. There are nine electors for Palmer, National Democrat; don't mistake them for Bryan. There is one for Matchett, Socialist Labor, those voting that ticket are entitled to eight more votes. Don't fool away any votes be sure to make an X after nine electors names and don't miss BRYAN.

DON'T be misled by gold standard people clammoring about John Lind. All they want is to defeat the silver men. He has been held up as an infidel you must not waste votes on; yet he was christian enough to be sent three times to Congress by our republican friends. Finding this argument failed to detract votes from him he is now attacked as belonging to the Swede people, who are represented as being very much in favor of wiping all the saloons from the face of the earth. If he is elected, it is admitted that he will be a power in the land, to accomplish that feat which has puzzled so many psople for so long a time. He would certainly be termed a strong governor, and a strong government is what these very fellows have been wanting.

JOHN A. KEYS is making an active canvas for Attorney General on the democratic and populist ticket. He says: "There are about 200 trusts in the country covering most of the necessities of the people. They artificially raise prices to the consumer, but the labors who produce the articles get none of the profit. It is a straight steal for the benefit of the trusts. The formation of a trust is a crime, and is made so by the state law," Mr. Keyes thinks the law has never been enforced. He says: "What do I propose to do if elected? Simply bring all the machinery of the government I can command to bear upon such of these combinations and their organizors as can be reached, and I shall need and demand the aid, co-operation and support of all good citizens in doing it."

WHILE in Minneapolis Tuesday we were much surprised to see the demonstrations at the noon hour. The city seemed alive with orators. Everybody was talking on the money question. The repvblicans had rigged up a fine stand gaily decorated, on a vacant lot near a grand structure labeled sayings bank, with a sign on the window "money to loan at 6 per cent." To this noble edifice the loud voiced orators could easily refer, as containing the "capital" of the country and belonging to the "working people", while they prated for a gold standard. A big, young Irishman, who looked like a tramp, took a position on the curb stone directly opposite, the polished orator, and in spite of all, even of the minstrel performance, held the attention, by keen wit and sharp thrusts at the corporations, of his share of the audience. The Irishman was a newcomer to the city; no one seemed to know him. He informed the people that he had permission from the Mayor to speak on any corner in the city. his talk was plain, but very pointed. The laboring men enjoyed it and business men and professional men elbowed their way up to hear the pithy points. He seemed thoroughly to understand the situation and was not afraid to say so; impudent questions were good naturedly but effectually disposed of in short order, and much to the satisfaction of the crowd.

Political Pointers.

Mrs. Sturman is in recept of a letter from her brother-in-law in Colorado. He says that state will give Bryan a big majority.

Hon. B. F. Christlieb, of Long Lake now in Pasidena, Cal., writes us that: "A few nights ago a Bryan and McKinley meeting were held simultaniously in this city but at different places and the Bryan meeting had more than double the amount of people present than the McKinley meeting, and this is a republican city. And likewise the Bryan meetings in Los Angeles far outnumbered the McKinley meetings. The Bryan move is running high with no indication of its receeding."

Grand Silver Rally.

On Monday evening one of the grandest rallies of the campaign was held at the city hall. The audience a good sized one was addressed first in Polish by Prof. Frank Murlowski, afterwards by David B. Johnson, of Minneapolis. Both speakers talked eloquently and dealt some telling blows in favor of the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold, at the present ratio of 16 to 1. Mr. Johnson returned to Minneapolis on the Tuesday morning train, where he had to continue the work in the different wards. Mr. Murlowski remained in Write county the next day to work amoung his Polish brethren.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct., 23, 1896.

"Bryan will be elected," emphatically declared Senator Butler, Chairman of the Populist National Committee; the information received by me this week has made this absolutely sure in my mind. The Bryan tide which started in Michigan and Minnesota ten days ago reached Illinois this week and now that state can also be put down in the certain column. This language is considered very significant in Washington, because Senator Butler has been so very careful in expressing his confidence and in making claims that some over enthusiastic democrats have been inclined to accuse him of being lukewarm in the support of Mr. Bryan. Mr. Butler is a young man and he did not care to endanger his future political prestige by making claims until he had carefully gone over the field and ascertained to his own satisfaction just what the real situation was. This he has done, and the result is his announcement that "Bryan will be elected." All the information received by democrats points to the correctness of Senator Butler's announcement.

A gentleman who is a democrat as well as an old personal friend of Mr. Bryan's said, speaking of the republican assertion that the Democratic National Committee made a specific charge in cash for Mr. Bryan's speeches and that those towns that did not put up the money were passed by: "I haven't the slightest hesitation in pronouncing that story to be a lie, although it is entirely probable that some representative of the National committee has passed around the hat among democrats in towns that have been visited by Mr. Bryan as the committee has had to resort to all kinds of schemes to raise money to keep the campaign going and has at no time had all that it might have used legitimately and profitably.

In one southern state visited by Mr. Bryan the state committee took charge of him and his party when they entered the state and while within its borders would not allow them to spend a cent for anything. Mr. Bryan is a poor man and were it not for the personal contributions made direct to him would probably find himself lacking for ready money quite often. An instance of this sort of contribution came directly under my notice when Mr. Bryan came to Washington several weeks ago to speak. A Washington man who is not wealthy by any means came to me with a $100 note, which he asked to have handed to Mr. Bryan to be used for his personal expenses, without any mention of the donator."

Mr. A. R. Plumb, son of the late Senator Plumb, of Kansas, has just come from that state, of which he says: "Kansas will unquestionably give its electorial vote to Bryan. My reason for the statement is based on personal observation gained by extensive travel throughout the state. The fusion of the silver forces will be kept intact, and there can be no doubt as to the result. I think that his majority will not be less than 20,000, and it may reach much higher figures. The middle-of-the-road populists, who have tried to hinder fusion, will exert but small influence, and the better element of the party are solidly for Bryan. Business often leads me to visit Nebraska, which I am satisfied can be put down as surely for Bryan as Kansas is. The conditions in the two States are practically the same, and free silver is as strong in one as the other."

Things have been very lively around the Washington headquarters of the A. P. A., this week, owing to the numerous and very vigorous protests which have been sent out to the National officers of that organization, against the distribution of the official A. P. A., circular which attacts Mr. Bryan and attempts to array the organization solidly on the side of McKinley. But the circulars are still being sent out. Mark Hanna has bought the goods and the National officers of the A. P. A., are doing their best to deliver them.

The Democratic Congressional Committee is after Postmaster General Wilson, and has issued a special bulletin that must be anything but senjoyable to Mr. Wilson. This bulletin says: "Hon. William L. Wilson who exercises the privilege of campaigning denied by him to his subordinates, has not met with the enthusiastic reception that was predicted for him in W. Va. Republicans there have not forgotten his bitter denunciation of the republican party, and gold democrats are as scarce as hen's teeth in W. Va. While soliciting the farmer's vote in 1890 Mr. Wilson occupied a position quite the reverse of that he now takes." To prove this, the bulletin contains extracts from a letter written by Mr. Wilson, Sept. 20, 1890.

Information has reached the headquarters of the Silver National Committee in Washington that the republicans were preparing to attempt to control the votes of Indiana, Illinois and Michigan by buying up election officers in those states. Steps have been taken by the committee which will result in a close watch being kept on the would-be bribers, and if they attempt to carry out their plans some of them may find themselves wearing striped suits, instead of carrying states.

Bimetallism.

By bimetallism we understand the use of two kinds of money as standard money. Silver and gold both have been considered valuable metals, and until 1873, in this country, either would pay a debt or buy what was offered for sale. Since that time the law has allowed people to make contracts payable in gold; thus depreciating the value of silver; as it cannot be used for the liquidation of all debts it is not as valuable as gold. Contracts have been made payable in gold; farmers have been mortgaged in security for such debts, and now people are told that they must vote for a gold standard or their creditors will press them for payment of their contracts; that they will be asked to produce tho gold, and as the wealthy have hidden away the gold they will offer it at a premium; that if they offer silver it will go for only 53 cents on the dollar. This contract clause should be abolished. There is little sense in prescribing by law what shall be money and then allowing people to say it shall not be good to pay debts. In order to have money it must be legal tender for everything that every other money is. When people may contract or discriminate as to what they will receive as money, it is easy to get up a scare and make one or another kind of money scarce, when it once becomes scarce if people may be allowed to use the other standard it soon equalizes the two standards or even makes the other the scarcer and more valued. The payor having the power to pay in what he can get easiest tends to equalize the standards, they will never get far apart because the debtor will surely pay in the cheaper money and the demand for the cheaper brings up the price.

That bimetallism is the proper thing to have we have only to cite our readers to the fact that all the political parties save the National Democratic party favor bimetallism.

The first platform advocating a purely gold standard in the National Democratic platform of this year. The Republican platform of this campaign declares for a gold standard until we can get an international agreement which they pledge themselves to work for. All parties of cosequence favoring a double standard, people should vote directly for it and not for something else. If we are ever to have it the sooner the better.

Very Contradictory

SIX weeks ago the gold standard people were telling us we were mistaken about the silver sentiment; that it was not very large; that it was rapidly dying out, and that the silver party would poll few votes. Now they have changed their time and tell us that the silver sentiment is dead; that six weeks ago if a vote had been taken silver would have carried but now it will not. From these contradictory statements it appears that the gold standard people don't know much about it; or are acting dishonestly with the voters. Vote your sentiments, Don't be frightened off by anything.

District Judges.

ANOKA, Minn., August 31st, 1896.
Publisher of Delano Gazette, Delano, Minn.

Dear Sir:—At a meeting of the delegates to the late Republican Judicial Convention from the counties other than Hennepin comprising the 4th Judicial District, which meeting was held at Anoko, Minnesota, on the 28th day of August, 1896, a resolution of which the enclosed is a true copy was unanimously adopted.

Please publish said resolution together with the above statement in the next regular issue of your paper.

Respectfully,
O. L. CUTTER, Secretary.

"Whereas, The republicans of Hennepin county, by their action in their county convention in voting directly for candidates for judges, and instructing their delegates constituting a majority of the judicial convention for two Minneapolis men, without consulting with republicans in the other counties, have not only deprived the other counties of their rightful representation on the bench, but have disfranchised all republicans outside of Hennepin county, by taking away from them all voice in selecting the candidates:

"Therefore be it resolved, "That we consider the nominations made at the so-called republican judicial convention of the fourth judicial district as not made by a convention representative of the district: that no nominations have been made which are binding upon any republican outside of Hennepin county, and that in default of such nominations, it is the duty of every republican to vote at the polls for the men whom he regards as best qualified for seats upon the bench.

"Resolved further, That we recommend to our constituents that they vote for the present judges, Seagrave Smith and Charles M. Pond, for the reason that their experience, legal ability and judicial fairness seem to us to entitle them to a re-election."

Upon motion it was carried that the secretary furnish each newspaper in the district outside the county of Hennepin with a copy of the resolution and a request to publish the same.

One half the men who vote for Bryan will be glad to work for their board inside of twelve months, should Bryan be elected.—Weeping Water, (Neb.) Republican.

This is certainly encouraging, from this source, in Bryan's own state. According to the Republican press one would think but very few of them are willing to do so now. By the way if McKinley is elected how many who voted for him will be willing to do an honest day's toil.

McGary Again.

INDEPENDENCE, MINN., Oct. 27, '96.
Buffalo Gazzete,

MR. EDITOR: This great political campaign of 1896 is said to be one of education, full of zeal and fussion, and just the way the cat will jump nobody can tell. But somebody is going to get left, and each candidate is hopeing that it will be the other fellow. This is a free silver and a single gold standard campaign, the bankers, money loaners, trusts and combines against the rest of mankind. We the free silver party are called by the other side anarchists and Repudiaters because we want free coinage of silver. Those fellows must have had a divine revilation, for there is nothing in the statute, the constitrtion, or even in scripture against it. Or perhaps they haye consulted some familiar spirit such as the Witch of Endor, and divined unto them that which must shortly come to pass.

There is plenty of light upon this question as to free coinage of silyer, it needs no great philosopher to see through it. Moneyed men make money out of money, and if by law they can have a dear money then they can get a corner on that money, and the man who has no money must pay a big per cent to get that money. Two kinds of primary or legal tender money will give the man of all work and the farmer a better chance than if there was but one legal tender money. But nearly every man in the country has heard this money question freely discussed and by this time has mind as to how he will vote. But I hope that the doctrine of Adams. Jefferson and others that helped to lay the foundation of this goyernment in view. Let us not kiss the hand that smites us. Let not the hope of future posterity be blasted.

There was a rousing silver meeting a Maple Plain last Friday night, S. M. Owen and Rienhart of Minneapolis being the principal speakers. The hall would hardly hold the crowd.

Last night the republicans had a rally, Hall and Wheaton being the speakers. It was quite well attended. Let the good work go on the time is short. JOHN H. MCGARY.

Earnest Appeal to His Comrades by An Old Soldier.

Editor Ponny Press:

The G. A. R. Post at Long Lake, in this county consists of 32 members. Of this number 31 are for Bryan and American independence and 1 for Hanna-McKinley and American dependence.

I get this information from a member of the post and he is reliable beyond question. The veterans are falling in line all over the State and our Veteran's Bryan Club is gaining in number rapidly.

A great majority of the club are veterans men who seryed all through the war; men who remember the contest of 1860 and the copperhead Breckinridge Democrats of those days, who fought us in the rear while we were fighting rebels in front; men who remember Lincoln, Greeley, Chase, Grant, Garfield and Blaine; men who were with the Republican party at its birth and who have been Republicans all their lives and who now refuse to follow the few leaders of the party who have stolen the name into the British camp and submit to the degradation of truckling to a foreign power. Men who refuse to be taught how to vote by old Democratic generals like Sickles, now living on a fixed salary of $7,500 per year, bearing the mark of Cain on his forhead, traveling over the conntry in special cars at Mark Hanna's expense, insinuating on the ignorance of the men who carried the musket and by lying to them about 50-cent dollars; men who refuse to be taught lessons of patriotism by such men as General Buckner, educated by the government he so gallantly fought to destroy, but who had to surrender Fort Donaldson to General Grant, and he will soon have to surrender the golden stronghold of Britain to our gallant leader Wm. J. Bryan, and haul down the yellow flag of the money power, as he did the stars and bars at Donaldson.

Comrades, stand by your guns.

So great has been the recent influx of Chinamen into Hawaii that there is a distinct danger of the island becoming overpopulated. According to reports the coming sugar crop of Louisiana will be one of the largest ever produced in that state. There is a man in Kansas whom the women will bless. He has invented a machine calculated to make churning, washing, etc., easy. It is a swinging chair in which the lucky housewife sits. The motion sets the machinery at work, and the housewife can sew, visit with a caller, read or hold the baby, while the washing and churning go on in another part of the house.

The president of Lehigh university has been writing on college athletics, and he points out how false it is to have that branch of training in an institution represented by a few athletes in the ball nine, the football team and the racing crew. He argues that athletic training should embrace the whole student body to be of any use. A fair general average of the entire college would be a better record than a number one standing by a few picked men. The latter he aptly calls athletics by proxy.

It is reported from New York that the Protestant Episcopal church has decided to invade the evangelical field now occupied exclusively by the Salvation Army and the Volunteers. The new army will be under the same form of military discipline and will seek to make converts in the same way from the streets. It will include the best features of the Salvation Army and the success of that organization bespeaks a similar success for this new venture. The Salvation Army has done all the hard word in this country of fighting and conquering prejudice, and it has made the way easy for others.

The annual report of the mail service shows a reduction of about $2,000,000 in the annual deficiency. The special delivery service shows an increase of 12 per cent. in business and a net profit. There was seven per cent. increase in the number of postage stamps and postal cards sold. The second-class matter increased 12 per cent. and the registration four per cent. Only one piece in every 24,000 registered was lost. The report shows that the American public is becoming more literary year by year and that greater speed is sought by letter writers. Cheap postage is one of the greatest achievements of modern times.

Percival Lowell, who founded the Flagstaff (A. T.) observatory especially to study the canals of Mars, is firmly convinced that that planet is the abode of intelligent beings. Mr. Lowell has written a book entitled "Mars," which comes very near proving his contention. The only feature that throws doubt on it is the fact that Mars has a very rare atmosphere, but still the atmosphere is there. One of the astounding things about the Martian "canals" is that they are all projected on great circles of the globe—that is, they are laid out with mathematical accuracy to travel the shortest distance between two points.

HIS ALMA MATER.

Bryan Visits His Old College at Jacksonville—A Talk to Studeuts.

Alton, Ill., Oct. 27.—Mr. Bryan spent most of Monday in the environment of old college association and late in the afternoon left the old educational community of Jacksonville, where, surrounded by many of those who knew him as a student years ago, he enjoyed nearly two whole days of restful quiet. He became a boy again in the morning as he sat with the students of his alma mater in the college chapel. He sang with them and then made some interesting remarks defensive of himself with reference to insinuations that his purposes in leading the present agitation were not the best. A thrust at Maj. McKinley was contained in the few words he addressed to a delegation of visitors from the porch of the house where he was a guest when he said that a speech made from a porch could not be considered undignified. In the afternoon a great democratic rally was held in Jacksonville and Mr. Bryan made two speeches to large crowds, concluding his second in time to leave for Alton on the regular train, to which his special car had been attached.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, as stated, spent a most pleasant day in Jacksonville, where they were educated and spent the first few years of their married life. They visited the chapel of the Illinois state college in the morning and joined the students in singing "America," and in the responses to the Twenty-fifth Psalm, which preceded the introduction of the candidate by Dr. J. E. Bradley, the president of the college.

"I always go with pleasure before college students," he continued, "but I came with especial pleasure before the students of the college because, while a man in public life must expect to have his motives, misconstrued and his purposes doubted, yet I know something about how young men feel, and I believe that young men will believe me when I tell them that my study of economic questions has been with one single purpose, and that has been to find out what solution of public questions was best for the majority of the people. I never get among young men without feeling that I ought to impress upon them a lesson which was impressed upon me, and that is that when a man believes he is right, he can afford to stand alone; he can afford to be called anything; because it is not what people call you that determines character. It is what you are yourself."

After again quoting Dr. Sturtevant Mr. Bryan continued: "I was glad when I began to study the money question to find that Dr. Sturtevant recognized that the great thing desirable in a dollar was stability, and I can find no better illustration than the one I have read you, where he speaks of its being inequitable to compel a man to deliver 100 bushels of wheat when wheat has doubled in value. Now, you know the whole bone of contention in this contest which we are engaged in is as to which kind of standard gives you the best dollar. There are some people who talk about honest dollars, without exactly defining what they mean by that, so that you have to take their conclusions instead of being able to form your own conclusions. We believe that gold and silver used together gives a more stable dollar, a more equitable currency, a more just standard than could be obtained from the use of one with the other eliminated from use; and the very argument Dr. Sturtevant makes there, that a short crop of wheat will make wheat rise in value, applies to money; because, if there is a short crop of money, money rises in value. Now, the crops are determined usually by the weather and by various things which man may not control, but the volume of money is determined by law, which man does control. And so if you by law make your crop of money short you raise the value of the dollar, you if you raise the value of the dollar, you produce the same injustice to the man who owes a dollar that Mr. Sturtevant calls attention to in the case of wheat that doubles in value.

"But my friends, I am here more to greet you than to talk to you, and I have digressed only this much because have so little chance to have my side heard in some of our institutions of learning that I do not feel that I ought to neglect an opportunity to say a word in the defense of the cause for which I stand. I read in the papers that in various institutions of learning they are nearly all against me. My friends, if I should read in the paper that there was not a college professor, not a business man, not a man prominent in society who believed in what I am teaching, while I believe in it I would still teach it."

A parade that was an hour and ten minutes in passing a given point preceded the meeting in the public square. Goldbugs with arrows sticking in them were carried in the line on biers; goldbugs on forks were likewise displayed. A noticeable feature was the number of women who took part in the procession on foot and on horseback. The people who wore yellow ribbons gathered in a number of places along the route and their cheers for McKinley caused two or three rows that did not result seriously. The crowd at the public square began to collect early, and at two o'clock, when Mr. and Mrs. Bryan arrived, about 12,000 people were congregated closely around the broad platform from which the candidate spoke, while as many unable to hear, gathered on the streets in that vicinity. Mr. Bryan also spoke to an audience of women at the opera house, where a reception in honor of Mrs. Bryan was held. Mr. Bryan's public square speech was devoted almost exclusively to the position of his party with reference to the supreme court. He followed practically the same line of argument used in former speeches on this subject.

Leaving Jacksonville at 4:15, Mr. Bryan reached Alton at seven o'clock. He made short speeches on the trip at Roodhouse and at Jerseyville. The big open-air audiences, both gathered about the city hall, were addressed by Mr. Bryan. He spoke from two sides of the building. Each address was devoted largely to the money question, grounds familiar to the readers of the nominee's speeches being covered. At 10:05 Mr. Bryan left Alton for an all-night run to Lincoln, Ill.

THE WAR IN CUBA.

Insurgents Defeated in Several Skirmishes with Heavy Losses.

Havana, Oct. 27.—Col. Segura has reported to the government that his command surprisd a body of rebels at Garganta Soroa, province of Pinar del Rio, and that in the fighting that followed four of the insurgents were killed. The Spanish by this victory gained possession of a route to the hills and started to build trenches to defend their position. While employed in this work the troops were continually fired upon by rebels, but no losses were sustained. On October 24 Col. Segura left the main body of his command, and with a small force started to reconnoitre the country. On his way back he learned that the Seamore battalion was engaged with the rebels. He therefore hurried to the scene of the fighting and took part in the combat. The rebels made desperate efforts to carry the Spanish position, and thus open the way for their return to the hills, but were compelled to retreat, closely followed by the Spaniards. A series of bloody fights occurred during the two days of the pursuit. The rebels left 61 dead on the field, but it is believed their losses were much heavier than this. The troops lost a lieutenant and 21 privates killed and 110 wounded, including four captains and two lieutenants.

READY TO ARBITRATE.

British Minister to Present Proposals for a General Treaty.

Washington, Oct. 24.—It can be stated authoritatively that the proposals Sir Julian Pauncefote is authorized by the British foreign office to present to the state department embrace both the Venezulan boundary question and the question of a general treaty between Great Britain and the United States whereby all future disputes will be submitted to arbitration. The nature of the proposals is such that it is believed the dispute over Venezuela is much nearer to final solution than at any time since the trouble began. Sir Julian Pauncefote called at the state department Friday to lay his proposals before Secretary Olney, but it being cabinet day the ambassador and secretry had only a ten-minute conference.

ALL OFF.

Negotiations Between Watson's Managers and Chairman Jones Ended.

Chicago, Oct. 27. — All negotiations which were being conducted by Western Chairman Washburn, of the populist national committee, representing Candidate Watson, and Chairman Jones, of the democratic national committee, for the purpose of solidifying the middle of the road populist vote for Bryan, were officially declared at an end Monday by Mr. Washburn. Democratic state committees, particularly the silver democracy of Georgia and Tennessee, are blamed for the failure of the negotiations. Mr. Watson will spend the remainder of the campaign practically in silent disgust, and his interesting letter of acceptance will likewise not appear in public.

SHIP BLOCKADE AT BUFFALO.

Extraordinary Movement in Grain Sends the Fleet Down the Lakes.

Buffalo, N. Y., Oct. 27.—Buffalo is threatened with the biggest vessel blockade in the history of the port. Chicago, Milwaukee, Duluth and the ports of Lake Erie are pouring in more grain every day than the elevators can handle, and it now looks as if the elevators would be swamped in a few days. For the last week the fleet has been accumulating. The immense grain crops of the west are now ready for shipment, and under the influence of the demand grain rates at Chicago and Duluth have advanced to such a figure as to attract the fleets usually busy in the iron ore trade. The arrivals continued all Sunday and Monday and the river is full of boats.

During the progress of the fire Alfred Beaumann, a fireman, while standing on an extension of the burning building was caught in a back draught and forced into the flames. When his body was rescued it was burned to a crisp. Three firemen who tried to rescue Beaumann were badly burned.

FARMERS' NATIONAL CONGRESS.

Will Convene in Indianapolis November 10-13 Inclusive.

New York, Oct. 27.—Mr. B. F. Clayton, the president of the Farmers' National congress, has issued an address to the farmers of the United States, stating that the next annual meeting of the Farmers' National congress will convene in the city of Indianapolis, Ind., November 10, 11, 12 and 13 next and that the meeting promises to be the largest assemblage of representative agriculturists ever convened in America. All interested in the productive industries, the address states, are invited to attend the congress, especially women. Papers and addresses by the leading agriculturists of the country will, the address states, be read and discussed.

PENSION SUIT ENDED.

The Long Case Dismissed by the United States Supreme Court.

Washington, Oct. 27.—The Long-Lochren pension case was dismissed by the United States supreme court Monday on the ground of abatement by reason of the retirement of Judge Lochren from the office of commissioner of pensions. The case was brought by Judge Long, of the Michigan supreme court, to test veterans' rights. Judge Long drew a pension of $72 a month and the reduction of the rating to $50 a month was stubbornly contested in the courts of the District of Columbia and finally carried to the supreme court.

Gold in Alaska.

Washington, Oct. 24.—James Sheakley, governor of Alaska, in his annual report to the secretary of the interior says there is great encouragement in the outlook for the Alaskan gold mines. During the year ending the first of this month $2,300,000 in gold bullion has been taken from the mines, the greater part being the product of low grade ores, much of which yielded less than four dollars per ton. Almost any grade of gold ores now can be worked at a profit there. Confidence in Alaska as a gold-prducing country increases with the development of her resources.

MAKING MEN BEGGARS.

Women in London Crowding Out the Sterner Sex.

"I have before me," says Walter Besant in a recent issue of the London Queen, "the thirty-seventh annual report of the Society for Promoting the Employment of Women. I am sorry to learn from this report that the demand for women clerks and bookkeepers is on the increase.

"At the same time I am informed in other quarters that thousands of men clerks are tramping the streets of London, wearing out shoe leather in going up and down stairs in the weary work of trying to find places.

"They find, instead, women doing the work, which should keep them and their wives, for half the pay. One has no objection to women doing men's work if they get men's pay. They may even keep the men in idleness, if they please, like the laundresses.

"How shall we make these promoters understand the cut-throat policy of pushing women in everywhere, at half or quarter the pay, and driving the men abroad? However, there are other and more satisfactory features about this report.

"In the lower walks something has been done by the society in getting places for women as hair-dressers—will they ever become such admirable artists in this walk as the men?—in finding cooks and waitresses, and in getting temporary work of all kinds for women.

"But the numbers and figures given demonstrate that the work of the society is but a drop in the ocean. We have 40,000,000 of people, with 20,000,000 of women and girls, and all who are past the age of 15, with an insignificant minority of about 500,000, are clamoring for work."

FOR GOOD EATING'S SAKE.

The Unique System Adopted by a Railroad Company to Have Its Dining Car Service Up to the Best.

The following is an extract from the Locomotive Engineer of New York city, a paper of recognized authority in technical railroad matters:

"In connection with the through train service between Chicago, Buffalo, New York and Boston, the Nickel Plate Railroad run their own eating cars, and they have adopted a rather unique manner of keeping the men in charge of the cars up to the mark. There is a grievance committee consisting of two superintendents, the superintendent of motive power, the regular traveling representatives, and the general car inspector, who have authority to take a meal in the cars at any time and report on anything they find wrong. These officers make life a burden to the superintendent of the dining cars. There is a good deal of pleasantry about the criticisms, but those patronizing the cars find that they never have reason to complain of the victuals being cold or out of season.

"The dining car service on the trains of the Nickel Plate Railroad is something that strikes the traveler as approaching perfection. With the system in force referred to, there is not much room for a 'kick' from anybody."

In conjunction with the above article we feel justified in adding our compliments to the painstaking management of the Nickel Plate Road. It has been our good fortune to have occasion to use this line in our frequent trips from Chicago to New York city and Boston.

While traveling in one of the day coaches on a little jaunt from a local station into Buffalo, I was impressed by the cleanliness of the car. The secret was soon divulged. Along came a colored porter in uniform, dust cloth and brush in hand, and with a polish here and wipe there, the seats, window sills and floor were kept scrupulously clean.

The schedules of their fast trains are convenient and the sleeping cars placed in the regular daily service are of the most luxuriant type of modern car construction. Solid trains are run between Chicago, Buffalo and New York city and through sleepers to Boston.

A fact worthy of note yet remains to be pointed out to the readers of this journal, which, perhaps, has not come to the notice of many. Rates are offered between the same points lower than those quoted by competitors of the Nickel Plate Road and from my experience their passenger facilities are excelled by none. A. POINTER.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

AT THE POLLS.

Officers to Be Voted for in the Various States November 3.

Should the Result Be Close, Delay May B Experienced in Ascertaining It Through Difficulty in Counting the Blanket Tickets.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The presidential election of Tuesday, November 3 next will be held under conditions which have never before prevailed, and which will render the official count a matter of difficulty and unusual delay. Since the last presidential contest almost every state which had not then adopted the Australian ballot system has by state enactment prescribed some form of secret blanket ballot, either based on the Australian plan or closely resembling it. The only exceptions are Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina and South Carolina. It the first three states named, the old ballot system prevails, and the election machinery is in the hands of the state authorities. In South Carolina there is what is called a "reform ballot," the avowed purpose of which is to restrict the votes of illiterate negroes. In nearly all the other states blanket ballots will be cast, and in many of them the count will be complicated by the fact that state, legislative and county nominations are all printed on the same ballot with the names of the presidential electors. Connecticut has an envelope system, and New Jersey prints each party ticket upon a separate ballot.

May Take Many Hours.

Should the election be in any way close it is therefore quite possible that it may be 24 hours, or even 48 hours, after the polls are closed before the result is known with absolute certainty. In states like Nebraska, for instance, where, according to conservative opinion there may not be a margin of 5,000 votes either way, it will be impossible to arrive at correct judgment until all the back counties are heard from. The polls in the cities of some states close at six, and with a governor, a legislature and county officers to elect, all on one ballot, it will take at least 24 hours to complete the count. Some idea of the general trend of votes in Ohio can probably be obtained from the result of the counties in which Cincinnati and Cleveland are respectively situated, and these results will be known comparatively early. The doubtful points are Hamilton and Cuyahoga counties. Chicago will control Illinois. There will be no doubt of the outcome when the vote of Cook county is recorded. But in other doubtful states like Indiana, Michigan and Kansas, where state and legislative tickets also complicate the ballots, there will probably be no key note from which the result can be definitely determined on Tuesday night, unless the election should prove a landslide. In that case midnight might give a close idea who are the victors and who the vanquished. Otherwise there may be many hours of anxious suspense.

The last two presidential elections have been singularly free from uncertainty. It was known at ten p. m. on election day in 1888 that Mr. Harrison had defeated Mr. Cleveland, and it was known with equal certainty at 11 p. m. on election day of 1892 that Mr. Cleveland had defeated Mr. Harrison. But in the election of 1884, when Mr. Cleveland defeated Mr. Blaine, the official result hung in doubt over the vote of New York for many days.

Fusion Adds to the Complication.

The fusion tickets will add a further element of difficulty in the presidential count this year. Fusion has been arranged between the populists and the democrats on the electoral ticket in every democratic state but Tennessee, Mississippi, Georgia, Alabama, Florida and Texas. In several of the southern states, while there has been no formal fusion between the republicans and populists on state, legislatures and congressmen, local arrangements have been made that amount to fusion and will have more or less to do with the result.

COST NINE LIVES.

Awful Result of a Collision Between Trains Near St. Louis.

St. Louis, Oct. 26.—A head-end collision occurred on the St. Louis & San Francisco railway near Meramec Highlands at ten o'clock Sunday morning, by which nine people were killed and a score injured. The scene of the wreck is 13 miles west of this city. The Valley Park accommodation train, going east very fast on a down grade, came into collision with the second section of a west-bound excursion train going to St. James, Mo., and carrying 240 G. A. R. men and their families. The impact demolished both engines and wrecked or derailed all the cars. The first news of the wreck reached Union Station, and a relief train carrying physicians and nurses was at once sent out, arriving at the wreck at noon. At one o'clock p. m. nine bodies had been recovered. It is believed that at least two more are beneath the wreck. Of the 20 injured eight are likely to die. Following is a list of the dead:

Charles Hohl, engineer accommodation train, St. Louis; Conrad Kunze, excursionist, St. Louis; Charles Nobles, excursionist, St. Louis; W. C. Stromberg, excursionist, St. Louis; Frank Hasler, locomotive fireman, St. Louis; J. C. Blevins, passenger accommodation, Beckville, Mo.; William Cartwright, excursionist, St. Louis; Bernard McKenna, St. Louis, in charge of refreshment car; Mary McKenna, aged 14, assisting her father.

It is known that Engineer Dryden had orders to wait at Windsor siding, near where the collision occurred, to allow the accommodation to pass, but he increased the train's speed and tried to overhaul the first section of the train.

The excursionists were going to St. James, Mo., to assist in the dedication of a home for the aged widows of veterans. There were ten passengers in the two cars of the accommodation train

THE FATHER ALONE SAVED.

A Denver Grocer Loses His Entire Family of Six Persons While Boating.

Denver, Col., Oct. 26.—By the overturning of a pleasure boat on Smith's lake at five o'clock Sunday afternoon A. J. Smute lost his entire family, consisting of his wife and five children. Their names are Hilda, the mother, aged 36; Evan, aged 13, Carl, aged eight; Edith, aged six, and Esther and Ruth, 7 months old, twins. He had them out for the afternoon on the water and the boat was capsized and the entire family fell into the water. The lake is filled with weeds which grow up from the bottom, a horrible fungus growth that fastens about the body like the tentacles of an octopus and into this the unfortunates fell and struggled in vain. Only the father, who fought to free himself, arose to the surface and when he came up he had the child Ruth under his arm, but she was dead when a boat reached him from the shore, he having held it under water all the time, he not knowing in his excitement that he was drowning it.

EDWIN WILLITS DEAD.

Ex-Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Expires at Washington.

Washington, Oct. 26.—The flag on the agricultural building was at half-mast Saturday on account of the death of Edwin Willits, who was assistant secretary of agriculture during the administration of President Harrison. Mr. Willits died suddenly at his home in this city Friday evening. He became ill at his office about four o'clock. He was taken home in a carriage, a physician having been summoned to meet him there. The doctor found that Mr. Willits had been stricken with a form of kidney trouble from which he had suffered at different times for several years. Every effort was made to restore him, but he gradually sank into a state of coma and died in a few hours.

Made Archbishop of Canterbury.

London, Oct. 26.—Right Hon. and Right Rev. Frederick Temple, D. D., bishop of London, provincial dean of Canterbury and dean of the chapels royal, has been appointed archbishop of Canterbury and primate of all England, to succeed Right Hon. and Most Rev. Edward White Benson, who died suddenly at Hawarden October 11.

Cotton Burned.

Galveston, Tex., Oct. 26.—Early Sunday morning fire destroyed a large warehouse and 3,500 bales of cotton, involving a loss of $25,000 on the building and $115,000 on the cotton. About 75 per cent. of the cotton was saved in a damaged condition. The entire property was insured for $160,000.

Royalty Weds.

Rome, Oct. 26.—The civil and religious ceremonies uniting in marriage Prince Victor Emanuel, prince of Naples and crown prince of Italy, to Princess Helene, third daughter of Prince Nicholas I., ruler of Montenegro, were performed Saturday forenoon.

Price of Bread Raised in London.

London, Oct. 26.—There has been marked excitement in Lincolnshire over a rise in wheat of ten shillings with holders disinclined to sell. At a meeting of the master bakers of London the price of bread was raised a half-penny per loaf.

Placed Under Arrest.

Covington, Ky., Oct. 26.—John Fagin, who threw a cigar in Secretary Carlisle's face Thursday night, was arrested Sunday night and released on a bond signed by Anthony Monkedieck.

MASSACRED.

Six Members of a Scientific Party Slain by Natives of the Solomon Islands.

San Francisco, Oct. 23.—News of the massacre of part of an Austrian scientific party on the island of Guadalcanar, in the Solomon group, reached this city Thursday by the steamer Monowai. The party left Sydney to cruise about and visit the Solomon islands in scientific research in the Austrian man-of-war Albatross. They had visited all the isles except Guadalcanar, on which there is a mountain called the Lion's Head. The party wanted to reach the summit and hired native guides. They started for the summit on the 5th of August. In the party were Baron Foullon von Norbeck, Lieut. Budik, Midshipman de Beaufort, 20 sailors, another midshipman, the baron and two servants and two native guides. After two days' march one of the midshipmen and seven sailors returned, as they became too fatigued to proceed farther.

The day after they left the camp the baron, Lieut. Budik, seven sailors and two servants started up the mountain. Several bushmen met on the way joined the expedition, but as they were without arms no particular attention was paid to them. The baron was in the lead all the way, and as he neared the top of the mountain a bushman, who appeared to be a chief, was seen by the party. As he appeared two shots were fired lower down the mountain from the direction of the camp. The shots seemed to be a signal for the chief to attack the baron's party. Bushmen from a score of places at once rushed out, and the baron was struck on the neck with a tomahawk, while a crowd of bushmen attacked the rest of the party with clubs. The native who had cut down the baron was promptly shot by a sailor. Lieut. Budik also put his revolver to good use. One sailor had to protect himself with a tomahawk he had wrested from a native. The other sailors were well armed and the bushmen finally had to retreat to the woods, many of them wounded. The baron was the only one of the party badly hurt. At first it was thought he would recover, but he gradually sank after he had walked back to camp and died in three hours.

The sight when the party returned to the camp was a bloody one. Midshipman de Beaufort had been cut to death and three sailors and a native guide had also been killed. Six sailors and one guide had been wounded. The news was then sent to Capt. Maulock, of the Albatross, and a relief party was sent and a safe return was made to the ship.

FIRE IN CHICAGO.

Elevators with Over 1,000,000 Bushels of Wheat Burned—Loss, $1,200,000.

Chicago, Oct. 27.—In less than an hour at noon Monday fire destroyed $1,200,000 worth of property on the north branch of the Chicago river, in a dilapidated locality known as Goose Island. The Pacific grain elevators, A and B, owned by the Chicago & Pacific Elevator company, were completely destroyed and several frame dwellings adjoining were swept away in the avalanche of flame. There were more than 1,000,000 bushels of wheat stored in the two great elevators. The loss on that is estimated at $861,000; on corn, $34,800, and a small loss on oats. The loss on the buildings and machinery is placed at nearly $300,000. Insurance fully covers the losses. Superintendent Perry said the fire started in elevator B, in the south part, and he believes it was caused by sparks from a passing tug in the river. No employe of the company knows anything definite about the origin of the destruction.

Five firemen who were fighting the blaze from the roof of the elevator office, a one-story brick building, had a narrow escape from death. The roof they were on fell in by the building catching on fire underneath them and they fell with it before a word of warning could be given. Fortunately the firemen seized the hose and the walls projecting a little above the collapsed roof they hung over the fiery furnace until rescued by their comrades.

Thousands of spectators gathered and cheered in wonder and admiration at the grand sight unique in the annals of Chicago's fire history. Great bins containing thousands of bushels of dry grain one above another, were eaten gradually away by the flames. One bin withstood the destroyer longer than the rest and hung suspended in the fiery air. One side caught fire near the bottom and the heap of grain, released from its confinement, poured to the ground, a hundred feet below, to be met by flames in its descent, the whole forming a picture of a flaming Niagara.

TERRORIZED BY BANDITS.

Four Masked Men Loot an Indian Agency in Oklahoma.

Guthrie, O. T., Oct. 27.—The Sac and Fox Indian agency, 60 miles southeast of here, was held up and looted Monday afternoon by the same gang of bandits that looted the town of Carney last week. Sac and Fox is only 36 miles from Carney. There were four masked robbers, mounted and armed. They first rode to the office of Agent Thomas, presumably to demand the money to be paid as annuity to Sac and Fox Indians next week. Agent Thomas had $46,000 in greenbacks ready to pay the Indians, but he was not in his office.

The robbers went to the store of Mrs. Fannie Whistler, covered the inmates and took $486 and valuable papers from the safe. They then held up J. W. Moffit's place and got $59 and a gold watch. Chief Keokuk's place was robbed of $80 and $3,000 worth of notes. The boldness of the robbers frightened the traders and people so badly that they were unable to resist. After robbing Keokuk's place the bandits rushed through the grounds of the government Indian school, firing their guns. Two of the robbers were recognized as being in the Carney hold-up.

RURAL FREE DELIVERY.

Experimental Service to Be Started at Auburn, Ill., November 1.

Washington, Oct. 27.—Auburn township, in Sangamon county, has been selected by Frank H. Jones, first assistant postmaster-general, as the place for testing the rural free delivery service in Illinois. Inspector Bird, of Chicago, was directed by telegraph to proceed to Auburn and arrange for beginning the service November 1. The central point from which the mounted carriers will radiate will be Auburn a station on the Chicago & Alton railroad, about 15 miles west of Springfield. Three carriers will probably be employed, and they will make three deliveries a week to all farmhouses in the township. The farmers will be asked to place letter boxes in a convenient place near their houses so the carriers can deliver mail without dismounting.

PRESIDENT AT PRINCETON.

Mr. Cleveland Delivers an Address at the Famous College.

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 23.—President Cleveland delivered an address in Alexander hall, Princeton university, on Thursday. His theme was the influence of universities and colleges on intelligent patriotism. A synopsis of his address follows:

He said a government resting upon the will and universal suffrage of the people has no anchorage except in the people's intelligence. A collegiate training should be a constant warning against popular rashness and excess. A constant stream of thoughtful, educated men should come from our universities and colleges preaching national honor and integrity. He recognized the practical necessity and desirability of political parties. He would by no means control or limit the utmost freedom of discussion of legitimate governmental policies, but there are immutable truths and fundamental principles which are related to our national condition that should never be dragged into the field of political strife nor impressed into the service of partisan contention. When the excitement of party warfare presses dangerously near our national safeguards, he would have the intelligent conservatism of our universities and colleges warn the contestants in impressive tones against the perils of a breach impossible to repair. He concluded as follows:

"When popular discontent and passion are stimulated by the arts of designing partisans to a pitch perilously near to class hatred or sectional anger I would have our universities and colleges sound the alarm in the name of American brotherhood and fraternal dependence. When the attempt is made to delude the people into the belief that their suffrages can change the operation of natural laws, I would have our universities and colleges proclaim that those laws are inexorable and far removed from political control. When selfish interest seeks undue private benefit through governmental aid and public places are claimed as reward of party service, I would have our universities and colleges persuade the people to a relinquishment of the demand for party spoils and exhort them to a disinterested and patriotic love of their government for its own sake and because in its true adjustment and unperverted operation it secures to every citizen his just share of the safety and prosperity it holds in store for all."

EX-SPEAKER CRISP DEAD.

Sudden Call of the Famous Georgian—Sketch of His Career.

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 24.—Hon. Charles Frederick Crisp, speaker of the Fifty-first and Fifty-second congresses, died at Holmes' sanitarium here at 1:45 o'clock Friday afternoon. A paroxysm of pain in the heart produced death, the paroxysm probably resulting from a rupture of the heart as the result of fatty degeneration.

[Mr. Crisp was one of the best-liked men in congress. He commanded the respect of friends and opponents by his abilities and his generally unruffled judicial fairness, which was broken up only once or twice, during the bitter controversy with Speaker Reed over the Reed rules. He was born in Sheffield, England, where his parents had gone on a visit in 1845, and this fact took him out of the category of vice presidential possibilities when some years ago his name was suggested for that office. He was brought to the United States before he was a year old, was educated in Savannah and Macon, Ga., served in the confederate army and was made a prisoner, was admitted to the bar in 1866, became successively state solicitor-general, judge, congressman and speaker of the house of representatives in the Fifty-second and Fifty-third congresses. His congressional career in the lower house extended over 14 years, and he was the choice of his party for the United States senate when he died.]

TRADE REVIEW.

The Flurry in Wheat—Many Contracts Awaiting Result of Election.

New York, Oct. 24.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"The event of the week has been the sensational advance of wheat to 83 cents for cash on Tuesday, a rise of 5½ cents, and its fall to 77 cents on Thursday, gaining 1⅝ on Friday. The rise was magnified by covering of speculative sellers who imagined the advance had gone too far, but was at bottom based on an extraordinary foreign demand, which has engaged grain vessels from all Pacific as well as Atlantic ports for months ahead. How great the shortage in ordinary European supplies may be is the point of doubt and speculation, but none now question that shipments from the Pacific coast to India and the decrease in Russian yield are important, and the buying of enormous quantities for export, with engagements of freight room at higher rates, express the belief of European dealers.

"Wheat exports from the Pacific coast are large, and over 500,000 bushels per day have been engaged ahead for some time. The Atlantic exports, about 900,000 bushels larger than last year for the week, have been in October 6,570,213 bushels, flour included, as against 5,086,388 last year. Corn moves largely and at lower prices, having declined a cent for the week. Cotton has advanced a sixteenth, to 8 cents, with only moderate transactions, and heavy receipts from plantations.

"The most striking feature of industrial returns is the number of contracts conditioned upon the election. These already are enough to make business rather lively for a time, and many others are pending which will probably be held back until November 1.

"The movement of currency to the interior has been only $3,500,000 for the week, and the market for commercial loans has been dull. The volume of business shown by exchange has been 8.7 per cent less than last year and 9.6 per cent. less than in 1892.

"Failures for the week have been 274 in the United States, against 231 last year; and 60 in Canada, against 38 last year."

TWO THOUSAND SLAIN.

Horrible Statistics of the Armenian Massacre at Egin.

Boston, Oct. 27.—A letter dated Harpoot, eastern Turkey, September 29, has been received in Boston, as follows:

"All reports agree in fixing the estimate at about 2,000 as the number of the killed in the Egin massacre. More women and children in proportion seem to have suffered this fate than in any previous massacre. Many of the dead were left in the streets for days as food for dogs, and large numbers were thrown into the Euphrates. The bodies have been seen floating down the river 40 or 50 miles below the city. In some cases whole families have been obliterated. Exact statistics, of course, cannot be given, but it is feared that 2,000 is an under estimate. This is a large portion in an estimated population of between 5,000 and 6,000 Christians. There were 1,100 houses, and of these it is said only about 150 are left. This carnage of blood and fire lasted from Tuesday, the 15th to Thursday, the 17th. All the testimony concurs in showing that the massacre was official, and that it was wholly without reason. There was no disturbing element except in the imaginations of a few officials. The work was done by the citizens and soldiers."

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

A Strange Case.

A stranger, bearing every evidence in person and garments of refinement and social standing, applied for assistance to the Episcopal clergyman and local physicians at Mankato. His memory has suffered an eclipse, and the only thing he can remember concerning himself is that he is an Episcopalean. His name, home and everything up to his coming to Mankato are gone from his mind, and his valise and money are gone from his possession, but when or where he parted company with them he cannot recollect. He has a faint remembrance of being a business man somewhere. He is an Englishman and over 50 years old. He has been taken to a hospital for treatment, and the physicians believe his memory will return, having suffered temporary paralysis. He is an abstainer from liquor.

Says It Retracted.

The answer of the Duluth News Tribune to the $50,000 libel suit begun against it by Congressman Towne has been filed. It recites the circumstances of his nomination, election and subsequent change of view. It admits the publication of the article reproduced from the St. Paul Dispatch, and says it relied on the reputation of the Dispatch for the truth of the article. The defense is made that the News Tribune published a complete retraction of the same on Aug. 28. Mr. Towne's attorneys deny that the article published in August was a retraction.

Masonic Hall Burned.

Masonic hall, one of the finest building in Long Prairie was totally destroyed by fire at an early hour. The building was jointly used by the Masons, Woodmen and Maccabees and was elegantly fitted up. One or two record books and a few damaged chairs are all that was saved, as the building was a mass of flames inside when first discovered. it was occupied last by the knights and ladies of the Maccabeers. The building was owned by W. J. Gutches, valued at about $5,000 and said to be insured for half that amount. The masons also carried a small insurance on the furniture.

Prize Pansies.

When Miss C. H. Lippincott, the Minneapolis florist, issued her 1896 catalogue of flower seeds, last January, she offered $200 in cash prizes for the largest blossoms raised from the seed of her "Royal Show Pansies," to be divided into twenty prizes. This was the largest sum of money ever offered in a similar contest.

The contest ended last Friday and the work of judging the 5,000 pansies, submitted by 750 competitors, was begun. Ross H. Nelson, of Oregon, took first prize of $50. His pansy measured 3¼ inches any way it is measured.

Changes Hands.

The Penny Press has again changed hands and is no longer a co-operative concern. The arrangements have been pending some time. S. B. Howard having in view the securing of the paper to himself, but W. H. Williams and a few of the other did not care to relinquish their stock. The balance of the corporation, however, needed money, and as Mr. Howard agreed to pay salaries if the paper was turned over to him, the minority was finally prevailed upon to do so.

Foreign Missions.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary convention was held at Faribault. It was presided over by the president, Mrs. M. J. Triggs. Reports of standing committees and conference secretaries were given and were of prosperity. Mrs. Jeannette Sauter delivered the address of welcome. A paper on "Our Literature" was finely rendered by D. S. B. Johnston. A number of missionaries of the orient were present.

Bad Collision.

A bad rear-end collision occurred at Delano the other night. A freight train broke in two and collided with a train in the rear. A dozen box cars, filled with merchandise, were piled up and some of the cars were completely telescoped. The wrecking car and crew were immediately sent for and worked until 10 o'clock the next morning before the track was cleared.

Married.

Rt. Rev. Henry Benjamin Whipple, bishop of Minnesota, the "St. John of the Wilderness," whom the Indians of the Northwest years ago named "Straight Tongue," was married the 21st, in St. Bartholomew's church, New York. The bride is Mrs. Evangeline Simpson, widow of the late millionaire cotton manufacturer of Massachusetts. She is about 35 years of age. The groom is 74.

News in Brief.

John C. Lindah, of Hartland, committed suicide by shooting himself in the breast. Unrequited love is the cause.

Judge Moer, of the Duluth district, refused to grant an injunction restraining the city from voting on the waterworks proposition.

The annual session of the Minnesota board of corrections and charities will be held at Red Wing Nov. 17, 18 and 19.

John Bovemkaemp, living near Boyd, was run over by a team and killed.

Jacob C. Shorr was killed by jumping from a Northern Pacific engine in St. Paul.

Another Beltrami county townsite is being located on the east side of Red lake. A large saw mill will be put up and a steamer built to ply on the Black Duck and Turtle lake country. The town will be about 16 miles north of Buena Vista.

F. E. Norman has been appointed postmaster at West Union, Todd county, vice H. J. Wagoner, resigned.

Rev. John D. Morrisson, D. D., LL. D. archdeacon of Ogdensburg, N. Y., and rector of St. John's church at that place, was elected to the bishopric of Duluth by the house of bishops of the Protestant Episcopal church of America.

A postoffice has been established at Spirit Lake, Otter Tail county, with Charles W. Hoffman as postmaster.

For the 24 hours ending 4 p. m., the 22d, there were no deaths in Minneapolis.

The total registration of the city of Duluth so far is 10,323. This is the largest new registration in the history of the city.

Archie Robinson, aged 3½ years old, was killed while playing in a sand pit in Minneapolis. He fell down and the sand caved in covering his head and suffocating him before help could arrive.

DELANO, FRIDAY, OCT. 30, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—A car load of coal was received in this village Monday morning. It begins to look like winter.

—Hunters find some quails about here this season. Pheasants are less plentiful than formerly.

—The new Miehle press has arrived for the Eagle office, and Delano will soon be able to turn out as fine jobs as can be done anywhere.

—Next Tuesday Nov. 3rd will be election day. Don't fofget to be at the polls in the morning and cast your ballot before the rush begins.

—There will be an apple social at the M. E. Parsonage on Saturday evening, Oct. 31st. Halloween games will be a part of the program. Light refreshments will be served. All are invited.

—A. C. Dornfeld spoke in German at the city hall, Wednesday night. He had a fair sized audience and held the voters well. The Germans like other voters are divided on the money question.

—Republicans will make an attempt Saturday and Monday evenings at the City Hall to rally their forces, by telling them all the bad stories about free silver and free silver candidates they can trump up. Don't be misled. If you favor free silver vote it.

—On Friday afternoon the St. Peter's school scholars had a discussion on political affairs, Charley Lohmiller represented Bryan forces and Charley Bentz the McKinleyites. The portraits of the two candidates, and flags were displayed. After the speaking a vote was taken giving Bryan 48, McKinley 13.

—Mrs. Drucilla Adams, colored, of Aurora, Ill., made us a call yesterday. She said she was born in slavery, in Alabama, and thanked the Lord she got free. She says the first she knew the white folks were fighting over negros, now they are fighting over money; and that they will keep on until they bring on another war. She was soliciting subscriptions to remodel the Third Baptist church of Aurora, Ill. She seemed to meet with marked success among the benevolent people through our state; even though a good way from home.

—On Saturday morning before six another wreck occurred here on the Railroad; this time about 10 cars were smashed, some of them badly, wheat and flax seed were strewn along the road for rods. It seems that it happened much as the one on the other side of town last week; by the train breaking in two, and the parts coming together. It must be quit a loss to the company to have about two dozen cars smashed and so much grain and goods destroyed. One car last week was so completly wrecked that the wreckers insisted it was not on the train, and when convinced that it must be went back to investigate and found the trucks.

For Congressman of the Sixth District.

CHARLES A. TOWNE.

Mr. Towne tells the Democrats he is a free trader. He is afraid to make that statement to the few republicans who will vote for him.—Duluth News Tribune.

Mr. Towne does nothing of the kind. We heard Mr. Towne speak in Minneapolis, in Buffalo and in Delano this fall and he did not claim to be a free trader; if he did we would like him better. If he was runing on his protective principles we would have to hunt another candidate. He is not to meddle with that question much if any this term. But on the issue of the campaign he is all right with the people on the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold 16 to 1.

J. Z. Cochran of Smith Lake, though not a politician is making a good race for the office of Register of Deeds. Everybody knows him and all who have been here long enough remember him as a man who has always been public-spirited, progressive and generous. In 1867 there was a scarcity of wheat here and Mr. Cochran who had a couple hundred bushels on hand, all the wheat there was to be had in this part of the county at that time, for which he had paid $3.00 per bushel, the money being savings from his pay in the army, took this wheat to Rockford when the Roads were impassible for teams on account of wet weather, and men frequently walked to Minneapolis and carried home flour or bread on their backs, and had it made into flour. This flour he distributed among his neighbors without profit to himself, or whether he received anything for it or not. And it is only justice to say that he never did receive anything for some of it. But the people remember him and his many generous actions, and will take occasion to express their regard for him next Tuesday, by honoring him with their vote for Register of Deeds.—Maple Lake Messenger.

John Lohmiller went to Howard on Wednesday.

Del Young was a Delano visitor Monday morning.

Dr. Catlin visited St. Paul and Minneapolis Tuesday.

Joe Bernick returned home yesterday morning from Donnelly, where he has been with a threshing crew.

Mat Fautsch and Dr. Shrader went to the cities Wednesday.

Dr. Ames took a trip to Rockford, and Dr. Soper to Howard, Wednesday.

Ole Bockman and Nels Johnson have got home from Dakota in time to vote.

J. D. Cady, Sam Cutter and John C. Nugent of Buffalo were Delano visitors Sunday.

Miss Allie Murphy of Watertown was home to see the folks the fore part of this week.

Harry Halgren and lady of Watertown attended church at Delano last Sunday evening.

Mrs. C. G. Halgren and son Harry and Miss Ollie Murphy drove over Wednesday afternoon on business.

Alva George Catlin has returned home from the harvest fields of central Minnesota. He is looking hale and hearty.

Charles Metzger, of the Minneapolis police force, on his way home from Watertown where he had been on a visit, passed through town Wednesday.

Albert Kurtz came home a few days ago from Canada, where he resigned his position on the railroad. He says he prefers the United States to railroad in.

Bud Reeves, of N. Dakota was a pleasant visitor to the GAZETTE office Saturday. He undertook to get some breakfast at Montrose while the train was delayed on account of the wreck near there that morning. The wreck was removed sooner than expected and he was left and got this far on a cattle train.

John Lind, our next governor, will speak in Cokato next Monday at 1. p. m. A grand rally of the fusion forces will take place on that day.—Waverly Tribune.

Levi Vannurden was a GAZZET caller Wednesday morning. He says he is in the fight to a finish; has been over the southern part of the county well, and was surprised to find so many Bryan and Lind men. The woods is full of 'em.

Wright County gold standard until other nations permit them to have bimetallism men, are advocating the voting of the ticket "straight." In order to defeat them those favoring a free and unlimited coinage of silver must do the same.

John Lind the next Governor of Minnesota will be at Maple Plain, at 9:30 a. m. to-morrow Saturday, Oct. 31. He will also be at Mound City at 12 m. and Long Lake at 3 p. m. the same day. Turn out and hear him. Senator S. B. Howard will accompany him.

The gold standard advocates are advising their men to vote straight for a gold standard until an international agreement is reached. In order to win a victory those opposed to a single standard should be careful to vote for those whom they know to represent their views on this subject.

Senator Culkin, Ex-Senator Eaton and other Republicans are having a terrible time about County Surveyor. This is not so important an office, financially speaking, to the man who gets it as are some other positions. Halver I. Moland has held it under republican rule and we don't suppose he knows any less now then he did then. If Mr. Moland of Wright Co., run a correct line we don't belive Mr. Eaton, of where? can run it any "corrector."

"The Democrats have thrown everything overboard and are trading other candidates on the ticket for John C. Nugent."—Annandale Post.

If the Post is correct in this statement it shows a deplorable state of affairs. Trading off candidates on a ticket is poor business. It requires two to make a trade. If some democrats are trading off all the balance of the ticket for one man some republicans must be trading Carpenter off at a lively rate. No man or clique of men engaged in such business deserves election.

DIED.

NORBERG.—In Franklin, Tuesday, Oct. 27. Stephen Norberg, aged 70 years.

Repudiated Principles.

The Party repudiated the Principles is why the People are repudiating the Party! Just compare the two planks for yourself; carefully, line by line:

From Republican National platform, adopted at Minneapolis, in 1892:

GOLD AND SILVER MONEY.—The American people, from tradition and interest, favor bimetalism, and the Republican party demands the use of both gold and silver as standard money, with restrictions and under such provisions, to be determined by legislation, as will secure the maintenance of the parity of values of the two metals, so that the purchasing and debt-paying power of the dollar, whether of silver, gold, or paper, shall be at all times equal. The interests of the producers of the country, its farmers and its workingmen, demand that every dollar, paper or coin, issued by the Government, shall be as good as any other. We commend the wise and patriotic steps already taken by our Government to secure an international conference, to adopt such measures as will insure a parity of value between gold and silver for use as money throughout the world.

From the Republican National platform adopted at St. Louis in 1896:

MONEY.

"The republican party is unreservedly for sound money. It caused the enactment of the law providing for the resumption of specie payments in 1879; since then every dollar has been as good as gold.

"We are unalterably opposed to every measure calculated to debase our currency or impair the credit of our country. We are therefore opposed to the free coinage of silver except by international agreement with th leading commercial nations of the world which we pledge ourselves to promote, and until such agreement can be obtained the existing gold standard must be preserved.

"All our silver and paper currency must be maintained at parity with gold, and we favor all measures designed to maintain inviolably the obligations of the United States and all our money, whether coin or paper, at the present standard, the standard of the most enlightened nations of the earth.

Above we give a sample of the county ticket as it will appear, except we have placed as a guide, an X, after the name of each candidate nominated at the democratic convention and after the republicans who are running without opposition. This also represents the Free Silver sentiment, so far as possible, unless on Sheriff, where Levi Vannurden, is still runing; he having been nominated by the populists and J. C. Nugent by the democrats.

FROM present indications this government will be Hannarchial after March 4.

SOMETHING must be done about voting for President. The present system of choosing electors to vote for President is wrong. If we must have electors it would be well to have one mark opposite the President's name be a vote for the entire nine electors.

CHAIRMAN Jones is still insisting that Bryan has been elected. Republicans are already claiming frauds in several states. It is about time elections were run honestly in this country. Our citizens should be above frauds, and a man should be ashamed to make that cry in this free country.

THE daily papers say that the banks are now going to pay out gold and that gold will again go into circulation. How are people going to get hold of it anymore than they would the silver dollar? Want they have to work, or sell something to secure gold just the same as they would silver?

THE Harvest Souvenir Edition of the Winona Daily Herald received by us last Wednesday is a fine paper giving the advantages of Winona and a history of some of its citizens. It is illustrated, in good shape, and tends to make people think that there are other cities in Minnesota than the twins.

WHEN constitutional amendments are again to vote on it is hoped they will be numbered; and that what is printed on the ticket will plainly indicate what it is intended to do, so that people can intelligently cast a ballot for or against them; also that judges of election may be able to keep count of them without so much trouble as was experienced by most of them this week.

THE National Democratic ticket did much more damage to Bryan, than perhaps any one ever dreamed it would. Instead of stopping when the Bryan electors were marked the voters, in many instances, kept on making all the Democrats they could find, including the National Democratic electors; resulting in having the electoral vote thrown out and depriving Mr. Bryan of about 10 per cent of his vote.

THE cause of free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold is not dead. It is just beginning to be understood. After the attention of the people has so thoroughly been called to the matter they will now watch closely every move in money matters. Every man is now getting to be his own statesman. He is getting to know the financial plans for himself. He will be able to determine what is best for the government.

DON'T sign a note payable in gold if you can possibly avoid it. Where will you get gold to pay it in? Of course everybody knows that Carlisle has said he would be obliged to redeem silver in gold if asked to do so; and that their is now more silver coin than gold in the United States to say nothing of the paper redeemable in gold. If notes are all made payable in gold gold will surely be in demand at a premium. There should not be a rich man's dollar and a poor man's dollar. Every dollar in the country should be just as good as every other dollar. But when their is so little gold and so much silver and paper redeemable in the country of course the money loaners will look out for themselves and make notes payable in gold. They don't want the silver and paper when they know there is not gold enough in the country to redeem them with.

THE St. Paul Globe devotes a column to the "Future Alignment of Parties." Does the Globe think to build up a new party at this time? Does that organ of a single gold standard think to longer fool anybody as to what its object in life is? Hasn't it accomplished about all it can hope to accomplish as an aid to the gold standard party? The Globe tries to have people understand that Mr. Bryan was so effectually voted down that even "free silver" will never again be heard of. Don't fool yourself Globe, nor don't you expect to fool the people. Mr. Bryan's defeat in Minnesota is nothing to crow very much over. The ballots intended for him, but thrown out because of having been wrongly marked would have made the majority for Mr. McKinley look very small. Don't crow too much over the mistakes made by thousands of our own citizens in trying to vote a ticket which you assisted in making a puzzle to them, by advocating the placing of another set of electors on. When they, wishing to vote the straight Democratic ticket, saw the electors marked National Democrat, so similar to the regular Democrat and Populist ticket, marked them also, having already marked the Bryan electors and thereby lost their vote for President they honestly did so. They honestly intended to vote for Mr. Bryan, as is shown by their casting their ballot for Mr. Lind and Mr. Towne, and the rest of the ticket.

But then Mr. Globe man to rejoice at the discomiture of your fellow citizens through their mistakes in marking their ballots, to remind them that our state went so overwhelming against Mr. Bryan and the free silver movement when you know that a large part of that majority resulted from a virtual disfrachisement of your fellow citizens, (taking it for granted you were born in this country) is about in keeping with the gold standard idea of contracting the people's money until they are obliged to get trusted for everything they buy and pay interest to the loaner of the over valued gold; until the laborer the farmer, the average man handles no coin at all; but gives his note or his order for every thing, until like the old clown, his "note is good because everybody has got it."

What use is there now Globe of standing in the way of the people arriving at a satisfactory decission of this important issue? If they have failed to settle it this time, why are you in such a hurry to construct this new third party? Why don't you join either the gold standard or the bimetallist party already in existance? Be one thing or the other. Don't stand between, in the way, denouncing both parties for small things while you help prevent the solution of the main and very important question to the people, that of whether or not they shall have silver and gold both on a parity, one money as good as the other.

ANOTHER Presidential election has been held. Again the voters of the United States have decided who shall be President. The election has determined for the next two years, at least what shall be the policy of fur government. The money question has been uppermost in this campaign, and whether or not individuals favored a gold single standard, or bimetallism, has caused votes for this or that set of men favoring the one or the other cause. People will now expect the business of the country to settle down to some kind of satisfaction: they will expect money to become more plenty among those who have been on short allowance for years, they will expect business to pick up all along the line.

No place in the world can people become more in earnest about political questions: no place can they discuss them so thoroughly, and vote on them and then go quietly to work to make the best of what the majority decides is best for the country.

Everyone has from experience learned a useful lesson; that of economizing; of making what they have, or what they can get, go as far as possible, of getting along with what they can pay for. That debts are bad things; that mortages are the bane rather than the blessing of American people. The majority of the people now intend living within their incomes as nearly as possible, they do not intend that money loaners shall by means of money loaned have any particular claim on their politics. Men of moderate means intend to look out to the best of their obility for what they have and by honest toil and frogality accumulate more to be invested in what will profit them best; buy nothing not needed; bargain for nothing they can as well do without; sign no notes discruninating against any legal money of the United States. Business is now at rock bottom and likely to improve steadily if money enough can be had to pay as we go.

Take the Newspapers.

Some of our voters evidently didn't read the newspavers very carefully or they would have known how to vote better than they did. These people would make a great howl if they were to be disfranchised in any way. If a law was to be made allowing only those who can read to vote, they would kick like everything. But they calmly walked up and attempted to vote, and being too proud to take someone along to help them, as the law allows, they went into the booth alone and marked their tickets in such a manner that they had to be thrown out and not counted. On Tuesday many Bryan ballots were made void and not counted because the voters marked not only Bryan electors but the Palmer electors also, thereby loosing their vote for President. One man voted for Dr. Ames and for another Governor, though the ballots were plainly marked vote for one: As one Governor is all we can have, this vote was thrown out. People shouldtake the local papers and read over the ticket until they know who to vote for before they come to the poles and anything a man don't understand the law allows him a man, of his own choice to help him mark the ballot to suit him.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct., 30, 1896.

Senator Faulkner, Chairman of the Democratic Congressional Committee: Senator Butler, chairman of the Populist National Committe, and Secretary Diffenderfer, of the National Committee of the Silver party, are unanimous in declaring that the reports received by them make them certain that Bryan will be elected. Still, now when it cannot be used to affect the result, your correspondent does not hesitate to acknowledge that he has doubts, notwithstanding the confidence of the gentlemen who have managed Mr. Bryan's campaign. Never since this government was established was there such a combination of wealth and influence on one side of a Presidential fight as has been thrown against Mr. Bryan and the free coinage of silver in the present campaign, and it is useless for anybody to try to deny that this wealth and influence has been a powerful factor—how powerful may best be judged when the votes of States known to have been overwhelmingly for silver six months ago are announced. Against this combination Mr. Bryan has had to depend very largely upon his own efforts, owing to the split in the party having crippled the democratic machine organization in a number of states and to the lack of a campaign fund of even respectable proportions. Well, Mr. Bryan, although he has proved himself to be a magnificent campaigner and a greater man than even his closest friends thought him to be, is only one man; hence my doubts.

The suppresion of Tom Watson's letter by chairman Butler, of the populists National Committee, because of objectionable statements therein, has excited little interest among democrats, who, as a rule, think that Watson has done Bryan all the harm he could already and do not care a continental either about him or his letter. The feud between Watson and Butler will probably lead to an interesting rumpus after election, when both will express their opinions of each other.

Fitz Lee has lost none of his old time shrewdness. Before coming home, in accordance with Presidence Cleveland's desires to help gold along he made a few inquiries to ascertain the situation in Virginia, and the result is the announcement that Fitz will not come home until after the election, in order to show that he is not dissatisfied with his instructions or position as Council General to Cuba, as had been reported. Had there been any chance to defeat silver in Virginia, Fitz would doubtless have been willing to take a hand in the campaign, but he would not put him self up merely to get knocked down, not even to please President Cleveland. Fitz expects to keep on living in Virginia and is probably not averse to accepting further political honors. At any rate he is too shrewd to do anything that would make it impossible to get them.

It looks like Attorney General Harmon's construction of what constitutes "pernicious political activity" was the result of a few whacks upon somebody's conscience. He says that officeholders may make speeches without laying themselves open to the charge, but to accept any committee place or chairmanship or to become a candidate for anything makes one guilty. Inasmuch as almost the entire Cabinet has been making political speeches it would be difficult for Mr. Harmon to convince anybody that he was not trying to make an excuse for his colleagues, both for their speaking for gold and for their dismissal of subordinates who were on the silver side.

While many reports have been received at the head quarters of the National Association of Democratic Clubs, in answer to the circular letter requesting the political affiliation of each member of the club previous to this campaign, the number of reports has fallen far short of what it should have been. But this isn't altogather chargeable to the clubs. The request was made too late in the campaign. The reports which have been received are very encouraging as they show a large percentage of men who were previously republicans on the rolls of the Bryan and Silver clubs.

Before leaving Washington to take the stump in Alabama against Bryan, Secretary Herbert selected names for the new battle ships and gun boats authorized to be built by the last Congress. Alabama, Illinois and Wisconsin are to be the names of the three battleships and Annapolis, Marietta, Newport, Princeton, Vicksburg and Wheeling of the six gunboats.

The republicans hereabouts are displaying a state of nervous excitement which is not in keeping with their claims of being cock-sure of McKinley's election, and many of them do not hesiate to expressfear that Hanna and the other McKieley managers are not so confident as they wish the public to believe they are. I know of several who have put up money on Bryan, so that if McKinley is defeated they can console themselves with the cash won, and if he is elected that will console them for the money lost. It quiets their nerves to get some consolation. How's that for philosophy?

The Small Waist

ONE OF NEW YORK'S LEADING DRESSMAKERS SAYS:

The small waist is no longer fashionable; I have just returned from Paris, and the most modish customs there provide for a waist about twenty-five inches around. Of course the American women, who follow the French closely, are adopting the new style. Those who are extremely fashionable are determined to have a waist of twenty-five inches, irrespective of what their normal waist measure may be. Personally I don't believe that the style will be a becoming one, although gowns will be made so as to make it as attractive as possible. It will be so very much more comfortable, however, than the small waist, that I think it will be more lasting than fashions usually are. The active out-of-dore life fashionable women are now leading makes the small waist almost an inposibility. But Dame Fashion is never althogether sensible. She particularly offsets her favor of the large waist by the discarding of the puffed sleaves, which everybody will admit are very much more comfortable than the tight sleaves which will be worn by modish women this winter.—From "The Passing of the Small Waist," in Demorests Magazine for November.

Bryan to McKinley.

The defeated sends to the victorious candidate the following telegram:

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 5.—Hon. Wm. Mckinley Jr., Canton, Ohio.: Senator Jones has just informed me that the returns indicate your election and I hastened to extend my congratulations. We have submitted the issue to the people and their will is law.

FROM CALIFORNIA.

Politics, Fusion, Thomas B. Reed, Bryan Wave, Forests Fires, Work for Soldiers.

BY HON. B. F. CHRISTLIEB.

The political campaign now about to close has been a warm one in California as well as elsewhere in the union. The free and unlimited coinage of silver in this state has always had many advocates irrespective of party and several months ago the republicans in their county conventions as a rule, and at their state convention electing delegates to the National Convention to o be held at St Louis declared for the free and unlimited coinage of both metals at their present ratio 16 to 1, so the decision of the St. Louis convention at its meetings afterwards, furnished an unsavory "dish of crow for the California republicans, which many of the latter refuse to accept. In Los Angeles at this writing there is a Free Silver Republican Club organized, consisting of over four thousand members, which membership is being increased by daily additions, all suporting Bryan. Fusion between the democrats, populists and free silver republicans in this state is perefected and its friends are hopeful as to the outcome.

Thos B. Reed of Maine arrived in California to day. His advent was accompained by an unexpected fall of rain. He is sent here to make some McKinley addresses, and from the outlook he can no more check the Bryan wave in California than he can check the down pour from the skies that meets him on his entrance into the Golden State.

During September and parts of October the Sierra Madre and San Berardino mountain ranges were overrun with extensive and destructive fires said to be the most destructive known since the first influx of Americans. While only a limited portion of the mountain district was burnt over the fact is deplored by people in this part of the state, in the matter of denuding the mountain of timber, brush, moss and various growths which serve to absorb and protect the water supply of the country. The matter of preserving the forests not only of California but of Minnesota and throughout the Union should receive the attention of the United States and State governments. And the query: Why can't the Military force stationed at the forts and stations throughout the Union be used to guard the forests against the ravages of fire and save the country from loss, inconvenience and suffering entailed by the destruction of our forests. It certainly would be a good military training for soldiers to march and patrol through forests and by it the army could render the invaluable benefit of saving the forests. The people are taxed for the support of the military organizations both state and United States, and would it be asking anything unreasonable to have the forest guarded by the army?

Climate refugees are beginning to arive in California. The periods of extreme warm weather ceased in August and since then standard California pleasant weather has prevailed.

If by any chance or pressure Bryan should be defeated, the great battle for American liberty will but just have commenced. Tomorrow the advocates of free coinage will commence to reform the broken column for the great fight of 1900. Let the word be "Forward, all along the line."—Penny Press.

In each copy of the Magazine is printed a coupon entitling the subscriber, or purchaser, to a pattern (worth and regularly sold for 32c.), or any number of patterns for four cents each to cover package and postage. When the value of the pattern is considered the subscriber actually gets Demorest's Magazine Free.

And what a Magazine it is! For 1897 it will be more brilliant than ever before. New management, new methods, new ideas. Each copy contains an exquisite reproduction in colors of some celebrated picture by a famous artist, worthy to adorn the walls of the most refined home. It is affirmed that DEMOREST'S is the only complete Family Magazine published combining all of the most excellent points of its contemporaries, besides having inimitable features of its own. DEMOREST'S is actually a Dozen Magazines in one.

It is a Digest of Current Events and Ideas for the busy man or woman, a Review and a storehouse of Interest for all. Wives, mothers, sisters and daughters can find exactly what they need to amuse and instruct them, also practical helps in every department of domestic and social life, including the furnishing and ornamenting of the home, embroidery, bric-a-brac, artistic and fancy work of all kinds, etc., etc., and suggestions and advice regarding the well being and dressing of their own persons.

The scope of the articles for 1896 and 1897 will cover the whole country and its varied interests, and the articles will be profusely illustrated with the finest engravings, and, in addition, it will publish the best and purest fiction. It treats at length Out-of-Door Sports, Home Amusements and entertainments: it gives a great deal of attention to the Children's Department, and "Our Girls," and has a Monthly Symposium by celebrated People, in which are discussed important questions of the hour of interest to the older readers.

THE women of Colorado and Wyoming stand upon precisely the same footing as the men so far as voting for president or any other officer is concerned. For some unknown reason the report continues to be circulated that women can not vote in a presidential election. The state says who may vote and who may not, and it makes no distinction of sex.

THE prince of Monaco has just completed a wonderful fishing machine of his own devising. It is constructed of wire netting and iron, and, while it is very easy for the fish to enter the machine, it is next to impossible for them to leave it. In fact, they have no wish to leave their trap, a skillful arrangement of electric light dazzling them till they are drawn up from the nets.

IT is said that the late George A. Sheridan, while collector of taxes at New Orleans under Gov. Warmoth, received as fees not less than $100,000 a year for four years. He saved some of it, but though the value of his services as stump speaker were recognized by both Hayes and Harrison, neither of them would give him an office, and he died an embittered and disappointed man.

MISS GRACE DODGE, of New York city, who is well known as a philanthropist, is endeavoring to organize lunch clubs for girls in the vicinity of factories, where they can obtain a nourishing, comfortable meal at a nominal price. Generally clubs for working girls are in the vicinity of their homes, not of the factories where they are employed, making them useless for the lunch hour.

WHEN Justin S. Morrill completes his term in the United States senate on the 4th of next march, he will enter upon his sixth consecutive term, the completion of which will make his years as a member of the legislative department of the federal government number 48. He was first elected to congress in 1855, serving in that body until 1867, when he was promoted to the senate, where he has been ever since.

JULES VERNE'S fanciful story of the man who traveled "Around the World in Eighty Days" has not yet lost its interest as a record of surprising adventure, though the accomplishment no longer seems a marvel. Prince Hilkoff now promises to reduce the schedule time to but little more than a month. This will be when the great Russian Trans-Siberian railroad is fully completed and in good working order.

PRINCE HILKOFF, of Russia, said before leaving on the steamer St. Paul that he had purchased 15,000 watches in this country for the use of employes on the Russian railroads. The prince, after a thorough inspection, pronounces the American railroads to be the finest in the world. "Next to America," he says, "comes England. But England has a lot to learn. Every comfort in the world is to be found on the American car."

TELEPHONE wires seem to have important influence in preventing lightning from striking, according to the investigation of the German telegraph department. Three hundred and forty towns with telephone systems and 500 towns without them were under observation. In the former lightning struck three times for every hour of storm; in the latter five times. Moreover the violence of the lightning was much less in the former cases.

PROF. BROUARDEL, of Paris, recently recited the details of a farmer's suicide, a farmer who left a family of seven sons and four daughters, ten of whom subsequently followed the father's example, but not until after they had married and become fathers or mothers. Their children followed their father's and their grandfather's example and suicided. The only survivor of this entire family having a mania for self-destruction, is now 68 years old.

THE increase in the number of poisonings in India is attracting a great deal of attention in London. Formerly pounded glass and opium were the favorite agents of destruction used. But education from a European point of view has imparted to the dwellers of Hindoostan the knowledge of a number of new and far more deadly compounds and drugs. The majority of the victims are men and children. In India it is a favorite way of paying off an old score to poison the child of one's enemy.

LORD LORNE has had for some time back been introducing a large variety of Canadian game into his father's forest in Argyleshire, notably a species of turkey and a wild goose which may be expected to replace the fast disappearing native goose, whose survivors are now seldom found far from Lock Awe. The turkeys have increased in number most prodigiously, and ere long may be considered valuable features of Argyleshire shootings, while the geese are to be found in huge bodies all along the shores of Loch Fyne.

THE whale may claim to have a thicker skin than any other animal. It has a skin nowhere less than several inches, and in many parts two feet in thickness. The distinction of being the thickest-skinned quadruped belongs to the Indian rhinoceros, whose hide has a knotty or granulated surface, and is so impenetrable as to resist the claws of the lion or tiger, and the sword or bullet from the old-fashioned smoothbore muskets. So stiff and hard is this skin that, were it not divided by creases or folds, the animal imprisoned in its armor could scarcely move.

A CHICAGO burglar said to Sheriff Pease the other day: "I've cracked more than seventy safes in my time. But I've never used anything except powder, dynamite and nitro-glycerine. If I live to finish this bit at Joliet I'll do a little work afterward that will astonish the boys. I can cut through almost any safe in Chicago inside of two hours with electricity and without making enough noise to waken a cat. I got that pointer from the electrical display at the World's fair, and I've been working at it ever since. It is entirele feasible. I'll prove it to you by and by."

DEMOCRATIC ESTIMATES ALL WRONG

Doubtful States Place Themselves in the Republican Column. Clough Probably Elected Governor of Minnesota.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—The returns received by the Associated Press indicate the probable election of McKinley and Hobart, although returns are so meagre from a number of doubtful states that this conclusion can only be reached by an estimate based upon the gains and losses. The best estimate obtainable indicates that Maine and Vermont have gone for McKinley by large majorities; New Hampshire gives about 20,000; Massachusetts about 120,000 and Rhode Island and Connecticut proportionate majorities, all for McKinley; New York is estimated at about 250,000, and Pennsylvania is likely to reach the same figure, if not greater. Maryland has been carried for the republican candidate for president by a majority exceeding 20,000 and Delaware is confidently claimed, but apparently in dispute, although the plurality is not likely to exceed 1,000.

The returns from West Virginia are not sufficient to justify the claim of either party. Ohio has given a very large republican plurality and Kentucky is apparently assured as to the McKinley column, although later figures may not justify this claim. Tennessee seems to have been carried for Bryan, notwithstanding the confident assertions to the contrary of the republican managers, and the same is probably true of North Carolina, Indiana and Michigan, as well as Minnesota, indicate heavy republican gains, and a strong probability that they have gone for McKinley. Illinois will give McKinley over 100,000 plurality Nebraska and North and South Dakota are very close and still in doubt. Wyoming seems to have gone for McKinley. The returns from the Pacific coast states are too meagre to justify any claim respecting them. The states of Virginia, South Carolina,

WILLIAM McKINLEY.

Florida, Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, Arkansas, Missouri, Colorado, Nevada, Montana and Idaho may safely be placed in the Bryan column. The returns from Kansas and Texas are scattering and indicate nothing, although heavy republican gains are reported from Dallas and Galveston. At 12:30 later returns seem to indicate that West Virginia, Michigan and Kentucky can be added to the republican column.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—There was a confident crowd at national republican headquarters to-night, where the leaders assembled to receive the returns.

The news was late in starting, and for a time very slow in coming. The first message that did not deal with the condition of the weather, and was not more of an indefinite promise, than a statement of actual conditions, came from Donald McKay, the chairman of the Oregon state central committee. It was as follows:

"The city of Portland gives a majority of 5,000 for McKinley, and this insures the state for the republican ticket."

"This is a good one to start on," said Vice Chairman Payne, "but it's only the first raindrop of the coming deluge. We will have plenty more of the same by and bye."

Then ensued an hour of indefinite messages from all parts of the country, all of them, however, being of an encouraging nature to the republican cause.

Then came a message from Baltimore, saying that Chairman Rusk, of the democratic city central committee, conceded the city to McKinley by 15,000.

"That means Maryland for us, I think," said Mr. Payne quietly, "we are going now, and they will never catch us."

After this the telegrams came in a shower that seemed never to cease. The vote of a few precincts in a town here and a county there with, however, little of a substantial nature to ballast them.

A howl of delight went up from the crowd in the halls and rooms adjoining Mr. Payne's office when the telegraph instrument ticked off the measure from Chairman Ferry, of the Michigan state central committee: "Michigan is safe for McKinley by 50,000." This news was cried out of the window to the crowd below, and the howl in the halls above was a gentle whisper to the wild roar from the pavement.

The next chairman to report with definite assurances was Bixby of Minnesota, who said that his commonwealth wanted Mr. McKinley and wanted him to the tune of 30,000 to 35,000. This came in a few minutes before 8 o'clock, and Vice Chairman Payne at once sent out a telegram to Chairman Hanna in Cleveland and to the various state chairmen saying McKinley has carried Chicago by about 60,000. Returns from Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, Kentucky and Minnesota show that these states are safe for McKinley.

The report from Nebraska headquarters to the effect that Bryan would be beaten in his own state by a plurality of 13,000 gave the liveliest satisfaction and the cheers were loud and long when from the east came the news equally cheering. General Osborn, the secretary of the New York committee, sent word that McKinley had carried Maryland, West Virginia, by 25,000, and New York by 300,000. Then the west spoke up once more and Iowa sent word that Bryan would be 80,000 to the rear when final roll was called.

Then came the south with a promise of 20,000 votes to the good in Tennessee and a safe majority in the democratic stronghold of Virginia. At 9 o'clock Vice Chairman Payne sent the following message to Chairman Hanna: "We now claim Ohio by 50,000; Indiana by 40,000; Michigan by 40,000; Wisconsin by 8,000; Illinois by 100,000; Nebraska by 15,000; Iowa by 75,000; Minnesota by 25,000 and Kentucky by 20,000."

At 9 p. m. Chairman Campau, of the campaign committee, expressed great confidence in the result. "Returns from Ohio, Michigan and Indiana look very well for us," said he, "and especially from the two former states. The only thing that we are surprised at so far are the returns from Illinois outside of Cook county. These seem to indicate that the state has gone for McKinley. The returns from Baltimore look rather bad, but we expect the returns to be unfavorable."

At 10:30 p. m. reports received at headquarters indicated that of the doubtful states Michigan, Minnesota, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, Maryland and Nebraska had gone for McKinley. A telegram was received by Chairman Jones from the democratic state chairman of North Dakota, claiming that state for Bryan by 8,000 plurality. Chairman Jones, however, refuses to concede any of the middle western states to McKinley, with the exception of Illinois, which he conceded, but by a small plurality. He was confident that later reports would materially change the complexion of returns, which had so far been from strongly republican districts. National Committeeman Campau at that hour claimed Bryan had carried Michigan by at least 15,000 plurality and that returns from the mountain districts of Kentucky and Tennessee would show that those states had also been carried by the Nebraskan.

NEW YORK

New York, Nov. 3.—Based upon returns from one-fourth of the election districts above the Harlem, together with nearly complete returns from New York and Kings county, which includes New York city and Brooklyn, the plurality of McKinley over Bryan in the state of New York is estimated at 295,000.

New York, Nov. 3.—New York city for governor gives Black (rep.), 147,336, Porter (dem.), 147,174; Griffin (nat. dem.), 8,358.

So far, five democratic and three republican congressman are elected.

New York, Nov. 3.—Five hundred and thirty districts out of 3,354 election districts outside of New York and Kings county give Bryan 58,452, McKinley 97,373, Palmer 1,175. Same election districts in 1892 gave Cleveland 66,005, Harrison 80,880.

With only forty-two election districts in New York city missing, McKinley has a plurality of 19,270 over Bryan. Four hundred and forty election districts out of 629 in Kings county give McKinley 80,621, Bryan 57,845, Palmer 2,907.

Rochester, Nov. 3.—Seven voting districts, embracing the entire city of Rochester, give Bryan 12,385, McKinley 18,593. The same districts in 1892 gave Cleveland 13,135, Harrison 14,597. The net republican gain over 1892 is 4,540.

Auburn, N. Y., Nov. 3.—Returns from this city, incomplete, estimated, gives a republican majority of 1,800. Republican gain 1,000 over 1892.

New York, Nov. 3.—McKinley and Hobart carried the city. When results were so far known as to announce that Black (rep.), candidate for governor, had run behind the electoral ticket about 9,000, which indicates his having about one-half the plurality given McKinley, expressions of surprise could be heard. But such a result was naturally to be expected, on account of many democrats voting the republican national ticket, and refusing to vote the state ticket. Still more comment was made on the vote for Woodruff, for lieutenant governor, which pointed to his having about 3,000 plurality.

ILLINOIS

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Returns from over the state of Illinois indicate that McKinley has made big gains in proportion throughout the counties and towns as he has in Chicago, seeming to justify the claim of the central committee that the state has gone 100,000 republican. If the gains which are already reported hold up in the districts yet to be heard from, the majority, it is said, will exceed that figure. In the southern part of the state the gains have been heavy, and several towns and counties reported at 9:45 have given Bryan small majorities.

From all other parts of the state the dispatches received at state headquarters claim substantial republican majorities. In the dispatches, comparing the votes of Tanner and McKinley, the former has in most instances ran slightly behind the latter.

The figures, however, plainly show that Tanner's loss was no gain for Altgeld. Forman was the gainer. Comparisons made with the vote cast for Harrison in 1892 show very heavy gains in nearly every instance over the republican vote cast that year.

The republican state central committee has issued the following:

"The Citizens of Illinois—The republican state central committee congratulates you on your action at the polls to-day, which places the western empire state at the head of the list of honest and law-abiding commonwealths in the union. The election of Governor Tanner by a plurality equal to the wonderful strength of the idol of protection is a tribute to his worth and a declaration that the people of Illinois know he will give them a good administration. We possibly return a solid delegation to the lower house of congress to support the president-elect in a policy which will benefit the whole country and secure a legislation which will send to the senate a republican in place of General John M. Palmer. The verdict will be received with joy by the entire nation.

"The defeat of Altgeld and his heresy of antagonism to the courts was not less important than the rebuke to the free silver heresy. Illinois stands proudly before the civilized world as leading the advance guard in the battle for the great principles for which the republican party figures this.

(Signed) —C. P. Hitch.
Chairman.

OHIO

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 3.—If the ratio of gains thus far reported is maintained McKinley will carry the state by 102,000 plurality.

In the comparison of the vote with that of the last presidential election Ohio made unprecedented gains to-day for McKinley. In 1892 Harrison carried Ohio by an average plurality for republican electors of 1,072. The republicans have had phenomenally large pluralities in Ohio the past three years, commencing with McKinley's re-election as governor in 1893, while in 1892 the result was very close. The largest plurality ever given a republican ticket in Ohio was 24,000 for Garfield in 1880. While the democratic state committee makes no claims on the state to-night, the republican state committee expect the complete returns to break all former records. Chairman Kurtz, of the republican state committee, received a dispatch from the republican committee at Cincinnati at 8 p. m., saying that Hamilton county gave McKinley from 18,000 to 20,000, and other cities report large gains. He claimed Ohio by 75,000.

Chairman Kurtz has dispatches from several agricultural counties reporting gains so that very decisive results are predicted because of the rural districts, showing no such changes for Bryan as were claimed.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 4.—Thirty-three precincts of this state give McKinley 4,410; Bryan, 2,363. South Dakota is safely republican.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 3.—Returns from sixty county precincts in this state show slight republican gains. If the ratio keeps up McKinley will carry the state by from 2,000 to 5,000 majority. At 11:30 indications are that the legislature is republican. The whole state ticket is in doubt. Both parties claim the congressmen. It is probable reliable returns cannot be had to-night as the returns are very slow.

Yankton, S. D., Nov. 3.—The returns are very slow. Chairman Elliott of the republican committee, is sanguine that his estimate of 8,000 for McKinley will be low. It all depends upon the country precincts. The towns all give McKinley good majorities, but the country is liable to reduce the number to 5,000. About all that can be learned to-night will be the result on presidential electors. The ballots are so badly scratched that the count cannot be complete in any of the large precincts before morning.

PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, Nov. 3—Pennsylvania gives McKinley a plurality of over 300,000.

Pittsburg, Nov. 4.—At 1 a. m., reliable returns show that the republicans carry everything in Allegheny county except one democratic assemblyman. McKinley carries the county by about 45,000.

Including the two congressmen-at-large Pennsylvania to-day elected thirty congressmen. According to the latest returns received by the Associated Press, the delegation will be divided politically as follows: Republicans, 28; democrats, 2—the same as in the last congress.

NEW JERSEY

Newark, N. J., Nov. 3.—Chairman Murphy of the republican state committee claims the state by 35,000.

Chairman Price of the democratic state committee admits the state has gone for McKinley by 10,000.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 3.—The latest returns from the several counties of New Jersey, with proportional estimate for the unreported precincts, indicate that McKinley will carry the state by from 45,000 to 50,000. The republicans elect six of the eight congressman.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 3.—Revised estimates on the returns already in give McKinley New Jersey by 57,750; Bryan carries three counties by 3,550.

DELAWARE

Wilmington, Del., Nov. 3.—Returns from this city and all over the state are very slow. Those received from a few precincts in this city show slight republican gains on the presidential vote as compared with the vote for governor in 1894. It is believed, however, that the republicans elect the presidential electors by at least 1,000 majority, but Turnel (dem.) will probably be elected governor and Handy (free silver), congressman, is also probably elected.

MARYLAND

Baltimore, Nov. 3.—Indications are that McKinley leads Bryan by 30,000, 20,000 of which has been contributed by Baltimore city, heretofore a Gibraltar of democracy. Five republican congressmen have surely been elected.

Chairman Talbott of the democratic state central committee, to-night conceded Maryland to the republicans, but would give no figures.

Returns point to the following majorities for McKinley: Albany county 1,500, Carroll county 500, Garret county 700, Cecil county 200, Talbot county 250. This points to a republican majority of about 20,000 in the state.

Washington, Nov. 3.—Specials from Maryland points indicate that the second, third, fourth and sixth congressional districts are certainly republican, the first probably democratic, and the fifth in doubt.

Baltimore county outside of Baltimore gives about 1,800 majority for McKinley, a republican gain of 3,500 over 1892.

OREGON

Portland, Oregon, Nov. 3.—Returns from seven precincts in this state outside of this city give McKinley 654; Bryan, 366; Palmer, 79.

Chicago, Nov. 3.—Senator John H. Mitchell of Oregon telegraphed as follows to the Associated Press at midnight: "Incomplete returns indicate this county, including Portland, gives about 6,000 plurality for McKinley and Hobart. Clatsop county, including Astoria, 750. Partial returns indicate that the state is safe for republican ticket by 6,000 to 8,000."

Complete returns from 184 precincts outside of the city of Portland give McKinley 18,254, Bryan 18,154. Complete returns from the city of Portland give McKinley 10,171, Bryan 7,520.

TENNESSEE

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 3.—The republican national committee furnishes the following statement:

"The vote, if counted as cast, will give Tennessee for McKinley and Hobart, as well as to Tillman, for governor, but information from large counties in middle and west Tennessee, indicates frauds by democratic election officers on large scale. Have positive information that democratic sheriffs have been ordered to hold back the returns, which can have no other meaning than to make the democratic majority large enough to overcome the republican majorities in the counties where honest officials held the election.

—A. M. Tillman,
Secretary of Committee."

MICHIGAN

Detroit, Nov. 4.—It is evident that the republicans have carried Michigan by 40,000 to 50,000 and that Pingree (rep.) is elected governor by about the same majority.

Chairman Baker, of the democratic state committee, declines to make any statement at present, further than that the few counties from which he had received returns show average gains for the silver ticket of 1,500 over the democratic majorities of 1892.

The "Tribune" (free silver) concedes McKinley carries the state by 30,000 and believes that Pingree's vote will not run greatly behind McKinley's.

Detroit, Nov. 3.—Chairman Ferry, of the republican state central committee, claims the state for McKinley by 50,000 plurality, and ten out of the twelve congressmen. H econcedes two to be doubtful.

MASSACHUSETTS

Boston, Nov. 3.—McKinley's majority in Massachusetts is now placed at 124,000. Republican candidates for president and governor have carried every city and town for the first time in the history of the state.

TEXAS

St. Louis, Nov. 3.—Reports from sixty counties in Texas received by the chairman of the republican state committee indicate that McKinley has carried Texas. A heavy populist vote was cast for McKinley.

Dallas, Nov. 3.—Reports from sixty chairmen indicate that McKinley has carried Texas.

Galveston, Nov. 3.—The "Galveston News" concedes the election of Bryan and Sewall electors, also the election of Culberson, silver-democrat, for governor.

Dallas, Nov. 3.—Marion county complete gives McKinley 800 majority.

NEW JERSEY

Newark, N. J., Nov. 3.—Chairman Murphy of the republican state committee claims the state by 35,000.

Chairman Price of the democratic state committee admits the state has gone for McKinley by 10,000.

Trenton, N. J., Nov. 3.—The latest returns from the several counties of New Jersey, with proportionate estimate for the unreported precincts, indicate that McKinley will carry the state by from 45,000 to 50,000. The republicans elect six of the eight congressmen.
ad north Dakota

LOUISIANA

New Orleans, Nov. 3.—Returns coming slowly, but the indications are that the democrats have made a clean sweep, electing congressional delegation, and that Bryan has carried the state by not less than 30,000 majority.

The indications are that Bryan carries this city by 20,000 to 40,000.

NORTH DAKOTA

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 4.—Democratic National Committeeman Baker concedes North Dakota to McKinley and admits that the republicans have elected the entire state ticket, including congressmen.

Enough returns are in to justify the claims of the republicans that North Dakota has given McKinley 5,000 majority and that Johnson (rep.) has been elected to congress. The entire republican state ticket is elected. Advices from the northern portion of the state show heavy republican gains in democratic strongholds. Silver men claim that large numbers of voters were kept at home by the inclemency of the weather and bad roads in the country precincts where they expected a strong support. It is now safe to place the legislature in the republican column on joint ballot, which will insure the election of a republican United States senator to succeed Hansbrough.

Fargo, N. D., Nov. 3.—Election day in North Dakota was a stormy one with snow ranging from three inches to three feet in depth. The vote in the cities and villages was unusually large, while the county vote indicates that not over 80 per cent could reach the polls on account of the snow and mud. The returns as far as received are nearly all from towns and villages conceded by the republicans to be 60 per cent republican.

Grand Forks, N. D., Nov. 3.—Returns from the country are coming in very slowly, owing to the poor telegraph connections, caused by the storm which raged here all day. In the city the McKinley electors had a majority of 229 votes. A few small precincts heard from went the same way. It is probable that the county has gone to McKinley by 400. The state ticket has been cut badly and the vote for governor and congressman shows Biggs (rep.), 653; Richardson (dem.), 715; Johnson (rep.), 659; Burke (dem.), 687. Templeton for Supreme judge and Albert for treasurer on fusion ticket are running away ahead of the ticket in the precincts already in, and will carry the city by a big majority. Fisk (fusion), over Sorlie (rep.), candidates for district judge, came out of the city fight with 30 majority, and is surely elected. The entire state fusion ticket is believed to be elected tnd republican committee here made that estimate to-night. The fusion county ticket is elected except perhaps a few candidates. The vote on the constitutional convention is at the end of the ballot and to-morrow will be as early as an estimate can be made on it. W. A. Gordon is elected senator in the seventh district over F. J. Williams (fusion) and Arne Haugen (ind.), by a small majority.

MINNESOTA

St. Paul, Nov. 3.—This was a quiet election day and one of the most exciting ever known in Minnesota, the interest being deep and silent. Voters were early and the fullest vote ever known was polled. The majority of the votes in the cities were polled before 10 o'clock in the morning and by noon three-fourths of the vote was in.

In the country the vote was slower on account of the heavy roads, but it was polled early for all that and was unusually heavy. When the returns began to come there was further evidence of interest, for the judges in some of the country precincts, seeing that the registration was all polled, immediately counted the ballots and the result was known in seven precincts before the polls were officially closed.

In these precincts the indications were strongly towards McKinley, and although later returns cut down the proportion of gains slightly large gains were still evident and early in the night it became clear that the state had gone for McKinley, and that while Clough, the republican candidate for governor, was running behind McKinley, he would not be so far behind as to fail to win.

The returns in Ramsey county are coming in slowly. Unofficial reports from 38 of the 114 precincts in St. Paul give:

McKinley 13,376
Bryan 9,388

It is expected Ramsey county will give between 5,000 and 6,000 plurality for McKinley. Clough runs perhaps 1,000 behind McKinley. It is thought at headquarters of the republican state central committee that McKinley will carry Minnesota by about 25,000; Clough about 15,000.

When Chairman Bixby claimed 35,000 for McKinley at 9 o'clock and 15,000 for Clough, he said it was early to give figures, but he felt safe in that much, and the later reports seemed to carry out his entire claim.

As the night advanced the general result in the state became evident, but the exact figures were not to be had, as the earliest returns being from the more settled portions and from the cities, were counted favorable to McKinley and the republican ticket. Returns from some of the populist strongholds showed a great falling off in that party's vote and a corresponding increase in the vote for the republican candidates. St. Paul came to the front for the republican ticket. Governor Clough being especially strong in this city. He ran behind pretty generaly throughout the state, and it seemed to depend on how great the McKinley majority was whether Clough pulled through. Tams Bixby kept to his early claim, although the face of the returns seemed to indicate not less than 40,000 or 50,000, the country vote being used to discount the vote heard from. The congressmen on the republican ticket seemed to have pulled through in the first, second, third, fourth and fifth districts, while the sixth and seventh districts were considered close and doubtful by the republicans, and were claimed by the fusionists. In the seventh district, however, Congressman Eddy ran ahead of the national and state tickets and may pull through, although it will be a close matter if he does.

At 2 o'clock the republican majority on the national ticket seems to be nearly 40,000.

There is no doubt that McKinley has carried Hennepin county by a majority of several thousand. It looks as if the prediction of Charles A. Pillsbury made on the eve of election that McKinley would carry the county by at least 10,000 majority, would not come within a great deal of being verified. It looks more as if the rather conservative claim of Chairman S. B. Lovejoy of the republican joint committee would prove something like correct. Mr. Lovejoy thought McKinley would go out of Hennepin with about 4,500 majority.

In the towns of St. Louis Park, Golden Valley, Edina Mills, Robbinsdale and Richfield gives McKinley 584, Bryan 311. The same towns give Clough 468, Lind 403. In 70 precincts and towns McKinley has 1,286, Bryan 870, Clough 1,061, Lind 1,000. At this rate of gain, Lind will carry Minneapolis and Hennepin county, provided McKinley's majority is something in the neighborhood of 5,000. In the precincts above noted, Fletcher has 876, Owen 577, while Pratt in the city has 1,134, Ankeny 626.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Nov. 3.—Elmer E. Adams, chairman republican congressional committee, says the indications point to Congressman Eddy's re-election. He is running stronger than McKinley. Everywhere the returns are too meagre to make definite claims.

The Times estimates that the republicans have carried Minneapolis for McKinley by 3,500; by little or nothing for Clough; that the republicans elect their congressional, their county ticket, except sheriff, and their entire city ticket. Phillips is apparently elected sheriff over Holmberg, as he has been running a phenomenal race and making tremendous gains in republican precincts.

Crookston, Minn., Nov. 4.—The condition of the roads in the country prevent the possibility of getting returns promptly except from railroad towns. The figures obtainable to date from twelve towns give McKinley 1,086; Bryan, 1,198; Clough, 1,092; Lind 1,273; Eddy and McKinnon are both running ahead of their ticket.

Anoka, Minn., Nov. 3.—Anoka county will give McKinley a plurality of 625, Clough 650, Morris 605. Ten precincts out of sixteen give McKinley 945, Bryan 465, Clough 935, Lind 477.

Loren Fletcher has certainly been re-elected by a handsome majority over all and it is probable that he will go back to congress with all the way from 5,000 to 7,000 plurality. Twenty-six precincts last night gave him 3,226 against 2,313 for Sidney M. Owen, his opponent on the fusion ticket. The total vote counted in these twenty-six precincts is about one-ninth of that in the city, and on the same basis it would not be very difficult to figure out a handsome majority for Mr. Fletcher. The returns were taken indiscriminately as they came in to City Clerk Haney and all sections of the city were represented.

CONGRESS

Washington, Nov. 3.—At midnight Chairman Babcock gave out the following statement:

"The returns received up to this hour fully verify the predictions which have been made by the republican congressional committee. The fifty-fifth congress will contain nearly, if not as many, republican members as did the fifty-fourth. I believe that the senate will have a good working sound money majority and I feel confident that the decisive verdict of the people will bring into line many senators who have hitherto wavered in regard to the silver question and have cast their votes with the silver party. Mr. McKinley will have behind him not only a sound money house, but a sound money senate as well, both thoroughly committed to a protective tariff."

New York, Nov. 4.—At 1:30 a. m. the returns from the various states indicate the election of 209 republican congressmen and 85 democrats. The present complexion of the house is 224 republicans, 105 democrats, 6 populists and 1 silver party.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—The Chicago "Tribune" at 1:30 this morning claims that the next congress will stand: Republicans, 233; democrats, 111, and 13 independent, made up of populists and free silver republicans.

Washington, Nov. 3.—At 11 o'clock sufficient returns had been received at the republican congressional headquarters to show that McKinley had received 284 electoral votes and Bryan 69 votes, while 94 are in doubt.

The states voting for McKinley are: Connecticut, 6; Delaware, 3; Illinois, 24; Indiana, 15; Iowa, 13; Kentucky, 13; Maine, 6; Maryland, 8; Massachusetts, 15; Michigan, 14; Minnesota, 9; Nebraska, 8; New Hampshire, 4; New Jersey, 10; New York, 36; North Dakota, 3; Ohio, 23; Pennsylvania, 32; Rhode Island, 4; South Dakota, 4; Tennessee, 12; Vermont, 4; West Virginia, 6; Wisconsin, 12.

For Bryan: Alabama, 11; Arkansas, 8; Colorado, 4; Florida, 4; Georgia, 13; Idaho, 3; Louisiana, 8; Mississippi, 9; South Carolina, 9.

In doubt or returns very indefinite: California, 9; Kansas, 10; Missouri, 17; Montana, 3; Nevada, 3; North Carolina, 11; Oregon, 4; Texas, 15; Utah, 3; Virginia, 12; Washington, 4; Wyoming, 3.

HERE'S A COOL HOUSE.

A German Inventor Conceives a Scheme to Keep You Comfortable in Summer.

The house of the water tubes is the remarkable building freak of a German inventor, who claims that he has solved the problem of a constant temperature that may be regulated at will, and incidentally secured a structure that combines the elements of strength, comfort and beauty.

He first put up a skeleton of his house, the frame for walls and floors being of water tubing, connected with a pumping and boiler system in the basement. Around this skeleton, says the New York Journal, he put up his house in the ordinary way. The tubes were within the walls and between the floors and ceilings. In the summer time this tubing is connected with the regular water supply, and a steady stream flows through the pipes in the walls and under the floors, circulating under pressure, absorbing the heat of the walls and floors as it flows. During the long and severe winter the tubing is connected with the boiler, and water heated to 100 degrees forced through the circuit of pipes. The water at the outlet is found to have decreased to 40 degrees, the remaining 60 degrees having been distributed throughout the house. The speed of the circulation of water can be regulated so as to allow the fixing and maintenance of a certain temperature throughout the building.

BEWARE OF SOFT-SHELL CRABS.

Peculiar Parts to Be Regarded by Those Who Eat Them.

"There is no danger in eating soft-shelled crabs," observed an epicure, "if they are fresh, but they are poison if they are not. They should be well seasoned, and an extra lot of pepper put on them as a precaution, especially if the weather is very hot when they are eaten, or if they are eaten shortly before one retires. It is the habit of many persons to eat soft-shelled crabs at night time. I do not know but that they taste better then. It is somewhat dangerous to many to drink milk after eating crabs. Milk seems to develop the colic that follows eating soft-shelled crabs with some persons.

"Another thing that should be remembered, and that is that a sharp thunderstorm will kill soft-shelleld crabs, and even the hard-shelled crabs at times. Unless the soft-shelled crab had been cooked before the thunderstorm, I think the safer plan would be to decline to eat it. Under all other conditions there is no danger in partaking of them, for I do not think anyone would be criminal enough to cook a dead crab, hard or soft shell. The proper way to kill a crab is to throw him into a kettle of boiling water. I know that some people think this is cruel, but it is no more cruel than to stab them with a needle or kill them with chloroform, as I have known some extra sensitive persons to do."

IN OUR POCKETS.

We May Soon Be Able to Carry Gallons of Coffee.

In the forward march of science, nature's methods are being closely imitated in the laboratories of the synthetical chemist who has already been able to make an artificial quinine which contains most of the therapeutical properties of the real article. Two German chemists working in Berlin have just produced an artificially prepared caffeine, the alkaloid to which both tea and coffee owe their refreshing stimulating and analgesic properties.

As may be readily imagined, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, the process by which this has been done is exceedingly elaborate and costly, but the discoverers are not without hope that they will be able to simplify and cheapen it so as to bring it within the region of practical economics, as has been done with many of the coal-tar preparations which, though now exceedingly cheap, were very expensive when first produced.

Should the anticipations of these two gentlemen be realized a cup of tea or coffee will resolve itself into a question of minute pellets; one of the alkaloid, one of saccharine, and one of a highly concentrated milk, which will only need to be put into a cup of boiling water to be an efficient substitute for the real article.

Cost of a Cardinal's Hat.

The red hat of a cardinal costs him more money than kings pay for any except their very best crowns. Before accepting it the grateful prelate must make offerings to the the propaganda and to his titular church at Rome, and pay fees to a long list of officials, ranging from chamberlains at the vatican down to the cooks and sweepers and the soldiers of the Swiss guards. Indeed, the new cardinal has to pay fees at every step from the moment of his creation to the occasion of his receiving the red hat in public consistory, and when all is over and done finds himself out of pocket to the extent of $2,500 at least. If the cardinal is without means to defray the cost of his elevation, and if he is to reside in Rome, the vatican is ready to make him a loan to be repaid in installments out of his yearly allowances.

A LIVING MEAL.

A Fish That Watches Its Own Demolition Is a Japanese Delicacy.

The most dainty dish to the Japanese epicure is none other than a living fish. This horrible delicacy is served as follows: Resting on a large dish is a mat formed of rounds of glass held together by plaited threads, on which is a living fish with gills and mouth moving regularly; at its back rises a bank of white shreds resembling damp isinglass, but in reality a colorless seaweed, while the fish itself rests on damp green algae. In front is a pile of small slices of sawfish garnished with a radiating tuft of variegated bamboo leaves. A portion of the raw fish from the pile in front of the living victim is now placed on a saucer and passed to one guest, and so on with the rest until the pile is consumed. Then the carver raises the skin (which has been already loosened) of the living fish, and proceeds to take slice after slice from the upper part. The creature has been carved while still alive, the pile of flesh first served consisting of the lower half of the body. This has been done with such consummate skill that no vital part has been touched; the heart, the liver, the gills and the stomach are left intact, while the damp seaweed on which the flesh rests suffices to keep the lungs in action. The miserable victim looks on with lustrous eyes while its own body is consumed, probably the only instance of a living creature assisting as a spectator at its own entombment.

THE WAY IT ACTED.

It Was Quite a New Thing to Sam and He Was Bound to Try It.

A tailor named Sam Smith, from a country place, visited a large wholesale warehouse and ordered a quantity of goods. He was politely received and one of the principals showed him over the establishment. On reaching the fourth floor the customer saw a speaking tube on the wall, the first he had ever seen, says the Detroit Free Press.

"What is that?" he asked.

"Oh, that is a speaking tube. It is a great convenience. We can talk with it to the clerks on the first floor without taking the trouble of going downstairs."

"Can they hear anything that you say through it?"

"Yes, and they can reply."

"You don't say so! May I talk through it?"

"Certainly."

The visitor put his mouth to the tube and asked:

"Are Sam Smith's goods packed yet?"

The people in the office supposed it was the salesman who had asked the question, and in a moment the distinct reply came back:

"No; we are waiting for a telegram from his town. He looks like a slippery customer."

Texas.

In the Agricultural line, Texas leads all other states in the variety of its products. Cotton, corn and the cereals grow and are raised in every section of the state and in the central and southern portions sugar cane and sorghum are profitably cultivated. On the Gulf Coast two and three crops of vegetables are raised each year. Berries are shipped six weeks in advance of the home crop in the north. Pears, peaches, plums, oranges, figs, olives and nuts all grow abundantly and can be marketed from two to three weeks in advance of the California crops. Large quantities of rice are now grown.

If the land seeker, the home seeker and the settler desires to secure a farm larger than the one he occupies, on vastly more reasonable terms; if he wants more land to cultivate, a greater variety of crops to harvest, with proportionately increased remuneration, at a less outlay for cost of production; if he wants an earlier season with correspondingly higher prices; if he wants milder winters, all the year pasturage for his stock, improved health, increased bodily comforts and wealth and prosperity, he should go to Texas.

"MOTHER'S APRON STRINGS."

When I was but a verdant youth
I thought the truly great
Were those who had attained, in truth,
To man's mature estate.
And none my soul so sadly tried
Or spoke such bitter things
As he who said that I was tied
To mother's apron-strings.

I loved my mother, yet it seemed
That I must break away
And find the broader world I dreamed
Beyond her presence lay.
But I have sighed and I have cried
O'er all the cruel stings
I would have missed had I been tied
To mother's apron-strings.

Oh, happy, trustful girls and boys!
The mother's way is best.
She leads you mid the fairest joys
Through paths of peace and rest.
If you would have the safest guide,
And drink from sweetest springs,
Oh, keep your hearts forever tied
To mother's apron-strings.

SUGAR OR SALT.

BY RYE JOHNSON.

It was an old-fashioned house, in the suburb of an old-fashioned town. Nancy Moore stood upon the porch and watched the carriage until it disappeared around the bend near the bridge; then, turning, danced gleefully into the pleasant kitchen. "Miss Nancy Moore, 'Missus' for the day, if you please," she said aloud with a sweeping courtesy, though her own bright self was the only being visible. Then dropping into an easy chair, placed invitingly near an open window through which the sweet morning air came in delightful little puffs, she proceeded to plan her day's work.

"Mamma and papa are off for the day, and I may work my own sweet will while they are away. There's a rhyme to begin with, you silly thing. They will be gone until near five, and Cousin Hal is coming home with them to tea. I am to prepare that tea, or rather dinner. Let me see, what shall we have? There's beautiful bread, butter and honey for a foundation. I'll make some of those mock mince pies papa loves so dearly. Then a white cake and a cream layer, a mold of variegated apple jelly to please mamma, some lemon jelly to please Hal" (with a flush at mention of that name); "then there's potato salad, creamed potatoes, fried chicken — there — that will do, Nancy, you must remember the darling old papa is not rich."

Springing up, the happy girl took down a huge gingham apron from a convenient nail, and after donning it, rolled her sleeves above her dimpled elbows. The fire was rebuilt in the cookstove and the dampers were regulated. Then seizing a pan she ran lightly down the cellar stairs to the potato bin.

"Two cupfuls and a half of grated potato," she said, as she selected tubers, "and if I have any over I shan't put it in as I did last time. Strange how easy it is to spoil a nice dish by not following the directions implicitly."

Nancy sang merrily as she pared, washed and dried the potatoes. Then she proceeded to grate them coarsely, but unfortunately rubbed her thumb over the grater, thereby interrupting her song for a minute. But she was too happy to care for a wounded thumb and was soon warbling away in rivalry with the birds who were singing their October melodies preparatory to a flitting.

"Two cupfuls and a half of grated potato, two cupfuls of boiling water poured over them, one cupful of vinegar, one of molasses, one and a half of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of cinnamon and one of cloves. Butter size of an egg and a cupful of raisins," she repeated aloud, as she added each ingredient in turn. "There, that's all. Now for my crust and papa's mince pies are made."

In a very short time she had four dainty-looking pies in the oven, and the savory odor they emitted when she presently opened the oven door was a wonderful imitation of the original to say the least.

While her pies were baking, she prepared her mold of variegated apple jelly by peeling and cutting up a pound of sour apples and putting them to cook in a stewpan with three ounces of sugar, a cupful of water and the juice and grated rind of a lemon. When they were cooked to a pulp, she put them through a strainer and added an ounce of gelatine, which she had dissolved in a gill of water. Half of the apples she colored with a teaspoonful of cochineal, and then she filled her mold with alternate layers of the colored and uncolored fruit. When it was cold, she turned it out upon a glass dish, and it was to be served with a pint of whipped cream piled high on the center. This done, she made the cream for her layer cake. By that time the pies were done and the cake making followed.

Everybody has a favorite recipe for white cake, but perhaps Nancy's simple formula for layer cake may fill the need of some one whose papa like hers is "not rich:" "One cupful of white sugar," said she aloud—someway she had talked to herself all day—"one egg, half a cupful of saleratus and one of lemon. Now just flour enough for a running batter, and into the three tins you go."

Everything turned out splendidly, and Nancy felt a thrill of pardonable pride as she surveyed her finished pies, cakes and apple jelly.

"Now for my lemon jelly," she said, after a short rest in the easy chair by the window, and a few breaths of the pure fresh air that had a hint of frost in it. "I shall be all done by twelve and can climb the hill for those autumn leaves this afternoon."

Half an hour later a row of fancy molds of golden jelly stood upon one of the wide old-fashioned window sills. A brisk and energetic war was then waged with the various articles used in baking. Of course they were speedily vanquished; and when they were all put in their places in shining cleanliness, the tired yet happy girl hung up her gingham apron and rolled down her sleeves with a sigh of relief. The chicken was in the cool cellar all ready for the frying pan, the potato salad must be prepared later on, for it could not stand too long, while it would only take a few minutes to cream the potatoes while the chicken fried.

Nancy thought of all this while setting the table. The wide kitchen was also the dining-room, but it was built before people began cutting their houses up into so many rooms. The east end with its matting covered floor, windows full of sweet smelling plants, and daintily set table with its snowy linen and shining glass, formed so pretty and inviting a picture, no one need look further.

The girl gave a sigh of satisfaction as she surveyed her finished task, then covered all with a length of netting. An hour's rest, a lunch for which she brought a good appetite, and then she set out on her search for October treasures.

She was back long before the hour of her parents' return, and when they arrived she stood at the gate to receive them. Hal Dinsley was with them, as she had expected, and he thought he had never seen so fair a picture as she presented in her soft brown dress, a spray of belated goldenrod at her throat and another in her hair.

There was a happy look in her dark eyes, and a deep flush stained her cheek as he held her hand in greeting. But someway he did not like the "Cousin Hal," so freely bestowed. A nearer and dearer title would have been far more to his liking.

They were a little late, so made haste to prepare for the meal which Nancy said was waiting for them.

How everybody did enjoy that tea. It was not considered ill-mannered in that section, if anything was particularly good, to say so, and Nancy found herself loaded with compliments.

"Now, here's a pie a man can eat without a haunting fear of indigestion or nightmare," said Mr. Moore, as he deposited a generous triangle of the mock mince upon his plate. "You have excelled yourself, dear, they are splendid." Thus it was with everything until the cakes were passed.

Nancy sat with downcast eyes, blushing under Hal's admiring glances, when a sudden and complete silence on the part of all caused her to look up. Mr. Moore was evidently on the verge of a fit, or making a heroic attempt to suppress a laugh. She glanced at Hal. He, too, was smiling, despite all efforts to the contrary. "My dear," said her mother in a queer voice, "where did you get the sugar for your cake?"

Nancy looked surprised. "Why, after I used what was in the bucket, I opened that paper papa brought yesterday."

"Oh, by George, I thought so," and Mr. Moore burst into a ringing peal of laughter.

Mrs. Moore could not speak, but motioned for Nancy to taste her piece of cake.

She obeyed, but the expression of disgusted amazement on her face which followed was too much for Hal, and he joined the chorus. Nancy sat a moment the picture of mortification. Her beautiful cake, which rivaled the snow in whiteness, and her cream layer of which she had been so proud, were both made of salt!

But really, it was too comical, and a moment later she was laughing as heartily as any of them.

Well, the supper was a great success, notwithstanding her awful blunder; and ere she laid her head upon her pillow that night, Cousin Hal, who really was no cousin after all, had asked her to sweeten his cakes for all his life. And she had promised to do so, provided he furnished nothing but salt.

Nancy is now mistress of a home of her own, and has become a notable housewife. But she never uses the contents of a package without being sure whether it is sugar or salt.—Good Housekeeping.

ENGLISH DRINKING SONGS.

Fletcher's Happy Efforts and the Variations of It.

The best of the English drinking songs were written by the dramatists of the seventeenth century, men who trolled out their vigorous sentiments, linked sweetly together in flowing verse, without the smallest thought or fear of shocking anybody. Frankly indecorous, they invite the whole wide world to drink with them, to empty the brimming tankard passed from hand to hand, and to reel home through the frosty streets, where the watchman grins at their unsteady steps, and quiet sleepers, awakened from dull dreams, echo with drowsy sympathy the last swelling cadence of their uproarious song. Where there is no public sentiment to defy even Bacchanalian rioters and Bacchanalian verses cease to be defiant. What admirable good temper and sincerity in Fletcher's importunity:

"Drink to-day and drown all sorrow.
You shall perhaps not do it to-morrow;
Best, while you have it; use your breath:
There is no drinking after death.

"Then let us swill, boys, for our health,
Who drinks well loves the commonwealth.
And he that will to bed go sober
Falls with the leaf, still in October."

Upon this song successive changes have been rung, until now its variations are bewildering, and to it we owe the ever-popular and utterly indefensible glee roared out for generations by many a lusty tavern chorus:

"He who goes to bed, and goes to bed sober,
Falls as the leaves do, and dies in October;
But he who goes to bed, and goes to bed mellow,
Lives as he ought to do, and dies an honest fellow."

—Atlantic.

An Awkward Blunder.

It is well for a poet to have a slight technical knowledge of the subject he rhymes upon. If he hasn't the requisite knowledge himself he would find it to his advantage to look up a friend who can supply the deficiency. Eternal vigilance is the price of good poetry.

Now, here is a poet who tunefully sings a song of the cycle. It jingles and hath a pleasant rhyme, but when it stumbles on such lines as the following it conclusively shows that the singer could never have mounted his own Pegasus:

"Oh, that was the place," and she tossed her head,
"Where my saddle was out of gear."

You catch the blunder, don't you? Even a velocipede rider knows that no self-respecting firm of bicycle makers would ever dream of putting the gear into the saddle. But, perhaps the young girl didn't know, you know.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Just Like Monkeys.

The Behozy, who occupy a densely wooded country among the hills of Bemaraha, jump from tree to tree just like monkeys, and are not easily followed, inasmuch as their territory is exceedingly rocky. They are very timid, and it is said they die of fright when captured.—N. Y. Sun.

—The Romans had two games which were played with dice—tali and tessera. The latter seems, from the imperfect descriptions left, to have been a variety of craps.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

"Section 30."

Secretary Francis has rendered another decision in the case of Minnesota against William Craig, involving a 40-acre tract of land embraced in the "Section 30" case. The decision was on a motion filed by the state for a review of the departmental decision, in which Secretary Smith affirmed the commissioners' decision denying the state's application for a hearing to determine whether the land was swamp at the date of grant in 1860. The present secretary denies the motion very briefly. He says there is no specification of errors set forth, "clearly and concisely," as required by the rules of practice, and further, that the argument presented does not raise any new point of law or fact presented by the state which would warrant a review of the previous decision. This probably disposes of the contest over one of the most valuable tracts of land in Minnesota, which has been before the interior department in one way and another for the past ten years.

X-Rays.

Professor Fred Jones of the university department of physics, assisted by Instructer Zeleny, recently located bullets in the nether extremities of two patients of the St. Paul city hospital, using the x-rays. George Davidson, one of the patients, has carried a bullet in his leg for three years, but it has been impossible to locate it. The x-ray photograph showed it to be lying on the fibula on the opposite side from which it entered, three inches below the knee. Samuel Chase was shot only two weeks ago, but it was to locate the bullet, which the rays showed to have stopped at the head of the tibia in the edge of the knee joint. With the aid of these photographs there will be no trouble in successfully extracting the bullet

About Game.

Sam Fullerton, executive agent of the game commission, says that the effect of the law prohibiting shipment of venison out of the state has been to decrease the amount of poaching and in fact the number of deer killed by 35 per cent. This estimate appears to be a little high, though Mr. Fullerton has, of course, the best facilities for obtaining figures of a reliable sort.

Fullerton now proposes to go a step farther with his prohibitive legislation. He is of the opinion that this state cannot afford to sell any game or game fish outside its own borders. Moreover, that the only way to put the game supply where it ought to be is totally to prohibit the sale of all game, including trout and black bass.

Children Gardeners.

That the little gardeners among the Minneapolis school children have been industrious this year was proved by the report of the flower committee, which occupied the meeting of the Woman's Improvement League. Nearly 9,000 of these little citizens have worked with busy hands and willing hearts to make the city bloom with gay flower gardens, many of them working to overcome almost insurmountable difficulties encountered in poor soil and improper drainage.

The report of the flower committee, read by Mrs. F. H. Barnard, showed that 34 schools had been provided with seed this year and 8,500 children. Nine schools have won prizes for their rooms.

Change of Venue.

Judge Ives of Crookston has granted a change of venue in the suit for an injunction to prevent the continuance of of the state capitol, and Ramsey county has been selected as the place where the trial will be held. Attorney General Childs has served upon J. F. Kelly, attorney for the Kandiyohi, a demurrer to the complaint, alleging that it does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action.

Home Industrious.

The council of Duluth has instructed the board of public works to enter into a contract with the D. C. Prescot company of West Duluth for the construction of pumping engines for the new water plant, at a cost of $91,500. Nearly everything connected with the plant is to be made there, including the steel plate for the mains and the mains themselves.

News in Brief.

C. A. N. Rood, a grocery clerk at Crookston, was found dead in his room. He was epileptic, and while removing clothing from his trunk had suffered an attack, the lid falling upon his neck and choking him to death.

The local tax levy for Rochester shows a large decrease. The rate of 1890 was 31 mills. For next year the levy will be about 25 mills. This includes a small tax for a public library building.

The house of Mrs. Slais at Montgomery was burned, but nearly all the goods were saved. The house was insured.

Employes of the Duluth Street Railway Company have been notified of a 5 per cent cut in wages, to take effect Nov. 1. The company says it is due to decreased receipts. A cut of 10 per cent made three years ago, has never been restored.

A scow, loaded with stone for the abutments of the new Duluth-Superior bridge, sank in the bay near the Northern Pacific drawbridge. The one man on board was rescued with difficulty by the tug.

The store and postoffice at Randall was broken into. The robbers escaped, but are supposed to be tramps.

SUBSTITUTES FOR MONEY.

Odd Articles Which Are Used as Currency in Some Lands.

Eggs are about the oddest form of currency. Tschudi, a sober and painstaking Teuton, whose evidence is not to be questioned, declares that he found hens' eggs the only money throughout the Province of Janja, in Peru; that would be some 50 years ago. The people transmitted them by thousands to the provincial capital and made their purchases therewith at the rate of 40 or 50 to the dollar. We are to understand that the country people had little use for cash among themselves. In Manchuria brick tea and floss silk represent money; but the latter is going out of fashion. The usual brick of tea, 10 inches by 8 inches, 1½ inches thick, is equivalent in trade with Russians to 60 kopecs (80 pence). It is divided to make any change necessary. Russian merchants have tried to introduce a paper currency, the notes representing 60 kopecs and parts thereof, but Tartars reject them. When a brick gets discredited, that is, too much worn by long circulation, it is consigned to the teapot.

Several old travelers assure us that cats' eyes were employed in the great Indian kingdom of Vijianagar; elsewhere iron worked into the form of large needles, cakes of salt, or again, rays Nicolo Conti, cards inscribed with the name of the king. The Abyssinians also use cakes of salt in remote districts. Various negro tribes have a currency of iron hoes. Nongua shells were the money of the Indians in British Columbia, one string representing the value of one beaver. In Australia rough slabs of freestone, to be fashioned into hatchets, represented cash. The men who hawked these slabs from tribe to tribe were sacred, passing unharmed through all the districts, even at war. Marco Polo reckoned bank notes among the oddest substitutes for money; his account of the notes issued by Kublai Khan and his reflections on the system are peculiarly delightful. He tells of people in the great province of Thibet who use coral, but we must ask where they got it. Had he said turquoise it would have been quite intelligible, for the Thibetans still employ that stone at need. Elsewhere Marco speaks of "sprigs of gold" and "porcelain." In the latter case, also, an error may be suspected. Our word is adapted from the Portuguese, signifying "hogs' back," their name for cowry shell.

Excepting regular coinage, no "circulating medium" has a vogue to compare with that of the cowry. Perhaps it would not be inexact to say that every people in whose territory the shell exists once used it for cash. But this seems very strange, opposed to common sense and political economy, when we hear the supply is unlimited. Over thousands of miles of coast a man can gather a sackful in an hour. But the fact is indisputable, however it be explained. The value fluctuates enormously, of course, over such an immense area, but in a very rough way, we believe, African traders used to estimate 1,000 cowries at a shilling. Anglo-Indian traders had no need to make a reckoning, probably, for the shell, though very largely current among the natives, was never reckoned into their transactions. Mungo Park counted 250 cowries to the shilling in his day and in the countries where he traveled.

But the "bar" was Mungo's currency. In the beginning it was literally a bar of iron imported from Europe, but as the trade developed it became merely a word of value. Twenty leaves of tobacco made a "bar," a gallon of spirits a "bar," and the natives would not willingly allow any fluctuation in quantity, whether more or less. If an energetic newcomer tried to push business by offering more rum or tobacco to the "bar," he was regarded with suspicion; no old hand ventured to offer less. In all parts of Borneo, probably, one may still hear prices reckoned in brass guns—that is, cannon; but a man who has transactions of that importance will instantly translate the sums into dollars at the present time. There was an age when ten or twenty pounders did actually pass from hand to hand. The Malay empires were rich then, and made such a show as astonished the early navigators. But for a long while past, even in the dominions of the sultan of Bruni, brass guns have been merely an expression of value, the article itself being practically non-existent. There are great stores, however, quite useless now, at Bruni, which was the mint, so to speak.

Not dissimilar is the practice of the Red Karens in Burmah, who reckon large sums in kyeezees, or drums of copper; but they always had a currency of silver ingots. The drums are peculiar, however, in the respect that their value does not lie in the weight of metal or even in the excellence of workmanship, though they are adorned with figures of birds, animals and fish. It is the quality and volume of sound they emit which decide their worth; objects not visibly differing may be estimated at £5 to £50. One might think that connoisseurs would disagree upon the quality of the sound, but a drum, no doubt, is more easily valued in that respect than any other musical instrument. Since British trade has approached their territories, however—the Red Karens are not yet annexed, we believe — and the enterprising Chinaman has permeated it, this picturesque usage is dying out fast. The kyeezees are as much reverenced as ever, but they sell for prosaic dollars, though taste still asserts itself by putting a very fancy price upon an article specially melodious.—London Standard.

Cynical.

Those who have reached a point in their journeying on a wrong road where they have lost their pride in a good name are in a very dangerous position. They are not far from the moral case of a certain speculator of whom one acquaintance said to another:

"I don't see how he can do as he does; he does not seem to think much of his reputation."

"Well," answered the other man, "I don't see how he could think much of it—it's so bad!"—Youth's Companion.

Celery Salad.

Well wash the celery and keep it in the cool till wanted; then dry on a cloth and cut in thin-sliced sticks, 1½ inches long, or in short julienne shapes. Season it with pepper and salt, oil and tarragon or other vinegar and chopped shallot; mix well together and serve in a salad bowl. Garnish with slices of tomatoes or beetroot, cut in fancy shapes and seasoned like the celery.—N. Y. Ledger.

SUFFERING SISTERS.

Curious Coincidence.

From the Express, Aurora, Ill.

"Two years ago," said Mrs. Harry Rhodes, whose home is at No. 1 Blackhawk Street, Aurora, Kane County, Illinois. "My life was one of misery because of rheumatic affections which the most skilled physicians of this city were powerless to cure. My afflictions were of a sciatic nature which affected not only my hips but both legs and feet to such a degree that I did not dare to step upon the ground for fear of bringing on the most excruciating pains.

"The several physicians to whom I applied were powerless to aid me, and I was in a very despondent condition and almost without hope. When one day I noticed a testimonial in one of our daily papers from a woman who had been cured of rheumatism by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Sanders & Sherer's drug store is just across the street from my husband's place of business, and I asked him to call there and purchase a box of pills, which he did.

"That first box of pills worked wonders for me. I might almost say that the first half dozen produced a very noticeable effect, for that night I obtained sleep without the aid of opiates, and with the second day the pains grew less and less until they departed altogether, never to return. I continued to take the pills, in the prescribed doses, for several weeks when I found myself entirely cured.

"My sister, Mrs. Bert Scott, whose home was at Duluth, Minnesota, was troubled with rheumatic difficulties similar to mine. Her trouble was the principal reason for the removal of the family to Chicago, where Mr Scott is in the plumbing business, and their home is now at 15 Teale Court. They expected the atmosphere of Illinois to assist in a cure which the physicians could not bring about in the climate of Superior, but my sister became no better, with the very best of medical attendance, until I recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to her. As in my case they worked a speedy cure, and Mrs. Scott is now entirely free from all rheumatic disorders, and she is as conscientious as I am in her praises of the remedy which has done so much to make the lives of two families far happier than they were two years ago."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

THE WELL-MANNERED BOY.

He Is Simply Charming, But Altogether Too Scarce.

Is there anything more charming in this world than a nice, well-mannered boy? I don't want to be hypercritical, but I must add, as I am a strictly veracious woman, that they are, alas! as rare as they are charming., says the Philadelphia Record.

Such a boy, the well-mannered genius—thank heavens!—I met not long ago, and my instant thought was what a fine mother his must be. I know her by reputation, a celebrated actress, who has carefully shielded her private life from the public, and my estimation of that woman immediately arose 50 degrees. None but a woman of culture, refinement and true nobility of character could rear a son whose every lightest word showed respect for women, innate good breeding, and, best of all, in this day of affected skepticism among the jeunesse doree, an honest belief in the existence of good among men and women in general.

And I couldn't help thinking, sorrowfully, as I chatted with this delightful boy, how few mothers really understand their metier. It's the most responsible work in the world, that of motherhood, and is entered into with the least training and preparation. Women are proverbially proud, vain, their masculine critics say, and I wonder whether they realize how they are reflected in their children? If they did, would they not make a greater effort to have reflected only their good points, their gentleness, breeding, and, above all, their faith in human nature?

AN ARIZONA MUMMY.

Once a Very Rich Person of the Ancient Aztec Nation.

An Indian mummy has been found in Arizona, near Prescott, that is believed to have once been one of the great men of the Aztecs, says the New York Journal. It was found by John F. Blundy, who communicated the facts to George F. Kunz, the New York diamond expert, says the Chicago News.

Beside the mummy was a basket filled with a half peck of torquoises. With the Aztecs green was a sacred stone and wealth was gauged generally by the number of green stones the person owned. Every man's treasure in those days was buried with his bones, and neglect to do this was regarded as highly sacrilegious. For the nourishment of the departed soul a few ears of corn were added.

The torquoises Mr. Bundy found were in the form of beads. These the Aztecs firmly believed saved the wearer from fevers, serpents' bites and diseases.

The mummy is a singular specimen, altogether unlike the Egyptian variety. The skin is dried firmly over the bones, giving it a withered appearance. This is due to the rare air in Arizona, which dries but seldom has the decomposing effect of our atmosphere.

WHAT TO SAY.

A List of Remarks to Make About the New Baby.

One is always expected to say something when looking for the first time on a new baby, says the Cincinnati Enquirer, and as it is neither kind nor safe to tell the truth and say that the little red, podgy creature doesn't look like anything, we give a list of unpatented and uncopyrighted remarks to be used on such occasions:

"Isn't he sweet? He looks like you!"

"I think he's going to look like his father!"

"Hasn't he dear little fingers? Do let me see his dear little toes!"

"Isn't he large!"

"Isn't he a tiny darling!"

"How bright he seems!"

"Did you ever see such a sweet little mouth?"

"Isn't he just too sweet for anything!"

"The dear little darling! I never saw so young a baby look so intelligent!"

"Do, please, let me hold him just a minute!"

Any and all of these remarks are warranted to give satisfaction, just as they have been giving satisfaction from time immemorial until the present day.

Original Languages of Europe.

It is said by philologists that there are 13 original European languages—the Greek, Latin, German, Slavonic, Welsh, Biscayan, Irish, Albanian, Tartarian, Illyrian, Jazygian, Chaucin and Finnic.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Left Destitute!

Not of worldly goods, but of all earthly comfort, is the poor wretch tormented by malaria. The fell scourge is, however, shorn of its thong in advance by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, its only sure preventive and remedy. Dyspepsia, biliousness, constipation, rheumatism, nervousness and kidney complaints are also among the bodily afflictions which this beneficent medicine overcomes with certainty. Use it systematically.

DELANO, FRIDAY, NOV. 6, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—J. D. Young lost both of his horses lately from preumonia.

—Several hunting parties are contemplating visits to the northwest in search of deer.

—Trains come late from the west in the morning, quite often. Snows are reported in Dakotas.

—From the amount of lumber being handled here people must be doing some building even if times are hard.

—It is reported that there are 19 applicants for the position of Post Mas- at Delano. All the returns are not yet in.

—H. M. Doyl has a fine car load of apple for sale at the Renswick building in Delano. He sold a load here last year.

—Quite a number of hogs are being shiped to the cities so soon. These cold frosty mornings bring out the pork to market.

—Tomorrow, Saturday Nov. 7, will probably be one of the largest Fair Days of the season. Everybody will be in looking after election news.

—The Ladies Aid apple society held at the M. E. Parsonage Saturday evening was well attended and everybody enjoyed the pleasant evening's entertainment.

—Voting under the Australian system seems quite slow; crowds of men packed the stairway at the City Hall for hours at a time waiting for a chance to vote.

—The Republican rallies that were to be such immense affairs on saturday and Monday evenings were rather lightly attended owing Somewhat to the inclement weather.

—Election day opened up cold and disagreeable; the ground was frozen, but along towards noon the sun shown out a little from behind the clouds, making things more cheerful.

—Election returnes from Watertown were received by telephone at Delano about 7 P. M. The question is how did the Watertown people get a count so early in the evening.

—John Lind Candidate for Governor on his way to Cokato Monday addressed a fair sized audience at the depot while the train stopped. He made a good impression on his audience.

—F. F. Chancellor says if he don't emigrate to Mexico he will try to be around and work harder than he did this time for free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold at a ratio of 16 to 1, in 1900.

—Delmont Gould's threshing crew returned Monday from near DeGraff where they went to thrash. The weather is getting rather severe for that business, especially on the bleak prairies, where the Northwesters have full sweep.

—Be sure and see those apples that DOYL has for sale before all are gone. Going at wholesale prices.

—Owing to the bad roads and wet weather for a few days the fore part of the week there was a considerable of a scarcity of wood in our village. Owing to the extortionate prices demanded for coal, wood has had an upward tendency in price. Should the Lord see fit to temper our weather as last winter, the coal barans will doubtless soon come down on the price of coal.

—Some of the folks accuse I. Gutzwiller of having voted for John Lind for Governor. When he went to vote the Judge, Wash Rader, got the tickets mixed and put the county ticket into the national ticket box and the national ticket into tht county ticket box. Mr. G. was considerably kind of vexed about it.

—A collection was taken up and the telegraphic reports of election received at the Meister House. Numerous discussions were had and alternatley, the Bryanites and the McKinleyites would shout their appreceation of the returns from different states. Reports were far from satisfactory up to the time when most of the crowd dispersed near midnight. Next day instead of coming no more was heard.

—The dailies claim that the gold has started out of the banks again to circulate among the people. One of our citizens informs us that our local bank claims not to have received notice to let any out yet. We would advise our readers if they should see any not to do like the Irishman who, on arriving in this county and going up from the wharf saw a gold dollar on the ground hunched his partner and called his attention to it, and when he was going to pick it up, cried out "Never mind it Mike lets go where they are thicker"

—Our village has, for several years, been without a literary society and people are feeling the need of one. It is sometimes very inconvenient, and humiliating to be obliged to admit that there is not a man in town, or at most only a very few who could make a respectable or profitable showing in a convention where our village wished to be represented. Nothing aids a man more in this line than the ordinary, old fashioned debating society; Our town needs one. Let us begin early this winter and perhaps we can secure a few public speakers from abroad to entertain and instruct us during the winter.

Personal.

C. G. Rosen visited Minneapolis Wednesday.

John Burneck, of Minneapolis, has returned to Delano for a season.

—John Cunningham, of Minneapolis, gave us a call this afternoon.

E. J. Swedebeck came home from Hibberling Monday in time to vote.

A. B. C. Dickinson, of Rockford, was a Delano business visitor Wednesday.

Mr. Larson, formerly of Benson spent last week in town, and gave us a lift in the office.

Prof. Hawker and Miss Gray were among Delanoites spending Sunday at Minneapolis.

Albert Sosnick came up from the Cities the other day, and left for Montana Wednesday night.

J. Z. Cochran, W. H. Cutting, William and Eb Zeibarth were among candidates in town Monday.

Fred Brandes, of Leudeman, was shaking hands with Delano friends, Wednesday. He made us a pleasant call.

Miss Grace O'Hair spent a short vacation at home the fore part of the week, returning to the "U" Tuesday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. E. E. Shrader, of watertown have returned home from Philadelphia where they have been for a few weeks past.

M. A. O'Hair and Swan Erickson drove to Maple Plain Saturday morning to hear John Lind. He did not come. They heard Owens and Chaffee.

Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Halgren, of Watertown, took the Tuesday morning train west, to visit their son Guy, at Richmond. They are to return home Saturday.

County Cullings.

Hotel registers will show the names of so many candidates for office as has lately ornamented their pages.

The muddy roads, dark nights and muddled up ticket, caused considerable delay in the receipt of election returns at the county seat.

The entire Republican ticket appears to have been elected. The Democrats and Populists attempted to fuse but made a muss of it so far as county and legislative tickets were concerned. The fusion was very unsatisfactory to all parties.

The Democratic nominees for Sheriff and Coronor got elected.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize of fered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

TURN IT DOWN.

FROM THE PRISON MIRROR.

If urged to lift the glass that tempts,
In city grand or humble town,
Be he that tempts the king or czar,
Quick, turn your glass and set it down!

If those who ask you vex and tease,
Perhaps condemn you with a frown,
Be firm; mind not the laugh and sneer;
Quick, turn your glass and set it down!

If health you crave and strength of arm,
Would keep your hardy hue of brown
Nor have the scarlet flush of sin,
Quick, turn your glass and set it down.

If in your trouble others say,
"In sea of drink your sorrows drown,"
Look out lest drowned the drinker be!
Quick, turn your glass and set it down!

Cold water, boys, hurrah, hurrah!
Will help to health, wealth, and renown.
If urged to give these treasures up,
Quick, turn your glass and set it down!

THE Palmer Buckner democrats are hurrahing with the McKinleyites. They Bucked their party and now claim the Palm of victory.

MOST all the papers about here are commenting on the fact that allthough Ramsey, Hennepin, and Wright counties went republican each elected a democratic Sheriff; and Anoka another republican county had a tie for that office. It is kind of strange why the Republicans of four adjoing counties want democratic Sheriffs.

THE St Paul dispatch says: "If the republican electors of Wyoming are counted in, one of them would be a woman, and it will be the first time a woman ever acted as an elector to choose a president of the United States." And yet republican papers have been boasting that we are to have no "peticoat government."

IT is really amusing, if it were not a matter of such vast importance to read the inconsistancies of the gold standard press of the country. Some of them are claiming that the free silver sentiment is everlastingly crushed out of American citizens. Before election they claimed the free silver sentiment amounted to nothing anyway; now they claim to have waged one of the hardest fights and gained one of the greatest victories the country ever knew.

MCKINLEY is said to be casting about for a cabinet, one member to be from Minnesota. If he is half as generous as some of our Gopher Democrats he will give a position to one of the bolting Democrats who helped save the State to Knute Nelson, Bill Merriam and others two years ago by defeating Gen Becker; and who this year aided in saying the same machine by putting Daye Clough, and McKinley into office. These National Democrats have landed themselves in among not the best Republicans in the state; but what the rank and file of the G. O, P. is not at all proud off.

One Lesson Enough.

Special to the Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—"While I have not looked over the returns srom Minnesota in detail, I am well satisfied that a very large proportion of sound money democrats voted for McKinley and Clough," said Judge Thos Wilson today. "It was that way all over the country. I do not think our party will be troubled again with free silver agitation."

With all due respect to Judge Thos. Wilson we must differ from him if he thinks a single gold standard the thing for America, also if he thinks that the people will sit idly down and allow the contraction of currency and appreciation of standard money to progress at the ratio it has been doing and say nothing. Every man that has a vote will surely know by the time two years rolls round how to use it for the best interests of the contry and the people in it. In case the money powers cease to keep up the good times they are now allowing us to enjoy for a short season, people can easily see that it is in the hands of those holding the money to manipulate matters to such an extent as to make times about what they agree to have, and being fully apprised of this fact they will not fail to be at the polls, thoroughly posted how to cast their ballots to rid the land of such a power, wielding such an influence against the peace and dignity of the country. They will vote so nearly unanimously for a sufficient amount of standard money as to be beyond the power of corporate greed to control. There is danger that money will even be a drug in the market when the reaction does come. So great will be the feeling that more money must be had that it is possible to overdo the thing and vote paper money in amount to meet all government obligations and involve the country in debt.

The Elephant.

The Republican party has long had as a symbol the Elephant. Now they have on hands the biggest Elephant they ever had. They have prevailed upon the people to elect McKinley with his "bill" President of the United States. They have promised the people protection and prosperity. They have already begun to prove to them that they were honest by turning the gold loose upon the farmers, wherever they have an opportunity. They are trying to get up lots of "confidence" by this means, even before they have had an opportunity to make a single "protection" law. Soon as Congress meets they are to begin on scheme to "Take the Government out of the banking business" to call in Greenbacks and issue some other form of paper more favorable to the banking business of others than to Uncle Sam.

They know, although they took so much pains to make voters believe otherwise, that the money question was, and is now, the leading question of the country; they know this is what they must fight with for four years, the Elephant on their hands. It will tax all their ingenuity, with the assistance of the disaffected democrats to fool the people into believing they are honestly working for the best interests of the country when they go to "taking the Government out of the banking bussiness," and issuing throug banks a lot of paper notes redeemable in gold. They know, just as well as we, the poor people, know, that a man's vote is not very good when he has it out for more than he is worth. They know too that the same is true of a government. And Mr. Carslile, Secretary of the Treasury, recently gave out a statement that the per capita of gold in this country was $8.41, while there was $8.77 in silver and $5.37 in paper. It looks as if, according to a later statement, the silver will have to be redeemed in gold if asked, the United States had out about all the obligations it can meet with the $8.21 per head of gold held by the government and people. Between making legal tender dollars of silver and of gold both, one as good as the other for all debts and making a lot of paper redeemable in gold, which we have not, it looks as if bimetallism, as provided for by the Constitution of our country would certainly have the approval of all patriotic people.

Speak English.

Our country is populated by a variety of peoples. The Eastern man, or Yankee is here: the man from Ohio, Indiana, Illnois, or from Virginia, Kentucky or other parts of the United States. Most of these speak English. We have also the English and Irish from across the ocean they too talk the language of our country. The German, Pole, Austrian; the Frenchman, the Rusian, the Norwegian, Sweed, Finlander and Dane live here. Many of them have learned our language and can converse with each other or do business in English, others seem to hold onto the customs of their native lands. They dress as they did in the old country, they keep up the old way of doing business, and use their mother tongue even at home. Their children many of them grown to manhood are unable to read our language; they may talk it fairly well. But if they want to have anything to do politically, they are at once left out as being unable to speak and read English. If they have business in court they must be at the mercy of an interpreter, and don't always get their side throughly understood.

How much better it would be if all citizens of this country could talk, and read, and write the common language of the land. How much more satisfactory would elections be were people who vote, to read more carefully their ballots and know what they are voting for, not having to depend on some one else to tell them; and in many cases getting them wrong.

Children should be sent to school at an early age and taught English; they should be encouraged at home to speak it, to read and write it. Every family should take one or more newspapers printed in English. The children should read them and know what is going on about them, and the important events all over the world. They should not be confined to papers printed in a foreign language. They can only become truely American citizens by doing what they can to Americanize themselves, their families and neighbors as much as possible. As soon as anyone in the family can read English comprehensively, two papers at least, of opposite political faiths should be made use of. So that both sides of the political questions that agitate our country at times can be understood.

Every voter should be able to take care of himself at the polls. He should know from the papers read before hand what questions are to be settled, and what men he wishes to vote for. He should not be obliged to depend on a few lines of instructions printed on the ballot in his mother tongue to teach him at the polls how to vote.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov., 6, 1896.

The democrats are up against the hard wall of defeat again. True, the defeat isn't as overwhelming as the McKinleyites tried to make the country believe it was, but still it is defeat. Democrats do not like defeat any better now than in the past nor any better than the republicans did four years ago, but there are numerous reasons which serve to make the defeat of Bryan especially aggravating, not the least of which is the knowledge that his election would have been so easy had the gold democrats given him as loyal support as the silver democrats gave to Cleveland in his three campaigns. Still, there is very little bitterness expressed by democrats. They made their fight against the greatest odds any party ever fought against and came so near winning that they frightened some of the other fellows almost to death, and, being good citizens and thorough believers in the rule of the majority, they are generally disposed to accept the result philosophically and to wait for time to even up things, as it generally does, in politics and in everything else.

Although it is too early, owing to the absence of full and authentic returns, to pass full judgment on the extent of the defeat, it is known that a majority of McKinley electors have been elected and probable that a majority of the popular vote has been registered against the free coinage of silver; it is certain that a majority of the next House will be anti-silver republicans, and feared that enough legislatures have gone republican to elect enough Senators to wipe out the silver majority in the Senate and give that body over to the control of the anti-silver republicans. Granting that these probabilities will all turn out to be facts, they are not so terrible, from a democratic point of view, as they at first glance appeaa to be, In fact, if the democrats could not have the Presidency and both branches of Congress it is much better for the future of the party—let it not be forgotten that the democratic party is the one deathless political party that this country has known—that the republicans should have them all. With the executive and legislative branches of the government in their hands there can be no shirking of responsibilities on the part of the republicans. They have promised the country a renewal of prosperity, if they were restored to power. Now that is exactly what the country stands most in need of and what the democratic party hoped to accomplish. A majority of the voters of the country have decided that the republicans should have another trial. All right, let them go ahead and give us prosperity as soon as possible. If they do it, the voters will be sure to give them full credit for it, and they may be sure that the democrats will be too anxious after their long period of "hard times" under previous republican legislation and policy to get a little of that prosperity for themselves to raise any obstacles to prevent its coming or to drive it away after it arrives. If they fail, as they have done before, the voters will see their mistake and will give the democratic party a chance to see what it can do towards making the country permanently prosperous. instead of spasmodically prosperous with long intervals of "hard times" between.

Many things might be said about the methods pursued to secure McKinley's election, but as the case is analogous to that of some of our unscrupulous rich men who have no hesitation about violating moral laws to get money but are almighty careful not to violate the criminal laws, it is probably best to let them go without comment.

Since the election there has been consider able talk about a reorganization of the democratic party upon some basis which will bring together in one organization all these who believe in the fundamental principles of the party. Such a movement properly conducted is worthy of all commendation, but if it is intended merely as a means of restoring to leadership the men who failed the party in its hour of need it will be certain to receive the condemnation it deserves, from the rank and file of the party—the men who bore the brunt of the battle just lost. There may be two opinions as to the need of a reorganization of the democratic party, but it is certain, to my mind, and I think to that of the most of those who are familiar with the workings of the campaign just ended, that the democratic party needs organization very badly in many States. That is one of the few things that the party might find that it would be advantageous to copy after its opponents. Had the democratic party been organized as it should have been Senators Jones and Faulkner would have had more trustworthy information from several States than they were furnished with, and had they known the real situation in several states that were lost they might have taken steps that would have saved them and possibly have changed the result of the election It is the custom to sneer at party machines in some quarters, but for all that they are necessary adjuncts of most successful campaigns.

McGary Again.

INDEPENDENCE

EDITOR BUFFALO GAZETTE:—And it came to pass that on the 11th. month and the third day of the month 1896, that Mark Hanna, Bill McKinley and Co. were elected President of the United States of America and now in the imagination of many the lights are burning brighter upon the altars of liberty. The golden calf is perched upon the banner of liberty with the banking Jews as an accompaniment and the tail of the British Lion as an appendage. If trust, combines and money monopoly be the strength, and warp and wasp and woolf of this Government. Then the Constitution of the United States is a covenant with death: a league with hell, and the flag a floating lie, and the blood that flowed on Bunker Hill, Lexington, and Concord was shed in vain.

When Wall Street and England have overthrown capital in this country and the lands of the poor have been confiscated and poverty, like a ghost stands at their threshold. Then there will be a time of repentance such as the world never knew. Thousands of men went to the polls on the third of November and voted for William Jennings Bryan were as honest in their convictions as were Ridley and Lattimer when they were burned to the stake, but they said we have this day kindled a fire in England that will never go out, yet we have been called anarchests and repudiators.

Time will be the only medium that will reveal to history and future generations who have been anarchists and repudiators, When they come to read the hand writing on the wall their knees will smote together as did Belshazzars of old. They chose to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season rather than become their own custodians of a free and untrampled goverment. Let the waters and the sighing winds sing requiems of the past but once more give us back that patriotism that burned in the bosom of our fathers of seventeen seventy-six.

Some say now the election is over let us be friends. But time cannot erace the memory of the past when such men as Gen. Sickles, Corp. Tanner and others go around the country at a time of a grand army meeting (as they did in this state) holding political meetings and preaching that all who belong to the so called free silver craze were repudiators, anarchists, and disloyal to their country. Of such we say hell has her full quota, of such men and patriotism.

Groyer Cleveland, John Sherman, and John G. Carlisle have bargained this country away, now it is left to Mark Hanna and Bill McKinley to finish the contract

Politics has strange bed fellows sometimes. When you can make a laboring man, a farmer, and a producer believe that it is to his interest to vote for trusts, combines, monopolies and the national banking system of this country, then you have gained your point by appealing to his prejudice. The truth of it is our national banking system is a kind of a board of trade gambling upon the currency of our country. They produce nothing. But the producer of all wealth must pay interest on the bonds that gives the privileged class the right to do a national banking business on those bonds issued by the government, on which the individual holder pays no taxes. I appeal to justice and ask if this is right?

In October 1895 the American Banker's Association held their 21 st. annual convention at Atlanta, Georgia, and under date of March 23 rd. 1896. This organization sent to the bankers of this country the following circular.

The American bankers association 2 Wall Street and 90-94 Broadway New York, March 23rd. 1896.

To the bankers of the United States. At a meeting of the executive council af the American Bankers Agsociation held in this city on Mareh 11, 1896, the following declaration was made by a unmanimous vote.

THE EXISTING STANDARD OF VALUE.

The executive council of the American Bankers Association declare, unequivocally, in favor of the maintainance of the existing gold standard of value, and recommend to all bankers and to the customers of all banks the exercise of all their influence as citizens in various states to select delegates to the political convention of both these "Great Parties" who will declar unequivocally in favor of the maintainance of the existing gold standard of value.

Your influence is earnestly repuested to give practial effect to this action,

EUGENE H. PULLEN, President.
JAMES R. BRANCH, Secretary.
JOTEPH HENARIX, Chairman.
Executive Council.

Here is a sample of the national Banking system, and this is only a forcast of what is to follow under the incoming administration.

Now, Mr. Editor there is much more that could be said upon this question bnt argumemt in the past political campaign has been likh throwing pearl before swine. Some think we have once more got home rule and the country is safe. But I fear the incoming administeration will be much as the present one only more so like a rubber string can be stretched to fit anything that comes along.

Gen. Jackson once said, and truthfully too, that the Bible was the foundation, the bulwark on which rested all republican forms of goyernment. We haye been, beaten but we stand by our honest convictions just the same. JOHN H. MCGARY.

We suggest to our readers that, as soon as possible after "prosperity" sets in, it would be wise indeed to get out of debt and keep out. The man who keeps his expences within his income and owes nothing is indead the lucky man.—Waseca Herald.

In this county as we have already noted. very many tickets were invalidated by the voters placing an "X" after all the electors whose names were followed by the word "Democrat." Thus they would mark an "X" after each of the "Democrat-Peoples" Bryan electors. It is thought in the 47 precincts in the county from 300 to 400 Bryan ballots were thus rendered invalid. The Palmer-Buckner ticket hurt more in that way than any other. St. Cloud Times.

In the counting of votes in this city it was found that a very large number of voters who had intended to cast their ballots for Bryan missed their object by marking an "X" opposite the names of more electors than the nine intended for Bryan. In addition to these nine those of Palmer as well as those of Levering were marked, all of which had the effect of invalidating the entire ballot. It is asserted that in this way several hundred votes were lost to Bryan in this way alone, and if here, why not elsewhere?—Minneapolis Penny Press.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With zeal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorsted Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault. Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory. WHEELER & WILSON MFG. CO. Chicago, Ill

THOSE republicans and national democrats who supported Dave Clough for governor are now seeing what the fruits are likely to be. If Senator Davis is givin a position in McKinley's Cabinent, a thing altogether likely, Gov Clough can fill the place by appointing William R. Merriam, the power behind the throne, to the United States Senate. If that is what the gold standard folks wanted they may get it. Mr. Merriam is one of the most ardent supporters of the approved gold standard system, and as such, will, of course receive his reward.

It is a grand victory four sound money and protection to American labor. —Annandale Post.

It will be a hard matter to find a populist now in a day or so, they are already begining to say they voted the Republican ticket as they knew Bryan stoop no show.—Cokato Enterprise.

What will the opposition support in 1900? Their free trade theories fell short when abopted, free silver was heavily rebuked, and there remains nothing now to adyocate but free whiskey and free lunch.—Delano Eagle.

So far as the financial policy of government is concerned, Cleveland has continued the policy of his predecessor, and if McKinley is elected as he probably will be, there is no reason to expect any change.—Buffalo Journal.

Four years ago the democratic party swept the country as we have just done and it will be necessary for the Republican party to show results which are unmistakeable. We beleive it will be equal to the occasion as in the past.—Howard Lake Herald.

Worse Than Chattel Slavery.

From the Representative we clip the following:—Horace Greeley was first a Whig, then an Abolitionist, Republican, then a democrat always anti-slayery, always a philanthropist, and one of the most brainy men the country has produced. He grasped political policies, and pointed out results with prescient wisdom, as is shown by the following declaration:

"We bost of having liberated 4,000,000 of slayes. True, we have stricken the shackles from the former bondsmen and brought all laborers to a common level, but not so much by elevating the former slaves as by practically reducing the whole working population to a state of serfdom. While boasting of our noble deeds we are careful to conceal the ugly fact that by our iniquitous monetary system we have nationalized a system of oppression more refined, but none the less cruel, than the old system of chattel slavery."—Railway Times.

The increase of newspapers and magazines in Japan is marvelous. One city, Tokio, has 23 dailies and 56 magazines. There are to-day 802 newspapers and magazines. Thirty years ago there were 20. The newspapers of Japan have a weekly circulation of 278,000,600 copies.

The bottom of the Pacific between Hawaii and California is said to be so level that a railroad could be laid for 500 miles without grading anywhere. This fact was discovered by the United States surveying vessel engaged in making soundings with the view of laying a cable.

Prof. Falbe, of Vienna, has come to the conclusion that the earth will collide with a comet in 1899. He has determined the exact date, November 13. This gives us at least three years more of this dear old earth. And Prof. Falbe may be only another crank. There have been others like him.

A scientist says that our senses do not fall asleep simultaneously, but become insensible one after another. Many dreams are explainable upon this hypothesis. The eyelids take the lead, and obscure sight; next follows the sense of taste; then smelling, hearing, and touch, the last named being the lightest sleeper, and most easily aroused.

Southwestern papers are telling of a new kind of a bedbug which is advancing from Texas northward. It is called the conenose, is an inch long and bloodthirsty in proportion. Unlike our old friend who has been so long with us, it has wings and its bite is a serious matter, several people in Oklahoma having narrowly escaped death from it. It does not carry a lantern.

The most recent experiments tend to show that the grafting of bones, skin, and other tissues from one animal species to another cannot be successfully practiced. Between individuals of the same species, however, such operations have proved successful, and particularly in cases where the transference has been made between different parts of the same body.

That horse shoeing should be ranked as a profession and that the practitioner should be required to pass his examination before state experts would have seemed odd enough a few years ago; but it is a good sign. It is one of many that show an intention to keep men up to the best of their work. A clumsy blacksmith can easily cripple a horse and he should no more be allowed to ply a trade that he has not learned than any other kind of a quack.

They now make an artificial ivory for combs, billiard balls and so on. The materials are borax and skimmed milk subjected to a high pressure. The natural ivory is becoming scarce and high-priced. The African beds of it have been well worked over since the penetration of the interior of that continent and the elephants are not producing great quantities of it at the present time, since the elephants also are becoming scarce. However, the ingenuity of man can be relied upon to save the world from want.

The state of Vermont is doing excellent educational work with its library law, and that is a very moderate expense. The law provides for the gift of books from the state to supplement local contributions, and under its fostering influence 59 towns have established libraries in the last two years. The cost to the state has been only $6,000, which considering the results that are likely to be accomplished by the establishment of such libraries is an extremely small sum. The Green Mountain state has set an example to many of her more pretentious and equally enterprising sisters.

The publication of love letters of Victor Hugo, and other letters written by the great novelist does not seem to have added to his reputation. Hugo appears as the peevish, complaining man. The letters were published without editing. It is a question still whether it is worth while to know all the truth of a great man. We think it is just as well to keep part concealed. Those letters which Victor Hugo marked "please destroy," seem to be included with the rest of the volumes of his correspondence. But such conduct is called realism and truthful in the modern world of letters and history.

In the Mexican state of Guerroro a mineralogist, some three years ago, discovered the ruins of a city upon a high altitude. He kept the matter a secret until recently, having in the meantime obtained concessions from the Mexican government for the removal of part of the relics. The city in question belongs to the Aztec civilization and that civilization will be profitably studied in the remains. The city was abandoned when Cortes and his armies invaded Mexico for plunder. Vegetation has grown in the streets during the centuries which elapsed until the remains of the houses are buried under debris.

Epitome of the Week.

INTERESTING NEWS COMPILATION.

FROM WASHINGTON.

In Washington Stephen J. Field, associate justice of the supreme court, celebrated his eightieth birthday.

In the United States there were 230 business failures in the seven days ended on the 6th, against 270 the week previous and 280 in the corresponding period of 1895.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 6th aggregated $991,552,065, against $968,781,558 the previous week. The decrease compared with the corresponding week in 1895 is 12.6.

In a storm on Lake Erie several sailboats were capsized and Henry Mayo and Jacob and George Vergt were drowned.

In Denver Stanley Barrows achieved the feat of riding the fastest mile ever made on a wheel, and that is without any pacing, his time being 58 seconds.

E. S. Nicholson, of Kokomo, Ind., father of the temperance law, has been reelected to the legislature, with 800 votes to spare.

At Quigley, Mont., the Golden Scepter Mining company has assigned with debts of $285,000.

The latest returns from the election do not justify any change in the division of the electoral vote between Maj. McKinley and Mr. Bryan as previously printed, which gave 264 to McKinley and 167 to Bryan and left 16 in doubt. The doubtful states are those of Kentucky and Wyoming. The result in these two states is so close as to require an official count to decide it. The popular vote in the several states give McKinley a plurality of 939,216. The present indications are that the next congress will be divided on the currency as follows: House—sound money, 215; silver, 142. Senate—sound money, 43; silver, 47.

At the age of 50 years Charles Adlai Ewing, leader of the national gold democracy in Illinois, died suddenly at his home in Decatur.

At Dayton, O., the Manhattan Clothing & Shoe company assigned with liabilities of $100,000.

At Toledo, O., Conrad Eichorn deliberately put his 13-year-old son to death and then committed suicide. Domestic trouble was the cause.

LATER NEWS.

It Will Be Arbitrated.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 10.—The Venezuelan question will be settled by arbitration. The king of Sweden and Norway, Oscar II., has been chosen by treaty between the United States and Great Britain as the fifth official arbitrator of the Venezuelan boundary question. The other four arbitrators are to be designated, two by the chief lord justice of England and two by the chief justice of the United States. This is the final and most important feature of the treaty for the complete adjustment of the long pending Venezuelan controversy.

The treaty was concluded in Washington last night at the British embassy, Sir Julian Pauncefote representing her Britannic majesty, and Secretary Olney the United States. Since the returns of Sir Julian from London three weeks ago negotations towards a final settlement have proceeding.

A telegram from London dated the 10th states that the arbitration of the Venezuelan dispute is a settled fact. All arrangements have been completed and all details of the arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain arranged. The final details of the treaty of arbitration were arranged in London, the 9th. The terms were cabled to London and have been accepted. The treaty covers Venezuela only, and does not include a general treaty of arbitration of all future disputes between the two great English speaking nations.

BRYAN'S STATEMENT.

Says the Cause of Bimetallism Is Not Dead.

Offers Consolation to His Followers—Feels No Personal Loss in Defeat—Triumph of Free Coinage Predicted for 1900.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 7.—William J. Bryan Friday afternoon gave out the following statement to the bimetallists of the United States:

"Conscious that millions of loyal hearts are saddened by temporary defeat, I beg to offer a word of hope and encouragement. No cause ever had supporters more brave, earnest and devoted, than those who have espoused the cause of bimetallism. They have fought from conviction and have fought with all the zeal which conviction inspires. Events will prove whether they are right or wrong. Having done their duty as they saw it, they have nothing to regret. The republican candidate has been heralded as the advance agent of prosperity. If his policies bring real prosperity to the American people those who oppose him will share in that prosperity. If, on the other hand, his policies prove an injury to the people generally, those of his supporters who do not belong to the office-holding class, or to the privileged classes, will suffer in common with those who opposed him.

Are Not Vanquished.

"The friends of bimetallism have not been vanquished; they have simply been overcome. They believe that the gold standard is a conspiracy of the money changers against the welfare of the human race and until convinced of their error they will continue the warfare against it. The contest has been waged this year under great embarrassments and against great odds. For the first time during this generation public attention has been centered upon the money question as the paramount issue, and this has been done in spite of all attempts upon the part of our opponents to prevent it. The republican convention held out the delusive hope of international bimetallism, while republican leaders labored secretly for gold monometallism. Gold standard democrats have publicly advocated the election of the Indianapolis ticket while they labored secretly for the election of the republican ticket. The trusts and corporations have tried to excite a fear of lawlessness while they themselves have been defying the law, and American financiers have boasted that they were the custodians of national honor while they were secretly bartering away the nation's financial independence. But in spite of the efforts of the administration and its supporters; in spite of the threats of money loaners at home and broad; in spite of the coercion practiced by corporate employers; in spite of trusts and syndicates; in spite of an enormous republican campaign fund and in spite of the influence of a hostile daily press, bimetallism has almost triumphed in its first great fight. The loss of a few states, and that, too, by very small pluralities, has defeated bimetallism for the present, but bimetallism emerges from the contest stronger than it was four months ago.

Commends the Three Committees.

"I desire to commend the work of the three national committees which have joined in the management of this campaign. Cooperation between the members of distinct political organizations is always difficult, but it has been less so this year than usual. Interest in a common cause of great importance has reduced friction to a minimum. I hereby express my personal gratitude to the individual members, as well as the executive officers, of the national committee of the democratic, populist and silver parties for their efficient, untiring and unselfish labors. They have laid the foundation for future success and will be remembered as pioneers when victory is at last secured.

Feels Repaid.

"No personal or political friend need grieve because of my defeat. My ambition has been to secure immediate legislation rather than to enjoy the honors of office, and, therefore, defeat brings to me no feeling of personal loss. Speaking for the wife who has shared my labors, as well as for myself, I desire to say that we have been amply repaid for all that we have done.

"In the love of millions of our fellow citizens, so kindly expressed, in knowledge gained by personal contact with the people, and in broadened sympathies, we find full compensation for whatever efforts we have put forth. Our hearts have been touched by devotion of friends and our lives shall prove our appreciation of the affection of the plain people, an affection which we prize as the richest reward which this campaign has brought.

Call for the Next Campaign.

"In the face of an enemy rejoicing in its victory, let the roll be called for the next engagement and urge all friends of bimetallism to renew their allegiance to the cause. If we are right, as I believe we are, we shall yet triumph. Until convinced of his error, let each advocate of bimetallism continue the work. Let all silver clubs retain their organization, hold regular meetings and circulate literature. Our opponents have succeeded in this campaign and must now put their theories to the test. Instead of talking mysteriously about 'sound money' and 'an honest dollar' they must now elaborate and defend a financial system. Every step taken by them should be publicly considered by the silver clubs. Our cause has prospered most where the money question has been longest discussed among the people. During the next four years it will be studied all over this nation even more than it has been studied in the past.

Before Nineteen Hundred

"The year 1900 is not far away. Before that year arrives, international bimetallism will cease to deceive; before that year arrives those who have called themselves gold standard democrats will become bimetallists and be with us or they will become republicans and be open enemies; before that year arrives, trusts will have convinced still more people that a trust is a menace to private welfare and to public safety; before that year arrives the evil effect, of a gold standard will be even more evident than they are now, and the people then ready to demand an American financial policy for the American people will join with us in the immediate restoration of the free and unlimited coinage of gold and silver at the present legal ratio of sixteen to one without waiting for the aid or consent of any other nation.

"W. J. BRYAN."

CONGRATULATES THE VICTOR.

Mr. Bryan Sends a Telegram to the President-Elect.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 6.—At 8:25 Senator Jones' telegram to Mr. Bryan that he had given up the fight was handed to Mr. Bryan at his residence. "You may say," said Mr. Bryan to the reporters, "that the election of McKinley is conceded and that I will issue a statement soon."

Mr. Bryan had not clung to the hope held out to him by some of his enthusiastic followers and was prepared for the news. His wife, too, knew that nothing encouraging was to be expected. Her natural good nature came to the fore when she realized that the strain was over and she laughed and joked with those about her, while Mr. Bryan also chaffed the newspaper men. Immediately after receiving Senator Jones' telegram Mr. Bryan wrote the following dispatch:

"Hon. William McKinley, Canton, O: Senator Jones has just informed me that the returns indicate your election, and I hasten to extend my congratulations. We have submitted the issues to the American people and their will is law.

"WILLIAM J. BRYAN."

Canton, O., Nov. 6.—At noon Friday Maj. McKinley sent this telegram:

"Canton, O., Nov. 6, 1896. Hon. W. J. Bryan, Lincoln, Neb.: I acknowledge the receipt of your courteous message of congratulation with thanks and beg you will receive my best wishes for your health and happiness.

(Signed) "WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

HON. CHARLES EWING DEAD.

Prominent Gold Democrat of Illinois Passes Away at Decatur.

Chicago, Nov. 7.—Word was received here Friday morning of the sudden death at Decatur, Ill., of Hon. Charles A. Ewing, late secretary of the state central committee of the gold democratic party, and a leading figure in the councils of that organization. Mr. Ewing died at six o'clock, but the cause of death was not given in the dispatch received here by his cousin, Judge Ewing.

TO CONTINUE THE BATTLE.

Silver Leaders Decide to Carry on the Warfare for Bimetallism.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Directors of the American Bimetallic union, who constitute the bulk of the silver leaders in three parties, have declared to maintain headquarters in the city and use it as the agency through which literature is to be spread broadcast over the land. The branch office at Chicago will be consolidated with the Washington office, but the San Francisco branch is to be continued. Gen. A. J. Warner, president of the union, at the request of the directors, has issued the following address setting forth the purposes of the silver men:

"To the Silver Leagues and Bimetallic Unions of the United States: Silver has lost in this election, but the battle for the overthrow of the gold standard has not ended. The disastrous consequences that must attend upon the continuance of this standard make it impossible to relinquish the struggle against it until it is finally overthrown.

"The gold standard cannot be maintained by increasing revenues, because revenues are not paid in gold. The attempt to maintain the gold standard by perpetual loans must also sooner or later fail. The only other way is by contracting the currency and forcing down prices so low that gold will come here of itself in such quantities as to constitute, in part, at least, the currency with which revenues are paid, and no debtor nation can long maintain such a policy. Either course, therefore, leads to inevitable ruin, the one by bankrupting the government, and the other by bankrupting the people. Either policy will subject the United States absolutely to British domination, and hence the rejoicing of the British press over the defeat of silver here.

"The victory for gold is a victory of trusts and syndicated wealth, brought about by corruption and coercion, and not a victory by the people, for the people, and it cannot last. There must be an end also to the constant appreciation of money. The appreciation of money alone, if allowed to go on at the rate it has gone on for the past 20 years, will, in half a generation more, transfer the bulk of all the wealth of this country from those who have created it to the hands of the few who control the money and own the debts. No power can be conceived so potent to gather wealth into few hands as the ceaseless, all-pervading power of an appreciating money standard. No civilization can stand it. It must end, or the foundations upon which free institutions rest will be broken up. The battle, therefore, for the restoration of silver must go on without abatement, and I urge upon all silver and bimetallic leagues and unions to keep up their organizations and to continue the fight till victory for the people is finally won. The noble fight made by our intrepid leader in the campaign just ended endears him to all who believe in the righteousness of our cause, and under his leadership we believe victory will be won in 1900."

THE PEOPLE'S PARTY.

Chairman of the National Committee Issues a Statement to Public.

Washington, Nov. 9.—Senator Marion Butler, chairman of the national committee of the people's party, Saturday issued a statement to the people of the United States. In opening he says:

"In the remarkable campaign just closed the people's party was the only party that supported solidly and unitedly the great and vital issues represented in the candidacy of Mr. Bryan. This was natural, for the people's party came into existence to bring to the front and to press to victory the principles of Lincoln and Jefferson, already long discarded by the two old parties."

In referring to the cooperation with the democrats in the present campaign, he says:

"The people's party, with a high patriotism and an unselfish devotion to principle, greater than ever before exhibited by any other party, stepped outside of its organization to throw its 2,000,000 votes solidly for Mr. Bryan. Had not more than this number of those who called themselves democrats in 1892 given their support to Mr. McKinley, the cause of the people and American principles would have triumphed this year."

Reference to Mr. Bryan is made as follows:

"The remarkable and brilliant campaign of William J. Bryan would have aligned these forces and marched them to triumphant victory if any candidate or leader in America could have done so under the democratic banner."

The closing portion of the address is as follows:

"The position of the people's party in this great contest has convinced every patriotic American that the party can be trusted to stand for the principles of good government and the interests of the people under any and all circumstances. Therefore the people's party will be the nucleus around which the patriotic hosts must and will gather to redeem a betrayed republic and restore prosperity to an oppressed and outraged people."

LOST IN THE LAKE.

Schooner Waukesha Is Wrecked Off Muskegon, Mich.

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 9.—It was about 1:30 Sunday morning when the beach patrolman on the south shore of the harbor reported wreckage coming ashore. This report, to the mind of Capt. Wood, brought up the question of the safety of the big three-masted schooner which arrived off the point about four o'clock Saturday afternoon. She signaled for a tug as she came in sight, and the station sent word uptown for the Carrie Ryerson, which came down, but did not venture out in the face of the big sea which was running. The schooner was apparently all right during the evening, and at nine o'clock the lookout man saw her lights. After that they disappeared and nothing more was seen of them. It was thought she had slipped her cables and run out to get room.

But the sequel shows she had not. In the storm, the awful cold and darkness, six human lives had been snuffed out and not a soul on shore had been a whit the wiser. In the wreckage was found the name plate of the schooner, which was the Waukesha, owned by Capt. Duncan Corbett. She was loaded with salt and was bound from Ludington to South Chicago, so it was learned, as the thread of the tragedy was slowly picked up afterwards.

PETTIGREW'S POLICY.

The South Dakota Senator Opens the Campaign of 1900.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Nov. 10.—Senator Pettigrew opened the campaign of 1900 Monday night and addressed the largest audience ever gathered in this city. It was announced as the beginning of the bimetallic fight of four years hence and proved to be the sensation of the fall. The senator said that he would render McKinley every aid possible for him to demonstrate that the tariff was what ailed the country, but wanted to put himself on record by saying that he would resist every section of a tariff bill that provided for tariff on any article controlled by a trust. This created a sensation and the demonstration that followed was tremendous.

Seeks Heavy Damages.

Paris, Nov. 9.—The Matin announces that Sidney O'Danna has arrived in Paris and intends to bring an action in the French courts against the German embassy, claiming 37,650,000 francs damages. O'Danna has just finished a term in prison in Berlin on a charge of intriguing to bring about a war between France and Germany. He contends that he was unjustly sentenced.

BENEFITS BUSINESS.

Close of the Campaign and Its Result Helps Trade.

New York, Nov. 7.—R. G. Dun & Co. in their weekly review of trade say:

"A great revolution has been effected this week in the conditions which control business. It could not be in any fair degree reflected as yet in transactions or in records, but there is ample evidence already that a crushing weight has been lifted and rolled away, and the business world has adjusted itself to a state of freedom and security which it has not known for years, and new contracts involving many millions have become binding since the election. The rush for stocks on Wednesday lifted the average for all railways $1.16 per share in a single day and trust stocks $1.54, and in many of the most active the advance was so sudden that heavy sales for realizing caused some reaction. The wild advance of over 3 cents in wheat on Monday and Wednesday was also followed by realizing and decline on Thursday. But the instant vanishing of the premium on gold, which had reached about 2 per cent., the unlocking of many millions which had been hoarded, the collapse of the interest rate from 8 and 12 to 6 and 5½ per cent. and the quick demand for American securities on foreign account are signs of more lasting promise.

"It was not strictly logical that wheat advanced 5 cents, and heavy realizing of profits showed perception of the fact. A growing disposition appears among farmers to hold wheat for better prices than are now realized, although at present any advance checks buying for export. Speculation in cotton was also excited on the theory that mills would now start up and would meet a large demand for goods. But the advance was met by realizing sales and a slight reaction. It will be all the better for business if bright hopes do not hoist prices too fast.

"The election immediately stiffened prices of pig iron, which reached $12 at Pittsburgh for Bessemer, and the certainty that many large orders for buildings and bridges and other finished forms would now become operative justifies some advance. The future of this trade depends upon the extent of increase in demand for finished products of iron and steel, which is likely to be materially affected by the course pursued by various combinations.

"Failures for the week have been 220 in the United States, against 280 last year, and 52 in Canada, against 49 last year."

Bradstreet's says:

"Business was practically suspended throughout the country this week, and there has been little increase in the volume since the election, compared with like periods in preceding weeks. But manufacturers and jobbers are more inclined to purchase in advance instead of for nearby wants, and in a few lines, notably wool, cotton, iron and steel, a larger volume of purchases is reported. That merchants generally share the confidence in an early revival is indicated by hardening staple prices and the increases in quotations in addition to those given in preceding weeks.

"Sales of cotton goods have been freer and some mills are better employed. Woolen mills also report more orders and a tendency to prefer higher-cost goods. Numerous industrial establishments which have started up within two days report being offered large orders if they would sell 1897 delivery at present prices. Many Rhode Island manufacturers report preparations for a larger output than anticipated, and that orders received contingent on election results, notably in the lumber and jewelry lines, are now being filled. Owing to the lateness of the season few have regarded the outlook as promising much in the nature of a boom during the current year.

"At a few northwestern commercial centers large orders have been received from country merchants within a few days, and in Georgia farmers have met their obligations this autumn more promptly than for years past, and southern merchants and manufacturers are reported as looking ahead confidently to a marked improvement in business in the near future."

THE POSTAL SERVICE.

Synopsis of Report of the First Assistant Postmaster-General.

Washington, Nov. 9.—First Assistant Postmaster-General Frank H. Jones, in his annual report for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, states that there has during that time, been a saving of $3,278,985, and also such was an improvement in the service of delivering the volume of mail matter.

The number of presidential post offices is 3,654, the salaries of the postmasters being $6,203,900, and the total gross receipts from these offices were $65,282,364.

Mr. Jones recommends that $17,000,000 be appropriated to compensate postmasters for the next fiscal year. He asks only $11,000,000 for clerk hire, a considerable decrease in proportion to the increase of clerks to be employed. He recommends that $75,000 be appropriated for the rental and purchase of canceling machines. He thinks $15,000 a sufficient sum to cover advertising expenses regarding unclaimed letters, and advocates the adoption of the bulletin board system in this matter. He recommends that ten inspectors be assigned to look after the work in the salary and allowance branch of the service.

Free delivery service has been established at 24 cities during the year, and there are now but 63 entitled to it, but on account of the expense the remainder could not be benefited. Experimental free delivery in towns and villages has shown a reduction in gross receipts in a majority of offices. By November 1 next rural free delivery will be tested in about 30 states. There was a reduction of dismissals of letter carriers, which evidences the high standard of discipline. An estimated expenditure of $13,326,500 is made on account of free delivery system for the fiscal year 1897-98. Negotiations are now pending for an exchange of money orders with Mexico. Mr. Jones recommends that a penalty be prescribed for the unlawful use of the frank of a member of congress and suggests $300 fine in each case. He says the law was disregarded during the campaign just closed. He asks legislation to do away with private post office boxes.

Will Foot the Bills.

San Francisco, Nov. 9.—Charles D. Lane, the millionaire owner of the Utica gold mine, will give William J. Bryan financial support in his advocacy of bimetallism. The Californian will see to it that the Nebraskan's traveling expenses and the living expenses of himself and family are paid during his forthcoming campaign of education. Mr. Lane made such a statement during the heat of the campaign and he reiterated in Saturday afternoon in the coolness of political defeat.

Sandy Hook an Island.

New York, Nov. 9.—The great October storm tore through the Sandy Hook peninsula about a quarter of a mile north of Highland Beach. It made a large inlet from the sea to the Shrewsbury river and in its course demolished the railway trestlework erected on deep-driven piling by the United States government to transport its big guns and gun carriages and machinery from all points to the government proving grounds. No efforts have been made to close this break in the peninsula.

Flowers on Their Graves.

Chicago, Nov. 9.—Chicago radicals commemorated the execution of the men who were convicted of responsibility for the Haymarket riot by going to Waldheim cemetery Sunday morning and strewing flowers on the graves of the five men whose last resting place is marked by the monument erected by the Pioneer Relief and Aid society. The gathering was not a large one, and there were no exercises at the burying ground.

PROVES TO BE A PUG.

Polite Girl Gives Up Her Seat to a Supposedly Baby-Laden Woman.

The in-bound Clark street cable train was crowded. Every seat was taken and many men were compelled to stand, when at one of the crossings a lady entered the car bearing in her arms a burden of her special care and attention. Wrapped in a soft warm shawl she carefully carried it, protected and safe from the raw, chilly air. Although restless and moving its tiny head from side to side, she watchfully held the shawl over its head. She walked to the center of the car, and, seeing no vacant seat, took one of the straps. The men kept industriously reading their papers, says the Chicago Chronicle.

"These gentlemen can keep their seats," said a young woman as she arose and proffered her seat to the woman with the burden. The car gave a sudden lurch forward as the woman accepted the offered seat with a "Thank you," the shawl became loosened, and, eluding her grasp, the little object freed itself from the folds.

The men tittered and the polite young woman, looking around for the cause of the unwonted mirth, beheld on the woman's lap, not a baby as she supposed, but a very frisky and bright-eyed pug dog.

PASSING OF THE FAKE AUCTION.

One Kind of Business That Is Happily and Permanently Suspended.

Where has the jewelry auctioneer gone? Up to three years ago there were at least a dozen places on the South side where a gaudy display of watches, diamonds and revolvers in the windows called attention to a scarcely less loud auctioneer within. He stood on an elevation behind the counter; he had "cappers" both inside and outside the place, and his sonorous tones were ringing all the time. He watched the stream of passers-by on the street and "backed the play" of the cappers. He sold all manner of watches, and he always "got the best of it."

As a rule, says the Chicago Post, these salesmen were excellent auctioneers and knew all the wiles of their craft.

Up to two years ago some of them were still running, but they gradually faded out, and now there is not one, with the trifling exception of a Saturday night fling in West Madison street. They must do a good business, selling quantities of material at an excellent price. But there was an end of all things in their line and the jewelry auction has vanished.

The Sexes in Burmah.

The new woman should take her way to Burmah. There, travelers say, is the only place on earth where true equality between the sexes exists. In spite of this, it is claimed, no women are more womanly than the Burmese women, whose good sense enables them to see the line where they ought to stop. In the higher classes a woman has property of her own and manages it herself. In the lower classes she always has a trade and runs her business on her own responsibility, the sexes choose their own operations, and it is curious to see the men sometimes sewing or embroidering, while the women have nearly all the retail trade of the island on their hands.

Mourning for a Chinese Ruler.

When a Chinese emperor dies the intelligence is announced by dispatches to the several provinces, written with purple ink, the mourning color. All persons of rank are required to take red silk ornaments from their caps, with the ball or button of rank; all subjects of China, without exception, are called upon to forbear shaving their heads for 100 days, within which period none may marry, play upon musical instruments or perform any sacrifice.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Duluth Is the Terminal.

Washington, Oct. 31.—Secretary Francis has rendered a decision on land in Minnesota to which the Northern Pacific Railroad company is entitled under the recent decision fixing Duluth as the eastern terminus under the terms of the grant. He says that on that portion of the road where there is a grant to both the Northern Pacific company and the Lake Superior & Mississippi company, the former is not entitled to indemnity for land covered by the prior grant to the latter. The secretary directs the commissioner to establish new terminal lines for both grants at right angles to the constructed road and also to cancel outright all selections made by the Northern Pacific company of land east of Duluth, in accordance with the recent decision that the grant did not extend beyond that point.

Dropped Dead.

Samuel B. Clyde, proprietor of the Sixth Avenue hotel, at Washington and Sixth avenues south, Minneapolis, dropped dead while about to enter the voting booth of the Fourth district of the Fifth ward, at Sixth avenue south and Third street. Death was due to heart failure. Shortly after dinner he left his home for the polling booth a block distant. On the way he met several friends, with whom he laughed and joked. He passed into the engine house and was handed his three tickets. Turning to go to the stall to mark them, he fell heavily to the floor. A physician was immediately summoned, but death ensued within 15 minutes. Death was attributed to the heart being suddenly affected by his old ailment, rheumatism.

Settlers Win.

About 1,202 acres of land on and around the margin of Cedar lake or Ely lake, near Duluth, are involved in the case of G. A. Burns et al vs S. K. Murphy, the Security Land & Exploration company, the Duluth, Iron Range company, Cloquet Lumber company et al in which the general land office decision has been affirmed by the secretary of the interior. The petitioners represented as bona fide settlers asked for the survey and platting of the lands to allow homestead entry while the defendants claimed ownership under patents issued and swamp land grants made by the government. The decision directs the surveyor general to contract for the survey asked for.

Murdered His Wife.

Mrs. Louis Balser was shot and killed at Mankato by her husband. Balser is proprietor of the American House, is addicted to drink and has an ugly temper. He was somewhat intoxicated and after abusing his wife, he chased her out of the house and shot her as she stood on the sidewalk. The bullet passed through her hart and both lungs and lodged under the skin under the right shoulderblade.

He was immediately arrested and locked in the city hall lockup. Threats of lynching were made, and Balser was removed by a rear door to the county jail, which is new and almost impregnable.

A Foolish Man.

Nils Sundl, a shoemaker, occupying the store, 848 Payne avenue St. Paul was seriously injured by an explosion of gasoline. He attempted to light a fire in a small stove, and in order to hasten the blaze he poured gasoline from a can on the wood. The result was an explosion which forced open the door of the stove and surrounded Mr. Sundl with flame and also ignited the oil that was left in the can.

Mr. Sundl was horribly burned about the head, face and hands. His hair was completely burned to the scalp, his eyebrows, eyelashes and whishers were burned away.

Farmers' Congress.

Governor Clough has commissioned 600 associate delegates to represent Minnesota in the 17th annual meeting of the Farmers' International Congress, in Indianapolis, Nov. 10 to 13. Acceptances are coming in rapidly, and this state will have a large delegation in the congress. The Commercial Club has undertaken to secure the next congress for St. Paul. Invitations will be taken to Indianapolis on behalf of the state, the city, the Commercial Club and some of the other organized bodies of St. Paul.

The First.

Auditor J. John Kendion of Nobles county is the first this year to forward the abstract of his county for the November tax settlement. The total collections were $4,150.16, of which the state's share is $482.25. Nicollet county has heretofore been the first county to make the returns, but Mr. Kendlon stole a march this year and heads the list.

News in Brief.

Capt. Thomas A. Dunlava, register of the land office at Crookston, is dead.

D. M. Clough ran 5,190 votes behind McKinley in the city of Minneapolis. There was not a ward in which he was got freely scratched.

The output of the Minneapolis mills last week was over 300,000 barrels.

John Brady, a switchman on the Great Western, died at the St. Paul city hospital from the effects of injuries received in a collision between a Great Western and a Milwaukee freight. Charles Hitchcock, another switchman, also had his arm broken in the collision.

Nobody feels happier over the election results than the members of the Union Veterans' League. All along they have been enthusiastic workers for McKinley, in order to redeem their promise of last June, when they wired the candidate that Minnesota should be his by 50,000.

No sooner had the election result been announced, than the Minneapolis banks began to be extravagant in their display of gold, and every bank in the city had no hesitancy in paying out their yellow metal. Gold was also deposited to a great extent, and evidently the hidden stockings are ready to yield up their treasure.

Albert Byers, who resides on Plymouth avenue, Minneapolis, thinks his hard luck, which began election night, is never going to end. It is believed, however, that the "hoodoo" received a mortal blow when a fine of $10 or 10 days was imposed by Judge Kerr after Byers stood trial for being drunk. Byers claims he was knocked down election night and robbed of a gold watch and $105.

A tramp who gave his name as Chris. Olson of Minneapolis, while trying to board a westbound stock train at the depot at Willmar, fell and had both legs cut off.

JONES ON THE ELECTION.

Gives His Reasons for Defeat of the Democratic Candidate.

Chicago, Nov 6.—Chairman Jones formally conceded the defeat of William J. Bryan Thursday night and made his last presidential campaign statement to the public. The free silver standard was really lowered late Wednesday night, so far as the election of 1896 is concerned, when advices were received at headquarters from West Virginia conceding the electoral vote of that state to McKinley, but it was decided not to make a public announcement of the fact until Thursday. In the meantime Gov. Stone arrived in Chicago from Missouri in response to Senator Jones' telegram. The national committee chairman, the governor and Campaign Chairman Campau were in conference Thursday evening in the senator's room, and at its conclusion the following statement was given to the press:

"The result of the presidential election is apparently no longer in doubt. It has been one of the closest contests that the people have been called on to determine in recent years. We have claimed the election on our advices from states that were admittedly in doubt, in which we knew there had been many frauds and from which there were evidences of tampering with the returns. It seems now to be apparent that, while Mr. Bryan, after making the most brilliant campaign in the history of our country, has carried most of the states claimed to be doubtful, but has not carried enough to assure his success in the electoral college. Bryan electors have been chosen in all the states south of the Potomac and Ohio, except West Virginia, and all those west of the Missouri except California and Oregon. He has 190 electoral votes, and this number may be increased by final returns from states yet in question.

"Thus this remarkable campaign closes with the election of William McKinley. The result was brought about by every kind of coercion and intimidation on the part of the money power, including threats of lockouts and dismissals and impending starvation; by the employment of by far the largest campaign fund ever used in this country and by the subornation of a large portion of the American press. The president-elect and his party are under pledge to the American people to continue the gold standard and by its operation to restore prosperity to this country. As chief executive Mr. McKinley will have the cordial support of the millions of patriotic Americans who have cast their votes for William Jennings Bryan. They bow to the majesty of the office, and abide by the result with none of the mutterings that would have come from the money power had it been unsuccessful. They are confident the gold standard cannot give the promised prosperity, but will gladly welcome it if it comes. They will continue the great struggle for the uplifting of humanity and to the maintenance of the dignity of our country in the establishment of an American monetary system. And the democratic party, aided by its present allies, will still uplift the bimetallic standard and bear it on to victory.

"JAMES K. JONES,
"Chairman of the Democratic National Committee."

M'KINLEY TO HANNA.

The Successful Candidate Discourses on the Result.

Canton, O., Nov. 6.—Mr. McKinley Thursday night sent the following telegram to Mr. Hanna in New York:

"Canton, O., Nov. 5.—To Hon M. A. Hanna, Waldorf Hotel, New York: Your telegraphic message announcing the result of the election has been received. I beg you to accept my hearty thanks for your great services in the cause of "sound money" and protection throughout the campaign now closed and gloriously won. They were most generous and effective and will receive the warm approbation of your countrymen everywhere. I will be pleased to have you convey to your associates of the national committee my high appreciation of their efficient services.

"The people in their majesty, ignoring party lines, have declared their detestation of repudiation and dishonor, in whatever specious guise they may be presented. They have with the same mighty power affirmed their devotion to law and order and their undeviating respect for justice and the courts. They have maintained their unfaltering determination to support and uphold the constituted authorities of the country and have thereby given new vigor and strength to our free institutions. They have, indeed, again consecrated themselves to country, and baptized the cherished ordinances of free government with a new and holy patriotism.

"The victory is not to party or section, but of and for the American people. Not the least of the triumphs of the election is the obliteration of sectional lines in the republic. We have demonstrated to the world that we are a reunited people in purpose as well as in name. We have manifested in the great cause the spirit of fraternity and brotherhood that should always characterize our common and equal citizenship and have proven conclusively that in a country of equal privileges and equal opportunities the insidious doctrine of hate or of class or sectional distinctions cannot prevail. Let us as Americans straightway devote ourselves to the upbuilding of America; to the peace, honor and glory of our common country. Party dissensions should no longer divide or rack the public mind, nor the zeal or temper of either side deter any citizen from patriotic devotion to the good of all.

"WILLIAM M'KINLEY."

GIVE GOLD FOR PAPER.

Great Demand for Treasury Notes—Silver Certificates Accepted.

Washington, Nov. 10.—The treasury on Monday lost $27,000 in gold coin and $21,200 in bars, which leaves the true amount of reserve $121,526,364. The net gain in gold to-day at New York and San Francisco was $1,034,700. The resources of the treasury are being severely taxed to meet the demand for paper notes of all denominations in exchange for gold. In many cases the gold holders ask for United States notes of large denominations in exchange, but they express a willingness to accept Sherman notes, or if necessary silver certificates, if the government is unable to furnish United States notes. The demand for large denominations also is not imperative, the principal thing being to get paper money.

Reports from all parts of the country tend to show that nearly all of the gold withdrawn during the last several weeks was for the purpose of hoarding, and now that the supposed danger is past the gold is being offered at the several subtreasuries, or is being deposited in banks, and so is finding its way into the government coffers. The rush of gold offers is so great that in New York, at least, the assistant treasurer has been compelled to refuse gold until such time as he is able to handle it, and in a number of instances currency has been shipped from one subtreasury to another to meet the unusual demands.

DAVID BLAKELY DEAD.

Was Once Commissioner of Pensions—Well Known in Musical Circles.

New York, Nov. 9.—David Blakely, manager of Sousa's band and president of the Blakely Printing company of Chicago, died in this city Saturday.

[David Blakely, a pioneer newspaper publisher in the west, was an associate of ex-Secretary of War Ramsey, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Windom, and was appointed by President Grant commissioner of pensions. Although prominently identified with St. Paul and Minneapolis newspapers in his early years, and later with the old Chicago Evening Post, Mr. Blakely was best known in musical circles, with which he had been identified ever since boyhood. He moved to New York and assumed the general management of the P. S. Gilmore band, a position he held for several years. During this time his attention was called to John Philip Sousa, then with the Washington Marine band. He subsequently secured Sousa's release from government service and established the now celebrated Sousa band, retaining the active management of that organization until his death. Mr. Blakely was born in Binghamton, N. Y., in 1834. He was married in Minnesota in 1858 to Miss Adele Low, daughter of a prominent citizen of Vermont. The widow and four daughters survive him.]

VENEZUELAN CONTROVERSY.

Salisbury Confident That a Settlement Has Been Reached.

London, Nov. 10.—There was a sumptuous display on Monday night at the banquet marking the installation into office of Mr. George Faudel Phillips, the new lord mayor of London. The banqueting hall of the Guild hall was crowded, many of those present being of world-wide celebrity. Interest centered in the speech made by Lord Salisbury, it being the custom in recent years for the prime minister at the lord mayor's banquet to make a statement regarding the foreign and domestic policies of the government. Ambassador Bayard replied to the toast "The Foreign Representatives." Mr. Bayard, in treating of the community of interests of the nations of the world, all being affected by the doings of others, referred to the presidential election in the United States, saying:

"I am very sure that it was in no narrow party sense, no merely national sense, that the heart of the president which it is my highest honor to represent, was echoed in a verdict that could not be misunderstood, standing as it does for national honor and the continuity of national obligations, making the world safer in the trust of each part, and speaking as emphatically as the human mind and human heart ever spoke in favor of that honesty which is an essential condition of civilization everywhere."

When Lord Salisbury arose to reply to the toast "Our Ministers," he received an ovation. After thanking the lord mayor and the others present for the warmth of the welcome extended to him, he said:

"I thank the ambassador of the United States for his presence here and for joining a great historic meeting. By the few words he has uttered he has raised his own plane of observation so high above the mere level of party that, though contrary to practice to remark upon the internal politics of other states, I may be permitted, without impertinence, to congratulate him upon the splendid pronouncement the great people he represents have made in behalf of the principles which lie at the base of all human society.

"Let me turn to the rather unimportant controversy his country and ours have had in recent months. I only do so for the purpose of expressing the belief that it is at an end. You are aware that in the discussion had with the United States on behalf of their friends in Venezuela our question has not been whether there should be arbitration, but whether arbitration should have unrestricted application, and we have always claimed that those who apart from historic right had the right which attaches to established settlements should be excluded from arbitration. Our difficulty for months has been to define the settled districts and the solution has, I think, come from the government of the United States that we should treat our colonial empire as we treat individuals: that the same lapse of time which protects the latter in civic life from having their title questioned should similarly protect an English colony, but beyond that, when a lapse could not be claimed, there should be an examination of title and all the equity demanded in regard thereto should be granted.

"I do not believe I am using undue sanguine words when I declare my belief that this has brought the controversy to an end. It is a matter of no small satisfaction to the government that at a time when anxious social questions, which are far more important than political questions, are troubling the United States, and filling the world, we should remove any semblance of political difference that might hinder common action in defense of the common heritages of society."

HANNA'S ESTIMATE.

McKinley's Majority in the Electoral College—Pluralities of States.

New York, Nov. 6.—M. A. Hanna, chairman of the republican national committee, gave out the following statement at two p. m. Thursday:

"Sufficient returns have been received to satisfy me that the following states have been carried for McKinley and Hobart without doubt:

California	9	New Jersey	10
Connecticut	6	New York	36
Delaware	3	Ohio	23
Illinois	24	Oregon	4
Indiana	15	Pennsylvania	32
Iowa	13	Rhode Island	4
Maine	6	South Dakota	4
Maryland	8	Vermont	4
Massachusetts	15	West Virginia	6
Minnesota	9	Wisconsin	12
Michigan	14	Wyoming	3
North Dakota	3
New Hampshire	4	Total	265

"This insures their election by a majority of 41 in the electoral college, if every other electoral vote goes against us.

"Another most significant feature of this victory is the fact that McKinley and Hobart's election has been secured by a plurality of over 1,000,000 of the popular vote—the largest ever given.

"I am confident that we shall secure the other two electors in Wyoming and the 13 in Kentucky; North Carolina (11 votes) is in doubt.

"The importance to the country of this result cannot be overestimated and is a matter of congratulation to all loyal and patriotic citizens of the United States."

Following is a table giving as far as possible the probable pluralities of the candidates:

A SUDDEN CALL.

Mrs. William H. Vanderbilt Expires of Heart Disease.

New York, Nov. 7.—Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt, the mother of Cornelius and William K. Vanderbilt, died at Scarborough, N. Y., Friday afternoon. Her death was due to heart disease. For some time past Mrs. Vanderbilt had been troubled with the malady, which finally resulted in her death, and Friday morning she was out riding with her sister when she felt severe pains in the region of her heart and asked to be taken home. Her request was immediately complied with, but the pains and suffering increased, and at 1:30 o'clock she expired. Her daughter, Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, and her sister, Mrs. Bromley, were present at the deathbed. Mrs. Vanderbilt was 75 years of age.

[Mrs. Vanderbilt was a daughter of Rev. Samuel Kissam, a minister of the Dutch Reformed church, and was born at Coeymans, near Albany, N. Y. During her childhood she was carefully educated by her parents and received a strict religious training. Her father died in Brooklyn in 1869. She was married to William H. Vanderbilt in 1841. Her husband was at that time a clerk in the office of Dean, Robinson & Co., bankers in Wall street. Mrs. Vanderbilt leaves surviving her eight children: Cornelius and William K., the heads of the family; Frederick W., George W., Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, Mrs. William D. Sloane, Mrs. H. McKay Twombly and Mrs. Seward Webb.]

Pardon for Liliuokalani.

Honolulu, Oct. 29 (per steamer Australia to San Francisco, Nov. 6).—The Hawaiian government has granted a full pardon and restoration of her civil rights to ex-Queen Liliuokalani, based upon the fact that during her parole she has faithfully kept the terms of her partial freedom.

FASHION LETTER.

Handsome Winter Gowns and Other Costumes—Narrower Skirts and Smaller Sleeves—Something Satisfactory to Every Taste.

[Special New York Correspondence.]

In their general features the majority of the autumn fashions will be maintained throughout the winter season. The fronts and sides of skirts are unmistakably narrower, but are still very full at the back. Sleeves have all grown beautifully less and dress waists appear in the greater variety. There are bodices long and short, severe and ornate, suitable alike for cloth, velvet, satin brocade, corded silk, and the host of fancy wools. The round waist still prevails, both on day and evening gowns, and there are also many charming new waists with short points postillion and circular backs and basque effects ad libitum. The seven and nine gored skirts have an immense popularity among winter gowns. There are likewise draped models, plaited skirts with yoke tops, and kilted styles with pointed overskirts. Each famous Paris house has this season sent out its own special models, differing from those of other designers in certain details of arrangement and adjustment, but all showing a modified form of outline and an absence of heavy, stiff interlining. Different fabrics are given different treatment, and the models vary as the skirts are designed for the house, the promenade, for fall dress wear, traveling or general uses, and thus it is that something satisfactory to all tastes is found, and there is a fair promise of great individuality in dress when the handsome winter gowns and costumes appear.

The new dresses made of Vienna cloth and silky camel's-hair serge are most attractive. The Viennas come in rich greens and blues, yellow and black, black and blue, brown and fawn color, and so on indefinitely through the whole gamut of coloring, but all have the silky effect, and the long hairs, the black goods with this finish being very handsome, and these are made up almost invariably in skirt and coat style. Soleil cloth, much like a satin-finished ladies' cloth of light quality, is particularly adapted to costumes that are braided. This fabric is double width, and appears this season in very beautiful colorings. Braided is the rage, and even velvet and camel's-hair serge costumes are trimmed with rows of braiding, while the smooth cloths are fairly covered with it.

All the various shades of blue, green, gray, brown, besides black, are fashionable, but black leads in all the smooth-surfaced textiles. Woolens of wide diagonals, so lightly woven that they are not heavy, yet are of pure wool that makes them soft and pleasant to the touch, are chosen for useful winter gowns. There are so many ways of brightening up black gowns this season that almost everyone selects these wools in this color. Corselets, centures, short-jacket effects, fancy jacket-bodices, short capes made of two and sometimes three kinds of fur, or of velvet with fur accessories, are among the very popular garments of the season.

The new muffs are very large, so large indeed that slender chains will be used to hold them. They are made of velvet, fur, lace and ribbon, in hour-glass shape to match the gown, and their trimmings are of fur or plush, but of whatever fabric they are composed the shape is too large for either grace or real comfort. Grebe is considered one of the leading furs of the winter. It is so thick and warm-looking that it is ranked as a fur, but it is, of course, the skin of a bird of great beauty. Its rich, silvery effect against velvet is exceedingly handsome. It is also made up with sealskin, Persian lamb and Astrakhan.

All neck trimmings are still very high at the throat, and all ball gowns and other full-dress toilettes are cut very low, and the sleeves consist merely of large butterfly bows of satin ribbon, pointed caps or triple frills of diaphanous material. Many of the cloth capes are lined with lovely fancy silks or satins in soft contrasting colors, and when the hood is lined to correspond a very charming effect is produced, and there are many opportunities of showing the pretty lining, either by accident or design. A brown cloth cape lined with rose-colored fancy satin brocade has the hood similarly lined and bordered with dark-brown fur matching that which outlines the cape. A superb costume of moss-green corded silk trimmed with braiding and fur has a green velvet cape lined with rose-colored satin with large directoire muff to match, and a velvet toque trimmed with green plumes and shaded velvet roses.

Picture hats of velvet for dress wear are seen in every elegant and picturesque form. New French felt hats are in Amazon, Alpine and turban shapes. Virol trims pretty felt round hats with Rob Roy crowns of Scotch plaid silk. These look very stylish on youthful wearers, with green or blue cloth capes lined with a matching tartan.

KATE DUNHAM.

Gladstone's Versatility.

In all the stress and trouble of his long political career, says the Dramatic Mirror, Gladstone has never gave such evidence of his mental balance and his title to human admiration as he did the other day at Hawarden. He was judge and prize-giver at a competitive meeting of 25 brass bands. He heard them all play, and he was amiable to the last.

Ruskin once said: "Do not think of other's faults; in every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that, rejoice in it, and, as you can, try to imitate it."

EFFECT OF MUSIC.

The Nervous System Influenced by Different Kinds of Sounds.

The old story that Saul when out of temper used to summon David to play the harp, and found the music to be a sedative, may prove to be more than a simple historic incident, for both Charcot and Tarchanow have declared that musical sounds are a remedial agency in disease which no physician can afford to ignore, says the New York Herald.

Mr. Warthin, of Michigan, who has given a great deal of thought to this subject, asserts that different kinds of sounds are more effective than drugs in the cure of disease. For instance, he boldly assures us that the music of Valkyrie will increase perspiration, and, therefore, cure certain forms of ailment caused by checking its flow. The operative energy is not the music as such, but the peculiar vibrations made by it. Tannhauser, on the other hand, is a vibratory soporific and induces a serene state of mind and body.

M. Coriveaud, of Paris, asserts that violin playing is at least a temporary remedy for sciatica. He adduces the instance of a patient who found almost instant relief in that way and who successfully resorted to it whenever threatened with an attack.

Perhaps this is an appeal to the imagination, but what matters it if the patient is cured? Perhaps, again, there is a law hidden somewhere in the pile of apparent impossibilities—one which will some time be discovered for our benefit. We never smile with incredulity at anything in these wonder-working days.

IS ONLY FIVE BLOCKS LONG.

Trolley Line in Chicago Which Operates But One Car.

To the average Chicagoan a trolley line unconsciously suggests great distances. His city is so big. It will surprise many, therefore, to learn that a line actually in operation in the business district, the rolling stock of which runs a trifle less than five blocks.

This line, says the Chronicle, operates on Clark street and simply runs from Washington to Illinois street. Its rolling stock consists of one car, and its operatives include one conductor and one motorman. It is run for the special benefit of South Water street merchants who live on the north side, but is safe to say not one of these men in a thousand know that such is the case. As for the general public not one person in the thousand, know of its existence. Incidentally, too, the line is operated to retain the franchise.

"We give transfers to the cable line going north," said the conductor when asked for information, "but we don't transfer to any other cars."

"Have you many passengers each day?"

"Yes; we're crowded," he said, with a laugh. "Sometimes I get one—then again another."

Texas.

In the Agricultural line, Texas leads all other states in the variety of its products. Cotton, corn and the cereals grow and are raised in every section of the state and in the central and southern portions sugar cane and sorghum are profitably cultivated. On the Gulf Coast two and three crops of vegetables are raised each year. Berries are shipped six weeks in advance of the home crop in the north. Pears, peaches, plums, oranges, figs, olives and nuts all grow abundantly and can be marketed from two to three weeks in advance of the California crops. Large quantities of rice are now grown.

If the land seeker, the home seeker and the settler desires to secure a farm larger than the one he occupies, on vastly more reasonable terms; if he wants more land to cultivate, a greater variety of crops to harvest, with proportionately increased remuneration, at a less outlay for cost of production; if he wants an earlier season with correspondingly higher prices; if he wants milder winters, all the year pasturage for his stock, improved health, increased bodily comforts and wealth and prosperity, he should go to Texas.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

A THOUGHT THAT KILLED A MAN!

He thought that he could trifle with disease. He was run down in health, felt tired and worn out, complained of dizziness, biliousness, backaches and headaches. His liver and kidneys were out of order. He thought to get well by dosing himself with cheap remedies. And then came the ending. He fell a victim to Bright's disease! The money he ought to have invested in a safe, reliable remedy went for a tombstone.

Warner's Safe Cure

is the only standard remedy in the world for kidney and liver complaints. It is the only remedy which physicians universally prescribe. It is the only remedy that is backed by the testimony of thousands whom it has relieved and cured.

CINCINNATI FLYER.

Monon Route & C. H. & D.

The Monon has put on a fast flyer for Indianapolis and Cincinnati in connection with the C. H. & D. The train leaves Chicago, Dearborn Station, at 11:50 A. M., reaches Indianapolis at 4:37 and Cincinnati at 7:45 P. M., thus making the run, Chicago to Indianapolis, in four hours and forty-seven minutes, and Cincinnati in seven hours and fifty-five minutes. This is the fastest time made between Chicago and Indianapolis and Cincinnati by any line. The "Cincinnati Flyer" is equipped with elegant day coaches, the Monon celebrated high-backed seats, parlor car and dining car. City Ticket Office, 232 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

The Faults and Follies of the Age

Are numerous, but of the latter none is more ridiculous than the promiscuous and random use of laxative pills and other drastic cathartics. Love is the keystone of a woman's life. Her fondest hopes rest upon this tender emotion; her highest pride is in her capacity to awaken the love which makes a happy wife; her noblest ambition is to become a loved and loving mother.

Any weakness or disease which incapacitates her to fulfill the exalted function of motherhood is the saddest blight which can come upon a woman's life.

But there is no reason in nature why any hindrances or derangements of this kind should continue to exist. Ninety-nine times in a hundred they are completely overcome in a perfectly natural and scientific way by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which gives healthy power and capacity to the special organs; reinforces the nerve-centres and makes natural, healthy motherhood possible, safe and comparatively easy.

It makes the coming of baby almost free from pain; gives strength and cheerfulness to the mother, and constitutional vigor to the child. It is the only medicine in the world devised for this one purpose by an educated physician, a skilled and experienced specialist in this particular field of practice.

"I cannot say enough in praise of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as it has done me a world of good, and has, undoubtedly saved my life," writes Mrs. Florence Hunter, of Corley, Logan Co., Ark. "I miscarried four times; could get no medicine to do me any good. I concluded to try the 'Favorite Prescription' and after taking several bottles of it I made my husband a present of a fine girl. I think it is the best medicine in the world."

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Wheat was up to 74 cents on Tuesday. In gold.

—Watch the poultry markets and sell your surplus when prices are highest.

—Mrs Billlings is doing quite a business in manufacturing candy. The merchants claim her goods sell, ahead of all others.

—O. L. Billings auctioned off a lot of household furniture for J. S. Cooper Fair Day. Some of that left over from the hotel business.

—Thanksgiving is hastening on. It will probably be appointed for Nov. 26. Our people have much to be thankful for, good crops, plenty to eat; fine weather; good health; and the Presidential election out of the way.

—On Monday the first fall of snow of any consiquence occured. The ground was frozen hard the roads being quite rough. It would require several inches of the beautiful to make first class sleighing.

LATER.--We got it.

—When one farmer is more successful than another is, in disposing of what he has to sell to the best advantage, he reads the papers watches the markets, gets his produce, stock or what is for sale into the best condition and gets the cream of the markets.

—Frank Crammer, Delano's oldest butcher wants to see you before you sell your Poultry, your Fat Cttves, your Hogs, Beeves and HIDES. He is doing a shipping business in connection with the home shop. Highest prices for every thing in his line.

—Mr. Doyl, the apple merchant, from Howard Lake still holds out, notwithstanding papers were issued for his arrest for selling without a license, $15. per day. He got arround that by renting a room for $4 a month for six months thereby securing the privelege of remaining six months for $24, when two days would have cost him $30, for license.

—Rev J. L. Farber preached to a fair sized audience on Sunday evening. His text was taken from Acts Chap. 3, ver. 6. He delivered a good sermon. The choir, composed of Messrs Soper and Hawker and Mesdames Buckley and Farber with Mrs. Stewart at the organ render some very fine music. Fverybody is welcome to church every Sunday night.

--Rev. Thomas McClary is still delivering his interesting and instructive lectures through the country. He draws good houses and people speak of his lectures as being something out of the regular rut. Rev Farber is trying to get a date set for this place. If he succeeds don't fail to hear the lecture. Mr. McClary is one of the most noted of Minnesota's lecturers today.

—On Tuesday the gold began to circulate in Delano. The creamery checks were paid in the yellow metal, and great big chunks of "confidence" appeared to go along with some of the piles. The gold then was hoarded by those who had it. It was still in this country; and ready to circulate when its owners were willing to allow it to do so, or when by circumstances they were forced to use it.

—The coal barons, in their greed raised the price of coal, City people returned to the use of wood. Consebuently, wood has been in demand at a little better prices than for sometime and unless the prices of coal soon come down the probabilities are that the coal barons will have coal to sell cheap in the spring. Good maple wood is not all gone yet and it makes quite a comfortable fire to warm by.

--On Sunday while working at some overhead shafting in the new press room of the Eagle, Andrew Hanseman fell, some staging breaking, and was precipitated to the cement floor, sustaining a compound, comminunted fracture of the right leg near the ankle. Surgical assistance was summoned and the fractured member placed in as comfortable a condition as possible, and Andrew carried home. It will be several weeks, at best, before he will be able to work.

—The Delano Literary Society is really a success for this winter. A brief programme has been volunteered for next Tuesday evening when the first meeting will be held at the City Hall, and an organization effected. Nothing our villagers could do would add more to their edjoyment and instruction for one evening in the week. It will give old and young a place to go one night in the week and furnish them something to think about and talk about for the other days. Everybody be present.

—On Saturday another row occurred in town in which Willman Hillman very uncermoniously disposed of several assailants. Afterwards while walking up street he felt someone strike him on the back quite a sharp blow but payed little attention to it till he reached home a couple of miles out of town, when he found that he had been stabbed in the back; the weapon going through his clothes, suspender, shirts and flesh down to the shoulder blade. Pete Koisko is charged with the stabbing. The police authorities should be careful of rows on Fair Days; or the saloons should be closed.

--Prof. R. M. Bohn has neatly decorated the interior of his tonsorial parlor. August Sieloff did the job.

—The Epworth League will give an observation social at the home of Mrs. Jonas Johnson on Friday evening Nov. 13th. All are invited to attend.

ENGLISH BIMETALLISTS SEIZE TIME BY THE FORELOCK.

Claim McKinley's Election is a Victory for Inteznational Bimetallism.

LONDON, Nov. 5.—A meeting of the members of the bimetallic league has been in session all the afternoon engaged in the work of drawing up a manifesto. Members from Birmingham, Manchester and elsewhere are in attendance. The document, which will be issued tonight, is signed by Messrs. A. L. Denham, H. R. Greenfel, Robert Barclay, H. C. Gibbles, and H. MacNeil. It claims that McKinley's election is a victory for international bimetallism, and quotes the money plank of the St. Louis platform. Continuing it says:

"In these circumstances and in view of the strong agitation for free silver or natural bimetallism, in state and fact, this agitation is likely to be maintained and developed, and a genuine and determined effort upon the part of the new government may be confidently anticipated to bring about an international bimetallic agreement for the opening of the mints of the various countries to silver as well as to gold. The recent contests has brought home to the people of this country the vital importance of the monetary question, the graye dangers which threaten the industrial, commercial and financial interests of Great Britain so long as it is not settled on international lines.

"The unreasonable attitude of this country in the past in the efforts to arrange a settlement is mainly responsible for the attempt just witnessed to induce the consequent unrest and disturbance in commerical and financial circles. Therefore it is earnestly hoped that the country and the other great powers of Europe will heartily cooperate with the United States in their endeavor to place the metallic money of the world upon a permanent, sound and scientific basis."—Minneapolis Times.

DIED.

ZAWODZKI—At Minneapolis, on Saturday, Nov. 7, Rev. Lawrence Zawodzki, age 49 years.

The funeral was held from the Catholic church in Delano, Tuesday, and was largely attended; the St Anthony Benevolent Society, the Young Ladies Society and the congregation, with many friends from abroad, including a number of priests were in attendence.

ONE OF NEW YORK'S LEADING DRESSMAKERS SAYS:

The small waist is no longer fashionable; I have just returned fron Paris, and the most modish customs there provide for a waist about twenty-five inches around. Of course the American women, who follow the French closely, are adopting the new style. Those who are extremely fashionable are determined to have a waist of twenty-five inches, irrespective of what their normal waist measure may be. Personally I don't believe that the style will be a becoming one, although gowns will be made so as to make it as attractive as possible. It will be so very much more comfortable, however, than the small waist, that I think it will be more lasting than fashions usually are. The active out-of-dore life fashionable women are now leading makes the small waist almost an inposibility. But Dame Fashion is never althogether sensible. She particularly offsets her favor of the large waist by the discarding of the puffed sleaves, which everybody will admit are very much more comfortable than the tight sleaves which will be worn by modish women this winter.—From "The Passing of the Small Waist," in Demorests Magazine for November.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

REV. HULL, of St. Paul, was sentenced to six years, at Stillwater, for attempting to poison his wife.

WE are in receipt of a neat little "Everybody's Medical Guide" by M. D. (London). The work is well written, and manny useful points given: the principle good advice being to call a physican. Many people rely to long on their medical gnides, and negiect to call a physician until the patient is beyond the help of man or medicine.

THE National Democratic party failed in Minnesota and in most of the other states to cast one per cent of the entire vote of the state, thereby enabling them to secure a place on the ticket next time. They wanted McKinley so badly that they voted for him and will have to continue in the Republican ranks, come back to the Democrats, Populists or Prohibs, or petition again for a place on the ticket.

GEN MILES recommends that the army be enlarged. That a few thousands men be added to the present force. What do we want an army for? Whenever we have a big army to back up our Statesmen the latter are apt to grow saucy to our neighbors, and some use would be found for our big army. As it has been things can be settled amicably better than by war, and in case of necessity every patriotic citizen is a thorough bred soldier in a few days.

SEVERAL thousand of Minnesota's citizens, it seems voted to disfranchise themselves. At the election recently held several constitutional ammendments were attached to the ticket. One was to require a voter to be a full citizen of the United States, by having secured his "second papers" at least three months before election. It would stand our foreign born voters in hand to familiarize themselves with the citizenship laws before voting "yes" on any more "disfranchsing" questions. The legislature will have to pass upon the question. Some of our voters will be mad if they are disfranchised.

Submit to the Majority.

Mr. Bryan shows himself unpatriotic by his manifest indisposition to submit to the will of the majority and his announced determination to continue the agitation for a monetary policy which the people have condemned.—Minneapolis Tribune.

Did the Tribune and the G. O. P. submit to the majority when they were snowed under by the votes on McKinley and the McKinley bill? Or have they with Mr. McKinley hammered away until now they are in the saddle partially through their perseverance? Why should Mr. Bryan sit idly down any more then Mr. McKinly did four years ago.

Outrageous Law!

A special from St. Cloud to the St. Paul Despatch of the 16th inst. says: "Saturday morning, M. G. Weyraus of St. Cloud town, came to the city and reported to Judge of Probate Hubert Hausen, that an old, feeble minded negro had been hiding in the woods near the farm of Edward Georger for several days." It was claimed the old negro thoughe he was a slave still, had escaped his master and shuned while people, is clothed in rags, and camping out in the woods. The Dispatch further says: "The Probate Judge has taken no steps in the matter on the ground that he has no jurisdiction until some one files an affidavit with him in writing as to the mental condition of the unfortunat man. The farmers are anxious something be done, fearing that he will freeze to death." It seems as if in a case of this kind, some official should feel it his duty to ask the poor old negro to comein out of the cold, without waiting for a complaint to be made. Where are the town suoervisors whose business it is to look after poor or sick, and needy? A few days delay, these cold night might cause the death of the poor old man, Then who would be to blame?

The Hutchinson Leader estimates that Bryan lost 40,000 votes in Minnesota on account of the fraudulent gold ticket that was given a place on the official ballot by Republican Secretary of State Berg, and paid for by Republican campaign funds. In three townships alone in McLeod county, 175 votes were lost to Bryan from this cause. Litchfield Independent.

A Slick Scheme.

"The Dispatch would respectfully suggest that Congress and Grover Cleveland, President, join hands in December and January and clean up the greenback. There are several hundred millions of dollars worth in circulation. Issue bonds bearing 2½ per cent. interest and retire all the greenbacks and in their place increase the national bank issues. The gold panics then would be a thing of the past. It would not hurt Grover as he is just about retiring from the presidency, and it would embarrass McKinly, as it would be out of the way before his administration and Congress got in. New York Dispatch.

The Dispatch is working a slick scheme "It would not hurt Grover," and "it would embarass McKinly" it says, to hurry up and get rid of the greenbacks. How does the Dispath know that Grover want be the coming man for President next time on the Gold Standard National Democratic ticket with the Republican Gold men to help him? Perhaps he don't care to take any chances of that hurting him.

16 Republicans to 1 Democrat.

Nearly all the papers in the state are commenting on the fact that so many solidly republican counties turned down good men for sheriff by voting for the democratic nominee. The Republican papers don't think it looks right and the Democratic papers don't approve of it either. It looks to us as if it was another Mike Doran job, to keep a head to the National Democrats in each county. If it shonld turn out that each one of them is a Gold Standard man it would look more so.

The St. Peter Herald says it's a fact "That democrats had a particular fascination for the office of sheriff this fall. In at least a dozen counties, that was the only office they got."

The office of sheriff seems peculiarly a Democratic perquisite. In lots of counties the full Republican ticket was elected excepting the sheriff, which went to the Democratic candidates. Sherburne County Star News.

Strange coincidence that which happened in Ramsey, Hennepin and Wright counties at the late election and may happen in Anoka county. Each county elected republican officials except in the case of sheriff and each county elected a democratic sheriff. Is there any significance in this?—Delano Eagle.

The republican county ticket receives the usual majority except Hill for auditor, who was badly scrasched in the lower end of the county, but was ahead in this end. Gilman for sheriff was also slaughtered, and defeated. These two men should have received the support of every republican in the county. They are both old time republicans, there records are good and they have done valiant service for the party in former campaigns, and just why they should have been used in this manner is beyond our comprehension. Mr. Hill is a man thoroughly qualified for the office of Auditor and Mr. Gillman's friends in the republican stronghold of Santiago, had a reason to expect better treatment for their candidate. It is no credit to the party and we predict that it will be regretted in the future. Sherburn County Times.

ST. PAUL, Nov. 10.—Governor Clough was at the capitol yesterday for the first time since the election. Shortely after his arival word was passed through the capitol that his excellency was on hand, and the other officials in the building at once wended their way to the governor's room to pay their respects and add their congratulations. Through the day people of all political beliefs called on the governor to offer congratulations. In an interview he said:

"Some of the papers have been disposed to make a great hullabaloo over the fact that McKinley's majority was something over 40,000 while my majority dwindled down to less than 5000. This is not a fair way to consider this matter. As a matter of fact, the difference between the vote cast for McKinley and that cast for me was only about 20,000. Again, the fact seems to be overlooked that I polled the largest vote ever cast for a governor in this state. I ran 17,000 ahead of the vote cast for Knute Nelson two years ago, when the latter went in on a republican landslide. I make these comparisons not in any invidious spirit, but, as a matter of simple justice."—Duluth Herald.

While Mr. Bryan is "devoting the next four years to free silver" the rest of us will occupy ourselves with what business we can get hold of.—Duluth News Tribune.

"Retire the Greenback!" is the cry now going up strongly from the banking interests. Congress will have to accede to this demand from the bankers or there will be troublous times for the McKinley cohorts. The financiers have the whip in hand and they intend to use power to get such chages in the banking laws as they desire. Litchfield Independent.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov., 13, 1896.

While President Cleveland may have failed in many things that he has undertaken, his administration has just won the greatest diplomatic victory in the history of our country. The negotiations, now completed, of the treaty providing for the submission to arbitration of the Venezuela boundry dispute involves a full recognition of the Monroe doctrine by Great Britain, and consequently by the rest of the world, and complies with every demand maid by this government. The extent of this diplomatic victory may be comprehended best by remembering that Venezuela has been trying to get Great Britain to arbitrate the dispute for more than fifty years and now the other party to the arbitration is not to be Venezuela but the United States Members of the diplomatic corps say the credit for this victory is more largely due to Secretary Olney than to President Cleveland. No matter to who credit is due, it is a matter for every patriotic American to rejoice over. Beginning with Monroe every President of the United States has asserted the right of this country to interfere to prevent the forcible acquisition of territory of this continent by a foreign power, but never until now has that right been recognized by a European nation.

The republican circus promises to open with the re-assembling of Congress, instead of waiting for the inauguration of McKinley, and the performance is likely to be continuous, and from the number of clowns who will appear it ought to be uproriously "funny." The fun may not materialize, but the uproar can be counted upon as a dead certainty.

Ex-Secretarry Hoke Smith was in Washington this week on legal business. He said he was out of politics for the time being and was not a candidate for the Senate, because the voters of his state decided that the man elected to succeed Senator Gordon must be a silver man.

Senator Morgan evidently thinks that the interview with Chairman Dingley of the House Ways and Means committee which was telegraphed all over the country was given for the purpose of notifying the country that the Dingley tariff bill would not be passed by the Senate at the coming session of Congress, because of the opposition of silver Senators. As one of the silver Senators Mr. Morgan said: "If the Dingley tariff bill, so called doesn't pass the Senate this winter it will be the fault of the republicans. I have no hesitation in saying I will not oppose it, although I would not say that I will vote for it. The Dingley bill, or the Reed bill, whatever you may choose to call it, is only a makeshift and the manufactures of the east do not really want it. I do not expect to see it pass. It seems to me very likely that this will be a case of the engineer hoist by his own petard. The matter of tariff legislation at the coming session depends very much upon whether the republicans really desired to pass the Dingly bill. I have had no talk at any time with any Senators regarding their probable attitude toward the measure in the event of its being brought before the Senate this winter, but so far as I am personally concerned they may have their way with it. I would like to see it presented to Mr. Cleveland. He might feel sufficiently grateful to Mr. McKinley for praising and upholding his financial policy to forgive the severe reproof which the Republican party administered to him at the St. Louis convention, and to aid the republicans now in getting through their two-year Dingley bill. I am afraid the republicans will have to offer a great many apologies to the west for their failure to pass such a measure, and I do not propose that any of them shall be charged to me."

The president of the Lakeland Democratic Club, which did effective work in the campaign just closed, and which is to continue its organization, gives his idea of the situation thusly: If Maj. McKinley succeeds in restoring good times permanently, and demonstrates that his theory is correct, of course, we will have no fight. We will be benefited and glad to acknowledge it; but it is our belief that Maj. McKinley cannot overcome immutable natural laws. His proposed policy offers no encouragement. Business cannot revive unless more money is put in circulation. The retirement of the greenbacks will not do this. Therefore, we are organizing now to stay further encroachment on popular rights; and the campaign of patriotic education will go on, and four years hence we will wave the victorious democratic banner."

"There is just one thing", remarked a republican Senator, "which to my mind, makes it certain that neither ex-President Harrison nor Speaker Reed will be members of McKinley's cabinet; they are both too big, mentally, to play subordinates to McKinley, and nobody knows it any better than McKinley himself. He may tender Cabinet portfolios to both men, in fact, I feel assured that he will; but it will be done merely as an act of goodwill, and not with the slightest expectation that either man will accept."

A great many people are asking what Senator Butler did in the recent campaign to give him the enormous head he is exhibiting these days. He has developed a mania for keeping himself before the public by talking rot to newspaper reporters, who, of course, print it. They always enjoy seeing a public man make a show of himself.

Monday's Pioneer Press said that Minnesota's election law was defective with regard to getting quick and correct returns. We think that the tinkering ought to commence way back at the primaries for they are far more unsatisfactory than the old caucus system.—Litchfield News-Ledger.

Wm. Jennings Bryan made a wonderful impression on the people during his tour of the country, and his strong personality, his magnetic oratory and his brilliant campaign against great odds made him thousands of friends. Mr. Bryan made the reputation of being America's leading orator.—Eden Vally Journal.

Lind carried his own home and also his opponent's home, both New Ulm and Minneapolis giving him big majorities. And he carried Swift county by 537 majority. The people of this county were non-partisan enough to give the best man a good majority, even if the state as a whole failed to do its duty.—Swift County Monitor.

Rev. James M. Thoburn, missionary bishop of the Methodist Episcopal church to India and Malaysia, and well known in Duluth, in a recent conversation at Rochester N. Y. stated that as a consequence of the failure of the wheat crop many families in India are selling their children for 10 cents a apiece, not so much for the small amount of money as to have fewer mouths to feed. Duluth Herald.

Among our Exchanges.

Clough grabbed hold of McKinley's coat tails and pulled through. It was a tight squeeze.—Dassel Anchor.

Leaving Platt off the list of guests invited to celebrate victory with Hanna does not leave him off the list of bosses of New York.—N. Y. World.

A change of less than 26,000 votes would have added nine States to the Bryan column and defeated McKinley. what sort of an avalanche do you call that?—St Cloud Times.

The campaign just ended was the greatest political struggle in recent years, and the Republican party achieved the greatest victory in its history.—Atkin Republican.

The people of the country will not agree with Gen. Miles that a larger standing army is needed. The army is now large enough for all practical purposes.—Duluth News Tribune.

If William McKinley can do so much toward reviving trade in one week, what may be expected of President McKinley after four years in the White House?—Duluth News Tribune.

Alexander Stephens Clay, who will succeed Gen Gordon as senator from Georgia, is a free silver man. He is the present chairman of the Democratic state executive committee. Duluth Herald.

It is pleasing to learn from sources close to Mr. McKinley that William R. Merriam will not be given a place in his cabinet. The president-elect aims to construct a popular cabinet.—Duluth Herald.

The press of Minneapolis are united for once on the outrage it would be to have Merriam appointed to the cabinent. Stick a pin there. But Merriam will probably be appointed all the same. Stick another pin there.—Peny Press.

The moment McKinley's election was insured, the Minneapolis banks commenced to pay out in gold. And in our village the first check presented on Thursday was payed in gold. So much for confidence.—Wright County Times.

The gold democrats should receive a reward of merit for there noble support of the nation's honor at the polls on the 3rd. It is estimated that the votes cast by them will easily reach the quarter of amillion mark.—Cokato Enterprise.

The bonds that were sold to the Morgan syndicate at 104½ are now worth in the open Market 120. They were worth about that price when they were sold for so much less. Comment seems to be superfluous.—New York World.

It ought to be apparent to all democrats by this time, that the only hope for democracy is in democracy. Fusion with all the isms extent cannot help us even to get the offices. And each attempt only serves to degrade our principles.—Wabasha Democrate.

All honor to the faculity of Cornell for expelling a gang of cowardly hazers. A workhouse term, in addition to expulsion, would make the punishment exactly fit the crime. A ruffian is a ruffian, be he student or loafer.—Minneapolis Times.

Senator Davis and Ex-Gov. Merriam are after a cabinet position under McKinley. It is also reported that Merriam may give in providing Gov. Clough will appoint him Davis' successor in the Senate. It's the "old state ring over again."—Chaska Valley Herald.

Fully 400 Bryan votes were thrown out in this county, both sets of democrotic presidential electors having been marked on the ballot. It makes no difference as far as the national ticket is concerned, but it undoubtedly elected Clough governor.—Chaska Valley Herald.

Connecticut voted for the trusts and government by injuction, and immediately following the election her supreme judges issued an injuction forbidding an electrict railroad to compete with a steam line, and then the people to be benefited howled. That was strange.—Penny Press.

It is now stated by the gold standard McKinley papers that General Bragg, of Wisconsin, will be appointed by Major McKinley as secretary of war as a reward for the aid given by the corporation and gold standard democrats who voted in a body for McKinly. Tis well! The monopolists are getting together, as even the blindest partisans may yet be able to see. Waseca Harald.

The emergence of gold from its hiding place since the election is expected to operate to arrest the increase of national bank circulation. During the stringency caused by the campaign there was an increase of this form of circulation from $204,925,393 on Feb. 25, 1895, to $234,897,657 on Oct. 31, 1896. The circulation by bonds increased from $176,485,062 to $216,510,014. The tendency to increase the paper circulation is already checked as the hoarded gold comes back into use. It is note worthy that the bonds issued recently have not been much used to increase circulation. Of the $362,000,000 new bonds, but $53,000,000 have been used by the banks, while their total holding of bonds on Oct. 31, 1896, was $241,108,350.—Minneapolis Times.

A woman has been elected to the state senate in Utah.—Duluth Herald.

Major McKinley received the largest majority ever given to a presidential canbidate and yet a change of 24,000 votes properly distributed in certain close states would have given the presidency to Bryan. Many people are in favor of so changing our constitution that presidents be elected by a popular vote and this incident seems to justfy that position. Any law that makes it possible to put a man in the presidential chair who is snowed under by over a million votes should be eradicated from the statute book.—St. Peter Free Press.

McGary Again.

INDEPENDENCE, Nov. 18th. 1896

EDITOR: We have had something of a winter and a good many people are talking of fleeing to the mountains not many of the farmers are ready for winter yet, there is a good deal of corn in the field yet.

They are finishing work on the Maple Plain Creamery and it will be ready for two or three weeks.

We learn that the parties that went up to Little Falls last week to look for land met with success, and will move up there soon as they can make arrangements.

Your correspondent in company with a large delegation from Maple Plain went to Minneapolis first of last week to attend a lawsuit-Cox and Batdorf against the town of Independence, in regard to damage for cart way. F. H. Lindsley, of Delano, appeared for the complainant and S. B. Howard for the defence. After staying there two days and taking in the sights around the new court house, the parties came to a settlement and we returned hone by way of the Great Northern Wednesday evening. In Looking at that great mammoth building (The New Court House) which is put there as much for name and a show as anything: these words run in my mind, "Master, see what manner of stones and what buildings are here" "Jesus answering said unto him, Seest though these great buildings? there shall not be left one stone upon another that shall not be thrown down." In the building of this new court house two monuments have been made, one of stone and another of a debt that will be perpetual. Will the future generations rise up and call it blessed? I think not.

The man who voted for Mark Hanna and Bill McKinley is still hurrahing for McKinley had better stop now, and deliver the goods as you have promised.

The Camp of Israel have been in great confusion over the great Shekels of Silver and Wedge of Gold. The Bankers af England and Wall Street came to New York with very much gold and precious stones, and presented to Mark Hanna and Bill McKinley 6,840 pounds troy of gold. Let us have confidence now while England and the money power is taking the hide but we will hold on to the tail a while yet. It seems to me that the poor man has been the tail to the rich man's kite long enough. If the republicans had run their campaign on Abraham Lincoln principles we would have said amen, and acquires to such principles, but the principles of Mark Hanna are far different than that of Lincoln.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

Two states of the union—Wyoming and Nevada—have less than one inhabitant to the square mile.

Australia has no orphan asylums. Every child who is not supported by parents becomes a ward of the state, and is paid a pension for support, and placed in a private family, where board and clothes are provided until the 14th birthday.

Mathematical calculations show that an iron ship weighs 27 per cent. less than a wooden one, and will carry 115 tons of cargo for every 100 tons carried by a wooden ship of the same dimensions and both loaded to the same draft of water.

A Washington man has performed the trick of lighting a cigar with a piece of ice by forming of it a double convex lens and focusing the sun's rays through it on the roll of tobacco. Ice will not be introduced, however, as a substitute for matches. Not many people have "ice to burn," and the sun is not always shining.

The farmers who last year were unable to even give away their potatoes have no such unpleasant alternative confronting them this year. Not only is the crop in this country only fair, which would of itself insure good prices, but now comes the news that England and Ireland will need American potatoes, because of the shortage of their own crops.

Only five railway passengers were killed in accidents in Great Britain and Ireland during 1895, while in this country the number killed during the same period was 170. Within a few years English railway managers have borrowed many ideas from Americans, but they have not yet adopted the policy of "taking your chances on accident and then taking your chances in court."

Twenty-three colleges in the United States were founded before the beginning of this century. Among the leading ones are: Harvard, 1636; William and Mary, 1693; Yale, 1701; University of Pennsylvania, 1740; Princeton, 1746; Washington and Lee, 1749; Columbia, 1754; Brown, 1764; Rutgers, 1766; Dartmouth, 1769; Hampden-Sidney, 1775; Washington (Md.), 1782, and Dickinson, 1785.

A 300-acre ranch in California has been given to the Salvation Army that it may try the experiment of reclaiming ex-convicts by teaching them methods of honest industry. The plan is by no means new, nor have similar experiments met with much success in the past. But the salvationists are certainly well qualified to carry out a project of this kind, and if they succeed they will undoubtedly be able to secure land for similar purposes in every state in the union.

If Senator Morrill lives to the end of the term which he is now serving—that is, till March 3, 1897—he will have served five full terms in the senate, which no man has yet done. Many people think that Thomas H. Benton served for five full terms, but this is not a fact. Benton served from the time of Missouri's admission to the union until March 3, 1851, but, as Missouri did not become a state till August, 1821, it is seen that Benton did not serve for five full senatorial terms.

The Welsh are now doing a bit of claiming — they claim Shakespeare. They have found that the poet had a grandmother, or great-grandmother, whose name was Griffith, a Celtic-Welsh family of strong traits. They are claiming others also. In fact they are trying to prove that English literature is not English, or Anglo-Saxon, but Welsh or Celtic. The Welsh might as well claim them all as the English. It amounts to the same thing. We are the heirs of them all.

In some things the Japanese point of view is very different from that of other countries, and especially is this true in regard to railway laws. The track of the Kama-Kura railway is not fenced in, and crossings rarely have gates. A boy carrying a child on his back, straying on the line, was recently knocked down by an engine, and both boy and child were killed. Thereupon the railway company prosecuted the father for allowing his children to trespass, and he was fined ten yen. Some time ago, at Osaka, a cow was run over, and the owner was fined 200 yen, besides losing his cow.

A San Francisco school-teacher says that by observing how the hair grows on the heads of the boys placed under her charge she can tell a great deal about their character and ability. She thinks that when there is a single point on the central line of the scalp just back of the top of the head around which the hair is arranged in a well-defined circle, gradually and regularly widening, then the owner of the head is well behaved and intelligent, while if the point is ill-defined, and especially if there are several of them, the chances are that the child is stupid, vicious or both. There are exceptions to all rules.

Considerable apprehension has been excited among Bostonians of a certain sort by the persistence of rumors about a plan for confining the city's liquor saloons to a prescribed territory outside of the residential districts. Nobody seems to know just how or why or by whom this scheme is to be carried out, but as Boston has few or no districts in which very considerable numbers of people do not live, those for whom a convenient saloon is regarded as a necessary condition of existence show an angry irritation that such a project should have advanced far enough even to have become a topic of conversation.

Commuted.

Bismarck, N. D., Nov. 17.—After one of the most remarkable legal fights in the annals of the Northwest, the life of Myron R. Kent, twice ordered taken by the jury for the murder of his wife at Mandan, in March, 1894, has been spared, and he will pass the remainder of his days in the penitentiary at Bismarck, where is also lodged Tom Swidensky, the ignorant Bohemian who pleaded guilty to actual murder, and accused Kent of being instigator of the crime.

This decision was reached by Gov. Allin tonight after two days of exhaustive argument, in which Judge W. B. McDonnell, M. A. Hildrith, attorney for Kent, and H. G. Voss, attorney for Morton county, where the crime was committed, participated. And to McConnell, who, as trial judge in the cause, appeared before the governor and made a special plea for the condemned man, Kent owes his escape from the gallows.

DUN SEES IMPROVEMENT.

Says Industrial Situation Is Bright—Wheat a Factor.

New York, Nov. 14.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"No one now doubts that a brighter day is dawning, and it is common remark that never before has business shown so great a change for the better within a single week. Dispatches telling of about 500 works which have opened or materially enlarged their forces, give only a partial report, for throughout the country the gain has been surprising even to the most hopeful.

"Foreign need of American wheat continues an important factor, and the price went to 88 cents, gaining 6 cents for one week, 10 cents for two weeks, and 24 cents since early in September. The price is the highest since June, 1892. Western receipts were only 4,494,033 bushels, against 8,202,854 last year, but the election cut off much work during the days in which these receipts were started to market.

"Many textile works have been started or increased in force, many on orders booked weeks ago. But there has not been much increase in the demand. After purchases of 46,000,000 pounds of wool in five weeks, the transactions fell to 6,243,700 pounds last week, but prices were strong and in some grades 1 cent higher, and even greater advance is demanded at the west, while foreign markets are higher and Australian fully 1 cent per pound up. The market for cotton goods is not yet active, but more liberal estimates of the cotton crop are generally credited, causing an ⅛-cent decline to 8 cents.

"The output of iron furnaces in blast November 1 was 124,077 tons weekly, having been increased 11,295 tons, or 10 per cent. in the latter part of October, by confidence in the future. All the markets were stronger, although the enormous purchases of pig iron in advance of needs causes comparative inactivity at present. Plates and steel bars are $1 to $3 per ton higher, and sheets in better demand. Anthracite and Bessemer pig have advanced a shade and the average of prices is 2½ cents higher.

"The change in the money market is striking. Instead of $2,500,000 going out to the interior, as before, $2,500,000 have come in this week; instead of 80 cents discount, New York exchange at Chicago is at 70 cents premium; instead of merchants and manufacturers vainly hunting lenders, banks are hunting for more commercial paper. Commercial rates are down to 5 per cent. on best paper. Foreign exchange is higher, owing to sales of $4,000,000 government bonds taken by the Bank of England as a member of the syndicate early in 1895, to payments of $3,000,000 sterling loans, and to foreign realizing on $2,000,000 of securities, but all these are in effect taking profits for confidence in American honor.

TO OPEN UP CHINA.

American and English Capital to Build 2,300 Miles of Railway.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Nearly $1,000,000 capital already has been subscribed and plans are already being matured for the formation in Chicago within two weeks of a gigantic commercial company which is to enter the field of Chinese trade before the end of the month as the rival of the American Trading company, and eventually to obtain control of American trade in China.

Greater than the plans for the trading company, however, is a stupendous scheme for developing miles and miles of steam and street railways in China, lighting its chief cities with electricity, dredging its harbors and engaging in public improvements that mean profits to the syndicate of millions of dollars.

Two Englishmen are directing the formation of the syndicate from opposite sides of the globe. One of them is now in Chicago concluding the deal and the other is in China, where a personal acquaintance with Li Hung Chang and the members of the Tsung Li Yamen will be the basis, it is expected, of the power of the corporation.

The object for which the English-American-Chinese Railway Construction company was formed is one of the most stupendous railway projects ever entertained by any country. Its completion will mean 2,800 miles of railway in operation in the Flowery Kingdom, equipped with the most improved appliances and rolling stock and most of the equipment furnished by American manufacturers.

RECEIVER NAMED.

Affairs of the Vandalia System Placed in Control of the Court.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 14.—Judge Woods, of the United States circuit court, on Friday evening appointed a receiver for the Terre Haute & Indianapolis Railway company, naming as receiver Volney T. Malott, president of the Indiana national bank. The receiver was appointed upon the suit of Mark T. Cox, James A. Blair and James W. Paul, Jr., against the company, and the ground for the receivership was the admission of the company in court that it is insolvent. The Vandalia has been known as one of the most prosperous railroads of the country, and until a year ago, when it passed into the control of the Pennsylvania company, which purchased the majority of its stock, it met its dividends and all charges with the utmost promptness. During the hearing Friday Judge Woods remarked in court upon the peculiar fact that all the attorneys seemed to desire a receiver, and he did not make up his mind to appoint one until in the evening. Some of the parties interested in securities of the system who were not made parties in interest are declaring that the suit is a collusive one for the purpose of freezing them out and selling the system to the Pennsylvania at a low figure.

STRIKERS VICTORIOUS.

Railway Company Settles with Them for a Damage Suit.

Milwaukee, Nov. 17.—The damage suits of John O'Rourke and Robert Blair against the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway company and E. W. McKenna, formerly assistant general superintendent of the company, were settled Monday morning. The suits grew out of the great railway strike of 1894, and were for $6,000. The St. Paul company pays the plaintiffs a sum that is satisfactory and has secured in return a release of all claims mentioned in the complaint. The amount of money that passed is held strictly confidential, by agreement. O'Rourke and Blair were among the members of the American Railway union who were arrested in July, 1894, upon warrants issued by Court Commissioner Bloodgood, charging them with obstructing the United States mails and with conspiracy to defeat the ends of the interstate commerce laws.

Fate of a Brutal Negro.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 16.—A special to the Sun from McKenzie, Tenn., says: Saturday, about sundown, Miss Bettie Seals, a white girl about 14 years old, and an orphan, who lived on the Frank Jones farm in Henry county, 2½ miles from this place, was assaulted and outraged by a negro named Charles Allen. The dastard first choked his victim into insensibility, but as soon as she regained consciousness she gave the alarm and a posse captured Allen, took him a mile from town and his body was there riddled with buckshot. The back of the skull was blown off and he fell to the roadside, where his body was left.

TWO SPEECHES.

Bryan Opens the 1900 Silver Campaig Off for a Holiday Trip.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 15.—William Jennings Bryan delivered two speeches in Lincoln Saturday afternoon and evening, which had previously been announced as the opening guns of the political campaign of 1900. Mr. Bryan in the afternoon talked to an audience of ladies at the Funke theater, composed of 1,350 members of the Mary Bryan club. A synopsis of his remarks follows:

He said he was personally glad to talk to believers in the gold standard and had frequently had to disagree politically with his oldest and best friends. He believed now, as always, that every man, woman and child has the inherent right of free political belief and had no ill-will toward anyone who differed from him.

"We imitate what we admire," said the speaker. "The child's life tells what the man will be. I am glad to see the wives and mothers at last deeply and fully interested in the great political issues of the day. And if there is one motto I should wish to impress upon their minds and to have them carry away in their hearts to their home, that motto is this: 'That a government like ours, deriving its powers through and by the people, should be founded upon this principle, equal rights to all and special privileges to none.'

"The common people—the masses—those who are sometimes slightingly alluded to as the 'riff-raff' are the very people who fail to profit by special legislation. We do not mean to say that perfect equality can ever exist among the people—for that, my friends, depends largely upon character, energy, frugality, and those distinguishing traits in human beings which tend by natural agencies to raise one man above another. But what I do mean is that the common people, every man of them, shall enjoy the same legal privileges as those of greater financial power.

"That is why we enjoy our form of government, because there is justice to be had between man and man, when the right lawmakers are elected to represent the interests of the people. Now, in this last campaign, I advocated the restoration of bimetallism. Doubtless I have read more works against free silver than any speaker who opposed me on the stump. When I see the great money classes combine to make money dearer, I know it is because they mean to profit by it, and not because they love the people. And when I find that these are the ones who desire to continue the same system under which we have fallen upon these hard times, I want to do all in my power to frustrate their designs. If experience teaches us that our opponents are right we shall be able to enjoy and acquiesce in their victory and its fruits; if, on the contrary, they fail and we are left to prove them in the wrong, we shall at last convince them that our principle was the right one, and shall ask them to join us honestly."

Mr. Bryan at night delivered a brief address to the Traveling Men's Bryan clubs, the Veterans, and Bryan home guards, at the Funke opera house, and later spoke a few minutes at an overflow meeting at Bohannan's hall. His voice had practically failed him at the afternoon meeting, and he had not sufficiently regained the use of his vocal chords to speak long. He was accorded a warm welcome, and spoke very briefly, and in general terms, of the necessity of carryung on the work of free silver education and of maintaining their various organizations.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 17.—William J. Bryan arrived in this city Monday evening on a Missouri Pacific train. He remained at the Union station where he was met by Gov. Stone and the other members of the party who will accompany him on a hunting trip to southwest Missouri. At nine p. m. the party, consisting of W. J. Bryan, Gov. Stone, of Missouri; Senator Jones, of Arkansas; Congressman Campau, of Michigan; M. C. Wetmore, of St. Louis, and a number of other gentlemen prominent in business and politics, left on a St. Louis & San Francisco train for Taney county, Mo. The hunting preserve embraces 5,000 acres, well stocked with all kinds of game. Ten days will be spent there. Mr. Bryan's journey through Missouri Monday was almost as eventful as was his last speechmaking tour of the state. At every station he was greeted by large crowds and at several he could only satisfy the people by shaking hands.

JEWISH WOMEN.

First Convention of Their National Council Assembles in New York.

New York, Nov. 17. — The second day's session of the first convention of the National Council of Jewish Women was called to order Monday morning at ten o'clock in Tuxedo hall. Mrs. Hannah G. Solomon, president of the council, presided, and there was a large attendance of delegates.

The report of the recording secretary was then read by Mrs. Gertrude Berg, of Philadelphia, in the absence of Miss Carrie M. Wolf, of Chicago. It reviewed the history of the council and showed that it was the outgrowth of the women's congress at the world's fair. It stated that the two main committees are those of "religion" and "philanthropy," the principal lines of work of the council.

The sections of the council, which are subdivided into circles are from 400 to 500 in membership, and many have joined the federation of clubs in such states where a federation of clubs exists.

At the night session the first business was the reading of the report of the national corresponding secretary, Miss Sadie American, of Chicago. The report showed that the council has a membership of 4,000 and that much progress had been made in establishing sewing schools, girls' clubs, kindergartens, etc.

Treaty with Abyssinia.

Rome, Nov. 16.—It is officially stated that King Humbert has received a telegram from Menelik, emperor of Abyssinia, stating that a treaty of peace between Abyssinia and Italy was signed on October 26. The new convention abrogates the Uccialli treaty, by the terms of which Italy claimed a protectorate over Abyssinia and recognizes the complete independence of Ethiopia. Menelik declares free all the Italians taken prisoners by the Abyssinians during the recent campaign, but Italy will have to indemnify him for their support while in captivity. Maj. Nerazzi, the special envoy sent to Menelik by Gen. Baldissera, governor of Erythrea and commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in that colony, signed the treaty on behalf of Italy.

Power Transmitted to Buffalo.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 16.—At one minute after Sunday midnight Secretary W. B. Rankine, of the Niagara Falls Power company, turned the switch in the main power house of the company, connecting the monster 5,000-horse power dynamos with the transformers in the transformer house, which are in turn connected directly with the Buffalo Power Transmission line, and at that same instant the electric power of Niagara was for the first time sent out beyond the confines of the city and direct to Buffalo, a distance of some 22 miles. It was the grand finale in the long-heralded power transmission to Buffalo, and it was a success in every sense of the word.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

How It Was Done.

It may be of interest to about three or four thousand state, county and city candidates in the state of Minnesota that there goes into effect for the first time in Minnesota this fall a law, entitled, "An act to prevent corrupt practices in elections, to limit the expenses of candidates, to prescribe the duties of candidates and political committees, and to provide penalties and remedies for violation of this act."

Under the provisions of this act, every candidate, whether elected or not, must file with the proper officers within 30 days of Nov. 3 last, a statement of the amount expended by him during the recent election, giving the several items, the dates, the names of the persons to whom paid and the purpose for which paid. No successful candidate can receive a certificate of election until this campaign expense list is filed, and any person who fails to comply with the statute is liable to fine and perchance imprisonment.

Wholesale Slaughter of Game.

Special Agent A. L. Gray of the land department, who has just returned from a trip to the international boundary, reports running across a trader living 20 miles north of Tower, named Stephen Gheen, who makes a business of taking contracts for furnishing large lots of partridges. He is a veritable king in his way, employing Indians and half breeds in large numbers. Gheen has completed one contract of furnishing 5,000 birds this season, has almost completed another of the same size and is working on one of 8,000. Most of the birds killed are males. The contracts, ostensibly are for Minneapolis concerns, but it is believed that the birds are largely sent out of the state.

A Queer Bet.

A novel bet was made at Moorhead recently. Fred Snyder agreed with Babe Daubner, a prominent saloonkeeper, in the event of Lind's defeat to sit for two hour on the top of the railroad freight house. Daubner was to perform the same feat should Clough be defeated. Snyder carried out the wager, sitting on the warehouse the required time with the lowest temperature of the season. The settlement of the bet created much amusement to the citizen.

Four Paroles.

At the monthly meeting of the board of prison managers held at the prison four paroles were granted, one of the fortunate ones being a female. The cash receipts of the prison for the month of October for miscellaneous sources aggregated $38,223.41. Of this amount $34,712.75 was for collections on account of binder twine, making the total twine collections so far from Aug. 1 to Nov. 6, $77,825.92.

Louis Shapiro, a St. Paul pawnbroker, was arraigned in the municipal court at Minneapolis, charged with grand larceny in the first degree, the complainant being H. C. Strehlo, the tailor, whose store it is alleged Smith, Brown and Conners, the colored men arrested by Inspectors Hoy and Lawrence, broke into.

The inspectors allege the pawnbroker received all the goods stolen from them and that his place has been a "fence" to which the alleged burglars and thieves sent all their goods.

News in Brief.

The charter under which the new Northern Pacific Railway company will operate is rather an ancient document. Failing to secure a new charter by act of congress, the road will fall back upon a charter passed by the Wisconsin legislature in the session of 1870, or 26 years years ago. The original charter was granted to the Superior and St. Croix Railroad company, and it has proven a very valuable heirloom for the Northern Pacific people.

The Southern Minnesona Teachers' association held an interesting meeting at Mankato.

Adney Gladden, an 18-year old employe of a butcher shop at Winnebago City has fallen heir to $40,000 by the death of an uncle in Wisconsin.

The Red Lake Indians are complaining that the government has sold considerable pine land on the ceded part of the reservations as agricultural land at $1.25 an acre. As these sales are for the benefit of the Indians, they desire to get as much as possible from them.

One of the large dogs belonging to a traveling Uncle Tom's Cabin company attacked three little girls at Little Falls. The little daughter of H. H. Potter was thrown down and carried all the way from the school to the special car of the company, a distance of two blocks. She was not badly hurt.

Fire from a cracked chimney burned the house and barn of Thomas Clark at Montgomery.

No sooner had the election result been announced, than the Minneapolis banks began to be extravagant in their display of gold, and every bank in the city had no hesitancy in paying out their yellow metal. Gold was also deposited to a great extent, and evidently the hidden stockings are ready to yield up their treasure.

Henry Keller was drowned from the government boat Ada, at Lake City. He was pulled off by a line.

At the last election Duluth voted to buy its waterworks system.

The republicans of Wilmar celebrated the election with a sleigh ride with with bands, torches, firearms, etc.

The postoffice department has selected Farmington as the one town in Minnesota in which to try the rural delivery. The routes, of about twenty-five miles each daily, have been laid out, and the contract for carrying is to be awarded at once.

The Great Northern system shows a decrease in the earning for last month of $37,385, but an increase of $592,337 for the past four months.

Warren D. Mason, formerly agent for the Northwestern Mutual Life, Minneapolis, died at Chicago from injuries received by a folding bed closing and breaking his back.

Though Register Dunlava, of the Crookston land office has been dead three weeks, and the office will pay $1,500 before McKinley is inaugurated, no one has applied for the place.

The J. Neills Lumber Company at Sauk Rapids have shut down their saw mill, having run six months, night and day.

Charles Curtis, of Milaca, while hunting, slipped and accidentally discharged his gun, the bullet going through his brain, causing instant death.

Emil Keckheisen, an 8-year old boy at New Ulm, was drowned in a fish pond while skating.

HE WAS A SMART BOY.

Managed to Recover a Dropped Quarter from a Difficult Spot.

He had deposited his ticket in the box on the downtown station of the Sixth avenue "L" road at Fiftieth street early one morning, and was counting his change in a search for plugged dimes and nickels. A quarter fell from his hands and rolled along the platform until it lodged under the raised steps which form the edge of the platform. There it lay in plain view, but as unobtainable as the golden apples of Hesperides. The loser was the picture of rage, says the New York Mail and Express.

"I don't care about the blame coin," he wailed. "I've got 'em to burn; but it just makes me mad to see that quarter there, and I can't get it."

"Gimme a dime, mister," said a messenger boy, "and five cents for expenses, and I'll get your mun."

The man regarded the boy for a moment and said: "Go ahead."

He returned in a few minutes with his form working convulsively. In his hand he had a piece of scantling. The crowd watched him curiously. From his mouth the boy took a well masticated wad of chewing gum. He stuck this on the end of the scantling and, thrusting the stick through the narrow space, pressed the soft and sticky gum firmly on the lost coin. Then he deftly drew it out and presented the money to its owner.

"Keep the whole outfit," said the man. "Boy, you're a peach. We live and learn," and he boarded a train, his face wreathed in smiles. The face of the boy was similarly decorated.

SCIENTIFIC REASON GIVEN.

Why the Eyes of a Painted Portrait Follow the Observer.

Wollaston's curious discovery was that by adding to each pair of eyes a nose directed to the right or the left, the eyes lose their front direction, and look to the right or left, according to the direction of the nose. By means of a flap representing the lower features in a different position, as Dr. Wollaston remarks, "a lost look of devout abstraction in an uplifted countenance of inquisitive archness in the leer of a younger face turned downward and obliquely toward the opposite side."

As by changing the direction of the lower features we change the direction of the eyes, says Notes and Queries, so by changing our position, the eye of the portrait apparently follows us. If a vertical line be drawn through the tip of the nose and half way between the eyes, there will be the same breadth of head, of cheek, of chin and of neck on each side of this middle line, and each iris will be in the middle of the whole eye. If we now move to one side, the apparent horizontal breadth of every part of the head and face will be diminished, but the parts on each side of the middle line will be diminished equally, and at any position, however oblique, there will be the same breadth of face on each side of the middle line, and the iris will be in the center of the whole of the eyeball, so that, being on a flat surface, the iris will be seen in front of the picture or obliquely.

HOW DOGS ARE STUNTED.

Methods Employed in the Manufacture of Toy Terriers.

There is an era of tiny dogs in English society. The more diminutive a parcel of canine flesh that you can possess the more are you a swell, says the Toledo Blade. But, alas! How many feminine readers who delight in the miniature doggies know that they are an artificial product.

There is in London an establishment devoted entirely to the stunting of the animals. The proprietor is an ex-breeder of fighting dogs, but he now finds more profit in rearing the liliputian canines, for which he has a wide reputation. He does not claim to be the originator of the process, for he says that all dog men know of the dwarfing powers of alcohol, but he asserts that he is the only man in London to adopt the principle systematically.

His method is as follows: The pup destined to be stunted is taken from its mother when a few hours old and when it begins to whine for sustenance it is fed with a warm decoction of gin and water. Deprived of milk, it takes to this readily. When it reaches a certain age alcohol in various forms constitutes the animal's sole diet. The pups do not die nor do they develop. They soon cease to grow at all. After a generation or two of mating the much-prized liliputian canine is obtained.

Chinamen Buying Wives.

The Chinamen of Australia, when they take a notion to marry, write to a matrimonial agent in Hong Kong somewhat as follows: "I want a wife. She must be a maiden under 20 years of age, and must not have left her father's house. She must also have never read a book, and her eyelashes must be half an inch in length. Her teeth must be as sparkling as the pearls of Ceylon, her breath must be like unto the scents of the magnificent odorous groves of Java, and her attire must be from the silken weavers of Ka-la-Ching, which are on the banks of the greatest river in the world—the everflowing Yang-tse-Kiang." The price of a Chinese woman delivered in Sydney is $190, but two Chinese women only cost $260; therefore, the Chinese import the women in couples. The importer never sees the women before they arrive, and then he generally selects the best one. The other is shown around to a number of well-to-do Chinese, and after they have inspected her she is submitted to what may be called public auction.

"You," shouted the long, lean man, "you, sir, are no patriot." "Well, what if I ain't?" retorted the short, fat man. "Election's over, ain't it?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Thanksgiving DAY.

TILL thy winds, O wild November; let their angry music sleep!
Give us Sabbath o'er the city; hush thy tempest on the deep!
With the golden sheaf of autumn lifted in its stalwart hands,
At the threshold of the winter, lo, a grateful nation stands!
Up the year's long path of blessings, heedless, thankless, we have trod;
But, to-day, the people's altar sends its incense up to God.
Ring aloud, in spire and turret—in your windy prison cells—
Ring the morning in with anthem's of Thanksgiving, O ye bells!
Gather, O ye people, gather, where the ruddy hearths are bright,
And the shades of care and sorrow vanish backward from the light!
Link anew the charmed circle of the household's broken chain;
Let the land be full of worship, and the heart of love, again;
Homeward to the festal service call the wandering child that roams;
For to-day the nation's altars are its firesides and its homes.
Moon by moon the year has circled, and before us is unrolled
All the season's perfect drama, as in countless years of old;
In the valley sank the snowdrift, and the snowdrop sprang anew,
And anon earth woke in flowers from a summer dream of dew;
Winter, spring and summer failed not, and she drank the light and rain,
Till the sunlit heaven lay mirrored in her waving fields of grain.
O'er the wave the white-winged vessels came, as went the ships of Greece—
Happy Argonauts, returning with the prairies' golden fleece.
O'er the land the song of labor, in the workshop and the field,
Forth, from ocean unto ocean, in a choral wave has pealed.
Therefore, wake, in all your turrets—in your windy prison cells—
Ring the morning in with anthems of Thanksgiving, O ye bells!

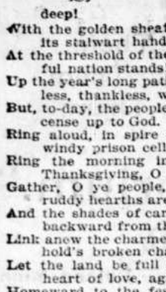
AUNTY MORTON'S PLAN.



MRS. MORTON, or Aunty Morton, as everybody called her, had returned from the afternoon's prayer meeting, and had arranged everything for the night, and now sat before a bright blazing fire in her own little parlor. Her thoughts had gone out on many errands of kindness as she sat there in the shadowy twilight. Nothing unusual for her, however, for her life was a living epistle that could be read of all men, it was so humble, quiet, holy, Christ-like. She loved to sit thus in the twilight and plan her little love errands, and think how many poor would be likely to need her porridge the next day, how many little shivering children she would meet and relieve, or what deed of kindness she could do to bring sinners into the better way. For Aunty Morton had grown wise in her intercourse with the world. She had found that whatever the difficulty of understanding words, deeds are almost always intelligible, and she revealed her soul in inarticulate speech as an earnest, pure and truthful life. This was a language which the profoundest admired and the simplest could appreciate. Her pastor's most elaborate discourse on sanctification proved tame and ineffective in comparison with the eloquence of this woman's humble and holy walk with God.

Many were Aunty Morton's thoughts on the evening we introduce her to the reader. The minister had given notice that in two weeks would be Thanksgiving service. She wondered why people should have to be reminded to give thanks. Her life was one continual song of thanksgiving. It would have been in accordance with her idea of many things if the president and governors should say in the beginning of each year: "Let the present be a year of continual thanksgiving, inasmuch as the bountiful blessing of basket and store is not given an withdrawn in a day."

Then the minister had made a request that all his parishioners should come to church that day, especially those who were sometimes remiss in their attendance, and he, with the Lord's help, would endeavor to hand forth convenient food for them. There was one thing the minister said that seemed to have a significance for her, and she dwelt long upon it in thought: "There are many life errors that can be more easily righted, more lasting reconciliations made at this time of celebrating mercies than at any other; perhaps caused by the hallowed associations that cluster around the day. Then let each of us look well about us and see if we cannot do something to make the world better."

Now, Aunty Morton had been thinking about Farmer Granville, a neighbor, who, because his daughter would not marry the man he intended she should, and did marry the man he intended she should not, had in an angry moment forbidden her to come again under his roof, and also refused her any communication whatever with her mother and sister. Farmer Granville was naturally a kind man, and when the paroxysm of anger had subsided he would have been glad had he not said any such thing, but his pride kept him from recalling his daughter and acknowledging her husband as a son. Thus things had gone on, and it had now been six years since Dr. Wellman, his son-in-law, had made himself a reputation, and his line of practice was becoming broader each succeeding year, while Judge Penrose, the man he would like to have had for a son-in-law, was a man of intemperate habits, and bid fair to come out at the end of life with less money than he started in with.

As to Farmer Granville's family, it scarce seemed like the same family at all. Mrs. Granville had dispensed with some of her domestics, and had taken to active labor, thereby hoping to find an antidote for her troubles. She went so quietly about her self-imposed tasks that it really seemed painful to witness. Farmer Granville was snappish and cross, until the past year a marked change had come over him, and he seemed more tender. Perhaps, because his beautiful and patient little wife appeared to be going into a decline, and the fear he might lose her had taken hold of his mind with a softening influence. The youngest daughter, Katie, who was but 12 years old at the time of her sister's marriage, tried to encourage her mother and quiet her father, and went to Aunty Morton to pour out her young heart's sorrow into her sympathetic ear.

"It is all safe in God's keeping, dear child, and things will grow better under His care, in His own and therefore the best time," she had said again and again to Katie.

And now she believed this was the Lord's time, and knowing that He ever uses instruments to accomplish His purpose, she believed He would make her an instrument to bring about a reconciliation between this father and daughter. She clasped her hands in prayer and said: "Lord, help me," and felt as sure He would do so, as the little child who goes to its earthly parent asking help.

She tapped a little call-bell, and her one woman servant brought in a light.

"Hand me my writing-desk, Mary. There, that is all I want to-night. Thank you," and the servant withdrew.

She wrote a letter and addressed it. It was to Mrs. Dr. Wellman, asking her to come with her two little children as soon as possible and stay until after Thanksgiving day with her. She also wanted the doctor to come on that day, too, and earlier, if he thought it prudent to leave his patients, he would know best. Having thus arranged things to her own satisfaction, she drew forth her Bible and read again the precious promises that had so long fortified her for a life of faith and works, after which she knelt down and committed all to the Lord. Then, retiring to rest, she slept as soundly as an infant might in its loving mother's arms.

With the early morning's dawn Mrs. Morton arose and felt refreshed. Although several years before, the grave had claimed the loved husband of her youth and her two beautiful children, yet she felt that but a little while at the longest and she would be with them, to know no more parting.

Quite early she posted her letter, and on her way home called in at Farmer Granville's; for now having undertaken the work of reconciliation, she bent every thought and purpose of her heart to accomplish it. The family were discussing the merits of the breakfast table, and Aunty Morton, always a welcome guest, was ushered directly into their presence. They were also discussing the approaching Thanksgiving dinner which had been celebrated from time immemorial at the Granville homestead. Mrs. Granville was urging its discontinuance the present year on account of her health having failed so signally as to render her unable to superintend the necessary preparations. Farmer Granville was unwilling to forsake the old-time custom even for one year, and now that Mrs. Morton had come in the idea at once presented itself to secure her services to fill his wife's place, in which the dear soul cheerfully acquiesced, not doubting but that this was an opening for her in the prosecution of her plan of reconciliation.

There was much work to be done; for out-of-the-way niches were to be converted into bedrooms, and blanket closets were to be looked through and renovated, and the pantry and larder to be replenished, all of which Aunty Morton entered into with spirit and impressment. Several hours each day this task of love was performed. Her assistance was timely and her presence an inspiration, for it was a noticeable fact that as the day closely approached, Mrs. Granville became more invalided, perhaps caused by the knowledge that one of her darlings would be excluded from the circle of uncles, aunts, cousins, brothers, sisters, children and grandchildren that usually assembled to celebrate this day of mercies.

After a few days, when Aunty Morton came to facilitate the arrangements, she brought with her the brightest and dearest little boy the Granville family ever saw. Katie hugged and kissed him to her heart's content. Mrs. Granville drew him to her heart with a thrill of pleasure, and Farmer Granville exhibited an interest in him quite unaccountable to himself and astounding to eyewitnesses. She told them in explanation that he was the child of a friend of hers who had come to spend several days with her, but insisted that she should continue to assist Mrs. Granville as planned before her arrival. She continued to bring the little boy each day and his coming was looked forward to by all with great pleasure.

Farmer Granville having the most leisure of anyone devoted much of it to the child's entertainment. They had so many plays in common that it was difficult to tell which of the two enjoyed them most. The little boy rode fearlessly on his shoulder about the room, and 'to market" on his foot, until he was wild with delight. One day he crept onto his lap, and passing his little dimpled fingers through the long grayish-looking beard, exclaimed: "You look like my grandpapa."

"Do I?" said Farmer Granville, "of course you love your grandpapa. Where does he live?"

"I don't know," said the child, "but I love you better than I do Frankie's grandfather, for he can't ride me on his foot or on his shoulder, or give me apples to eat, either."

"An invalid, no doubt," thought Farmer Granville, but he felt flattered nevertheless. He had not the remotest idea that he was talking to his grandchild, and that the "grandpapa" the little boy referred to was a picture of himself inclosed in a case, carefully preserved by his discarded daughter, so he answered:

"Well, I will be your grandpapa while you stay, and ride you on my foot every day, and on the pony, too, to-morrow, if you like."

"This is Frankie's grandpapa," said the little boy, just as his mother had always said to him when she showed him the picture; and he ran his fingers more vigorously through the long, thick beard, and passed them lovingly through the wrinkles about the eyes and mouth.

Things were progressing just as Aunty Morton wished, so the next day she brought the baby over, a sweet, curly-headed little girl of two years. The baby was a double joy in the Granville family, and when she kissed "dranpapa" after Frankie's prompting, the pride and gratification of Farmer Granville was without limit, who in return tossed her toward the ceiling, and allowed her to pull his whiskers and cover his eyes to play "bopeep" as much as she liked.

Thanksgiving was drawing so near, and the worry of hope deferred worked Mrs. Dr. Wellman into a severe headache, which lasted over the following day. So recommending her to keep quiet, and giving many instructions to her servant, Mrs. Morton took the two children with her to complete the arrangements for her neighbor's Thanksgiving feast, where they were again installed "chief in state and power."

As she was about to take her departure for home, while making the children ready, Farmer Granville asked her to bring the mother to see them, adding:

"She must be almost an angel to have such lovely children."

"Thank you; no doubt she will be pleased to come," Mrs. Morton replied. "I will have some things at home to attend to to-morrow, being the day before Thanksgiving, but we will be out walking in the afternoon and will call on our way home."

True to her promise, Mrs. Morton called in the next day at Farmer Granville's with the children and their mother. The reader, no doubt, anticipates the result. Farmer Granville took his daughter in his arms and pressed her to his heart, weeping like a child. Indeed, there were no dry eyes among them, but all seemed to rally sooner than he.

It is needless to say that Aunty Morton lost her visitors, for not a step were they allowed to depart from the paternal roof. And when Dr. Wellman arrived in response to Mrs. Morton's invitation, to help eat the conventional Thanksgiving turkey with her, he found the invitation transferred to the Granville homestead, where there were more heartfelt rejoicings than had been known for the last six years. And no one was happier than Aunty Morton as she saw with what pride Farmer Granville introduced his children and grandchildren to the assembled guests, and as the festivities ended she joined in singing that grand old hymn:

"Praise to God, immortal praise,
For the love that crowns our days," adding to herself:

"The minister was right, and this life-error is at last righted."—E. Ellen Cherry, in Good Housekeeping.

FARMER GRANVILLE TOOK HIS DAUGHTER IN HIS ARMS.

THE DAY AFTER.

"I can't offer you anything," said the kind-hearted lady, "but some corned beef and cabbage."

"Madam," replied Meandering Mike, "it 'ud be my salvation. I've walked four miles tryin' to find a house where they'd offer me somethin' besides dark meat an' wish-bones."—Washington Star.

MINNESOTA MANIFESTATIONS.

Physicians Prescribe Pink Pills.

From the Pioneer Press, St. Paul, Minnesota.
Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—In answer to yours regarding the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in this locality, I can only say wherever used—without an exception—they have been of inestimable benefit in affording relief and a cure has invariably followed their use.

In the case of Mrs. R. E. Vanwalt, a lady who has for nearly nine years been suffering from "female complaint," at times being unable to leave her bed for weeks, and who has paid hundreds of dollars for medical services, the cure might almost be viewed in the light of a miracle. In speaking of her relief from that terrible disease, Mrs. Vanwalt said:

"For nearly nine years I have suffered almost untold agony, many times being unable to leave my bed for weeks at a time. I tried several proprietary medicines, all guaranteed to cure, etc., but derived no benefit whatever from their use; I tried doctors with a high reputation on such matters, and changed physicians, but it was no use. I found it was a needless expense and considered myself incurable. I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People two years ago, but like the other advertised remedies I considered them of little value, until a couple of months ago I tried one box and received so much benefit from them that I bought one dozen more, seven of which I have used, and to-day I consider myself a well woman, and I used only eight boxes of Pink Pills."

Dr. W. F. Carpenter was asked what he thought of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and he said:

"In my practice it is not customary to use, as a rule, prepared remedies, as it has a deteriorating effect on a physician's business, but in the case of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People I find they afford relief in certain cases where remedies in common practice will not reach."

Other parties in this locality having used Dr. Williams' Pink Pills all speak well of them and have derived benefit from their use.

From my personal experience I cannot recommend them too highly, having been more or less troubled with sciatica and nervous headache. I have used but three boxes and I believe the infirmities have entirely left me.

I hereby certify that the above statements are true and correct as far as was in my power to ascertain through a personal interview with the parties mentioned.

HUNTERS HIT BY THEIR GAME.

Instances Where Sportsmen Have Received Severe Blows from Birds.

Game killed in full flight has a momentum that carries it a long way sometimes. London Field relates several instances where the birds have hit the sportsman. In one case George Monners was shooting in the woods of Long Island when a grouse, driven by beaters, came flying along fast and high up. He shot at it, and then, with the other barrel, fired at another bird. Just as he was about lowering his gun after the second shot he received a blow on the head that knocked him senseless. The grouse first hit had tumbled against his head.

That same afternoon a wheelman riding along near the line of hunters admiring the scenery did not observe a big black cock till its feathers brushed his head. The black cock had been killed and had nearly hit him in falling.

The Badminton volume on shooting tells how the late Charles Leslie was knocked out at the battery by a grouse he had shot. A strong hat probably saved him from serious injury.

American hunters have had similar experience. A man was riding along in a wagon some time ago, according to Forest and Stream, when something hit him on the head with enough force to make him dizzy. An unwounded partridge flying through the woods had hit him fair. Why the bird did not turn aside is as much a mystery as the fact that partridges sometimes fly against house sides and are killed in so doing.

CHICAGO HORSES AT LUNCHEON

Man's Faithful Servants Emulate Him in Taking a Hurried Meal Downtown.

Even the horses of this city take luncheon downtown. Every business man knows what this means, the hurried bite taken in the short hour about noon every day, when business is abandoned long enough to permit the destruction of a piece of pie or a sandwich. Everybody does it, so it is as fair for one as the other, says the Chicago Chronicle.

This same haste applies to the nag which pulls the cab or the heavy draft horses used as freighters. At the noon hour on any of the downtown streets the observant person can see these faithful beasts with nosebags depending from their heads quietly munching their oats or corn with every evidence of satisfaction.

It makes no difference to the horses that the passing throng sees them in the act of taking food. They are as callous on this subject as their masters, many of whom can be seen sitting on the wagon or adjacent sidewalk with tinpail open, eagerly destroying the luncheon which the wife packed in the morning. It is all in a lifetime, and the Chicago horse has learned that he must eat when he can, and not be too particular about it. Hence he lays his ears back and munches away with placid joy.

Gambling in India.

Amongst the Hindoos throughout the whole of India there is a holiday celebration in honor of Lakshmi, the goddess of wealth and good fortune, whereon gambling is universally regarded as a religious duty. It is known as the festival of lamps, and on that day all classes indulge in games of chance with shells, coins, cards, dice, etc., and the future of the individual, whether good or bad, is looked upon as a forecast of his wealth or poverty during the ensuing year. The women take a most intense interest in the proceedings and, if fortunate, expend their winnings in the purchase of sweet-meats and fruits, as gifts to all their friends and relations, toys for the small children and fireworks for the boys. At Benares, their sacred city, as night approaches, small earthen lamps, fed with oil, are kindled, making the outlines of every mansion, palace, temple and minaret visible. All vessels in the river are also illuminated; so that the whole city is one blaze of light.

Texas.

In the Agricultural line, Texas leads all other states in the variety of its products. Cotton, corn and the cereals grow and are raised in every section of the state and in the central and southern portions sugar cane and sorghum are profitably cultivated. On the Gulf Coast two and three crops of vegetables are raised each year. Berries are shipped six weeks in advance of the home crop in the north. Pears, peaches, plums, oranges, figs, olives and nuts all grow abundantly and can be marketed from two to three weeks in advance of the California crops. Large quantities of rice are now grown.

If the land seeker, the home seeker and the settler desires to secure a farm larger than the one he occupies, on vastly more reasonable terms; if he wants more land to cultivate, a greater variety of crops to harvest, with proportionately increased remuneration, at a less outlay for cost of production; if he wants an earlier season with correspondingly higher prices; if he wants milder winters, all the year pasturage for his stock, improved health, increased bodily comforts and wealth and prosperity, he should go to Texas.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that Contain Mercury, as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

THE best of us owe more to chance than we are willing to admit.

Father Time has to halt when he meets a woman who knows how to take care of her health. Time can't make her seem old.

She may be the mother of a family; that makes no difference. She is bound to be young because her heart is young and there is rich, young blood circulating in her veins. She doesn't need cosmetics and face-powders and skin-preservers. Pure blood is the only true skin-preserver.

But when a woman's blood is full of bilious impurities, she can neither look young nor feel young. Her whole constitution is poisoned with bad blood. It permeates every part. It paralyzes the nerve-centres; weakens the stomach; irritates the heart, preys upon the lungs and bronchial tubes.

It reduces a woman to a state of weakness, nervousness, irritability, dejection and melancholy. Such a woman can't possibly be youthful, no matter what her age may be. She needs the youthfulness of highly vitalized blood. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will give it to her. It will help any woman to get back her youth and freshness again.

It gives the digestive and blood-making organs and the liver power to produce good, pure, healthy blood. It gives color to the cheeks, and sparkle to the eyes; drives away pimples and blotches; wipes away wrinkles; rounds out emaciated forms, and creates firm, natural, healthy flesh.

Mrs. Rebecca F. Gardner, of Grafton, York Co., Va., writes: "When I was married I weighed 125 pounds. I was taken sick and reduced in health and broke out with a disease which my doctor said was eczema. He treated my disease but failed to do me any good, and I fell away to 90 pounds. I began using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and thank God and you, I began to improve. Now I weigh 140 pounds and have only taken two bottles. I cannot say too much about the medicine. My husband says I look younger than I did the first time he saw me, 15 years ago."

IT IS THE BEST. YUCATAN.

AYER'S ARGUMENT.

If there is any reason why you should use any sarsaparilla, there is every reason why you should use Ayer's. When you take sarsaparilla you take it to cure disease; you want to be cured as quickly as possible and as cheaply as possible. That is why you should use Ayer's: it cures quickly and cheaply—and it cures to stay. Many people write us: "I would sooner have one bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla than three of any other kind." A druggist writes that "one bottle of Ayer's will give more benefit than six of any other kind." If one bottle of Ayer's will do the work of three it must have the strength of three at the cost of one. There's the point in a nutshell. It pays every way to use

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

DON'T BE AFRAID OF WHEAT!

Don't be afraid of a small "break" in the price of wheat! These "breaks" are occasioned by some holders of wheat taking profits and, of course, when there happens to be a few more sellers than buyers, the market is bound to go off a little. 180,000 Copies of Demorest's Magazine

THE increasing popularity of Demorest's Family Magazine, a popularity extending over thirty years, is ample proof that each succeeding year finds it improved in its vitality, beauty and attractiveness. There must be something in a magazine that increases its subscription list from 80,000 to 180,000 names (a clear gain of 100,000) in less than a year. Don't you think so?

READ THIS.

"Demorest's Magazine is a literary conservator of the artistic and the useful. Got up in America, where it has enormous sales, it is the most remarkable work of the class that has ever been published, and combines the attractions of several English magazines."—London Times.

"We have received another number of this delightful Magazine, and we find ourselves bound to reiterate with greater earnestness the high encomiums we have already pronounced on preceding numbers. We are not given to disparage unduly the literary and artistic publications which emanate from the London press, but we are bound, in simple fairness, to assert that we have not yet met with any publication pretending to a similar scope and purpose which can at all compare with this marvelous shilling's worth."—London Budget.

The American Bookseller says: "There are none of our monthlies in which the beautiful and the useful, pleasure and profit, fashion and literature are so fully presented as in Demorest's."

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, NOV. 20, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

--Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

--It is now "Your Honor," Mayor Coolen, pro tem.

—The first snow plough of the season that we have seen went west on a freight engine Wednesday morning.

—Large lot of fine Sleigh Bells and Blankets just arrived at Conzet & Barrow's, Delano and Rockford. They will sell cheap.

--Read the advertisement of Recorder Johns for bids for wood fer Village use, in another column, under reading notices.

--Last week we got about six inches of snow, and one day the thermometer indicated 10 degrees below zero. This week the weather has bean much more mild.

—The meteroic shower booked for the 13th don't seem to have bean observed in this part of the country, leastwise no one has reported to us as having seen it.

—The laying of the water pipes on South Third street seems to have frozen up for the winter, notwithstanding the contract was virtually let to have them this fall.

—There is to be no school on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 26th and 27th, as Thursday is Thanksgiving day. The teachers and scholars will take a short vacation.

—Mr. Mealey has not become agent for Gluek's Brewing Co. as the sign on his new wood house might indicate; he lately bought the building and the sign went with the house.

—We understand our enteprising harness maker, C. M. Conzet is going to build a new shop on the bank of the Crow River at the east end of the bridge, to front on Bridge and River streets.

—Our good sleighing disappeared almost as rapidly as it came: and once more the rattle of wheels supersedes the jingle of sleighbells. Roads are rough and slippery making travel very slow and tedious.

—Ed. Darragh, of Rockford, Minn., arrived in Aitkin on Saturday morning and departed for his home on Sunday evening He was much pleased with our town and informed the Republican that he intended to start a harness shop here in the spring.—Aitkin Republican.

—Mayor Coolen has sold his old office that stood at the corner of R. R. Ave. and Third St. It has been seperated and moved. Part goes to Mr. Mealey for a wood house: the balance will be a kitchen for Mr. Babb. The Mayor can now be found at his hardware store on River Street.

We see by the papers that Mt. Vernon, Wash. is partially inundated, and many of the inhabitants fled to the mountains for safety. That's where Dr. Al Lewis, formerly of Watertown has been liying for several years. Minnesota snows beats fleeing from floods.

—We understand that through the pulling and hauling and other discrepances of our village council, one saloon was run for awhile without a license. But that not the first one. One year one was run on one lot while holding a license to do business on another.

—The Village Council evidently dont take much stock in the "nonfreezable" monument to the Mayor on R. R. Ave. and have ordered the water shut off as soon as there is apparent danger of bursting the fountain. The old town pum pshould be put in repair against such an emergency.

—The Epworth League sociable held at the home of Mrs. Jonas Johnson on Friday evening was well attended. Everybody wrote down what they observed on a table while the cloth was raised long enough to count ten. Miss Mollie Maxfield had the largest list and got an inkstand for her trouble.

—Our citizens are now looking forward to the enjoyment of a Literary Society for the winter. Material for a good one is abundant, and a temporary organization alreadv effected. Neighboring societies are invited to lead us, also to look well to their laurels. Delano is first in the field and proposes to be at the head of the list in efficiency.

—Mayor Gutzwiller, who, for a long time has had trouble keeping his council pulling togather has finallp, himself, kicked over the traces, and at the meeting Monday evening, tendered his resignation. This is a way of his whenever the game don't suit him, he won't play any longer. He has resigned his office before when he couldn't run everything his own way. There are lots of men in town who can fill the office fully as satisfactorily to the board and to the citizens of Delano.

—Quite a commotion was created by the fact coming to the public that there was some irregularity about a saloon license in town. That's nothing strange except it is on the other side. There is not a saloon in town but violates their contract quite often. Saloons are run on Sundays, and after 11 o'clock at night. Old drunkards, drunken men, and minors of tender years, are permited to buy. Even the council could be brought up for neglect of duty in allowing and even aiding these things to go on.

—On Sunday our villagers turned out en masse to enjoy the finest sleighing and the most splendid day for a long time.

--Miss Kizzie Gates led the Epworth League Sunday evening. The meeting was well attended and was interesting and instructive.

--By some mistake a 5 got into our date line last week where a 3 should have been. Our paper was out at the usual time, however. Mistakes will occur occasionally.

--Farmers inproved their opportunity during the few days of fine sleighing and good prices for wheat to market some of their surplus last week, and in exchange received gold.

—A fine audience greeted Rev. Farber Sunday evening and listened to a splendid sermon from the text found in Proverbs Chap. 8, ver. 36 "But he that sinneth against me wrongeth his own soul." Dr. Soper sang a solo in his usual good style.

—Joseph H. Rebholtz, foreman in the Minneapolis Tribune Press room, and a cousin of Geo. P. Schaffer, of this place, received a severe injury Tuesday. He got his right arm into the cogs on the large press and mangled it so that amputation is thought to be necessary.

—On Wednesday evening as the west bound train was pulling out Mr. and Nrs. J. E. Brothers who had gone on board the train to say good-by to Mrs. B's sister Mrs. Krotzer, undertood to ges off after the cars were in motion they fell between the car and the platform and landed on the ground where they remained till the car behind them, the last on the train, passed by them. They were not much hurt but gave them that witnessed their fall a terrible scare. Going on board trains that are in a hurry to make up time expecting to get off after they haye started is not a safe buisness. LATER: Mr. B. alone passed under the cars.

Delano Literary!

Persuant to call the Delano Literary Society met at the City Hall Tuesday evening. Owing to the inclemency of the weather and the slippery condition of the sidewalks not so large a crowd ventured out as otherwise would; but the hall was half filled. The meeting was called to order by Dr. Catlin who briefly stated the object of the meeting being to form an organization to hold literary meetings during the winter. The audience joined in singing America. Miss Bessy Wilder recited.

In the absence of Rev. Farber who was to speak on cooking, Dr. Catlin gave a few impromptu remarks on the importance of good cooking. Miss Kizzie Gates read The Ride of Paul Revere.

These present voted to haye a Literary Society. Then proceeced to form a temporary organization by electing Prof. J. A. Wharton Chairman, and Miss Alice Arnold Secretary. On motion the Chair appointed a committee of three on constitution and by laws as follows: Dr. T. J. Catlin, Miss Catherine Kelly and Prof. Charles S. Hawker.

On motion the Chair appointed a committee of three on progamme for the next two meetings. Mrs. J. L. Farber. Miss Jessie Gray and Mr. Sam Coffin.

On Hall Otis L. Billing.

On soliciting membership, Guy Murphy and Miss Stella Davis.

It was voted to meet once aweek on Friday nights, the next meeting to be on Friday, the 27th, inst.

Those taking more or less active part in the exercises or the business of the meeting were Medams Steward and Farber, Misses Bessie Wilder, Kizzie Gates, Catherine Kelly, Alice Arnold and Jessie Gray. Messrs Prof. J. A. Wharton, Councilman Adam Horsh, Squire Otis L. Billings, Prof. Pat Grear Sam Coffin and Dr. T. J. Catlin. All present of course joined in singing America.

County Cullings.

Hon. Ignatius Donnelly has been elected to the legislature and we are informed that during his absence at the capitol his paper, the Representative, will be in charge of A. G. Sexton, of Annandale.--Waverly Tribune.

Last week H. C. Bull of this place received from Gov. Clough a commission as a member of the National Farmers' Congress to be held at Philadelpha, Penn. The session begining Nov. 10, 1896.--Cokato Items of Dassel Anchor.

Our free silver friends are getting some consolation out of the fact that the change of 24,000 votes in six close states would haye given Bryan the electorial vote. And yet he would have been defeated by a million and forty thousand of the popular vote. But let us view it in another way. One half of the popular majorities of New York, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Illinois and Wis. taken from those states and added to the votes in the democratic states would have given McKinley 45 states and Bryan none. Gentleman, there is no comfort for you in figures.—Wright County Times.

A Wayerly Tribune correspondent in writing on "The Vote of Wright County." says: "The greatest number of votes cast on any issue, national, state, congressional or county, was for sheriff. For the rival candidates combined received 5,786 votes, which was 246 more than was cast for the presidency, 162 more than for governor, 220 more than for state treasurer, 68 more than for congress, and 485 more than for judges. Now compare the sheriff's vote with some of the county officers. That vote led the combined vote for auditor by 68, the vote on register by 58, the vote on county attorney by 191, on representatives by 773, on clerk of court by 100, on surveyor by 317.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at the Post Office in Delano, Minn

INDIANA republican Congressmen have decided to allow their constituents to select their own postmasters, thereby keeping themselves out of some very hot water, politically speaking.

A WILD and woolly scheme is abroad in the land to fix the price of wheat by international agreement. We think God in his infinite wisdom will do that through the rules of supply and demand.

GRANT BRAMBLE, of Sleepy Eye, is said to have closed a deal with an English Syndicate for $1,600,000.00, for his invention, a rotary steam engine. Sleepy Eye is wide awake and even her Brambles are productive of wealth.

AT a republican ratification meeting at Naperville, Ill., it is said that an office of Gov. Altgeld was burned and kicked about the street. That was a disgrace to Naperville, and the people who did it. True republicans and democrats don't believe in such things.

PROF. EMENS is said to have discovered a way to change molecules of silver into molecules of gold. This may solve the money question satisfactorily. It will make a market for silver and at the same time furnish more gold for standard money than both metals in their former state would.

A GOOD suggestion has been made by a citizen of our county that the election of county and legislative offices be separated from the general election by having them on the alternate years between general elections. He claims that there would be less chance for trading and manupulating elections; less money spent and purer elections generally, and beter men than under the present regime.

GOV. CLOUGH has sent J. J. McCafferty to the Reformatory, by appointing him to supersede Robert Smith, of St. Paul, who resigned as a member of the State Reformatory Board. It will be remembered by our citizens that when W. H. Eustis, Ex-Mayor of Minneapolis, was here, he said in his speech that a vote taken in the jail disclosed the fact that all the inmates were for Bryan. It is fair to suppose the reformatory would be similar, and so Mr. McCafferty could have ample field for his efforts. Then McDonald the land officer, and editor of the St. Cloud Times, lives close by he might be looked after a little.

The Victor of 1900.

The scene at the banquet hall at the end of the forceful speech by Congressman Charles A. Towne of Minnesota on "The issue of 1900" was remarkable. The climax of his speech, in which he spoke of Mr. Bryan as the "leader of 1896, the victor of 1900," started a great demonstration. Men jumped on chairs and tables, shouted themselves hoarse, waved handkerchiefs and acted generally as only enthusiastic men, stirred to frenzy by burning eloquence can act.

The above report of the recent anniversary of the administration of Colorado as a state twenty years ago, show the feeling among the people who advocated the free and unlimited coinage of silver and gold during the campaign just ended, and their determination to continue in the cause, without faltering.

Br. Bryan who spoke at the same meeting advised that his name be not longer kept up with the cause, but that the people be left at perfect liberty to select their standard bearer when four years have rolled around. That's Democratic.

Party vs. Principles.

If the democratic party is ever to win any more victories it must set its face and thoughts to the future. Those questions which have produced dissentation and division must be abandoned, and the old principles upon which all democrats unite, must again be set to the front. It rests with democrats themselves whether they will continue in the morass of defeat.—Wabasha Democrat.

The democratic party of the past has been the party of the people. The democratic party of to day is the party of the people. But unscrupulous politicians and others, misguided, have for the time being, turned the government over to the party opposed to democracy. If in future the party expects to win it must do so under the permission of the people, by their votes, if any good is to come of their winning.

As for the idea that "Those questions which have produced dissention and division must be abandoned, we can't agree with the Democrat. Questions to be decided make parties. The issues come up in turn, and it devolves upon the voter to settle, within its own ranks, what it will do.

In the last campaign many voters, something over six millions of them, concluded that free silver and gold both, same as the nation had up to 1873, would be best for the country. The democratic covention assembled at Chicago concluded the same thing and the issue was made, the fight was fought and for the present, the victory won by the gold standard candidate. But not by any means on that one issue. Every plank of the democratic platform was worked for all it was worth, on different individuals, by gold standard people, where the most in pression could be made to the carrying of the election for McKinley, and now fealing insecure in their victory the keeping up the "sound money" clubs is advised throughout the land. The idea of abandoning those questions in order to save the party, or to save any candidate is preposterous. The question before the American people must be settled, not abandoned. The country's welfare is at stake, and the people demand it. The democratic party must like other parties that would be successful, have convictions on leading questions, they must unite their party by taking a firm stand for their beliefs, and then victory will crown their efforts. They must not divide; neither must they sit quietly down and allow a very small minority of the party to dictate to them their policy; the party policy. But every man must post himself, as well as possible, on the questions to be settled he must be at primary elections, the place where votes really count for most, and see that his ideas are carried out so far as he can help to carry them out. Then there will be less excuse for division of the party.

A Slick Scheme.

"The Dispatch would respectfully suggest that Congress and Grover Cleveland, President, join hands in December and January and clean up the greenback. There are several hundred millions of dollars worth in circulation. Issue bonds bearing 1½ per cent interest and retire all the greenbacks and in their place increase the national bank issues. The gold panics then would be a thing of the past. It would not hurt Grover as he is just about retiring from the presidency, and it would not embarras McKinley, as it would be out of the way before his administration and Congress got in.—New York Dispatch.

The Dispatch is working a slick scheme "It would not hurt Grover," and "it would not embarass McKinley" it says, to hurry up and get rid of the greenbacks. How does the Dispatch know that Grover won't be the coming man for President next time on the Gold Standard National Democratic ticket with the Republican Gold men to help him? Perhaps he don't care to take any chances of that hurting him.

Work for Legislators.

The Struck Jury Law seems doomed to be annulled by the legislature this winter. If it is what it is claimed to be it should be repealed as soon as possible. From the Penny Press we clip the following on the subject:

"One of the most important matters to come before our Minnesota legislature this winter, will be the much talked of struck jury law. An untiring effort will be made by leading citizens, especially prominent attorneys, to have this unjust law repealed. It certainly should be taken from our statue books. Of all the acts ever passed by any legislature, that tends to lead to anarchy, the struck jury law passed at the '95 session is the worst. Under this law the party to an action having the most money, is made the judge of his own case. As Justice Canty, of the supreme court, has justly said: "It is a one-man power manner of selection of jurors, and has always led to the most gross abuses."

Reader, is it right to allow rich corporations or indivugals to select their own juries? But it is urged by one upholding the law, "that all have the same privilege." True provided all have the money; but how many litigants can afford the luxury of a stuck jury? I dare say not five per cent of our clients that take a case into court. Is this not denying the poor party to an action, that which his wealthy opponent is privileged to purchase? Our constitution provides that a litigant shall obtain justice freely and without purchase. Is not this law denying him that right, when only his adversary can have a specially qualified jury, selected by the sheriff; who possibly is his friend or hireling? It is a notorious fact that certain corporations of our state have won every suit contested by them in the district courts since the passage of the notorious stuck jury law, at the last session or our legislature. It is bad enough to occasionally come in contact with a judge, selected by the people, who caters to the rich and powerful; but, when it comes to pass that litigants by legislation are to be deprived of the old reliable jury syetem, which has always been known as possessing the element of impartiality, then, I say, this is indeed a land controlled by the rich and few.

Let all patriotic members of the '97 legislature who love right and justice use their best endeavors to repeal the struck jury law, so-called, one of the worst acts of class legislation ever enacted against the interests of the common people, in an enlightened age.

H. D. STOCKER, JR.

Tariff is a Tax.

Everybody knows that, by this time; and yet some of the redhot followers of McKinley are favoring a restoration of that gentleman's bill as a panacea for all evils. It won't cure them. People can't have money unless it is in existence somewhere, and it has been shown on such good authority as the late William Wisdom's Last great speach in New York, that there is not enough of either silver or gold alone to furnish money on which to do the business of the world.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov., 20, 1896.

Has President Cleveland made a deal with President-elect McKinley? Strange as this question may appear current rumors make it pertinent. One of those rumors has it that a list of Federal employes in a number of southern states who took an active part in supporting Bryan in the late campaign is being prepared; and they are all to be dismissed and gold democrats appointed in their places, and that an understanding exists by which these gold democrats are to be allowed to retain their places under the McKinley administration. Ex-Congressman Forman, of Ill., who took an active part in the campaign as a gold democrat, and who has just been appointed Commissioner of Internal Revenue to succeed Mr. Miller who resigned to enter private business, is said to have received assurances that he would be allowed to keep the office under the McKinley administration. In fact, it is said that he would not otherwise have accepted the office. These rumors cannot be authenticated, and it would be difficult to believe such things possible had it not been for the political events of the past 12 months one year ago.

The larger the number of republican Senators and Representatives in Washington grows the more probable it becomes that no real effort is going to be made by them to pass the Dingley tariff bill in the Senate. While there are a few conservatives among them who favor passing the Dingley bill or some other bill slightly amending the present tariff law at this session of Congress and sparing the country the worry of an extra session, the great majority of them are determined to have an extra session and to pass a high tariff bill in the House and to try to pass it in the Senate, and will probably have their way.

Senator Mills, of Texas, is among the early Congressional arrivals. He says he doesn't care to guess what will be done at the coming session of Congress, but his talk indicates that he doesn't expect any tariff legislation. He had a few words to say that are commended to the gentlemen who are inclined to follow the advice of Senator Peffer and favor the organization of a new party to combine all the elements opposed to McKinleyism and the gold standard. Said Mr. Mills: "The democratic party will live as long as the government lives. No amount of whipping can kill it."

Some of the friends of the McKinley administration are not talking as wisely as they might about the possible relations of the silver republican Senators to the proposed protection tariff bill which is to be put through the House and attempted to be put through the Senate at the extra session of Congress expected to be called as soon as Mc Kinley is inaugurated. For instande, Representative Grout, of Vt., after expressing the belief that the constituents of these Senators would compel them to support a protection tariff bill, goes a step further and makes the threat that if they do not vote for it they will be ignored in the distribution of Federal patronage in their States during the entire term of McKinley. While this threat would almost surely be carried out, it is certainly impolitic, not to call it absolutely foolish, to publicly make it before the Senators have indicated their intentions. High spirited men are seldom controlled by threats, and if the fool friends of protection are not careful they will drive away votes they might have got had no threats been made.

Senator Vest, of Mo., isn't one of those who thinks there is the slightest chance for the Dingley tariff bill to be passed by the Senate at this session. He said: "I have no doubt that the republican Senators who voted with the democrats at the last session against the consideration of the Dingley bill, with the possible exception of Carter, will stand with us again, and if they do there is no possibility of passing the bill."

Senator-elect Pettus, who will on the 4th of next March succeed Senator Pugh, of Ala., was a law partner of Senator Morgan about thirty years ago and might have been in the Senate twenty years ago had he not declined the nomination. When he takes his seat Alabama will have what no other State has or has ever had—two Senators who are residents of the same town. Gen. Pettus, for he was a Confederate Brigadier, will bring to the Senate a ripe experience. He is as strong an advocate of the free coinage of silver as could be found anywhere.

The Jackson Democratic Association has invited Mr. Bryan to deliver the address at its celebration of Jackson day, Jan. 8th, 1897, and are hopeful that he will accept.

The question of who the few gold democrats in Congress will caucus with at the coming session is being much talked about. Having bolted the regular democratic nomination, unless specially invited to do so, it is claimed they cannot attend a democratic caucus, and nobody seems to know whether such invitation will be extended to them.

16 Republicans to 1 Democrat.

The St. Peter Herald says it's a fact "That democrats had a particular fascination for the office of sheriff this fall. In at least a dozen counties, that was the only office they got."

Buffalo Journal: If we don't miss our guess Michael Doran will have something to say about post offices in this state, in the near future, and Michael is no spring chicken when it comes to that.

The office of sheriff seems peculiarly a Democratic perquisite. In lots of counties the full Republican ticket was elected excepting the sheriff, which went to the Democratic candidates.—Sherburne County Star-News.

Strange coincidence that which happened in Ramsey, Hennepin and Wright counties at the late election and may happen in Anoka county. Each county elected republican officials except in the case of sheriff and each county elected a democratic sheriff. Is there any significance in this? —Delano Eagle.

The republican county ticket receives the usual majority except Hill for auditor, who was badly scratched in the lower end of the county, but was ahead in this end. Gillman for sheriff was also slaughtered, and defeated. These two men should have received the support of every republican in the county. They are both old time republicans, there records are good and they have done valiant service for the party in former camapigns, and just why they should have been used in this manner is beyond our comprehension. Mr. Hill is a man thoroughly qualified for the office of Auditor and Mr. Gillman's friends in the republican stronghold of Santiago, had a reason to expect better treatment for their candidate. It is no credit to the party and we predict that it will be regretted in the future.—Sherburn County Times.

A Wayerly Tribune correspondent in writing on "The Vote of Wright County." says: "The greatest number of votes cast on any issue, national, state, congressional or county, was for sheriff. For the rival candidates combined received 5,786 votes, which was 246 more than was cast for the presidency, 162 more than for governor, 220 more than for state treasurer, 68 more than for congress, and 485 more than for judges. Now compare the sheriff's vote with some of the county officers. That vote led the combined vote for auditor by 68, the vote on register by 58, the vote on county attorney by 191, on representatives by 773, on clerk of court by 100, on surveyor by 317.

Anoka County Politics Savor of Rottenness.

ANOKA, Minn., Nov. 21.—Sensational developments are expected in the contest over sheriff. The principal irregularites are said to be in the town of Centerville, notorious from time immemorial for election irregularties. It is charged that a foreman of the crew engaged in putting in the St. Paul waterworks in Centeryille ran in sixty voters from the crew, thirty of them married men living in St. Paul and Minneapolis, nearly all of these men were simply in the precinct temporarily, camping while they worked. It is stated that forty votes were thrown out by the judges as to the whole ticket, with the excuse that two candidates for the same office were voted fore at the head of the ticket. Liquor was sold in large quantities in the near vicinity of the voting place election day. If half the charges made are substantiated the contest will be interesting.—Minneapolis Times.

Among our Exchanges.

Pioneer Press: Temperance advocates are hapy by the announcement that Mr. and Mrs. McKinley will serve no wine at the White House.

Chaska Valley Herald: Bryan lost about 250 votes in this county owing to the marking of both sets of electors. This also hapened in other places in the state and cut Bryan's vote several thousand.

Buffalo Journal: The gold democratic free trade papers insist that no other issue than finance was involved, while old time republican editors say protection was endorsed. Somebody will be getting confused if this sort of thing is to be kept up.

An exchaneg tells of a little fellow, who had his wits with him when the contribution box was passed at church, on hearing his mother afterwards finding fault with the sermon, said; "Well mother, what could you expect for a cent."—Carver Free Press.

Sherburne County Star-News: The eight largest cities of the country gave a net Democratic majority in 1892 of 162,402, and a net Republican majority in 1896 of 296,707. Such a change as this in four years is unexampled in the history of American politics.

Waseca Herald: And now the organs that supported Clough are kicking him because he didn't get more votes. Perhaps that crow don't set well on their stomachs. Certainly Clough is as good as the men who voted for him. If not, why not?

New York World: If the trust law or any other law of the United States is not greater than the greatest and wealthiest combination of the greatest and wealthiest men in the country, then we have government not by law but by combinations against law.

Waseca Herald: The St. Paul Dispatch can't quit its falsehoods even after election. It says that there was $516,340,979 of gold coin in circulation on the 1st day of November. As a matter of fact there were not $500,000 of gold coin in circulation on that day as every banker in the United States well knows.

New York World. With a tariff averaging more than 40 per cent. already in operation Mr. McKinley ought to be able to see that a re-enactment of the McKinley bill, or of any other bill drawn on its lines, would be merely an ineffective and useless exhibition of the same radicalism which the country repudiated in 1892.

Wabasha Democrat: Our free silver friends are mistaken. The sound money democrats are not rejoicing over the election of McKinley, but over free silverism, Altgeldism, Tillmenism, Coxeyism and populism. Gold standard democrats do not love McKinley more than our free silver brethern, but they love the isms much less.

The Supreme Court has decided to sustain the demur to the indictment of John R. Howard by the Wright County Grand Jury at the June term. Judge Canty holds to the opinion that the indictment was sufficient as to showing the intent. All that remains to be done is to re-submit the case to another Grand Jury or discharge the defendant.

The Princeton Union says an Anoka court has decided that the law compelling delinquent subscricers to pay all arrearages before stoping a paper is good. The Herald sued a subscriber delinquent since 1889 who refused the paper in 1892 and each week, and last week collected for the the whole seven years together with costs, the whole amounting to $24. The Herald has performed a good service for the craft. St Cloud Times.

What does McKiney Think.

New York World: During the last week there has been an advance of 2½ per cent. in the stock of the Cottonseed Oil Trust, of 6½ in that of the Sugar Trust, of 2½ for the Tobacco and Cigarette Trust, 8½ for the Illinois Steel Trust, 3 for the National Linseed Oil Trust, 4½ for the Rubber Trust and 5½ for the General Electric syndicate.

This is interpreted to mean that these monopolies— undoubtedly the most extensive of modern times—are in no danger from the law which makes their existence criminal and their operations a penitentiary offense

Is this really so? Are laws passed for the protection of fair trade to be permanently nullified in the interests of monopoly? What does Mr. McKinley think about it?

Postmasters by Election.

From the New York World we Have Clipped the Following:

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 15.—The newly elected Republican Congressman in Indiana have been so bothered with applications from men who desire to be appointed postmasters that they have been conferring with each other to devise some way to escape the anoyance and responsibility of appointments.

They have practically concluded that when the time comes to make changes in postmasters they will insist that each town shall elect it's candidate by popular vote.

The Congressman shall then endorse the candidate and avoid the trials and dangers of making the selection himself.

The plan was tried four years ago in a few towns and was a big success.

Two Days Battle!

SPANISH LOSS 2000,

Twice as Many are Wounded.

Used Dynamite!

Reports via Jacksonville, Fla., say that in two days battle at Pinar del Rio, the Cubans were victorious over Gen. Weyler's Spanish forces. A dynamite mine was touched off by John Linn, formerly of Jacksonville, which was most destructive to life, both men and horses being blown to atoms.

David Starr Jordan, who has been investigating the sealing question for the government, estimated that in 1884 there were 2,000,000 seals in the Alaska herd; to-day there are not more than 400,000, according to a careful census made last summer. That is all there need be said in regard to the protection of that valuable herd.

The Sheats laws of Florida, that made the teaching of mixed classes of white and colored pupils an offense punishable by imprisonment, have been declared unconstitutional and void. Last spring teachers in the school of the American Missionary society at Orange Park were arrested for violation of this law. The case was carried before the supreme court of Florida, and brought about the recent declaration.

A learned scientist has recently been investigating the effect of food, particularly vegetables, on the human character. He finds that a diet of carrots ameliorates harshness of character and reduces nervous irritability; peas create fatty tissue and encourage joyousness; white turnips have a depressing influence. Cabbage is good for pulmonary complaints, while lettuce acts as a sedative upon the human frame, owing to the opium contained in its milky juice.

Brooklyn has a new idea in the educational line. It is proposed that a "parents' day" shall be established in the public schools, when fathers, mothers and instructors shall meet in the school buildings to discuss things of moment anent the teaching of the young hopeful. As the main importance of the new day is to compel an interest by the public in its own affairs, and not to trust too largely to its agents, the idea is a good one, and should not be confined to the city of churches.

The immense activities of the churches are indicated by the annual appropriation by the Methodist Episcopal church for missionary expenses. The net sum is $981,000. This expenditure by one denomination alone shows that the evangelizing spirit is still alive. The great total includes many small as well as large donations. The countless deprivations of personal indulgence that make possible such benefactions are testimonies to the unselfishness that is more general than appears on the surface of events.

The annual report of William P. Hazen, chief of the secret service in the treasury department, has been made public, and it contains much that is highly interesting. Counterfeiting is the chief crime committed against the government, and in spite of every precaution and exercise of the utmost vigilance it is a crime that is increasing annually, particularly the counterfeiting of gold and silver coins. This is shown by the fact that of 780 arrests made by the government officers 714 were for counterfeiting in its different phases, and of these 568 were for manufacturing or passing counterfeit coins.

King Oscar II. of Sweden and Norway has given further evidence of his kindly feeling to Americans by erecting a granite monument on the spot where Mr. and Mrs. Daniel W. Youmans, of New York city, met their death on July 4 last. The circumstances of King Oscar's act are reported to the state department with photographs of the monument. Mr. Youmans and his wife, while driving along a road near Bergen, were backed off a declivity and killed. Consul Many writes that when the king passed the spot soon afterward he directed that the wooden cross be replaced with a granite monument.

There is one county in the United States that did not know of the national election. That is Charlton county, Ga. The officials in the office of the secretary of state are authority for the declaration that the people of the county could not have known of the election, for no election was held there and the official digest of the election in Georgia has been made up with Charlton left out. According to the maps, there are several towns in the county, with Traders Hill as the county seat, but all efforts of the secretary of state to get returns from there has proved unavailing, and it is quite certain that no election was held.

MORTON'S REPORT.

The Secretary of Agriculture Tells of the Work of His Department.

Washington, Nov. 23.—In his fourth annual report the secretary of agriculture shows that with the $150,000 that may be saved from the appropriations for the current fiscal year, there will have been covered back into the treasury since March 7, 1895, over $2,000,000. That this great economy was effected without any loss of efficiency he attributes in a large degree to the improvement in the personnel of the force under the civil service rules.

The inspection of animals intended for food is treated at length. Mr. Morton urges that the government inspection should be extended to all animals intended for human food, whether for consumption in the United States or abroad, but he maintains that the cost of this inspection should be paid by the packers. The total consumption of meat in Great Britain for the year was 1,000,000 tons, 75 per cent of which was produced at home, the remaining 25 per cent. being produced abroad. Of the live meat arriving in Great Britain during the first half of the year of 1896, the United States supplied 75 per cent. of the cattle and 45 per cent. of the sheep. The testimony of the department representatives abroad is that cattle from the United States arrive in English ports in excellent condition. The Glasgow market is especially commended to American shippers, as in that city cattle from the United States compete with the very highest qualities of British animals.

American packers are not participating in the profits of the growth in consumption of swine flesh and hog products in Great Britain as much as they ought to, because they do not cure meats to suit the British demand; on the other hand, Danish and Canadian packers are increasing their shipments every year. American bacon averages about two cents per pound below continental and Irish bacon, and about three cents below English.

The shipment of American horses to England is steadily increasing. In 1893 Great Britain took 12,573 American horses, nearly 23,000 in 1894 and 34,000 in 1895, but during the first nine months of 1896 more American horses were shipped into England than in any previous 12 months.

The seed distributed gratuitously by the government during the present fiscal year weighed 230 tons and occupied 30 mail cars in transit. The cost of carrying them through the mails was over $70,000. Enough seed was sent out gratituously to plant 115 square miles of garden. Ex-congressmen received enough to plant 163½ acres. For the current year at present prices the amount required by congress to be expended in the purchase of seed will make each congressman's quota double what it was last year. The secretary regrets this unnecessary and wasteful expenditure of public money and hopes congress may in good time put a stop thereto.

Referring to the stress of competition which the American farmer is compelled to endure, Mr. Morton calls attention to nearly 2,000,000 farms of 80 acres each given away by the government under the homestead act of 1866 during the past 30 years, and to the amount donated under the timber culture law equivalent to over 500,000 more farms of the same size. It was impossible, he says, for farmers in the old states to profitably sell their products in competition with those of the newer states, grown upon lands which cost their owners nothing.

Secretary Morton refutes the idea prevailing that the farms of the west and south are more heavily burdened with mortgages than those of the east and northeast. States along the north Atlantic, he says, are quite heavily incumbered with farm mortgages, and New Jersey carries a debt of this kind greater in proportion to its farm valuations than any state in the union.

Referring to the impression that greater rates of interest are charged for money loaned upon farms than that loaned on other kinds of real estate, Secretary Morton states that the rate of interest charged upon mortgages on residential property other than farms averages eighty-four hundredths of one per cent. less than the rate of interest charged upon farm loans. In 17 states the average rate charged upon the latter is less than that demanded for loans upon other residential property. In two states the rates are the same upon urban and rural real estate. In Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Wisconsin, Kansas, Iowa, Texas and Alabama the rates of interest are less for money secured by mortgages than for money secured by other realty. In five states, including Kansas, the difference in favor of the farmer is from one-fourth to one-half of one per cent., and in Texas it is over one per cent. If a western farmer pays a higher interest than the eastern, so does the Western merchant, common carrier or manufacturer.

During the fiscal year just ended, the exported products of American farms aggregated $570,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over the preceding year. In spite of this, there was a falling off in the percentage of agricultural products exported to the total exports, but this was due to the unprecedented sale abroad of American manufactured goods. The principal market for American products is found in the united kingdom of Great Britain and her colonies. These English-speaking people bought 58 per cent. of exports from the United States during the fiscal year 1896. Together with Germany, France, Holland, and Belgium, they purchased 81.9 per cent. of our entire output, leaving 18.1 per cent. for the rest of the world.

Secretary Morton asks if a nation which, like the United States, possesses the greatest power and facilities for producing and manufacturing things which the world demands, is not destined to monopolize the markets of the globe. With the most favorable conditions for varied and successful agriculture and the lightest burden of national taxation, what country, he asks, can compete with this in developing the best resources of human toil with a minimum of human effort. With our wonderful labor-saving contrivances applied to nearly every avenue of production, the wages paid in the United States, in the production of wheat and cotton, for instance, are 50 to 100 per cent. higher than in countries with which we compete, so the wages paid in manufactures from metal are from 25 to 100 per cent. higher than the wages paid workers in the same industries by other nations. And in this contest for feeding and furnishing mankind—notwithstanding the fierce competition which it meets all over the globe—American agriculture, manufacture and commerce are steadily gaining more trade, and thus furnishing an enlarged wage fund on a gold basis out of which some millions of American laborers and skilled artisans draw their yearly remuneration, and upon which they and their families largely depend for employment and comfort.

Prof. Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, has submitted to the secretary of agriculture his report of the operations of the bureau during the fiscal year of his administration. Among other things he refers to the kite experiments. On one occasion, he says, an altitude of 7,000 feet was obtained. The use of kites is always limited by the condition of the winds. There appears to remain but one other means of exposing meteorological instruments at approximately fixed points in free air—namely, by the use of devices sustained by the action of propellers which either lift the apparatus directly or give it a specially ascending or descending motion.

Elopers Commit Suicide.

New Rockford, N. D., Nov. 21.—The news of the elopement of Mrs. A. C. Swain, of this place, with Frank Addison, of Baltimore, Md., which occurred Wednesday, has been suppressed on account of the high respect in which the Swain family is held in this community. The couple stopped at a Valley City hotel, registering as man and wife, under an assumed name, and were found dead in bed Friday, having suicided. The erring wife was about 40 years of age, the mother of four children, one a daughter of 18 years. The family was one of the wealthiest in the country. Addison was 40 years of age. The grief-stricken family have sent for the remains of the wife and mother, and will give her Christian burial.

McAuliffe Wins.

San Francisco, Nov. 21.—Jack McAuliffe, the light-weight champion puglilist of the world, and Jimmy Carroll, his old-time rival, and three times his antagonist in the ring for that honor, met Friday night before St. George's club, in a ten-round bout to forever settle the question of superiority. In all their battles previous to Friday night McAuliffe has been the victor, and he was given the decision again Friday night.

"The total vote cast 1896 (approximate), 13,579,638, including about 100,000 prohibition votes and 50,000 Bryan and Watson votes.

"This table shows the complete vote of all the states, except three—Missouri, West Virginia and Texas—where the count has been delayed by contests. From most of the states the figures are official, the results being reported by the secretaries of states. New York's vote will not be canvassed officially by the state officers until December 15. The total prohibition vote cast will not exceed 160,000. It was highest in Pennsylvania—19,274. In the 77 counties of Texas thus far counted, Bryan and Watson received 66,732. The total middle-of-the-road populist vote will be about 100,000. The socialist vote was smaller than in 1892. In many states none were cast. In 1892 Cleveland received 5,556,918 votes, and Harrison 5,176,108, a total of 10,733,026; Cleveland over Harrison, 380,810."

PARENTS GO TO A DANCE.

And Come Home to Find Five of Their Children Burned to Death.

Hamilton, Mo., Nov. 23.—Five children of Mr. and Mrs. Snyder Neal, living five miles north of the city, were burned to death Saturday night. The Neal dwelling was burned while the parents were attending a dance. They had eight children. The oldest, a boy of 15 years, and a baby accompanied the parents to a ball. About 11 o'clock the party broke up. Soon after starting home, the Neals, and those accompanying them, discovered that the Neal residence was on fire.

When they reached the burning building the father saw his 11-year-old girl lying burning in the front door, clasping her three-year-old brother in her arms. The flames prevented rescue. The children were then dead. The father fell in a swoon and has been a raving maniac ever since. Nora, nine years old, is the only survivor of the fire. She says that the children at nome, Cullie, 13; Hattie, 11; Willie, 7; Clarence, 5; Julian 3, and herself, retired at the usual hour in an upstairs chamber. The next she knew the fire was coming through the floor, and the building was enveloped in flames. She says that all six were aroused. She rushed to a second-story window and jumped to the ground, calling to the others to follow, as the fire had cut off escape by the stairway. It is thought the fire was caused by an incendiary.

PLEAD GUILTY.

A Minnesota Pastor Sentenced for Poisoning His Wife.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 20.—The trial of Rev. James C. Hull, for poisoning his wife, came to a dramatic end Thursday afternoon, Mr. Hull changing his plea to guilty. A few minutes before noon Prosecuting Attorney Butler placed in evidence a letter which Hull wrote last February to a pastor in California, saying his wife was slowly dying of a cancer and that she could not live the year out. This letter contradicted Hull's previous testimony, especially as it had been shown that Mrs. Hull did not have a cancer and that Hull was aware of the fact, having been told so by Dr. Hawkins, his family physician. At the opening of the afternoon session S. L. Pierce, Hull's attorney, advised Hull that the California letter in effect convicted, and advised him to plead guilty. This the latter did, and Judge Egan sentenced him to six years in state prison in Stillwater. The trial has been in progress four days. Hull had insured his wife's life for $2,000, and spent several weeks trying to poison her with arsenic. Up to last winter Hull was pastor of the Clinton Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, and created a sensation in church circles by taking a decided stand against the A. P. A.

Slain for Their Money.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Nov. 24.—The mining town of Nesquehoning, in Carbon county, was the scene of the wildest excitement Sunday when it became known that a terrible murder had been committed, the victims being Mrs. Casper Laboye and her husband. The former was instantly killed and the latter fatally injured. The perpetrators of the crime are three unknown Hungarians, who were arrested by a number of citizens while in the attempt to make their escape, and had it not been for the interference of the coal and iron police, all three would have been lynched. The prisoners were taken to Mauch Chunk and are now in jail awaiting a hearing. Robbery was the motive for the crime.

Steamer Wrecked and Lives Lost.

San Francisco, Nov. 23.—The Southern Pacific railroad's steamer San Benito, which left Tacoma for San Francisco on Thursday last with a coal cargo of 5,000 tons and a crew of 43 men, was driven ashore early Sunday morning two miles north of Point Arena in a heavy gale. Five of the crew were drowned, ten others were picked up by the steamer Point Arena and the captain and 27 men are clinging to the rigging with slight hope of their being saved. The vessel will be a total loss.

Princeton Defeats Yale.

New York, Nov. 23.—On Manhattan field, Saturday, the contest for the American championship at football was won by the Princeton college team, the Yale forces being defeated by a score of 24 to 6. Fully 45,000 persons witnessed the game.

Philadelphia, Nov. 23.—For the third successive year, Pennsylvania this year, on Franklin field, Saturday, defeated Harvard at football. Pennsylvania won by a score of 8 to 6.

WEYLER RETREATS.

Spanish General Leaves His Command and Returns to Havana.

Havana, Nov. 24.—Capt. Gen. Weyler is defeated. He arrived here Monday night from Mariel on board the cruiser La Gazpi, which had been placed at his disposal. Only a few weeks ago the Spanish commander took personal charge of the forces and marched to the Pinar del Rio country with the avowed purpose of suppressing the rebellion in quick time. Now he is back in Havana, having conducted a masterly retreat. His operations in Pinar del Rio have proved a failure. He has demonstrated his inability to whip the insurgents, and his recall by the government at Madrid is considered a certainty. Maceo is practically master of the situation.

The news of Weyler's arrival created widespread excitement. It is looked upon as a death blow to the hopes of Spain. The high feeling prevailing was augmented by the information that Gomez is on his way to Havana province at the head of 35,000 well-armed and amply-provisioned men. The insurgents are in possession of plenty of ammunition, having several field pieces and dynamite guns. The artillery is manned by Americans and every engagement in which they have participated the Spanish have suffered heavy loss.

Weyler gives no excuse, it is said, except that it is too hot and unhealthy to do any fighting. It is openly rumored that Weyler became frightened over the fact that Maceo had set a price upon his capture. Scouts informed him that Maceo might make an attempt on Havana and the Spanish general retreated in hot haste to the safety of his palace. Weyler's return by boat was due to his timidity. Insurgents have been busy blowing up trains with dynamite and he feared such a fate might overtake him.

New York, Nov. 24.—Gen. Weyler's statement that he will wait until after Christmas before he attempts to strike a deathblow at the insurgents under Gen. Maceo in Pinar del Rio province, is regarded by Cubans here as an admission that he can do nothing against Cubans in their present invulnerable position.

FAMINE FACES THEM.

Serious Outlook for Residents of the Cascades Flooded District.

Seattle, Wash., Nov. 21.—The Chinese passengers on the Great Northern train which was tied up between Wellington and Madison arrived in Seattle Friday. Through an interpreter they said that while on the train they were given two meals a day for four days, at the end of which time the food supplies gave out and they were forced to walk seven miles through snow from five to fifteen feet deep to a railroad section house, where they were supplied with three meals a day.

Owing to the crippled condition of the Great Northern, Everett & Monte Cristo railroads there is liable to be a serious food famine in towns in the Cascades flooded district. In fact, Mr. McCarthy, a merchant of Sultan City who is now here for the purpose of purchasing supplies, said that it has already begun.

A special dispatch from Snohomish says: The first party of 200 miners who left Monte Cristo early this week to walk out to the lower town, reached here Thursday. The reason for this wholesale exodus of miners is a lack of provisions in the mountain stores. From the reports of the condition of the Everett & Monte Cristo railroad, it is evident that it will be three weeks at least before a train can reach Monte Cristo. All the big mines at Silverton, Goat Lake and Monte Cristo, have followed the example of the Monte Cristo Mining company, and sent out men until the railroad could bring in more provisions. There are from 300 to to 400 farmers in the Snohomish valley who are losers from the flood. Their losses range from a few head of stock to the loss of their entire personal property.

DASHED INTO ETERNITY.

Three Young People at Concord, Ky., Killed by the Cars.

Concord, Ky., Nov. 21.—A frightful accident occurred in this city at 11:17 o'clock Thursday night in which three prominent young people were dashed into eternity. The unfortunate victims were Misses Lulu and Lizzie Lind, daughters of the proprietor of the Lind hotel in this town, and Al Pollick, a young attorney. They were returning home in a buggy from a party some miles west of town, and while crossing the Chesapeake & Ohio tracks at the first street crossing, "Flyer No. 4" struck the buggy, hurling the three occupants some 50 feet in the air, and killing them almost instantly. The train was going at about 50 miles an hour, and, as the depot was between them and the train, it is supposed that they did not hear it coming. The bodies were taken to Undertaker Johnson to be prepared for burial.

Knights of Labor Adjourn.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 23.—At Saturday's session of the Knights of Labor general assembly Past General Worthy Foreman Bishop installed the new executive officers. General Master Workman Sovereign in a speech just preceding adjournment said that in the next three months he would have in the field an official staff of organizers throughout the country that would make the organization's membership the largest in the history of any organization in the world. The convention then adjourned sine die. The executive board has suspended for 15 days the secretary and vice president of the Washington Times for making statements against General Secreary Treasurer Hayes and General Master Workman Sovereign, and at the end of 15 days, if the statements are not retracted, the officers will be expelled from the order.

Liberal Religious Congress.

Indianapolis, Ind., Nov. 20.—At Thursday afternoon's session of the congress of religions after an extended discussion it was decided to change the name from "American Congress of Liberal Religions" to "Liberal Religious Congress." Hiram W. Thomas was reelected president of the congress and Jenkin Lloyd Jones was reelected secretary. Leo Fox was again chosen treasurer. The three men are all from Chicago. The reelected vice presidents are: T. W. Higginson, E. G. Hirsh, M. J. Savage, R. H. Newton and Prof. Momerio. Among the new directors chosen are David Starr Jordan, president of Stanford university, California, and Edwin S. Mead. The next congress will be held at Nashville next year during the Tennessee centennial celebration.

A RAINES LAW SANDWICH.

The Absent-Minded Man Ate the Pasteboard.

The absent-minded man took his seat at the restaurant table and, as usual, buried his face at once in a newspaper, says the Hotel Mail. A waiter placed a bill of fare, a napkin and a knife and fork in front of him and stood two or three minutes unnoticed before asking:

"What shall I bring you, sir?"

"What's that?" said the absent-minded man, starting up suddenly, not remembering what it was all about.

"What do you want for lunch, sir?" the waiter asked again.

"Oh, yes," said the absent-minded, trying to collect his wits. "Bring me a cup of coffee and a ham sandwich."

The waiter supplied the order and put a large pasteboard check for it down on the table, the absent-minded man continuing to read his paper. The waiter went away to attend to the wants of other people, and about 15 minutes later came back.

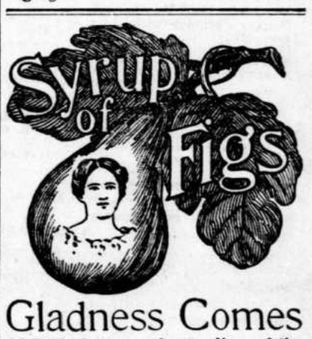
"Do you wish anything more?" he asked, politely.

"Yes," snapped the absent-minded man, somewhat viciously. "Go and get me a fresh ham sandwich. The one you brought me was as dry as a bone."

"Why, here is the sandwich I brought, sir," said the waiter, pushing the plate toward him. "You have eaten the check!"

Suicide Is Hereditary.

An extraordinary instance of hereditary tendency to suicide was told by Prof. Brouardel in Paris lately. A farmer near Etampes hanged himself without apparent cause, leaving a family of seven sons and four daughters. Ten of the eleven subsequently followed the father's example, but not until they had married and begotten children, all of whom likewise hanged themselves. The only survivor is a son, who is now 68 years of age, and has passed safely beyond the family hanging age.



Syrup of Figs

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS

SONG BEFORE SUNRISE.

The morning star is twinkling
  Above the ebon hill,
And in the distant valley
  I hear the whippoorwill;
And like a golden galley,
  Abandoned to the seas,
The gibbous moon is sinking
  Besides Hesperides.
    It's up an hour before the dawn,
      It's up and far away;
    It's up to meet my own true love
      Upon our wedding day.

The roses in my garden
  Breathe out their fragrant breath,
Like fairy children sleeping
  Without a thought of death;
The lark is still a-dreaming
  Within his dewy nest,
Of when the light of heaven
  Shall bloom upon his breast.
    It's up an hour before the dawn,
      It's up and far away;
    It's up to meet my own true love
      Upon our wedding day.

Of all the days the sweetest,
  Oh, this glad day shall be;
No care from dawn to sunset,
  That brings my love to me.
Unclouded is the dawning,
  Unclouded be the close;
And every hope be dimpled,
  And hallowed where it goes.
    It's up an hour before the dawn,
      It's up and far away;
    It's up to meet our own true love
      Upon our wedding day.

THE LIGHT-KEEPER'S SON.

A long, narrow strip of land belonging to the Canadian government and jutting out into the Gulf of St. Lawrence, was, at the time I write of, known by the appropriate title of Cape Hurricane.

On account of the dangerous condition of the coast, a magnificent lighthouse had been built at the extreme point of the cape, and hard by stood the cottage of the keeper, an old seafaring man, named Samuel Johnstone.

Besides two daughters, he had four sons, the youngest of whom, Hale, aged 14 years, is the hero of my story.

One day in the early part of September, the boys and girls, with the exception of Hale, drove about ten miles inland, for the purpose of being present at a wedding the same evening.

Samuel Johnstone, who was a widower, was consequently left alone with his little son.

As night approached, the former perceived, with some anxiety, that the sky was overcast by heavy clouds, that a cold, wet wind was blowing from the north, and the experienced mariner at once concluded that a great storm was impending.

"Hale," he said, entering the cottage and addressing the boy, who was reading by the open fireplace, "run down to the cove and pull up your skiff high and dry. You'll never sail the little Sea Gull again, if to-night's storm strikes her."

"All right, father," the boy replied, with alacrity, for he would not lose his swift and beautiful little pleasure-boat for the world. "I'll take care of the Sea Gull. Will you light the lamp?"

"Yes. Hurry up, my boy; for the storm is breaking already. God help those at sea to-night! The wreckers will be happy in the morning."

It may be well to remark here that along the barren shores of Cape Hurricane were scattered the cabins of fugitive Indians, outcasts from their tribes, and here and there might be seen the shanty of some fisherman, who could act also the roles of smuggler and wrecker when occasion required.

Hale found his task of placing the Sea Gull beyond danger more difficult than he imagined.

Hence, it was some time before he was ready to return to the cottage, and when he turned his steps in that direction, the wind was howling dismally, the waves were already lashed into a fury, and the spray from the rocks dashed over the boy, drenching him to the skin.

The lighthouse lamp, constructed on the revolving plan, now flashed its radiance through the intense darkness of the night, at intervals of a minute's duration.

I love a lighthouse, whether glistening white and beautiful, kissed by the purling ripples of a gentle sea, and bathed in the golden sunshine of a summer day, or standing firm and invincible, lashed by the angry surge, breasting the tempest's wrath, and lifting its fire-crowned head into the black, thundering midnight sky. To me it is at once an emblem of the infinite peace which accompanies virtue, and of the grand, sublime courage which resists temptation.

Hale stopped suddenly with an exclamation of surprise and fear as he approached the cottage. Something had happened which made the boy's blood run cold, and drove the ruddy color from his healthy face.

He crept up to the window and looked in. One glance, and he understood all. Four wreckers, awkwardly disguised with masks of canvas, had captured and bound the keeper, wresting from him at the same time the great iron key of the lighthouse.

These men, for the sake of the booty cast up by the hungry, merciless waves, intended to sacrifice hundreds of human lives.

A thrill of horror ran through the boy's frame as he thought of the enormity of the crime that these men were about to commit. A cold perspiration broke over his brow, and he trembled like a leaf.

He crouched down in the shadows under the window-sill, and in a few seconds had regained his presence of mind. His father was helpless. It was his duty to act—to outwit these men—to save hundreds of lives now at the mercy of the wreckers.

Hale had not long to wait. Two men were left to guard the prostrate form of old Samuel Johnstone, while two others cautiously left the cottage, and ran swiftly toward the lighthouse.

The key turned in the lock, and both entered. The next instant Hale had followed them.

The storm was raging fiercely. At intervals lightning quivered through the sky, and rolling thunder seemed to shake the very battlements of heaven. The wind howled like a savage monster in search of prey, and flung foam-crested waves upon the beach, like packs of yelping wolves whose white fangs glittered through the darkness.

Hale quickly removed his shoes as he gained the entrance of the lighthouse. The door was left open. He listened. Both men ascended the stairs. The boy's heart beat with great thumps against his side as he felt for the key.

If he could secure it, it would be easy to lock the wreckers out when they came down, and then to repair what damage they might have done to the lamp. But, alas, the key was gone!

For an instant Hale was confused and disappointed, but it was not long before he had contrived another plan which he determined to put into execution.

At all hazards he would follow the wreckers to the top of the lighthouse.

Trusting to his perfect knowledge of every nook and cranny in the premises, Hale, with the stealthy motion of a cat, ascended the steep, narrow, winding stairs.

For the first time in his experience they creaked beneath his weight.

Up, up he went, every slight noise sending a thrill of terror through his frame; up past loopholes, which now admitted no single ray of light; up, until the second last round was nearly completed, and then he stopped.

What was it that made him shiver as though afflicted with an ague? What caused him to crouch down in the inky darkness, scarcely three feet from the bottom of the last, rickety flight of stairs? He held his breath and listened. Despite the fearful roaring of the tempest without, Hale distinctly heard the low murmur of voices, and the loud, echoing sound of descending footsteps.

He recognized the wreckers. One was an Indian, the other Miles Parker, a white man, and both suspicious and dangerous characters.

"Ugh!" exclaimed the former, as he paused on the last step. "Me hear um noise! 'Sh!"

The sharp-eared Indian had detected the almost suppressed breathing of Hale. The brave boy never moved a muscle, but the beating of his heart was painful in that fearful moment.

Two steps to one side, and either one of the men would have trampled upon him where he lay.

Would they make a search? Would they strike a light?

"Go on, you coward!" said Parker, impatiently. "There ain't no human bein' but them in the cottage within miles of us. Go on, I tell you!"

"Ugh! White man, him fool!" the Indian answered, mutternig discontentedly as he passed downward.

Parker followed, and soon their echoing footsteps died away in the distance, and Hale rose, with a prayer of thanksgiving on his lips, for the danger was past.

Quickly he ran up the last flight of stairs, and one glance showed him all. The wreckers had not extinguished the lamp, but simply broken the revolving apparatus. In another lighthouse further down the coast the light was stationary. Pilots, therefore, would naturally mistake one for the other, and run their ships upon the rocks. The plan of the wreckers was perfect in its diabolical ingenuity and in its certainty of success.

Hale, however, was equal to the occasion. Closing the heavy door of the little circular apartment, he bolted and barred it firmly. This was scarcely the work of a minute. Then, standing on a stool, he found—oh, joy of joys!—that he could reach the lamp, and move it easily with his hands—in fine, that he himself could perform the work of the revolving apparatus.

"One, two, three, four, five, six," he counted, with the regularity of a clock, until he reached "60," and then the brilliant light flashed out upon the darkness, and many a pilot, miles away upon the bosom of the stormy gulf, saw the well-known signal and steered his vessel accordingly.

It is scarcely necessary to relate how the infuriated wreckers, vowing vengeance upon the person who had outwitted them, ran up the narrow stairway and flung themselves again and again upon the stout barrier which separated them from the heroic boy. Suffice it to say that amid the howling of the storm, the curses, threats and pistol shots of the baffled ruffians, five feet away from him, Hale calmly and precisely continued counting the weary minutes of that long, terrible night.

His arms ached: his limbs could scarcely support him; he was almost overcome with fatigue; but he never flinched—he stood with invincible determination at his post of duty, saving by his exertions the property of anxious merchants and the lives of storm-tossed marines.

And when the anger of the storm subsided and the sun rose in the east, flinging its glorious radiance over the sparkling waters of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, it flashed brightly on the sails of many ships, which, but for the heroism of a little boy, would have been shattered on the cruel rocks of Cape Hurricane.

The wreckers, who had made their escape before daylight, were afterward captured and punished as they deserved to be—by imprisonment for a long term of years.

When Hale, on descending from the lighthouse in the morning, released his father, the latter wept tears of joy in thanking Heaven for so heroic and noble-hearted a son.

Later the little fellow received a bronze medal for heroism from the government.

Even at this day, visitors to Cape Hurricane, hearing this story told, unite in applauding the grand and noble deed, and in calling down blessings upon the hero, Hale Johnstone, the lightkeeper's son.—Golden Days.

What Ma Did.

At a fashionable wedding a little while ago, after the departure of the happy pair, a dear little girl, whose papa and mamma were among the guests, asked with a child's delightful inquisitiveness: "Why do they throw things at the pretty lady in the carriage?"

"For luck," replied one of the bridesmaids.

"And why," continued the child, "doesn't she throw them back?"

"Oh," said the young lady, "that would be rude."

"No, it wouldn't," persisted the child, to the delight of her doting parents; "ma does."—Tit-Bits.

Confessions of an Autograph Fiend.

First Autograph Fiend—I don't see how you got autographs from all those great poets.

Second Autograph Fiend—Easy enough. I would write some "Sweet Singer of Michigan" sort of verses, and print them in our local paper under the name of the poet I wanted to strike. Then I'd write to him, asking if it was true that they were written by him. I'd get a red-hot letter in reply every time.—N. Y. Weekly.

HIGHWAY SKATING.

A New Autumn Outdoor Sport for Everybody.

Road skating is an outdoor sport which for women at least promises to become as established a custom as bicycling. Let no one confound this new sport with rinking on four rollers or flying on steel runners; yet it is a compromise between the runner and roller skate, with some ideas borrowed from the bicycle. It is composed of a steel frame that clamps onto the foot, and to this, directly under the heel and toe, are fastened a couple of large wood or steel wheels, with or without rubber tires, as your fancy pleases. Previous experience on ice blades or the four old wooden wheels helps one not at all in mastering locomotion on the road skates, first because to balance the foot on two instead of four rollers is no easy job, and then because one is lifted nearly two and a half inches from the floor.

For these reasons the center of gravity for road skating must be sought with the aid of an attendant in a rink, and studied as carefully as for exercise on the ice. The effort for one thoroughly ignorant of the proper stride is almost painfully difficult, but it is as easy to learn as the bicycle, and quite as much fun when you discover how. Just as no cyclist is ever content to spend his leisure hours toiling round and round the biggest academy floor ever built, so, directly the eccentricities of these new skates are conquered, one is impelled to get out on the nearest asphalt or macadam highway with them.

A nice roll-beaten earth road is quite as good a skating ground, and in the open air the true joy of this improved means of locomotion is felt. There you push out exactly as if skimming over ice, pick your path with care, and running at the rate of six or eight miles an hour, when the road and weather are propitious. To anyone who has once been on these high, easy wheels, there is no need of extolling the advantages they offer for their exhilarating sensation and splendid exercise, but for women, and in the autumn weather, as it grows too cold for bicycling, they hold out exceptional opportunities.

A bicycle skirt with bloomers and bicycle shoes, all answer the needs of road skating, while the upper half of the body can be dressed just as individual taste dictates. Those who are studying out the question of balance on these foot wheels use sometimes, instead of cycling skirts, any rather short easy walking dress and calfskin boots, which lace high, and have broad, comfortable soles. Weak-ankled women lace their shoes very close and use a supporting rod and can make as good time on their skates as at any time during the summer on their bicycles.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Queer Accident to a Car.

A very peculiar mishap to a freight train has just come to the attention of the motive-power department of the Pan-Handle in this city, and in its details it assumes the nature of a miracle as strange as those of old. The train was running at a rapid rate between Xenia and Trebeins, a distance of four miles, when the trucks of one of the cars gave way and jumped onto the tracks of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton road, which runs parallel with the Pennsylvania at that point. The trucks lighted squarely on the rails, and continued running until they smashed into a pilot of the Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton engine running in the opposite direction. The Pan-Handle train evidently did not suffer any inconvenience owing to the loss of trucks, as it was not discovered until Trebeins was reached, and then it was found that the body of the freight car was held in position by the couplings and had run two miles without any wheels. The accident is perhaps without a parallel in annals of railways.—Columbus (O.) Press.

Costliest Gems.

The rarest and costliest gems, though not altogether esteemed the most beautiful, are pigeon's blood rubies, fire opals and diamonds that are pure but shed a distinct glow of blue or pink. A very perfect pearl of generous size and lustrous skin, tinted a rarely beautiful golden green, was valued, unset, at $1,750.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

The Reason for It.

"What do you suppose caused the natives to think that Billy had a wife up in the city?"

"Oh, from his happy, careless manner they naturally judged that he was freed for the time being from some weight on his mind."—Philadelphia North American.

Result of Her Rebuke.

Mrs. Halowell—I was really surprised, Mr. Jagon, to see you coming out of a saloon yesterday.

Jagon—It was a foolish thing to do on a day as hot as yesterday was, but I had to do it or miss my train.—Washington Times.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

Five Railways Indicted.

It developed in the criminal branch of the Ramsey county district court that the recent grand jury found indictments against five railroads for refusing to live up to chapter 149 of the laws of 1895. The chapter is known as the warehouse law, and provides that railroads must turn over to any properly licensed warehouseman on application, any freight which remains uncalled for in the road's possession for a period of 20 days. The law provides that the warehouseman shall pay the railroad charges and, after keeping the property for a certain length of time, may sell it for charges and what more he can obtain.

The complainant is James A. Lewis. The only witness examined before the grand jury was W. H. Thurston. The cases are brought for the purpose of testing the law, these being the first complaints which have been filed since the law was passed. There is a great difference of opinion in regard to the constitutionality of the law, the attorneys for the railroads claiming that it is ridiculous.

Confessed His Guilt.

Rev. James C. Hull, the Methodist preacher charged with poisoning his wife, broke down during his trial at St. Paul and confessed his guilt. The county attorney suggested that it was Hull and not his wife who was unbalanced, and in view of these circumstances, which were concurred in by the court, Hull was sentenced to six years in the state prison at Stillwater. The climax of the case was worked up in a masterly manner by County Attorney Butler. It hung upon a letter written by Hull to Rev. I. L. Spencer, of Fernando, Cal., in February last, in which Hull stated that his wife was suffering from cancer, and that she already had an operation performed, and intimating that she would probably die at any time. It showed beyond question, that he was preparing the way for the time when his wife should be dead with the effect of the poison which he was administering. Hull was caught in a trap, and when it was sprung he admitted his guilt and everything was laid bare.

Farmers Institutes.

Following is a list of State Farmers' Institutes to be held in December: Park Rapids, Hubbard county, Tuesday and Wednesday, 1 and 2; Wadena, Wadena county, Thursday and Friday, 3 and 4; Fergus Falls, Otter Tail county, Monday and Tuesday, 7 and 8; Pelican Rapids, Otter Tail county, Wednesday and Thursday, 9 and 10; Alexandria, Douglas county, Friday and Saturday, 11 and 12; Hinckley, Pine county, Wednesday and Thursday, 16 and 17; Taylor's Falls, Chisago county, Friday and Saturday, 18 and 19; Mora, Kanabec county, Tuesday and Wednesday, 22 and 23.

Reorganized.

The railroad and warehouse commission held a special meeting at St. Paul to elect a chairman to succeed Colonel Liggett. There was a full attendance, and Judge Ira Mills was selected for the place. Colonel Liggett turned over his desk to Nathan Kingsley, who was appointed by Governor Clough to fill the vacancy caused by his retirement, and Mr. Kingsley was duly installed. The commission paid a high tribute to the retiring member, in a letter addressed to him and signed by George L. Becker and Ira B. Mills, commissioners, and A. K. Teisberg, secretary.

The Year on the River.

Navigation on the Mississippi river is practically at an end, although the government lights be kept burning until the end of the week. All the raft boats have gone into winter quarters, and the Roberts Hains, which plies between Winona and Fountain City, is the only steamer now running. The record shows that 3,359 boats, 1,098 rafts and 934 barges have passed through the bridge at Winona during the year. The figures for 1895 were: 3,745 boats, 1,325 rafts and 1,444 barges. The falling off in business is due to the reduction in cut of the sawmills along the river.

Trouble About Game.

The winter game season is on, and with it comes the attendant troubles among hunters, commission men and comman carriers, in which the state game wardens are the bogie men. The most closely watched are packages which might contain venison, upon which the season is open for six days longer, and the express companies are so angered over seizures and searches made that some of them have asserted through their agents that they will resist the game wardens in the future and carry the matter to the courts.

News in Brief.

John Townsend, a switchman in the Great Northern yards at Willmar, was run over and killed.

Mrs. Cornelius Turner was accidentally shot in the thigh by her son George, at Rochester.

Mr. Tawney has requested the postoffice department to make a trial of rural free delivery in Winona county.

An Itasca county man walked 110 miles to cast his vote at the recent election.

Warden Wolfer has purchased about 6,000 bales of sisal and manilla fiber, for use in the prison binder twine factory, the price paid being considerable less than the ruling market prices. This supply will keep the factory going until April 1.

Anoka wins the fight for the fourth hospital for the insane. The supreme court handed down a decision from the pen of Judge Buck, in which it was held that the locating commission had not definitely located the particular site at Hastings, for which it had voted, and that it had a right to change its mind and accept the Anoka site.

Josep Zeis, a farmer 50 years old, residing in Renville county, was held up and robbed while crossing the Minnesota river bridge near Redwood Falls.

Fire at Little Falls destroyed the residence of Leigh Perry. Loss $4,700. Partially insured. Annie Stewart's house was also burned.

Mrs. John Fishback, a member of the Salvation Army, invaded a saloon at Little Falls, broke up a card and pool game, and scared her husband out of the back door, despite the objections of the bartender.

Supervising Architect Aiken has opened 12 bids for roof sheathing, slate and copper fork, roof skylights and rain pipes for the St. Paul public building. The lowest bid was from Angus McLeod & Co., Minneapolis, at $17,987.

The store of C. E. Lundquist & Co. was entered at Hawley. The safe was blown open and about $50 in checks and $100 in money taken.

SNAKE SUICIDE.

A Rattler with Three Fangs Shuffles Off His Mortal Coil.

A United States cavalryman, stationed at Fort Meade, S. D., writes to Forest and Stream as follows in regard to the self-destruction of a three-fanged rattlesnake:

"As to the suicide of the creature, I am forced to ask for an explanation. The snake at first sight, coiled up in the usual manner for a prime strike, made a vicious lunge at my leggings, then drew back and closely scrutinized me from hat to shoe. Instantly a change of expression came over his features, and ferocity gave way to a look that might have been born of disgust and resignation. I watched him closely, not knowing what might be his next move. He suddenly astonished me by plunging headlong into the Belle Fourche. Motionless he sank, and lay at full length at the bottom. I continued to watch him until the last vestige of his reptilious breath had risen to the placid surface in a pearly bubble, and then with the aid of a stick I raised him from the water, placed him in the sunshine and satisfied myself that life was extinct. I had never known or heard of a rattler taking to water, and here I was confronted by the plainest case of suicide by drowning in broad daylight. I have since then lost all faith in snakes. I have adopted and discarded every theory that might offer a solution in this case, and am now driven to the belief that this snake deliberately suicided because it had committed the blunder of wasting a well-meant three-fanged strike on a United States cavalryman. Hereafter I shall travel incognito in those parts."

A Growing Section of the Country.

Devils Lake, N. D., Nov. 19.—Receiver Noble, of the United States Land Office in this city, says that for the 18 months ending Nov. 1st, the homestead entries in his district reached a total of 1,998, the largest number filed during any equal period in the history of the office. The entries are mostly in the northern part of the district, in the Turtle Mountain section, the entrymen including hundreds of Dunkards and others from various eastern states. The crops were universally good in this section the past season, new settlers are all in good spirits, and indications point to a larger influx of immigration next season than ever before. Wheat ranged from 15 to 25 bushels to the acre this year, flax 12 to 20, and, as a good many farmers still hold their wheat, the rising market is hailed with delight.

HIS IS THE TIME of year .. .. when men .. and women .. become weakened by .. the weather, and run down generally. .. .. The first parts that the weather affects are the kidneys. The urea is not thrown off, but is forced back upon the lungs, and disease results—caused by weakness of the kidneys.

HERE IS ONLY ONE SURE WAY known to medical men for promptly checking troubles of the kidneys and restoring these great organs to health and strength, and that is by the use of Warner's Safe Cure

It has stood the test of time; it has saved thousands of lives; it has restored millions of sufferers to health; it has done what was never done, never attempted before; it has made men stronger and healthier; it has made .. women brighter and happier; .. it stands alone in all these qualities. Do you not think it would be wise for you to use it and thus avoid the dangers of the season? Insist upon having it.

Texas.

In the Agricultural line, Texas leads all other states in the variety of its products. Cotton, corn and the cereals grow and are raised in every section of the state and in the central and southern portions sugar cane and sorghum are profitably cultivated. On the Gulf Coast two and three crops of vegetables are raised each year. Berries are shipped six weeks in advance of the home crop in the north. Pears, peaches, plums, oranges, figs, olives and nuts all grow abundantly and can be marketed from two to three weeks in advance of the California crops. Large quantities of rice are now grown.

If the land seeker, the home seeker and the settler desires to secure a farm larger than the one he occupies, on vastly more reasonable terms; if he wants more land to cultivate, a greater variety of crops to harvest, with proportionately increased remuneration, at a less outlay for cost of production; if he wants an earlier season with correspondingly higher prices; if he wants milder winters, all the year pasturage for his stock, improved health, increased bodily comforts and wealth and prosperity, he should go to Texas.

CASCARETS stimulate liver, kidneys and bowels. Never sicken, weaken or gripe.

There is no message which brings more gladness to a true woman's heart than the sweet assurance that a little one is coming to bless her life and call her "Mother."

But in all her loving preparations for the expected little guest, a mother is liable to forget that her own health and physical condition is the most important provision which can possibly be made for the baby's happiness.

If the prospective mother is weak, nervous and anxious, this condition is bound to react on the baby's constitution. No daintiness of wardrobe will compensate for the loss of the natural, healthy vigor which a mother should bestow upon her baby.

As early as possible during gestation, the expectant mother should reinforce her bodily powers with the sustaining, health-bringing influence of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It gives natural, healthy vigor and elastic endurance to the organs specially concerned in motherhood. It makes the coming of baby perfectly safe and almost painless. It gives nerve-strength to the mother and vital hardihood to the child.

It is the only medicine devised by an educated physician specially to overcome all weaknesses and diseases of the feminine organs.

Mrs. Roscoe Vanover, of Robinson Creek, Pike Co., Ky., writes: "I wish to express my thanks to you for the good I have received from your 'Favorite Prescription.' I have used it at different times for the last five years, and always with the most gratifying results. But the greatest good received from the 'Favorite Prescription' was about four months ago when my last baby was born. I was afflicted with 'child-bed fever.' Instead of sending after a doctor I used the 'Prescription' and was cured. A lady friend of mine was similarly afflicted and sent after the doctor and took his remedies and died. I am 27 years old, weigh 147 pounds, the mother of five children, and am enjoying the best of health."

--Don't forget the Literary Society tonight, at the City Hall.

—Dance at the City Hall, Saturday night. Everybody invited.

--"The Chinook," at the City Hall, Monday night. Those who have seen it pronounce it good.

—If Mr. Gutzwiller has insured the water fountain to run all winter it ought to be tried, and not nailed up.

—Epworth League every Sunday night at the M. E. Church at 6:45; Everybody invited. John Catlin led last Sunday night.

—It is highly probable the City Council will have the old town pump repaired and furnish the public with water in abundance even in cold weather.

—Editor Wharton must have "run a snag against" somewhere this week. He seems more than usually, vituperative. Cheer up Jimmie! Cheer up!

--The ladies of the Catholic church held a supper and entertainment last night at the hall. They had quite a turnout notwithstanding the slippery condition of the roads.

—The through train was delayed this morning from the west; one was made up at Willmar and run down on the regular time. Snows are quite heavy in Montana, it is claimed to be 8 feet deep.

—Clara Louis Thompson under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the Presbyterian church will entertain the people of Delano and vicinity Monday evening. The entertainment is said to be a rare treat.

—Several petitions for Post Master are being circulated about town. It is said that some parties signed more than one, while many signed none. Petitions as usually signed don't seem to be as good a way as an election would.

—After the long rain, accompained by lightning an unsual thing here in the winter, the ground covered with water froze solid, making skating about the best mode of travel. Few teams venture out. A good snow would now make fine sleighing.

—The electric plant was under a course of repairs on Sunday night and no lights were turned on. People had to hunt up their old kerosean lamps and use them. The M. E. Church was not quite so full of people as usual on this account; but those in attendance got along with the old lamps and enjoyed a good sermon just as well.

—The Eagle is worrying herself considerably about the farmers "holding their wheat" she advises them to hold it. She also has a share in an elevator, and money is close. It might turn out as a man's investment in Minneapolis, he said he had made $3000 in a very short time. When asked how, he said: "By buying a house and lot for $4,000 and now it is worth $7000. Did you sell it? was asked. No, he answered. Then you havn't made it. A few months it was cheap as ever.

—Rev. J. L. Farber took for his text on Sunday evening Amos. Chap. VI ver. I. "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion and trust in the mountain of Samaria." The preacher pointed out the fact that people did not use their best efforts in the cause of Christianity. He had figured that Delano pays out for preaching in five churches about $1400 a year; at the same time about $14,000 go over the bar of seven saloons. He also doubted if the amount payed out for dancing did not exceed that spent for church services.

—One day last week we called for a few moments at the power house and hadquite an interesting lesson from Professor Muckey and his able assistant Mr. Hilderbrant, on thesubject of electricity. They have taken considerable pains (Mr. Muckey, even to loosing the end of a thumb) in learning how the machinery works. They can tell you how and why a lot of things are done, about their business. We were considerably "shocked" however by following their directions, "Ampires," "Ohms," "Volts," "resistance," "incandescents," and many other things seemed wonderfully mixed up. We presume they know where to take hold of them but visitors had better keep their hands off of things, on general principles.

--The Eagle has got into her old rut this week. She says in making mention of our item concerning the "Mayors Monument," the "non-freezable" water fountain on R. R. Aye., that "The intimation in the GAZETTE last week that Mr. Gutzwiller had purchased it with the intention of its running all winter is not true".

Now, the Eagle puts Mr. Gutzwiller in rather a bad light when it gets that off.

Mr. Belt, street commissioner. says: Mr. Gutzwiller argued before the council that the fountain would run all winter. Mr. Horsch, councilman, said substantially the same. Mr. Johns, Recorder, says: Mr. Gutzwiller's promise to make good any damage coming to the fountain is on the minutes. Now let the Eagle talk a few facts if she can. Don't come around here with such brazen faced statements.

High School Notes.

We have been trying for some time to secure some school notes from the Delano High School, we used to be furnished regularly each week with some; but for some reason or for no reason, we dont seem to get them this term. No better exercise for students can well be gotten up than that of preparing notes for publication: they learn from seeing their articles in print how to look out for mistakes, and how to correct them or how to write without commiting blunders. It rids them in preparing for examinations, our columns are open to such as see fit to contribute school notes or write short articles on ony subject. Don't be bashful bring them along.

In the absence of other school notes we took occasion to gather up a few on our own hook.

The High School is having a two day's Thanksgiving vacation.

All the teachers went abroad to eat foreign turkey, except Misses Gates and Quinn who believe in patronizing home industries.

The Thanksgiving entertainment given by the pupils of the two primary departments on Wednesday afternoon was attended by a number of visitors, who enjeyed the exercises very much. The little speaches about grand ma, grand pa, dollie, and the balance of the family; and about plum pudding, cramberry sauce, turkey, pumpkin pie, spice and every thing nice, tickled the visitors as well as the speakers. Several very nice songs enlivened the occasioned. The pupils behaved finely, and at the close retired from the room in splendid order The teachers Misses Gray and Kelly deserve praise for their efforts in instructing the youth of our district in the able manner the exercises indicated they are doing.

County Cullings.

The board of County Commissoners met in special session at Buffalo, Nov. 9. All present but August Hafften.

The bonds of County officers were fixed: Treasurer, $75,000.00; Auditor, $5000.00; Coroner, $1000.00.

The treasurer was instructed to visit the towns of the county, during January and Febuary, to receive taxes. The official paper is to publish a full schedule of tax rates one issue, other papers to publish a list of times and places of meeting for collecting taxes.

The board at the anual meeting in January will receive sealed bids for printing.

Besides usual bills passed, the bills for election ballots and other printing $179.50, and publishing official ballots and commissioners proceedings $65.25, and for procuring ballots and delivering election returns were allowed. Board adjourned to meet Dec. 4.

We understand that Judge Belden will preside at the December term of District Court, at Buffalo.

Why don't our republican friends hold more ratification meetings in our county. We suspect they don't feel so terribly much like hurrahing for what they got as they might. There was considerable friction among gold and silver republicans, and from present appearances ilkely to be more.

Even the Eagle, in speaking of county printing to be let in January now says: We don't know whether anyone is engineering a sucker's deal this time or not." Then you did know before, did you? You have been a long time telling your readers about it. When you know of suckers deals you should say so.

The Buffalo Journal thinks Michael Doran and Ex-Governor Merriam will have something to say about the distribution of post offices among the faithful followers of the golden calf. Let us elect postmasters! by all means! It would be much more satisfactory! We could at least feel that we had done our duty in voting for proper persons.

Buffalo Journal: By common consent of the managers of all parties to the late contest, the campaign of education is to go right on. There is no reason why it should not, and the more education people have the more clearly they will see and understand that before there can be general prosperity amongst the people we must again return to the monetary system established by the founders of the government

Reading Notices.

Farm Stock and Home, Minneapolis Minn., is read by more northwestern farmers than all other Minnesota agricultural papers combined. The reason for this is found in the fact that it is by far the best one published in this state. Every department is in charge of a man well versed in the subject he represents, and are men daily engaged in farm opperations and residents of the northwest. It is distinctively a paper edited by and for northwestern farmers. Farm, Stock and Home with the GAZETTE, will be sent one year for $1.30.

Take Notice, Act According.

The Village Council of the village of Delano, will receive sealed bids for 200 cords of Dry Basswood and 300 cords of Green Basswood, to be split body wood, four feet in length, to be ranked on village grounds near power house. W. W. ERWIN, Populist is reported as having received 2,384 votes for Congress in the Fifth District in Tennessee. Is itour "Bill": The Tall Pine?

WHY don't the Republecans claim now that the election and the prrtective tariff have raised the price of wheat? Have they finally learned that the people know better?.

BEEDES' BUDGET wants to know "What shall Democrats do now?" Why keep right on fighting class legislation, protective tariff, contraction of currency and ether evils as they appear.

THE St. Paul Broad Axe advises J. Adam and his kind to jump off the high bridge. J. Adam took as tremendious a jump while ago when he landed out on the shoals of National democracy.

IN the seventh district of Kentucky. Messrs Settle and Breckinridge, of Pollard fame, were the candidates. The people Settled the fact that they did not want Breckinridge, by the majority of 1807.

WHEAT has been having a boom since election. It is claimed that a famine is going on in India, and that our wheat is needed to help them out; That crops are short in other countries which instead of selling wheat will have to buy, and the United States having an abundance will have to supply some of the markets.

REPORTS are out to the effect that the committees are contemplating the contesting of the late election of Governor. Why everlastingly contemplate? Even the republicans were surprised that the present Governor was re elected. If there is evidence of illegal throwing out of votes: of fraud in any form; by all means the committee should quit being quoted as "considering" "contemplating" etc. Either they should keep awful still or they should contest the election and let the people know that they do have some grounds for their contemplations or at least think they have.

Mr. MCKINLEY is certainly in a very tight place on the tariff question. American manufacturers want their especial products protected. The Democrats and Populists are anxious the Republicans should get their protection as high as they want it as soon as possible, so the people may see that tariff is not what is needed so much as money on which to do business. Republican advisers, who have had experience are extremely careful about passing protective bills now, until something is done to relieve the hard times; as they well know raising the price of every thing while nobody has money with which to buy, will do good to no one, and will completly explode the policy of protection to home industries being beneficial to the people.

ST. PETER now has one of the finest church edifices out side of the cities. On Sunday Dr. Ives, who claims to have dedicated more churches than any other man, among them all of Talmage's conducted the cermonies for the Methodists: the members of the church deserve great praise, as does their pastor Rev. Joscelyn for their splendid success and the kind friends from outside the church, are greatfully remembered for their help. Six thousand dollars remained to be provided for before the dedication could go on. After hammering away until far into the night this was all pledged but about $275. The trustees met and agreed to look after that and the church was dedicated. Dr. Ives told them that he was surprised that such a church could be built for what this one cost, it was worth $15,000. Presiding Elder was present and participated in the exercises.

Get Your Second Papers!

One of the amendments voted on at the last eleetion, and adopted, will deprive a good many of our foreign born frienes of their vote. The law was changed. It used to be that any man declaring his intention to become a citizen could vote. Now he must not only do that but he must get his second papers making him a full citizen before he can vote. The clerk attends to this and will have some businese on hand between now and next spring, most likely, as the law requires that the papeps shall have been secured three months before the holder can vote, many old voters in our county will not be able to vote at next springs election unless they get their papers right away. From the Minneapolis Times we learn that Wright County has 2178 men who hold first papers, which let them vote last fall; but only 335 of them held second papers so that they can vote at the next election, or any other. If you are one, and wish to vote get your papers now.

Plans Mapped Out!

Gov. Nelson Dingley: of Lewistown Me., Republican leader in the House of Representatives and Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, in a letter to the World, maps out the plans for Congress to pursue as follows; First "The existing tariff is amply protective in some parts but thoroughly destructive to our industries in others, and it is a revenue destroyer." He gives it as his opinion that it is not necessary to create an entirely new bill. Now what will become of the ultra McKinleyites who were bent on having the McKinley bill re-enacted, forthwith? He claims that about 20,000,000 revenue on wools and woolens have been lost. If so much has been lost on wools and woolens who lost it? If the goods can be sold that much less has it injured anybody that uses woolens? If so how? If the government is short on that item of wools alone to the amount of 20,000,000 the people who wear and use wools should be the gainers. Would that hurt anybody in this country? Are not woolens high enough now?

Mr. Dingley sounds the keynote of the plans on moderation on tariff when he says: "Yet I believe that whatever steps are taken should be taken with care and moderation, not giving just occasion for criticsm by sound money democrats, who have cooperated with us in the campaign. Criticism by sound democrats! Are then these sound money democrats the only people for whose criticism, just or otherwise, the old republican party need have any fear, or any heed whatever? The sound money democrats, a very meager minority of the voters of this country, seem to have great weight with the chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Republican Congress just now. Is the criticism of this handful of men to be so feared as to have the shaping of tariff laws, by the G. O. P. for this free and independent country, against the critisims and the wishes of everybody else? Are the six and one quarter million voters who supported Mr. Bryan in his wonderful campaign, to have not the slightest hint to make? Are the nearly seven million supporters of Mr. McKinley and his bill to have their wishes disregarded, rather than give the sound money democrats an opportunity to criticise? Why this tender solicitude for the criticisms of this bagatelle of men who have formed the National democratic party? Those men who, because the Chicago Convention would not have their golden ideas thrust down their throats, and place the single gold standard among the planks of the democratic platform, pulled out, and formed a party of themselves with this, before unprecidented plank, the golden wedge, for the keystone of the arch which they constructed to the bridge for McKinley to pass over to Wasnington. Does then, Mr. Dingley hope by this deffer ance to their wishes to still further hold them in line for use in the campaign of 1900?

Mr. Dingley thinks it would be healthy for the country to talk in Congress on revision of the tariff, provided the talk should be towards an upward revision. Mr. Dingley advocates keeping a gold reserve of $150,000000, instead of $100,000,000, in the Treasury. He says this could and ought to be done by exchanging paper now in the treasury; Who would have thought it? And $130,000,000 of gold, also in the treasury! and yet Mr. Dingley wants to increase the revenue from $50,000,000 to $70,000,000, and raise the reserve fund to half as much more as it already is. What for? Why not as well put all the gold in the treasury? If gold alone is the standard money, and all the gold in the country is hoarded up in the United States Treasury, and several times the amount in bills are out in circulation it would be so easy for a few wealthy individuals to get their heads together and their paper money together and demand of the U. S. Treasurer that he pay them the gold for their paper, and draw out the few hundred millions and leave Uncle Sam completely stripped, with a whole lot of paper in circulation and nothing to redeem it with; then the fellows who owe notes payable in gold will be hustling about paying a premium on the gold to pay their debts with and some of them be frightened into voting for a single gold standard.

Not Methodistic.

The Methodist Herald in commenting on an item in a daily paper conveying the news that a man who was "horse-thief, evangelist and burgular, is again behind the bars." Says: "This man was a fine talker, and doubtless soon after conversion was promoted to be an evangelist." The Herald then goes on to say: "Of the present membership of the various churches it is safe to say that but a small proportion was received after the age of twenty-five:" And thinks most of these had early Christian training. The Herald article is so strong in condemning the setting up of young converts, though they may be old in sin, to teach religion to others, as to lead one to doubt that the Herald believes in the good old Methodist doctrine of instantanious conversion. That the villest sinner may return. That whosoever will may partake of the waters of life, and that believers are commanded to bear witness, and to teach all men.

If any one doubts that a wicked man may be converted instantaneously let him read of Saul of Tarsus. And if he doubts the ability of new converts to aid in the spreading of the gospel or the propriety of allowing them to teach let him read of Paul the Apostle and his great works. Usually new converts are the hardest workers in the masters vinyard. And while it is proper for church authorities to be careful of black sheep they should remember that they may entertain an angel unawares.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov., 27, 1896.

Teere is at least one republican Senator who thinks that the McKinley administration will have to borrow money very early in its career, not withstanding the assertations of the partystump speakers and editors during the campaign that it would never, nnder any circumstances, do such a thing. Senator Chandler not only thinks that the McKinley administration will not only have to borrow money, but he has prepared a plan for it to do so, and it is supposed that he will put it in the form of a bill, which he will introduce in Congress. His plan is in short to authorize the Secretary of Treasury to borrow as much money as will be needed to make up the difference between the goyernment receipts and expenditures so long as their is a deficit, the loans to be made payable in a short period. Mr. Chandler seems to agree with the statements made on the stump by silver men, that the election of McKinley would mean among other things a further increase in the National debt by the government borrowing more money, but other republicans will favor exhausting all other methods of trying to pull through before resorting to another lone in any shape.

Even if there was a republican majority in the Senate, they could not accomplish any tariff legislation at this session of Congress, unless some way could be deyised of reconciling the wide difference of opinion among them as to what ought to be done. There is some talk of an attempt to add to the government revenues by internal revue legislation, and the project of adding $1, a barrel to the tax on beer, which came so near being incorporated in the Wilson tariff bill by the democratic Ways and Means committee of the last House, has been reyived and may be recommended in President Cleveland's annual message. The influence of the brewers killed it when it was proposed before, and now in addition to that it will have to contend with the opposition of the high tariff republicans who want to leave the whole revenue question just where it is in order to have an excuse for an extra session of Congress.

The vacant seat on the bench of the Court of Claims which gossip had assigned to one of the members of President Cleveland's cabinet went to Assistant Attorney General Howry, whose official duties have made him throughly familiar with the business of this court. Judge Howry's legal attainments are high and there is no personal objection to him, but if the idea advocated by a considerable number of silver men of hanging up all of Mr. Cleveland's nominations in the Senate, be carried out, his nomination will fail with all the rest.

Whatever may be ones individual opinions, it is clearly apparent that the action of prominent gold democrats, in trying to get the adminstration to remove democratic officials in a number of states because they supported Bryan, is not calculated to wipe out the existing bitterness between the regular democrats and the bolters. In the Post Office department alone attacks are being made by the bolters upon more than fifty Presidential post masters. It is not likely that any considerable number of these, or any other officials the nomination of whose successors has to be confirmed by the Senate, will be removed, because, whatever may be the result of the proposition to take no action upon any nominations, it is certain that the Senate as at present constituted will not confirm the nomination of any gold democrat for a position from which a man was removed for no other reason than that he followed his convictions and supported silver. That knowledge will probably prevent action by the administration on the complaints of the gold democrat.

The four democratic Senators who bolted the nomination of Bryan—Palmer, of Ill,; Vilas, of Wis.; Gray, of Del., and Caffery, of La.—will not be admitted to the caucus of democratic Senators which will be held as soon as Congress meets, for the purpose of deciding upon a line of party policy during the session. In addition to the party caucus there will be a silver caucus, attended by the populists, the silver republicans and the democrats, and it is expected that an aggreement will be reached under which the silver Senators will act together in all maters concerning finance. While it is not thought that the bolting gold democratic Senators will caucus with the republicans it is believed that they will vote with them upon financial questions.

The republicans of Washington are in a state of mind because a gold democrat has been slated for chairman of the McKinley inauguration committhe, and they have made a vigorous protest against his being given the place, both to Mark Hanna and to McKinley, and the local republicans are right, too; but inasmuch as the gold democrat who has been promised the place was a big contributor to Mark Hanna's campaign fund their protest will probably count for nothing. It is customary to have all parties represented on the inauguration committee, but if this gold democrat gets what he paid for it will be the first time that a chairman of the committee has not been a member of the party which elected the President.

THE SONG OF THE "No. 9."

My dress is of fine polished oak,
As rich as the finest fur cloak,
And for handsome design
You just should see mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I'm beloved by the poor and the rich,
For both I impartially stitch;
In the cabin I shine,
In the mansion I'm fine—
No. 9, No. 9.

I never get surly nor tired,
With seal I always am fired;
To hard work I incline,
For rest I ne'er pine—
No. 9, No. 9,

I am easily purchased by all,
With instalments that monthly do fall;
And when I am thine,
Then life is benign—
No. 9, No. 9.

To the Paris Exposition I went,
Upon getting the Grand Prize intent:
I left all behind,
The Grand Prize was mine—
No. 9, No. 9.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889, at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France. This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered—the GRAND PRIZE—giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the cross of the Legion of Honor—the most prized honor of France.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine. If he doesn't keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue and terms. Agents wanted in all unoccupied territory.

McGary Again.

We are having good winter weather and it acts as if it is goning to stay. It begun in good earnest and sticks closer than a brother.

Not much news in these parts since election most everybody is busy trying to take care of themselves. It is neither sleighing nor wheeling and this makes it very bad getting around.

Business is dull, and times do not seem to improye any.

The Maple Plain creamery will soon be ready for the milk.

Thanksgiven day w[illegible] these parts.

Our friends in the South (near Nashville, Tenn.) write back very favorable reports of that country, they seem to be well satisfied.

W. W. Mills has sold his farm and will go south in about three weeks. Mr. Mills was one of the early settlers of the town of Independence having lived here nearly 40 years.

Mr. Editor you will please to excuse brevity, as my stock of news this week is rather short but will increase as the factories start up.

The fact that an Oklahoma Indian is suing for a divorce may be accepted as positive evidence that he has been civilized.

It is hard to down an orator in Kentucky. A speaker at Lexington the other day was struck in the mouth by a brick, and a local paper says that after swallowing three teeth and a subordinate clause he went right on.

Clara Barton was the first woman to hold an official position under the United States government. When 24 years of age she was appointed clerk in the patent office, holding the position till the outbreak of the civil war.

Little Corinne, who has danced herself into a fortune of a million, has done something which will cause her name to live long after she is in ashes. She has willed her fortune for the establishment of the "Corinne home for aged and unemployed actresses."

Popularity proved too much for a Canadian widow, Mrs. Nettie Thompson, living at Erinsville, near Kingston, and she threw herself into Beaver lake to escape the many wooers who sought her hand within a year of her husband's death. Her brother-in-law rescued her, and when she had time to think it over she regretted her precipitancy.

Russia is raising subscriptions for famine sufferers in India. This is almost as broad a sweep of charity as is suggested by the missionary hymn: "From Greenland's icy mountains to India's coral strands." Russia was helped by other countries in a famine several years ago. This illustrates the force of a saying in a famous book about "provoking one another to good works."

Miss Cora L. Turner, of Cincinnati, has invented and patented a boiler especially adapted for securing great economy in storage for fuel, and for this reason likely to be of great service in vessels, making it possible to make longer voyages without renewal of fuel. Miss Turner's father had attempted vainly in his life to make the idea practical. After his death the daughter took it up and carried it out successfully.

Brooklyn has a new idea in the educational line. It is proposed that a "parents' day" shall be established in the public schools, when fathers, mothers and instructors shall meet in the school buildings to discuss things of moment anent the teaching of the young hopeful. As the main importance of the new day is to compel an interest by the public in its own affairs, and not to trust too largely to its agents, the idea is a good one, and should not be confined to the city of churches.

An expedition sent out last spring by the geological survey to explore the head waters of the Yukon and to discover if possible the source of the gold found along that river has returned with a wonderful tale of rich ore veins extending from British territory into Alaska in the neighborhood of Forty-Mile creek, and running thence for 500 miles in a northeasterly direction. The gold belt is at least 100 miles wide and the geologists say that the deposits are fully as rich as those of South Africa.

The immense activities of the churches are indicated by the annual appropriation by the Methodist Episcopal church for missionary expenses. The net sum is $981,000. This expenditure by one denomintion alone shows that the evangelizing spirit is still alive. The great total includes many small as well as large donations. The countless deprivations of personal indulgence that make possible such benefactions are testimonies to the unselfishness that is more general than appears on the surface of events.

Four years ago Barber Miles Marsh, of Osawatomie, bet Charles Hutchinson that Cleveland would not be elected. The stakes were four years' barber work, to be paid for double or nothing. During the four years just closed Hutchinson has had his shaves, haircuts, shampoos, baths and shoeblackings all for nothing. This year the bet was repeated and the barber won, and now Hutchinson must pay double price for the four years to come, while the barber declares that he will make the town too hot for his customer if he does not take just as much work out of the shop as during the period he paid nothing.

There is one county in the United States that did not know of the national election. That is Charlton county, Ga. The officials in the office of the secretary of state are authority for the declaration that the people of the county could not have known of the election, for no election was held there and the official digest of the election in Georgia has been made up with Charlton left out. According to the maps, there are several towns in the county, with Traders Hill as the county seat, but all efforts of the secretary of state to get returns from there have proved unavailing, and it is quite certain that no election was held.

The civil service commission has nearly completed an exhaustive report showing the number, scope and distribution of the government army employes. When Mr. McKinley enters the white house it will be with considerable freer hands than any of his predecessors. Mr. McKinley will have it in his power to appoint to government positions, subject to confirmation by the senate, less than 5,000 individuals, including 3,000 first, second and third class postmasters. He will have less than 90 positions to fill in Washington, the largest number, 26, going to the treasury department; the interior department next, 22.

Fled for Their Lives.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., Dec. 1.—The ice gorge here is still unbroken, despite all attempts to loosen it with dynamite. Water is now running over the lower section of the city and is steadily rising.

All hope of breaking the gorge is abandoned and all attention is now given to saving household goods and merchandise. Every team in the city is kept busy moving people and their effects to places of safety. At 9 o'clock this morning the water had crept up from the bridge to the postoffice, two blocks back from the river, and the river is now 22 feet above low water mark.

The Wisconsin Central tracks are covered with water two feet deep and the road uses the Omaha tracks, the transfer being made at Eau Claire. Duncan creek, a tributary to the Chippewa river here, is also doing much damage, as the water is backing up in it from the main river.

Reports of a very serious nature come from down river. The country eveywhere is flooded. Thirty people are reported lost at Durand, and the suffering from intense cold is great. The very latest is that an ice gorge is forming jnst below the falls.

DEATH IN THE STORM.

Blizzard Responsible for Loss of at Least Four Lives.

Losses to Live Stock Will Be Heavy—High Snowdrifts in South Dakota—Cold Snap in Montana and Missouri —An Oklahoma Tornado.

St. Paul, Minn., Nov. 30.—The great storm which swept over Minnesota and the Dakotas on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday has resulted in some loss of human life and great loss to live stock. Mail Agent Burroughs, of the Great Northern road, is buried in a snowdrift near Devil's Lake, N. D. He was on the west-bound train which was stalled out of Devil's Lake Thursday evening and he walked in to a restaurant at Devil's Lake, obtained as big a supply of provisions as he could carry and started back for his train. He never reached it. A searching party has been digging in the snow for his body.

Frank Vack, of Chicago, lost his life in the storm. His body was found in a snowdrift just north of Fargo, N. D., Saturday afternoon. He had walked to town from the farm where he was employed for the purpose of getting whisky, and was returning, intoxicated, when overcome by the cold.

John Hooey, a farmer living four miles from Park River, N. D., started from his house to his barn Thursday night and his body was found two miles away on the prairie Saturday afternoon.

Thomas Anderson, aged 18, was lost in the blizzard Thursday night. He left Everhart's candy factory in Fargo, where he was employed, and went home with a young lady living about a mile east of the business part of Moorhead. After leaving her nothing has been seen of him.

Hundreds of Cattle Perish.

The losses to stock amount to hundreds. A coat of ice covers the ground and snow is in some places piled in drifts 12 feet high. On the ranges west of the Missouri the worst is feared for stock, as it is believed it will be impossible for cattle and sheep to get enough to eat until it thaws. The temperature is from five to twenty degrees below zero in that section, and below zero at all points in the Dakotas. At Vermillion, S. D., there is hardly a tree standing and every orchard is ruined. In many instances trees a foot in diameter were snapped off at the bottom.

Ten car loads of sheep destined for Chicago were frozen at Grand Harbor, Devil's Lake. Unless there is a decided rise in temperature in the next few days the loss among sheep and cattle will be very large, as the streams are freezing over so solidly that it will be hard for them to get water. The November which is just closing is the coldest known in the northwest for 15 years. Snow fell on the 4th of the month and has not since disappeared even for a day.

Snow Drifts Fifteen Feet High.

Mellette, S. D., Nov. 30.—The worst snowstorm and blizzard through this section for years commenced on Wednesday night. The trains are blocked and snowdrifts in the main street are 15 feet deep. Stock will suffer greatly.

Aberdeen, S. D., Nov. 30.—The present storm has not been paralleled since the great blizzard of January 12, 1888. Drifts in the streets are five and six feet deep. The loss to stock, it is feared, will be great.

Thirty Below Zero.

Helena, Mont., Nov. 30.—Friday night was the coldest November night in Helena in the recollection of the oldest pioneer. Almost every thermometer in the city registered differently, ranging at the coldest hour from 27 to 30 degrees below.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 30.—In western Missouri Friday night and Saturday the thermometer ranged from zero to 28 degrees above, and in Kansas from zero to eight degrees above. In Kansas City the lowest point was reported Friday morning, when four degrees above zero was recorded, and there was ice in the river for the first time this season.

Tornado Kills Three Persons.

Perry, O. T., Nov. 30.—News has reached here of a destructive cyclone at Ralston, a small town on the Arkansas river 50 miles northeast of Perry. There is hardly a whole house left in the town. Mrs. Dorman and two small children were killed and many were wounded. The large store of J. H. Comer was blown down, and in Foley's livery barn 15 head of horses were killed. The night man in the office was blown 100 feet. In Payne county, 50 miles east of here, many farmhouses were laid low and several persons were wounded. After doing its work at Ralston the storm crossed the Arkansas river and struck the Osage Indian nation and for 20 miles northeast took everything in its path.

A Kansas City Bank Suspends.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 1.—The Missouri national bank closed its doors Monday morning. It was classed as one of the strongest institutions in the southwest. The immediate cause was the withdrawal of $50,000 in one lump by Heim, the wealthy local brewer, whose action was quickly followed by others. The last statement issued by the bank showed deposits of $1,561,000, and cash and exchanges amounting to $546,000. Two causes are assigned for the suspension. One is slow collections. The other and the prime reason is that there have been dissensions among the directors. These were of such a character that they finally led to a clashing with the government, and it was thought best to close the doors of the bank and have things straightened out. The bank had between 2,200 and 2,300 depositors, most of them for small amounts, and there are probably 120 stockholders of the concern.

A Duel at Church.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 1.—A special from Troy, S. C., gives intelligence of a double tragedy at Bethany church, near there, Sunday. For some time a feud had existed between L. J. Williams and J. D. White, because of political rivalry. The matter was broached after church Sunday by J. V. White, a brother, who cursed Williams. They both drew pistols and Williams killed White. J. D. White then attacked Williams with a knife and was shot down, dying some hours later. Williams is an ex-member of the legislature and a member of the board of control.

New York, Nov. 26.—W. W. Astor has given $50,000 to the Children's Aid society of New York city with which to build a school building as a memorial to his wife.

UNCLE SAM'S TREASURY.

Interesting Report by United States Treasurer Morgan.

Washington, Nov. 30.—The annual report of Daniel N. Morgan, treasurer of the United States, shows the net ordinary revenues of the government during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, to have been $326,976,200 and the expenditures $352,179,446, leaving a deficiency for the year of $25,203,246, or $17,601,977 less than during the preceding fiscal year.

The report shows that during the last fiscal year there was an increase of $7,863,134 in the receipts from customs, an increase of $3,341,192 from internal revenue sources, an increase of $2,479,622 from miscellaneous sources, and a loss of $97,823 from the sale of public lands, making the net increase in the receipts $13,586,125. The decrease in the expenditures amounted to $4,015,852.

The report shows the total receipts from the first $50,000,000 loan of 1894 to have been $58,660,917, the second loan of $50,000,000 of 1894 $58,719,710, the loan of $62,315,400 for 1895 $65,428,056, and the $100,000,000 loan of 1896 $111,355,612. From the first loan there was realized $52,850,264 in gold coin and $5,810,420 in gold certificates; from the second loan $53,651,188 in gold coin and $5,698,410 in gold certificates; from the third loan $65,428,051 in gold coin, and from the fourth loan $100,327,455 in gold coin and $2,026,810 in gold certificates. The total receipts from the several bond sales, therefore, were $294,164,295.

Referring to the condition of the treasury during the last year, the treasurer says:

"While the cash balance in the treasury has afforded a comfortable working fund, and would have done so without augmentation from loans, the gold reserve has been maintained only at the cost of a fresh issue of bonds and by voluntary contributions of banks and financial institutions. With the exception of a brief period in the autumn of 1895 and another in the spring of 1896, the ruling rates of foreign exchange were such throughout the year as to permit if not require the export of gold.

"The movement began in volume the first week in August and continued with a short interruption till toward the end of January.

"At first the demands upon the treasury for gold were limited to the wants of exporters, but in December considerable withdrawals began to be made by others, the amount increasing during January and rising in February, when heavy payments were made into the treasury for bonds, to nearly $20,000,000 for the month.

"Under this drain the reserve gradually sank until February 10, 1896, when it stood at $44,563,493. It was then rapidly built up from the proceeds of the sale of bonds and rose to $128,713,709 by March 31. After inconsiderable variations in the reserve during April the export of gold was resumed on May 1, and this movement, together with the continued withdrawals not for export, again put in operation the process of depletion. There was an almost daily decline until July 23, when the official figures for the reserve were $89,669,975.

"At this point the bankers of the principal cities joined together in a movement of relief, the result being that the banks and financial institutions deposited gold in exchange for paper currency and restored the reserve to $110,782,460 by August 4. After the discontinuance of these operations the free gold again declined gradually to $100,357,561, where it stood on September 1.

"In the latter half of August there occurred a favorable turn in foreign exchange, which had the effect, first, of checking the outflow of gold, and later of setting in motion a rapid current in the opposite direction. As some of the imported material was brought for the purpose of supplying the inland demand for currency, and as the preference which later was manifested in the interior for gold had not yet become a factor in the situation, a great part of the early inflow found its way into the treasury in exchange for paper.

"In ordinary times and under ordinary circumstances there is a natural flow of gold toward the treasury, which often is limited only by the capacity of the treasury to carry the specie.

"Fortunate indeed has it been for the treasury that even during the most critical periods through which the country has recently passed these currents of inflow have not been altogether checked, and that where their volume has been materially diminished the loss has been partly made good by the assistance of financial institutions.

"In the 15 months ending with September last the withdrawals of gold from the treasury in redemption of United States notes and treasury notes amounted to the immense sum of $192,972,205, while the net gains of gold from all sources attained a total of $88,138,902."

The public debt outstanding June 30, 1896, is shown to have been $1,769,840,323, and on June 30, 1895, $1,676,120,983.

According to the revised estimates of the department the composition and distribution of the monetary stock on June 30, 1896, was as follows:

	In treasury mints.	In circulation.
Gold coin	$112,589,974	$454,905,064
Gold bullion	32,102,926	.....
Silver dollars	378,673,137	52,116,904
Fractional silver	15,767,056	66,204,451
Silver bullion	120,933,958	1,032,562
Total metallic	660,067,051	568,258,984
United States notes	122,431,148	224,249,893
Treas'y notes of 1890	34,638,033	95,045,247
National bank notes	10,532,425	215,168,122
Gold certificates	520,070	42,188,119
Silver certificates	11,962,313	330,657,191
Currency certificates	320,000	21,910,000
Total paper	180,863,989	939,203,547
Aggregate	$840,871,040	$1,507,467,531

The total stock transfers is $2,348,338,571, as compared with $2,389,704,683 on June 30, 1895. Since the close of the fiscal year this loss has been fully recovered, chiefly by the importation of gold.

The net proceeds of the national bank notes redeemed during the year were $107,891,026, the largest amount for any like period in ten years, and, with the exception of three years, the largest since 1879. The expense to the banks of redemption will be $1.12½ per $1,000.

The appendix to the report contains a number of new tables which will be found exceedingly valuable to persons specially interested in the financial affairs of the government.

The Vote in Nebraska.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 26.—The state canvassing board completed the official count on presidential electors Wednesday. Bryan is shown to have carried the state by a plurality of 13,060, as follows: Bryan, 115,624; McKinley, 102,564; Palmer, 2,795; Levering, 1,196; socialist and national, 910. The canvass on constitutional amendments is yet to be made. Four fusion and two republican congressmen are elected. The political complexion of the legislature is: Senate, fusionists, 25; republicans, 8; house fusionists, 68; republicans, 32.

A Family Burned to Death.

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 30.—A special to the Democrat and Chronicle from Perry, N. Y., says: A whole family perished in flame and smoke Sunday morning in the tenement house on the Irving Thompson farm, situated about four miles northeast of this village, where resided the family of Luther Greenman, consisting of husband, aged 40 years; Mrs. Greenman, aged 37; Aimee, aged six; Lottie, aged three, and Arthur, a baby 11 months and a few days. The house was discovered in flames by Mr. Thompson at 6:45 a. m.

Frank James' Ambition.

St. Louis, Nov. 28.—Frank James, a brother of Jesse James, the notorious train robber, and ex-member of the James gang of outlaws, is an aspirant for the honors of a St. Louis police commissionership, and Chief Harrigan will be his friend in the race. The ex-outlaw declares himself a candidate. "I'm not out after office," he said, "but I'd take the place were it offered to me. And if it were given to me I would do my duty without fear or favor."

The President Buys a Home.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 28.—President Cleveland has purchased the old Slidell property in this place, with a view of making it his permanent home.

The actual purchase price is not known, but it is generally understood that the price paid is between $45,000 and $60,000.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS

Claims to Be Governor.

When Governor Clough took the interurban car at Minneapolis the other morning, bound for St. Paul, he found a seat with but one occupant and made for that. He did not notice his neighbor. After a few moments they began a conversation about the weather, which finally drifted into political channels; his companion began to grow somewhat incoherent in his talk, and for the first time the governor turned and took a good look at his side partner. He was Thompson, the crazy claimant of the governor's position. At the capitol Governor Clough alighted, closely followed by Thompson, who hurried past him and entered the governor's office, where he proceeded to make himself at home.

Governor Clough finally sent for an officer. Then came a scene. The officer tried persuason, reasoning and everything he could think of to dislodge the pretender, but it was no go.

"I am governor," he said, coolly, "and I know my rights. I was elected fairly and squarely to the office, and no man has any authority to remove me from this room." The officer hastily grabbed Thompson by the coat collar, and by dint of sheer force, rushed him out into the hall.

Forestry Experiments.

Dr. E. B. Fernow, chief of the forestry division of the department of agriculture, was in Crookston conferring with the superintendent of the Crookston state station looking to extensive experiments in forestry. The idea is to introduce into that section trees whose habitation is in other countries similarly situated and of like climatic conditions. It is believed that valuable woods may in this manner be added to those indigenuous there, and that fruit and nut bearing varieties of other lands may be successfully grown. Dr. Fernow will make a trip into the reservation lands in order to observe the conditions which obtain touching the preservation of native forests. The experiments to be carried on will be co-operative, the general government bearing a large share of the expense.

A Stolen Check.

Louis Schultz and John Lyons, both of St. Paul, were placed under arrest in Minneapolis while attempting to obtain money on a certified check for $2,145, which had been stolen from the Second National bank, St. Paul. The men were arrested by Inspector Howard, and Detectives Daley and Sweeney, of the St. Paul police department. The arrest was made at the instance of E. S. Friedman, proprietor of the Hub clothing house, Nicollet avenue and Second street, on whom Schultz and Lyons had attempted to pass the check.

A Suicide.

George Jokumson, a Dane between 35 and 40 years old, committed suicide half-way between Fort Snelling and Minnehaha Falls by shooting himself with a revolver. The body was found by some men who were crossing the reservation a little before noon. An ugly wound in the temple told the tale, while near by lay a 38-calibre Smith & Wesson revolver. The authorities of both cities were immediately notified, and late in the afternoon his identity was discovered.

Expects a Fortune.

William Anderson, who runs a shooting gallery in Mankato, has invented a bottle which can not be refilled when once emptied. In a late issue of Scientific American, Mr. Anderson saw an advertisement offering $25,000 to anyone for such a bottle patented. He has applied for a patent and expects his fortune is made. He has invented several small articles before.

A Large Haul.

The largest seizure of small game ever made in the state was made at Detroit the other day by Game Warden Stephens, of that place, who captured 800 birds, chickens, partridges, and pin tailed grouse. The birds were marked for shipment to a point in North Dakota, where it is supposed they were to be reshipped through this state to Chicago.

News in Brief.

Hanson & Peterson's saloon at Moorhead was robbed of $25.

Isaac Montbrandt, of Moorhead, was convicted of stealing wheat and sentenced to six months in Stillwater. Montbrandt's younger brothers told the story on the witness stand which sent their brother to the penitentiary.

Nels Normer, while at work in the woods 15 miles above Milaca, was seriously injured. A branch of a tree fell on him and fractured his skull. He is from Minneapolis, where his family resides.

By the overturning of a kerosene lamp in the house of F. A. Walker in Minneapolis, Mrs. Walker, little Mabel Walker and Mary Overland, a domestic, were frightfully burned. The little girl was fatally injured.

The enrollment of the normal school at Moorhead is 227.

The discharge of 31 estimators and appraisers on the Chippewa Indian reservation in Minnesota just at this time leads to the conclusion that the general land office will not undertake the task of completing its work during this administration.

George Benham, a professional hunter, shot himself in the ankle while hunting near Carlton. He was taken to Duluth, where the foot was amputated.

At the quarterly meeting of the state fish and game commission at St. Paul, William Westerman, of St. Cloud, requested the commissioners to recommended that the legislature amend the game law so as to permit ducks to be shot 10 days later in the spring. With such change, he said, sportsmen would be given fine sport that is now precluded, because blue bill ducks do not begin their northern flight until after April 1.

The passage of the constitutional amendment relative to the elective franchise will cause a loss of 150 votes in Moorhead at the municipal election next spring.

The Pillsbury-Washburn Flour company have issued their report for the year ending Oct. 31. It shows that the net profits amounted to $500,000. After paying the interest on their debentures the net profits amount to about $325,600.

Warden Wolfer ordered 12 new spinners and one breaker for the binder twine factory, increasing its possible output about 2,000 pounds per day.

The city council of Crookston has made a levy of $16,500 for general expenses for the coming year.

Ives Larson was knocked down by a locomotive at Milaca and severely injured.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Fortune Seeking Emigrants.

Many a poor family that seeks the western wilds in the hope of winning a fortune, is preserved from that insidious foe of the emigrant and frontiersman—chills and fever—by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. So effectually does that incomparable medicinal defense fortify the system against the combined influence of a malarious atmosphere and miasma-tainted water, that protected by it the pioneer, the miner or the tourist provided with it, may safely encounter the danger.

THE BOTHER.

"Dear, dear! what a bothersome baby!"
The care-wearied mother sighed out,
As she looked at the books and the play-things
That were everywhere scattered about,
At the great dingy spot on the carpet,
Where he'd let grandma's medicine fall,
And the marks that the fat baby fingers
Had left on the windows and wall.

"Such a baby for getting in mischief!
I can't keep him tidy and sweet.
Though I'm busy from daylight to bedtime,
The room never seems to be neat.
I never catch up with my sewing;
I've never a moment to rest;"
And she sighed as she threaded her needle,
With life and its worries oppprest.

A slow, muffled sound on the pavement,
She looks through the mist-clouded pane
And sees, almost under her window,
A hearse going by in the rain.
There's a little white casket inside it,
And then by swift tears it is hid,
As she thinks of the household whose darling
Lies under the small coffin's lid.

She goes to the bed of her baby,
And kneels by the sleeper in tears,
And the prayer that goes up, mute and wordless,
The great loving Father-Heart hears.
No longer the child seems a bother,
As she thinks of the hearse in the rain,
And the mother-arms, aching and empty,
Where the little dead baby has lain.

HOW OLSON SQUARED IT.

BY DAN QUIN.

"Now I thoroughly saveys," remarked the old cattleman, reflectively, at a crisis in our last conversation when the talk turned on men of small and cowardly measure, "I thoroughly saveys that taste for battle that lurks in the defiles of folks' nature like a wolf in the hills. Which I reckons now that I, myse'f, is one of the peace-fullest people who ever belted on a gun; but in my insinects—while I never jestifies or follows his example—I cl'arly apprehends the emotions of a gent who convenes with another gent all similar, an' expresses his views of him with his gun, an' immediately precedes a adjournment sine die by skelpin' the opposition. Sech is human nature onrestrained, an' the same, while deplorable, is not surprisin'.

"But this yere Olson I has in my mem'ry don't have no sech manly emotions as goes with a gun play. Which Olson, I takes pleasure in sayin', is a alien an' a rank outsider, an' no more born in this home of freedom than a Mexican. Olson is so cowardly he's even furtive; an' for a low-flung measly play let me tell you what Olson does. It's shorely onery.

"It all arises years ago, back in Tennessee, an' gets its first start out of a hawg which is owned by Olson an' is downed by a gent named Hoskins—Bill Hoskins. It's this way:

"Back in Tennessee, in my dream-wreathed yooth, when anamiles goes projectin' about permiscus, a party has to build his fences 'bull strong, hawg tight, an' hoss high,' or he takes results. Which Hoskins don't make his fences to conform to this yere roole none; leastwise they ain't hawg tight as is shown by one of Olson's hawgs.

"The hawg comes pirootin' about Hoskins' fence, an' he goes through easy; an' the way that invadin' anamile turns Bill's potatoes bottom up don't bother him a bit. He shorely loots Bill's lot; that's whatever.

"But Bill, perceivin' of Olson's hawg layin' waste his crop, reaches down a Hawkins' rifle, 30 to the pound, an' stretches the hawg. Which this is where Bill falls into error. Layin' aside them deficiencies in Bill's fence, it's cl'ar at a glance a hawg can't be held responsible. Hawgs is ignorant and tharfore innocent; an' while hawgs can be what Doc Peets calls a casus belli, they can't be regarded as a foe legitimate.

"Now what Bill oughter done, if he feels like this yere hawg's done put it all over him, is to go an' lay for Olson. Sech action by Bill would have been some excessive, some high, so to speak, but it would have been a line shot. Whereas killin' the hawgs is 'way to one side of the mark, an' under.

"However, as I states, Bill bein' hasty that away, and oncapable of perhaps refined reasonin', downs the pig, an' stands pat on it, waitin' for Olson to fill his hand, if he feels so moved.

"Now, that's where the cowardly nature of this yere Olson begins to shine. He's ugly es a wolf about Bill copperin' his hawg that away, but he don't pack the nerve to go after Bill an' make a round-up of them grievances. An' he ain't allowin' to pass it up none onrevenged neither. Now, here's what Olson does; he 'sassinates Bill's pet raccoon.

"That's right, pard; jest massacre a pore, confidin' raccoon, who don't no more stand in on that hawg killin' of Bill's than me an' you—don't even advise it.

"Now, I allow you saveys all thar is to know about a raccoon. No? Well, a raccoon's like this: In the first place he's plump ingenuous, an' ain't lookin' for no gent to hold out kyards or ring a cold deck on him. That's straight; a raccoon is simple-minded that way; an' his impressive trait is, he's meditative. Besides bein' nacherally thoughtful as to his own affairs, I might say a raccoon is a heap melancholy—he jest sets thar an' absorbs melancholy from merely bein' alive.

"But if a raccoon is melancholy or gets wrapped in thought that away, it's after all his own play. It's to his credit that once when he's tamed he's got a mountainous confidence in men, an' will curl up an' go to sleep where you be an' shet both eyes. He's plumb trustful; an' moreover, no matter how mournful a raccoon feels, or how plumb melancholy he gets, he don't pester you with no yarns.

"I reckon I converses with this yere identical raccoon of Bill's plenty frequent when he feels blue an' again when he's at his gailiest, an' he never remarks nothin' to me except p'lite general'ties.

"If this Olson had been a dead game party who regards himse'f wronged, he'd searched out a gun, or a knife, or mebby a club, an' pranced over an' rectified Bill a whole lot. But he's too timid and too cowardly, an' afraid of Bill. So to play even he lines out to bushwhack this he'pless, oninstructed raccoon. Olson figgers to take advantage of what's cl'arly a loophole in a raccoon's constitootion.

"Mebbe you never noticed it about a raccoon, but the fact is once he gets interested in a pursoot, he's rigged so he can't quit none ontil the project's a success. Thar's herds an' bands of folks an' anamiles who's fixed sim'lar. They can start, an' they can't let up. Thar's bulldogs; they begins a fight too easy, but the capacity to quit is left out of bulldogs entire. Same about nose paint with gents I knows. They capers up to whisky at the beginnin' like a kitten to warm milk, an' they never do cease no more. An' that's how the kyards falls to raccoons about plenty of things.

"Knowin' these yere defects in raccoons, this Olson plots to take advantage tharof; an' by playin' it low on Bill's raccoon, get even with Bill about that dead hawg. Which Bill wouldn't have took a drove of hawgs, no indeed! not the whole fall round-up of hawgs for all of West Tennessee, an' lose that raccoon.

"It's when Bill's over to Pine Knot layin' in terbacca, an' nose paint, an' cornmeal, an' sech necessaries, when Olson stands in to down Bill's raccoon. He goes injunnin' over to Bill's an' finds the camp all deserted, except the raccoon's thar settin', battin' his eyes mournful an' lonesome on the doorstep. This Olson sets down by the door an' fondles the raccoon, an' strokes his coat, an' lets the raccoon search his pockets with his black hands ontil he gets that friendly an' confident about Olson he'd told him anything. It's then this yere miscreant, Olson, springs his game.

"He's got a couple of crawfish which he's fresh caught at the Branch. Now, raccoons regards crawfish as onusual good eatin'. For myse'f, I can't say I deems none high of crawfish as viands, but of course raccoons is different; an' the way they looks at it crawfish is pie.

"This Olson brings out his two crawfish, an' fetchin' a jar of water from the sping he drops in a crawfish an' incites an' aggravates Zekiel—that's the name of Bill's raccoon —to feel in an' get him a whole lot.

"Zekiel ain't shy on the play. He knows crawfish like a gambler does an ace; so turnin' his eyes up to the sky, like a raccoon does when wrapped in pleasant anticipation that away, he plunges in his paw an' gets it.

"Of course once Zekiel acquires him the pore crawfish don't last as long as a drink of whisky. When Zekiel has him plumb devoured he turns his eyes on Olson, sort o' thankful, an' 'waits developments.

"Olson puts in the second crawfish, an' Zekiel takes him into camp same as the other. It's now that Olson onfurls his plot on Zekiel.

"Olson drops a dozen buckshot into the jar of water. Nacherally, Zekiel, who's got his mind all framed up touchin' crawfish, goes after the buckshot with his fore foot.

"But it's different with buckshot; Zekiel can't pick 'em up. He tries an' tries with his honest simple face turned up to heaven, but he can't make it. All Zekiel can do is feel 'em with his foot, an' roll 'em about on the bottom of the jar.

"Now, as I remarks prior, when a raccoon gets embarked that away, he can't let up. He ain't arranged so he can quit. Olson, who's plumb aware tharof, no sooner gets Zekiel started on them buckshot than knowin' that nature can be relied on to play her hand out sa'nters off to his wickeyup, leavin' Zekiel to his fate. Bill won't be home till Monday, an' Olson knows that before then, onless Zekiel is interrupted, he'll be even for that hawg Bill drops. As Olson comes to a place in the trail where he's goin' to lose sight of Bill's camp he turns an' looks back. The picture is all his revenge can ask. Thar sets Zekiel on the doorstep, with his happy countenance turned up to the dome above, with his right paw elbow deep in the jar, still rollin' an' feelin' them buckshot around, an' allowin' he's due to ketch a crawfish every moment.

"Well, it works out exactly as the wretched Olson figgers. The sun goes down, an' the Sunday sun comes up an' sets agin, an' still pore Zekiel is planted by the jar, with his hopeful eyes on high, still feelin' of them buckshot. He can't quit no more'n if he was loser in a poker game, Zekiel can't.

"When Bill rides up to his door about second drink time Monday afternoon, Olson is shortly even on that hawg. Thar lays Zekiel too dead to skin. He's jest set thar with them buckshot an' felt himse'f to death."—Chicago Tribune.

Fine Work.

A lawn is a delightful thing, even if it is very small. A certain suburban gentleman, who takes great care of an almost microscopic grass plot, is good-naturedly ridiculed about it by his friends. One of them asserts that on a certain spring day the gentleman's wife was going about the house exclaiming: "Dear me! Where can my button-hole scissors be?" Presently she encountered the housemaid, who was able to solve the mystery. "I saw Mr. B—— clipping the lawn with them a little while ago, ma'am," she said.—Youth's Companion.

Not a Rag

The prominent citizen was rather proud of his standing in the community.

"And, do you know," he said, "when I first came to this town I had hardly a rag to my back?"

The man who was not so prominent shrugged his shoulders.

"When I first came to this town," he said, "I actually didn't have a rag to my back."

"You're joking," said the prominent citizen.

"Not at all," replied the citizen who was not so prominent, seriously. "I was born here."—Chicago Post.

DANISH GIRLS.

The Old-Fashioned Prejudice Against Old Maids.

From what one hears of the Danish girl she has all the privileges open to one of ourselves. If she wishes to study at the university she finds herself free to take up any branch she may choose, and medical, mathematical and scientific honors fall to her share quite as frequently as to her brothers. As among us, too, teaching seems to be the most universal employment for women who wish to earn their own living. Yet there are so many daughters of rich families who teach simply as a pastime, with no remuneration, that the pay is very small and not at all in proportion to the services they give. They are well up in the English literature of the day, distinguish themselves as artists, authors and musicians, found schools and asylums for various charities and manage them as successfully as the women in other countries. Designing and painting pottery, wood carving and burnt woodwork are among other accomplishments, and many women have taken up photography and started out as professionals. But in spite of all their professional work, Danish women do not degenerate in the art of housekeeping and good cooking.

Within the past few years they have become interested in the outdoor games so popular in England, and tennis, golf, cricket and football are fast gaining ground. The craze for bicycling seized them some time ago and they are already expert riders, for the level country favors this sport. Some of the Danish girls are accomplished horsewomen and they are never quite so pretty and graceful as when they are skating, which is a general amusement for fully three months in the year. Unfortunately for the picturesqueness of the national Danish costume, English fashion has invaded nearly all classes of society, and the high-pointed cap, bright-colored skirt, embroidered apron and corselet are very seldom seen now. In the arrangement of their hair, however, they remain constant to their old custom of brushing it smoothly back and then twisting it into a tight knot at the back of the head. A Danish girl in good society makes her debut at 16, when she is confirmed. If she is not married at 22 she is left out of all parties and amusements, thus showing that the old-fashioned prejudice against old maids still obtains among these otherwise enlightened people.—N. Y. Ledger.

The Tumbleweed.

Tumbleweeds spread themselves in a wholesale fashion. Instead of sending the separate seeds out into the world with the wings or hairs to carry them, the whole plant breaks off near the root, when these are ripe, and goes rolling along the ground before the wind. The bare sun-scorched deserts of the great west produce tumbleweeds, and there are some in the prairie region. It is natural that they should be most abundant where there are no hills nor trees to stop them in their course. But we have one tumbleweed in the east—the old witch grass, so-called, maybe, because it rides the wind like an old beldame. In September this grass spreads its head, or panicle, with hair-like, purple branches, in every sandy field. When the seeds are ripe the plants are blown across the field, often piling up in masses along the fences and hedgerows. As might be expected, the hair grass, which has so effective a way of spreading itself, is found throughout the United States, from ocean to ocean.—Thomas H. Kearney, Jr., in St. Nicholas.

RECOVERY OF A BICYCLE.

It Had Been Sunk in the Harbor for Revenge.

Among the residents of Bermuda are two brothers, one of whom, besides being an enthusiastic yachtsman, is also a swift and skillful rider of the bicycle. Some years ago, shortly before the date set for a bicycle race in which he was to be one of the contestants his wheel mysteriously disappeared and all efforts to find a trace of it proved fruitless.

One day, about 14 months after the bicycle had been presumably stolen, a fisherman who was angling out in the middle of St. George's harbor for floating fish, hooked a large one, which instantly plunged into the depths of the harbor in a vain endeavor to escape. The angler played with him for awhile, and then feeling the line tightening in his hand and the strain become steady began to haul up. He soon realized that he had at the end of his line one of the heaviest catches which he had ever made, and (what he could not understand about it) that it was almost apparently a dead weight. He hauled away, however, until there appeared above the water not only the fish that he had hooked, but a bicycle, around the handles of which the fish, in his efforts to escape, had wound the rope a number of times.

When the astonished fisherman had sufficiently recovered from his amazement at the curious catch he took the bicycle ashore. There it was identified as the one which had so inexplicably disappeared. Strange to say the machine, in spite of the fact that it had been at the bottom of the harbor for 14 months, was but little damaged and was easily put in running order again.

For some time no clew as to how it found its way to its watery hiding place could be discovered. Eventually, however, several circumstances came to light that pointed to a man with whom the bicycle rider had once had trouble. At one time whenever he rode past this man's place the dogs which were kept there would run out and bark and snap at the rider, causing him considerable annoyance and trouble. At first he contented himself with simply driving off the brutes as best he could, but when he found that they were set upon him by their master he took prompt measures to have the man arrested, brought into court and fined. From various circumstances that were found out regarding the disappearance of the wheel there seemed to be no doubt that the owner of the ugly dogs was responsible for it and that he stole the machine and sunk it in the harbor in order to be revenged on its owner.—Boston Transcript.

CRAFTSMEN WHO WANDER.

Peripatetic Shoemakers, Tinkers and Grinders Who Work Outlying Districts.

In the outlying portions of Chicago, and especially where its foreign elements abound, there are many features even of street life that recall the older cities of Europe. One of these consists in that class of roving tradesmen who carry their tools and workshops along with them and ply their respective callings wherever they can pick up a job. Various are their methods of advertising themselves and attracting custom.

One aristocrat of a shoemaker drives about in a closed vehicle as white and garish as a circus wagon. Within it are his work bench and stool, a cupboard full of leather scraps and a small heating stove. He has the knack of restoring to usefulness footwear that seemed to be hopelessly disabled. When he gets a job at any house in a block he draws up his wagon to the sidewalk and there "sticks to his last" as long as custom may come.

The tinsmith, or tinker, is usually less imposing than the cobbler. He carries his tools and a small stock of tin in a leathern budget slung over one shoulder. He proclaims his coming in the street by a musical cry of "Old tins—tins to mend!" When employed to repair a leaking wash boiler or a spoutless teakettle, he sits down to his task in some convenient porch or entry.

Another useful craftsman is the one who has an ambulant grindstone for sharpening knives and scissors. As he trundles it along by the sidewalk it clangs an iron bell that makes piteous appeal to be silenced. The grinder gets numerous jobs, too, for in many drudging households there would be no work for the carving knife if the scissors were long out of order. One knife grinder was met lately who has no grindstone, but does his work with a set of very hard files. These he carries in his hand rolled up in a piece of canvas, and as he makes no clang or cry, but has all the modest seeming of an opulent plumber, he is enabled to call unterrified at the better class of residences. All these worthy craftsmen fill a useful role and form a link between American civilization and the lands in which it was cradled.—Chicago Chronicle.

A Fearful Example.

"Talk about education bein' sech a help ter a man in life," he said, as he knocked the scrapings out of a corncob pipe which he was making. "'Tain't no sech thing nine times outen ten."

"I dunno 'bout that," replied the neighbor to whom his remark was addressed.

"Wall, I do know," was the positive rejoinder. "An' I kin back up my statement weth an illustration."

"Anybody 'round here?"

"Yes, sir. Si Tompkins' boy."

"The one thet's goin' ter open a drug store up ter town?"

"Same feller. Hev ye talked weth him?"

"Yes, I hev. An' I must say I thought he was a purty keen chap."

"Thet shows how ye kin git fooled. Why, thet feller hez been ter college fur two or three years studyin' pharmacy an' he don't know ez much about farmin' ez he did when he fust lef' home."—Detroit Free Press.

RENDERED SPEECHLESS.

An Influential Farmer Stricken with Paralysis While at Work.

Further Items of Equal Interest.

From Mercury, Spring Valley, Minn.
EDITOR "MERCURY"—

The following statements from influential and prominent people in and about Spring Valley, Minnesota,—made to your reporter recently contain suggestions of much interest to readers of your paper.

"I am a prosperous and influential farmer living seven miles south of Spring Valley, and wish to certify my good faith as to the wonderful cure performed by the taking of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. On July 17th, 1894, I was stricken with paralysis, which left me in a helpless condition. My wife was compelled to wheel me about in a chair. My speech had entirely left me and I was next door to the grave. I had employed at different times three of Spring Valley's most able physicians, but they could do me no good, and after having been treated by a prominent physician from Etna, but to no avail, I resorted to various medicines, but could get no relief. I was asked to try Pink Pills, which I did.

"My first box was purchased in April, 1895. After having taken the pills a short time I could see an improvement. Finally I could use my limbs and walk about the house, and to-day, thank God, I have regained my speech, and I am thoroughly convinced had I not taken Pink Pills I would now be utterly helpless. As it is, I am comparatively a well man. I trust this may reach many afflicted with the dread disease, and that my statement may be the means of bringing poor unfortunates back to health and strength, as I know Pink Pills will do the work. "NEWELL SEELY."

"I have never in all my life before recommended a proprietary medicine to my immediate friends. But the help I have received from Pink Pills, I feel, justifies me in saying that I know of nothing equal to them for the cure of a generally broken down system.

"They have truly made a new woman of me, and for a rapid building up, I know of nothing better. My daughter was in a delicate state of health and, as a result of taking Pink Pills, she also is in the best of health now, and I can say, in closing, I shall always recommend Pink Pills most highly. "MRS. NEWELL LLOYD."

"For years I have been troubled with salt rheum or eczema, as it is often termed,—a continual breaking out all over my body. Naturally I have used more or less medicine. Some of it produced a temporary benefit, but many kinds proved to be positively injurious. As I had tried almost everything I began to feel discouraged, and for a time continued to suffer, until I could stand it no longer. Finally, my brother (Mr. Elmer Lloyd), of the firm of Lloyd & Smith, druggists, persuaded me to try Pink Pills, which I did, and after having taken about three boxes I found myself entirely cured. It is scarcely necessary to say that I have ever since kept Pink Pills in my house ready for any emergency. I gladly speak words of praise for this wonderful medicine. NEWELL LLOYD."

"I find the Pink Pills excellent for head ache. They have cured my husband of paralysis and I feel as if we cannot do without them in our family. "MRS. MORT SEELY."

"Pink Pills certainly have a great deal of merit. They have cured me of my sick headaches and have built me up generally, and I cannot speak too highly of this medicine. I shall at all times speak in highest terms of Pink Pills to my friends and neighbors. MRS. EUGENE WILCOX."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are now given to the public as an unfailing blood builder and nerve restorer, curing all forms of weakness arising from a watery condition of the blood or shattered nerves. The pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Med. Co. Schenectady, N. Y.

Choosing a Husband.

George Eliot says in one of her novels, that almost any woman can marry any man she makes up her mind to. Whether this is truth or fiction, certainly a woman chooses her husband oftener than he knows it. But she must play the negative part. She can only make herself as attractive as possible in a modest, womanly way and rely upon human nature and manly instinct.

A sensible man naturally seeks a wholesome-looking, healthy, capable companion. Men are not unselfish enough to willingly assume the care of a weak, nervous, debilitated wife.

Men are not attracted by a sallow, pimply complexion, foul breath, or thin, emaciated form, because these symptoms are the sure index of poor digestion and impoverished blood.

A woman afflicted by these mortifying miseries should seek the powerful, purifying and nutrimental influence of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which completely dispels all unwholesome appearances by clearing and renovating the organic sources of healthful vitality.

It helps the liver to filter all bilious impurities from the blood. It gives the digestive organs power to extract nourishment from the food. It rounds out thin forms; wipes away wrinkles, and gives to the complexion its natural clearness and bloom.

"Your 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me of a severe case of poisoning of the blood," writes Mrs. Selia Ricca, of Coast, Santa Cruz Co., Cal. "Boils one after another would break out on my arms, and were very painful. I have tried the loudly praised Sarsaparillas without any benefit whatever, and not until I took your 'Discovery' did I get well. That was two years ago, and I have not had a boil or sore of any kind since."

GRANT AND WASHINGTON.

Two Wonderful Serials Which "The Century Magazine" Has Secured for 1897.

One of the best friends that Gen. Grant ever had was Horace Porter. There first meeting was at Chattanooga in the autumn of 1863, and soon after Gen. (then Captain) Porter became a member of Grant's staff and served with him constantly until Lee's surrender. When Grant became president Horace Porter was made his private secretary, and until Gen. Grant breathed his last at Mount McGregor the two men were close friends. Nor did Gen. Porter's love for his chief cease with his death, for to him is due the success of the movement to raise the half million of dollars which the Grant monument in Riverside park will cost. The inauguration of the tomb will take place next spring on Grant's birthday, and Gen. Porter will be the orator of the occasion.

During these years of intimacy with Grant Gen. Porter kept a diary, and in his moments of leisure he has arranged his unique stories of anecdotes and memoranda into a series of twelve articles, entitled "Campaigning with Grant," and The Century Magazine has secured all rights in the series and will print it during the coming year. Since the famous "Century War Series," for which Gen. Grant himself wrote four articles (the beginning of his "Memoirs"), no magazine has had such a treat to lay before its readers.

Another great serial in The Century is a novel of the American Revolution, written by the well-known Philadelphia physician, Dr. S. Wier Mitchell, whose literary reputation is as high as his standing in his own profession. The story is supposed to be the autobiography of the hero, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," who becomes an officer on Gen. Washington's staff. Social life in the capital, Philadelphia, is most interestingly depicted, and the characters in the story include Washington, Franklin and Lafayette. The readers of "Hugh Wynne, the Free Quaker" will obtain a clearer idea of the Revolutionary War than can be had from any other single source. It is believed that Dr. Mitchell has written "the great American novel," for which we have been waiting so many years.

These are only two of the features of The Century for the coming year—the magazine that leads the world of periodical literature. Very few of our readers will be without it in 1897. It costs $4.00 a year, not too high a price for what The Century gives, but many people are arranging to club together in groups of four, paying one dollar each, and securing the reading of the magazine one week in the month. The publishers advise the making up of clubs early. Send $4.00 to The Century Company, Union square, New York, with the name of the person to whom the magazine is to be sent. If you begin your subscription with the December (Christmas) number, the publishers will send you a copy of November free, in which the two great serials begin.

Texas.

In the Agricultural line, Texas leads all other states in the variety of its products. Cotton, corn and the cereals grow and are raised in every section of the state and in the central and southern portions sugar cane and sorghum are profitably cultivated. On the Gulf Coast two and three crops of vegetables are raised each year. Berries are shipped six weeks in advance of the home crop in the north. Pears, peaches, plums, oranges, figs, olives and nuts all grow abundantly and can be marketed from two to three weeks in advance of the California crops. Large quantities of rice are now grown.

If the land seeker, the home seeker and the settler desires to secure a farm larger than the one he occupies, on vastly more reasonable terms; if he wants more land to cultivate, a greater variety of crops to harvest, with proportionately increased remuneration, at a less outlay for cost of production; if he wants an earlier season with correspondingly higher prices; if he wants milder winters, all the year pasturage for his stock, improved health, increased bodily comforts and wealth and prosperity, he should go to Texas.

—Read our clubbing offer, and select some good family reading for the long winter nights.

—The City Hall needs better warming apparatus. Another stove, or a heating plant of some kind.

—Several boys attending the dance at the Hall Saturday evening had to go to neighboring fires to warm. When a hall is too cold for a dance it needs more heat.

--B. Kuchenmister recently married to Miss Caroline Kunkel was in town yesterday investing in house-keeping materials. They will reside with his grandmother for the present.

—Political discussions have not ceased: but are being carried on about as vigorously as before election. It does look as if we are to have a four years educational campaign, sure enough.

—The Chinook entertainment by Clara Thompson at the City Hall Monday night, is said to have been good except that the hall was very cold much to the discomfort of the audience.

—The Eagle had better correct that egregious error: or misstatement about the GAZETTE'S criticisms of the Mayor's Monnument being closed for the winter; or keep out those lines "It is so if you see it in the Eagle."

--Several persons were misled this week by our item about the change of time on the Great Northern. Our typo got a 9 for a 6. The morning train east leaves here at 6:25. Most people would like to have it go an hour or two later these cold mornings.

—A good many of our former fellow citizens, when it came to voting, will feal pretty cheap when they come to the polls next March to ellect Village and Town officers to learn that they voted Nov. 3 to disfranchise themselves. If you ever want to vote again get out your second papers.

—If the ex-Mayor Gutzwiller has insured the non-freezable watering fountain against damage by freezing the council ought surely to give it a fair trial before closing it up for the winter. What's the use of expending all that money for a non-freezable fountain and having it closed half the year?

—Last Friday our citizens had their first glimpses of this year's Sun Dogs. They were huge fellows one on either side of Old Sol, and looked as if they ment business. The gentle zephyrs wafted through the boughs made peoples' ears tingle at the same time. A very few whiffs of such breath suffices to make some of our more timid neighbors begin their annual song about going down to "Dixies Land." But a little good wholesome atmosphere beats most of the ague, miasmatic, breezes of some of the southern climes all to pieses; and our summers are finer than theirs.

—Owing to the absence from town of many of our literarily inclined people, and the inclemency of weather and slippery condition of roads, and for other reasons, last Friday evening's meeting was not so largely attended as it might have been. The programme was mostly all carried out satisfactorly save the debate which owing to the absence of one of the chief disputants, Mr. Greear, did not materialize. It is too bad, for possibly the Professor might have convinced the audience that Cuba should be declared belligerent, and set the ball rolling that would eventuate in the freedom and independence of a Nation.

—An exqusit reproduction, in 14 colors of Van Vredenburgh's oil painting, "Our Bench show," representing a yard of puppies (size 10 x 26 inches) is given to every subscriber, with the December issue of Demorest's Magazine (published Nov. 15.) If you are fond of pictures and books send to Demorest's Magazine, 110 Fifth Ave. N. Y. 20 cents in stamps and receive your money's worth. The Demorest Magazine and the Buffalo GAZETTE for one year for $2.60. Read their add in another column. A year's subscription to this magazine would be a Christmas gift appreciated by the whole family.

—Since the advent of winter in earnest the egg factories in this section have failed to supply the demand for hen fruit. The operatives have all laid out; or struck for warmer weather. Eggs have gone up to twenty cents a dozen, and are scarce at that since McKinley was elected, and McKinley was to start all the factories at work, and here it is, so soon. A few weeks ago eggs were worth 8cts a doz. and even farmer families could afford to eat a few then. Now they are 20cts per dozen, they can't afford the luxury, and don't even have them to sell. We have been expecting the Old Bird up street to publish her annual item claiming the rise in the price of eggs was due to the McKinley bill, etc., etc, but as she has too much else on her mind she must have forgotten this. We simply call attention to the fact that cold weather and not the tariff has closed down this industry

—Mr. Bolton handed us the following:

No 10 morning pass. East, 6:25 a. m.
" 12 afternoon " " 4:03 p. m.
" 11 morning " West, 9:50 a. m.
" 9 evening " " 9:07 p. m.
Taking effect 4 o'clock a. m. Nov. 29.

—The I. O. G. T. are taking steps toward starting up their lodge again. There is a big field here and plenty of work to be done.

—A large share of the corn remains in the shock in the field, and the ground unplowed. This will make spring work behind from present appearances. Corn is cheap and people dislike to handle it for present prices. It would be better to load it onto the sled and haul it under shelter and husk it now, feeding the fodder, and saying the corn. It may be worth more in the spring. It don't pay to loose what you have even if it is cheap

Among our Exchanges.

Bryan proposes to keep up the free silver agitation until 1900, but we are of the opinion that he is only talking that way in order to let himself down easily.—Sherbune County Times.

Pioneer Press:—Bourke Cochran thinks that the gold democrats, having helped ellect the republican candidates, should now support the republican policy. I am tired of masquerading as a tariff reformer, he said, as if reported. "I will never again be found before the people as a tariff reformer.

James Fuller, age 22, of Mouticello, accidently shot himself so that he died in a few minuites, at Santiago where he was visiting. He attempted to take his gun from the wagon when he saw some game, the hammer caught, discharging the peice, with the fatal result.

St. Paul Despatch: William J. Bryan gave the populists a hard hit at Denver when he said of 1900. "Fou years hence a man running on a free coinage platform, even with the aid of a special train, would hardly attract as much as a minstrel show or a circus. In fact, it is hardly possible that silver will even enter into the contest for presidency in 1900—certainly not if the question of currency reform is wisely settled by the McKinley administration."

St. Peter Free Pree: From a statement in the New Ulm Review it appears that national committeeman T. D. O'Brien, Chairman Resing and John Lind are seriously considering the advisability of making a contest on the governorship. They are of the opinion that enough votes had been thrown out illegall to cause the defeat of Mr. Lind and have submitted their findings to Mr. Pope of Mankato, the secretary of their state committee. Should he also be in favor of a recount another meeting will be called to map out the future course of action: and in that case we may look for an interesting scrimmage.

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

Reading Notices.

Farm Stock and Home, Minneapolis Minn., is read by more northwestern farmers than all other Minnesota agricultural papers combined. The reason for this is found in the fact that it is by far the best one published in this state. Every department is in charge of a man well versed in the subject he represents, and are men daily engaged in farm opperations and residents of the northwest. It is distinctively a paper edited by and for northwestern farmers. Farm, Stock and Home with the GAZETTE, will be sent one year for $1.30.

Take Notice, Act According.

The Village Council of the village of Delano, will receive sealed bids for 200 cords of Dry Basswood and 300 cords of Green Basswood, to be split body wood, four feet in length, to be ranked on village grounds near power house. The council will meet Nov. the 28th to open and consider bids. Any and all Bids may be rejected.

Dated at DELANO, Nov. 20th, 1896.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S last message to Congress is a long one. It requires considerable time and patience to read it through; and then you will want to read it over to find out what he means, on many points. It is on inside of this paper.

THE Spaniards claim to have found the dead body of Maceo; the Cuban leader; his feet encased in silk stockings marked with red silk. They say nothing of his boots. Some other lover of liberty must have appropiated them, and they still hold down the trocha.

THE Republicans are having hard slidding now. They have got their way once. and they dont know what to do. If they would figure on doing the best for the country instead of the best for the party, they might accomplish something of consequence. Good laws properly administered is what the people want. The party that provides these essentials of a happy, free and independent government will receive credit at the hands of the people.

GROVER CLEVELAND don't seem to get over the bond idea. He thinks money is money, if it is paper, so it is not redeemable in gold. The Republicans, of course will have to follow this cue and flood the country with paper money; long time bonds, bearing interest, and not redeemable in gold until the next century perhaps. Fie on such money. If the Government is going to make paper money why don't it make money, and call it money, and not be fooling around with bonds drawing interest.

A few weeks ago the Waverly Tribune assulted us in its columns for "chewing the rag". The article that seemed to rile the Tribune (by name) was concerning the fact the counties of Ramsey, Hennepin, Wright and Sherburne, had all gone largely republican, but each had elected a democratic Sheriff. We thought, along with lots of other people, that this was a very strange occurance, to just happen that way. We still think someone ought to "chew the rag", as the Tribune calls it. The rag is only a thin gauze, not much heivier than muskuite bar. Yet so long as the Tripune, and other timid sheets refrain from, even mentioning the fact, together with the strange concidence that Anoca County, is a tie, on the same office, and the Governor and the Attorney General have had their ingenuity considerably taxed to settle the question, the thin rag will serve as a thicker one. Just how it happened, is what the people wovld like to know, and if the Tribune can offer them a good and sufficient excuse for this very singulr occurance it ought to do so, and not begin to work the old racket that has helped so long to cover up the old party sins. Come brother Topping take hold and help "cnew the rag" until the people and not the politicians elect officers to govern them.

Among our Exchanges.

The postmaster of Minneapolis, has decided that the goverment employees under his jurisdiction must pay honest bills or leave the service. This is good sense if not good law.—Valley Horald.

E. T Hamilton, the Messenger editor is slightly hors de combat this week, the result of a fall received Friday evening. While walking rapidly and carrying a child his feet caught in a wire frozen in the ground. The effort to hold the child up and save it from injury, which was done, cost a fracture and a dislocation of the clavicle of the left sholder.—Maple Lake Messenger.

Wright County Times.—Chauncey Depew would make an altogether lovely embassador to London. What he does not know of the large and small social courtesies of life not even a Frenchman knows. His inexhaustible fund of humor and his ability to make a speech would make the lion of British banquets and his receptions. And when it came to affairs requiring down right shrewdness and diplomacy it is sufficient to say that a man who can manage a big American railroad and make it pay even through the hard times we have had in this country would not be left in little matter like international statesmanship.

Some Politics.

It is probably not always plesant to those who are stiff political partisans to read or hear unfavorable comments on their party or its methods or the men it advances to official positions, and yet just such criticism is necesary if we would preserve even the semblance of good government. Political parties are human organizations, made up of and controlled more or less by selfish men who are constantly scheming for some personal advantage, and it would therefore be too much to expect any political party infallible. In local politics the personal character, and qulifications of the candidate has and should have great weight with the voters when they come to make their choice at the polls In national politics this can scareely be taken into the account because the great majority of voters cannot possibly have any personal knowledge of any of the candidates, they must, or should be governed almost entirely by the principles represented by the various candidates and party nominees. If it is a question of tariff, those who believe in the protective system will naturally support that party and candidate who represents that system, and those who believe in an opposite or different system will just as naturally support that party and candidate who represents that system. In order to carry an election it becomes necessary for some one party to convert enough voters to its principles and belief in order to secure a majority of the votes cast. This is, or ought to be the purpose of a campaign and this should be done by fair, dispationate, patriotic argument and not otherwise. It is never safe nor is it justified by any facts, for one party to apply to the other abusive epithets. It is assuming too much for any one political party to assume to itself all the patriotism and patriotic citizens in the country and when any party does that it goes beyond the bounds of reason and of right.

While it should be the object of a political campaign to arive at the truth, yet as a matter of fact this is hardly ever the case, the sole object is to carry the election and in order to do this it is not uncommon to resort to every sort of misrepresentation, and to every trick and artifice known to political managers. The people themselves, even those who cannot possibly gain any personal benefit from party triumph, in the way of office or patronage, will go so far as to refuse to read or hear anything that may be said for the party or the principles to which they are opposed, it is not a matter of reason with them but simply a matter of prejudice.

* * *

It may be said that there are two sides to every public question and as all legislation is mose or less an experiment, so it may be said that the real merits of most questions of public policy can only be determined by actual experience, by making a trial of the plan or principle of remedy proposed, and sometimes a more or less extended trial is reqnested to a full and satisfactory knowledge of what the practical effects and results will be. One of the greatest hindrances to good goverument in a republic like ours is the impatence of the people and the facilities there are for frequent changes and reversals of public policy. At last once every four years the people of this country have the opportunity and the power to make radical changes in the policy of the government and experience shows that at the four last national elections the people have each time voted for radical changes in the policy of this government with reference to the tariff, and there is no assurance that they will be any nearer a final solution and settlement of this much vexed question in four years from now than they have heretofore been.

* * *

This whipping around from "pillar to post" on this one question is all the more singular and unjustifiable from the fact that ever since 1861 this country has been under a high protective policy and the people ought to be satisfied as to its merits or demerits without any further experiment, but such does not seem to be the fact.—Buffalo Journal.

"So his mother intends making a pianist of him?"

"Yes."

"Whom has she chosen for a teacher?"

"He haf not got that far yet; at present she is just letting his hair grow."—The Musical Idea.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 4, 1896.

The White House is about the only place in Washington one can go now without meeting one or more Senators and Representatives. Secretary Olney has been overrun with Congressional callers, especially since the circulation of the rumor that he had a short time ago notified the government of Spain that this government intended to bring about peace in Cuba if the revolution was not put down in three months, all anxious to know the exact status of Cuban matters. Members of the Senate and House Foreign committies are said to have received some definite information but to all the rest it was stated in general terms that no immediate change was contemplated in the policy of the administration towards Cuba, and it is expected that the President's message will treat the matter in about the same style. The other members of the Cabinet have also had numerous Congressional callers, some on business and some merely to pay a friendly visit; but President Cleveland has not had much of his time taken up by them and is not likely to have.

The President's message is all ready to be sent to congress, and the usual precautions have been taken to prevent its premature publication. If it be fair to judge from the lack of curiosity as to the contents of that document this year, those precautions were hardly necessary. It will, of course, be printed as a matter of news when it goes to Congress, but it is doubtful whether an advance copy of it could be sold to any paper in the country, not because of the belief that it will be any less interesting than Mr. Cleveland's previous messages, but because of the knowledge that the situation in Congress is such that no matter how wise or how important there commendations of the meesage may be there is no possibility of their being carried out by legislation at the present session.

There are all classes of men in most professions, but the increase of men who conduct their business upon the greengoods man's theory, that a "new sucker is born every minute," in the ranks of the patent solicitors has aroused the honorable patent lawyers to the necessity of taking some action that will protect the inventors of the country and their own profession from the degradation and demoralization of the methods adopted to cajole money from the pockets of the inventors without any intention of giving any equitable return therefor. Under present laws and rules the Commissioner of Patents can do nothing to protect either the honest patent lawyer or the inventor, except in cases of the most flagrant nature, and then it must come under his personal notice after an application has been filed in the Patent Office; but it is thought that a Patent Bar, to a proper extent under the jurisdiction of the Commissioner of Patents, could easily compel the lottery patent solicitors and the delusive circular patent solicitors to either reform their methods or get out of the business. In either case the inventors and the honest patent lawyers would be gainers.

Speaking of the probability that one or more Senators may be asked to join McKinley's Cabinent a veteran republican Senator said: "Well everybody must judge for themselves, but the Senator who has been in office for more than one term who is willing to enter the Cabinet must either have been blind to what went on under his nose or imagine that he possesses the ability to make his experience different from that of other men who have tried the same thing. Many Senators have been pursuaded into Presidents' Cabinents, but I don't believe there was ever a single one of them that did not regret it. Senator Lodge, of Mass., who has been mentioned as a cabinet possibility, says he would not leave the Senate for any position in McKinley's gift. Lodge may not have a level head on everything but on this subject he has.

There is nothing in official life, except the Presidency, better than a Senatorship.

There is alarm among the republicans over a report that "Teddy" Roosevelt is tiring of his New York job and wants to come back to Washington as Assistant Secretary of the Navy under the McKinley administration. They don't want "Teddy" to come back to Washington, but he has a knack of getting what he wants; hense their alarm. They know what a wonderful capacity "Teddy" has for stirring things up and keeping them stirred up. They think the extra session of Congress and other McKinley inflections will be trouble enough without "Teddy". The newspaper men are a unite in desiring "Teddy's" return to Washington as a member of McKinley's administration: as an all around copy-maker readable copy, too—he beats the band as the yellow kid says.

Senator Cullom, the gentleman who was a candidate for the republican Presidential nomination because of a fancied facial resemblance to Abraham Lincoln and who has been "mentioned" for the cabinet, has set up as a financial oracle. He said: "The republican party will settle the silver question within the next four years to the satisfaction of everybody." When asked to state how this wonderful settlement was to be brought about the oracle replied: "Just what plan will be followed I cannot say, but I feel sure it will be settled." Now isn't that convincing?

HOW A PUZZLE WAS SOLVED.

When you want a certain article, you want the best make of that article, don't you?

But how to determine which make is best is what puzzles you, isn't it?

And when the puzzle is solved for you, by authority which cannot be questioned, you are pleased, aren't you?

And you would like to hear of one puzzle that has been solved for the people of the whole world, wouldn't you?

Well, we will tell you about that very puzzle, and its solution.

At the Universal Exposition of 1889 at Paris, France, the best sewing machines of the world, including those of America, were in competition. They were passed upon by a jury composed of the best foreign mechanical experts, two of whom were the leading sewing machine manufacturers of France.

This jury, after exhaustive examination and tests, adjudged that the Wheeler & Wilson machines were the best of all, and awarded that company the highest prize offered, the GRAND PRIZE, giving other companies only gold, silver and bronze medals.

The French Government, as a further recognition of superiority, decorated Mr. Nathaniel Wheeler, president of the company, with the Cross of the Legion of Honor, the most prized honor of France.

That is how the puzzle of the best sewing machine in the world was fully solved by the most competent authority in the world in favor of the No. 9 and No. 12 Wheeler & Wilson machines.

The No. 9, for family use, and the No. 12, for manufacturing uses, are the best in the world to-day.

And now, when you want a sewing machine, if you do not get the best, it will be your own fault.

Ask your sewing machine dealer for the No. 9 Wheeler & Wilson machine, and if he does not keep them, write to us for descriptive catalogue, prices and terms.

DELANO, Wright Co., - MINN.

Illinois is said to have the finest woman's prison in the world, but there is no rush for rooms.

The real secret of man's determined opposition to woman suffrage is the fear that when women should be given the ballot they would insist on betting hats.

The fellows who "rocked the boat" during the hot months have started into the amusement of skating on thin ice and seeing how near they can go to the air holes.

The total vote of the states of Colorado, Idaho, Montana, Nevada and Utah in the recent election amounted to 347,234, while that of Chicago was 373,734, showing an excess of 39,500 in favor of Chicago.

The bill in the Alabama legislature to prohibit the wearing of bloomers in that state was referred to the committee on temperance. The Alabama lawmakers evidently think that bloomers have a tendency to drive people to drink.

More defective ballots were cast in Rhode Island this year than at any previous election. Out of 58,832 presidential votes 5,047 were so marked, either through ignorance or carelessness, that they could not be credited to any candidate.

The Army of the Tennessee has given the contract for a fine equestrian statue of Gen. Sherman, to be erected in Washington. The capital city is already notable for its statuary, and will be still richer with this figure of one of the most picturesque characters in American history.

Maryland has fallen into line with several other states in the matter of institutes for the education of the farmers. The work is to begin this winter with a legislative appropriation of $3,000, which is regarded as sufficient to provide for the holding of one or more institutes in each county in the state.

At the meeting of the National Academy of Sciences in the Columbia school of mines in New York, Prof. Ira Remsen, of Johns Hopkins university, spoke on "The Isometric Chlorides of Paranitroorthosulphobenzoic Acid." The least trifle of alcoholic stimulation would have materially crippled the lecturer on such a name as that.

The critics in the forecast department of the weather bureau will do well to hide their heads in shame until a storm of popular wrath blows over. The department's annual report shows or says that 83 per cent. of the forecasts proved correct. This is about 82 per cent. more than the department has been credited with by the critics.

The Electrical Review says a curious experiment at Rockdell, N. Y., developed the fact that telephoning through the human body could be accomplished successfully. A young man took a broken end of a wire in each hand and communication was easily established, messages passing through his body as readily as though the wire had been solid.

It has been frequently said that the women themselves are opposed to woman suffrage. This is certainly true of the sisterhood of states. Idaho was the only state favoring woman suffrage at the last election. Opposed to Ida Ho may be placed May Inne, little Rhody, Della Ware, Mary Land, Virginia, Flora Day, Allie Bama, Mrs. Ippi, Miss Ouri, Louise Iana, Tennie See, Minnie Sota and Callie Fornia.

The teachers in the Boston schools did not wait for any action on the part of the city relative to pensioning them, but went to work and established on their own hook a teachers' mutual benefit association. During the past five years the association has paid to 66 retired teachers the snug sum of $50,889. This is a striking illustration of what can be accomplished by a little well-directed effort.

Queen Victoria is going to make a new will. Twenty-five years have passed since the one now in existence was drawn up, and in that time the queen's property, as well as her progeny, has increased vastly. The wealth of the ruler of Great Britain and Ireland and Canada and India has been estimated at $175,000,000, and while a portion of it has been bequeathed to the queen by certain of her rich subjects, the greater part of it is the accumulation of her judiciously invested savings.

By the death of William Steinway, the well-known head of the great piano house of Steinway & Sons, of New York, there has passed away not only a conspicuous and successful manufacturer, but one of the most public-spirited, able and useful of the German-American citizens of the United States. Outside of the special instruments manufactured by this house Mr. Steinway for many years has been a power in the musical history of the country, and his death leaves a vacancy in the world of music which will be hard to fill. In contributions, also, he was always liberal and the list of his charities is a long one.

The richest man in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet now is the new secretary of the interior, Mr. Francis. Secretary Lamont follows. Eight years ago he was poor, but Metropolitan Traction stock in New York made him several hundred thousand dollars. He got in on the ground floor and is now floating with the stock on the roof. Attorney-General Harmon has sufficient to keep the wolf from the door. So has Secretary Olney. Secretary Morton, Secretary Carlisle, Postmaster-General Wilson and Secretary Herbert are compelled to ask for their "balance" in bank several times a month. The president is a millionaire.

Prof. L. L. Dyche, the arctic explorer, has returned home after five months' absence in Alaska in search of mammals for the Kansas university. His trip was most successful. When asked about a north pole passage through the Alaskan route, Prof. Dyche replied that he thought it was perfectly feasible and that his ship captain and whalers had told him that it was often possible to go as far north as 83 degrees and that some of the whalers were of the belief that some seasons it would be possible to sail clear through to the north pole on account of the shifting of the ice. He intimated that he might try it again.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

The Proceedings of the Second Session.

The Fifty-fourth congress convened on the 7th for its final session, but transacted no business. President Cleveland and his message had the floor in both houses. Vice President Stevenson called the senate to order and Speaker Reed presided in the house.

FROM WASHINGTON.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 4th aggregated $1,285,485,804, against $935,953,113 the previous week. The increase compared with the corresponding week in 1895 is 4.0.

R. E. Preston, director of the mint, in his report shows that during the past fiscal year the total coinage was $71,188,528. He states that the silver coins are being counterfeited, exactly similar to the genuine in size, weight and devices, and some cannot be distinguished from the genuine, even by experts.

Secretary of the Interior Francis shows in his annual report that the total number of acres disposed of up to June 30 last was 946,000,000, leaving public domain still vacant estimated at over 600,000,000, not including the district of Alaska, with an area of over 369,000,000 acres.

General Dumont, supervising inspector of the steamboat inspection service, in his annual report says that 600,000,000 passengers were carried on steam vessels during the year and that 221 lives were lost, a decrease from the previous year of 173.

It is said that the battle ship Texas, which cost the government $4,125,000, is a complete failure.

Secretary of the Navy Herbert in his annual report warns the country of the insufficiency of its navy for the requirements of war. There are 42 vessels in commission, and 8,165 enlisted men and 1,378 apprentices in the navy. The department expended during the year $13,002,625.

An energetic protest has been lodged by the German government with the state department in Washington against the action of the president in imposing tonnage duties on German ships entering American ports.

The secretary of the treasury transmitted to the speaker of the house the estimates of the appropriations required for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1898. They amount to $421,718,965. The estimates for the present fiscal year amounted to $418,091,073.

Fire losses of the United States and Canada for the month of November amounted to $5,211,800, against $8,993,000 during the same time last year.

President Cleveland, in his message to congress, in referring to affairs in Cuba, says that in spite of Spain's determination to put down the rebellion the Cubans have gained strength in arms and men, and says it cannot reasonably be expected that the present attitude of the United States will be indefinitely maintained.

During the past year the total receipts of the government were $82,499,208.40 and the total expenditures were $90,626,296.84, an increase of receipts over the previous year of $5,516,080.21, and an increase of expenditures of $3,836,124.02.

THE EAST.

Fire destroyed the administration building of the New Jersey state institution for feeble-minded children at Vineland.

In Boston the Imperial Grand Opera company, under the charge of Col. Mapleson, was stranded for lack of funds.

It is shown by the official canvass of the vote for president in Massachusetts that 278,976 ballots were cast for McKinley, 105,711 for Bryan and 11,749 for Palmer. McKinley's plurality, 173,265.

THE MESSAGE.

Text of President Cleveland's Recommendations to Congress.

Recognition of the Independence of Cuba Impossible Under Present Circumstances.

Spain Must Soon Take Steps to End the War, or Interference by United States Will Follow.

Much Space Devoted to the Financial Question—Necessity for Currency Reform.

Washington, Dec. 7.—The following is the text of President Cleveland's message to congress:

To the Congress of the United States: As representatives of the people in the legislative branch of their government, you have assembled at a time when the strength and excellence of our free institutions and the fitness of our citizens to enjoy popular rule have been again made manifest. A political contest involving momentous consequences, fraught with feverish apprehension and creating aggressiveness so intense as to approach bitterness and passion has been waged throughout our land and determined by the decree of free and independent suffrage, without disturbance of our tranquillity or the least sign of weakness in our national structure. When we consider these incidents and contemplate the peaceful obedience and manly submission which have succeeded a heated clash of political opinions, we discover abundant evidence of a determination on the part of our countrymen to abide by every verdict of the popular will and to be controlled at all times by an abiding faith in the agencies established for the direction of the affairs of their government.

The Turkish Question.

At the outset of a reference to the more important matters affecting our relations with foreign powers, it would afford me satisfaction if I could assure the congress that the disturbed condition in Asiatic Turkey had during the past year assumed a less hideous and bloody aspect and that either as a consequence of the awakening of the Turkish government to the demand of humane civilization, or as the result of decisive action on the part of the great nations having the right by treaty to interfere for the protection of those exposed to the rage of mad bigotry and cruel fanaticism, the shocking features of the situation had been mitigated.

Instead, however, of welcoming a softened disposition or protective intervention, we have been afflicted by continued and not unfrequent reports of the wanton destruction of homes and the bloody butchery of men, women and children, made martyrs to their profession of Christian faith

Protection of Americans.

While none of our citizens in Turkey have thus far been killed or wounded, though often in the midst of dreadful scenes of danger, their safety in the future is by no means assured. Our government at home and our minister at Constantinople have left nothing undone to protect our missionaries in Ottoman territory, who constitute nearly all the individuals residing there who have a right to claim our protection on the score of American citizenship.

Cuban Insurrection.

The insurrection in Cuba still continues with all its perplexities. It is difficult to perceive that any progress has thus far been made towards the pacification of the island, or that the situation of affairs as depicted in my last annual message has in the least improved. If Spain still holds Havana and the seaports and all the considerable towns, the insurgents still roam at will over at least two-thirds of the inland country. If the determination of Spain to put down the insurrecion seems but to strengthen with the lapse of time and is evinced by her unhesitating devotion of largely increased military and naval forces to the task, there is much reason to believe that the insurgents have gained in point of numbers and character and resources, and are none the less inflexible in their resolve not to succumb without practically securing the great objects for which they took up arms.

Not Yet Entitled to Recognition.

If Spain has not yet reestablished her authority, neither have the insurgents yet made good their title to be regarded as an independent state. Indeed, as the contest has gone on, the pretense that civil government exists on the island, except so far as Spain is able to maintain it, has been practically abandoned. Spain does keep on foot such a government, more or less imperfectly, in the large towns and their immediate suburbs. But, that exception being made, the entire country is either given over to anarchy, or is subject to the military occupation of one or the other party.

Why Spain Does Not Win.

Were the Spanish armies able to meet their antagonists in the open, or in pitched battle, prompt and decisive results might be looked for, and the immense superiority of the Spanish forces in numbers, discipline, and equipment, could hardly fail to tell greatly to their advantage. But they are called upon to face a foe that shuns general engagements, that can choose and does choose its own ground, that from the nature of the country, is visible or invisible at pleasure, and that fights only from ambuscade and when all the advantages of position and numbers are on its side. In a country where all that is indispensable to life in the way of food, clothing and shelter is so easily obtainable, especially by those born and bred on the soil, it is obvious that there is hardly a limit to the time during which hostilities of this sort may be prolonged.

Situation Deplorable.

Meanwhile, as in all cases of protracted civil strife, the passions of the combatants grow more and more inflamed and excesses on both sides become more frequent and more deplorable. They are also participated in by bands of marauders, who, now in the name of one party now in the name of the other, as may best suit the occasion, harry the country at will and plunder its wretched inhabitants for their own advantage. Such a condition of things would inevitably entail immense destruction of property, even if it were the object of both parties to prevent it as far as practicable. But while such seemed to be the original policy of the Spanish government, it has now apparently abandoned it and is acting upon the same theory as the insurgents, namely, that the exigencies of the contest require the wholesale annihilation of property that it may not prove of use and advantage to the enemy. It is to the same end that in pursuance of general orders, Spanish garrisons are now being withdrawn from plantations and the rural population required to concentrate itself in the towns.

The sure result would seem to be that the industrial value of the island is fast diminishing, and that unless there is a speedy and radical change in existing conditions, it will soon disappear altogether. That value consists very largely, of course, in its capacity to produce sugar—a capacity already much reduced by the interruptions to tillage, which have taken place during the last two years. It is reliably asserted that should these interruptions continue during the current year and practically extend, as is now threatened, to the entire sugar-producing territory of the island, so much time and so much money will be required to restore the land to its normal productiveness that it is extremely doubtful if capital can be induced to even make the attempt

Would Engage Our Serious Attention.

The spectacle of utter ruin of an adjoining country, by nature one of the most fertile and charming on the globe, would engage the serious attention of the government and the people of the United States in any circumstance. In point of fact, they have a concern with it which is by no means of a wholly sentimental or philanthropic character. It lies so near to us as to be hardly separated from our territory. Our actual pecuniary interest in it is second only to that of the people and government of Spain. It is reasonably estimated that at least from $30,000,000 to $50,000,000 of American capital are invested in plantations, and in railroad, mining and other business enterprises on the island. The volume of trade between the United States and Cuba, which in 1889 amounted to about $64,000,000, rose in 1893 to about $103,000,000, and in 1894, the year before the present insurrection broke out, amounted to nearly $96,000,000.

Vexatious Entanglements.

Besides this large pecuniary stake in the fortunes of Cuba, the United States finds itself inextricably involved in the present contest in other ways both vexatious and costly. Many Cubans reside in this country and indirectly promote the insurrection through the press, by public meetings, by the purchase and shipment of arms, by the raising of funds and by other means, which the spirit of our institutions and the tenor of our laws do not permit to be made the subject of criminal prosecutions. Some of them, though Cubans at heart and in all their feelings and interests, have taken out papers as naturalized citizens of the United States, a proceeding resorted to with a view to possible protection by this government, and not unnaturally regarded with much indignation by the country of their origin.

The Question of Intervention.

These inevitable entanglements of the United States with the rebellion in Cuba, the large American property interests affected and considerations of philanthropy and humanity in general have led to a vehement demand in various quarters for some sort of positive intervention on the part of the United States. It was at first proposed that belligerent rights should be accorded to the insurgents—a proposition no longer urged because untimely and in practical operation clearly perilous and injurious to our own interests. It has since been and is now sometimes contended that the independence of the insurgents should be recognized. But imperfect and restricted as the Spanish government of the island may be, no other exists there—unless the will of the military officer in temporary command of a particular district can be dignified as a species of government. It is now also suggested that the United States should buy the island—a suggestion possibly worthy of consideration if there were any evidence of a desire or willingness on the part of Spain to entertain such a proposal. It is urged, finally, that all other methods failing, the existing internecine strife in Cuba should be terminated by our intervention, even at the cost of a war between the United States and Spain—a war which its advocates confidently prophesy could be neither large in its proportions nor doubtful in its issue.

Right, Not Might, Must Rule.

The correctness of this forecast need be neither affirmed nor denied. The United States has nevertheless a character to maintain as a nation, which plainly dictates that right and not might should be the rule of its conduct. Further, though the United States is not a nation to which peace is a necessity, it is in truth the most pacific of powers, and desires nothing so much as to live in amity with all the world. Its own ample and diversified domains satisfy all possible longings for territory, preclude all thought of conquest, and prevent any casting of covetous eyes upon neighboring regions, however attractive.

Spain Should Grant Autonomy.

It is in the assumed temper and disposition of the Spanish government to remedy these grievances, fortified by indications of the colonial public opinion in Spain, that this government has hoped to discover the most promising and effective means of composing the present strife, with honor and advantage to Spain and with the achievement of all the reasonable objects of the insurrection. It would seem that if Spain should offer to Cuba genuine autonomy—a measure of home rule which, while preserving the sovereignty of Spain, would satisfy all rational requirements of her Spanish subjects—there should be no just reason why the pacification of the island might not be effected on that basis.

Objections Answered.

It has been objected on the one side that Spain should not promise autonomy until her insurgent subjects lay down their arms; on the other side, that promised autonomy, however liberal, is insufficient, because without assurance of the promise being fulfilled, but the reasonableness of a requirement by Spain, of unconditional surrender on the part of the insurgent Cubans before their autonomy is conceeded, is not altogether apparent. It ignores important features of the present—the inability of two years' duration has given to the insurrection the feasibility of its indefinite prolongation in the nature of things, and as shown by past experience, the utter and imminent ruin of the island, unless the present strife is speedily composed—above all, the rank abuses which all parties in Spain, all branches of her government and all her leading public men concede to exist and profess a desire to remove. Facing such circumstances to withhold the proffer of needed reforms until the parties demanding them put themselves at mercy by throwing down their arms has the appearance of neglecting the gravest of perils and inviting suspicion as to the sincerity of any professed willingness to grant reforms.

The objection on behalf of the insurgents—that proposed reforms cannot be relied upon—must of course be considered, though we have no right to assume and no reason for assuming that anything Spain undertakes to do for the relief of Cuba will not be done according to both the spirit and the letter of the undertaking.

Offered Our Services.

Nevertheless, realizing that suspicions and precautions on the part of the weaker of two combatants are always natural and not always unjustifiable—being sincerely desirous in the interest of both, as well as on its own account that the Cuban problem should be solved with the least possible delay, it was intimated by this government to the government of Spain some months ago that, if a satisfactory measure of home rule were tendered the Cuban insurgents, and would be accepted by them upon a guaranty of its execution, the United States would endeavor to find a way not objectionable to Spain of furnishing such guaranty. While no definite response to this intimation has yet been received from the Spanish government, it is believed to be not altogether unwelcome.

A Limit to Our Patience.

Whatever circumstances may arise, our policy and our interests would constrain us to object to the acquisition of the island or an interference with its control by any other power. It could be added that it cannot reasonably assumed that the hitherto expectant attitude of the United States will be indefinitely maintained. While we are anxious to accord all due respect to the sovereignty of Spain, we cannot view the pending contest in all its features and properly apprehend our inevitably close relations to it and its possible results without considering that by the course of events we may be drawn into such an unusual and unprecedented condition as will fix a limit to our patient waiting for Spain to end the contest, either alone and in her own way, or with our friendly cooperation.

Deferring the choice of ways and methods until the time for action arrives, we should make them depend upon the precise conditions then existing; and they should not be determined upon without giving careful heed to every consideration involving our honor and interest, or the international duty we owe to Spain. Until we face the contingencies suggested, or the situation is by other incidents imperatively changed, we should continue in the line of conduct heretofore pursued, thus in all circumstances exhibiting our obedience to the requirements of public law and our regard for the duty enjoined upon us by the position we occupy in the family of nations.

Venezuelan Question.

The Venezuelan boundary question has ceased to be a matter of difference between Great Britain and the United States, their respective governments having agreed upon the substantial provisions of a treaty between Great Britain and Venezuela, submitting the whole controversy to arbitration. The provisions of the treaty are so eminently just and fair, that the assent of Venezuela thereto may confidently be anticipated.

General Arbitration with Great Britain.

Negotiations for a treaty of general arbitration for all differences between Great Britain and the United States are far advanced, and promise to reach a successful consummation at an early date.

Our Finances.

The secretary of the treasury reports that during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, the receipts of the government from all sources amounted to $409,475,408.78. During the same period its expenditures were $434,678,654.48, the excess of expenditures over receipts amounting to $25,203,245.70. The ordinary expenditures during the year were $4,015,852.21 less than during the preceding fiscal year. Of the receipts mentioned, there were derived from customs the sum of $180,021,751.67 and from internal revenue $146,836,615.66. The receipts from customs show an increase of $7,863,134.22 over those from the same source for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1895, and the receipts from internal revenue an increase of $3,584,537.91.

Imports and Exports.

The value of our imported dutiable merchandise during the last fiscal year was $389,757,470, and the value of free goods imported $409,967,470, being an increase of $6,523,675 in the value of dutiable goods and $41,221,634 in the value of free goods over the preceding year. Our exports of merchandise, foreign and domestic, amounted in value to $882,606,928, being an increase over the preceding year of $75,068,773. The average ad valorem duty paid on dutiable goods imported during the year was 39.94 per cent. and on free and dutiable goods taken together 20.55 per cent.

Movement of Metallic Money.

The total amount of gold exported during the last fiscal year was $112,409,947 and of silver $69,541,670, being an increase of $45,941,466 of gold, and $13,246,284 of silver over the exportations of the preceding fiscal year. The imports of gold were $38,525,065, and of silver $28,777,186, being $2,869,925 less of gold, and $8,565,007 more of silver than during the preceding year. The total stock of metallic money in the United States at the close of the last fiscal year ended on the 30th day of June, 1896, was $1,228,326,035, of which $599,597,964 was in gold, and $628,728,071 in silver.

Per Capita Circulation of $22.63.

On the first day of November, 1896, the total stock of money of all kinds in the country was $2,285,410,596, and the amount in circulation, not including that in the treasury holdings, was $1,627,055,641, being $22.63 per capita, upon an estimated population of 71,962,000.

Production of Precious Metals.

The production of the precious metals in the United States during the calendar year 1895 is estimated to have been 2,254,760 fine ounces of gold, of the value of $46,610,000, and 55,727,000 fine ounces of silver, of the commercial value of $36,445,000 and the coinage value of $72,051,000.

The estimated production of these metals throughout the world during the same period was 9,688,871 fine ounces of gold, amounting to $200,285,700 in value, and 169,189,249 fine ounces of silver, of the commercial value of $110,654,000 and of the coinage value of $218,738,100, according to our ratio.

National Banks.

The number of national banks organized from the time the law authorizing their creation was passed, up to October 31, 1896, was 5,051, and of this number 3,379 were at the date last mentioned in active operation, having authorized capital stock of $650,014,895, held by 288,902 shareholders, and circulating notes amounting to $211,412,620. The total outstanding circulating notes of all national banks on the 31st day of October, 1896, amounted to $234,553,807 including unredeemed, but fully secured notes of banks insolvent and in process of liquidation. The increase in national bank circulation during the year ending on that day was $21,059,429. On October 6, 1896, when the condition of national banks was last reported, the total resources of the 3,679 active institutions was $2,263,685,313.83, which included $1,893,258,839.03 in loans and discounts and $362,165,723.85 in money of all kinds on hand. Of their liabilities $1,597,891,658.03 was due to individual depositors and $209,944,619 consisted of outstanding circulating notes. There were organized during the year preceding the date last mentioned 28 national banks, located in 15 states, of which 12 were organized in the eastern states with a capital of $1,180,000, six in the western states with a capital of $875,000, and ten in the southern states with a capital of $1,190,000. During the year, however, 37 banks voluntarily abandoned their franchises under the national law, and in the case of 27 others it was found necessary to appoint receivers. Therefore, as compared with the year preceding, there was a decrease of 26 in the number of active banks. The number of existing banks organized under state laws is 5,708.

Immigration.

The number of immigrants arriving in the United States during the fiscal year was 343,267, of whom 340,468 were permitted to land, and 2,799 were debarred on various grounds prescribed by law, and returned to the countries whence they came, at the expense of the steamship company by which they were brought in. The increase in immigration over the preceding year amounted to 84,131. It is reported that with some exceptions the immigrants of the past year were of a hardy laboring class, accustomed and able to earn a support for themselves, and it is estimated that the money brought with them amounted to at least $5,000,000. Though it was probably much in excess of that sum, since only those having less than $30 are required to disclose the exact amount, and it is known that many brought considerable sums of money to buy land and build homes. Including all the immigrants arriving who were over 14 years of age, 28.63 per cent. were illiterate as against 29.37 per cent. of those of that age arriving during the preceding fiscal year.

Work of the Life Savers.

From the life-saving service it is reported that the number of disasters to documented vessels within the limits of its operations during the year was 437. These vessels had on board 4,608 persons, of whom 4,595 were saved and 13 lost. The value of such vessels is estimated at $8,890,140, and of their cargoes, $3,846,380, making the total value of property imperiled $12,726,520. Of this amount $11,292,767 was saved and $1,432,750 was lost.

The Army.

The report of the secretary of war exhibits satisfactory conditions in the several branches of the public service intrusted to his charge. The limit of our military force, as fixed by law, is constantly and readily maintained. The present discipline and morale of our army are excellent, and marked progress and efficiency are apparent throughout its entire organization.

With the exception of delicate duties in the suppression of slight Indian disturbances along our southwestern boundary, in which the Mexican troops cooperated, and the compulsory but peaceful return, with the consent of Great Britain, of a band of Cree Indians from Montana to the British possessions, no active operations have been required of the army during the year past.

Changes in methods of administration, the abandonment of unnecessary posts and consequent concentration of troops and the exercise of care and vigilance by the various officers charged with the responsibility in the expenditure of appropriations have resulted in reducing to a minimum the cost of maintenance of our military establishment. During the past year the work of constructing permanent infantry and cavalry posts has been continued at the places heretofore designated. The secretary of war repeats his recommendation that appropriations for barracks and quarters should more strictly conform to the needs of the service, as judged by the department, rather than respond to the wishes and importunities of localities. It is imperative that much of the money provided for such construction should now be allotted to the erection of necessary quarters for the garrisons assigned to the coast defenses, where many men will be needed to properly care for and operate modern guns. It is essential, too, that early provision be made to supply the necessary force of artillery to meet the demands of this service.

The Militia.

The organized militia numbers 112,879 men. The appropriations for its support by the several states approximate $2,800,000 annually, and $400,000 are contributed by the general government. Investigation shows these troops to be usually drilled and inspired with much military interest, but in many instances they are so deficient in proper arms and equipment that a sudden call to active duty would find them inadequately prepared for field service. I therefore recommend that prompt measures be taken to remedy this condition and that every encouragement be given to this deserving body of unpaid and voluntary citizen soldiers, upon whose assistance we must largely rely in time of trouble.

Sea Coast Defenses.

During the past year rapid progress has been made toward the completion of the scheme adopted for the erection and armament of fortifications along our seacoast, while equal progress has been made in providing the material for submarine defense in connection with these works. It is peculiarly gratifying at this time to note the great advance that has been made in this important undertaking since the date of my annual message to the Fifty-third congress at the opening of its second session, in December, 1893. At that time I informed the congress of the approaching completion of 9 12-inch, 20 10-inch and 34 8-inch high power steel guns and 75 12-inch rifled mortars.

This total then seemed insignificant when compared with the great work remaining to be done. Yet it was none the less a source of satisfaction to every citizen when he reflected that it represented the first installment of the new ordnance of American design and American manufacture, and demonstrated our ability to supply from our own resources guns of unexcelled power and accuracy. At that date, however, there were practically no carriages upon which to mount those guns, and only 31 emplacements for guns and 61 for mortars. Nor were all these emplacements in condition to receive their armament. Only one high-power gun was at that time in position for the defense of the entire coast. Since that time the number of guns actually completed has been increased to 21 12-inch; 56 ten-inch; 61 eight-inch high-power breech-loading steel ten rapid-fire guns and 80 12-inch rifled mortars. In addition there are in process of construction of one 16-inch type gun, 50 12-inch, 56 ten-inch, 27 eight-inch high-power guns and 66 12-inch rifled mortars; in all 428 guns and mortars.

During the same year immediately preceding the message referred to the first modern gun carriage had been completed and 11 more were in process of construction. All but one were of the non-disappearing type. These, however, were not such as to secure necessary cover for the artillery gunners against the intense fire of modern machine rapid-fire and high-power guns. The inventive genius of ordnance and civilian experts has been taxed in designing carriages that would obviate this fault, resulting, it is believed, in the solution of this dimcult problem. Since 1893 the number of gun carriages constructed or building has been raised to a total of 128, of which 90 are on the disappearing principle, and the number of mortar carriages to 152, while the 95 emplacements which were provided for prior to that time have been increased to 280 built and building. This improved situation is largely due to the recent generous response of congress to the recommendations of the war department. Thus we shall soon have complete about one-fifth of the comprehensive system, the first step in which was noted in my message to the congress of December 4, 1893.

The Postal Service.

The post office department is in good condition, and the exhibit made of its operations during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, if allowance is made for imperfections in the laws applicable to it, is very satisfactory. The total receipts during the year were $82,499,208.40. The total expenditures were $90,626,296.84, exclusive of $1,669,898.27, which was earned by the Pacific railroad for transportation and credited on their debt to the government. There was an increase of receipts over the previous year of $5,516,080.21, or 7.1 per cent., and an increase of expenditures of $3,836,124.02, or 4.42 per cent. The deficit was $1,679,956.19, less than that of the preceding year.

Abuse of Second-Class Rates.

The deficit for the last year, although much less than that of the last and preceding years, emphasizes the necessity for legislation to correct the growing abuse of second-class rates, to which the deficiency is mainly attributable. Texas.

In the Agricultural line, Texas leads all other states in the variety of its products. Cotton, corn and the cereals grow and are raised in every section of the state and in the central and southern portions sugar cane and sorghum are profitably cultivated. On the Gulf Coast two and three crops of vegetables are raised each year. Berries are shipped six weeks in advance of the home crop in the north. Pears, peaches, plums, oranges, figs, olives and nuts all grow abundantly and can be marketed from two to three weeks in advance of the California crops. Large quantities of rice are now grown.

If the land seeker, the home seeker and the settler desires to secure a farm larger than the one he occupies, on vastly more reasonable terms; if he wants more land to cultivate, a greater variety of crops to harvest, with proportionately increased remuneration, at a less outlay for cost of production; if he wants an earlier season with correspondingly higher prices; if he wants milder winters, all the year pasturage for his stock, improved health, increased bodily comforts and wealth and prosperity, he should go to Texas.

Expenditures.

The remainder of our postal revenue, amounting to something more than $5,000,000, was derived from box rents, registry fees, money-order business and other similar items. The entire expenditures of the department, including pay for transportation credited to the Pacific railroads, was $82,186,195.11, which may be considered as the cost of receiving, carrying and delivering the above mail matter. It thus appears that though the second-class matter constituted more than two-thirds of the total that was carried, the revenue derived from it was less than one-thirtieth of the total expense. The average revenue from each pound of first-class matter was 32 cents. From each pound of second-class, 8½ mills. (Of the second class 52,348,287 was county-free matter). From each pound of third class, 13.1 cents. From each pound of fourth class, 15.6 cents. The growth of weight of second-class matter has been from 289,000,000 pounds in 1894 to 312,000,000 pounds in 1895, and to almost 369,000,000 in 1896, and it is quite evident this increasing drawback is far outstripping any possible growth of postal revenues.

Abuses Must Be Corrected.

Our mail service should of course be such as to meet the wants and even the conveniences of our people, at a direct charge upon them so light as perhaps to exclude the idea of our post office department being a money-making concern; but in the face of a constantly recurring deficiency in its revenues, and in view of the fact that we supply the best mail service in the world, it seems to me it is quite time to correct the abuses that swell enormously our annual deficit. If we concede the public policy of carrying weekly newspapers free in the county of publication, and even the policy of carrying at less than one-tenth of their cost other bona fide newspapers and periodicals, there can be no excuse for subjecting the service to the further immense and increasing loss involved in carrying at the nominal rate of one cent a pound the serial libraries, sometimes including trashy and even harmful literature, and other matter which, under the loose interpretation of a loose statute, has been gradually given second-class rates, thus absorbing all profitable returns derived from first-class matter, which pays three or four times more than its cost, and producing a large annual loss to be paid by general taxation. If such second-class matter paid merely the cost of its handling our deficit would disappear and a surplus result which might be used to give the people still better mail facilities or cheaper rates of letter postage. I recommend that legislation be at once enacted to correct these abuses and introduce better business ideas in the regulation of our postal rates.

I especially recommend that such a recasting of the appropriations by congress for the post office department as will permit the postmaster general to proceed with the work of consolidating post offices. This work has already been entered upon sufficiently to fully demonstrate, by experiment and experience, that such consolidation is productive of better service, larger revenues and less expenditures, to say nothing of the further advantage of gradually withdrawing post offices from the spoils system.

The Navy.

The work of the navy department and its present condition are fully exhibited in the report of the secretary. The construction of vessels for our new navy has been energetically prosecuted by the present administration upon the general lines previously adopted, the department having seen no necessity for radical change in prior methods, under which the work was found to be progressing in a manner highly satisfactory. It has been decided, however, to provide in every shipbuilding contract that the builder should pay all trial expenses, and it has also been determined to pay no premiums in future contracts. The premiums recently earned and some yet to be decided are features of the contracts made before this conclusion was reached.

On March 4, 1893, there were in commission but two armored vessels, the double-turreted monitors Miantonomah and Monterey. Since that date, of vessels heretofore authorized, there have been placed in their first commission three first-class and two second-class battleships, two armored cruisers, one harbor defense ram and five double-turreted monitors, including the Maine and the Puritan, just completed. Eight new armored cruisers and two new gunboats have also been commissioned. The Iowa, another battle ship, will be completed about March 1, and at least four more gunboats will be ready for sea in the early spring.

Equal to the Best.

It is gratifying to state that our ships and their outfits are believed to be equal to the best that can be manufactured anywhere, and that such notable reductions have been made in their cost as to justify the statement that quite a number of vessels are now being constructed at rates as low as those that prevail in European shipyards.

There have been authorized by congress since March, 1893, five battle ships, six light-draft gunboats, 16 torpedo boats and one submarine torpedo boat. Contracts for three of all of them have been let. The secretary expresses the opinion that we have for the present a sufficient supply of cruisers and gunboats, and that hereafter the construction of battle ships and torpedo boats will supply our needs.

The Naval Militia.

The naval militia, which was authorized a few years ago as an experiment, has now developed into a body of enterprising young men, active and energetic in the discharge of their duties and promising great usefulness. This establishment has nearly the same relation to our navy as the national guard in the different states bears to our army, and it constitutes a source of supply for our naval forces, the importance of which is immediately apparent.

Department of the Interior.

The report of the secretary of the interior presents a comprehensive and interesting exhibit of the numerous and important affairs committed to his supervision. It is impossible in this communication to do more than briefly refer to a few of the subjects concerning which the secretary gives full and instructive information.

The money appropriated on account of this department and for its disbursement for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, amounted to more than $157,000,000, or a greater sum than was appropriated for the entire maintenance of the government for the two fiscal years ended June 30, 1861.

The Public Domain.

Our public lands, originally amounting to 1,840,000,000 acres, have been so reduced that only about 600,000,000 acres still remain in government control, excluding Alaska. The balance, being by far the most valuable portion, has been given away to settlers, to new states, and to railroads, or sold at a comparatively nominal sum. The patenting of lands in execution of railroad grants has progressed rapidly during the year, and since the 4th day of March, 1893, about 25,000,000 acres have thus been conveyed to these corporations.

Care Recommended.

I agree with the secretary that the remainder of our public lands should be more carefully dealt with and their alienation guarded by better economy and greater prudence.

The commission appointed from the membership of the national academy of sciences, provided for by an act of congress to formulate plans for a national forestry system, will, it is hoped, soon be prepared to present the result of thorough and intelligent examination of this important subject.

The Indians.

The total Indian population of the United States is 177,235, according to a census made in 1895, exclusive of those within the state of New York and those comprising the five civilized tribes. Of this number there are approximately 38,000 children of school age. During the year 23,393 of these were enrolled in schools. The progress which has attended recent efforts to extend Indian school facilities and the anticipation of continued liberal appropriations to that end, cannot fail to afford the utmost satisfaction to those who believe that the education of Indian children is a prime factor in the accomplishment of Indian civilization.

Conditions Improved.

It may be said in general terms, that in every particular the improvement of the Indians under government has been most marked and encouraging. The secretary, the commissioner of Indian affairs and the agents having charge of Indians to whom allotments have been made strongly urge the passage of a law prohibiting the sale of liquor to allottees who have taken their lands in severalty. I earnestly join in this recommendation.

Allotment of Lands.

A commission organized and empowered under several recent laws is now negotiating with these Indians for the relinquishment of their courts and the division of their common lands in severalty and are aiding in the settlement of the troublesome question of tribal membership. The reception of their first proffers of negotiation were not encouraging, but through patience and such conduct on their part as demonstrated that their intentions were friendly and in the interest of the tribes the prospect of success has become more promising. The effort should be to save these Indians from the consequences of their own mistakes and improvidence and to secure to the real Indian his rights as against intruders and professed friends who profit by his retrogression.

I indorse the recommendation made by the present secretary of the interior as well as his predecessor that a permanent commission consisting of three members, one of whom shall be an army officer, be created to perform the duties now devolving upon the commissioner and assistant commissioner of Indian affairs. The management of the bureau involves such numerous and diverse details and the advantages of an uninterrupted policy are so apparent that I hope the change suggested will meet the approval of the congress.

Pensions.

The diminution of our enormous pension roll and the decrease of pension expenditure which have been so often confidently foretold, still fail in material realization. The number of pensioners on the rolls at the close of the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, was 970,678. This is the largest number ever reported. The amount paid exclusively for the pensions during the year was $138,214,761.94, a slight decrease from that of the preceding year, while the total expenditures on account of pensions, including the cost of maintaining the department and expenses attending pension distribution amounted to $142,206,550.59, or within a very small fraction of one-third of the entire expense of supporting the government during the same year. The number of new pension certificates issued was 90,640. Of these, 40,374 represent original allowances of claims and 15,876 increase of existing pensions. The number of persons receiving pensions from the United States, but residing in foreign countries, at the close of the last fiscal year was 3,781, and the amount paid to them during the year was $582,735.58.

Abuses Are Demoralizing.

In my opinion, based upon such statements as these and much other information and observation, the abuses which have been allowed to creep into our pension system have done incalculable harm in demoralizing our people and undermining good citizenship. I have endeavored within my sphere of official duty to protect our pension roll and make it what it should be, a roll of honor, containing the names of those disabled in their country's service and worthy of their country's affectionate remembrance.

The Pacific Railroads.

The secretary calls attention to the public interests involved in an adjustment of the obligations of the Pacific railroads to the government. I deem it to be an important duty to especially present this subject to the consideration of the congress. On January 1, 1897, with the amount already matured, more than $13,000,000 of the principal of the subsidy bonds issued by the United States in aid of the construction of the Union Pacific railway, including its Kansas line, and more than $6,000,000 of like bonds issued in aid of the Central Pacific railroad, including those issued to the Western Pacific Railroad company, will have fallen due and been paid or must on that day be paid by the government. Without any reference to the application of the sinking fund now in the treasury, this will create such a default on the part of these companies to the government as will give it the right to at once institute proceedings to foreclose its mortgage lien. In addition to this indebtedness, which will be due January 1, 1897, there will mature between that date and January 1, 1899, the remaining principal of such subsidy bonds, which must also be met by the government. These amount to more than $20,000,000 on account of the Union Pacific lines, and exceed $21,000,000 on account of the Central Pacific lines. The situation of these roads and the condition of their indebtedness to the government have been fully set forth in the reports of various committees to the present and prior congresses; and as early as 1887 they were thoroughly examined by a special commission appointed pursuant to an act of congress. The considerations requiring an adjustment of the government's relations to the companies have been clearly presented and the conclusion reached with practical uniformity, that if these relations are not terminated they should be revised upon a basis securing their safe continuance.

Must Take Action.

In the case of the Union Pacific company, however, the situation has become especially and immediately urgent. Proceedings have been instituted to foreclose a first mortgage upon those aided parts of the main lines upon which the government holds a second and subordinate mortgage lien. In consequence of those proceedings and increasing complications, added to the default occurring on the 1st day of January, 1897, a condition will be presented at that date, so far as this company is concerned, that must emphasize the mandate of the act of 1887 and drive to executive duty under its provisions a more imperative aspect. Therefore, unless congress shall otherwise direct or shall have previously determined upon a different solution of the problem, there will hardly appear to exist any reason for delaying beyond the date of the default above mentioned such executive action as will promise to subserve the public interests and save the government from the loss threatened by further inaction.

Department of Agriculture.

The department of agriculture is so intimately related to the welfare of our people and the prosperity of our nation that it should constantly receive the care and encouragement of the government. From small beginnings it has grown to be the center of agricultural intelligence and the source of aid and encouragement to agricultural efforts. Large sums of money are annually appropriated for the maintenance of this department, and it must be confessed that the legislation relating to it has not always been directly in the interest of practical farming or properly guarded against waste and extravagance. So far, however, the public money has been appropriated fairly and sensibly to help those who actually till the soil, no expenditure has been more profitably made or more generally approved by the people.

Shows a Great Saving.

From the report of the secretary it appears that through careful and prudent financial management he has annually saved a large sum from his appropriations, aggregating during his incumbency and up to the close of the present fiscal year nearly one-fifth of the entire amount appropriated. These results have been accomplished by a conscientious study of the real needs of the farmer and such a regard for economy as the genuine farmer ought to appreciate, supplemented by a rigid adherence to civil service methods in department which should be conducted in the interest of agriculture instead of partisan politics.

Value of Farm Products.

The secretary reports that the value of our exports of farm products during the last fiscal year amounted to $570,000,000, an increase of $17,000,000 over those of the year immediately preceding. This statement is not the less welcome because of the fact that, notwithstanding such increase, the proportion of exported agricultural products to our total exports of all descriptions fell off during the year. The benefits of an increase in agricultural exports being assured, the decrease in its proportion to our total exports is the more gratifying when we consider that it is owing to the fact that such total exports for the year increased more than $75,000,000.

Opposed to Free Seeds.

In my opinion the gratuitous distribution of seeds by the department as at present conducted ought to be discontinued. No one can read the statement of the secretary on this subject and doubt the extravagance and questionable results of this practice.

The Civil Service.

The progress made in civil service reform furnishes a cause for the utmost congratulations. It has survived the doubts of its friends as well as the rancor of its enemies, and has gained a permanent place among the agencies destined to cleanse our politics and to improve, economize and elevate the public service. There are now in the competitive classified service upward of 84,000 places. More than half of those have been included from time to time since March 4, 1893. A most radical and sweeping extension was made by executive order dated the 6th day of May, 1896. And if fourth-class postmasterships are not included in the statement, it may be said that practically all positions contemplated by the civil-service law are not classified. Abundant reasons exist for including these postmasterships, based upon economy, improved service and the peace and quiet of neighborhoods. If, however, obstacles prevent such action at present, I earnestly hope that congress will, without increasing post office appropriations, so adjust them as to permit in proper cases a consolidation of these post offices, to the end that through this process the result desired may to a limited extent be accomplished.

Must Not Be Offensive Partisans.

The civil service rules, as amended during the last year, provide for a sensible and uniform method of promotion, basing eligibility to better positions upon demonstrated efficiency and faithfulness. The absence of fixed rules on this subject has been an infirmity in the system more and more apparent as its other benefits have been better appreciated. The advantages of civil service methods in their business aspects are too well understood to require argument. Their application has become a necessity to the executive work of the government. But those who gain positions through the operation of these methods should be made to understand that the nonpartisan scheme through which they receive their appointments demands from them, by way of reciprocity, nonpartisan and faithful performance of duty under every administration and cheerful fidelity to every chief. While they should be encouraged to decently exercise their rights of citizenship and to support through their suffrages the political beliefs they honestly profess, the noisy, pestilent and partisan employe who loves political turmoil and contention, or who renders lax and grudging service to the administration not representing his political views, should be promptly and fearlessly dealt with in such a way as to furnish a warning to others who may be likewise disposed.

Interstate Commerce.

The interstate commerce commission has during the last year supplied abundant evidence of its usefulness and the importance of the work committed to its charge. Public transportation is a universal necessity, and the question of just and reasonable charges therefor has become of vital importance, not only to shippers and carriers, but also to the vast multitude of producers and consumers. The justice and equity of the principles embodied in the existing law passed for the purpose of regulating these charges are everywhere conceded, and there appears to be no question that the policy thus entered upon has a permanent place in our legislation.

Operations of the Tariff Law.

I desire to recur to the statements elsewhere made concerning the government's receipts and expenditures for the purpose of venturing upon some suggestions touching our present tariff law and its operation. This statute took effect on the 28th day of August, 1894. Whatever may be its shortcomings as a complete measure of tariff reform, it must be conceded that it has opened the way to a freer and greater exchange of commodities between us and other countries and thus furnished a wider market for our products and manufacturing.

The only entire fiscal year during which this law has been in force ended on the 30th day of June, 1896. In that year our imports increased over those of the previous year more than $6,500,000, while the value of the domestic products we exported and which found markets abroad, was nearly $70,000,000 more than during the preceding year.

Cannot Justly Be Condemned.

Those who insist that the cost to our people of articles coming to them from abroad for their needful use should only be increased through tariff charges to an extent necessary to meet the expenses of the government, as well as those who claim that tariff charges may be laid upon such articles beyond the necessities of government revenue, and with the additional purpose of so increasing their price in our markets as to give American manufacturers and producers better and more profitable opportunities, must agree that our tariff laws are only primarily justified as sources of revenue to enable the government to meet the necessary expenses of its maintenance. Considered as to its sufficiency in this aspect, the present law can by no means fall under just condemnation. During the only complete fiscal year of its operation it has yielded nearly $8,000,000 more revenue than was received from tariff duties in the preceding year. There was, nevertheless, a deficit between our receipts and expenditures of a little more than $25,000,000. This, however, was not unexpected.

Depression Not Due to the Law.

The situation was such in December, seven months before the close of the fiscal year, that the secretary of the treasury foretold a deficiency of $17,000,000. The great and increasing apprehension and timidity in business circles, and the depression in all activities intervening since that time, resulting from causes perfectly well understood and entirely disconnected with our tariff law or its operation, seriously checked the imports we would have otherwise received and readily account for the difference between this estimate of the secretary and the actual deficiency, as well as for a continued deficiency. Indeed, it must be confessed that we could hardly have had a more unfavorable period than the last two years for the collection of tariff revenue.

Believes It Will Prove a Success.

We cannot reasonably hope that our recuperation from this business depression will be sudden, but it has already set in with a promise of acceleration and continuance. I believe our present tariff law, if allowed a fair opportunity, will in the near future yield a revenue which, with reasonably economical expenditures, will overcome all deficiencies. In the meantime, no deficit that has occurred or may occur need excite or disturb us.

Use of the Reserve Lawful.

To meet any such deficit we have in the treasury, in addition to a gold reserve of $100,000,000, a surplus of more than $128,000,000 applicable to the payment of the expenses of the government, and which must, unless it is kept intact, remain a useless hoard, or, if not extravagantly wasted, must in any event be perverted from the purpose of its exaction from our people. The payment, therefore, of any deficiency in the revenue from this fund is nothing more than its proper and legitimate use.

Vices of Our Financial System.

The reference to the condition and prospects of our revenues naturally suggests an allusion to the weakness and vices of our financial methods. They have been frequently presented upon the attention of congress in previous executive communications and the inevitable danger of their continued toleration pointed out. Without now repeating any of these details, I cannot refrain from again earnestly presenting the necessity of such reform to secure to this system opposed to every rule of sound finance and shown by experience to be fraught with the gravest peril and perplexity.

The Greenback Should Go.

I am more convinced than ever that we can have no assured financial peace and safety until the government currency obligations upon which gold may be demanded from the treasury are withdrawn from circulation and canceled. This might be done, as has been heretofore recommended, by their exchange for long-term bonds bearing a low rate of interest or by their redemption with the proceeds of such bonds.

Even if only United States notes known as greenbacks were thus retired, it is probable that the treasury notes issued in payment of silver purchases under the act of July 14, 1890, now paid in gold when demanded, would not create much disturbance, as they might from time to time when received in the treasury by redemption in gold or otherwise be gradually and prudently replaced by silver coin.

Most Effective Path to Reform.

The plan of issuing bonds for the purpose of redemption certainly appears to be the most effective and direct path to the needed reform.

In default of this, however, it would be a step in the right direction if currency obligations redeemable in gold, whenever so redeemed, should be canceled instead of being reissued. This operation would be a slow remedy, but it would improve present conditions.

National banks should redeem their own notes. They should be allowed to issue circulation to the par value of bonds deposited as security for its redemption, and the tax on their circulation should be reduced to one-fourth of one per cent.

Real Source of Danger.

In considering projects for the retirement of United States notes and treasury notes issued under the law of 1890, I am of the opinion that we have placed too much stress upon the danger of contracting the currency and have calculated too little upon the gold that would be added to our circulation if invited to us by better and safer financial methods

Must Abandon Banking Business.

The entire case may be presented by the statement that the day of sensible and sound financial method will not dawn upon us until our government abandons the banking business and the accumulation of funds and confines its monetary operations to the receipt of the money contributed by the people for its support and to the expenditure of such money for the people's benefit.

Hot Shot for Trusts.

Another topic in which our people rightfully take a deep interest may be here briefly considered. I refer to the existence of trusts and other huge aggregations of capital, the object of which is to secure the monopoly of some particular branch of trade, industry or commerce, and so stifle wholesome competition. When these are defended, it is usually on the ground that though they increase profits, they also reduce prices, and thus may benefit the public. It must be remembered, however, that a reduction of prices to the people is not one of the real objects of these organizations, nor is their tendency necessarily in that direction. If it results as a particular case, it is only because it accords with the purpose or interests of those managing the scheme. Such occasional results fall far short of compensating the palpable evils charged to the account of trusts and monopolies.

Laws Inefficient for Their Control.

To the instinctive belief that such is the inevitable trend of trusts and monopolies is due the widespread and deep-seated popular aversion in which they are held and the not unreasonable insistence that, whatever may be their incidental economic advantages, their general effect upon personal character, prospects and usefulness cannot be otherwise than injurious. Though congress has attempted to deal with the matter by legislation the laws passed for that purpose thus far have proved ineffective, not because of any lack of disposition or attempt to enforce them, but simply because the laws themselves as interpreted by the courts do not reach the difficulty. If the insufficiencies of existing laws can be remedied by further legislation it should be done.

States Should Take Effective Action.

It should be recognized, however, that all federal legislation on this subject may fall short of its purpose because of inherent obstacles and also because of the complex character of our governmental system, which, while making the federal authority supreme within its sphere, has carefully limited that sphere by bounds which cannot be transgressed. The decision of our highest court on this precise question renders it quite doubtful whether the evils of trusts and monopolies can be adequately treated through federal action, unless they seek directly and purposely to include in their objects transportation or intercourse between states or between the United States and foreign countries. It does not follow, however, that this is the limit of the remedy that may be applied. Even though it may be found that federal authority is not broad enough to fully reach the case, there can be no doubt of the power of the several states to act effectively in the premises.

A Plea for Rigid Economy.

In concluding this communication, its last words shall be an appeal to the congress for the most rigid economy in the expenditure of the money it holds in trust for the people. The way to perplexing extravagance is easy, but a return to frugality is difficult. When, however, it is considered that those who bear the burdens of taxation have no guarantee of honest care save in the fidelity of their public servants, the duty of all possible retrenchment is plainly manifest.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

GROUND FOR CONFIDENCE.

Decline in Business Failures Regarded as a Hopeful Sign.

New York, Dec. 5.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"The classified failures for November, given to-day, show a gratifying reduction compared with October, and are especially important as showing that the pecuniar disturbance during the presidential campaign, which swelled failures $36,000,000 in August and September, did not prevent quick return to a monthly aggregate scarcely greater than that of May. Defaulted liabilities in 11 months have been $198,758,459, against $148,544,202 last year, the increase being only $14,000,000 outside of those two months, and this remaining increase of only 10 per cent. was also due in part to the alarm during the campaign. The decline of failures to about 40 per cent. of the September aggregate gives stronger ground for the confidence so generally expressed. Failures for the week have been 279 in the United States, against 324 last year, and in Canada 55, against 52 last year.

"Ground for confidence is also found in the abandonment of two of the largest combinations by which the iron industry has been retarded and the possibility that two others will be abandoned. Such a state of things within a month after the election suggests that these organizations, formed when depressed business failed to support all the works in existence, are not expected to survive a general revival and ample demand for products. The immediate effect of breaking prices is to check buying of iron and steel products, but it will soon be seen about where prices are to range. At present the base price for wire nails is $1.25, against $2.55 two weeks ago, with greater reduction on small sizes, because new cards reduced "extra" charges. Beams are selling at $1.35, against $1.55 two weeks ago, and there are sales of billets below the fixed price. The bar combination is still undersold by steel bars at 1.1 cents, and nothing is doing in rails, because the meeting shortly to be held will settle whether any price shall be fixed for the next year. Bessemer pig at Pittsburgh is lower, at $11.65, and gray forge at $10, but there is large demand for vessel pig, both on foreign contracts and for the lakes. Several thousand cars have been ordered and numerous new buildings and bridges.

"The volume of business shown by clearing house returns was for the past week nearly 1 per cent. over last year, and for the month of November 3 per cent., and 11 per cent. less than 1892, the comparison being the best for the past five months."

BAYARD STOPS IT.

Asks That the Raising of Funds for a Gift to Him Cease.

London, Dec. 7.—Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, the American ambassador, has written a letter to the Daily Telegraph anent that journal's proposal to take up a public subscription for the purpose of purchasing him a national Christmas gift as a token of the esteem of the British people. The letter, which is dated December 5, says, in part:

"Early this morning I telegraphed you not to proceed further with your kind and generous proposal for a testimonial to me from the people of this country in token of their appreciation of my efforts to establish between the two great English-speaking countries relations of harmony and good will." Mr. Bayard then proceeds to say that he was touched and gratified by the proposal and the Telegraph's generous eulogy of him, but that a few hours' reflection showed him that, holding his present office and invested with its discretion and duties, he should scrupulously obey the spirit of his country's law, which inhibits anyone holding an office of trust or profit under the American government from accepting, "without the consent of congress, any present from any king, prince or government." He further says: "While I live I shall not cease to thank the people of these islands for the whole-hearted, unstinted welcome I have received at their hands and the warm hospitalities that have been showered on me and mine."

The Telegraph in a leader announces the withdrawal of its proposal. It says there is no need to inquire whether any high official authority influenced Mr. Bayard to decline the proposed gift. The reception of the proposal has shown how sincere is the good will of the English nation towards him.

IMMENSE STEEL MILLS.

Plant to Cost $10,000,000 to Be Erected Near Chicago.

Chicago, Dec. 7.—The actual purchasers recently of a large tract of land in the Calumet river region of South Chicago and the ultimate purpose to which the property will be put has leaked out. The Standard Oil company and the Rockefellers bought $500,000 worth of real estate from the Calumet Canal & Dock company, embracing 3,600 feet of dockage along Lake Michigan, the Calumet river and slip at the mouth of the river. Upon this land the Rockefeller interests will build the largest steel plant in the country, including blast furnaces, steel rail mills and mills for the manufacture of structural iron. The total cost of the plant will be $10,000,000. This new enterprise will bring the Standard Oil company into direct competition with the Carnegies. The Rickefellers already own great ranges of iron mines in the Lake Superior region and a fleet of steel steamers which will carry the ore to the Calumet river. This fleet is to be increased next season. Building operations are to commence early next year.

TWO MEN LYNCHED.

Murderers of Mrs. Winner and Her Babes Executed by a Mob.

Lexington, Mo., Dec. 7.—At about one o'clock this morning a mob of Ray county farmers broke into the county jail here, secured Jesse Winner and James Nelson, held for the murder of Mrs. Winner and her two babes, and lynched them. The crime was committed six weeks ago. Suspicion attached to the husband as the murderer and he was arrested. Saturday Maggie Catron, a woman with whom Winner was intimate, made the following confession: "On the night of the murder Jesse Winner, Con Leckey and Jim Nelson took a buggy belonging to Mr. Hubbell, and drove to the Winner home. Lackey held the horse while Winner killed his wife and Nelson killed the children."

A Retaliatory Measure.

Washington, Dec. 4.—The president has issued a proclamation suspending after January next the operations of the act which relieves German vessels entering United States ports from the payment of tonnage dues and other shipping charges. This action was taken upon proof that American vessels are denied corresponding privileges in German ports. The shipping charges under our laws are based on a sliding scale. The president's action doubtless will arouse widespread interest in shipping circles. The president's proclamation will go into effect the morning of January 3, after which date the vessels of Germany entering our ports must pay shipping charges ranging on a sliding scale of from six to thirty cents per ton per annum.

Gold Contracts Still Good.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 5.—The state senate, by a vote of 21 to 15, rejected a bill introduced by Senator Culver to declare null and void all obligations and contracts which may be made payable in any specific character of money, whether the same be coin or otherwise, so far as the general assembly is concerned; therefore gold contracts may still be made in Georgia.

HER CURIOSITY WAS SATISFIED.

Met the Man Who Had Been Solicitous for Her.

A Vienna paper relates an amusing incident which occurred to a great lady who had just recovered from a long and severe illness. Seated in her boudoir she was looking over the cards of condolence that had been left for her while ill. Among the names of counts, barons and other aristocratic sympathizers emblazoned with coronets and coats of arms, she came across a simple card with the plain inscription: "Hermann Berger."

In vain the lady asked who Hermann Berger was. None of her servants could give her any other information than that the individual was a remarkably handsome young man. The lady's curiosity became excited and she gave orders to admit the stranger if he should call again.

The order was punctually obeyed, and on the following day she received a really charming young man, dressed in the most exquisite style, who evidently appeared greatly embarrassed at the honor of a tete-a-tete with the still brilliant though somewhat faded beauty.

"I can hardly find words," said the lady, with a blush, "to thank you for the sympathy which you have manifested for a stranger."

"I beg your pardon, gracious lady," stammered the dandy, "but I am the agent for Messrs. A. B., the undertakers!"

THE USEFUL WASP.

A Swarm of Them Kill Four Hundred to Five Hundred Flies in Twenty Minutes.

By common agreement the wasp is accepted as emblematical of irritability and petty malignity; but even this much-abused hymenopterous insect plays a beneficial part in the work of nature.

A number of wasps were seen by Mr. R. M. Barrington, an Irish naturalist, buzzing about his cows. Closer inspection revealed that they were all busy catching flies, and pouncing with the rapidity of hawks after birds on the flies as they tried to settle or rest on some favorite part of the cow. One white cow drew more wasps than any of the others, because the moment a fly alighted it was seen at once against the skin. When a wasp catches a fly it immediately bites off both wings, sometimes a leg or two, and occasionally the head.

Mr. Barrington saw some of the wasps when laden with one fly catch another, without letting go the first, and then fly away with both. There was a constant stream of wasps carrying away flies, probably to feed the larvae in their nests, and returning again to the cows to catch more. In about 20 minutes Mr. Barrington estimated that between 300 and 400 flies were caught on two cows lying close to where he stood. Perhaps this narrative of good deeds accomplished will lead people to think more leniently of the vices of the wasp.

A LIBERAL-MINDED LOSER.

His Experience Was Expensive and He Didn't Have the Fun.

"What is that big book in the corner?" said the young man who had called at young Mr. Easylad's apartments, says the Detroit Free Press.

"That's my scrap book."

"Full of pictures and poetry and stuff, I suppose?"

"No. Souvenirs. Take a look into it."

Lifting the ponderous volume to a table the visitor opened it and exclaimed: "Why, this looks like a collection of lottery tickets."

"That shows you never played the races. They're tickets that the bookmakers gave me in exchange for a liberal percentage of my income. They're certificates of stock in enterprises that never declared a dividend. They're receipts for a liberal fee in a long course of tuition in the school of experience."

"Most people tear up things like these, do they not?"

"Yes. But I saved them. I wanted them to remind me of the good times I paid for and never had. They represent experiences that belong to the poetic past and which will never be repeated."

"You mean that you are going to stay away from the race track hereafter?"

"Yes."

"That shows your good sense. It costs a lot of money in the end."

"I don't begrudge the money so much. It wasn't my cupidity that rebelled. It was my pride."

Germans Posing as Cornishmen.

A curious accusation of German imitation of British goods comes from the Transvaal. Cornish miners are in great demand in the gold fields on account of their skill, and receive higher wages than others. It is asserted that Germans there assume Cornish names and imitate the Cornish accent well enough to pass themselves off for the original article.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. Through California Service Via "The Milwaukee."

A fine Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car now leaves Minneapolis at 8:25 and St. Paul at 8:35 every Saturday morning and runs through to Los Angeles, Cal., via Kansas City and the Santa Fe System, without change, arriving destination 1:25 P. M. following Wednesday.

The journey, via this route, is through a very interesting portion of America, and the hardship incident to winter travel through the more northerly climate is avoided.

Rate per double berth $6.00 through. For berth reservations, further information as to rates, etc., apply to "The Milwaukee" agents, or address J. T. Conley, Asst. Gen'l. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

HOW TO GET UP A "CENTURY" CLUB.

And Secure the Reading of the Greatest of Four Dollar Magazines for One Dollar.

Everybody wants to take The Century during the coming year on account of its serials, "Campaigning with Grant," written by Grant's friend and staff officer, Gen. Horace Porter, and the novel of the American revolution, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," in which Washington is one of the characters. The Century costs $4.00 a year, and many people are clubbing together in groups of four, each one securing the reading of the magazine one week in the month.

If you want The Century in 1897 (and who does not?) a little work among your friends will result in finding three others who want it too. Get one dollar from each of them, and send $4.00 to The Century Company, Union square, New York, for a year's subscription. Begin with December, and the publishers will send you the November number free, in which these serials begin. There are many dollar magazines, but there is nothing like The Century, and by this arrangement it will cost you no more than a cheap magazine.

Young Medical Student (to charity patient)—"I think you must have a—a—some kind of a—a fever, but our class has only gone as far as convulsions. I'll come in a week when we get to fevers."

Low Rates for Homeseekers.

On the first and third Tuesday of each month, tickets will be sold to Homeseekers in the northwest at greatly reduced rates to visit Virginia and the Carolinas. Special low rates both one way and round trip. See that your tickets read over the Big Four and Chesapeake and Ohio Ry. Send for free pamphlet descriptive of the farm lands, climate, markets, etc. U. Home-Seekers' Excursions Via "The Milwaukee."

On December 1st and December 15th, the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway will sell Home-seekers' tickets to points in the South, Southeast and Southwest, at half fare for the round trip. For complete information address J. T. Conley, Ass't. Gen'l. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

Constipation

is a disease which afflicts over 75 per cent. of the American people. It is a dangerous disease because it not only poisons the blood but causes heaviness, oppression, and dulls the intellect. Then follow chronic headache, loss of appetite, slow digestion, nervousness, bad breath, dingy complexion and low spirits. It will eventually bring on liver and kidney disease in some incurable form. But sufferers from this dreaded malady are speedily

Cured by

Warner's SAFE Cure and Warner's SAFE Pills. Leading physicians the world over, have acknowledged this fact, and thousands of people throughout the land have testified to it.

Warner's

SAFE Cure puts a stop to backaches, headaches, constipation, loss of appetite, dyspepsia, tired feelings and sleeplessness. It builds up the exhausted system. It is a sure cure for liver and kidney complaint in any form, and the only remedy that has ever been able to cure Bright's disease.

If you are feeling the need of such a remedy, you cannot do better than try this king of remedies, the great

Safe Cure

What a wonder it is that some women are so heedless about the things that concern them most. They endure all sorts of pain and misery with carelessness which would never be possible if they realized the consequences.

Comparatively few women understand that when they neglect their health because they are too busy or overworked or their minds are taken up with other concerns, that they are balancing on the edge of a fatal precipice.

Any weakness or disease of woman's special organism is no trifling matter. A woman who through indifference neglects these troubles is laying the foundation for life-long wretchedness.

A modest woman naturally recoils from the mortifying ordeal of examinations and local treatment which doctors insist upon. But there is no necessity for any such repugnant alternative. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures these delicate complaints positively and completely. It is a medicine devised for this particular purpose by one of the most eminent of living specialists in woman's diseases.

Dr. Pierce has been for nearly 30 years chief consulting physician of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. During this time he has received fully ninety thousand letters from women who have been cured by the Favorite Prescription. Some of these letters are printed by permission in one chapter of Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It contains advice and suggestions for self-treatment which every woman ought to read. More than half a million copies have been sold at $1.50 each. An absolutely free edition in paper covers will be sent for a limited time to anyone sending 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For a handsome cloth-bound copy send 31 stamps.

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, DEC. 11, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Fairday tomorrow.

—The sun is out every day.

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Two more weeks is Christmas.

—Sleighing has been spoilt by old Sol.

—F. F. Farber is on the sick list this week.

—The Editor went to Buffalo this morning.

—There are more wagons in town of late than usual.

—A large factory of some kind would not hurt this town.

—The town pump is a little lame it works on one side only.

—Delano has two good bands, opposition is the life of trade.

—Don't forget the Literary Society Tuesday night, at the City Hall.

—A a good time is expected at Mrs. Wharton's next Thursday evening.

—Read our clubbing offer, and select some good family reading for the long winter nights.

—Business must be inproving, we have another confectionary store in town, making five in all.

—The Band received apples as a treat while practicing in Behn's barber shop, from a prominent citizen.

—The M. E. church at Armstrong, will give a New Year's dinner, from 11 to 3, at the Town Hall in Armstrong on Friday, Jan. 1. Tickets 25 cts. Everybody invited. Drive round and get a good dinner.

—The Ladies aid of the Presbyterian church will have a 10 cent social at Mrs. Wharton's Thursday evening, Dec. 17. At the social the ornamental and useful fancy work will be disposed of. All are invited to attend.

—Several of our citizens had business t Buffalo this week. More will wish they had when they come out to vote at the spring elections and find they can't do so until they have had their second papers for three months.

—The M. E. Quarterly conferance will be held at the church on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Presiding Elder Chaffee will be present. He will go to Rockford and preach Sunday morning and in Delano Sunday evening. Come out if you want to hear a good sermon.

—Archbishop Ireland says it requires from $4000 to $5000 a year to run a saloon successfully under the present system. Delano has seven of them. Seven times $5000 is $35000. And there are men in town who claim we must have saloons to help run the town; and all the town gets is $3500, just one tenth of the amount spent on that, not only no good but a pasitive harm to most people who drink it.

—We would again respectfully call the attention of the Eagle to the fact that she did us an injustice by intimating that we did not speak truthfully when we said the main argument of the then Mayor for buying the costly watering fountain, now so snugly housed for the winter, was, that it was non-freezable, and that it would furnish a watering place the year roun. If the Eagle desires to keep her reputation up to where she had succeeded in getting it by contiuually inserting in her local columns that, if you see it in the Eagle it is so, she must correct this statment. We don't propose to stand still and allow the Old Bird to print such stuff unnoticed.

—Several fine loads of pork passed through town this week on their way to Minneapolis, probably most of the cash received is expended with City merchants. Our local buyers and home merchants should see to it that their bargains are as good, and as well understood by advertising, as are the markets of Minneapolis. Our farmers who favor home trade should begin to sell and buy at home far as possible. Occasionally we hear of some one driving to the city and selling their load for less than they had been offered in Delano. And some people have been known to expend all they got for their produce, in the city for a lot of stuff they had no use for; or to have paid more for what they did need than they could have bought at home for.

—The Catholic church was crowded Monday morning at confirmation exercises. Archbishop Ireland preached a splendid sermon to thoes about to be confirmed. He desired that all should promise to pray, morning and evening. If family prayers could be had in the evening it would be better. All should go to mass every Sunday. It is a mortal sin to remain away without an excuse. All should obey their parents; even grown up children, should take advice of the parents God has placed over them.

To the boys especially he would say don't sweat nor cuss. And don't frequent saloons. Keep out of them. And to larger grown up boys he would say, you would be astonished if you keep count how much wheat you drink up. Some drink not only their wheat but their whole farm, houses, barns and all. By this I mean they get into debt and loose it all. If you wan't to spend a quarter or so in a saloon give it to your wife instead. I will do my duty, and if any Catholic is found in a saloon just remember your Bishop told you not to go there. 167 persons received the sacrament of confirmation.

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—R. M. Bohn has had a porch built onto the front of his residence this week, T. S. Kerr was boss carpenter.

—There is to be a leapyear dance at the hall tonight. Some of the girls are thinking of two fellows. A large time is expected.

—The snow has disappeared just enough to spoil sleighing; and once more the rattle of wheels superceebes the jingle of the merry sleighbells.

—There is just enough snow to spoil skatiug. If the boys were very enterprising, with the fine opportunity on the river they could soon flood enough surface which would freeze the first cold night and make their park first class.

—John B. Plattner discovered a couple of weeks ago that someone had effected an entrance to the upper room of his store, through the skylight and extracted therefrom some clothing, hats, etc, etc. The first he knew of it was his neighbor Frank Schaffer brought in a hat found in the rear of the store. On examination John pronounced it his, and began to look about for the absence of other things.

Personal.

P. H. Greear visited Howard Lake Thursday.

Mrs. Hawker visited in Minneapolis the first of the week.

O. Styner, of Armstrong, was a Delano visitor Tuesday.

Dr. and Mrs. Shrader, of Watertown were in town Tuesday.

D. R. Thompson and family, of Rockford, drove over Tuesday.

Jenner Chance was in town on business the fore part of the week.

Attorneys O'Hair and Lindsley, attended court at Buffalo this week.

Mrs. Hattie Astrop who has been west returned to Delano this week.

George Rogers, of St. Paul shook hands with old Delano friends Monday.

Dr. Catlin, and Prof. Wharton were among visitors to Buffalo Wednesday.

Mrs. Rosa Harris, nee Eppel, of St. Paul, visited Delano friends this week.

Sherman Stacy drove down, on business, from Montrose, Saturday evening.

Miss Allie Murphy, of Watertown visited relatives in Delano over Sunday.

Mr. Light was a few years ago a member of the Legesiature, from Carver County.

S. W. Levering, in the interest of the Masonic aid Ins. Co. was in town Thursday.

F. A. Barth drove over with Rev. Nugent, of Watertown, on Monday to attend confirmation services.

Elmer Erickson, Albert Peterson, Ole and Andrew Bockman have returned home from Dakota. They have blizzard tales to tell.

J. D. Young, Phil Martin, Darv Welker, Der. Dugan, George Goodrick, R. M. Walter, H. V. Wilder W. H. Frazee, and Duane Chapel were Delanoites interested in court matters this week at the County Seat.

County Cullings.

On Wednesday we drove to the County Seat. The sleighing was fine in the morning but old Sol did some work during the day leaving many bare spots on the road home in the evening.

Court was quite largely attended by people from all parts of the county. Judge Russel, of Minneapolis presided with ease and dignity. His rulings were prompt and decisive.

Sheriff Carpenter with deputies Wood, Hudek, Groves and Grant keep good order.

The busiest men on the job appeared to be Clerk Vorse and deputy Junkins. Lots of foreign born men were being naturalized, so that they may be able to vote at the next election.

The County Commissioners held a special session, Dec. 4. All present. School petitions were presented and date of hearing fixed for Dec. 20, Mary Moody: Chas Plath;

Application for abatement of taxes by Joseph McDonald, Rejected.

The usual grist of bills were ordered paid.

A final order was issued on county road changing the Minneapolis, St. Michaels and Buffalo County road.

A resolution was passed to receive bids for equipping the Court House with a steam heating plant, and that such bids be received up to and including the 30th day of Dec. 1896.

Anoka County is deriving considerable notoriety through the failure to elect a Sheriff, the vote being a tie. also on account of the location of the Fourth Insane Asylum at that place. Dakota county has sent Ignatius Donnelly to the Legislature this winter and of course we will hear more about these subjects later on.

The Post Office war is being waged for all it is worth all along the line. In Delano F. H. Lindsley, J. W. McDonald, W. H. Frazee and Frank Strauch are asyerants. At Monticello Henry Brasie, Fuller, Harwick and others are trying to knock the persons. Other towns have an equal number of people perfectly willing to aecept the position provided it is proffered. It would do away with lots of hardfeelings if the Post Masters were to be elected same as other officials are.

School Notes.

One of the scholars of the grammer department has been promoted to the labatory.

A member of the Natural Philosophy class received a shock from the electrical machine, the other day, when he least expected it.

Mr. Fred Farber has missed a week's school on account of sickness. We hope that he may soon be able to attend.

Delano Literary!

The third meeting of the Delano Literary Society was held at the City Hall, Friday evening, Febuary 5. Temporary President Jas. A. Wharton presided and Miss Alice Arnold was Temporary Secretary.

Miss Mollie Maxfield and Master Dell Jadwin recited. Miss Mable Young, the Eagle Quartette and Dr. Soper furnished the musical numbers.

President Wharton being on the debate called O. L. Billings to the chair. Mrs. M. J. Mullord, Mrs. W. M. Mowatt and Miss Annie R. Quinn were appointed judges. The question Resolved "That the world is growing worse," was discussed by Prof. Greear and Dr. Catlin, in the affermative and Prof. Wharton and Dr. Soper in the negative. President Wharton resumed the chair. Decission of judges two for affirmative, one for negative.

After three minutes recess, the report of the committee on Constitution and By-laws was read by Dr. Catlin; and after being amended so as to have the election of offices in the first week in December, March, June and September, was accepted and adopted.

The constitutional provision for election by ballot, was, on motion, suspended and tha election of officers resulted as follows:

PRESIDENT, T. J. Catlin.
VICE PRESIDENT, Mrs. J. L. Farber
SECRETARY, F. F. Farber,
TREASURER, Miss Annie Quinn.
MARSHAL, Jas. A. Wharton,
USHERS, F. A. Cramer and Guy Murphy.
EXICUTIVE COMMITTEE, President ex officio in Member. Mrs. J. L. Farber, C. J. Bucklty, John Steffes and James A. Wharton.

The meeting then adjourned to meet at the Hall on Tuesday evening; Dec. 15, at 7:30 P. M. Everybody welcome.

T. J. CATLIN,
Publisher and Proprietor.

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at the Post Office in Delano, Minn.

THE PATRIOTS BULLETIN, published at Chicago, by the Coin Publishing Co. is at hand. It advocates the cause of the New Order of the Ages. The Patriots of America. William H. Harvey is National Patron of the order.

THE most vigorous attempt of the tail to wag the dog, yet heard of, is the very strenious efforts of that little piece of Democracy that wagged itself around until it cut itself off just before election, now trying to conduct the Democratic party to a triumphal victory.

FINALLY it has been decided that the electoral vote of S. D. is for Bryan, and to let him have it. In case was there was the slightest chance of Mr. Mckinley needing it would Mark Hanna allow this? If the vote was cast for Mr. Bryan in the first place it belonged to him then as much as now.

READ "Thirty years in the U. S. Senate by Thomas H. Benton". If you think the gold standard people have not been playing old games on us during the last campaign. Mr. Benton's arguments against the U. S. Bank, many of them would make first class arguments against the moneyed powers of today and their schemes to run the government.

THE Annandale Post thinks the people have declared for tariff and ought to have it. It says: "Under such circumstances we should willingly abide by the result. If the principle of industriol protection be right we should have no fear of the result. If the doctrine is only a notion of mistaken theorists we stand ready to aid in changing our Governmental polcy if a fair trial of protection does not bring a reasonable degree of prosperity.

CUBAN sympathisers seem to be on the increase lately. Since the last report of the death of General Maceo, which for more than a week hasn't been denied, authentically, though many still entertain doubts, as he has before, been reported dead upon several occasions. The story though, that he was invited over the lines and while under the the flag of truce shot down, is what excites the sympathies of most patriotic people. For his physician, who is said to have been a party to his betrayal, no body seems to have anything but the most thorough disgust. And Gen. Weyler is about in the same boat although he denies the story of Gen. Maceo's having been invited over.

THE escape of the steamer "Three Friends" from the Florida cost a few days ago would look to people this distance from the coast, and unacquainted with naval affairs to be a funny piece of business. In other words it looks as if nobody tried very hard to prevent it; and if they did try that they must be in need of vessels, sailors, coal or some other thing. The idea of a little vessel loading up with munitions and men of war and striking out for Cuba and Uncle Sam's authorities unable to discover them until they had gone. Then the idea of firing pu two or three war vessels and waisting a lot of high priced coal, charging around over the high seas, pretending tobe trying to catch the poor little craft safely and quitely on its way to aid the cubans. But that's what we get from the paper.

THE assassin is detested of all men. He that would betray a friend to death: That would be instrumental in turning the body of his associate over to the enemy, is recognised only to be despised by everybody. If Dr. Maxims Zertucha did either poison, or betray into the hands of the Spaniards, for personal gain, or other purposes, the body of General Maceo, his ostricism by all men and nations is a fitting reward. If Gen. Weyler was a party to these proceedings his punishment should also be commensurate with the deed. But if newspaper correspondents or others are making these stories out of whole cloth. Are talking from immagination; are stabbing the reputations of these men in the dark, are they any better? People should at least have some grounds on which to stand when they assail the reputations of fellow being.

THE Minnesota Legislature will begin its regular session on Tuesday, Jan. 5. Then the fun will begin. After everybody has been elected or appointed to an office so far as possible, the business will begin to open up. Then will we see whether St. Paul is going on with the new capitol, or weather Kandiyohi County will take it away from the Saintly City. The workings of the bungling Commissions to locate a Fourth Insane Asylum will be aired up. Some of their doings will look simply awful, when the Sage of Niniger has been mixed with them just a little bit. Then there is some rearrangments of district lines necessary. Legislative and judicial lines will probably be changed some. The temperance people are to make a tremendious effort to get a local option law by counties through if possible. This will undoubtedly help open the floodgates of oratory. Then there are lots of other things to be looked after. Our Legislators can easily keep themselves out of mischief this winter by attending strictly to business.

Pretty, Hard, Mr. French.

The Monticello Times Says; "The County Canidates, as well as others have made a farce out of the election law which provides that an itemized statement of their Campaign expenses shall be furnished. No one preteuds to believe their sworn statements."

Now Mr. French, Isn't this rather a bad send off for you to give Wright County officials? The idea of Wright County having candidates for office, whose sworn statements of their Canpaign expences is belived by no one? And you have not allowed a single candidate on the County ticket, wheather elected or not, a hole to crawl out at. The idea of Wright County's officers not being believed on sworn statements, coming from you! But then if you don't believe their statements say so, but don't make it too general, unless you can prove it. It looks bad.

Burning Effigies is Wrong!

A few weeks ago we read of the burning of Gov. Altgeld, of Illinois, in some country town of that state. Some of the great newspapers of the country mentioned the fact without expressing the fact that it was wrong. Some claim Gov Altgeld is an anarchist, others say he is a nice man. We have no personal acquaintance with him, neither do we know the people of the village that was so thoughtless as to burn their Governor or any one else, in effigy. But if we were in search of material for anarchists we would surely hunt up the town that burns people in effigy. We would expect to find anarchists all ready trained.

Another town in a state further east is said to have burned General Weyler, in effigy, to arouse the patriotism of the people. The patriotism of a place must be fearfully fast asleep, or even dead beyond redemption, to call for such means. Think of patriots building a bonfire to consume an old suit of clothes stuffed with straw to representing an enemy! Wouldn't they be a pretty lot to depend on in the hour of need. Usually the very enemy himself, were he to appear in person, would, unaded and alone dispel the whole band of fiendish effigy burners. There is no patriotism in such proceedings.

Iniquitious Struck Jury Law.

Hunt up your Law Supplement for 1895, and read no. 87, and see for your self what you thiuk of the law. If either party desires a struck jury, a jury picked out by the Sheriff especially to try a certain case, he can have it, provided he will pay for it. If a rich company or corporation, or individual thinks he would fare better before such a jury he has a right to have one. If a poor man takes a notion to have a struck jury, what then? He can't have it. That's one of the differences between the rich and the poor. Why not extend this fine idea into all courts as well as into the particular instance of the struck jury? If a man is charged with crime why not say to him you can have a jury if you will pay the expences?

Would it make any difference to a jury who hired them and payed them for serving? How many juries of twelve men are there, that not one of their number would be sufficiently influenced by the idea that they must render a verdict for their employer, to at least hang the jury and prevent a verdict? Why should a man's, or a companys' employes be excluded from sitting on a jury before which their boss was being tried and then the rich man or company be allowed to employ and pay twelve men to act as a jury on purpose to decide his case?

It don't appear to us that this law has any business in the Statue books of Minnesota. Surely no business for honest, or for poor men. Our legislators should read this iniquitious statue and throughly understand its workings as it is much more than likely to come up early in the session for annulbment. If it does not come up the Wright county delegation might gain some crepit for bringing it up.

Wright County Reforms.

For several years the citizens of Wright County have lived under the cloud of insinuations that her morals were bad. That cases in court have not come out as they should. Accusaitions have been made that attempts, at least, have been made to bribe jurors. More times than one, these charges have been openly heard. It was an unpleasent condition of affairs. No man cares to reside in a county noted for lawlessness, where justice cannot be had. Neither do respectable people like to be continually twitted that your county is under a cloud of such a kind. This thing had gone far enough. And the Grand Jury which brought in indictments against J. R. Howard, Col Dodge and J. H. Wendell, will be long remembered as the "Reform Grand Jury of Wright County". By this action they have acquitid themselves with honor. They have done a good service to the County. They have done justice to the accused so far as we have been able to learn.

Those charged with crime now have the opportunity to prove their innocence. The county charged with harboring such deeds as bribery perjury, etc., now have shown that rank, nor title, nor previous condition of servitude cuts any figure with at least one Grand Jury in Wright County.

The County Attorney John T. Alley, an old and respectable citizen, has never, so far as come to our ears, been charged with dishonesty, in any way, and people have confidence that his part of the proceedings were conducted on the plan of justice to all.

The Grand Jury was made up of representative citizens, many of them old settlers: prominent in all the county affairs and capable of setting on a court of inquiry against any of its citizens. They have done their duty. Now let the purging of Wright County from wrong doing be carried on until her name shines, at least among the purged, and her institutions and her citizens will stand at the head in morals.

Another Cause.

From the Minneapolis Tribune we clip the following: "It turns out that the reason why Mrs. Lease, the Kansas Populist agitator, permits a mortgage to be foreclosed upon her home, is that the mortgage is for $1400 with about $100 additional costs, while the property itself is not worth at the present time more than $500. Mrs. Lease has a good income from lecturing and could easily pay the debt; but she is shrewd enough to realize that Populist rule has no shrunken real estate values in Kansas that it is cheaper to let the mortgage take the property than to redeem it.

In Minnesota, where the populists are not in the sadle, the cause of depreciation of property would be given by many as the contraction of currency and appreciation of primary money; in other words "Gold Standard".

Does the Senator think that we are just plunging into another war; or why does he refer the people to the "three years preceeding the civil war"? Does he think that time and the present more alike than other periods of panic, or series of hard times?

In the Northwest, says the Senator: "In those days money was not only scorce but there was no money to be had. Saw-logs were legal tender, and in fact, everything that possessed any sort of value passed as token money."

Possibly that was about the period of the Senator's life when he possessed the fewest "saw-logs", or anything else that "possessed value", and therefore had the lesson more forcibly impressed upon his mind. There are hundreds of people who are younger than Mr. Davis and who did not receive their instructions in "finance" in the same class with him; and some of them look at it in a different light. In those days "everything that possessed any sort of value passed as token money". The money was whatever people had deer skins, muskrats skins, saw-logs, etc. Now farmers have hard work to find a chance to trade or sell, oats, corn, potatoes, horses and many other things long considered of value. Though they may have to spare what a few years ago would quickly bring them several hundred dollars they cannot sell it, for enough to pay their taxes. In these cases there may be less suffering from the pangs of hunger, as the people can eat what they have, but the scarcity of money, and high price in farm produce is awfully incouvenient, and citing people to "three years preceding the civil war" by our senior Senator don't help times a bit.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 11, 1896.

"Dear Boss:—Unless you can buy us several more Senators it will be impossible to pay a tarriff dividend on the inyestments of the late campaign." While the extract is not the exact wording of the message sent by the caucus of republican senators to King Hanna, it contains the substance and real meaning of the request of the caucus steering committee, that Mr. Hanna shall try to "influence" the election of Senators who will pledge themselves to act with the republicans on the tariff, in several States. Among the legislatures upon which the republican Senators desire Mr. Hanna to try his "influence" are those of North Carolina, Kentucky, Washington and South Dakota. If high tariff Senators can be secured for all of these, the passage of a high tariff bill at the extra session of the next Congress will be assured. Otherwise the matter has been made very doubtful, with the chances against high tariff, by the action of the silver republicans in declining invitations to enter the republican Senatorial caucus.

While the caucus of republican Senators did not by a formal vote abandon the Dingley tariff bill, they did what was practically the same thing when they referred it to the steering committee and empowered that committee to act upon its own judgment. Pressure from the woolen manufacturers may compell the republican Senators to demonstrate by some sort of a vote, not necessarily on the bill itself, that the Dingley bill cannot pass, but the bill is as dead as Ben Harrison's force bill, so far as any serious attempt to pass it is concerned. The republicans couldn't pass it iff they wanted to, and very few of them want to. This was shown this week when the bill was before the Senate for a few minutes (on Senator Allen's motion to take it up, which was carried by a vote of 35 to 21), by the consternation which exists among the republicans who had voted for the motion because they were afraid to do otherwise.

Representatives Stokes of S. C. has been served with a notice of a double contest for his seat in the present and in the next House. Dr. Stokes came to Washington last year with the proper certificate of election but his seat was contested by Mr. Johnson, a republican. Finding nothing in the case upon which to base an excuse for giving Johnson the seat, the republicans of the house declared the seat vacant. The two men were again candidates and Dr. Stokes was elected to the vacancy and also to the next House. Johnson's contest depends more upon the republican majority than it does upon any evidence he expects to produce.

Senator blanchard voiced the sentiment of nearly all of the democrats in both branches of Congress when he said: "The democratic party, while beated in the recent election, is compact, organized and full of hope for the future. It simply bides its time. It has lost some material which can be spared, and gained lots of friends, adherants, and well wishers. It has always been a party of wonderful recuperative capacity. It will be ready for the fray in 1898 and in 1900. Woe to the republican party if it does not make good that dangerous promise it has heralded through the land of prosperity and good times."

Senator Quay has astonished those who thought they knew him, not only by his change of tactics—he has heretofore been the most silent of fighters—but by the wording of some of his published interviews against the candidacy of Mr. John Wanamaker for the Senate. For instance, when he said: "In the U. S. Senate, we have Millionairs and business men enough to serve all legitimate purposes. Senators are needed who have no specialities but will act for the interest of the country in gross without special affinities. the people most deserving of representation and most in need of legislative protection are the farmers, the small store keepers, the artisans and the laborers, and I stand by them"; The truthfulness of the above is unquestioned, but that it should come from Mr. Quay is astonishing. While not himself a millionaire, Mr. Quay has alyays had the reputation of being in touch with the millionaires of the country. But, he is first of all a politician and as such is apt to make sure of what he thinks to be the most effective weapons to carry his purpose.

Senator Mills has left all the other resolutions relating to Cuba away behind by offering one directing the president to take forcable possession of Cuba and hold it until the Cubans organize a government of their own.

The House is going right ahead passing bills just as though the Senate Calendar was not already choked up with House bills passed at the last session which haven't a ghost of a chance to get acted upon.

The mountain would not go to Mahomet so Mahomet went to the mountain. After remaining in Washington nearly a week, stopping just areuud the cornor frem the hotel at which Speaker Reed makes his home in Washington, without receiving a call from Mr. Reed, Boss Hanna decided to call upon Mr. Reed, and he did se at the latter's office in the Capitol. In view of the humble manner in which most of the republicans waited upon Hanna, this call must have been a little humilating to him; that it was pleasant to Tom Reed is certain.

Clubbing Offer.

Nothing helps while away long winter evenings to better advantage than good wholesome reading. Papers magazines and books are cheap now. Everybody can afford to take one or more. We have made arrangments to club with the papers and magazines mentioned below as follows:

Largest and Best.

The publishers of the St. Paul Weekly Dispatch have just favored us with a copy of their annual premium supplement. Some of the offers which they make are simply wonderful. Articles which would cost more than the subscription price of the paper are given free with a year's subscription. There is something of interest in it for every member of every family.

The subscription price of the Weekly Dispatch is but 75 cents per annum, and it is the largest and best weekly paper published in Minnesota consisting of from ten to sixteen pages per week.

Send postal card for sample copies of paper and premium supplement to Weekly Dispatch, St. Paul, Minn.

TWICE-A-WEEK COURRIER-JOURNAL.

Beginning the first of the new year, the Weekly Courrier-Journal, of Louisville, Ky., will be changed to the Twice-a-week Courier-Journal. It will be published Wednesday and Saturday mornings. The paper will be six pages, or twelve pages a week, instead of ten pages weekly, as at present, an increase of 832 columns of matter during the year. The Wednesday issue will be devoted exclusively to news and politics, while the Saturday issue will be strictly a family paper—filled with stories, miscellany, pictures, poetry, sketches, etc. The politics of the paper will not be changed, and the battle for pure Democracy and true Democratic principles will be continued successfully, in the future as in the past. In spite of the expence involved in the inproyements noted, the price of the Twice-a-week Courrier-Journal will remain the same, one dollar a year, with liberal inducements to agents or to old subscribers who send in new ones. A feature during the coming year will be the editorials of Mr. Henry Watterson on political and other topics of the day.

An Oklahoma candidate for office described his opponent as a "wandering bunghole of an uncreated barrel."

A Missouri man has invented what he calls a "magic X ray egg tester." He can easily tell whether an egg is fit for publication.

A young fellow in Mayfield, Ky., was arrested for having eight wives and the authorities were debating whether to pension him or give him a vacation in jail.

Hon. Galusha A. Grow was elected congressman at large from Pennsylvania by the largest vote any man ever received for such office. His majority was 297,446.

The New York Journal reports that impecunious noblemen in New York have formed a club for the purpose of obtaining American heiresses as wives. It has not been found necessary before to accomplish these "holdups" with a club.

That a blind man can read by the help of the X rays seems impossible. Yet in these days of scientific achievement we believe a great deal that we don't see, and no doubt the new idea will be accepted by thousands who are ready to "go it blind" merely on the strength of Wizard Edison's name.

Li Hung Chang is certainly a great man. He is the first man who built a steam railway in the Celestial empire. At first they compelled him to haul his cars by mules, but he has since quietly introduced steam and now he has ordered eight American locomotives for his railway out of the Manchuria coal districts.

Dr. Burton Ward, according to the Medical Age, declares that there "is one infallible symptom indicating whether one is sane or not. Let a person speak ever so rationally and act ever so sedately, if his or her thumbs remain inactive there is no doubt of insanity. Lunatics seldom make use of their thumbs in writing, drawing or saluting."

Proportionately, there is no great town in the civilized world that has so few daily morning papers as London. This is due to the large expenditure involved in starting one. Anyone contemplating starting a London paper must be ready to lose $150,000 or $200,000 per annum for the first two or three years, and then it is an open question whether he will have turned the corner.

Oscar Wilde will be liberated, by the expiration of his term of imprisonment, late in March next. At various times efforts have been made to secure his release, but in England sentimentalism has but little place on prison or pardoning boards. There justice is justice still, and in that fact lies the strength of the English system. Wilde is said to be aged in appearance and broken down in health.

The Philadelphia Record has seen a copy of the London Times of November 9, 1796, which published Washington's farewell address and editorially said: "We are sorry to announce the resignation of George Washington, Esq., of his situation as president of the United States of America." The English papers of a hundred years ago were as inaccurate in their statements about America as they are to-day.

Steamships to Europe will raise their fares ten to fifteen dollars. This won't stop European travel, but will be a handsome profit to steamship companies. It is the fashion now to run over to Europe every year. Thousands go who know nothing of the wonders and beauties of their own country. The mountains and valleys and lakes and canyons of the great west far excel anything that can be found in Europe.

The terms of the Russo-Chinese treaty, as reported, make it evident that Russia has not only secured the southern water front she has long wanted, but has China pretty effectively under her thumb. China will soon be, for practical Russian purposes, a Russian province and as, whatever may be said about the Russian government, Russia is a civilizer and has entered upon a great era of internal improvement and manufacturing activity, it is certain that the new relations of that country to China will be of immense advantage in the development of the great resources of China.

Dr. Thomas Powell, a Missouri physician, claims to have made a discovery which, if it prove to be correct, is bound to revolutionize the science of medicine. Investigators hitherto have found the germs of disease, even discovering the generic bacillus of each disease and its location in the system, but none of them has suggested any method of destroying the bacillus after he has found it. Dr. Powell says he can inoculate the system so as to render it impervious to disease germs. He says as vaccination prevents smallpox, so his discovery will ward off scarlet fever, diphtheria and all diseases of which the germ is the cause.

The California airship which began its career as a monster aerial craft 150 feet long with a passion for midnight cruises above the city of Sacramento has dwindled away to the meager proportions of a tailless kite. That swift flight of 80 miles against adverse winds ending in a graceful circling descent on a friendly promontory; that journey across the bay and through the Golden Gate to the ocean where the vessel "hovered for fully ten minutes over Seal Rocks," was but a flight in which imagination was the only participant. Even the tailless kite is credited with no more substance than adheres to an undeveloped idea.

INTERESTING NEWS COMPILATION.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

The Proceedings of the Second Session.

The time in the United States senate on the 10th was occupied in discussing the immigration bill and by speeches by Senators Cullom and Call on Cuba. The moral Senator Cullom drew was that this government could not permit the oppression and bloodshed to continue any longer in Cuba, but should interfere and set that island free. Adjourned to the 14th. In the house a bill to prohibit the sale of liquor in the capitol building was passed. Mr. Barrett (Mass.) introduced a bill providing that members of the president's cabinet shall be chosen from either the senate or house.

The United States senate was not in session on the 11th. In the house seven war claims, carrying an aggregate of $18,407, were favorably acted upon. A bill was introduced to increase the salary of the speaker of the house from $8,000 to $10,000 and of senators and representatives from $5,000 to $7,500. A bill was reported making an appropriation of $23,122,400 for the army for the fiscal year of 1898. At the night session 33 pension bills were favorably acted upon.

In the United States senate on the 14th resolutions were introduced to recognize the republic of Cuba as a free and independent government and denouncing the manner in which it is alleged Gen. Antonio Maceo had been killed, and for the appointment of a commission to investigate and report on the establishment of a permanent monetary system. In the house bills were introduced authorizing the payment of export bounties on agricultural and other products of the United States; to amend the constitution so as to lengthen the terms of office of the president and senators to eight years and of representatives to four years. A resolution for a two weeks' recess beginning December 22 was adopted.

FROM WASHINGTON.

In his annual report to congress Attorney-General Harmon expresses satisfaction at the results of the new salary system which displaced the old fee system July 1 of the present year. A large reduction is shown in every one of the items which would naturally be affected by the fee system. During the year the court considered 374 cases. A new crimes act is one of the things the attorney-general thinks is needed.

At the leading clearing houses in the United States the exchanges during the week ended on the 11th aggregated $1,065,638,861, against $1,285,485,804 the previous week. The decrease compared with the corresponding week in 1895 was 5.9.

In the United States there were 380 business failures in the seven days ended on the 11th, against 379 the week previous and 333 in the corresponding period of 1895.

The Turkish minister, Mustapha Bey, has received peremptory instructions from his government to secure a retraction of the injurious statements made by President Cleveland in his message to congress, and a rupture of the diplomatic relations between the United States and Turkey is threatened.

Commissioner Joseph S. Miller, of the internal revenue bureau, in his annual report shows the receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, to have been $146,830,615, against $143,246,077 the previous year.

In session in Washington the Non-partisan W. C. T. U. convention re-elected as president Mrs. Annie M. Wittenmeyer, of Pennsylvania.

In the United States the visible supply of grain on the 14th was: Wheat, 54,284,000 bushels; corn, 17,461,000 bushels; oats, 11,359,000 bushels; rye, 2,582,000 bushels; barley, 5,403,000 bushels.

Alice Thomas, a colored woman over 102 years old, was fatally burned in Washington by falling against a stove.

Secretary Carlisle sent to congress a statement of receipts and expenditures of the government for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1896, which shows the total receipts were $409,475,408 and the expenditures $434,627,654.

A Scandal.

Minneapolis, Dec. 16.—In the very near future Minneapolis will be treated to a sensation that will involve the names of several citizens in such a way as to perhaps land some of them in prison cells. The issue of warrants for the arrest of City Clerk Charles F. Haney last Saturday was the first move to this end. It was but the stepping stone.

Today, when the grand jury meets, there will be submitted to it evidence implicating nearly every department in the civic government of Minneapolis. There will be evidence that those who have prepared it hope that it will send at least some alderman of this city to the penitentiary.

Two they claim to be sure of, and there may be more. It will be one of the greatest exhibitions of civic house-cleaning ever witnessed in America. All this, if the word of one of the most prominent and respected citizens of Minneapolis may be relied upon. Chicago detectives worked up the case.

TREACHEROUSLY SLAIN.

Antonio Maceo Was Lured to His Death.

He and His Staff Ambushed Under Cover of an Invitation to a Conference with Spanish Leaders—Weyler Denies the Story.

Jacksonville, Fla., Dec. 14.—Gen. Antonio Maceo, the famous Cuban leader, is really dead, having been treacherously murdered by Spaniards December 7 while on his way to attend a conference to which he was invited by the marquis of Ahumeda, acting captain general of Cuba, while Gen. Weyler was in the field. Saturday noon a letter was received by Col. J. A. De Huau, the head of the Florida junta, from his secretary correspondent in Havana, giving a detailed account of the assassination of Gen. Maceo and his entire staff, with the exception of Dr. Zertucha, who was Maceo's physician.

Led Into a Trap.

It appears that the marquis of Ahumeda, who is officiating as captain general of Cuba during Weyler's absence in the field, sent a letter to Gen. Maceo inviting the Cuban leader to a conference near Punta Brava, stating he desired to confer with him as to some means of stopping bloodshed and the great waste of human life, and to getting his views on the subject. Maceo, who was the soul of honor, never for a moment thought treachery was intended, especially as the invitation came from such a prominent Spaniard as the marquis of Ahumeda, and he immediately returned an answer, saying he would be glad to meet the Spanish general. Attended by his staff only, consisting of 35 men and officers, he went to the rendezvous, little dreaming of what was in store for him.

Ambushed.

On his arrival at the trocha, the Spanish soldiers there, acting under orders, actually saluted the rebel chieftain as he passed, but after reaching the rendezvous on the east side near a hillside, thickly wooded, the Cuban leader was surprised to see, instead of the marquis of Ahumeda, a large body of Spanish soldiers, who seemed to come from every side. The actions of the Spanish troops were so suspicious that Maceo felt that he had been cruelly trapped, and his suspicions were confirmed when peremptory orders came from Maj. Cirujeda, who dashed up to the gallant Cuban leader as he stood at bay, surrounded by his staff, and demanded his unconditional surrender. "If you surrender," said he, "we offer you your life and an honorable treaty."

Maceo Shot Down.

"Never!" was the brave reply, and hardly had the words been uttered when volley after volley was poured into the little band of patriots, who, although hemmed in on all sides and outnumbered almost one hundred to one, struck spurs into their horses with cries of "Cuba libre" and rode gallantly to their death, striking down as many of the enemy as they could. Maceo is reported to have fallen at the first fire with a bullet through the head, breaking his jaw, while another hit him in the abdomen. Each was fatal.

Much Indignation.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Dispatches from all sections of the United States tell of the horror and indignation felt at the manner in which Maceo and his comrades were lured to their deaths. In many places recruits are presenting themselves, eager to proceed to Cuba and aid the insurgents. Gen. Weyler was burned in effigy at Dubois, Pa.

DENIAL FROM WEYLER.

Says Maceo Was Not Led Into an Ambush by Treachery.

New York, Dec. 15.—The New York World correspondent at Havana sends the following signed statement from Gen. Weyler on Maceo's death. The paper will print the original Spanish, of which the following is a translation:

"Maceo died as a result of the feeble state in which were the insurgent bands at Havana. Doubtless, before the sudden attacks and the constant persecution of the battalion of San Quentin, they were losing ground. To reorganize those bands he put himself at their head, and for this he died, with part of the staff accompanying him. In the same manner have died many generals in all the wars over the world. Maceo was not killed in an ambush. My assertion can be proved by the fact that the Spanish column which fought against his forces had to maintain itself against the fire of the insurgents, and the insurgents were strong enough in number to retake the bodies of Maceo and the son of Maximo Gomez, which were carried away from the field. Maceo was surrounded by his own men, who embarked with him and passed the trocha, it is affirmed by his own physician, Dr. Zertucha.

"It is not true that Maceo was coming for any conference with me. I can prove it with two reasons. The first is that if I was in the province of Pinar del Rio, how could I summon him to the province of Havana? The second is, that knowing myself the situation in which Maceo was in Pinar del Rio, knowing that his situation was so desperate that he asked help from the rebel forces in the other parts of the island, I would not be so innocent as to agree to a conference with him in a place where he would be out of the trocha. Once in Havana he would have resolved the problem of breaking the circle in which I had him and his forces in Pinar del Rio.

"Maceo died as fell all who command forces who at the sight of the enemy fly away. This discouraged band he brought to Havana with the hope of making it fight. Any other chief, in similar circumstances, if his men disbanded, would be sure to die. And that is what happened to Maceo."

Will Stay in the Field.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 11.—The national executive committee of the national democratic party held its first meeting since the election at the Bates house in this city Thursday afternoon and in the evening enjoyed a little supper with Henry Watterson as the guest of honor. The business of the afternoon was the auditing of the accounts of the committee and discussing the question of organization during the next four years. The accounts were found to be correct with a balance left in the treasury. It was decided to hold the organization intact as it stands and to make an effort to extend it into states where it had no footing in the last campaign as well as to make it more thorough in those states where it was active. Various subcommittees were appointed.

Heir to One Million Dollars.

Hannibal, Mo., Dec. 10. — Bluforth Bethell, of this city, has just received notice from London, England, that he is the heir to a large estate in England. He is the grandson of William Bethell, brother of Alexander Bethell, who died in England many years ago, leaving a large amount of money in the Bank of England and considerable real estate to be divided among his heirs. Bluford Bethell's share of the fortune is said to be about $1,000,000. He is one of five heirs and the property is estimated at $5,000,000.

WORK OF A YEAR.

Commissioner Miller, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, Reports.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The annual report of Commissioner Joseph S. Miller, of the internal revenue bureau, shows the receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, to have been $146,830,615; for the fiscal year of 1895, $143,246,077; for the fiscal year of 1894, $147,168,449, and for the fiscal year of 1893, $161,004,989. The receipts during the last fiscal year from the several sources of revenue, and the increase or decrease in each, as compared with the fiscal year, 1895, are given as follows:

Spirits, $80,670,070, increase $807,443; tobacco, $30,711,629, increase $1,006,721; fermented liquors, $33,784,235, increase, $2,145,617; oleomargarine, $1,219,422, decrease $189,778; banks and bankers, $134, increase $134; miscellaneous, $445,113, decrease $183,600.

The cost of collecting the internal revenue during the last fiscal year amounted to $4,086,292, and the estimated cost of collections for the next fiscal year is $4,369,090. The estimated receipts from all sources during the current fiscal year are $150,000,000.

During the year the work performed by the revenue agents is given as follows: Number of registered distilleries seized, 210; illicit distilleries seized and destroyed, 1,916; gallons of spirits seized, 123,688; fermenters seized and destroyed, 16,986; gallons of beer seized and destroyed, 1,298,034; horses seized, 101; wagons seized, 66; value of property reported for seizure, $308,449; assessments reported, $210,607. The number of persons arrested was 839. Three persons were wounded. Since 1885 ten officers and employes have been killed and 15 wounded.

The number of registered distilleries in operation during the year was 6,187. The number of gallons of molasses used for the production of spirits during the last fiscal year is 3,567,609, with a product therefrom of 2,642,322 gallons of spirits. The quantity of grain used for the production of spirits during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1896, 18,630,619 bushels, shows an increase of 1,130,907 bushels over the actual amount of grain used in the preceding fiscal year, and is 3,224,214 bushels less than the average for the last ten years. The number of gallons of spirits produced from grain during the year, 82,426,153, shows an increase of 4,283,641 gallons over the product for the year ending June 30, 1895, and is 11,681,196 gallons less than the average product for the last ten years.

The commissioner calls attention to the marked improvement of the service since the classification under the civil service law.

FOUND DEAD.

Mrs. S. H. Cooper and Daughter Commit Suicide in San Francisco.

San Francisco, Dec. 12.—Mrs. Sarah H. Cooper and her daughter, Harriet Cooper, were found dead in their home in this city Friday morning with the gas turned on and every evidence of suicide. In her will, written Thursday, Mrs. Cooper requests that the bodies of herself and daughter be not taken to the morgue. The Coopers have lived entirely alone except for a Chinese cook, who had been in their employ for 20 years. He has not yet been found. It is expected he can throw some light on the tragedy. The room in which the bodies were found was full of escaping gas which the physicians said had undoubtedly caused asphyxiation.

Mrs. Cooper was president of the Kindergarten association and her daughter was deputy superintendent. Mrs. Cooper had lived here 30 years and was widely known as an educator, philanthropist and writer. She was president of the Women's Press association, president of the Women's Suffrage association, and prominent as an officer of the Women's Christian Temperance union. For many years she taught the largest Bible class in the city in the First Congregational church, her class numbering several hundred adults. She was also assistant pastor of the church under the pastorate of Rev. Dr. C. O. Brown.

When the scandal concerning Dr. Brown was first talked about Mrs. Cooper stood by her pastor and expressed confidence in him. Later developments caused her to change her mind, and she and her daughter became his most prominent opponents and accusers after Mrs. Davidson. Much bitterness in church circles was engendered by Mrs. Cooper's statements on the witness stand at the church trial. Miss Cooper was even more pronounced than her mother in opposition to Dr. Brown. This action estranged many old friends, and the suicide of mother and daughter is ascribed to the brooding over coldness and snubs from former friends.

TRADE REVIEW.

Conditions Put Off Further Improvement Until the New Year.

New York, Dec. 12.—R. G. Dun & Co., in their weekly review of trade, say:

"Approach of holidays and doubt about the action of congress put off further improvements until the new year. While industries have gained in working force they are waiting for commensurate gain in demand, and meanwhile are trying to clear away embarrassments which restrict them. Speculation has been halting and timid. There is no sober-minded fear of foreign difficulty, but some have succeeded in imagining that congress might go so far beyond the president's prudent message regarding Cuba as to embroil this country with Spain. Money is in abundant supply, lending in London continues and there is nothing to cause less activity in general business except that the rush of orders deferred until after election has not been continued. The volume of business shown by clearings has been for the week 5.2 per cent. smaller than last year.

"The wheat market was weakened with less gloomy news from other countries and larger western receipts, though only 3,691,274 bushels, against 6,003,404 last year. Disappointment about the break in prices may help to increase receipts. The market has declined 1¼ cents, and the decrease in demand for flour with high rail rates has closed nearly all the Superior-Duluth and many of the other northwestern mills.

"The iron output December 1 was 142,272 tons weekly, against 124,077 November 1 and 213,797 a year ago, and unsold stocks reported were 31,901 tons smaller than November 1, but these do not include stocks of the great steel companies. The entire industry is for the time demoralized by uncertainty regarding the great combinations.

"Textile industries are working a larger force than in October, but there is not much evidence of larger demand, and some kinds of goods are accumulating. As raw cotton is lower, some yielding in prices of staples is expected, and buying is on that account more restricted, a few qualities of goods having slightly declined. Print cloths are weak in tone, with enormous stocks. Woolen goods are not in better demand, and there is general indisposition to make commitments ahead.

"Failures for the week have been 280 in the United States, against 333 last year, and 43 in Canada, against 54 last year."

Named by the President.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The president on Monday sent to the senate the following nomination: Charles A. Prouty, of Vermont, to be interstate commerce commissioner, vice, Wheelock G. Veazey, resigned. Mr. Prouty is a native of Vermont, about 40 years old, a graduate of Dartmouth and was one of the first-honor men of his class. For six years he was the recorder of the decisions of the supreme court of Vermont and recently has been chosen president of the Vermont Bar association. Mr. Veazey's resignation was due to ill health resulting from a heat stroke.

Rubber Factory Closed.

Woonsocket, R. I., Dec. 15.—The last of the manufactured goods in the factory of the Marvel Rubber company were shipped Monday to Boston and the factory closed for good. The company was absorbed by the United States Rubber company.

CAN'T ENFORCE IT.

Anti-Trust Law Practically a Failure—Attorney-General Reports.

Washington, Dec. 11.—The annual report of Hon. Judson Harmon, attorney general of the United States, was sent to congress Thursday. Concerning the anti-trust law, he says that the restricted scope of its provisions, as construed by the courts, makes amendments necessary, if any effective action is expected from the department of justice. Besides, he adds, the fund at the disposal of the attorney general which can be applied to the investigation, preparation and prosecution of cases under this law is wholly inadequate. Of the case of the United States versus the Trans-Missouri Freight association, now pending in the United States supreme court, and the claim that the act does not apply to railroads, the attorney general says:

"While I maintain the opposite view and feel confident of its correctness, the fact that such a question can be raised and has already been raised successfully in one court, affords an instance of the indefiniteness of the terms of this law, which is a serious obstacle in the way of its prompt enforcement."

A new crimes act is one of the things the attorney general thinks is needed. Further defects in the criminal laws were discovered during the past year. Criminal legislation is hopelessly confused, says the attorney general.

He points out that there is a general statute punishing embezzlement, but there are also many special statutes punishing embezzlement in particular cases, and he is not aware that it has yet been settled whether the general statute applies to such cases or not. There are statutes punishing frauds on the United States in many specific cases, and there is a general statute punishing conspiracy to defraud the United States in all cases; but there is no general statute punishing frauds against the United States when committed by one man alone. He suggests that a commission could easily and quickly frame a new crimes law, covering a uniform system of punishments. He says that the increasing repugnance on the part of juries to inflict the death penalty and the fact that the law makes no degrees in murder constantly leads to entire acquittal, and that this danger to society can be at least mitigated by the establishment of different degrees of murder with corresponding grades of punishment.

DISTINGUISHED AMERICANS.

Organize the Cuban League of the United States.

New York, Dec. 15. — The Cuban League of the United States was formally organized in this city Monday evening. The men behind this movement are so well known and carry so much weight that it is beyond a doubt that this is the beginning of a movement which will take no small part in the history of both countries. The meeting organized with Col. Ethan Allen as president and the following vice presidents: Charles A. Dana, ex-Gov. Roswell P. Flower, ex-Postmaster-General Thomas M. James, Chauncey M. Depew, John R. Dos Passos, Theodore Roosevelt, ex-Mayor Thomas F. Gilroy, George Bloadley, J. Edward Simmons and C. H. Dennison. Francis Wayland Glen was elected secretary, Darwin R. James treasurer, and the executive committee was made up as follows: John Jacob Astor, Paul Dana, Gen. Daniel Butterfield, Col. Fred D. Grant, Walter Logan, Edwin Wardman, John C. McGuire, R. C. Alexander, Constant A. Andrews, Frank B. Carpenter, John D. Keiley and Thomas E. Stewart. In opening the meeting Col. Allen read this call:

"We, the undersigned citizens of this republic, anxious for the success of all peoples in obtaining their civil and political liberty which this nation secured more than a century ago and still enjoys, unite in organizing the Cuban League of the United States of America.

"The object of this league is to secure for Cuba by all lawful, peaceful and honorable means, the political independence which her patriots are now endeavoring by tremendous sacrifice of treasure and life to gain, to encourage them with our sympathy and moral support and to arouse the whole nation to demand an end of the campaign of murder and destruction in that island.

"Mindful of the help which our fathers received in a similar struggle, we are constrained by a sense of gratitude to return to Cuba the kindness which was so effectively given us.

"It is apparent to all thoughful observers that Spain has not the power to crush the Cuban patriots, and therefore the continuance of the cruel struggle in Cuba can only serve to prolong a sense of abasement and humiliation in the minds of all men who are confident that this republic has the power to end it, and it is in honor called upon to do so for the highest good of all parties directly concerned."

GOLD CERTIFICATES.

Secretary Carlisle Not Yet Ready to Order Their Reissue.

Washington, Dec. 15.—The following letter from the secretary of the treasury was made public Monday:

"Franklin Haven, Esq., President Merchants' National Bank, Boston, Mass.—Sir: Replying to your favor of the 24th of November, written in behalf of Boston banks, asking for the issue of gold certificates, under the authority granted in section 12 of the act of July 12, 1882, I am not yet prepared to give the necessary order. After the reserve has once fallen below $100,000,000, and the issue of such certificates has been stopped, it is not certain that the secretary of the treasury, especially in view of existing conditions, would be justified in resuming their reissue. It has been the experience of the department in the past that the normal increase of the gold reserve caused by the exchange of paper currency for gold is checked by the issue of gold certificates, and, in fact upon various occasions considerable amounts of gold have been withdrawn by the presentation of notes for redemption and immediately redeposited in exchange for gold certificates. Moreover, the house of representatives of the Fifty-third congress, at its third session, passed a bill discontinuing their issue entirely, and it is the intention of the department to present the subject again at a very early date. As the amount of gold reserve is largely determined from time to time by the available amount of paper in circulation it seems inadvisable, at this time especially, to increase the volume of that currency by the issue of gold certificates.

"JOHN G. CARLISLE, Secretary."

A Great Bicycle Record.

New York, Dec. 14.—After a most remarkable exhibition of pluck and endurance, the 15 riders remaining on the track throughout the great six-day's race in Madison Square garden stopped pedaling at 9:58 o'clock Saturday evening in the presence of one of the largest crowds ever seen in the vast amphitheater. Hale, the Irish flier, finished first, with a total of 1,910 miles and eight laps to his credit. This distance exceeds the old six-day record made by former champion Schock in 1893, by 310 miles and seven laps.

Farmers' Fatal Quarrel.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Dec. 12. — The old-time feud between two neighbors had a tragic sequel Thursday when Taylor Miller, a well-to-do farmer of McMinn county, Tenn., was fatally stabbed by George Jacks in a quarrel. Miller drew a pistol, but before he could make use of it Jacks cut him almost to pieces with a pocketknife.

MARRIAGE IN FRANCE.

Does Its Expense Account for the Decrease in Population?

May not the cost of getting married in France act as a check upon marriage, and so partly account for the shrinkage of French population? The other day a wedding was thus celebrated by well-to-do middle-class folks in Burgundy, and may serve as a type. No less than five sumptuous banquets were given by the bride's father, namely, two dinners, two breakfasts and one ballroom supper. At one of the dinners, to which sat down 60 guests, no less than 50 bottles of champagne were drunk, to say nothing of red wines and liqueurs. Strange to say, no one seemed any the worse.

The respective processions to Maire and church on different days involved the hire of 60 carriages, this cost also falling upon the young lady's parents, the entire ceremonial involving an outlay of several hundred pounds. Nor was the affair less onerous to invited friends and relatives. The ladies were expected to display a new and fashionable toilet upon each separate occasion—banquets, balls, civil and religious celebrations.

To the bridegroom fell all kinds of expenses, such as fees, gifts to the church and the poor—these, however, a trifle compared to the mental and bodily wear and tear of three days' perpetual merrymaking; last, but not least, the necessity of looking pleased. When Anglo-mania has altered all this, and a Frenchman's wedding day means two or three hours' ceremonial only, we may expect the marriage rate to go steadily up.

A MODEL WITNESS.

He Rattled the Lawyer by His Explicit Replies.

"Now, sir, I hope we shall have no difficulty in getting you to speak up," said the lawyer, in a very loud, commanding voice, according to the Texas Sifter.

"I hope not, sir," shouted the witness, at the top of his lungs.

"How dare you speak to me in that way?" angrily asked the lawyer.

"Because I can't speak no louder, sir," said the hostler.

"Have you been drinking?"

"Yes, sir."

"I should infer so from your conduct. What have you been drinking?"

"Coffee," hoarsely vociferated the knight of the stable.

"Something stronger than coffee, sir, you have been drinking! Don't look at me like that, sir!" furiously. "Look at the jury, sir! Did you have something in your coffee, sir?"

"Yes, sir."

"What was it?"

"Sugar."

"This man is no fool—he is worse!" stormed the counsel.

"Now, sir," turning to the witness, "look at me. What besides sugar did you take in your coffee this morning?"

The hostler collected his forces, drew a deep breath, and in a voice that could have been heard half a mile away, bellowed out:

"A spune! a spune! an' nuthin' else!"

KINDNESS is wisdom; there is none in life but needs it, and may learn.—Bailey.

In the Yosemite Valley a while ago, a young fellow went out on the edge of a shelving precipice two thousand feet high, and balanced himself on his head. A little slip or little puff of wind would have sent him to eternity. Not one man in a million would be that kind of a fool. But nine men in ten are all the time taking foolish chances.

There is no deadly peril about a little fit of indigestion or biliousness, and yet if a man allows these troubles to get a hold on him he is taking serious risks. Dyspepsia alone seldom kills anybody; that is, it only kills you by inches, and takes a good many years doing it. But it weakens and undermines the constitution so that it is all ready to receive and fertilize the dangerous diseases which do kill you outright.

Disease-germs won't grow in healthy blood any more than corn will grow on a rock. A man who keeps his digestion perfect and his blood pure may eat and drink and breathe disease-germs, but they gain no foothold. They are cast out of the system. But a man with a dyspepsia-weakened constitution breathes in typhoid or diphtheretic germs and down he goes.

The best health-insurance a man can have is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It acts directly on the stomach and liver. It gives the blood-making organs power to make healthy blood. It clarifies the blood from all impurities, and builds up the healthy flesh, muscular power and nerve energy, which fortifies you against disease.

His life-long success in the treatment of chronic diseases has given Dr. Pierce's medicines a world-wide reputation. His "Pleasant Pellets" cure constipation.

THE OLD FRIENDS.

The old friends, the old friends
We loved when we were young,
With sunshine on their faces,
And music on their tongue!
The bees are in the almond-flower,
The birds renew their strain;
But the old friends, once lost to us,
Can never come again.

The old friends, the old friends!
Their brow is lined with care;
They've furrows in the faded cheek,
And silver in the hair;
But to me they are the old friends still,
In youth and bloom the same
As when we drove the flying ball,
Or shouted in the game.

The old men, the old men,
How slow they creep along!
How naughtily we scoffed at them
In days when we were young!
Their prosing and their dozing,
Their prate of times gone by,
Their shiver like an aspen leaf
If but a breath went by.

But we, we are the old men now,
Our blood is faint and chill;
We cannot leap the mighty brook,
Or climb the breakneck hill.
We maunder down the shortest cuts,
We rest on stick or stile,
And the young men, half ashamed to laugh,
Yet pass us with a smile.

But the young men, the young men,
Their strength is fair to see;
The straight back, and the springy stride,
The eye as falcon free;
They shout above the frolic wind
As up the hill they go;
But though so high above us now,
They soon shall be as low.

O weary, weary drag the years
As life draws near the end;
And sadly, sadly fall the tears
For loss of love and friend.
But we'll not doubt there's good about
In all of humankind;
So here's a health before we go
To those we leave behind!

EDDIE'S CHARGE.

BY HARRIET C. COX.

There was no prouder boy in the city of Boston than Eddie Markham. For a whole week he had been in charge of the elevator, and that to Eddie's mind was almost as important a position as chief of the fire department, an office that he considered far ahead of all others, even the governorship of the state.

To be sure, the elevator was used only to carry the big bales of cotton and what other merchandise needed transporting in the big wholesale house, and it was at best a rough, clumsy affair, moving slowly and with jerks. But then, it was an elevator, and this covered a multitude of shortcomings.

To be able to feel that he, Eddie Markham, had it in his power to move the elevator up or down, to assist the men load and unload it, was the keenest satisfaction.

Of course it wasn't as ornamental as wearing a brass-buttoned uniform and managing one of the swift-moving cushioned affairs in the big dry goods stores; but it was really of great importance, Eddie argued.

He looked back with scorn at the work he had previously done—errands of all kinds—though he had liked the mailing of the letters; there were always so many of them; and this showed conclusively that the firm was a busy one; and he had been proud to stand at the letter box on the busiest corner of the wholesale district, and drop them in, one letter at a time, till the big pile had vanished. But that was before he had been "elevated," as Bascome said.

Bascom was fond of making puns, and he and Eddie had had great fun over this one, and had tried it on nearly every one in the big building, the two members of the firm excepted, of course, though Eddie was meditating on trying it on the senior partner, for, as he said to Bascome: "He's got a lot o' fun in him, Mr. Wetherbee has; you can see it in the twinkle of his eye, and he ain't near so stuck-up as Knowlton is. Why the very way he calls 'Eddie,' is different; and he smiles and says thank you; but Knowlton don't seem to know you've done the errand, if you have. If you haven't he knows it mighty well."

Eddie evidently spoke from experience. Eddie was thinking of this now, as he threw out the last bundle, and started on another trip down.

Mr. Wetherbee had been unusually smiling that morning, and had worn in his buttonhole a deep red carnation; and the office had received an extra dusting. Something must be up.

"Boss wants you," a voice suddenly shouted down the elevator well.

Eddie gave the rope a pull. Involuntarily his hand went to his hair, and he wondered if that last scrapple with the janitor had disarranged it. A pull at his necktie and a hasty slap at his trousers, which showed signs of recent contact with the dusty floor, and the elevator stopped at the office floor.

The two partners were standing just outside the office talking with some ladies. A little girl hung on Mr. Wetherbee's hand.

"We want to go over the building, Eddie," he remarked, pleasantly; "and I think we'll go up in the elevator. You can clean it a bit, I suppose?" as his eyes took in the litter on the floor.

It was the work of a moment to sweep the paper and bits of cotton and straw from the elevator, and to start it upward.

First they went to the very top, and out on the roof, which commanded a fine view of the harbor, on the one side, and of the busy city on the other. Then they examined the big bales of cotton, and the child asked numberless questions, as to where it grew and how it grew, and how it ever got to be dresses, etc., until, finally, Mr. Wetherbee put her into Eddie's care, with the injunction not to kill himself trying to answer her questions if he didn't want to. Then he devoted himself to the ladies.

But Eddie found his task a very pleasant one. At first the child had looked at him gravely, then, as if satisfied, had put out her tiny hands and asked to be put up on the big bales.

"Way, way up!" she entreated. And then when he had taken her up on the highest pile, she shouted down for grandpa to "look up and see her most up to heaven;" he waved his hand back to her, and one of the ladies looked anxious; but "I've found the boy really very careful," he reassured her.

Eddie heard him and flushed at the words. Then he straightened himself up, and carefully, oh, so carefully, helped the child down. He would show them that he was to be trusted.

All over the building they went, from one floor to another, even to the basement, where the child could hardly be drawn away from the engine, whose shining piston and revolving balls fascinated her. Finally they all returned to the office; all but the child. She begged to "ride on the 'vator, grandpa, please," and grandpa had consented.

"You have yet an hour to wait, Jennie," he had said to one of the ladies; "and you might as well let the child amuse herself."

So Eddie and she returned to the elevator, and work once more was taken up, though the loads were light ones, so that the elevator should not be crowded.

Every once in awhile those in the office could hear the child's happy laugh; and once she danced in, her eyes shining, her cheeks aglow, and her hair flecked with bits of cotton.

"It's just elegant!" she said; then was away again before they could answer.

"The train starts at 3:20," Mr. Wetherbee was saying.

A sharp scream interrupted him—the sound of something heavy falling—a dull thud, the rush of many feet, and a cloud of dust from the elevator well.

"The elevator!" gasped Mr. Wetherbee. His face was white, and great drops stood on his brow.

"It broke, and fell to the cellar," a man said, running up.

There was a throng about the gateway, but they made way for the white-haired old man as he tottered toward it. Strong hands held him as he thrust his head into the well and looked down. The air was still thick with dust.

"Can you see them?" some one queried.

There was an awful silence; then it was broken by sobs from the office—then a child's cry.

"Upstairs."

A rush for the stairway, the old man in the lead. The cries were nearer. Two flights up Mr. Wetherbee turned to the left; then he stopped. The rest fell back. A broken bale of cotton lay scattered on the floor next to the elevator well. In the midst of it stood the child. Beside her, in a heap, lay Eddie. One leg was doubled and twisted under him; blood was trickling from a cut on his forehead; he was motionless.

"Something cracked,' the child explained, when kind hands had made the boy more comfortable, and the ambulance had been sent for. "Something cracked awful and then shook, and knocked me right off the bale I was sitting on; and Eddie caught me pig-a-back, quick's he could, and jumped right out when we was coming by. And he tumbled down just like this, and hasn't moved a bit since; and I've spoke to him lots. I didn't get hurt, 'cause I was on top, you see; and I cried hard soon's I thought of it. But it just seemed as if nobody wouldn't come ever. But you did, didn't you grandpa?" and she patted the kind face held close to her own.

There was a stir as the emergency man came in and transferred Eddie to the stretcher.

"Some bones broken, badly shaken, but nothing worse, I think," was the doctor's verdict.

Just as they arose to bear him away, he moved slightly, and his eyelids slowly raised.

"I tried to be careful," he said.—N. Y. Independent.

"TAMBOUR D'ARCOLA."

The Brave Drummer of Napoleon's Army in Italy.

The chief ancestral glory of the family of the Mazet is its close blood relationship with the gallant Andre Etienne, that drummer of the Fifty-first demi-brigade of the army of Italy who is commemorated on the frieze of the Pantheon, and who is known and honored as the "Tambour d'Arcola" all over France. It was delightful to listen to old Jan's telling of the brave story; how this Andre, their own kinsman, swam the stream under the enemy's fire at Arcola with his drum on his back and then drummed his fellow-soldiers on to victory; how Bonaparte awarded him the drumsticks of honor, and later, when the Legion of Honor was founded, gave him the cross; how they carved him in stone, drumming the charge, up there on the front of the Pantheon in Paris itself; how Mistral, the great poet of Provence, had made a poem about him that had been printed in a book; and how, only two years ago, they set up his marble statue in Cadenet, the little town, not far from Avignon, where he was born!

Old Jan was not content with merely telling this story—like a true Provencal he acted it; swinging a suppositious drum upon his back, jumping into an imaginary river and swimming it with his head in the air, swinging his drum back into place again, and then—zou!—starting off at the head of the Fifty-first demi-brigade with such a rousing play of drumsticks that I protest we fairly heard the rattle of them, along with the spatter of Austrian musketry in the face of which Andre Etienne beat that gallant pas de charge!

It set me all a-thrilling; and still more did it thrill those other listeners who were of the Arcola hero's very blood and bone. They clapped their hands and they shouted. They laughed with delight. And the fighting spirit of Gaul was so stirred within them that at a word, I verily believe, they would have been for marching in a body across the southeastern frontier.—Thomas A. Janvier, in Century.

Master of the Piano.

The Italian tenor, Marconi, once made a visit to Rubenstein, during which the latter's little son came tripping into the music-room and said: "This is my festa, papa, and I want a present." "Very well, my son, what shall it be?" "A waltz, papa—a new waltz, all for myself, and now." "What an impatient little son it is!" exclaimed the great musician, "but of course you shall have your gift. Here it is—listen! And for you," turning to the distinguished tenor, "I will play my 'Nero.'" "It seems almost incredible," says Marconi, "but then and there I witnessed and heard a most remarkable phenomenon—the maestro improvised and played a charming waltz with his left hand, giving me at the same time with his right the splendid overture."—Chicago Chronicle.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

The Ging Insurance.

The answer of the Travelers's Insurance company of Hartford to the suit brought by Julia Ging as administrator of the estate of Catharine M. Ging to collect the $5,000 alleged to be due under the accident policy issued on the life of the murdered girl, has been filed. The nugget in the answer is found in the allegation that the policy does not cover "intentional injuries (inflicted by the insured or any other person)." By special agreement this clause was made not to exclude claims for personal injuries, fatal or non-fatal, received by the insured while in the act of defending herself, family or property from the assault of burglars, robbers, thieves or pickpockets.

The injuries are claimed to have been received "while not defending herself," The last defense is that the suit was not commenced until over one year after the death of the insured, and hence that it is barred by the contract.

Contest Decided.

Judge Ives has decided the election contest case in the office of probate judge of Norman county. The facts are that at the election the face of the returns showed W. W. Calkins to have received 1,387 votes and M. A. Brattland 1,364. On Oct. 10 Gov. Clough, by proclamation, established a voting precinct in the White Earth reservation, embracing six towns in Norman county and three towns in Beltrami county. Ninety-eight votes were cast therein for this office, of which Calkins received 70 and Brattland 28. These votes were counted as cast, and the canvassing board certified the election of Calkins. Brattland appealed, and Judge Ives reverses the decision of the canvassing board and declares Brattland elected. In his conclusions of law he finds that Gov. Clough's action was void and it was wholly unauthorized and without warrant.

A Big Seizure.

Sam Fullerton, of the game and fish law commission, with Deputy Game Warden James Nash, of Minneapolis, made the largest seizure of game ever made in Ramsey county. The seizure took place in the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad yards at St. Paul, and the game seized was venison. Now the officers are looking for the persons who shipped the meat, which filled an ordinary box car and was consigned to parties in Boston, New York and Chicago.

The value of the meat seized is $10,800 at the market price, and something like $50,000 may be realized in fines. The meat is chopped up in pieces ready to be disposed of to retailers, and there is a fine of $50 for each piece seized. A possible settlement may be made.

St. Paul's Pride.

The ice palace of St. Paul will contain 10,000 tons of ice. It is proposed to model it after the Parthenon. The architect's plans show building 110 by 230 with height of 65 feet. Sixty columns 32 feet high will take the place of the marbles of the ancient building and a board roof—not copied after the original—will top off the structure. Inside the building will be illuminated with electric lights. The plans were submitted to the board of carnival directors at its meeting. At the same time various committee reports were received. Among other things it was decided not to incorporate. The executive committee will meet daily hereafter at noon. Special work along the line of organizing clubs will begin at once.

A Queer Impulse.

While passing the Milwaukee depot at St. Paul on her way to church services Sunday morning, Mrs. Richard Casey, wife of a wealthy farmer near North St. Paul, was seized with an irresistable desire to to take a trip. The train was in the depot and she found she had just enough money for a ticket to Chicago. Her husband missed her after church, and, learning of her departure, telegraphed the Chicago police to detain her on her arrival. She arrived in Chicago the next morning, worn out, hungry and penniless, and said she would be glad enough to get back home. She could not account for her action except that she could not resist the sudden impulse.

Off for Venezuelan.

A party of 100 Rice county people will take their departure from Faribault for South America later this month for the purpose of starting a colony in Venezuela, the new colony to be named Faribault. Bert Adams, who was in the original exploring party sent from there last spring, as a civil engineer, will head the party. Its members will continue the explorations already begun, start sawmills and otherwise develop the country. They expect to be absent a long time.

—On one day recently three Massachusetts churches celebrated anniversaries—the Eliot church at Newton, the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of John Eliot's first sermon to the Indians; the Unitarians' church at Lexington, the two hundredth anniversary of the settling of the first pastor, and the North Congregational church at Springfield, the fiftieth anniversary of its organization.

—Bishop Creighton, of Peterborough, who has just been appointed bishop of London, is a man of mark. In 1884 he became professor of ecclesiastical history in Cambridge. —Mr. T. Thomas Fortune, editor of the Age (Afro-American), writing in the New York Sun, gives some interesting facts concerning the growth of the African Methodist Episcopal church. Of the 10,000,000 colored population of the United States, 1,200,000 are Methodists, while 1,350,000 are Baptists. The Methodist church property is about $12,000,000. In all, fully 4,000,000 Afro-Americans are members of some church, and 16,000 are ministers.

—Dr. Thornton, an expert in the education of deaf mutes, says that a modification of the telephone promises to be of material use in the education of those deaf mutes who possess a fragment of hearing power, and it has the following important advantages over the single-speaking tube that is sometimes used: Firstly, that the wires from several receivers can be coupled up to one transmitter, and thus a teacher can instruct a group of children at the same time, and, secondly, that, as it is not necessary for the teacher to apply his mouth close to the transmitter, the pupils have a full view of his facial expression and lip movements, which is not the case when he has to direct his attention and his voice into the mouth of a speaking-tube or trumpet.

THE UNKNOWN NORTH.

Facts About a Hitherto Unexplored Region in British America.

J. B. Tyrell, of the Dominion geological survey department lately returned from the unknown north, where he has been making explorations. He left Selkirk on the 24th of June. Taking canoes at Grand Rapids, he, with Indian guides, proceeded to Norway house, and descended the Nelson river 100 miles to the Pine river, which they ascended to the Wolf river. All this territory has practically never before been entered by white men. Reaching the Nelson, they again descended it for about 75 miles, and followed the Burntwood to a remote Hudson Bay company post.

"This large section of the country," says Mr. Tyrell, "is not a wilderness of rocks such as lies to the east of here and has been described by many of the men who have pretended to have a knowledge of the region. I found a well-wooded country, interspersed with stretches of prairie; a soil of rich clay loam, with clay subsoil. Great stretches that were a few years ago heavily timbered with spruce have felt the deadly effects of fire and are now a blackened stubble of dead trees.

"There are large areas of rich, cultivable lands west of the Nelson, and, though wheat is not grown, simply because it would be of no value, all varieties of vegetables are produced in the gardens of the Hudson Bay company posts and proved hardy. Large stretches of prairie also occur, and I have stood on the banks of the Burntwood river and gazed on just such rich stretches as might have been seen on the Saskatchewan or Assiniboine—land that will be good for agricultural purposes and excellent for stock raising some time, though now it is practically inaccessible.

"All this country is but a continuation of the Red River valley. It is all the deposit of a great lake, of which Lake Winnipeg is the sunken representative, which stretches from a short distance east of the Red to the Pembina mountains on the west and from Grand Forks on the south to a point further north than was reached this trip.

"Except for the climate, that great country to the west of the Nelson river has been as richly blessed by Providence as the far-famed Red River valley."—Minneapolis Journal.

Siberia's Railway.

There is soon to be a new country to visit and a new way of going round the world. It seems only the other day that Jules Verne's man went around in 80 days, and thought it a considerable feat. The record for circumnavigation is now 66 days, or thereabouts. Baron Hilkoff, the combination of American mechanic and Russian prince who was in this country recently, said that when the railroad across Siberia is finished, which, he thinks, will be in four or five years, the time of getting around will be cut in two, and from 30 to 33 days will suffice for it. He allows ten days to cross Siberia from St. Petersburg, ten days from Vladivostok to San Francisco, and 13 days from there to St. Petersburg again. Early in the next century, then, the tired American may turn his face eastward when he starts on his month's vacation, and keep it turned that way until he gets home, just about in time to resume his work.—Harper's Weekly.

What Did He Mean?

"Do you know," remarked the author, "that I look upon my work as extremely valuable?"

"Why so?"

"A burglar was in the house the other night and stole $1.47, about $20 worth of jewelry and the manuscript of my latest story. I fear I shall never get the last back, but I will have justice on that burglar, if we ever catch him!"

"My dear sir, no jury would ever convict him."

"Why not?"

"He would be regarded as a public benefactor."

And the author has been trying to figure out the other's meaning ever since.—Detroit Free Press.

BAR CONSUMPTIVES.

Not to Be Permitted to Land—A Sanitary Restrictive Measure.

Local physicians are discussing the point of an immigration bill pending before the New Zealand parliament with a view to calling the attention of congress to a similar protective measure. The bill in question is to prevent consumptives from entering the country. To effect that object the captain of any ship who lands a passenger suffering from lung disease is liable to a penalty of $250 for every offense, and if during the voyage he is proved to have allowed such a sufferer to share a cabin with another passenger, an additional fine is thereby incurred. Furthermore, there is a provision which holds a captain personally responsible and liable to fine if, three months after landing his passengers, any one of them should develop lung disease. Fancy a captain of nervous temperament laboring under this law, suggests the St. James Budget. "Given that he has started with a list of passengers free from all palpable lung disease, still his life would not be worth living. Every cough, every splutter from a crumb in the throat as his passengers sat at meals, would would serve to dangle the fine demon before his eyes. One can imagine a captain getting into such a state of mind as to secretly slip overboard any passenger developing a genuine cough. Men have done worse for less than $250. One can follow him on shore. Having landed his passengers, he is still within the clutches of the state. Weeks afterward he may be dining on shore. He hears a cough at table. A cold sweat comes in beads on his forehead as he recognizes a passenger. 'Another $250,' he murmurs, as he is carried out in a dead faint."

Through California Service Via "The Milwaukee."

A fine Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car now leaves Minneapolis at 8:25 and St. Paul at 8:35 every Saturday morning and runs through to Los Angeles, Cal., via Kansas City and the Santa Fe System, without change, arriving destination 1:25 P. M. following Wednesday.

The journey, via this route, is through a very interesting portion of America, and the hardship incident to winter travel through the more northerly climate is avoided.

Rate per double berth $6.00 through. For berth reservations, further information as to rates, etc., apply to "The Milwaukee" agents, or address J. T. Conley, Asst. Gen'l. Pass. Agent, St. Paul, Minn.

As soon as thought finds a body, it begins trying to move the world.—Ram's Horn.

The wise form right judgment of the present from the past.

Blacker the spot, surer the cure. Use St. Jacobs Oil for bruises.

Borne Down with Infirmities,

Age finds its surest solace in the benignant tonic aid afforded by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which counteracts rheumatic and malarial tendencies, relieves growing inactivity of the kidneys, and is the finest remedy extant for disorders of the stomach, liver and bowels. Nervousness, too, with which old people are very apt to be afflicted, is promptly relieved by it.

Suffering Women.

Alas! women do suffer. Why we often cannot tell, but we know there is one great cause, and that is weakness. The headaches, the depressed feelings, the pains, the discouragements, indeed, almost all the misery has a common cause—weakness. At such times a woman always needs a friend that can be relied upon, and such a friend, for more than twenty years, has been that greatest of all remedies,

Warner's Safe Cure

By its purity and its power it furnishes a prompt relief for women in their hours of need, and if the grateful expressions which come up from the homes of the land about what SAFE CURE has done were printed, they would fill volumes. If you, reader, are a sufferer, can you not take hope from this suggestion?

DON'T BE AFRAID OF WHEAT!

Don't be afraid of a small "break" in the price of wheat! These "breaks" are occasioned by some holders of wheat taking profits and, of course, when there happens to be a few more sellers than buyers, the market is bound to go off a little. That is a sign of a HEALTHY MARKET and that is the very time when shrewd operators BUY WHEAT. Send for our Free Book: it explains our special order plan and all kinds of option trading. The Same Old Sarsaparilla.

That's Ayer's. The same old sarsaparilla as it was made and sold 50 years ago. In the laboratory it is different. There modern appliances lend speed to skill and experience. But the sarsaparilla is the same old sarsaparilla that made the record—50 years of cures. Why don't we better it? Well, we're much in the condition of the Bishop and the raspberry: "Doubtless," he said, "God might have made a better berry. But doubtless, also, He never did." Why don't we better the sarsaparilla? We can't. We are using the same old plant that cured the Indians and the Spaniards. It has not been bettered. And since we make sarsaparilla compound out of sarsaparilla plant, we see no way of improvement. Of course, if we were making some secret chemical compound, we might.... But we're not. We're making the same old sarsaparilla to cure the same old diseases. You can tell it's the same old sarsaparilla because it works the same old cures. It's the sovereign blood purifier, and —it's Ayer's.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Sleighing is very good at present,

—Fred Addicks gave a wedding dance at the city hall last night.

—We understand the K. P's. have established an insurance branch to their order here. Dr. Soper being chosen examing physician.

—There will be no meeting of the Literary Society next Tuesday being so near Christmas. The society will observe one week of holiday's at least.

—We would be pleased to have the Eagle remove that ugly hump from her carracter. We refer to the untruth about the "non-freezable" watering fountain.

—This has been a dull and dreary week. Slight skurries of snow have come down almost daily until once more the beb sleigh and the cutter are favorite vehicles for travel.

—Presiding Elder Chaffee held Quarterly Conference here Saturday and preached at Rockford Sunday morning and here in the evening. The Sacraments of the Lord's Supper was observed after the Sunday evening Sermon.

—Christmas comes next Friday, one week from today. All the girls and boys will hang up their stockings for Kris Kinkle to fill. May they all together with the larger people have a Merry Christmas, and a Happy New Year.

—The Executive Committee of the Delano Literary Society have concluded not to have a meeting on Tuesday evening Dec. 22, it being so near Christmas and everybody busy. Look out for a rouser though at the next meeting Dec. 29.

—The Xmus song service to be held at the M. E. Church, is as follows:

Hymn,
Prayer, by the Pastor.
Anthem—Rock of ages, Excell.
Scripture Lesson, by the Pastor.
Anthem—Seek Ye the Lord,
Tenor Solo and Chorus.
Sermon—Christmas, by the Pastor.
Offertory Solo—The Star of Bethlehem, Dr. J. S. Soper.
Benediction, by the Pastor,

Services commences at 7:30 p. m. All are Welcome.

—The Literary Society was well attended Tuesday evening Vice president Mrs. Farber presiding. The programme was well carried out, except the committee had put Mr. Everson on for a Corset Solo, as he does not fur nish such things, he did not do so now. Morris Cerey was also absent.

Miss Mollie Mayfield and Emiel Weise gave a short dialogue in good style.

Prof. Hawker being the only one of the four debators present, of course won his case by default, and we are to presume that the south has not been benefited by the emancipation of the slaves. There will be no meeting next Tuesday evening,

School Notes.

Several of the young ladies went to purchase some butter the other day, for this evening, and when asked what they wanted, ran with fright.

The School will hold a Banquet at the School House tonight to raise money for an organ.

Miss de Mersi from Minneapolis, visited the high school.

Personal.

Mr. Nitsel went to the cities Thursday.

F. A. Cramer went to New Ulm Wednesday.

Mrs. Dickey returned to Minneapolis Tuesday.

Miss Maud Goodrick went to Minneapolis Sunday morning.

Mr. Gallgar, of Dassel is visiting friends in Delano this week.

Mrs. Matilda Harris returned to St. Paul Tuesday evening.

Thomas Young, of Montrose, visited Delano, on business, yesterday.

Mrs. J. M. Mulford visited her friends in Minneapolis, this week.

John Coolen Sr. transacted business in St. Bonifacious last Monday.

Vernon Winter has been here for the past week, as the day operator.

Miss Maggie Steffes visited in Minneapolis from Saturday to Monday.

Mr. M. A. O'Hair attended the funeral of his mother at Waverly Tuesday.

Edwin Steward returned to Delano after a prolonged absence, Thursday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Stacy, of Montrose, drove down to Quarterly Conference Sunday.

Scott Gunn has returned from his trip to the land of blizzards. He thinks there's no place like Minnesota.

Mrs. Mila Miller, sister of Mrs. John Sturman left last night for Indianapolis to see their brother who was sick and not expected to live.

"So his mother intends making a pianist of him?"

"Yes."

"Whom has she chosen for a teacher?"

"He haf not got that far yet; at present she is just letting his hair grow."—The Musical Idea.

County Cullings.

We acknowledge the receipt of a vrery neat little folder of invitation to the first anual ball given by Waverly Lodge No. 222, A. O. U. W. at the Town Hall, Waverly, on Thursday evening, Dec. 31. Also a "Comp". We have never yet learned to dance. Please excuse us.

It does look a little hard to read among the items of necessary expenses handed in by a defeated candidate, $70 for cigars, and to have seen other candidates distributing cigars, liberally, and not a cent in their accounts for that "essential".

The Waverly Tribune didn't "chew the rag" very vigorously this week. It seems to think Sheriff Nugent about the only man there is, but finally admitted H. T. Moland into the same article. There are other sheriffs and there are other men in the world, Tribune, "chew some more" every little helps.

The Eagle Printing Co. has been doing a fine lot of job work for the Great Northern. and now the Eagle says: "Wendell, Dodge and Howard have been indicted for bribery, This is only a continuation of the Great Northern bribery cases. The probabilites are that none of them will ever be convicted even if they come to trial. "Will this aid you any in defining "Subsided" Eagle?

One of the newly elected county officers recently remarked, at Buffalo, that next spring would be a good time in some precints, in Wright County to vote on the license question. It would be good prehaps to decide at least one point. Whenever a village votes to license a saloon some people invarably attribute the discission to the "foreign element". Many foreigners cannot vote at the sprihg election, on account of not having procured full citizens' papers. If the elections should chance to turn out the same it would be first class evidence, at least, that fully equipped citizens of the United States voted to license saloons. It would make a few fellows who talk one way, and vote another look a little sheepish no doubt.

DIED.

O'HAIR.—At Waverly, on Sunday, Dec. 13, Mrs. Mary O'Hair, aged 76 years.

Among our Exchanges.

Very little ground has been seeded with wheat in the Willamett Valley this year except that which was summer-fallowed. The rains which were late in commencing, have been so heavy and frequent that it has been impossibe to plow or seed the land since they commenced.—Rural Northwestern.

From the present indication there will be no attempt by this congress to pass any law to produce more revenue. A special session will be called by McKinley at which an attempt will be made to give all the trusts, combines and special interests all tariff subsides they wish. The day of the constitutional democracy is dawning just ahead.

A call has been issued for a convention of men engaged in the lumber business to meet at Cincinnati, O., Dec. 15. Everyone incerested in the business, whether to a large or small extent, is invited to be present, and the object is to present a united front in demanding a tariff on lumber which will shut out the cheap product of Canada.—Aitken Bepublican.

The number of failures in the United States was 380 last week, against 333 in the corresponding week last year, or an increase over last year of nearly 15 per cent, and yet the Republican press keep up the misleading assertions that confidence has been restored, that hard times are over and that prosperity has returned. The people pray for deliverance from this ruinous "prosperity," Of course the capitalist is prosperous, but what this country needs is a few years of prosperity for the common people.—Penny Press.

Should Sit Where They Belong.

St. Cloud Times: "Congress is in session and the representatives of the people have gathered at the national capitol. It used to be said during the late campaign that the Chicago convention and ticket was not democratic. With probably half a dozen exceptions every Democratic Senator and Representive in Congress were supporters of Bryan, and these "exceptions" find no seats set apart for them in democratic caucuses."

These "exceptions" should place their caresses for the balance of the term where their hearts are, with the gold standard plank.

IS MONEY SCARCE?

Senitor Davis Illustrates by a Resemblance of the Days of '57.

Special to the Globe.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—"Of course we have been having hard times," says Senator Davis, "and times are very hard yet. But the people are not so hard off as they were during the three years proceeding the civil war. In the Northwest, particularly, the older in habitants remember with shudders the panic of '57, and the sufferings which it brought.

"In those days money was not only scarce" but there was no money to be had. Saw-logs were legal tender, and, in fact, everything that possessed any sort of value passed as token money. When a man killed a deer or muskrat, or any other kind of game, he could take the hide to a general store and get clothing or food in exchange for it; but no money was passed over the counter, because there was no money in the country.

"Up in Northern Wisconsin copper was mined, and copper cents were issued by private individuals. The general storekeepers issued their own scrip, and it passed for money. I have seen a 10 cent postage stamp, encased in mica, passing for money many a time. We had every kind of token money except wampum; we almost quite get that far back to the primitive medium and method of exchange. But the people who are talking now about the scarcity of money ought to have had some such experience. It is rather hard to endure, of course, and I wouldn't want to go through it again; but it is an educational experience of value.

"The men who had accumulated enough to establish general stores; where they kept dry goods, groceries, patent medicines, and all sorts of things went through the panic and prospered a little bit. Nevertheless, even the storekeepers had very little money, and they received goods in exchange for the skins and other articles taken by them in exchange from their customers on the frontier."

Entered as Second-Class Mail Matter, at the PostOffice in Delano, Minn

GOV. CLOUGH made Phil Scheig a Christmas present of the balance of his term in the penetentiary the other day. He had served about three of the seven years term.

MINNEAPOLIS is having an investigation into the doings of some of her officials. Duluth is preparing to do the same. There is nothing like a straightening up of affairs occasionally.

NOW Congressman Mc Cleary is spoken of as the man for Mc Kinleys's Secretary of the Treasury. If they intend giving us that Canada system of finance of course. They say Mc Cleary came from Canada.

ANOTHER bank robber was killed this week. He robbed in N. D. and Sheriff Gunderson came to Ada, Minn. to get him. They met and while the man was preparing to shoot, the Sheriff shot first, so the reports say. Bank robbery in Minnesota and the Dakotas is not very profitable; unless you are on the inside.

WHAT can the Republican party want with a lot more national banks, to do business on the bonds of the government? Recently several have gone out of business, rather suddenly too, It would be better to do business on gold and silver. People would know just how much they had and when it run out they would try to work and earn more. Now it is easier to get trusted. A good deal easier than it is to pay, even in paper money.

THE National Bank of Illinois closed up business a few days ago; several smaller houses did the same. Now comes St. Paul with the Bank of Minnesota; the Union Stockyard's bank, and other institutions obliged to suspend business. Have these people run out of confidence, or has New York refused to let them have any mer money because they do not in all instances vote for her interest?

The Cuban Question.

The Cuban question seems to be hard for our Statesmen to get hold of. They don't agree as to whose business it is. Secretary Olney and President Cleveland think it belongs exclusively to the Executive department to recognize a new government. The Senate and House are receiving memorials, petitions etc., add have committees with reports favorable to freeing Cuba. They claim to them belongs the law making power, and all the President has to do is to veto or not as he sees fit. Meantime the Cuban war goes on. It is hard telling whether it will be settled first in Congress or in Cuba.

Christmas.

Christmas has come again to remind us of the birth of Him who gave up his life on the cross that sinners might be saved. No one ever had a Christmas gift to compare with the one given by God to the suffering world. He so loved the world that he gave his only begetten Son that all might be saved. Do we think of this sacrifice for us when we keep Christmas on its yearly occurance. While we are haveing a happy time with friends and neighbors are we brought closer together in the bonds of love? Are we made better? Do we obtain the benefits that are ours for the asking when we celebrate Christmas?

Let us remember Him not only on Christmas day but on each day of the year and our lives will be purer and nobler for it.

We should of course rejoice on Christmas day, but ever remember for what we rejoice, and the very memory of that will make us better. We should be merry and enjoy the day and try to have others enjoy the day as well as possible.

A merry Christmas and a happy New Year to all.

—The Public Schools let out last night for a vacation until Monday Jan. 4th. The out of town teachers are to enjoy the few days granted them by the board, with friends at home. We understand there will be no further vacation untill the end of the term. Usually in the spring the larger scholars drop out to work and it is thought best to keep right on without a vacation and close a little earlier in the season in hopes of keeping the entire school interested until the close.

Among our Exchanges.

Elk River Star-News: It is reported that ex-Gov. Merriam has rented a hansome residence at Washington and will spend the winter in the capital with his family. He must be pretty sure of that cabinet position.

The plan which would probably prove most satisfactory would be the local election of a post master from the three candidates standing highest on the civil-service examination.—Anandale Post.

Litchfield Independent: Some of our Republican exchanges show that they were suddenly converted from calamity howlers to prosperity shouters by the recent election. They were very doleful during the entire three years before election Nov. 3 last, then they became optimists of the most pronounced type.

The curfew ordinace, passed by the authorities in many Nebraska towns and villages, has been declared unconstitutional, and now the "kids" whose parents cannot control them, may roam the streets as of yore, This paper alway has felt sympathy for the youth who had to look to the town authorities for instructions that should be given and enforced by the parent; hence we oyposed the curfew business.—Weeping Water Rep. (Neb.).

Major McKinley is still inflamed with his single and singular idea that he was elected for the sole purpose of rebuilding the Chinese wall of high tariff, and that the clique that surrounds him is going to take full advantage of his infatuation,—New York Journal.

Major McKinley possibly has as clear an idea as the Journal as to what he was elected for. We believe he is determined, but his is hot an inflamable nature.—Duluth News Tribune.

Northern Wheat.

Bring in your wheat to the Alvo Exchange; we are giving the very best of northern wheat flour in exchange for wheat, and as much per bushel as any mill's flour made from Nebraska grown wheat. Now is your time to get good bargains in flour; we also sell for the lowest prices.—Weeping Water Neb. Rep.

A Word to the South.

"The South can go on lynching men who commit rape and murder without a word of protest from this paper.

The South can continue to send its beautiful girls to this city and we will entertain them if it takes our last dollar.

But we want the South to distinctly understand this: No more New York money for those sections which vote against New York's interests."--New York Dispatch.

The above from a leadiug New York gold standard parer is very much to the point. It tells the South it can, for all it, do about as it pleases without a word of protest, except that the South must if it wants any money, not vote against New York's interests.

This seems to be a little outspoken. But an open confession is good for the soul. Reports were abroad before election of iustances were southern villages or schools needed money and had arrainged for some eastern capital, but, it was not fourthcomming when the money was wanted. But now it is nearly four years till the next presidential election and the New York Dispatch is publishing this notice to the South "No more New York money for those sections which vote against New York's interests."

Is not this sectionalism with a vengence?

One would infer from the tone of this article that New York had the power to do as she pleased with the rest of the country. That she was indeed as in name the Empire State. That the poor South must on suppliant knee come to her and faithfully promise to support the "gold standard" "New York's interests" before it can get any New York money: Thereby implying that New York money is all the money there is to be had. Away with such arguments. They may work in New York, but the people outside of the Empire State are learning that they can get along without New York. They even went so far as to elect a president from another state; and that by such a number of electors as to have allowed New York to have refrained from voting if she saw fit at the last election.

McGary Again.

INDEPENDENCE, Dec. 22nd. 1896.

EDITOR:—Merry Christmas to ye Editor and staff. May you enjoy the day with service and song. Remember it is a day of joy rather than one of mirth.

Time is on the wing and Mark Hanna's millenial has not materialized yet, when will the Gods of Mammon shower their blessings upon humanity.

If there was ever a time in the history of this country when a revival in business was needed it is now.

There is no doubt but soup houses and charirity will have a larger business this winter than ever before.

Since the election the largest carpet manufactory in the world in (New York) has shut down throwing 2,500 men out of employment, and upon which 7000 people were dependent for support.

The Pullman Palace Car Co. at Pullman, Ill., since the election have cut the wages of their men 15 per cent. The Armour packing Co. of Kansas City are laying off a large number of their men, and these are only a few of the many manufactories that are doing the same thing.

Before election the republicans said close up the siler mines and start up the manufactories and prosperity would reign supreme. Consistency thou art a jewel.

Our town (Independence) now has two creameries which are doing a fair business considering the hard times, and there is quite a merchantile trade at Lyndale and Maple Plain. So take it all in all we have quite a prosperous trade in our town.

JOHN H. MCGARY.

As Certain as That the Sun Shines.

W. J. Bryan, late candidate for President of the United States, after making the most remarkable campaign of which there is a reckord, is not cast down by his defeat. With an abiding faith that the doctrine he advocated will and must prevail before the American people can have or hope for general prosperity he, urges the friends of silver coinage not to be discouraged and not to relax their efforts to enlighten the masses, and that four years more of bitter experiances under a single gold standard will enforce the truth and qualify the voting masses for an intelligent exercise of the right of suffrage. When they have learned by experience the deplorable condition of the country wrought by the disfranchisement of silver, neither intimidation nor bribery will divert the people from prosecuting with new and increased vigor their determined purpose to make this a peoples Government.

It is amuseingly interesting and very suggestive to know how the victors in the late contest feel in view of the present and future financial situation. They fully realize the immence expenditure of money required to defeat the silver coinage standard bearer. Some of our gold contemporaries plead pathetically for a rest. They would have the defeated stop the agitation and gracefully accept the verdict as final. Another class with much exultation declare that the end of the silver craze has come. Feeble efforts may be made to fan into a flame the dying embers. They are reluctant to give up the battle at once, but as an issue it will gradually fade away.

When we remember that silver has been "the money of the merchant" for thousands of years, and that it is the money of the United States Constitution, and that it has been the accepted and popular instrument of exchange with nine tenths of the American people, there is nothing more certain in the future than that the single gold standard will be repudiated and silver at its old ratio with gold will be reestablished. Together they will perform the functions of money in spite of all the efforts of gold syndicates and bankers to permanently devorse them. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

A WELL-BRED MAN.

Every well-bred man I ever knew had only one school of manners. The businessworld, the political world, are the fields where good breeding is tested. Sex does not enter into the question of human activity. What effect it does have is usually toward improving men's morals and manners. In business offices where there are women employes the men are always neater in appearance, more courteous in their address, and more dignified in their language, than in those where the personnel is exclusively masculine. Every sensible woman knows perfectly well that the average man is very far from the ideal. He is gentlemanly but he is not a gentleman. He is a good fellow, but not a good man. He tries to be better than he really is, but be is not bothered too much by success. The genuine gentleman, calm, serene, polite to all, is only found once in ten men. The other nine range from this high level to that of the boor. Yet progress is always making, and within my own expereience I have noticed a perceptible change for the better.—From "Is Chivalry Dead," in Demorest's Magazine for January,

"So his mother intends making a pianist of him?"

"Yes."

"Whom has she chosen for a teacher?"

"He haf not got that far yet; at present she is just letting his hair grow."—The Musical Idea.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18, 1896.

Senator Vest has lost none of his old-time power of expression, nor any of his confidence in the principles for which he has been fighting so long. He made this plain in a short speech he delivered this week. Although he based his remarks upon the dead issue and that he only did so because many well-meaning people were urging Congress to act upon it. Later, the death of the Dingley bill was announced by Sherman. Apropos of the late campaign, Mr. Vest said: "While I might be subjected to the charge of being a lunatic, an anarchist and a repudiator, I assert that the only relief for the people is to give them more money. If we are lunatics and anarchists because we ask for the openeng of the mints to the free coinage of silver, then over six million American freemen who voted for Wm. J. Bryan are lunatics, and may God help the republic! But it is a vile slander. The men who supported the great leader, Wm. J. Bryan, are as loyal and as intelligent a body of men as any in this country. The gold standard which is the root of this evil is the vilest monopoly ever conceived in the mind of the mortal man".

The whole Cuban business was virtually postponed until January when the Senate adopted Senator Morgan's resolution asking the President to furnish all the information about the present situation in Cuba he has, as President Cleveland is hunting on the coast of South Carolinia and Congress has already addopted the resolution providing for a recess from Dec 22 to Jan. 5. The speeches made on the subject in the House and Senate have been about as effective as the excited meetings held through the country.

The executive committee of the Bimetallic Union has been here for several days, preparing to continue the educational work for silver. All the prominent silver men in Congress have been confering with members of the committee at different times, but there has been no single meeting of all the silver men yet.

Although Senator Allen's resolution for the appointment of a Senate committee to investigate the alleged wholesale use of money in the late National campaign was offered without consultation with democrats, its spirit meets their approbation. Democrats have ever since the remarkable results of the election in a number of States were announced been anxious to investigate the why and wherefore of the abnormal increase in the total vote cast. Senator Allen had read in connection with his resolution a list of states in which Bryan's vote largely exceeded the winning vote of 1892 and yet he was defeated by heavy majorities. Senator Gorman says he is certain that the total alleged vote of Maryland was at least 20,000 excess of the male population on the first of last January, and he would like nothing better than to find out where the excess came from. According to some of the best Parliamentaries, Mr. Allen's resolution would have to be changed a little in order to be effective. For instance, Senator Morgan said: "If Senator Allen makes his resolution joint, and it should pass the Senate and House, there would be no doubt of the authority of Congress to probe the matter to its fullest depth. The Senate alone, as I view it, cannot inquire into an election in a State, or even into the election of a President."

It is not probable that Secretary Francis, whose nomination has not yet been acted upon by the Senate, will be among those which will be left pigeon-holed when the Fifty-fourth Congress expires at noon on the 3rd of next March, although it is altogether out of the usual for action to be deferred on a Cabinet nomination. It is a good 16 to one bet that the nominations of a considerable number of gold democrats will be killed by non-action.

Representative McMillin, the ranking democratic member of the House ways and Means committee, says of the reckless haste of the republicans in getting a tariff bill ready for the extra session of Congress: "The republicans are determined to return to the old principle of high protection. They are not satisfied either with the present law or with the Dingley bill. They propose to again try to increase wealth by increasing taxes. Such legislation is not needed in the least. There are now in the Treasury $230,000,000, or $130,000,000 in excess of the $100,000,000, gold reserve. There is no way to get this back into circulation, except by buying bonds or paying it out for current expences. There is no excuse for holding a sum in excess of the reserve, and if revenues are increased before it is absorbed by government expenses that will be the result. With economy in expenditures Mr. McKinley's administration would be more than half out before this $130,000,000 would be exhausted, even if the present rate of defiency continued, which is not probable. The surplus in the Treasury in excess of the reserve amounts to $9 for every family in the U. S. this put back into circulation would tend to quicken business and ought not be held out of circulation permently."

Clubbing Offer.

Nothing helps while away long winter evenings to better advantage than good wholesome reading. Papers magazines and books are cheap now. Everybody can afford to take one or more. We have made arrangments to club with the papers and magazines mentioned below as follows:

The BUFFALO GAZETTE, weekly and the Farm, Stock and Home, every two weeks, for one year, $1.30.

The BUFFALO GAZETTE, weekly and Demorest Magazine, monthly, $2.60.

The BUFFALO GAZETTE, weekly and Cosmopolitan, monthly magazine, one year for $2.

Largest and Best.

The publishers of the St. Paul Weekly Dispatch have just favored us with a copy of their annual premium supplement. Some of the offers which they make are simply wonderful. Articles which would cost more than the subscription price of the paper are given free with a year's subscription. There is something of interest in it for every member of every family.

The subscription price of the Weekly Dispatch is but 75 cents per annum, and it is the largest and best weekly paper published in Minnesota consisting of from ten to sixteen pages per week.

Send postal card for sample copies of paper and premium supplement to Weekly Dispatch, St. Paul, Minn.

TWICE-A-WEEK COURRIER-JOURNAL.

Beginning the first of the new year, the Weekly Courrier-Journal, of Louisville, Ky., will be changed to the Twice-a-week Courier-Journal. It will be published Wednesday and Saturday mornings. The paper will be six pages, or twelve pages a week, instead of ten pages weekly, as at present, an increase of 832 columns of matter during the year. The Wednesday issue will be devoted exclusively to news and politics, while the Satnrday issue will be strictly a family paper—filled with stories, miscellany, pictures, poetry, sketches, etc. The politics of the paper will not be changed, and the battle for pure Democracy and true Democratic principles will be continued successfully, in the future as in the past. In spite of the expence involved in the inprovements noted, the price of the Twice-a-week Courrier-Journal will remain the same, one dollar a year, with liberal inducements to agents or to old subscribers who send in new ones. A feature during the coming year will be the editorials of Mr. Henry Watterson on political and other topics of the day.

Besides the 11 newspaper men in the next congress there will be several men whom the newspapers have made.

Uncle Sam's deadhead mail matter the last fiscal year amounted to 52,348,000 pounds. At least one-half of it only made good waste paper.

A Boston physician suggests gasphyxia to describe a fatal result of gas inhalation, because the victim is poisoned as well as asphyxiated.

An old farmer being asked by a professional what he regarded as the most reliable weather report sententiously answered "Thunder." His head was level.

The Congressional Record has resumed business at the old stand. Many a statesman has lived long enough to wish that the Record had never been printed.

The fact that the British government has ordered 10,000 bicycles for mail carriers is striking proof that the wheel is making rapid headway in business as well as pleasure.

When should a girl marry? asks a correspondent. Every level-headed girl can answer that question better than any newspaper. She generally prefers to wait until the right man comes along.

An Ohio man has been arrested for trying to blow up his mother-in-law with dynamite, and a Wisconsin man has been divorced from his wife and married to his mother-in-law. Time only will tell which method of revenge is the most effective.

The report of the commissioner of internal revenue shows that "moonshining" has steadily increased. Last year 1,905 illicit distilleries were seized, the largest number in any year. In the last 12 years ten federal officers have been killed and 15 wounded in conflicts with moonshiners.

According to the latest estimates of population in several states, nine of them, namely, New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Ohio, Missouri, Texas, Indiana, Michigan and Iowa, have an aggregate population of 38,223,000, or more than half the population of the entire union, which is about 72,000,000.

England is threatened with "exhausted coal mines." But if she can wiggle along for a few years it is likely the sun's heat will be stored in reservoirs, while heat from chemical combinations and electricity will be so cheap and so in reach of all as to make the coming generation wonder at the stupidity of their grandfathers.

The girls and young women in the Brooklyn (N. Y.) high school outnumber the boys and young men two to one. In the colleges to which they have been admitted the young women are winning the leading honors. It will be well for young men to remember that there are other things besides scull racing, football and athletics, good as they may be in developing muscle.

When one reads that a device has been patented in England for supplying watches with incandescent light without increasing the size of the watchcase, wonder grows from more to more—first, wonder how so big a device can be packed in such small quarters, and then wonder how long the watch will remain unmagnetized and true to the time with a potent little battery in its vitals constantly trying to mesmerize its movements.

If the nations of the earth spent annually six per cent. of the cost of navies and for war in the interest of peace and the uplifting of the race what a wonderful improvement there would be. As it is, the time of many millions of people and millions upon millions of money are yearly expended in slaughtering each other, and often for the most trivial reasons. The desire to kill because you are mad or stronger is man's inheritance from the beast.

Lombroso, the Italian criminologist, in a new book, has indorsed the methods in vogue in the Elmira (N. Y.) reformatory for criminals. He pronounces it the most scientific method yet applied to such classes. The main feature of the Elmira method is the ticket-of-leave process, by which prisoners are paroled. Before being paroled the prisoners are carefully instructed in trades. Of the 329 paroled last year all except one went forth with a trade.

John Sherman, of Ohio, has now served a longer time in the United States senate than any other man ever served. He has passed the record made by Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri, the "30-year senator." Mr. Benton was a member of the senate thirty years and five months, or from October 2, 1820, to March 3, 1851. John Sherman entered the senate in March 3, 1861, and has been there ever since, except during the four years, from 1877 to 1881, that he was secretary of the treasury under President Hayes. Mr. Sherman's actual service is thirty-one years, eight months and twelve days.

The recommendation of the Allegheny (Pa.) county medical society to substitute gas in the place of electricity and the gallows in public executions of criminals is one which deserves consideration. Asphyxiation by this means is as deadly an agency as electricity or strangulation, and as the gas would be introduced into an airtight cell while the condemned prisoner was asleep it would unquestionably be more painless than either. It would also do away with the presence of spectators, which is not the least of the arguments in its favor. The proposition of the physicians deserves at least careful investigation.

They have not only harnessed Niagara, but they have discovered ways of utilizing the force of the waves that forever beat on the bosom of the ocean. Sometimes people wonder what we will do for light and heat and power when the coal is all consumed, if it ever will be. But nature is a vast storehouse of power; all that we lack is means and knowledge to utilize it. Some day the very sunshine that now falls unused may be turned to account in modern mechanics. There are just as many undiscovered things now as there were 100 years ago, though occasionally we hear that everything has been discovered.

FIFTY-FOURTH CONGRESS.

The Proceedings of the Second Session.

The United States senate on the 17th passed the Lodge immigration bill by a vote of 52 to 16. It excludes all persons over 16 years of age who cannot read and write the language of their country or some other language. Adjourned to the 21st. In the house the army appropriation bill was passed and the legislative, executive and judicial bill ($21,669,369) was considered. Bills were introduced appropriating $50,000 for the erection of a monumental statue to James G. Blaine in Washington, and to abolish the offices of commissioner and assistant commissioner of Indian affairs and to create in their stead a board of Indian commissioners of three members.

The United States senate was not in session on the 18th. In the house 37 pension and relief bills were passed, and the rest of the session was occupied in discussing five war claim bills.

There was no session of the United States senate on the 19th. In the house a bill appropriating $130,000 to enable the government to make an exhibit at the Tennessee centennial exposition at Nashville next year was passed. Charles Crisp, the newly elected member from the Third Georgia district, was sworn in. The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was further considered.

In the United States senate on the 21st Senator Cameron presented the report of the committee on foreign relations favorable to his resolution recognizing the independence of Cuba and it went over until after the holidays. A resolution was also presented declaring that the power to recognize the independence of foreign people struggling to establish a government is vested in congress, and not in the president. In the house the senate amendments to the immigration bill were nonconcurred in and a conference agreed to. The consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was completed.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The senate committee on foreign relations, by a practically unanimous vote, ordered a favorable report to be made to the senate on the 21st on the Cameron resolution recognizing the independence of the republic of Cuba.

THREE MEN LYNCHED.

Russellville, Ky., the Scene of the Awful Deed.

Arch, Dink and Bill Proctor, Awaiting Trial for Murder, Are Lynched—The Latter Riddled with Bullets in His Cell—The Others Hanged.

Russellville, Ky., Dec. 19.—A bloodthirsty, armed mob of men from Logan county, half of whom came from Adairville, came to this town after midnight Friday morning and killed three prisoners who were in the jail waiting for trial on the charges of murder and conspiracy. Arch Proctor, who murdered Aaron and "Doc" Grafton at Adairville October 24, was taken from the jail with his father, Dink Proctor, charged with conspiracy in the Grafton case, and both men were hanged to the same tree just outside the town. Bill Proctor, a half brother of Dink, and credited with being a real desperado, who had terrorized the Adairville district for a score of years, was riddled with bullets in his cell, defying the mob to take him out alive and cursing them with his last breath.

Think One Should Have Been Spared.

The law-abiding citizens of Adairville congratulated each other that Bill and his nephew had been put out of the way, but the people of the county generally say that Dink was not deserving of death.

The brothers were acquitted of the charge of killing Aaron Crafton and Arch was held for trial in $2,000 bonds. The trial of all three was set for Friday in the other murder case. Bill killed several men and had been on trial four times for his life. He was one of the four men who was charged with hanging Ed Traughber about two years ago.

SHAKEN UP.

The British Isles Visited by Violent Earthquake Shocks.

London, Dec. 18.—Two strong shocks of earthquake were felt throughout Wales, the Midlands and the south of England early Thursday morning. The first shock occurred at three o'clock and the second at half-past five, the waves passing from west to east. Houses were violently shaken, beds moved from their places, doors forced open and furniture overturned. Telegrams from all quarters concur in the statement that the first shock was of 30 seconds duration and was followed by a loud rumbling sound and minor tremblings of the earth. The second shock was shorter but more severe. Many people in Windsor, Cheltenham and other places rushed out of their houses, but no one was hurt.

Hereford cathedral was injured. There the dull rumbling beneath the earth's surface was followed by two loud crashes and a terrible lifting and rocking. The panic at Hereford was so great that one woman died of fright. People rushed wildly into the streets. Many chimneys fell, crashing into the thoroughfares, and all the pinnacles of St. Nicholas' church toppled over and part of the pinnacle of the cathedral fell to the ground.

A singular phenomenon occurred at Bridgenorth, near Shrewsbury, previous to the disturbance. The streets suddenly seemed to be on fire and there was a violent report, accompanied by a shaking of the earth. People who were abroad in that vicinity say they were for a time unable to walk owing to the vibrations. There was very great excitement among the rustics about Poole, who thought that the end of the world had come.

LYNCHED IN KENTUCKY.

A Mob of 500 Men Hang "Jim" Stone in the Court Yard at Mayfield.

Mayfield, Ky., Dec. 22.—Sheriff Cook and W. A. Usher arrived in the city Sunday morning on the Cannon-Ball, having in charge "Jim" Stone, a negro, who has been in Louisville for the last two weeks awaiting trial for assaulting Mrs. J. M. R. Green, November 24. Sunday night at 10:30 o'clock a mob of 500 masked men assembled a few hundred yards from the courthouse and marched to the county jail, and after breaking the doors of the prison, entered and secured the negro. He was carried to the courtyard and swung up to a limb. Several of the mob fired shots through his body.

Hungarian Mine Disaster.

Buda-Pesth, Dec. 21.—An explosion of fire damp occurred in a coal mine at Resicza, in the valley of the Temes. A large number of men were at work in the mine and 40 of them were killed outright. Rescuing parties entered the mine as soon as possible after the explosion and succeeded in taking out 18 men who were seriously injured. It is known that 27 miners are still entombed, but whether they are alive or not is uncertain. Efforts to reach the part of the mine in which they were working are being made, but the work of rescue is greatly hampered by the bad character of the wreckage and the great volume of afterdamp.

Found Guilty.

Denver, Col., Dec. 22.—The case of the government against C. H. Dow, president; Sidney G. McClurken, teller of the defunct Commercial national bank, and Dr. O. E. Miller, of Chicago, charged with misapplying funds and defrauding the depositors of the wrecked institution, came to an end late Monday afternoon, the jury returning a verdict of guilty against all three of the defendants. The Commercial national, owing to the "kiting" of Miller's checks for a sum aggregating $125,000, was forced to suspend during the great panic of 1893. The verdict will probably place the convicted men behind the prison bars.

Cost Five Lives.

Ouray, Col., Dec. 19.—A frightful accident occurred in the Virginius mine near here Friday morning, by which five men were almost instantly dashed into eternity. The dead are: Gabriel Russ, John Antras, Charles Swanson, Charles Anderson and Louis Jackson. The accident occurred in the shaft of the Virginius mine, where the unfortunate men were at work repairing the timbering of the shaft. They were working from the cage suspended in the shaft, having it raised and lowered as they progressed with their work.

Wizard Hermann Is Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Dec. 18.—Prof. Alexander Herrmann, the magician, who appeared at the Lyceum theater Wednesday night, concluding an engagement of three performances, died Thursday morning in his private car, while on the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh road, on his way to Bradford, Pa., where he was to open an engagement Thursday evening. Heart disease is supposed to be the cause of his death.

OLNEY'S OPINION.

Foreshadows a Possible Conflict Between President and Congress.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The Cameron Cuban resolution, if pressed to final passage in both houses, will constitute a direct and formidable issue between the executive and legislative branches of the government. This is clearly indicated by an interview given out by Secretary Olney. Secretary Olney being asked his opinion as to the nature and effect of the proposed resolution recognizing the independence of the republic of Cuba said:

"I have no objection to stating my own view of the resolution respecting the independence of the so-called republic of Cuba which, it is reported, is to be laid before the senate on Monday. Indeed, as there are likely to be serious misapprehensions regarding such resolution, both in this country and abroad, and as such apprehensions may have injurious results of a grave character, it is perhaps my duty to point out that the resolution, if passed by the senate, can probably be regarded only as an expression of opinion by the eminent gentlemen who vote for it in the senate, and if passed by the house of representatives, can only be regarded as another expression of opinion by the eminent gentlemen who vote for it in the house. The power to recognize the so-called republic of Cuba as an independent state rests exclusively with the executive. A resolution on the subject by the senate or by the house, or by both bodies, or by one, whether concurrent or joint, is inoperative as legislation and is important only as advice of great weight voluntarily tendered to the executive regarding the manner in which he shall exercise his constitutional functions.

"The operation and effect of the proposed resolution, therefore, even if passed by both houses of congress by a two-thirds vote, are perfectly plain. It may raise expectations in some quarters which can never be realized. It may inflame popular passions both in this country and elsewhere, may thus put in peril the lives and property of American citizens who are resident and traveling abroad, and will certainly obstruct and perhaps defeat the best efforts of this government to afford such citizens due protection. But, except in these ways and unless the advice embodied in the resolution shall lead the executive to revise conclusions already reached and officially declared, the resolution will be without effect and will leave unaltered the attitude of this government towards the two contending parties in Cuba."

Of course, Secretary Olney's statement indicates clearly that if the joint resolution ever passes both branches of congress and is sent to the president the latter will veto it, not only on the ground of impolicy, but also because it constitutes an infringement of his own prerogatives. Moreover, the secretary in his interview goes beyond this point, and in almost as many words says that no attention will be paid to the will of congress in this matter, even if the resolution is passed over the president's veto. In this case a grave conflict of powers of two branches of the government might be expected to follow, though just how the issue may be made up so that it can be reached by the supreme court, the arbiter of all questions of constitutionality, is not clear at present.

It is suggested, however, that if the issue goes to that length congress may achieve its purpose indirectly by the exercise of a power certainly confided to it exclusively by the constitution, namely, by a declaration of war, which is, after all, in the judgment of many authorities, only what the recognition of the independence of Cuba under existing conditions would mean.

Madrid, Dec. 21.—The explicit announcement is made that Senor Dupuy de Lome, the Spanish minister at Washington, has telegraphed to his home government here that he had a conference with Mr. Olney, the secretary of state, in the course of which the latter assured him that Spain might rest tranquil until March, at least, since, despite the attitude of congress, President Cleveland would not recognize the independence of Cuba.

KILLED BY THE SHERIFF.

Minnesota Official Shoots Dead a Bank Robber.

Moorhead, Minn., Dec. 22. — Sheriff Gunderson, of Norman county, Minn., Monday afternoon at five o'clock shot dead an unknown man near Rolette, N. D. The desperado had robbed the Bank of Caledonia on Sunday afternoon. Sheriff Gunderson was notified and started for the scene, accompanied by Constable Bosmoth. The officers met the bandit on the road leading to Ada. He was armed and resisted arrest. He pulled a gun on the sheriff, but the latter was too quick for him, and covered him with a Winchester, hitting him in the lungs.

The desperado is supposed to be an old-timer at the business and has a partner who has not been captured up to the present time. The papers found on his person gave no clew to the man's identity. How much money he secured from the Bank of Caledonia is not known.

Deep Waterway.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 19.—The United States deep waterway commission, which was appointed to make an investigation of the feasibility of establishing a deep waterway, of sufficient magnitude to permit of the free passage of ocean steamers between the great lakes and the seaboard, and report the result to congress, is in session at the Russell house. The United States commission is working in conjunction with a similar body appointed by the Canadian government. President Angell of the University of Michigan is at the head of the United States commission, with John E. Russell, of Massachusetts and L. E. Cooley, of Chicago, as fellow members. The Canadian commision is composed of D. A. Howland, T. C. Keefer and Thomas Monroe. The latter is official engineer for the dominion.

Sharkey Gets His Money.

San Francisco, Dec. 19.—As soon as the Anglo-Californian bank opened Friday morning Tom Sharkey presented the certified check for $10,000 handed him by Referee Wyatt Earp on the day of the fight with Fitzsimmons. The cashier notified the sailor that attachments aggregating $1,500 had been filed against the certificate. "All right, then, give me the balance," remarked Sharkey in a way which indicated that he was anxious to get the $8,500 out of the reach of the collectors. The money was turned over to him and he proceeded on his way jubilantly.

Jail Breakers Recaptured.

St. Joseph, Mo., Dec. 22.—An attempt to break jail in a peculiar manner occurred at Savannah, 12 miles north of this city Sunday night. Red O'Brien, the noted bank robber who was arrested in California and brought back there for robbing the state bank of Savannah of $14,000, engineered the plot. He and three other criminals secured a stick of dynamite and blew away the jail door and one side of the jail after which they fled. The sheriff and citizens, however, pursued and captured the trio. O'Brien had a loaded revolver in his pocket.

GOMPERS REELECTED.

Again Honored by the Federation of Labor—Declaration for Free Coinage.

Cincinnati, Dec. 19.—At the opening of Friday morning's session of the convention of the American Federation of Labor, the following resolution, introduced Wednesday by Delegate Ashe, of Boston, came up under special order:

"Resolved, That we, the delegates of the American Federation of Labor, in convention assembled, demand such amendments to the constitution of the United States, and the constitutions of the several states thereof, as will deprive the supreme courts of the United States and of the several states of power to set aside laws duly enacted by the legally chosen representatives of the people, as we believe the proper function of courts to be to expound and administer law, but not to make it."

The resolution elicited much discussion, the preponderance of which was that it would be construed as reflecting upon the courts of the country, and especially the United States supreme court, and throw the Federation of Labor in a position before the public which it did not wish to occupy. The vote resulted in the defeat of the resolution by a vote of 44 to 21.

Delegate Weisemann offered a resolution that the former action of the federation favoring free coinage of silver at sixteen to one be reconsidered, and the resolutions committee through which it was presented to the convention recommend that as the subject was one on which workingmen had become divided the best interests of the federation would be best served by refusing to give it any consideration.

A motion that the whole matter be laid on the table was lost by a vote of 137 to 931. Delegate Yarnell offered a substitute reaffirming the former action of the federation on the silver question, and again the opportunity for oratory was freely made use of, the benefits the workingmen would have from free coinage being presented in about the same manner as on the stump during the campaign.

Delegate John B. Lennon, of the Journeymen Tailors, offered as a substitute to the resolutions printed by Delegate Yarnell, a resolution reaffirming the stand taken by the American Federation of Labor at its three past conventions, favoring the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of sixteen to one by the United States, without the consent or approval of any other nation, and disavowing any intention that this action should be construed as indorsing any political party. The discussion of free silver, and the propriety of the convention making a declaration of any kind with relation to free and unlimited coinage of the white metal, continued with more or less forensic eloquence until within a few minutes of the time set for adjournment, when debate was stopped by a motion for the previous question, which was promptly seconded. The Lennon substitute was carried by a vote of 1,335 against 302.

At the Thursday afternoon session the special order for the annual election was deferred to hear the report of the committee on the president's report. It indorsed all the recommendations of President Gompers in every instance, and was indorsed by a unanimous vote of the convention. The following officers were then elected, in every case the secretary being instructed to cast the unanimous vote of the convention for the nominee:

President, Samuel Gompers, of New York; first vice president, P. J. McGuire, of Philadelphia; second vice president, James Duncan, of Baltimore; third vice president, James O'Connell, of Chicago; fourth vice president, M. M. Garland, of Pittsburgh, Pa.; secretary, Frank Morrison, of Chicago, Ill.; treasurer, John D Lennon, of Bloomington, Ill.

Nashville, Tenn., was selected as the location for the next session, the vote being: Nashville, 1,618; Kansas City, 336; Salt Lake City, 262; St. Louis, 250.

Cincinnati, Dec. 21.—The convention of the American Federation of Labor opened promptly at nine o'clock Saturday morning, with nearly all delegates present.

The committee on president's report recommended that the action of granting of a charter to the American Federation of Musicians, which now has a membership of nearly 5,000, be indorsed, and the recommendation was unanimously concurred in.

Committee on reorganization recommended that the National Association of Electrical Workers be granted affiliation, and cooperation of the American Federation of Labor in the work of organization, and the recommendation was concurred in.

Consideration of the report of the special committee on the eight-hour movement was taken up, the convention acting on each recommendation separately, and indorsing each unanimously until the one favoring a committee of two to go to Washington was reached.

Mr. Lloyd moved that the two representatives to visit Washington to work for the eight-hour bill be selected by the convention instead of being appointed by the executive council; carried by the close vote of yeas, 34; nays, 33.

When the committee on law reported in favor of removing the headquarters from Indianapolis there was a long fight precipitated. It required a two-thirds vote to strike out "Indianapolis" from the constitutional provision for the location of headquarters, and only a majority vote was necessary to insert the name of another city. One of the objections made against Indianapolis was its lack of facilities for disseminating information or news and orders from the general officers through the press associations. The first ballot resulted: Washington, 1,705; Chicago, 487.

Say He Still Lives.

Key West, Fla., Dec. 18.—Passengers by the Olivette report great uneasiness is felt in Havana on account of the uncertainty of Maceo's death. It is reported on good authority that Gen. Prats, commander of Matanzas province, has notified Gen. Weyler by telegram to cease all demonstrations on account of the death of Maceo and that Gen. Bernal, of said province, had an engagement Tuesday week with Maceo, who had 5,000 men with him. The Spaniards report a victory as usual. Passengers state that the report of Maceo's death is well understood in Havana and that it was made up by order of the home government to influence the congress of the United States.

Three Burned to Death in Ohio.

Ashtabula, O., Dec. 21.—A terrible holocaust occurred early in the morning at Sheffield, seven miles from here. P. Aelo and his wife, natives of Finland, were awakened at three o'clock by neighbors shouting that their house was on fire. The man and his wife escaped in safety, but returned to secure a grandchild which was left behind. The floor gave way and the three were precipitated into the cellar, where they burned to death.

TRAPPING TURKEYS.

The Method Usually Employed in Taking the Wild Bird.

One of the methods by which wild turkeys are taken by native hunters, as described in "Hunting and Fishing in Florida," by Mr. C. B. Cory, curator of the department of ornithology in the Field Columbian museum, Chicago, certainly does little credit to the intelligence of the turkeys.

A place is found where turkeys are numerous. Corn is scattered about, and if that is eaten, more is placed in this manner for a week or two, until they become accustomed to going there for food. Then small logs are laid, forming a square box about six or eight inches in height; possibly two logs on each side, one above the other. Inside is placed the corn, and the turkeys enter it readily, as the obstruction is not sufficient to excite their fears.

The next night another log is added, raising the box a little higher, perhaps a foot or so, and this process goes on until the small logs form a cone-shaped box, narrowing at the top, leaving an opening by which they can enter at the top.

Corn is placed in the box, and a few kernels leading to it, as usual, and the turkeys, mounting the last log, drop in and eat up the corn. And now they are caught. The opening is so narrow that, although a turkey can easily jump down through it with closed wings, it cannot jump out again with its wings spread.

ATE A BARREL OF EGGS A DAY.

Shipwrecked Men Subsisted on Them for Twelve Days.

"Do you like eggs?" was the question that stirred up a "'49er" to make some talk in a Bangor store the other day. He was an old man, says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, and he straightened up to something like the height of his prime as he answered: "I had a surfeit of them once. 'Twas many years ago when I was on the way home from California. We left the isthmus on a good brig bound for New York but ran into a coral reef in the Caribbean sea and were wrecked. It was a patch of sand just out of the water, but you ought to see the flocks of sea fowl that nestled on it. They had to move out of the way to give us room to stay there and that was about all they would do. Their nests were everywhere and there were eggs in abundance. We ate about a barrel of them every day during the 12 days we were there. Some of us got off in a boat and went to San Juan, in Nicaragua, where we got a vessel to go after those we left on the reef. That vessel was commanded by William Lawrence, of Bath, who was killed by a man named Wilkinson while he was a policeman there. We tried to get to the reef, but bad weather stove us up so we had to set in for New Orleans, where we found the rest of the men rescued by another vessel. But eggs"—the old man's face took on a peculiar expression.

A Pair of Panthers.

Smut creek is a small stream in the Big Horn mountains. A rancher in the valley set a trap for panthers, which he thought had been stealing his sheep. The trap was of steel, extra large and heavy, and baited with mutton. Four days in succession the rancher visited the trap, and found nothing. He omitted the fifth day, and when he came on the sixth he heard a groaning sound. He found that every bush within five yards had been torn up by the roots, the ground itself looked as if it had been plowed, and the trap was gone. Following the sounds he saw the tips of the ears of an animal behind a rock. He made a careful detour, with rifle cocked, and finally came upon, not one, but two panthers. One had its leg in the trap, the other was licking the trapped panther, as a cat would her kitten. The rancher shot the untrapped panther, and then easily dispatched the other.

ALL kinds, little or big. St. Jacobs Oil surely cures aches and pains.

IT is brave to overcome; it is saintly to endure.

Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

WHEN I hung up my stocking—So long it seems to-day
Since children three aflush with glee left off their merry-play,
And, pinning to the mantelshelf their stockings in a row,
Each laughing sprite in robe of white away to bed did go.

When I hung up my stocking—The world was different then;
Unvexed the mind by things that blind and clog the souls of men;
A prayer lisped at a mother's knee, a hope to "only peep—"
If we were quick—and see St. Nick while others lay asleep.

When I hung up my stocking—The gray dawn came so late
Each little head in trundle bed grew weary with the wait;
A stealthy rush of white-robed three—and then the stockings split
Their treasure out, to laugh and shout, upon the patchwork quilt.

When I hung up my stocking—If now I could but feel
Such bubbling joy without alloy as reaching to the heel
Brought in the cold gray dawnings of those Christmas days gone by,
Not anyone beneath the sun would be so glad as I.

When I hung up my stocking—No mine of golden ore,
Or jewels rare, past all compare, as in
Aladdin's store,
Could make me feel such wealth to-day as once I used to know
When counting out, with laugh and shout, the pennies in the toe.

When I hung up my stocking—If we could always hold,
Throughout our days of devious ways, like pictures framed in gold,
Close to our hearts such memories of childhood's perfect bliss,
We'd often find what now, too blind, in life
we simply miss.

AN "INCURABLE" CHRISTMAS

THEY were dressing dolls; the whole 16, and they were talking—or chattering—like magpies, when the door opened and Rev. Edward Dayton walked into the room. Now Rev. Edward was tall, he was young, he had a pair of well opened, honest blue eyes, his fair hair showed decided symptoms of curling, when it was allowed to grow beyond the orthodox clerical length, his features were distinctly Greek in their outline, and his figure would have done credit to any young athlete; his clerical garb was well cut, and of the finest cloth, and when to these attractions were added a particularly frank and charming manner, and a most fascinating laugh, it can readily be understood why the new rector of St. Boniface, Chicago, was so popular with his congregation, and so adored by the feminine portion thereof.

Consequently when he entered the rectory drawing-room on the afternoon in question, where 16 pretty girls were employed in dressing dolls for the Christmas bazar, and, in an incidental manner, enjoying the excellent tea and cake dispensed by his maiden aunt, it was not to be wondered at that his appearance caused a little thrill of excitement to pass through the circle of fair workers.

The rector had only been at St. Boniface nine months, but already he was on fairly intimate terms with the ladies of his congregation, especially the young girls, so without any preliminary he stated his errand.

"I am in a fearful fix," he announced, in a very boyish and unclerical manner. "And I want one of you young ladies to help me out of it."

The offers of assistance were many and prompt, but the rector still looked worried and anxious.

"You see it is just this way," he began, balancing his spoon across the edge of his cup, and gazing at it intently. "I have suddenly been called away on some errand for the bishop and it will be impossible for me to get back to Chicago for Christmas day."

He paused here, and a storm of exclamation and regrets was poured forth, in the midst of which a saucy young voice was heard to exclaim:

"And you want us to write your Christmas sermon for you? How perfectly charming. I have always fancied it must be most delightful to stand up in a pulpit and deliver nicely pointed little moral axioms — always, of course, carefully pointed at some one else."

And the speaker, a slight, graceful little blonde, with a piquant expression, and a pair of mischievous blue eyes, shot a half-laughing, half-defiant look at the handsome young rector, who reddened slightly as he replied in rather constrained tones: "Many thanks, Miss Evelyn, but I won't trouble you to that extent. I have arranged to have one of Mr. Brooke's curates take the services for me, but he leaves directly after the morning service, to go to one of the mission churches, and you see I had promised to devote Christmas afternoon to the patients of the 'Home for Incurables' and they have counted on having some one read to them and make the afternoon a little bright; and I can't find anyone to take my place; everyone wants to be at home on Christmas day, so I must tell the poor things that I cannot keep my promise—unless—"

He broke off hesitatingly, and looked entreatingly at the bevy of fair damsels before him.

But they all began with one accord to make excuse.

One was "so sorry, but she had promised months ago to go to a matinee on Christmas afternoon, and couldn't break the engagement," another "felt just awfully to refuse Mr. Dayton anything," the last, with a melting glance from a pair of big brown eyes, "but grandmamma was coming to spend the day, and it would seem so disrespectful to leave her."

A third "was taking part in a concert their guild was to give on New Year's eve, and she had promised Mr. Trevor faithfully to practice his accompaniment with him on Christmas afternoon; he was so anxious to be well up in his part of the trio."

A fourth girl "wished dear Mr. Dayton would ask her something else, for she would just love to help him, but really it made her so dismal, seeing those poor souls suffer, that mamma had positively forbidden her to go again."

They were all so sorry, and so regretted that they could not help him, that the young rector felt sure that it was not the will that was wanting, and thanked them for their ready sympathy as warmly as though it had been practical help.

But in the midst of the volley of excuses a bright thought struck one of the fair defaulters, and she exclaimed:

"Why don't you ask Evelyn to take your place, Mr. Dayton? You would, wouldn't you, Eve, dear?"

The rector hesitated, then said, in formal tones, and without meeting Eve's eye:

"I am afraid that it would not be much in Miss Gwynn's line."

Evelyn drew herself up proudly and seemed about to reply, then a half amused, half hurt expression crossed her face, as she turned carelessly away, and sauntered over to a table where two girls sat chatting busily as they arrayed a round faced, dimpled, waxen beauty in the royal robes of Queen Elizabeth.

"Evelyn, why did Mr. Dayton say that visiting the sick was not in your line?" queried May Lindsay, as she adjusted the crown on the head of the doll queen. "I am sure there is not a girl in the guild who has done as much visiting at the hospital and "Home for Incurables, as you have. I don't see why he should seem to regard you as so frivolous lately, he never used to. Doesn't he know that for years you have gone to your 'incurables' every Sunday afternoon? Why, we all regard you as the most goody, goody girl in our set. I don't see what has come over the rector."

"It is not worth talking about," said Evelyn, lightly. "Mr. Dayton has never been asked to take an afternoon at the 'incurables' since he came until now, so he probably does not know that I am in the habit of going there. May, you are getting that ruff for her majesty too high."

And then they all plunged into the mysteries of dolls' dressmaking again.

When Edward Dayton first came to St. Boniface he had been irresistibly

"WHY, MR. DAYTON, HOW YOU STARTLED ME!"

attracted by Evelyn Gwynn's pretty face and saucy speeches, but lately his manner had been much colder, for he had arrived at the conclusion that Evelyn cared too little for serious things to consent to become a clergyman's wife, and he was too unaccustomed to women to divine that her flippant speeches were assumed, and that her gay, careless manner concealed a warm, generous heart. The fact was that Evelyn was so disgusted at the sudden mania for parish work, which had seized the young ladies of St. Boniface since Mr. Dayton's advent, that she had taken particular pains to appear indifferent, and even frivolous, and had on one or two occasions evaded doing some church work which Mr. Dayton had asked her to attend to personally; hence his remark about the "incurables" not being "in her line." Evelyn felt sore and hurt at his opinion of her and mentally resolved that for once she would desert her invalids rather than have Mr. Dayton imagine she was influenced by his wishes, but better counsel came with the morning, and she consoled herself with the thought that Mr. Dayton was out of the city and would probably never discover that she had taken his place.

It was Christmas afternoon and Eve was descending the staircase of the "Home for Incurables" on her way to the small ante-room where she had left her coat and hat.

When she entered the house it had been a bright, clear day, and as she had passed from room to room she had seemed to the poor sufferers to have brought something of the vivid outside brightness with her; now the situation was reversed, the frosty sunshine had given way to the sudden winter twilight, and, in sympathy with the change, her heart was heavy with vicarious sorrow. Like many seemingly volatile natures hers was a quickly sympathetic one, and she was sad with the sight of so many who were doomed to spend the last years of their life in suffering.

The little ante room was dark when she entered—so dark that she started, when a tall, shadowy figure loomed up before her, and a voice said: "Good evening, Miss Gwynn." I think he must have been waiting for her for some time, for his eyes were evidently to some extent used to the dim light; however that may be he could not see well enough, however hard he tried, to discern whether she looked pleased or otherwise, as she said, naturally enough: "Why, Mr. Dayton, how you startled me! I thought you were miles away."

"I got back as early as I could!" he replied, "and came around to see how the 'home' had fared for its Christmas. Let me help you into your jacket."

Well, it always is a terrible business getting a jacket to go snugly over one of our present enormous sleeved dresses, but these two seemed to make a worse job of it than usual. At length, when it was satisfactorily adjusted and Eve was fastening a monstrously elongated fur animal of some sort around her throat, Rev. Edward broke the awkward silence with a rush.

"Miss Gwynn, I want to beg your pardon."

"Why, Mr. Dayton?"

"Because I have misjudged you."

"Please don't say any more, Mr. Dayton."

"But I must. I have been sitting in judgment on you—as you know—I know you know it, and to-day I came here, and going from room to room found that you had been there before me, and had left such a trail of brightness behind you, that your path was easy to follow. The poor souls here are witnesses to qualities in you that I have been blind to."

"Please don't say any more," pleaded Evelyn. "You are going to the other extreme now, and I really won't know myself. Perhaps you did not give me credit for some things, but after all you know I am very frivolous!"

But the laugh with which she said it was not quite natural, and there was really no reason for her to walk to the window and look out, for there was nothing to be seen there but a blur of light from the window opposite.

There was a pause, and then a voice came from the shadowy figure in the center of the room.

"Miss Gwynn, you have done a great deal for these poor souls here; won't you do something for me?"

"But you are not an 'incurable,'" said Evelyn. The fur monstrosity had evidently come unfastened again and required a great deal of attention, also it seemed that the blur on the opposite side of the street had acquired a fresh interest, so it was to the back of a dimly outlined figure in the window that Rev. Edward spoke next.

"I am an 'incurable,' Miss Gwynn; I am suffering from something that I must carry with me the rest of my life, and I don't want to be cured. Eve, dear, listen to me a moment—do not speak, dear, until I have finished—let me have my say, even if the answer is 'No.' I love you, dear, so dearly; I have loved you, I think, ever since I met you, and like a self-righteous Pharisee I have endeavored to put my love aside. I had not wit enough to see the best in you, and have tortured myself by imagining I was in love with a thoroughly worldly woman. Eve, dear, I deserve nothing at your hands, but, darling, if you will only establish a home of your own for 'incurables' I will try with all the love that is in me to make you happy. Will you marry me, dear?"

The figure at the window turned around, but it said nothing. Perhaps it did not need to. Attitudes tell a great deal sometimes, and then I think there was a shadowy outline of a little outstretched hand. At any rate, Rev. Edward took three long strides across the room, and the next attitude that showed against the dim window was a very confused one. But it did not matter; no one was there to see.

Was it dark? Well! Perhaps an ordinary benighted mortal, loveless and unloving, might have thought so, but to these two the room was full of radiance, for if one is supremely happy, one carries one's atmosphere about with one, and what the rest of the world moves in matters very little.—Ethel Longley, in Chicago Saturday Evening Herald.

Christmas Trees in England.

Christmas trees were unknown in England until the reign of Queen Victoria. After the present prince of Wales had become three or four years old, Prince Albert ornamented a Christmas tree for the amusement of the infant prince. The idea pleased the people, and, as Christmas trees were every year made a feature of the court celebration, the fashion soon spread among the English.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

MINNESOTA STATE NEWS.

State Fair Improvements.

The state agricultural society is ambitious after an arena, and the legislature is to be asked this coming session to appropriate the needed amount for such a structure. The primary idea will be to afford the public a chance of witnessing the judgement of live stock exhibits, but while at it the directors of the society will endeavor to kill more than the one bird with the ammunition on hand, and so the new building, if secured, will be made to include an eight-lap bicycle track and other features. The insufficiency of the water supply for the fair grounds will also be urged on the solons, the need of a new and larger poultry-house will be pointed out, and some additions to the dairy buildings will be brought to the legislative attention. Plans and specifications for all these improvements are now in course of preparation.

A Curious Cave.

A curious cave has been found at La Moille, near Winona. The cave has a semi-circular entrance, 50 feet wide, and at the highest point 20 feet. The inner chamber is 100 feet long and about 70 feet wide. The roof arches to a height of nearly 25 feet. The walls are a mass of Indian writings, partly covered by the moss of centuries. One figure, especially prominent, is that of a man nearly six feet long and fairly well proportioned. One space is literally covered with drawings of birds and animals. The pictures are thought to be historical records of the earlier Sioux. A number of drawings of the pictures have been made and photographs have been taken, and these will be sent to heiroglyphists for translation if possible. The complex nature of the drawings, one on another, may make this very difficult.

Terrible Death.

Walter Dahlgren, the 17 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dahlgren, of St. Paul, was almost instantly kil'ed by inhaling the flames of a lamp overturned upon him while at the breakfast table. Mrs. Dahlgren left the child sitting at the table in a high chair, and taking a broom went to sweep snow from the back steps. When the mother returned to the room a few minutes later the child was feebly struggling in a volume of flames. Mrs. Dahlgren threw a comforter over the child and carried the body to a neighbor's, but the infant had ceased to breathe.

The child had probably been attracted by the light of the lamp and sought to get possession of it. In his efforts, the babe had pulled the table cloth and upset the lamp directly in the lap of his dress.

Gold.

J. C. Foley, of the Foley mine at Seine river, arrived in Duluth recently carrying 250 pounds of fine quartz specimens, all showing free gold in abundance. At Foley a railroad a mile long, from mine to mill, several substantial shaft houses, hotel, etc., have been completed. The mill is ready for turning out gold, but is waiting for mill supplies which are detained at Rat Portage and will have to be returned and taken in via Duluth and 150 miles of sleigh roads. Foley says that several big sales have been made recently and that all Canada is excited over the Rainy lake and Seine river gold fields.

Output of Iron Ore.

Official figures of the iron ore output of the Lake Superior region for the year show a total of 9,663,339 gross tons, of which Minnesota mines have shipped 4,018,000 tons. Michigan and Wisconsin mines have fallen off 750,000 tons from 1895, while Minnesota has increased.

MOONBLINK.

A Peculiar Blindness Caused by Sleeping in the Moonlight.

Three cases of "moonblink" occurred on the British steamship Acanthus, which reached Philadelphia the other day. After the low-lying hills fringing the shores of Batavia faded from view on the afternoon of July 14 for 80 days her crew of 60 officers and seamen saw no land, sighted no vessel and encountered no storm. Among the crew are three seamen who, during the run across the Indian ocean, suffered terribly from sudden blindness at night, the result of that strange disease of the eyes prevalent in the tropics, and known to sailors as "moonblink." One bright, moonlight night, while the Acanthus was steaming across the Indian ocean, one of them finding his berth in the forecastle too uncomfortably hot, went out and lay upon the deck. The moon was nearing her full and shone almost directly overhead. When the watch was changed at midnight he was awakened and was horrified to find himself blind. At first the captain thought the man might be shamming to avoid going on duty, but an investigation was made, and it was found that he could not see, although his eyes were wide open. The calamity was at once diagnosed as a case of "moonblink," and the captain cautioned his men against running such risks. When day began to break sight began to return, and by sunrise he could see as well as if nothing unusual had happened. All of that day the case formed the chief topic of conversation and when night came two more men determined to test the effect of the moon. After a two hours' nap in the full glare of the moon both men were awakened totally blind. An order from the captain prevented any further experimenting in that line during the rest of the voyage.

CURSES OF INTERMARRIAGE.

Afflictions Entailed Upon the British Royal Family by Blood Marriages.

A writer in America, discoursing on the results of intermarrying, gives an appalling list of the diseases and deformities with which various members of European royal houses are afflicted, owing to this cause. From mere facial deformity up to insanity, says London Truth, there is scarcely any distressing affliction with which humanity is afflicted which does not find a place in the list. Very possibly this catalogue may be incorrect, but experience unquestionably proves the fact that there is a degeneration in royal families. To a certain extent this may be due to intermarriage, but I suspect that it is still more due to the species of cult that is paid to royalties from generation to generation, and which must in the nature of things weaken their intellectual fiber. Nothing can be more mentally injurious for a man than to have all his wishes anticipated by a crowd of sycophants, and through life to find all agreeing with him with whom he is brought in daily contact, instead of being subjected to the discipline involved in social equality. Just as we have lost the tails that were the appendages of our primeval ancestors because gradually the habit of wagging them fell into disuse, so all mental virility gradually disappears from families that are long regal, because they have no opportunity to exercise it.

HAS CANCER ITS MICROBE?

An Interesting Discovery Which May Mean Much.

A highly-interesting discovery, which will, perhaps, afford a clew to the cause of cancer, has been made in Prof. von Leyden's university hospital here, says a Berlin letter to the London Standard. A young woman of 22 and a man of 63, both suffering from dropsy and cancer of the stomach, were brought to the hospital last spring. In order to remove the accumulated fluid tapping was resorted to in both cases. The fluid was examined under the microscope and hitherto unknown living organisms, belonging probably to the protozoa, were discovered.

Prof. Waldeyer, to whom the preparations were submitted, advised that they should be sent to Dr. Schaudinn, assistant at the Zoological institute of the Berlin university, who has been investigating the protozoa for years past. He began his examination on July 19 and ascertained that in both cases the fluid contained a rhizpod, which he named Leydenia gemmipara schaudinn. He inferred that it is a pathogenic organism, but both he and Prof. von Leyden still abstain from deciding as to the connection between it and cancer, though they admit the possibility of such a connection. They have made a preliminary communication on the subject to the Berlin Academy of Sciences.

POISONING THE FOUNTAIN.

If the fountain of life is poisoned at its very source, there can be no health in any part of the body. When a woman has any disease or weakness of special organ-ism of her sex, the delicate fount-ain-head of her physical existence is poisoned and she cannot be healthy in any respect until this one fundamental trouble is cured.

The family physician may make the very common error of ascribing all the trouble to superficial causes; he may prescribe for neuralgia, indigestion, insomnia, or headache, when these are merely symptoms of some deep-rooted malady of the distinctly feminine organs.

Any woman suffering from these delicate complaints may be completely cured right in the privacy of her own home (without recourse to mortifying examinations and "local treatment") by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

It gives health to the special organism of womanhood. It purifies all diseased conditions; gives elastic strength to the ligaments, and vitality to the nerve-centres. It promotes good digestion, sound sleep, and freedom from pain.

It is the only medicine devised for this one purpose by an educated, skilled specialist in this particular field of practice. It is the only medicine which insures prospective mothers against the dangers and sufferings of motherhood.

Dr. Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser" contains several chapters devoted to the special physiology of woman, with advice and suggestions for self-treatment which every woman ought to read. A paper-bound copy sent absolutely free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay for mailing only; or, cloth-bound, 31 stamps. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Through California Service Via "The Milwaukee."

A fine Pullman Tourist Sleeping Car now leaves Minneapolis at 8:25 and St. Paul at 8:35 every Saturday morning and runs through to Los Angeles, Cal., via Kansas City and the Santa Fe System, without change, arriving destination 1:25 P. M. following Wednesday.

The journey, via this route, is through a very interesting portion of America, and the hardship incident to winter travel through the more northerly climate is avoided.

BUSINESS lifts the strain. St. Jacobs Oil is master cure for pain.

"THERE'S one consolation," thought the bargain hunter as she was blown to atoms by a dynamite cartridge, "this is a fast die."—Harvard Lampoon.

PISO'S CURE cured me of a Throat and Lung trouble of three years' standing. E. CADY, Huntington, Ind., Nov. 12, 1894.

THE man who always does his best will find a steady demand for the things that he can do.—Ram's Horn.

BE sure; neuralgia will cease. St. Jacobs Oil the cure. Get ease.

CHARITY is an eternal debt, and without limit.—Quesnel.

To Pay a Penalty for Dining

Is rather hard, isn't it? Yet how many are compelled to do this after every meal. Dyspepsia, that inexorable persecutor, never ceases to torment of its own volition, and rarely yields to ordinary medication. But tranquility of the stomach is in store for those who pursue a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. This fine corrective also remedies malarial and kidney comp aints, rheumatism, constipation, biliousness and nervousness.

THAT'S Why He Was Hard Hearted.—Kind Old Man—"Hard-hearted man, did you ever have a youth?" Stranger—"Yes; I have several of them."—Yankee Blade.

Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away.

OUR lives are the open volume the world reads.

OUR ENEMY STOLE IN

An enemy stole into your house one day last week and touched you lightly in passing. You thought little of the matter at the time, for the enemy was only a vagrant current of air. But now you are beginning to learn what mischief the little intruder did, for your back is stiff and painful. Your head aches, and at times you feel dizzy. What has happened? Simply this: the cold has settled on your kidneys. They are overcharged with blood and inflamed. Instead of passing the waste matter out of the body they are damming it up in the blood. Every minute, yes, every heart beat adds to the poison in you. Normal action of the kidneys will purify the blood. Nothing else will.

Warner's Safe Cure

Is the friend in need. It will reduce the inflammation, so that the grip on the tissues of the blood-vessels is relaxed, and the uric acid is sent on its way out of the body.

Thus You Overcome Your Enemy

BUFFALO GAZETTE

DELANO, FRIDAY, DEC. 25, 1896.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF THE VILLAGE OF DELANO.

DELANO DIARY

—Subscribe for the GAZETTE.

—Call in and get a sample copy of the Farm Eield and Fireside.

—Ye editor has been on the sick list for about two weeks. He thinks he knows which of his neighbors has the finest mince pie, and who has the best currant jell. Thanks for proofs that we were not forgotten though sick.

—The usual number of Christmas trees have helped entertain the Sabbath school children of Delano. Last evening the Methodists, Presbyterians and German Evangelicals each had trees and short exercises; all were well attended.

—The High School graduating class seems to grow more modest each year. At first they usedto furnish school nots for each week, but each year finds them less prompt to do so. If they keep on people will not know whether or not there is a graduating class. In fact few seem now to know.

—Several sleigh loads of people from the country drove in to church last Sunday evening. It won't hurt your horses any more to come to church Sunday evening, if well blanketed, than it will any other evening to stand out for an hour or so. It it is a good place to go once a week, for the whole family.

—The Christmas services held at the M. E. church Sunday evening were well attended. The double quartette, and the solos were highly appreciated. The sermon "Christmas" by Rev. Farber was a fine one and enjoyed by the unusuall large number present. If Mr. Farber's cogregation keeps on growing it wont be many years until a larger church will have to be figured on.

—We were the receipient on Tuesday of a nice little Christmas present, a box of bon bons, caramels and other varieties of very fine candies, the product of the new Delano candy factory. We understand the manufacturing will keep pace with the business brought in, and that in the near future our village will become the depot of supplies for confectionery of the finest kind, for miles around. The samples mentioned were certainly fine.

—The accident mentioned last Friday, as having just occurred to Mrs. George Kittock resulted in her death the next day. As near as can be ascertained Mrs. Kittock was endeavoring to light a fire with a lighted kerosene lamp, when she spilled some oil on her clothes which took fire and burned her severely, up to the waist band, so bad that the skin peeled off in most places Dr. Shrader was promptly called and did what he could to alleviate her sufferings, but the next morniug found her past her agonies. She leaves no family but her husband. The funeral was from the Catholic church Tuesday.

—Monday Dec. 21, was the shortest day of the year. We will now begin to find, almost daily, that light is coming sooner and darkness later. Soon the winter will have passed away and the joyous spring will be with us. But in this climate we do not look for thi before three long months yet have passed with their snow and ice.

—Poul try of every description took a raise about Christmas. In fact it was out of sight. Scarcly a fowl of any sort could be had on Thursday. Turkeys were 11 and 12 cents per pound, and few at that.

—It has been thought best to hold no literary the coming week, so it has been postponed until after the holidays.

—The Herald has a special communication containing the information that J.& P. Coats, of Glasgow, Scottland have just purchased the John Clark Jr. & Co. thread plant of Newark, N. J., for £250,000. It is a consolidation of the two greatest concerns in the world, the Mile End and O. N. T. brands being the popular names of the products of the two concerns, and it has very much the appearance of another trust as the new company will be able to dictate the price. There may be another verse added to the "Song of the Shirt".—Howard Lake Herald.

—An exchange pointedly remarksthat merchants who want newspaper men to discourage grocery peddlers and the ike, would make newspaper men feel more like doing so if these same merchants would quit useing free letter heads of axle grease and stove wholesalers, gargling oil envelopes, baking powder statements, sidewalk advetisements and rubber stamps. And patronize home papers. Reciprocity along this line is to be commended.—Litchfield Independent.

Ohio Blind Pig Whisky is Simply Awful.

WHEELING, W. Va., Dec. 21.—Two more victims have been added to the list of dead from drinking a substitute for whisky at Kenwood, Monroe Co., Ohio, Saturday evening last. This makes total list of dead five. Those who died today are Colonel Clegg, a brother of Thos. Clegg who died Saturday night from the same cause, and Henry Roth.

In the stomach of Seibert one of the victims who died Saturday night arsenic was found. The authorities of Cameron county are investigating the case. Some of the drinkers have been saved by physicians, but several others are still seriously ill.—Minneapolis Times.

Towne has Fears.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Congressman Towne declares that the efforts of President Cleveland to magnify the power of the executive are a menace to the legislative system. The Congressman criticises the president's stand on the Cuban question and proceeds as follows:

"Before the subject reaches him, even before it aprears in the senate, while indeed the senate committee is yet considering the resolution, he announces through his secretary of state that the eminent gentlemen of the two houses of our great national legislature may go through the motions of passing the recognition resolution, but that it will not have even a slight effect on the executive nor be permitted to influence the situation it is aimed at. If congress submits to the President's assumption now it will afford a precedent for further aggression hereafter that but dangerous to the independence of the legislative branch of the government and evidently to the perpetuity of the republic. Minneapolis Times.

Rascally Performances.

The Minneapolis Times of last Tuesday morning says:

"Moore & Co., the employment agents, say that of all the unemployed in the city they cannot get enough to supply the demand for work in the pineries in northern Minnesota and Wisconsin. They offer to waive their fee if the committee on unemployed will advance railroad fare to the men and let them work, taking the fare out of their wages afterward."

This rascally piece of business ought to be stopped. There has been too much of it already. Up in the pineries free soup houses have been started to keep the men from starving to death who are looking for work and are unable to find any. Lothrop had a free soup station before the one in Brainerd was started, and in the various pinery villages the people have used every possible effort to provide sufficent nourishment to keep the men alive. Yet these lying Minneapolis schemers deliberately spread the report that there is so much work up in this country that the employment agents cannot get them fast enough. Minneapolis has already sent scores of men up here looking for work when there is none to be had. A committee on employment that sends men up here to starve or freeze to death ought to be sentenced to a term in the state prison. Minneapolis is better able to take care of the unemployed there than Brainerd is.—Brainerd Journal.

County Cullings.

Court has adjourned until Jan. 4. At present it bids fair to be a long term.

We understand petitions are being circulated to secure a change of venue in cases of Dodge, Howard, and Wendell, and that it is being represented that it will be of less expense to Wright county to have the trials elsewhere. If that is so why don't Wright County adjourn court altogether and go elsewhere to have her cases tried? We guess it would be more expensive.

There is some question as to whether or not the Grand Jury which returned several indictments lately in Wright County was legally composed of lawful citizens of the county. If it turns out that such was not the case of course the indictments found will be declared void.
